TEN ZEPPELINS CROSS EAST ENGLISH COAST

One Attempts Raids on City of London From Two Points—Finally Brought To Earth in Flames—British Airships Prevent Casualties

Canadian Press Special.

LONDON, Oct., 2—A late official account of the Zeppelin raid says, "Ten airships crossed the east coast last night between nine and midnight One approached north of London about ten o'clock, but was driven off by gunfire and pursued by areoplanes the attempted raider returned from the northwest and was attacked by guns and aeroplanes, and brought down in flames in the neighborhood of Potter's Bar shortly before midnight. The secod airship attempted to atack London from the northeast and was driven off.

Bombs were dropped, but no report of damage or casualties is received. The remaing airships wandered aimlessly over the eastern counties. In Lincolnshire bombs were dropped promiscuously, most of them in open fields. The airship destroyed was of the latest type.

BRITISH SAILORS RELIEF FUND

A Litter Received by His Worship Mayor H. F. Ketcheson, Which Fully Explains Itsself

Sept. 26th, 1916

Your Worship:—

At an influential meeting of representative Canadians held early in July last, the above Fund was organized for the relief of wounded and disabled sailors of the Royal Navy and Mercantile Marine, and the widows and orphans of British Sailors who have lost their lives in the performance of their duty since the war began.

His Royal Highness, the Duke of Connaught, is patron of the Fund, and the Right Hon. Sir R. L. Borden, Prime Minister, and the Hon. J. D. Hazen, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, are Honorary Presidents.

The Fund is established to evince the appreciation of Canada for the splendid work that the British Sailors are doing for the Empire—in the only way possible at the present time, viz, the donation of money for the purposes above outlined. The Lords Commissioners for the British Admiralty have undertaken to distribute the portion of the Fund to be alloted to the Royal Navy.

Upon discussing the objects of the Fund in Toronto in July last with some of the leading citizens, it was decided that no attempt should made owing to the absence of so many during the summer months., to establish committees in Ontario, until the last of October.

Local committees have since the middle of July been organized in all the provinces of the Dominion, with the exception of Ontario, (for the reason above mentioned). The Lieutenant-Governors and Premiers of the same, as well as their Worships, the Mayors of the Cities of these Provinces, arranging meetings of the citizens for that purpose.

With the object therefore of concluding the organizations of Committees in Canada, the Honorary Treasurer, Major Seath, will hold meetings in all the cities of Ontario, commencing on October 2nd. and will arrive in your city on October 3rd.

The General Committee would appreciate it very much if, in conjunction with the Board of Trade, Canadian Club, Daughters of the Empire, Local Council of Women, and other public bodies, to all of whom I have written you could, with their co-operation, call a meeting for the citizens of Belleville for that date, at 3 p.m., when Major Seath could address them, and explain at greater length the objects of the Fund, as well as, with your kind assistance, organize a committee in your city for the collection of the money for this worthy object.

Yours faithfully
(Signed) W. G. Ross
President.

His Worship
H. F. Ketcheson, Esq.
Mayor
Belleville, Ont.

Note—A meeting will be held in the lecture room of the Armories, Tuesday afternoon, (Oct. 3rd) at 3 o'clock, to which all, ladies and gentlemen are invited.

MANY DEAD ON THE FIELD

Bulgarians Attempt to Counter-attack British But are Mercilessly Beaten

Canadian Press Special.

PARIS, Oct., 2 — Following up the advantage gained over the Bulgarians at Kaimakcalan Heights on the western end of the Macedonian front the Serbians advanced one and a quarter miles north of the Heights and occupied the village of Kotchovie. The Bulgarians made a counter-attack on positions newly won by the British on the left bank of the Struma, but were repulsed, leaving many dead on the field.

Memorial Service To a Departed Hero

John Street Church Honors Memory of Pte. James D. Carlaw Appropriate Discourse by Pastor

A memorial service for the late Private James Douglas Carlaw of Belleville, who was killed in action on September 15th, was held last evening in the John Street Presbyterian Church. Many were in attendance at the service, which was conducted by the pastor, Rev. E. C. Currie. Hymns, fitting for the occasion, were sung, and the Scripture lesson was most appropriate. A portion of the burial service was also read. After the usual devotional exercises had been conducted, the pastor gave a discourse which was a review of the life of the brave young man, who died on the battle field. In his opening remarks the divine said that Pte. James Douglas Carlaw was the eldest son of Mr. Davidson Carlaw of Belleville, and that he was killed in action on September 15th. He was a member of McGill College section of the Princess Patricia's regiment of Montreal, an adjunct of the famous Patricia regiment which was virtually deciminated in the early part of the war. The departed young man was of scholastic attainment ,who had made the great sacrifice. This was the first break that had been made of the thirty who had enlisted out of John Street Church. Pte. Carlaw was a young man of promising business ability, and his demise is sincerely regretted. To those bereaved would be extended the sympathy of all citizens. We feel a sense of loss when one lays down his life for our sake, as in this and many other cases. We can turn our thoughts away from the loss that has been sustained and reflect upon the honor gained. This young man heard the call that his King and country needed him and with all honor he responded to the call. His was an heroic call. He was willing to fill the humble place of a private for the sake of the cause. He esteemed the cause a righteous one, believing it was for the reestablishment of national religion. Previous to enlistment for King and country Pte. Carlaw had enlisted in the army of the King of Kings. He was a true Christian young man.

He knew whom he had believed. He had the fear of God in his heart. Such Christian hope was the strength of this young man's hope. He was not without hope when the end came. How much this means. We are free from any pang. What a comfort this is for the bereaved ones, and how our sorrows are lightened on account of the life the departed led. There is rest at eventide. He could truly say, "though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil, for Thou art with me, Thy rod and staff they comfort me."

During the service the choir rendered in a most feeling manner a sacred selection entiled "Homeland." The National Anthem was sung at the close of the service.

ONE KILLED; ONE WOUNDED

Canadian Press Special.

LONDON, Oct. 2.—Although the Zeppelin raiders last night covered a wide area and dropped a great many bombs, the material damage was slight, an official statement says. Police reports show one man killed and one woman injured, as the total of casualties inflicted.

Memorial Service In Christ Church For Corp. Post

A memorial service was held last evening in Christ Church for the late Corporal Wm. Post, who was killed in action on the 9th inst. The service consisted of "the burial of the dead" set into evensong, with suitable hymns. Mr. H. Sneyd read the special lessons, and the sermon was preached by the Rev. Dr. Blagrave, rector of the church, who chose for his text II. Cor. 5: "For we know that if our earthly house of this tabernacle were dissolved, we have a building of God, a house not made with hands, eternal in the Heavens." Among other things the rector pointed out that the late Corporal Post had been a member of Christ Church since his baptism, as an infant. In his death he left one more house without a husband and a father, but he saved a thousand homes; for every man who dies these days on the field of honor dies to save the rest of us, and to preserve our homes and our institutions, and everything we hold dear. It is a great privilege for those of us who are untouched to give the most unmeasured expression to the debt of gratitude we owe to those who are bereaved, as the family of Corporal Post is to-day. The service was quite impressive, and equally helpful and comforting to those who have lost, in a glorious cause, husband, son, brother and father.

Brockville Gets Rid of Knocker

Funeral of Undesirable Follows Optimistic Speech at Ad Club Banquet

BROCKVILLE, Ont., Sept. 30—The Brockville Ad. Club, a new organization in the Island City, composed of its business men and many live citizens, staged a banquet tonight in honor of Mr. Benjamin Briscoe of Jackson Mich., head of the Briscoe Motor Co. who has established a branch of his business here. The affair attracted a large and influential list of guests and a great reception was accorded Mr. Briscoe, who delivered a telling address on "Civic Efficiency," the key note of which was that without municipal administration supported by the public opinion, no town or city might expect industrial expansion. The proverbial knocker was handled by the speaker without gloves. W. G. Jarman president of the club, occupied the chair, among others who spoke were Mayor Wright and W. J. Cairns.

The banquet included several new featurers of a novel and enterprising character. At its close, amid an uproar, the committee produced a full-sized coffin, which was carried to the platform. In this gruesome receptacle was deposited a good-sized hammer, emblematic of the "knocker" and when the lid was duly nailed down tight, the coffin was duly carried from the platform shoulder high, followed in procession by the guests, to the River St Lawrence, and there it was unceremoniously dumped into the stream. Citizens generally attracted by the incident joined the parade, and by the time the river was reached several hundred people were present.

Liberal Majority In The Senate Nearly Gone

The Government Likely to Fill Twelve Vacancies Before Next Session

(Toronto Globe)

With the death of another Liberal Senator, Hon. John Costigan, to-day, the liberal majority in the Senate is now practically wiped out. There are now twelve vacancies in the upper Chamber, and it is understood that Government will fill these vacancies before the next session of Parliament, The standing of the parties in the upper Chamber, even providing no further deaths occur in the meantime, is forty-five Liberals to forty- three Conservatives counting Sir Lyman Melvin Jones on the Conservative side. Two or three of the Liberal Senators, owing to ill-health, are always certain to be absent during the coming session.

For what will be the last session of the twelfth Parliament of Canada, therefore, the Government for the first time, will practically control both Chambers. Although, however, it will have a practical ascendancy in the upper House, it is very improbable that the administration will reintroduce any of the legislation killed or amended by the Senate during the last four years.

Needless to say, there is a great scramble for the vacancies. There is no dearth of applicants, and the Government's position is not rendered any easier by the clamor of at least a score of its supporters in the lower House for safe anchorage in the Red Chamber before the election storm of next year.

All Ground Consolidated

Several Villages Captured — Repeated Enemy Counter Attacks Unsuccessful

Canadian Press Special.

LONDON, Oct. 3—A portion of the Bulgarian line on the Struma, front which we captured on Saturday, include the villages of Kara, Zakoibals and Kara Zakoizir, says today's official report of operations on the Macedonian front, epeated enemy counter attacks against these places were entirley unsuccessfull, and were beaten off with heavy loss. All ground now has been consolidated. There is no sign of the enemy for some distance in front of our trenches. In addition to heavy casualties inflicted to the enemy the number of prisoners taken increased to 250. Our casualties were comparatively small. The machine guns were captured.

Harvest Festival At St. Thomas

Splendid Programme Rendered Before a Large Congregation Sermon by Archdeadon Beamish

Special services for the Harvest Festival were held yesterday morning in St. Thomas' church. The interior of the edifice was fittingly decorated with grain, fruit and flowers most of which were generously donated by the members from Huff's Island. His Lordship, Bishop of Ontario, who was to have officiated at the services, was unable to be present, owing to illness. The Ven. Archdeacon Beamish, rector of the church, conducted the services, and delivered a forceful discourse, which was in keeping with the day. For his text, the Ven. Archdeacon took the fifteenth and sixteenth verses of the sixteenth chapter of the gospel according to St. Luke:

"And he said unto them, 'Ye are they which justify yourselves before men; but God knoweth your hearts; for that which is highly esteemed among men is almost abomination in the sight of God."

"The law and the prophets were until John; since that time the Kingdom of God is preached, and every man presseth into it."

The above words represent one single word, which attaches itself to Thanksgiving or giving Him thanks. We must think to meet the needs of the weakness of our nature, living under the sway of power of our senses. It is a wonderful material and physical condition, outward and invisible, by which we overcome these weaknesses, and through this He gives us our greatest gift. Lift up our hearts, in entire thanksgiving, giving Him thanks in the manner that Lepers who cried from afar, while Jesus was entering Galilee, "Jesus Master, have mercy on us." These Lepers, stricken with a terrible disease, are forbidden the fellowship of men, and were isolated from them, but Jesus bade them to wash themselves in the clear water and change their garments, and enter Jerusalem, and enter the Church of God, and were cleansed of their disease. We, like the leper, are stricken with sin, which has made way into our hearts in far greater extent, enter God's house, but we stand far off, like the Leper, who is shunned by fellow men, because of our sins. To meet God we come here this morning, you and I and everyone, but our senses cause us to cry, "Jesus Master, have mercy on us." We are too far off from God, because of our sins, but we are brought nearer by our cries or prayers. Be not afraid to pray. More things are brought by praying than anything in this world. The work of intercession is one which should engage every soul to-day. The prayers of God's faithful people should be offered for those who are fighting in the present war, it is yours, mine and everyone's battle. Pray for those who are wounded, and pray for those who are dead or dying. With our words of intercession our cry must go up, "Jesus Master, have mercy upon us." "Jesus Master," is your cry and mine.

When the Lepers arrived in Jerusalem they found themselves to be free to resume their ordinary place in society. "The words "Go and show yourself to the priests," was to them really a promise that they were to have the great privilege to be restored to the fellowship of human society. It is a great lesson, because as they went, they were being cleansed. Men ask why it is necessary to go to church. We must go to church to confess our sins to its head, in order to look to the higher life in the redemption of the work of Jesus Christ, and to give thanks to our Lord.

At the Choral Eucharist, the celebrant was the Ven. Archdeacon Beamish, who was assisted by the Rev. Fraser, the service being sung to Prof. Wheatley's Gregorian Setting. Mrs. Wheatley sang "My Task" during the offertory, with much taste.

At the evensong the Ven. Archdeacon was the preacher. The choir renderd the anthem, "Praise Thy God O Zion," most effectivety, whilst Miss Strethel Walton's singing of "The Heavenly Anthem" was excellent, W. Wheatley, Mus. Bach., A. R.C.O., presided at the organ throughout, and played the following recital: "Andantino", (Lemare); "Nocture in E Flat" (Chopin); "Gothinque Suite" (Boehmann); "Poet and Peasant" (Suppe) and "Festal Marche" (Smart).

LIEUT. HYMAN REPORTED DEAD

Message of Condolence From Overseas Gives But Brief Statement Went With 59th Batt.

Mrs. Eugene Hyman of Belleville, this morning was in receipt of a cablegram, which contained but one word and a signature. That word was "Sympathy" and the signature was "Col. Clarke." It is feared that the message refers to the death of Lieut. Eugene Hyman, who a few months ago left this city to do his part for King and country. He is a son of the late Mr. S. A. Hyman, who for many years conducted a fur store here, and which is being continued by his son, Capt. B. L. Hyman. Lieut. Hyman, when the war broke out, was in the drug business at Strome, Alberta, and feeling it his duty to join the colors disposed of his business and came eastward to Belleville. He had previously qualified as a military officer, and was given a commission as Lieutenant. He joined the 59th Battalion, which was recruited at Brockville and other points, but left for the front with the reinforced 14th Battalion in April last. Previous to going out west to embark in business, Lieut. Hyman owned a drug store on Gerrard Street, Toronto. For some time, when a young man, he was a clerk in Mr. J. S. McKeown's drug store of this city. His education was acquired in the Public and High Schools of Belleville, and he successfully passed his examination at the College of Pharmacy. Gene, as he was familiarly called, was a general favorite with his companions, being of a genial and obliging disposition. It is sincerely hoped that the above message does not mean his death. In addition to Mrs. Eugene Hyman, who is a daughter of Mr. W. E. Vermilyea, of this city, Mrs. S. A. Hyman, his mother, and two brothers are living. The brothers are, Capt. B. L. Hyman of the 155th Battalion, and Sydney of Montreal, who is in the Army Service Corps.

ESTABLISH NEW POSITIONS

Canadian Press Special.

LONDON, Oct. 2.—British official.—On the Somme front during the night our troops south of the Ancre beat off an enemy attack on our advance positions east of Eaucourt Labaye. We've now established our front in that area and have cleared buildings of Eaucourt Labaye of the enemy. Further west we established our line twelve hundred yards north of Courcellette in the direction of the Hessian trench. The enemy counter attack forced us to relinquish a portion of the region trench, which we had gained further to the north. This area has shewn stubborn fighting during the last twenty-four hours. Successful raids on the enemy's trenches were carried out north of Meuville St. Vaast and east of Lavontie.

CAN'T DELIVER DIRECTLY

TORONTO, Sept., 30—The Ontario License Commission will permit neither solicitation nor direct delivery by the wholesalers holding export licenses.

"The board is determined," said Chairman Flavelle today, "that under no circumstances will wholesalers and warehouses holding export licenses will be permitted to deliver to any one whomsoever in the Province. There will be absolutely no exceptions to this rule, and warehouses holding export licenses must deliver their goods to parties outside the Province. We are preparing a circular making this point very clear, and the wholesalers will be sent copies of this circular."

Regarding direct solicitation of orders, Mr. Flavelle said that the commission was prepared to fight to prevent it. "The commission already is looking over some cases brought to its attention, and intends to select one of them and make it a test case in the courts."

PTE. MALLORY IS WOUNDED

Notification Received by Mr. Burnham Mallory to That Effect—Enlisted With 61st at Winnipeg

Mr Burnham Mallory, who resides on North Victoria Avenue, Belleville, and who is County Treasurer, yesterday received an official notification from the Record Office, Ottawa, that his son Pte. Arthur B. Mallory had been wounded. The young wounded soldier is the third son of Mr. and Mrs. Mallory and enlisted with the 61st Battalion at Winnipeg. He was subsequently transferred to the 16th Battalion. He left Halifax in April last and had been in the trenches for some time. He was wounded whilst in Action between the 4th and 7th of September. The many friends of Pte. Mallory will join the Intelligencer in the hope that his wounds are not of a serious nature.

Another brother Pte. Philip Mallory is in the hospital suffering from what is termed as trench feet.

Huns Know There Will Be No Let Up

Crown Prince of Bavaria Looks for Allied Offensive of Great Persistance

BERLIN, Sept. 29, via London, Sept. 30.—The latest fighting on the Somme evidently has not shaken the confidence of German military leaders in their ability to prevent a breach in their line. The Berliner Tageblatt's special war correspondent interviewed Crown Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria, commander of the German forces on the Somme, Tuesday, and the Crown Prince's utterances expressed complete confidence in the situation for the present and the future.

The Crown Prince is quoted as having said that since the offensive began the Entent Allies had gained some ground, but there could be no thought of this decisively changing the situation.

"It is impossible to predict how things will go hereafter," said Prince Rupprecht. "But one thing is certain, namely, that we have everything so thoroughly prepared that we are able to contemplate the situation with equanimity, whatever comes. The offensive will certainly not reach an early end.

'We can reckon upon an offensive of great persistance and with heavy attacks, accompanied by an enormous expenditure of ammunition. But we have taken precautions. Our artillery has been reinforced, and likewise our aeroplane corps and our fliers have had hard fighting against increased numbers. Our artillery deserves advantages from the successful work of the aeroplanes, after having formerly been much exposed to observation by hostile aviators.

'Our troops have been striking with the utmost strength and the enemy has found the nut too hard to crack. It is my distinct opinion that the enemy is trying to force a decision at this spot during this year, and he has not yet succeeded. He will have to put up with a winter campaign and continue fighting next year."

TAPS THEIR HEADS

"I love the game," she confided to him "I love especially to watch the man at the bat. It is so cute, too, the way he keeps hitting the ground gently with the end of the bat. Why does he do that?"

"Well, you see, miss," explained the player, "the worms have an annoying habit of coming up to see who's batting, and that naturally puts the batter out a bit; so he just taps them on the head lightly and down they go again."

MILITARY MATTERS AT BARRIEFIELD HEIGHTS

WILLS MADE BY THE SOLDIERS

An Attempt Being Made to have every Soldier make His will before Going out of Canada.

An order dealing with wills for soldiers who are going overseas appears in orders of the 155th Batalion. The making of a will is a very important matter and the military authorities are making every effort to get all the soldiers to discharge this duty before going out of Canada. The work thus done greatly assists in the rapid discharge of red tape incurred in properly disposing of a soldier's estate after he has been killed in action. To avoid any possible trouble the order as given below shows some of the precautions being taken:

"A special form has been drawn up to facilitate the making of a Will, by officers, N. C. O. and men embarking for overseas service.

"The soldiers active service pay book which is issued to the men immediately on arrival in England contains a short form of military will which is sufficent for the purpose of leaving personal estates, but is not valid for the passing of real estate as a short military will is merely a holograph will, made with out witnesses, and to, give legal effect to a will outside of personal estate it is essential that it should be a form of will duly signed and witnessed by two witnessrs.

Very great difficulties occur in dealing with the estates and effects of officers and men who unfortunately become casualties on active service when no will has been made and deposited with the proper authorities before they proceed on active service and it 's considered in the best interests of all concerned that everybody proceeding on active service should execute a will as protection to his relatives and friends.

"The will must be witnessed by two persons, and forms may be obtained at company orderly rooms. Company commanders will see that these forms are properly completed and handed in to the Battalion orderly room,

COURSES FOR THE WINTER

Will be as many schools as have been Running at the camp, and good training will result.

Lieut.-Col. W. J. Brown, General Staff Officer, has decided that the troops in this district for the winter will be thoroughly trained in all the specialities that were so valuable at the camp. As soon as Lieut. Sherman Young returns from the School of Musketry and Machine Gun course at Ottawa he will organize a Kingston School of Machine Gunnery, at which there will be a constant attendance of about twenty. Each course at the school will be for three weeks' duration.

There will be a bayonet fighting and physical training of twenty-one days for each course. In addition to these two schools, there will also be the School of Cookery, Infantry School as conducted last year by Lieut.-Col Barager, School of Signalling, and a course in wireless. In fact there will be all of the instruction which made the reputation of Barriefield Camp so high. The arrangements for the winter are already being made.

LAST PAY DAY

The usual $40,000 in cash was brought by automobile to the camp on Friday morning for cashing the cheques for the men. This may prove to be the last pay for the men at Barriefield Camp.

MAJOR PONTON IS STARTING RUGBY TEAM

The following is a copy of a notice from Major R. D. Ponton, published in orders: "I beg to inform you that an endeavor is being made to select a rugby football team from the units in camp, which will be entered in the league composed of the Royal Military College, Queen's University, and the 207th Battalion of Ottawa.

"It is thought that quite a number of good players can be found in camp and it is requested that you will be good enough to forward me the names of any such men at your earliest convenience."

NOTES

Sergt-Major Lavn, A Company 155th Battalion, is acting battalion sergeant-major in the absence of B. S. M. Cooper at the Infantry School.

Havelock will endeavor to raise a platoon for the 247th Battalion and a local organization has been organized to co-operate with Col. Johnston, of Peterboro.

Despite the rain Friday the boys in camp went at their work as hard as ever. The ranges were a busy scene throughout the day while trench work was also vigorously carried out.

IN & ABOUT THE CITY

ADJOURNED MEETING

An adjourned meeting of the City Council will be held this evening. One of the matters to be discussed will be street paving.

DOORS INSECURE

THE MOST IMPORTANT

At Friday's session of the Ann Street School, the question of war news came up in Miss Laidley's class.

Teacher—"What is the latest and most important information regarding the war?"

A CONTEMPTIBLE ACT

Some time during last night a contemptible act was perpetrated on three business places on Front street. White enamel letters which were placed on the outside windows to designate names of owners, were pried off and evidently taken away. The police were on trail of the parties who were suspected of committing the act, but they managed to get away.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

THERE are two great obstacles to preventive medicine which is the real medicine, and these are poverty and ignorance. The greatest cause of poverty—that is, real downright need—is sickness. Sickness causes at least one-third of the world's poverty. Several other things, including alcohol, account for the other two-thirds. Money in the form of higher wages helps in a large measure to obviate poverty and the sickness which oftentimes lies at its door. Perhaps the most noted health man in America at the present time is Colonel (Dr.) Gorgas, the man whose energies succeeded in making the Panama Zone inhabitable by white people. Colonel Gorgas asserts that two diseases carried by the mosquito—Malaria and Yellow Fever—drove the white man from the easy living tropics to the inclement north. His enterprise is allowing him to return there. He asserts further (for, like all public health men, his assertions are marked by personal modesty) that the Panama Canal project was made feasible by the fact that the workingmen there were paid the highest wages of any place in America. Money may be an evil. It sometimes is; but it has its good uses. The other great foe of public health advancement is ignorance; that is, want of knowledge of what is good for one's health. This column is out against ignorance of this character.

PREVENTION OF DISEASE

The writer hopes that everyone who sees this paper will read this column. Especially is it desired that the children shall become interested in it, for they, after all, are the portion of the population who are most susceptible to education. The older ones, more set in their ways, will not perhaps take all that is set down here as gospel—although it more nearly approaches gospel than anything else found outside the Good Book—but the children will perhaps gain some good from it. By the way, there is some good public health advice, none better, found in the Old Testament: read Exodus and Leviticus.

• • •

Following an outbreak of communicable disease in a home the room occupied by the sick person should be thoroughly cleaned. The floors should be scrubbed with soap and hot water and the walls wiped with a solution of 1 in 2,000 bichloride of mercury, carbolic acid, or cresol 1 in 20. Unless the circumstances seem to the Medical Officer of Health to demand it the room need not be fumigated by means of formaldehyde or sulphur.

DISINFECTION

It is well known that outbreaks of diphtheria and other diseases, including scarlet fever, cerebro-spinal meningitis and typhoid fever, are influenced by carriers," persons who are quite well and have not recently suffered from the diseases, but who convey disease to others. This is very often the reason of the obscure origin of serious epidemics. Numerous investigators have found diphtheria bacilli in the throat and nose of from one to four per cent. of healthy persons. Among the scarlet fever patients in the Willard Parker Hospital, New York, 4.5 per cent. of diphtheria carriers were found, and in one-half of these the bacteria were virulent, as shown by reaction in guinea pigs. No local treatment is entirely satisfactory in exterminating the germs of the disease. Some of the persistent cases were those with deep pockets in the tonsils, and the complete removal of these tonsils usually give satisfactory results. Carriers of diphtheria bacilli do not themselves contract diphtheria, but they are a common source of trouble to others.

DIPHTHERIA CARRIERS

QUESTIONS.

A.—The hair should be washed with soap and warm water, dried, and then soaked in gasoline or coal oil with a towel tied about the head over night. Next morning the hair should be carefully combed with a fine-tooth comb dipped in acetic acid or vinegar to remove the nits. One, or at most two treatments like this will usually clean the matter up.

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

A.—The quantity of Diphtheria Antitoxin required for any case depends upon the severity of the case. There is practically no danger from any quantity from 5,000 to 30,000 units. Don't hesitate to use plenty of it. It is supplied free by the Provincial Board of Health.

PREVENTION OF FIRES

PLAN TO MINIMIZE LOSS FROM FOREST FIRES.

Appointment of Fire Rangers Must Be Kept Out of Politics—Cyril T. Young, Manager of the Eastern Lands of the Canadian Northern System, Outlines a Plan Based Upon Practical Experience.

FOREST fires are the source of great anxiety, not only as to loss of human life, but also because of the loss of forest wealth. The latter is not inexhaustible. A few fires such as traversed Northern Ontario recently would soon make appreciable inroads into the available supply of raw material for pulp, ties, and timber. No one realizes this batter than Mr. Cyril T. Young, manager of the eastern lands of the Canadian Northern system. For many years Mr. Young has traversed Northern Ontario woods and has become familiar with them and with the danger that besets them. He has fought fires, survived them, and has taken a keen interest in repairing the damage done by them. Like all other practical men he is more concerned with prevention at the present time. In 1911 he was chairman of the Porcupine Relief Committee, following the Northern Ontario disaster of that year, and as such he acquired some knowledge of the great and irreparable destruction that follows forest fires. To prevent them the first step necessary, he said, must unquestionably be the appointment of a Board of Fire Commisisoners for this Province (Ontario), and the Government must make the sacrifice, if there is any, of taking the matter of fire ranging appointments completely and entirly out of politics. The head office of the board in Toronto must be supplemented by nine district headquarters in the north country, and each of the fire districts given the right to hire its own bushmen for fire ranging purposes at wages commensurate with the work and experience of the men employed.

District offices should be opened at—

1. North Bay for the territory adjacent, including Sturgeon River and Temagami Forest Reserve;
2. At Haileybury, for the Timiskaming Lake, Montreal River, Earlton-Charlton section;
3. At Cochrane for the Transcontinental east to the Quebec boundary, Porcupine and Matheson;
4. At Pembroke, for Algonquin Forest Reserve and Ottawa Valley;
5. At Sudbury, for the Soo Line, Mississauga Forest Reserve, Northern C. N. R. and Parry Sound section;
6. At Nipigon, for the Nipigon Forest Reserve and Tashota-Kowkash section;
7. At Port Arthur, for the section down to the mouth of the Pigeon River, and north to Graham on the National Transcontinental;
8. At Fort Frances, for Quentico Reserve, C. N. R. line west of Mine Centre, and west to the Manitoba boundary, including the southern section of the Lake of the Woods;
9. At Kenora, for the northern portion of the Lake of the Woods district, and east, including Lacsuel, and also the territory adjacent to Graham.

As the recent calamity up north was not the result of one big fire, but rather a hundred fires that had been smouldering for weeks, lookout towers—many of them—to detect these fires from the highest hills in the clay belt, must be erected, especially along the lines of railway. They must be connected by a telephone system—not wires that are always out of business from falling trees and other causes—but by a system of wireless telephony that has recently been perfected for distances of fifty miles. It is sufficiently compact for a ranger to carry the apparatus in his knapsack, and set his instrument either to the same tension as that of the adjacent towers, or that of other fire rangers whom he may wish to notify.

The district offices should not alone be equipped with the wireless telephony used in its district, but should be equipped with a wireless telegraph mast, to permit getting in immediate touch with the head office of the board in Toronto, and avoid the vexatious delays of the commercial system. Each district agency should, however, have sufficient authority vested in them to act immediately on their own initiative when fire occurs.

The lookout towers need not be costly, approximately $150 to $250 each. I find that the towers I am erecting afford my long-range telescopes a view of from fifteen to fifty miles across the surrounding country, and that fires are thereby detected and extinguished before they form large, dangerous ones. The best fire-ranging system in existence in Ontario to-day is that of L. E. Bliss of Nipigon, because of his system of towers and telephones.

Lookout towers cut down the number of rangers required, and in new settlement townships they should be erected every ten miles, especially along the railway, affording a view of the right of way and of the farms being cleared, stretching on all sides from the hill on which the high tower is erected. No settler's fire or other fire must be started without a permit from the ranger, who will investigate the surroundings on the ground. With a chart of the township in front of him the ranger could from the lookout tower and from known landmarks or flags at the corners of the townships locate any fire as soon as smoke appeared. Throughout the "settlement sections" the rangers should be equipped with ponies to ride out in the evenings and notify the settler or miner that if the fire was not extinguished at once, and he continued to let it burn, that he would be arrested, convicted, and put in jail without the option of a fine, as his fire is a menace to human life in the vicinity.

Some men are so grasping that they bawl out their luck if, after a railway wreck they aren't sufficently messed up to collect big damages.

Who Answers Your Telephone?

It is of prime importance to your business that the person answering your telephone be pleasant-voiced, polite, intelligent. A curt, snappy answer results in loss of trade.

It is important, too, that your telephone be answered by an employee who is thoroughly posted on the details of your business. It is annoying to call and be answered by someone who will let you tell him everything you have to say and then inform you that you will have to tell the whole story to someone else.

We suggest that you give this matter of incoming telephone calls your careful attention. Many merchants insist on their most experienced employees answering the telephone.

NICKEL REFINING

Our worthy contemporary, The Montreal Gazette, defends the International Nickel Company's policy of maintaining its chief refinery for Canadian ores, and expending the bulk of its revenue in the United States.

The Gazette's plea will receive very little sympathy from the press of the country. Their great grievance for some years has been the competition they have had to meet from the big dailies, which sold in their home centres at $3 to $5 a year, but outside of Montreal ,Toronto and Winnipeg, subscriptions were usually $1 a year. The papers in these centres have subsidies, sources of revenue and influences at their back not available to other dailies and weeklies. It transpires that one big daily, which took subscriptions as low as 50c a year was linked with, if not really controlled, or actually owned by the International Nickel Company. With such tremendous resources at its back the fifty cent rate is easily explained

We cannot understand the Gazette hurrying to the defence of the Nickel Co. policy of manufacturing in the United States. The Gazette stood with the Financial Post in opposing that part of the Fielding Taft treaty which would lead to the milling of our wheat in the United States.

The Gazette would compel the grinding of Canadian wheat in Canadian mills. Then why argue for the opposite policy in the case of nickel ore. We hope to have The Gazette revise its views and support our policy of eventually compelling the manufacture here of all raw materials of which we have a monopoly or near monopoly like nickle, paper, flour, asbestos, and many other natural products.

The Gazette concludes:—"Canada's use alone would not keep a smelter going. The metal was like any other mechandise, like copper or iron ore, or wheat, or cotton, or any of a hundred articles that are used for military services, but that find their great usefulness in the arts and purposes of peace. With some at least the problem seems to be to prevent the restoration of this simple and natural order after the war. There is no practicable or desirable way of gaining such an end. If there was such a way it would be doubtful if any one would seek to use it. When these bald facts are seen and recognized the nickel problem disappears. There appear to be some, however, who do not want the facts realized. Their zeal seems to have some connection with a scheme for getting taxpayers' money to enable them to make a profit in a business that others pursue without such unwholesome aid. This, however, is not a problem so much as it is a treasury raid."

BETTER THAN THE BRITISH

An interested public would be glad to learn whether the suggestion by a prominent financial paper is justified that there was more graft, more family and political influence and interference in England than in Canada. The other day a British judge sentenced Lucien Asseling, an inspector in the [illegible] years penal servitude for accepting bribes and obtaining £1,400 under false pretences by instigating another man to make a tender for a supply of razors and knives, less than half of which were delivered.

Charges are pending against other official departments and the Judge who sentenced Asseling suggested that the Government should overhaul the whole system of purchasing departments and palace business men at their heads.

In Canada, we believe, as the result of the constant agitation kept up by the Financial Post, Si rRobert Borden long ago overhauled our purchasing departments and put business men in charge. They are not by any means perfect, but our system is much better than the British. Our Government is weak in not prosecuting those guilty of fraud. It is weak in inspection. It is weak in accepting goods that are not up to standard or fully adapted to the purposes for which they are wanted. Hundreds of thousands of dollars of Canadian-made supplies have been scrapped in England and France. This is not the fault of our manufacturers, but of our Government departments in not giving manufacturers proper specifications.

Montreal Gazette:—The work of the Duke of Connaught in Canada may not be considered without a reference to the co-operation therein of the members of his family who accompanied him here, their Royal Highness the Duchess and the Princess Patricia. Illness interfered somewhat with the activities of the Duchess. When she could appear in public she was ever at the side of the Duke, and was always ready to give countenance to commendable endeavors in the cause of the public weal. In her home at Rideau Hall she was the great and gracious lady whose simplicity and dignity were natural to herself and her station. As for the Princess Patricia, like her father, she has become known everywhere, been ready at all times to do her part in the work that belonged to her sphere, and everywhere has won regard. The Duke will leave Canda within a short time to take up other responsibilities. He and his family will have with them the best wishes, the regard and the respect of the Canadian people, all acquired by merit.

Major Moraht, the German military critic, declares that if the Government has effective means in hand for hindering military assistance from neutral states, it should not hesitate in applying it. The advice would seem to be unnecessary. The war conductors seem to be quite willing to employ every device known to them in seeking to inflict damage on their opponents, and to prevent the giving of aid by neutrals as well. The submarines, for instance, are not very considerate in their work.

An American business man, now in Switzerland, professes to have had an interview with Count Zeppelin, in which the inventor declared that he had sworn to destroy London by airship bombardment, or die. He has become a fanatic on the subject, says the American. As the Count is 78 years of age his promise may, quite naturally, soon be kept, though not in the way he would prefer. London is quite likely to remain undestroyed for some time to come. The chances are against the old inventor.

MAIL FOR PRISONERS.

Canadian Government Issues New Instructions to Senders.

Owing to difficulties experienced in sending letters and parcels to Canadian prisoners-of-war in Germany the Post-office Department has issued revised instructions regarding the despatching of mail to Germany. Postage need not be paid on either letters or parcels.

Regarding rules as to letters, the department reiterates that letters must be left open and should not exceed in length two sides of a sheet of notepaper, and on no account must the writing be crossed. Postcards are preferred to letters, and if the former are sent they must not contain views of warships, camps, docks, bird's-eye views and any conspicuous landmarks. Communications should be confined to family news, and no references to the naval, military, or political conditions are allowed.

Parcels must not contain letters, but outside of that there is no restrictions as to contents of parcels so long as they are intended for the benefit of the addresses. No parcel should exceed 11 pounds. Strong cardboard boxes, tin boxes, strong wooden boxes, and several folds of strong packing paper are recommended as coverings. The address should be as follows: Rank, initials, name, regiment, or other unit, British, Canadian, French, or Belgian, etc., prisoner-of-war, place of internment, Germany. Money may be sent on information from the post-office officials.

Assets.

Office Boy—Guy in front says can you let him have some of th' back allimony you owe his wife. He's just back from th' honeymoon trip, and he needs it.—Life.

Over and Under.

"That's strange. Every time I've seen him he has been going crazy under it."

The Three Scutaris.

By this time we should all know enough about the near east not to confound the various Scutaris—the one in Albania, the one opposite Constantinople and the one in southern Greece. It is curious that each name comes from a different original form. The Greek Scutari is otherwise Scatari; the Albanian one is the Illyrian Scodra, and the Asiatic one is the Turkish Uskudar. This last means a courier carrying royal orders from station to station and commemorates the fact that this place, the ancient Chrysopolis, or City of Gold, was the starting point of the Asiatic couriers.—Youth's Companion.

The Limit in Politeness.

A certain professor is unusually courteous, both in and out of the classroom. One day he made a bonfire in his back garden. The flames, creeping rapidly through the dry stubble, frightened him, and he believed his house was in imminent danger. So he ran wildly down the street, crying at the top of his voice:

"Help! Fire! Fire! Help!"

And then, as if thinking himself too abrupt and urgent, he politely added, so his neighbors say:

"That is, all those who can conveniently do so."

A woman from the city was spending the summer in a small town, and one day while doing her marketing she asked the butcher how he happened to choose his business.

He hesitated a moment, and then—"Well, I don't know," he answered, "but I always was fond of animals."—Everybody's.

She Learns Too.

There had been a family row.

"Well," remarked the alleged head of the house, "a man learns a few things when he gets married. Yes, sir, a man lives and learns."

"That may be," retorted the feminine half of the sketch, "but the school of experience doesn't bar co-eds."

His Grouchy Views.

"What has become of the fine old names like Prudence and Patience?"

"They wouldn't be appropriate now," declared the old grouch. "If I had a couple of daughters I'd name 'em Extravagance and Hysteria."

A Bull in the Pulpit.

"I am requested to say," said the young dominie, who was acting as a substitute, "that there will be no meeting of the Ladies' Sewing guild this week as usual, owing to the fact that all the ladies of the guild will be out of town. Should any others wish to take up the work they may do so."

Then he paused, but it was too late.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

"THE BOHEMIAN GIRL" AT GRIFFIN'S TO-NIGHT

Few ballads have retained their popularity as have "The Heart Bowed Down," "Then You'll Remember Me," "I Dreamt I Dwelt in Marble Halls," "The Fair Land of Poland," "A Soldier's Life," "The Gypsy Bride" and others in "The Bohemians Girl." The musical worth and beauty of this music has established it, not as a passing favorite, but as a classic for all time. Additional attractiveness was given to this beautiful opera by its revival by the Aborn Opera Company with a more complete and elaborate staging than it had ever had in this country. This production, which was originated in New York with great success, and which is now in its sixth prosperous season comes to Griffin's Opera House to-night for the first time. While this masterpiece by Michael William Balfe has enjoyed many years of popularity in many countries, there was but one European presentation of it,—at the Theatre Lyrique in Paris,—that equalled this American production. It was given in French there as "La Bohemienne," in German at Vienna, as "Die Zigeunerin," and in Italian at Hamburg, as "La Gitana". Its amplified presentation in Paris added greatly to the fame of its composer, and its success there resulted in Balfe's being made a Chevalier in the Legion of Honor by Napoleon III, and Commander of Order of Carlos II by the Regent of Spain. The version of the opera being presented by the Aborns combines the best parts of the Parisian version, with a number of new ideas supplied by that wonder worker, Edward P. Temple, who staged the great spectacles at the New York Hippodrome during its first three seasons.

THE INNOCENT LIE

A Stirring Absorbing Photoplay With Numerous Strong Situations

The new Famous Players photodrama, "The Innocent Lie" by Lois Zellner, with Miss Valentine Grant, the sweet little screen star, as Nora O'Brien, will appear at the Palace Theatre tonight, and at Griffins Opera House tomorrow night,. The exquisite exterior scenes were picturized on the island of Bermuda, where Miss Grant and a well selected cast under the leadership of Director Sidney Olcott had gone expressly for this production.

Nora O'Brien, who arrives in America with the intent of finding her brother and delivering a note for a friend of hers, is injured in a street brawl. Believing her to be the expected relative of the family addressed in the note, she is conveyed to them. The Winters not having ever seen their little Irish cousin, welcome her as their own.

Mrs Winters and her two sons, Teddy and Egan, are attentive to 'Cousin' Nora who presists in her plea that she is not their cousin. Thinking that the injury has affected her mind, all her protests are unheeded. After a while Nora becomes accustomed to her enjoyable surroundings and rejoices in the fact that her identity remains only in the unforgotten past. Her daring rescue of Teddy , the youngest of the family, establishes her more firmly in their hearts.

Her brother a notorious theif, plans to rob the wealthy Winters. By remarkable strategy he secures the position of chauffeur in the family, here the first meeting of brother and sister in America takes place. Suspicions and thrilling adventures follow.

Valentine Grant, by her splendid portrayal of these trying situation creates a new dramatic character on the motion-picture stage. Credit enough cannot be given the notable direction of Mr Olcott, and the cast which supports so admirably, which includes such popular photoplayers as Robert Cain, Hunter Arden, Jack J. Clark and Morris Foster.

Besides the above five part offering a very amusing Bray Komedy Kartoon will be exhibited along with the second episode of the Selig Atheletic series.

NEW YORK HEADQUARTERS OF BELGIAN RELIEF COMMISSION DENY THAT BELGIAN RELIEF SUPPLIES ARE STOLEN OR INTERFERRED WITH BY GERMANS

Mr. Maurice Goor, Belgian Consul General of Ottawa, has received a wire from American Belgian Relief Headquarters in New York as follows:—

'Report that German soldiers interfere with our supplies is not true, our system of distribution being so thoroughly organized and our inspection service so effective as to insure control up to the point of actual issue to the people in the same of small rations. Beyond this point there is of course, the chance that an individual may part with rations for a consideration, but you will agree that this is so extremely remote in the circumstances as to be a negligeable factor probably of less significance than the inevitable petty languages in ordinary commercial affairs."

Preached On Interesting Theme

Evangelist Johnson Takes up "Return of Jews to Jerusalem Before the Coming of Christ"

With a splendid gathering present last evening at the hall two doors west of the Y.M.C.A., on Campbell Street, Evangelist Johnston spoke with considerable enthusiasm on the subject entitled 'Will the Jews return to Jerusalem before the coming of Christ?" He took for his text Isaiah 35:10, where it says: "The ransomed shall return and come to Zion .. .." But as Mr. Johnston declared that a false and unscriptural theory is extent that teaches that the literal Jew, the natural descendants of the Patriarch Abraham, will eventually return to the country of Palestine. This is not so he declared. The promises relied upon to favor this theory may appear rather plausible and so he referred to a few of the passages. But notice, he declared, there is just one point that those who teach that idea, overlook. The promises that teach the return of the Jews were all given before the year 457 B.C., and as everyone knows, the Jews who before that time were taken as captives into Babylon, returned under the decree of Artaxerxes in 457. (See Ezra 7.) So unless there can be found a promise this side of that date the theory concerning the return of the Jews forever goes to the wind. No, there will be no such a thing as a return of the literal Jews in the future. But the Bible, however, teaches that those who become Christians or Spiritual Jews, (Rom. 2:28) will at Christ's second coming ascend to the heavenly Jerusalem; (Gal. 4:26,) and this is the only outlook presented in the Scriptures. He described this new Jerusalem and closed with a most earnest exhortation to be ready to return. He showed the conditions upon which one may enter, (Rev. 22:14). This text teaches us to keep the commandments of God; for only such can enter into the Holy City of God.

Women Will Work to Relieve Eligible Men

Meeting in Y. M. C. A. to Perfect Organization to That End—No Excuse For The Masculines Now

A meeting was held in the Y. M. C. A. Saturday at 3 P.M., of the Women's Emergency Corps, Belleville Branch. It was decided to have a registration of all the women who are willing to work during the period of the war, and so relieve all the men who are physically fit for duty but feel they cannot leave their positions. The movement has been taken up in each Military Division. Belleville belongs to No. 3 Division, which extends from Bowmanville to Cornwall, and north as far as Ottawa. The officers of the Belleville branch are:—

President, Mrs. A. Evan MacColl; Secretary, Miss Marjory Waters; Committee, Mrs. St. Charles, Mrs. Asseltine, Mrs. S. W. Vermilyea, Miss Helen Wallbridge, Miss Lister, Miss Falkiner Mrs. J. Franklin Wills, Mrs. Potts (Stirling), Mrs. A. R. Symons, Mrs. Barlow, Mrs. A. E. Wrightmyer, Mrs. Ruston, Mrs. Richy, Mrs. McLaurin, Mrs. Mikel, Mrs. E. Guss Porter. The Registration will begin at the Y.M.C.A. Tuesday afternoon, at the Patriotic Booth, and all the women who have not a regular occupation, are urged to register and aid the committee who are anxious to get a good list of volunteers. DO not wait for a personal canvas—and do not make the excuse that you are not trained. At least show your patriotism by offering your services. We hope the emergency will not arise so that you will be called upon, but at least be ready and organize.

When our boys have so nobly responded, women, do not hesitate to answer this appeal and put your names down as willing to help if the opportunity presents itself. It

Forty-Five Years In Local Business

Rev. A. L. Geen Started in Business Four-and-One-Half Decades Ago To-day—Many Changes Since

Forty-five years ago to-day Mr. Geen began business, (on Monday, 2nd Oct., 1871). How many have been the changes in the business houses of Belleville since then! Few persons who then conducted business are doing so to-day. Mr. Geen bought out Mr. J. C. Holden, who entered the firm of Ames, Millard & Co., now Ames, Holden & Co., shoe manufacturers.

OBSEQUIES.

MRS. W. McCAMON

Saturday afternoon the remains of the late Mrs. William McCamon of this city, were taken to Roslin for interment. Services at her late residence here, were conducted by Rev. Mr Egan and Rev. Mr. Horton. The bearers were relatives of the deceased.

MRS. MAHALA REID

Many relatives and friends were yesterday in attendance at the obsequies of the late Mrs. Mahala Reid of Corbyville. At the residence of her son, Mr. Wilson Reid, services were conducted by Rev. Mr. E. Wilson of Canifton, who also officiated at the interment at Elmwood cemetery, Thurlow Township. A number of floral designs were placed upon the casket. The bearers were Messrs. O. Mather, H. Homan, W. A. Gilbert, A. Gerow, G. Vanderwaters and J. Reynolds.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

TYPHOID FEVER is a severe disease coming on with headache, rise of temperature, diarrhoea, and abdominal distention. It always occurs as the result of taking into one's stomach food or drink contaminated with the body discharges. These discharges may enter one's mouth in water which has been polluted with sewage containing typhoid germs, with milk or food to which the germs have been carried by flies, by dirty hands, by dirty water, etc., or by direct contact with a person ill of typhoid fever. It is also distributed by "carriers," that is by persons who, though immune to the disease themselves, carry the germs of the disease in their intestines and transmit it to others through the discharges reaching food, etc. "Typhoid Mary," the New York cook who gave the disease to a large number of people before she was locked up, is a typhoid example of a typhoid carrier. People who have typhoid fever may carry the disease for a long time and be a source of danger to others, especially if they have anything to do with the preparation of food.

TYPHOID FEVER

Typhoid fever is rather common about the farms especially if a single case has occurred in a neighborhood where there is any chance of the general water supply, such as a spring, stream, or lake, receiving the intestinal discharges of the sick person. A typical example of this occurred in connection with an outbreak of the disease at Plymouth, Pa., in 1885. Plymouth is a mining town with a population at the time of the outbreak of about 8,000. Its water-supply was obtained from a mountain stream draining an almost uninhabited watershed, and the water for the town was impounded in a series of four impounding reservoirs. In January a man living up stream, who had spent his Christmas holidays in Philadelphia, became ill at his home. The excreta were not disinfected but were thrown either into the frozen creek or upon its snow-covered banks. In March there came a spring thaw and the accumulations of excreta were washed down the stream. Three weeks later there was an acute outbreak of typhoid fever in the little town. In some days as many as 100 cases occurred. One thousand and four cases were reported. There were, it is estimated, altogether 1,500 cases and the deaths numbered 114. The infection was most marked in those who used the town water supply, the epidemic being limited to the users of this water. Those who used well water escaped the disease. This epidemic of typhoid was studied and definitely traced to its source by competent observers, and is a marked example of the necessity of protection of public water supplies.

We are not exempt from such lessons in Ontario. The outbreak of typhoid in Ottawa in 1911 and again in 1913, and that of the town of Sarnia in 1911-12, all of which were proven to have occurred as the result of sewage-polluated water, have been sharp lessons in our own province, lessons unhappily which have not yet convinced the respective civic authorities of the necessity of adequate protection of their water-supplies.

In the majority of cases the well is the chief and usually the only source of water supply. It is in many cases a safe supply, especially if it is a deep or driven well and more particularly if it is well protected against surface drainage. But many farm wells are shallow with the curb made of unjointed timber or stone which allow of easy drainage to the well. The covering is often of loose boards through which surface impurities may easily run. The danger is slight unless the impurities contain, which they may easily do, the excreta of persons carelessly thrown upon the ground. If the excreta comes from a person affected with typhoid the danger is imminent, and there is almost a certainty that users of the water will suffer from the disease. The moral is plain: PROTECT THE WELL!

Summer Diarrhoea kills a large number of babies every summer. It is preventable if care is taken with the babies' food. If at all severe call the doctor at once. In any case it is always safe to give a dose of the good old-fashioned castor oil. That is one of the mother remendies to be banked upon. If the diarrhoea is severe cut off all food, especially MILK, which is death to a baby with diarrhoea, but give boiled water in as large amounts as the baby would have of food. In older children give only water and gruel or dry toast. But get a doctor at once.

Fruit Crop Poor.

A September fruit bulletin, issued by the Federal Department of Agriculture, states that lack of rain has had a serious effect upon small fruits. Orchards and vineyards in the Niagara district, that have not been cultivated, are showing serious results. Apples in the commercial apple centres of Ontario will be small. East of Toronto there will not be more than 20 per cent. of No. 1 fruit, and the crop is very light. In Nova Scotia and British Columbia the outlook is better.

Eel a Source of Profit.

Eels are not in form pleasing to the eye, nor do their habits commend them to the taste. Nevertheless in Europe and America their flesh is in demand, and scientists tell us it has great food value. It may be news to many that eels are caught at certain points in Canada and shipped to the States, where the market for them is steady. The chief centre in Canada for this industry is at Iberville, near St. Johns, Quebec. The Thuot family at that point have a license from the Government for laying traps, which extend in a zigzag line almost entirely across the Richelieu River, which at that point is about half a mile wide. Early every morning the traps are examined and the catch removed and deposited in large vats which lie partly submerged near the shore. These vats are the storehouses from which the eels are taken as the market calls for them.

The Richelieu River, by reason of its muddy bottom and the softness of its water, is said locally to be particularly well adapted for the propagation of eels. Naturalists, however, tell us that they have not very much precise data as to the habits of this fish. But the fact is eels are caught in the Richelieu up to a yard or more in length, with a girth equal to that of an average man's arm. Four or five eel catchers are continually employed, and the director of this unique enterprise is said to have acquired a moderate competence. Some say the net profits last year were not very far short of $10,000. Shipments average about four barrels a day, and they go chiefly to Chicago.

Fewer Ships Last Year.

A decline in the number of vessels in Canadian registry is shown by the figures for last year, which have been compiled at the Marine and Fisheries Department. The total number of vessels so registered was 8,757, of which 4,132 were steamers. The total net tonnage was 929,312. Although the decline is not so great as would appear from a comparison of the figures with those of the preceding year, owing to the fact that a revision of the list resulted in the elimination of the names of a number of vessels which had been carried, but were no longer in commission, the number of new vessels constructed was less. It was 246 last year of 18,832 tons, as compared with 329 the previous year of 43,000.

Although the number of ships decreased, however, there was an increase in the number of sailors serving on board them. The figures were 45,461 as compared with about 42,000 the year before.

Toy for Royal Children.

Thanks to the quick eye of a Royal soldier and to the kind heart of a Toronto Exhibition director, some small people in an English palace are going to have a new toy.

Looking at Toyland in the Government Building, the Duke of Connaught spied a boy doll in uniform.

"That's a fine Scout," he said.

And with that Mr. Joseph Oliver took it from its place and handed it to the Chief Scout, whose face beamed almost boyish pleasure.

"I just knew the Duke would like it for his grandchildren," was Mr. Oliver's delightful explanation of the incident.

Neutrals Cannot Land.

In order to prevent persons of enemy nationality from landing in Canada, under the guise of neutrals, a regulation has been adopted providing that no alien master or member of the crew of a vessel arriving at a Canadian port, shall be allowed to land without the production of proof that he is not an alien enemy. An alien may, however, land for a temporary purpose, by permission of the Customs or Immigration officials, and the regulations do not apply to United States fishermen visiting Canadian ports for purposes authorized by treaty.

Defective Lightning Rods.

In the annual report of the O.A.C., attention is called to the fact that many agents are selling iron-centred lightning rods, which are very shortlived. The iron rusts out in a very few years, leaving only a thin shell of copper, which is not heavy enough to carry a bolt of lightning without melting.

It is suggested that legislation be enacted prohibiting the sale of such rods.

BULGAR PRINCES ADMIRES FRENCH

They Had an Unexpected Reply For King Ferdinand.

WATCHED VERDUN BATTLE

After Several Weeks Spent Behind the German Lines in France, Prince Boris and Prince Cyril Say Most Admirable Thing They Saw Was Resistance of French.

THE two sons of King Ferdinand of Bulgaria have returned to Sofia after several months passed on the French front and, with their eyes opened to the real situation, have told their father some truths that must have sounded unpleasant to his ears, according to reports circulated in the European press.

Prince Boris and Prince Cyril, sons of "Tsar" Ferdinand by his first marriage with Princess Marie Louise de Bourbon-Parme, young men 22 and 21 years of age, were invited by the German Emperor about the middle of February to take part in the capture of Verdun, which was set for February 26. It seemed to their father that the Kaiser's invitation was rather lacking in tact. The young men and their elder sister, Princess Eudoxia, have little sympathy with the Teutons, their mother's family being closely connected with French nobility and traditions. Nevertheless King Ferdinand did not dare refuse the Kaiser's invitation.

PRINCE BORIS.

Prince Boris and Prince Cyril therefore left for the German general headquarters. There they remained for weeks, silent, timid, and haughtily aloof. Finally, the Germans not having entered Verdun, they went back to Sofia. When the King asked them what they had admired most during their sojourn with his good ally one of them answered:

"The resistance of the French."

The other prince nodded his head in assent and a sparkle of joy lighted up the eyes of Princess Eudoxia, who was present at the family gathering.

Taken From the Mails.

The most interesting museum in London is closed to the general public. It is the museum of the censor, where various attempts to get past the blockade are exhibited. Its contents have come chiefly from the United States.

Among other things it contains:

Sausage-shaped rolls made to look like bundles of newspapers, but containing in some cases rice, rubber, tobacco, or sliced ham.

These bits of contraband are not confiscated, but will be sent on when the war is over.

An Australian Pioneer.

Now that Sir Horace Tozer is dead, there is probably nobody left who can tell us tales of the wild pioneer days in Australia as he used to do during his long residence in London—long, that is, for an Agent-General, for he represented Queensland over here for eleven years.

His father took him from New South Wales, where he was born, to Queensland, while he was quite a boy, and he saw the first sod turned of Australia's first railway, witnessed the departure from Sydney of the last batch of Imperial troops—the old 77th; and, later, led the way in providing Queensland with the first free library and her first public art gallery.

Princess in Ranks.

Princess Volonsky, twenty-two years of age, whose husband, father, and brother were killed early in the war, cut her hair, adopted men's clothing, enlisted as a private, and fought on the southern front for several months. Her sex being discovered she was sent to Kieff to be discharged, but she eluded her guards and returned to the fighting line. Now she has just been discovered wounded in a Kharkoff hospital.

ADJOURNED MEETING OF THE CITY COUNCIL

Petition Presented For Paving of Bridge Street East—Deferred to City Clerk and Assessor to Report Upon — Sewers Proposed to be Built—Grant to 155th Battalion General Business Disposed of

An adjourned meeting of the City Council was held last night, at which all members were present, namely, Mayor Ketcheson, Aldermen Woodley, Platt, Parks, Smith, Duckworth, Earle, Deacon, St. Charles and Whalen.

One of the objects of the meeting was to consider a petition for the paying of Bridge street east from Pinnacle street to Bleecker Avenue. The petition was presented, but as the city clerk and assessor had not reported as to it being properly signed and the requisite assessed value of the property owned by the signer, no definite action could be taken. It was referred to these two officials for their report. The petition contained 32 names, and a counter petition against the proposition contained 16 signatures. During the session some routine business was disposed.

COLEMAN STREET SEWER

A letter was read from Messrs. Porter and Carnew, stating that while Mr. T. Manley considered he had completed his contract re Coleman street sewer, he (Mr. Manley) would without prejudice to his claim against the city, do what the Council requested him to do.

The matter was referred to the city solicitor.

BRITISH RED CROSS SOCIETY

A communication was read in reference to the Council making arrangements to meet the latest appeal from the British Red Cross Society. Notice of the society's needs of funds was received by Mayor Ketcheson from the Lieut.-Governor of Ontario. It is proposed to make the collections on October 19. The British Red Cross Society spent in the first two years of war $15,000,000 and it is estimated that $8,750,000 will be required this year. Last year Belleville contributed $5,567.14 to this fund.

It was decided to have a special committee of the Council and citizens appointed to look after the matter.

A communication was read in reference to having an official appointed by the city, under the Prohibition Act, so that fines and fees collected may revert to the city instead of all going to the Government.—Referred to have a motion passed.

A MEMBERSHIP

It was decided that the city pay an additional fee of $12 so that the city may be a member of the Hydro Electric Railway.

BRIDGE STREET PAVEMENT

On motion the petition was referred to the City Clerk and assessor to ascertain if it is properly signed.

A recommendation prevailed that a drain be constructed on the gangway adjoining the Crystal Hotel, to take away water which comes from off city property.

It was recommended that the sidewalk on the west side of Church street, from Foundry street to the cement walk, be repaired.—Carried.

It was recommended that the matter of paving Pinnacle street, be left over for the present until a petition is signed for a pavement from the junction of Mill street to Dundas street.

FIREMEN'S CLOTHING

It was recommended that the chairman of the Fire Committee procure samples and prices for overcoats, pants and caps for the firemen.

The annual grant of $400 to the Children's Aid was made.

A grant of $400 was made to the 155th Battalion.

It was decided that the city pay $10 to become a member of the Ontario Hydro Electric Association.

SEWER CONSTRUCTION

It was recommended by the Public Works Committee that a system of sewage be undertaken as per plans and specifications of the city engineer on the following streets:

A 15 inch extension of the main sewer on Coleman street be continued from the end of the present sewer along Moira street to North Front street at an estimate cost of $3,086.21.

Also a 15 inch main sewer on North Front street, from Moira to Ridley streets, at an estimated cost of $5,411.83.

Also a 10 inch branch sewer on Grove street from North Front street to Strachan street, at an estimated cost of $4,531.67.

That the construction of these sewers be undertaken as a local improvement on the initiative plan under Section 13, Chapter 193, R.S.O., 1914.

That notices of the intention of the Council to construct these sewers be given by two insertions in the Intelligencer and Ontario newspapers of the city, and also by notices mailed or delivered to the owners of property to be effected by construction of said sewers as in said section set forth.

That application be made to the Provincial Board of Health for their approval of the plans and specifications for the construction of said sewers.

That a Bylaw be prepared authorizing the construction of said sewer and that tenders be called for.

That a proper proportion of the Moira street and North Front street sewer be charged against all property benefitted or will be benefitted in the future.

The recommendations were unanimously adopted.

It was recommended that the City of Belleville become a member of the Midland Municipal Association by the payment of $10.

The committee rose and reported. The report was received and adopted.

ENQUIRIES

Ald. Earle asked if a boardwalk on a portion of McDonald Avenue, which is dangerous, would be repaired.

Ald. Whalen—This is the first I have heard of it. The matter will be attended to.

Ald. Woodley—Does the Council think it advisable to change the name of Front street, Mill street and Station Road, and name it Main street. He thought it would be a good move, as at present there are three street names, whereas it is one continuous street.

After some discussion it was decided to take no action at present.

Ald. Duckworth—What about the drain from Moira street, which goes across Henry street and thence across Coleman street to the river. A lot where this drain is had been partially filled in and trouble might ensue in the spring.

Mayor Ketcheson—Some years ago this matter was attended to and money was spent on the drain.

Ald. Whalen—It might be a good idea to put a storm sewer down Coleman street.

Ald. Parks suggested the diverting of the water which comes from the plots north of the G.T.R. track, known as the 2 mile pond, by way of College street to the river.

The matter was referred to the city engineer and street foreman to report to the Council.

MOTIONS

Moved by Ald. St. Charles, seconded by Ald. Earle, that Mayor Ketcheson, Ald. Deacon and Ald. Woodley be a committee to take the letter received from the committee of the British Red Cross Association; they to appoint a committee of the citizens to deal with the matter as to the best possible means.—Carried.

Ald. Deacon moved, seconded by Ald. Platt, that the Council request the city to draw a Bylaw appointing the chief of police and the entire force of police inspectors under the new Ontario Temperance Act.—The matter carried. By this means the city will get a share of the finds.

Ald. Duckworth, seconded by Ald. Smith that the mover, seconder, Ald. Platt and Ald. Parks, be a committee to provide a public lavatory in the northwest corner in the basement of the city building, and that the engineer prepare plans and specifications for the same, and tenders be asked for as early as possible.—Carried.

Moved by Ald. Woodley, seconded by Ald. St. Charles, whereas Benjamin Simpson, administrator of the estate of Martha Simpson, deceased, and Benjamin Simpson personally, and Elizabeth Simpson have brought an action against the local Board of Health of the City of Belleville and Horace Yeomans, the Medical Officer of Health of the city, claiming damages for the death of the said Margaret Simpson, on the alleged grounds that the defendants neglected to provide the said Martha Simpson with proper medical attention and other necessaries while she was, as alleged, isolated for diphtheria.

And whereas under the provisions of Section 26 of the Public Health Act the municipality may assume the liability or the defence of the action and pay any damages or costs for which said board or officer is liable in respect of any such act or default.

Therefore, be it resolved that the corporation of the City of Belleville assume the defence of the said action on behalf of the said local Board of Health, and the said Medical Officer of Health, provide they employ the city solicitor to conduct such defence and that the said corporation hereby undertake to repay to the local Board of Health and to the said Dr. Yeomans, and sums of money which may be called from them or either of them under any judgment or order recovered in the said action, and to pay their cost of defence.—Carried.

Ald. Parks moved, seconded by Ald. St. Charles, that a Bylaw be passed to pave Bridge street east from west side of Pinnacle street to Bleecker Avenue, with Trinidad Lake asphalt concrete.

The mover spoke in support of the motion, contending that Trinidad asphalt was the best asphalt known.

Ald. Woodley—An asphaltic concrete pavement is asked for on the petition presented. If we vote for the motion, where are we at? Are we not ignoring the petition?

Upon a vote being taken the motion was lost.

Council adjourned.

WE WANT

Ever to impress the fact that the pennies you drop in the Red Cross Penny Bags from time to time, and never miss, when added together, make a considerable sum, for providing necessities and comforts for our boys in the trenches.

For the month of September we are very pleased to acknowledge an increase of nearly fifteen dollars over the collections for the month of August, though we still fall short of our two hundred dollar mark.

Cannot the children help more? This month one little boy was very happy because his bag contained a whole dollar saved from money earned and given him for treats.

This is the season of greater demands on our purses increased expenses, but we must not forget that it is also the season that brings greater hardships and suffering to those who are fighting for us, and we can surely deny ourselves in some way, to evidence our sympathy and desire to help.

We congratulate Ketcheson Ward in having once more risen to the first place in its givings. Keep it up Ketcheson Ward. Following are the amounts according to wards:

MARVELLOUS FEAT OF UNTAMED CANADIAN

Member of Eastern Ontario Buttalion Accounts for 23 Men Single-Handed, Killed or Wounded Two Officers and Twenty Men, Making Other Prisoner Twice Wounded, But Fought on

OTTAWA Oct. 3—Special In the course of his report of the severe fighting from September 20 to 27th the Canadian Eyewitness relates a wonderful feat accomplished by an unarmed corporal of an eastern Ontario battalionu, it says;

"In the course of all this desperate fighting there has been unumerable instances of the most courageous and devoted actions, impossible at present to detail. The case of a Corporal of an eastern Ontario battalion is, however one of the most extraordinary ever recorded. The battalion had successfully captured a line of German trenches, when a party of the enemy consisting of two officers and about twenty men, began a counter attack The corporal advanced alone against the party, emptied his revolver, picked up first one and then another German rifle, each of which he emptied accounting for the two officers and sixteen of the men. While he was shooting one of the officers attacked him with a bayonet and pierced him in the leg below the knee, but the Corporal shot him dead. The rest of the enemy attempted to escape. The Corporal shot four of them, and made the fifth a prisoner. Although wounded in two places he remained in the trenches until his battalion was relieved.

The despatch states that as a result of further severe fighting the Canadians have captured several important German positions, and have advanced their own line upon a frontage of about two miles to a maximum depth of 900 yards. it proceeds;

The total number of prisoners in their hands since the beginning of the great offensive now amounts to 38 officers and 1,610 me nof other ranks. They have also captured about 25 machine guns, eleven trench mortars and a great quantity of all sorts, and other war material."

Orders Evacuation of Danube Fortress

General Von Mackensen Fears Envelopement of Forces by Russian Army

Canadian Press Special.

LONDON, Oct. 3.—Field Marshall Von MacKensen, who commands the forces of the Central Allies' operation against the Roumanians and Russians in Dobrudja, has ordered the evacuation of the Danube fortress of Silistria and Turtukai, recently captured by the Teuton-Bulgarians, and Turkish forces, says a dispatch from Rome to the wireless press. The reason given for the withdrawal of Von MacKensen's forces is that the German commander is in danger of being enveloped by the Russian and Roumanian troops, which have crossed the Danube between Rust-Chuk and Turkai.

FRANKFORD CASE

In this case the accused, a young man living in Murray Township near Frankford, was tried before his Honor Judge Deroche on the 2nd inst. for indecent assault upon a young girl of Frankford on the evening of the 9th of September on the Trent Road near Harrigan's Woods.

The charge was reduced from rape to indecent assault by the consent of the Attorney General. Upon Cross-examination of the girl evidence was brought out which the Judge said was to make a conviction unjustifiable taken in connection with the other facts in the case and discharged the accused. A good deal of interest was evinced in the case on account of the prominence of the parties.

Wm. Carnew for the Crown; W. C. Mikel for the accused.

WEDDING BELLS.

LOWERY—THOMPSON

At high noon to-day a most pleasing event took place at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Thompson, 37 Sinclair street, when their youngest daughter, Mis Irene Alberta, was united in marriage to Mr. Oliver Percy Lowery of Toronto. In the presence of the immediate relatives of groom and bride, the ceremony was performed by the Rev. A. M. Hubly, rector of the Emmanuel Reformed Episcopal church. The young couple were unattended, but little Miss Marguerite Thompson, a niece of the bride, made a charming flower girl. A suitable wedding march was played by Mrs. Edward Farrow. The bride was prettily attired in a gown of brown silk crepe de chene and carried a bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley. Her travelling suit was of navy blue broadcloth with a black velvet picture hat. At the conclusion of the ceremony the guests wer entertained to a delicious wedding repast. Mr. and Mrs. Lowery left on the International express this afternoon for the west, and will take up their residence in Toronto.

The groom's gift to the bride was a diamond pendant, and to the flower girl, a beautiful ring.

The popularity of the bride was attested to by the many beautiful gifts she was the recipient of. For some time she was connected with the Bell Telephone Company, and the staff presented her with a handsome electric lamp.

The numerous friends of the young couple will unite with The Intelligencer in wishing for them a happy and prosperous journey through life.

G. S. SAUNDERS DEAD

Mrs. G. S. Saunders of this city, has received a message from Battleford, announcing the death of her husband in the General Hospital, from a paralytic stroke. Mr. Saunders was well and favorably known to many in this city, having been employed for a number of years with the firm of Robinson & Thompson.

TOO MUCH WATER ON PAVEMENTT

In and out of the council Alderman Duckworth has contended that too much water is being placed on the pavement on Front Street and at the Council Meeting last night his contention was borne out by a practical man Mr. Driscoll a representative of the company which constructed the pavement who said in answer to question of Alderman Duckworth ,that he considered too much flushing was being given the pavement.No water he said should be allowed on the street when the sun was shining. He considered two or three times a week would be sufficient. In Peterboro he stated a vacum sweeper was used to clean the streee and it worked very satisfactorily.

SISTER OF MRS. COL. ADAMS INJURED

Mrs. Sheriff of Picton, a sister of the wife of Lieut.-Col. Adams of the 155th Battalion met with a painful accident on Saturday while on her way back home from the city to Picton, on the steamer "Aletha". In going up to the upper deck the foot of Mrs. Sheriff caugh the edge of an iron mat, causing it to instantly tilt, and bring one edge in sharp contact with the knee, inflicting a deep cut which necessitated seven stitches Mrs. Sheriff was taken to the Hotel Dieu Hospital, where she is receiving the best of care.

PRESENTED 155TH WITH CORN

Yesterday through the generosity of T W. Kenney, manager of the "Old Homestead" canning company of Picton, the officers and men of the 155th battalion were given a quantity of corn for their Sunday dinner. The corn was the best Mr. Kinney could secure, and the whole battalion very much apreciated the kindness of the man from Prince Edward.

FIRST MOVE FROM CAMP

Infantry School Moving to City This Week—Probationers can not Study Well if Weather Too Cold.

The first move out of Barriefield Camp will be this week when the Infantry School will change its quarters from under canvas to the Toye and Gibson building in the city. The probationers taking the Infantry course qualifying for higher military rank attend a number of lectures and have much writing to do. The study part is also extensive. Unlike the boys who drill every day and are thus out in the open and moving the probationers have to sit quietly and try to learn the mysteries of modern warfare.

Believing that a school such as the Infantry School cannot be successful in such cold weather as we have been having, Lieut-Col. Barrager is arranging for its transfer to the city about Thursday or Friday of this week.

NOTES

Mrs. (Capt.) Doyle, of the 155th Battalion, has given up her cottage on the bay and has taken a house in the city.

Among the visitors of the 155th Battalion lines on Sunday were Mrs. M. K. Adams and Mrs. Putman of Picton Mrs. Doyle, Mrs. Cook, W. S. Cook and J. S. Cook (wife, father and brother of Major Cook) all of Belleville; Mrs. Dodds of Sonya.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

THE BOHEMIAN GIRL HIGHLY APPRECIATED

While this splendid opera has been before the public for many years the first worm thread has yet to be noted in its production. It is still among the prettiest of melodies, and the series of chorus and song presented to the large audience at Griffin's Opera last night received round after round of applause. Then, too, the acting was of a superb nature that captured every one present. Few companies coming this year have more than one or two really expert vocalists, yet in "The Bohemian Girl" there is a combination rarely equalled in chorus, quartette, trio and solo.

Particular credit must be given to the Tzigani acrobats, a group of genuine Arabs, who are past masters of the acrobatic art. They drew an applause that has never been equalled in earnestnsss here.

Last night's presentation was one of the many successes scored by "The Bohemian Girl," and those present were, as in the past well repaid for their presence.

People more Particular

THE demand for package goods grows greater every year.

Why?

Because the world is ever growing more and more particular about foods.

Packages keep the goods in wholesome, sanitary condition. They keep out dust, flies, moisture and odors, preventing deterioration.

They preserve flavor, freshness and strength, insuring value for the money.

"TWIN BEDS" HERE NEXT

The play that is making all the world laugh, "Twin Beds" will be presented at the Griffin's Opera House next Tuesday Night, by A. S. Stern and Company, the enterprising firm of managers who have so many successes to their credit. There can be no question of the popularity of this hilarious comedy. It ran for one solid year in New York, played for six months in Australia and is now in its second year in London, while early productions are announced for Paris, Petrograd, Rome, Madrid, South America, South Africa and Japan. "Twin Beds" earned its easy international favor on four major counts, it was clean and wholesome, it has incalculably amusing situations, built upon each other thick and fast, it had scintillating lines, new wit and new slang, and it had brilliantly satirical characterization. All these merits will be enhanced in the local presentation by a finely balanced cast of comedians, among whom are James Morison, William Weston, Luis Alberni, Warren Hastings, Margaruite Risser, Antonienette Rochte, Elizabeth Stafford, Martha McGraw and others.

ALIEN SOULS AT GRIFFIN'S TOMORROW

Famous in the annuals af Japan as one of the leading actors of the Far East, Sessue Hayakawa by reason of a series of photoplays produced by the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company steps from among the ranks of photoplay actors into the list of stars with his forthcoming production "Alien Souls.". Hayakawa is best remembered by thousands, who saw his extraordinary work in support of Fannie Ward in "The Cheat" Like "The Cheat" 'Alien Souls' was made for the Lasky Company by the Paramount Program.

Hector Turnbull wrote 'Alien Souls' which is announced for exhibition at Griffin's Opera House tomorrow and Thursday night, drawing his material from the conflict that is going on between people of the opposite races. In this photoplay Hayakawa will appear as Sakata, a Japanese curio dealer who is betrothed in childhood to Yuri Chan (Tsuru Aoki). The two came into this country, he to engage in business and she to obtain an American education, which is shown in an absorbing light of interest as they move and live in American society. Suddenly the girl becomes infatuated with a young American. It is here one discovers the intent of the photoplay by its series of stirring dramatic scenes in which is brought home Kipling's well known epigram

"East is East and West is West;
And ne'er the twain shall meet"

In addition to Hakawa the cast includes Miss Tsuri Aoki, Grace Benham, Earle Fox and other popular photoplayers. On the same program with the above offering, Frank Daniels appears in another amusing episode of the adventures of Mr. Jack series, the title of this episode is "Mr. Jack hires a Stenographer". Pathe News with its interesting review of crispy news items is also announced for exhibition.

Is it not wasteful to pay 15c or 20c for a pattern when you can buy it at Geens for ten cents? d3t.

If Food Disagrees Drink Hot Water

When food lies like lead in the stomch and you have that uncomfortable, distended feeling, it is because of insufficient blood supply to the stomach, combined with acid and food fermentation. In such cases try the plan now followed in many hospitals and advised by many eminent physicians of taking a teaspoonful of pure bisurated magnesia in half a glass of water, as hot as you can comfortably drink it. The hot water draws the blood to the stomach and the bisurated magnesia, as any physician can tell you, instantly neutralizes the acid and stops the food fermentation. Try this simple plan and you will be astonished at the immediate feeling of relief and comfort that always follows the restoration of the normal process of digestion. People who find it inconvenient at times to secure hot water and travelers who are frequently obliged to take hasty meals poorly prepared, should always take two or three five-grain tablets of Bisurated Magnesia after meals to prevent fermentation and neutralize the acid in their stomach.

BELLEVILLE-GROWN PEACHES

In the lawn of Mrs. I. Crook's residence, 281 Albert street, stands a well-formed peach tree, about ten feet high, which this year bore some beautiful fruit, a specimen of which was exhibited at The Intelligencer Office this morning. It was perfect in form, measuring 8 1-4 in circumference, and of a delicate pink and green color. The origin of all this was the planting of a Crawford pit six years ago, which continued to grow, with but ordinary care, bringing the above results. The Intelligencer congratulates Mrs. Crooks upon the success of her peach-growing venture.

FAREWELL PARTY

Last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Myles Huddlestone, 44 Great St. James Street, a farewell party was given to their son, John N. Huddlestone, who is about to leave for overseas with the 155th Battalion, and also James Huddlestone, brother of Mr. Myles Huddlestone. A large company was present, and the evening was spent in games and amusements of various kinds. At eleven-thirty John was presented with a gold signet ring, and James with a silver wrist watch, after which each made a suitable speech. At midnight a dainty tea was served, and at an early hour this morning the guests took their departure, looking happy and well pleased.

OUR WEEKLY SERMON

DIVINE FRIENDSHIP

By Rev. A. M. Hubly.

Isaiah XLI.: 8.

"Abraham my Friend." The splendour of all the poetic imagery of the world's literature; the grandest eulogy ever spoke, or written of men are surpassed by this sublime, brief sentence—"Abraham my Friend."

The most memorable, and eventful transactions connected with human history , fades into nothingness compared with the achievement marked by that which is here expressed.

The mausolemns of the world's great men, the tombs of potentates and philanthropists, the graves of our mighty dead never bore so grand an epithet as that formed in James i i, 23rd.

"Abraham believed God, and it was imputed unto him for righteousness; and he was called the friend of God."

Isn't that the noblest title ever given to mortal man? But when it is the very speech of the Lord God Almighty, by the mouth of His holy prophet, which says of a mere man, "My Friend," it is as if the highest pinnacle of fame has been reached by one of us.

The friendship of a noble man, or of royalty is something worth coveting, and for which, one might be deeply grateful.

But, the friendship of God! to have the High and Holy one own us as His friend( is surely the brightest diadem, that even heaven could place upon earthly brow.

The story is told of Abraham Lincoln, when once out in the country on a political campaign, he became belated, and storm-stayed at a farm house.

The farmer and his wife were entering into the evening shadows of life's day; their children had long ago sought new fields.

The old couple did their best to serve Mr. Lincoln and make him comfortable.

Some years after, when Abraham Lincoln was President of the United States, the old farmer paid a visit to Washington, the Capital of the great Republic.

He wanted to see the president and and took his stand in the crowd about the church door, that he might get a sight of the great man, as he passed into Sunday service.

As the president approached the church, he saw the old farmer in his coarse homespun garments, unkempt and unshaven; and at once steped toward him extending his friendly hand and giving the old man a hearty greeting, said: "Come to church with me."

As the president and his retinue of officials entered the church, the farmer was a conspicuous figure beside the President, as the usher opened the pew for Mr. Lincoln, this rural visitor was about to enter when the usher attempted to stop him, but the President laid a hand upon his shoulder, and there, before the vast and rich congregation, said, close and distinctly: "This is my Friend." How honored the humble, toilworn old man from the field, must have felt to be owned by the President of the United States, as his friend! What must it be for a man to hear God say of him "This is my Friend!" And yet, such honorable recognition, and such glory may be among the possibilities of every one of us! "He that would have friends, must himself be friendly." The Lord God of Hosts is our friend. He has proved it in a thousand ways.

This is exemplified continually in human life as the fundamental truth of religion. God has not deserted the world nor cast off the people who would be friendly to the things which lie near to His heart—the redemption of a sinful world.

He is maturing His purposes of love toward a deceived, and rebellious race making use of good men for carrying on His work, counting them, not only His creatures and servants but His friends. "Henceforth," said Jesus, "I call you not servants, for the servant knoweth not what his Lord doeth; but I have called you friends; for all things that I have heard of my Father I have made known unto you." "The friend of God," nothing more. The man is not absorbed into diety.

"The Friend of God!" Nothingless!

"O sing unto the Lord a new song, for He hath done marvellous things; His right hand and His holy arm, hath gotten Him the victory. Alleluia! for the Lord God omnipotent reigneth"— and He, and we are friends!

Friendship includes love.

The friends of God will love Him; and God will love His friends. Herein is love, not that we loved God, but that He loved us, and sent His Son to be the propitiation for our sins."

What dignity is conferred upon our race, by the fact, that, He who created all things,, and upholdeth all things by the word of His power, finds delight in human friendship. He desires to share our cup of delights.

"Behold I stand at the door, and knock; if any man hear my voice and open the door: I will come in to him and will sup with him, and he with me."

Surely this is the supreme characteristic of true friendship, one contributing to the comfort of the other, and rejoicing in the other's joy. God in the other's gladness, and sympathetic in his sadness.

This Divine friend comes to sup with me, that I may sup with Him, and thus we share the sweets of friendship, born in heaven, and matured and enjoyed on earth.

"Abraham my Friend."

To His friend on earth. God in heaven gives inward counsels and tender revetation of His purpose. And the Lord said: 'Shall I hide from Abraham that thing which I do? For I know him, that he will command his children, and his household after him, and they shall keep the way of the Lord, to do justice and judgment."

There is perfect openings between such friends. The great King hides nothing from His friend; and the friend of the King will keep no secrets from his royal master—they are friends, and have the run of each other's heart.

Divine friendship makes every blessing of life an expression and medium of God's love; and sometimes He sends its precious joy and mighty power directly from His heart to the heart of Man.

There is nothing to be desired that divine friendship cannot accomplish.

Are you friendly with God? Then "ask of Him and He will give you the desires of your heart."

"The Lord will give grace and glory: no good thing will He withhold from them that walk uprightly."

Abraham, "The friend of God," pled for the preservation of the wicked cities of the plain, and up to the measure of his faith and expectation his petition was granted; yea, and more than he asked: "And it come to pass, when God destroyed the cities of the plain that God remembered Abraham, and sent Lot out of the midst of the overthrow, when He overthrew the cities in which Lot dwelt."

"Divine Friendship" does not free us from the sorrows and sufferings, disappointments and bereavements of earth, but it consoles, strengthens and sustains until perfect victorious deliverance results.

Abraham "the friend of God," was not exempt from adversity and trials of faith.

Though he lived long and well, yet he had many a heart ache. He was a pilgrim and a stranger, seeking rest in a better country. He had the promise that all the land his eye beheld and his footsteps trod would yet be his own, but for many a year his only inheritance, in the promised land, was the little spot that he'd the remains of his beloved Sarah, the wife of his bosom of whom he had been bereaved; and hurried in the parcel of ground purchased of Ephron the Hittitite, by the walls of Hebrow.

How pathetic are his words, as he looked for the first time on that new made grave: "I am a stranger and a sojourner."

Beloved, this is the earthly heritage of "The friend of God." Our most cherished possessions of earth after all are the graves of our sainted dead.

Everything else belong not to us. By family misfortune and disaster, or other causes, the early home, our father's property, our inheritance pass into other hands, even it may be to aliens. One spot remains ours in sacred silence, its stillness only invaded by the tramp of the funeral throng.

Abraham, "The Friend of God" died. The old earthly house is dissolved but the tenannt is safe! How do we know it? Because divine friendship held him in the close bonds of infinite wisom power and love The soul of God's friend quits the wrecked bodily framework, and seeks the "building of God," "eternal in the heavens." This is beautifully expressed in one of the Luthem funeral hymns.—

"Here in an inn a stranger dwelt,
Here joy and grief by turns he felt
Poor dwelling, now we close thy door,
The task is over
The sojourner returns no more!
Now of a lasting home possessed,
He goes to seek a deeper rest.
The Lord brought here;
He calls away make no delay
This home was for a passing day."

Beloved! I greet you in the bonds of divine friendship, fully conscious of the dignity it confers, and the glorious goal to which it conducts.

After the Crimea war, when the battle-worn soldiers returned to England; one day, they were formed into line; and Victoria the good Queen of the British Empire passed along the columns pining on the breast of each soldier a silver medal; for each one she had a word of appreciation.

But, for those who bore the deeper battle scars, and were more sorely maimed than others, her words My friend and soldier," were spoken with tenderer pathos and meant more to them than to others.

What was all the suffering of these soldiers to them, compared with the honor they felt at that moment, and the swell of love in their heart for their noble Queen?

How much greater the honor that awaits the soldiers of Jesus who shall gather before Him, from the battlefields of sin: when He shall say: "Well done my friend, enter thou into the joy of thy Lord."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Belleville, Oct, 2 1916

HIGH FOOD PRICES

Dear Mr. Editor:

I read in your valuable paper on Saturday that the market prices were very high, butter being as much as 48cts a pound.

Can you tell me why the prices on the Belleville market and stores are so high, when in other parts of the country, food can be bought cheaper.

Also in Picton and Prince Edward County, eggs, butter, etc., are much cheaper. Does it cost more to produce these things in Belleville district than it does in other districts.

My husband gets around the country quite a bit and this week he bought butter at 30cts per lb. He was told of one place where they had sold out at 25cts per lb. If butter can be bought at these prices in the county, why should 42 or 48 cts. be charged on the Belleville market. I know the farmer has to bring his into town when it is sold at the market, and that means extra cost, but even then it is a large margin between 25 and 48cts. for butter.

I think it is time the housewives got together, the same as in New York and boycott the high price of foodstuff.

I was reckoning up the other day what the extra cost of food per week was in our family of three since 1914, and it averages $2.00 per week. Now think what that means to a family of six, where there are four children and only one wage earner.

I bought a cake on Saturday, 25cts. a week ago at the same store I bought the same cake for 20cts., 5cts increase on a cake in one week. I also bought a can of Salmon for which I have always paid 25cts, this week 30cts., and everthing is going up the same way. We expect some advances in prices all around during these days of sacrifices, but 5 cts. on every small thing, and double on the necessities of life is rather too much on the working man while many are getting rich quick and blaming the war for high prices which in many cases is a big bluff to cover the greed of the producers. I think the Women's Institute of Belleville will do a great service if they will take up this matter and try to solve the High Prices of Food.

Yours Faithfully
Housewife

ANOTHER EXPOSITION AWARD FOR G. T. R.

The Grand Trunk System has received an additonal honor from the Jury of Awards of the Panama Pacific International Exposition.

Notification was received here today that the Jury has awarded the Railway a silver medal for the excellence of its exposition pavilion from an architectural point of view. This is a tribute not only to the Grand Trunk, but to Canadian architects who designed the building. The design was Spanish Renaissance in character, making a handsome and ornate structure in a prominent position at the northeast corner of the grounds at San Francisco.

The Grand Trunk was awarded a gold medal for its general exhibit which featured the natural riches of the Dominion.

TAKING THE STUMP

The New York Times which is by no means the Republican organ of the country is dead-set against the President of the United States taking the stump in his own behalf, and properly so from a standpoint of dignity. "Had President Wilson," says The Times, "yielded to those who wished him to make stump speeches, he would have broken the rule followed by all his predecessors, without exception, from Washington to Taft. The rule is a good rule and should remain unbroken. It is not a fetich or an empty custom; it has a reason. The President, even though he be a candidate, is the President of the whole people, not of a party. There is a repugnance to the spectacle of the President, whether a candidate or not, going about the country attacking one-half of his people and praising the other half in the interest of his own election as the representative of one of the halves. This is the true foundation of the custom, and to depart from it would be to detract from the dignity of both the office and the man who temporarily fills it, besides leaving an unpleasant impression. No President has any business on the stump."

There have been Presidents who were less careful of the dignity of the office than others, but not one has been so careless of it as to break this rule.

MUCH FOR ENCOURAGEMENT

At a substantial gathering in the Conservative Club quarters, Montreal on Saturday evening last, Hon. Mr. Casgrain pointed out that there was much that is encouraging in the commercial situation, and that action taken on behalf of the Government at the start of the war served to check panic and restore confidence; and so helped to get for the country the full benefit of the favorable conditions that later developed. He asked with pointed effect: "Was it possible to do better?" There are not many who with regard for their reputations as fair critics will venture to say yes. Mr. Casgrain, taking the same lines as his colleagues, Mr. Blondin and Mr. Patenaude, and other French-speaking Conservatives, dealt with the incidents which during the past two years have made this province a subject of unfortunate criticism. The policy of those who have sought to put other issues before the making of provision for winning the war he condemned as full of danger; and he did not speak too strongly. His appeal to those who can undertake military service to come forward was strong and to the point. Suported as it is by the utterances of other public men of this province and elsewhere, it can be believed that it will have its effect for good, as should the whole address.

THE USE OF HEAVY GUNS

It is an axiom of modern naval warfare that a ship should carry no heavier gun than is required to pierce armor plate at a vital spot at the probable maximum fighting range. For that reason the report that the British Navy will adopt eighteen-inch guns for its newest fighting ships does not necessarily indicate that the naval gun of the future will be of so great a calibre. Even the proposed sixteen-inch guns of the United States Navy have not yet been subjected to a sea test. It is known what they can do when fired from a stationary base on land. But they weigh more than a hundred tons each, and the eighteen-inch gun will weigh 150 tons. A dreadnought thus armed would carry fewer guns and more men to fire them.

The United States standard fourteen-inch guns, such as the Pennsylvania carries, have had as thorough a sea test as is possible, except in war. With them, an obpect aimed at can be struck at a range of 22,000 yards. Eleven miles is a long range. But with an eighteen-inch gun the range could be very much greater, and if the new British guns equal expectations, and are proportionately as effective, every navy must have guns of that size. It remains to be seen. There must be a limit to the possible size of an effective gun on the largest and most powerful ship. Probably it will not be necessary to scrap modern armaments yet awhile.

Hamilton Herald:—That most sycophantic of American pro-German correspondents, William Bayard Hale, reports that he has had an interview with the German crown prince in which Willie, more in sorrow than in anger, chided the American nation for being so lustful of gain that it continues to make money by making and selling war supplies. Willie is regarded to have quoted scripture—"For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also," and to have used the text to support his opinion that Americans ought to be preparing for peace instead of making money out of the war. The obvious reply is that in selling war supplies to Germany's enemies, Americans are preparing for peace. But of course Willie is not expected to admit that.

Kingston Standard:—It is satisfactory to see that the question of continuing the teaching of German in the public schools and colleges in Canada is being seriously discussed. In Great Britain some universities have, we believe, already very greatly restricted this, and have given teaching time thus gained over to Russian and Spanish. This would certainly apear to be wise. The Entente Allies are making plans to capture German trade all over the world. This means that German will be considerably less spoken, and the languages of other nations more. But if this trade is to be captured, it is obvious that facilities must be found for the teaching of languages. The Huns were wise and paid special attention to this.

Current Comment

Sir Wilfrid Laurier's fine speech at Montreal this week is being highly praised; but the real value of that speech to the country can best be estimated by the returns from recruiting stations in Quebec.—Hamilton Herald.

President Woodrow Wilson will get no "hyphenated" support. His message to President O'Leary of the pro-German organization that has been baiting him of late settles that. He bluntly declared that he wanted no votes from disloyal Americans.—Toronto Globe.

The British Board of Trade committee recommends one meatless day for those not engaged in heavy manual labor. If the advice is accepted those who take it will not suffer any inconvenience. There are in European countries in normal times plenty of people who eat meat only on comparatively rare occasions, and who thrive on their meatless regime.—Montreal Gazette.

STATUE TO FIRST SLAIN.

Frenchmen Are Raising Funds for a Monument.

From the Mayor of Montbeliard, Doubs, France, Canadian papers have received an appeal to give publicity to a public subscription now being taken up in France and all the allied countries for a monument to Corporal Instructor Jules Andre Peugeot, of the 44th French Infantry, who was murdered by Lieut. Mayer, commandant of a reconnoitring party of the 5th Mulhouse Cavalry, thirty hours before his Government had declared war on France The murder was committed at Joncherey, Canton de Delle, Haute-Rhin, France, at 10 o'clock on the morning of August 2. The German detachment had penetrated French territory by order of the German Government.

Corporal Peugeot was in command of an outpost at Joncherey. When the Huns approached he made the usual challenge. Mayer drew his service revolver and fired three times into the Frenchman's body. Mortally wounded, Peugeot managed to lift his rifle and slay his murderer. He was but 21 years of age, and a grandson of a former colonel in the French army. His body was removed to his native village and interred beside that of his soldier forefather.

It is the intention of the Peugeot Monument Committee, which is composed of a number of illustrious Frenchmen among whom are the Minister of War, and many Cabinet Ministers and Senators and Parliamentarians, to raise a magnificent monument to the memory of the first soldier to fall on the western front. The subscription has been opened in all the allied countries.

They Like Speeding.

Not every wounded hero cares to travel at five miles an hour. Some of them simply love a "scorch" even when they are badly smashed up.

Recently in England as four Australians were being conveyed to hospital at the statutory limit the chauffeur was startled by a voice behind yelling, "I say, master, are we going to a blurry funeral?"

OLD TIME SUNDAY LAWS.

Rigid Rules For Harvard Students Two Centuries Ago.

In "The Story of Harvard" Mr. Arthur Stanwood Pier gives an account of the strict regulations formerly set down for the guidance of the Harvard undergraduates by the president and the fellows of the corporation. The old laws, intended to enforce upon the undergraduates a more religious and studious life, would be considered repressive and tyrannical today.

"All the scholars shall at sunset in the evening preceding the Lord's day retire to their chambers and not unnecessarily leave them, and all disorder on said evening shall be punished as violations of the Sabbath are. * * * And whosoever shall profane said day —the Sabbath—by unnecessary business or visiting, walking in the commons or in the streets or fields, in the town of Cambridge, or by any sort of diversion before sunset, or that in the evening of the Lord's day shall behave himself disorderly or in any way unbecoming the season, shall be fined not exceeding 10 shillings.

"That students may furnish themselves with useful learning, they shall keep in their respective chambers and diligently follow their studies, except half an hour at breakfast, at dinner for from 12 to 2 and after evening prayers till after 9 of the clock. To that end the tutors shall frequently visit their chambers after 9 o'clock in the evening and at other studying times, to quicken them to their business."

It does not seem that under such a system of vigilance and visitation the students could fall into very dissolute ways. But a few years later George Whitefield, the famous evangelist who so stirred up New England, visited Harvard college and expressed his displeasure at the dissipated habits of the young men. He declared conditions at Oxford were no worse, a charge so damaging that it greatly disturbed and incensed the college authorities.

LETTERS FROM OVERSEAS

... FROM GERALD SPAFFORD ...

September 7th, 1916.

In the opening of my letter, which I herewith continue, I said that it was an inspiring spectacle to witness a battle in progress. It is more impressive still to visit the scene of battle, when the advancing and victorious Allied forces have left the ground. Each day one reads war news they read of barrages and curtains of shell fire. The casual and formal official dispatch casually explains: our troops passed through the barrage or curtain of fire, and took such and such a trench or important position. To picture war in all its bare realities, is, I believe, a poossibility beyond the capabilities of human imagination and expression. However, in the official dispatch we have but our own conclusion, for we read what happens the Germans when they pass our barrages of fire, and we therefore conclude we likewise suffer when we pass German barrages. However, here are my humble impressions regarding what I have been privileged to witness here, where recent fighting has been in progress, and we occupy territory and defences held by the enemy for two years:

By imagination the reader will picture, if possible, themselves as described in the commencement of this letter, on territory similar to our great prairies of the northwest. We have chosen the crest of one of the rolling ridges behind a friendly clump of trees an advantageous position from which by aid of a giant periscope and powerful binnoculars, we have a commanding view of our system of trenches and defences and those of the enemy. Below us on the face of our ridge, we can see the irregular and white lines of chalk, which has been thrown upon the papapets of our trenches, which looks like a maze from our system of defence, front line communication, reccue trenches, etc. All are familiar with the methods employed in building dugouts, barricades and machine-gun implacements, the barbed wire entanglements. On the opposite back we see a similar maze or system of defences; on our left we can see the ruins of a village on the enemy's side of the line.

The first streak of dawn can be discerned in the eastern sky; a hazy morning mist like a veil over the valley known to us as 'No Man's Land." The grass and leaves are wet with dew, a silence similar to the proverbial calm before the storm, prevails. Thus we stand conscious that in a short space of time we shall hear the first crash of the guns at the appointed minute. We glance once more along the ridge occupied by the enemy. The remains of shattered tree stumps become more distinct along the ridge contiguous to the village. The mist of the early morning is rising, and as we glance towards the east we notice the day is dawning. Suddenly a battery fires four rounds of section fire; a silence of the moaning echoes have almost died away, when simultaneously a thousand guns, perchance two, of all calibres crash in one gigantic salvo (the battle is on.) Thus a continuous roar like crashing thunder and flashes of heavy chain lightning, ripping, tearing, crashing, pounding and crushing the atmosphere is rent with an uproar beyond the possibilities of description. We instinctively glance towards the German front lines, and we see before us a mountain of fire. We look beyond us and we again behold a curtain of fire; the whole crest of ridge is a blaze of lurid, boiling fire, like the crater of a volcano the fragments of trenches and their occupants were thrown violently in the air, the various colors of smoke and debris resembling the smoke and lava from a giant volcano in eruption. Soon the German batteries are replying. Aeroplanes are soon on the scene, adding to the spectacle by circling and hovering over the trenches like giant birds of prey. The sky is mottled by puffs of black and white smoke from bursting shells, fired by anti aircraft guns of the enemy. To relate all that one observes would take pages, so we briefly choose one of the most interesting portions of action before us.

The bombardment continues thus for a given period. Suddenly the guns burst forth with resumed energy, and in the meantime we behold the infantry leave their trenches over the parapets, and rush forward toward the enemy's trenches. The critical moment has arrived. They pass the enemy's barrage of fire. If it is possible to explain one's emotions when a witness to this thrilling spectacle, it is similar to the emotions one experiences when his favovrite horse in the race is taking the deal, only a thousand, yes, ten thousand times more intense. It is only after the event, in calmer moments, one has time to think and appreciate the tragedy that has been enacted before him. As he beholds beings torn to fragments, maimed and mangled by shot and shell, and left mingled in the debris of the battle field, forever obliterated, like one destroys flies, only in a more terrible manner; still on they charge, those that remain, followed by reserves, one forgets the shattered ones, the dead, and only the glory, the courage of our men, is the passion, the inspiration of the moment, as they mount the parapet of the enemy. Our fire is raised. Still on they go and with bomb and bayonet they clear the remaining opposition of their aggressors, the Huns.

One can only sigh, and say to himself that it is impossible to describe modern warfare, its magnitude, its horrors, its records of brilliant and heroic deeds supersede the most inspiring pages of history.

As we wend our way homeward along one of the main thoroughfares, the busy Red Cross motors, the columns of ammunition wagons and horses, and motor lorries, the huge piles of empty cartridge cases and boxes, these, too, have in their way been the elements which make it possible to accomplish the task allotted to us.

I think the most impressive experience I have had since I have been out here, very near two years, was a recent trip over captured territory. Here one has an opportunity of making a close study of the effects and tremendous destructive feature of modern warfare, which with modern artillery and machines of war, one is amazed that flesh and blood could possibly survive the ordeal of a bombardment, as conducted under present methods.

We leave our old front line trench for 'No Man's Land," or what once was that. This is a weird, uncanny place, shell craters innumerable, fragments of shell cases and shells, 3-inch 4-5-inch, 6-inch, 8-inch hand grenades, trench motor bombs, mostly "duds", every means of destruction conceivable is evident there. As I slowly wend my way from one phrase of interest to another, I notice tiny crosses, numerous they are too. A shell crater is the grave of many of our brave lads. The odor of decomposing bodies meets the nostrils, and one stumbles on partly buried bodies, both British and German, amid the fragments of rusty shell cases, etc. Truly one realizes fully the more ghastly and tragic side of war as he stands in this desolate valley of death, and views the devastation and mute evidences of the terrific and appalling struggle which continues beyond in yet another valley, with the same intensity and violence as in the one we now silently view with feelings akin to one walking in a disagreeable dream.

Dear Mrs. Chaddick:

I am going to drop you a line to let you know that I am going along fine but sorry to say that your husband was killed last Sunday by a shell. I was close to him when he was hit, so we took and buried him in a small graveyard behind the firing line. He was killed on Sunday Sept. 11th. so I suppose you know about it before now but I am going to send you some of his mail that I got. I suppose it will be opened before it leaves France. I am out for a few days now and expect to go in the front line in a few days. So don't worry over your husband, but I suppose you can't help but worry. I must ring off hoping these few lipes will find you in the best of health.

Dandruffy Heads Become Hairless

If you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.

THROW OPEN HUNDREDS HOMESTEADS IN CENTRAL BRITISH COLUMBIA

PRINCE GEORE, B.C., Sept. 30.—The British Columbia Government will throw open for settlement on October 9th, two large tracts of land containing 400 homesteads of 160 acres each. These homesteads are in the most fertile districts of Central British Columbia. One of the tracts lies along the Nechake River about eight miles east of Fort Fraser, while the other block is on the west side of the Stuart River, near its junction with the Nechako.

These lands have been reserved since 1911, but the progress of settlement has been so satisfactory as to make it desirable to provide additional opportunities for settlers.

Application for the land should be made through the office of the British Columbia Government Agent at Fort Fraser.

HE GOT STUCK IN THE MUD.

Then He Discovered the Magic Power of the Water Jet.

The water jet has been used for so many years in putting down and pulling piling that its discovery has long since been lost sight of. It was used during the civil war and for many years previous by government engineers.

Tradition has it that the discoverer of the advantages of the water jet was a government engineer and that his discovery was made in the following manner: It seems that along in the forties this engineer was building a wharf and was having unusual difficulty in putting down his piling. One day in wading around his boots became stuck in a tenacious mud, and he found it impossible to pull them out. There happened to be a hose near by, and one of the men handed it to the officer, the idea being that he would wash the mud away from his boots. The water was turned on, and the officer applied a stream to his feet.

To his surprise he sank deeper. He tried it again and went down still farther in the mud. By this time he was in up to his waist and still going down. Astonished by his discovery, he continued to apply the stream to his feet, and he might be going down yet had not his men come to the rescue and pulled him out by means of a small hand derrick.

Once on shore he began "to think the matter out." If a stream of water applied to a man's feet will cause him to sink deeper in the mud why wouldn't it have the same effect if applied to the base of a pile? He tried it, and the pile which had obstinately refused to go down before sank easily to place, and in that way, so runs the story, was discovered the use of the water jet for putting down piling.

The Romans as Fighters.

The Roman became the greatest soldier in the world simply because he made soldiering his one supreme aim and business. The Romans studied war just as the Greeks studied art, the men of the middle ages theology, the Egyptians the art of agriculture. They despised literature, art, philosophy, commerce and even luxury and set their whole heart on becoming fighters and conquerors. In that way they developed very naturally the genius and means for successful warfare which made them the masters of the world.

There was nothing miraculous in the prowess of the legions. It was the natural result of their undivided effort, protracted through generations.

One Way to Smoke a Cigar.

"Here's a secret that it took me years to learn," said Uncle Joe Cannon, who, as nearly every one knows, is an inveterate smoker. "If you want to get the most out of a cigar light the 'wrong end.' Any man who smokes cigars to any great extent will tell you that he gets more real enjoyment out of the last inch of his cigar. Now, my plan is to light the last half first and get to the best part of the smoke as soon as you can. Of course you have to snip off the end that is supposed to go in your mouth before you can light the cigar, but if you try my plan you won't ever go back to the old fashioned way unless I'm badly mistaken."

A Good Habit to Cultivate.

The cultivation of love and forbearance for others is one of the safest habits to form, and this love should be cultivated without inquiring whether others deserve that love or not. It is always difficult for any human being to know surely whether another deserves our love, for we never know the heart, and we cannot see behind the scenes. Only God can truly judge. It is for us to love and to help and let God do the judging and the criticising. This attitude of caring and trying to aid by sympathy can be formed like any other habit, and once formed it takes the place of indifference and intolerance, opening up our whole lives to faith and light.—Christian Herald.

Not Right Kind of Notes.

When Mr. Newedde went home the other evening he guessed something had occurred to displease the light of his life. She looked gloomy. After dinner it all came out.

"George," she said coldly, "banks are all frauds. Didn't you tell me that they lent money on notes?"

"Yes, dear," replied George, repressing a grin, "but"—

"Well, they don't," she went on conclusively. "I took all those lovely letters you wrote to me while we were engaged down to the bank, and the cashier read them. Then he laughed and said they were very nice, but he wouldn't lend me even a penny on them!"

Still at It.

"They kept company for a long time before they were married, didn't they?"

"Yes, and they've kept company most of the time since. Her relations seem bound to live on them."—Boston Transcript.

No Less.

"Congratulate me, old man. I got a notice from the bank yesterday that my account was overdrawn."

"But why the congratulations?"

"The bank failed this morning."—Exchange.

Provided For.

THE BARON AT HIS BEST

From Calgary News Telegram

Baron Shaugnessy never shows to better advantage than when he delivers an impromptu address. That which he gave to the combined Board of Trade and Canadian Club yesterday was an example. The baron rarely has a set speech. He depends on the nature of the gathering he faces and the spirit of the moment to furnish inspiration, and with his usually broad knowledge of men and things, and his habit of expressing his thoughts with masterful precision, he is a charming public speaker. The head of the C.P.R. is not a keen disciple of formalism. He likes plain human nature, and he likes his surroundings and his friends to be alive and not artificial. In a big gathering where big things are discussed he is at his best, and the pity is that he is not heard more often in public. When the time comes that he wishes to relinquish the multitudinous cares and the responsible position he now occupies, Canadians would be pleased were he to take a seat in Parliament where his ripe wisdom and his cool, sane but quick judgment would be of estimable value to the nation.

Or, if not that the baron would be an admirable High Commissioner in London.

Baron Shaughnessy is Catholic in his tastes and recreations. He reads widely, but can turn from the printed page to discuss painting or politics with equal falicity and charm, and he gave those Calgarians who were priviliged to hear him yesterday a pleasant taste of his quality.

May he live long and return often, will be the wish of his admirers here

WARPLANES THAT FLY 165 MILES PER HOUR

British Credited With Remarkable Development in Air Machines—Played Tremendous Role in Last Great Battle in Picardy—Cross Cnannel At Altitude of 10,000 Feet In Eight Minutes

With the British Armies in France (via London), Oct. 4—Special—Never were such numbers of planes employed, and never before did they play such an important part as in the battle of the Somme. The wastage of British planes at the front has been supplied by new 'planes flown across the Channel from England, where after coming from the factory they are tested out at the home areodrome. The record time in crossing the Channel at the narrowest point, where the distance is twenty-two miles, is eight minutes.

A dozen machines, one after another, were due to go to France that day as soon as the wire said a storm on the other side of the Channel had passed. The correspondent slipped into a wadded jacket for protection against the wind, which would also act as a lifebuoy if he happened to fall into the channel, and took his place a position usually occupied by the observer, who also mans the machine gun. "She's a good and steady 'bus'," said the pilot. "They flew her down from the factory three days ago and she was tuned up and ready for her part in the big show on the other side You must not expect any other stunts. My business is to fly her to France and deliver her in good condition, ready for work."

She was immaculate in her fresh varnish and reassuring in her staunchness. This pilot had made thirty such crossings and was proud of the fact that he had never come down at any of the way stations. Before the war he had been ranching in South Africa, and was one of the thousands of men who knew nothing about flying, but have been made expert aviators.

Substantial Gift To Patriotic Fund

Local Gentleman Donates One Hundred Dollars a Week Until The End of The War

The following communication, submitted to The Intelligencer this morning, explains itself:

Belleville, Ont., Sept 25, 1916.

H. F. Ketcheson, Esq.,
Chairman of the Patriotic
Committee of the City of Belleville,
Belleville, Ont.

My Dear Mr. Ketcheson,—

Allow me to congratulate you and the gentlemen of your committee on the good work you have done since this fund was started for the purpose of protecting the wives and families of our dear boys who are sacrificing their health, and possibly their lives in fighting to sustain Canada and the British Empire.

We are all proud, as Canadians of the loyalty of our boys throughout the whole of the Dominion who have responded so nobly to the call of duty.

I, also, wish to congratulate you as Mayor of the City and the gentlemen who have the honor of presiding as Aldermen with you for applying the handsome amount of the people's money this year to the fund which I am sure will meet with the approval of all our citizens.

I understand that with the amount voted by the City your committee will still require almost as much more by private subscriptions to meet the requiremnts and calls for the year, and I was informed that a meeting will be called in the near future for the purpose of raising the amount, and as I am leaving for the North in a few days and will be away for a month I will be pleased to subscribe $100 per week until the end of the war; 80 per cent. to go to the Patriotic Fund, and and the balance, 20 per cent, to be paid to the Belleville Red Cross Patriotic Society, Argyle, Quinte and St. Julien Chapters, I.O.D.E., one quarter each, to assist the good work being done by our ladies of this City which I am sure we all, as citizens appreciate.

I remain,

Yours sincerely,
(Signed) H. CORBY.

Note:—It is expected that a campaign for funds for patriotic purposes will be conducted in the near future to supplement the amount contributed by the ci

MONTREAL STUDENTS TEAR RECRUITING BILLS FROM BULLETIN BOARD

Canadian Press Special.

MONTREAL, Oct. 4.—On the way to mass at St. James Cathedral this morning, several Laval students tore down the recruiting posters on Phillips Square, and demolished the stand of the Fifth Pioneers on St. Catharine street. The police were called out and the students resisting dispersal, stoned the constables, three of whom were slightly hurt.

Six students were arrested, but later released on bail. A students' delegation waited on Mayor Martin, and showed him their bloody heads and hands, and demanded an investigation, which the mayor promised. The Captain, who took the police up to the Cathedral, was meanwhile suspended. The students told the Mayor the police hustled right into the Cathedral, and Bishop Gauthier had to come down from the altar and plead with them for order.

POWERFUL GERMAN TRENCHES ARE CAPTURED BY THE ALLIES

Canadians Press Special.

PARIS, Oct. 4.—North of the Somme we completely captured a powerful line of German trenches between Morval and St. Pierre Vaast Wood. We made about three hundred prisoners, including ten officers. South of the Somme there was lively enemy bombardment in the region of Belloy En Santerra. The night was calm on the rest of the front. Bad weather interferred with aerial operations.

USING UP ITS STRENGTH

Enemy Gradually But Surely Wearing Itself Down With No Material Results

Canadian Press Special

LONDON, Oct. 4.—The importance of the three months' offensive is not to be judged by the distance advanced or the number of enemy trench lines taken. It must be looked for in the effect upon the enemy's strength in numbers, material and morale. The enemy has used up his reserves in repeated costly and unsuccessful counter attacks, without causing our Allies or ourselves to relax our steady methodical pressure.

Must Have Nine Hundred Men

Six Officers Not Allowed if Battalion is Under Strength—System Considered Unfair

KINGSTON, Oct. .—There is a feeling growing against the indiscriminate way in which the militia department uses officers of battalions which are called overseas before the battalions are full strength. The way that the matter has been working out makes it most unfair to the officers concerned.

The plan being followed is to have an officer stationed at the embarking point. He makes a count of the men in the battalion. If the battalion has not a full 900 men, it is proclaimed to be a three-company unit, and six officers including the chaplain, make their exit. Now the chaplain's case is typical of the others. He is a man who has given up a charge and donned the khaki, in most cases only through a sense of duty. The chaplain in many cases was to a large extent responsible for the recruiting of the battalion. There are cases where the chaplain has worked night and day and ploughed through snow-drifts all last winter to attend meetings and thereby get recruits. Now because there were not enough secured to meet the calls for drafts to other battalions, such as the Pioneers, he is refused the chance of going overseas. By an order at the embarking point after all his goodbyes have been made, he is told to go back home and start over again.

If a brigade of 600 artillerymen needs a chaplain, is there any reason why a battalion of 900 men should not need a spiritual adviser?

The case of officers is quite the same. They have put, in a good many cases, their heart and spirit in the recruiting game, bucking against odds of all kinds. At the last moment they can not go with their men.

If the present method is followed throughout the rest of the campaign there are prospects for a public outcry against such a system.

BIG DRIVE BY RUSSIANS

LONDON, Oct. 3.—A mighty big drive on Constantinople by the Russians through Dobrudja and Asia Minor may bring a decision in the war before the end of the present year. The knowledge that this drive is coming is regarded as an explanation of the alarm felt in Germany, as shown by the refusal of private bankers and the moneyed classes to subscribe to the new loan. The preparations for the march on the Turkish capital have long been under way.

Fighting Still In Progress

Canadian Press Special.

LONDON, Oct. 4.—On the Macedonian front the British troops pushed forward yesterday from their new positions near Karajakeui on the west flank of the Struma River, in Greek Macedonia, and captured part of the Village of Yenikeui. The Bulgarians launched three counter attacks and fighting is still in progress.

MILITARY MATTERS AT BARRIEFIELD HEIGHTS

HEADQUARTERS BESEIGED

Requests for allotment of soldiers for Winter—Every little place in the district Wants Troops for the Winter.

There is now a race between the various municipalities of this district to secure soldiers to be quartered during the winter and headquarters is being besieged by requests from all sources for those favors. One of the most interesting and one that seems to be of very great interest to the district concerned is that dealing with the 235th Battalion. There are half a dozen places anxiously working for an allotment. The order issued some time ago from Ottawa was that troops were to be quartered in large centres. This of course depends on the accommodation provided. There is accommodation for 10,000 men from this district, but as to where the 5,000 will be taken into is yet a question. The 235th Battalion is about 500 strong now. There is Bowmanville, Port Hope and Cobourg in the list of runners. Each of these places want the battalion. The camp engineer, Capt. Palmer was in the district last week and made an inspection of the various places. So far no decision has been reached.

The question is also agitating othe places. Belleville is getting the Canning factory (beg pardon) "The Barracks") into shape for the new battalion which rumor states is to be quartered there. The fact is that in neither Belleville, Brockville or Kingston have battalions been authorized and this complicates matters. All three expect units, but just what will be done is a matter of debate.

The large tent used as a central messing tent by the 155th Battalion, is beyond repair, and the unit is now using eight small marquees for messing purposes.

Dr. and Mrs. Potts, Mrs. Putman, Mrs. Adams and Mrs. Mansuer, of Winnipeg, visited the 155th Battalion yesterday and took dinner with the officers of the battalion, Mrs. Doyle and Mrs. Dodds were also among the visitors and guests.

In the sports held on Saturday, in football, Q. F. A. won from the 155th battalion by a score of 8-0. The 154th won from the 156th by a score of 2-0 In baseball No 5 F.C.C.E. defaulted to Queen's Field Ambulance, and there were too many of the men of the 154th and 155th on pass to permit the games arranged for these teams to be played.

RECRUITING IS STARTING

Recruiting for the three battalions at the camp has started—at least efforts to raise recruits are being made—in view of the early departure for overseas and the desire of the commanding officers to take over a full battalion.

In view of the fact that authority has been granted for the 154th Battalion to be a kilted unit, no great difficulty in bringing this up to strength is anticipated. The kilts attract the Scotch, and Col. MacDonald does not expect any trouble in getting a full battalion to face the embarking officer

The 155th is giving the Belleville district a tryout and every available means is being used to secure 100 men. Meeting of all kinds are being held.

DOG FIGHT AT DIVINE SERVICE

"Ken," the Camp Pet, feels that no other dog has a right to prominence and showed his authority.

There was a lively scene at the morning service in camp Sunday morning caused by a dog fight. "Ken"—the pet of the camp and chief cannie of the headquarters staff feels that no other dog has a right to the position near the drum altar on church parade, and resented the approach of 'Tige,' a tramp bullterrier, to his sacred and peculiar position. With a touch of the spirit of the Pharisee of old, "Ken" thought the poor tramp publican had no right to so conspicuous a place in the camp service, and immediately proceeded to teach him a lesson in camp service ethics and regulations. The bullterrier thought that every dog had a right to approach the drum altar, and was prepared to defend his position, which he did. The two dogs soon locked in conflict for privilege and supremacy, and for a time the scene looked like a bayonet charge in the trenches. Bullterrier and Airedale fought, bled and struggled, and it was with great difficulty that they were separated. Sympathy was with "Ken," and the poor tramp suffered many a kick and ungerous attack, but he walked off the field bearing his cuts and bruises as only a dog with English blood in his veins can walk, he was proud of his scrap even if he did get a little the worst of the fight. The chaplains maintained an attitude of strict neutrality, and when it was all over proceeded with the service.

EAUCOURT LABBAYE ENTIRELY IN HANDS OF ALLIED FORCES

Canadian Press Special.

LONDON, Oct. 4.—Official statement.—Eaucourt Labbaye has been cleared of the enemy and is entirely in our hands. During the night there was considerable shelling on our front south of the Ancre. Otherwise there was no change. Heavy rain has fallen since morning.

Cambray Lad Shot by Hunter

Joseph Daniels Hit by Stray Bullet When Opening Gate on His Father's Farm

A strange shooting accident took place on the farm of Mr. Joseph Daniels near Canbray, Sunday afternoon, when his eldest son, Joseph Daniels, was shot in the hands by some unknown person.

It appears that the young fellow who is about fourteen years of age, was opening the gate when he was suddenly shot. He does not know where the shot came from, or who fired the gun, although it is surmised that it was a stray shot from a nearby woods. Three fingers on the left hand were shot off and the right hand was painfully wounded. Young Daniels was brought to the Ross Hospital where he is receiving every attention.

DESERTERS ARE NUMEROUS

Action Should at Once be Taken to Round Them Up

KINGSTON ONT., Oct. 4—"If we had our deserters back with us, the battalion would be strong enough" said an officer on Monday, discussing recruiting.

This fact is only too true, and yet no effort is being made by the department in rounding up these absentees. There are today, even in this country a great many men who took the oath to serve in the Canadian Expeditionary Force, but who became peeved at some little thing, went home and have never been molested.

For a long time the cry has been going up to have more systematic efforts made by the department to get these men. In the old days a deserter was branded but this method is rather severe just now. In any case the police could do a lot and with little trouble could bring in more than the number of recruits secured in the same period by our large recruiting staff.

Canadians In Somme Drive

Dominion Soldiers in Thick of Fighting Since Friday—Losses Reported Relatively Light

OTTAWA, Oct. 3.—A cable received by the Militia Department this morning states that the Canadians have been in the thick of the fighting in the great Somme drive.

Casualties in comparison with the intensity of the combat have been very light.

The heavy casualty list of the past two days are of the fighting previous to Friday, when the Canadians were in action around Courcelette.

Express Collides With Freight

Canadian Press Special.

KINGSTON, Oct. 4.—Grand Trunk Express No. 9, west bound, collided last night with a freight train which was pulling on the siding a few hundred yards east of Mallorytown. Fortunately the express was slowing down to drop four soldiers at that station, or a catastrophe would have ensued. The passengers were shaken, but not injured. The train pulled back to Brockville, which reached here this morning.

GERMANS CALLING ON RESERVE FORCES IN CONFLICT OF SOMME

Canadian Press Special.

LONDON, Oct. 4.—An official statement issued here to-day gives details of fighting on the Somme front, after the advance of September fifteenth, describing the capture of villages, including Combles, Guedecourt and Thiepval. These victories brought our front line at more than one point within a mile of the German fourth position west of Bapaume Transloy road. The statement continues: The enemy has fought stubbornly to check our advance, and since September fifteenth, seven new divisions have been brought against us and five against the French. The severe and prolonged struggle demanded on part of our troops very great determination and courage. At the end of September the situation may be summarized as follows: Since opening of battle on July first, we have taken 26,723 prisoners, and engaged 38 German divisions, of which 29, about 350,000 men, have been withdrawn, excluded or broken. We hold half of Moon Upland south of the Ancre, occupy every height of importance, and so have direct observation of ground on east and northeast. The enemy has fallen back upon a fourth line behind a low ridge west of Bapaume Transylvanian.

IN & ABOUT THE CITY

CAMPBELLFORD CHEESE BOARD

At the Campbellford Cheese Board yesterday 462 boxes were offered for sale and all were sold at 21 1-2c.

WRECK ON RAILWAY

Owing to the wreck on the Grand Trunk Railway at Mallorytown all the trains westward bound were this morning several hours late. We are informed that no person was injured in the smash-up but the line was badly blocked.

OFFICIALLY REPORTED WOUNDED

Mrs. James Wallace, Front Street, Belleville, this morning received from the Record Office, Ottawa, officially notifying her that her son Lieut. William H. Wallace had been wounded sometime between the 24th and 27 of September.

HEN RETURNED HOME

A few days ago a member of the Belleville Police Force and a city official traded some hens, the fowls being exchanged at night. The city official two days ago missed one of the hens he had secured and it was found yesterday in the coop of its former owner. The bird had travelled from Albert street to Church street, to its former home. The chicken was of the Campine breed.

Appreciated

44, Hillside St., Belleville, Ont., Oct. 4.
Hon. W. W. Hearst,
Premier Prov. of Ontario,
Parliament Buildings,
Toronto.

Dear Sir:—The Ministerial Association of the City of Belleville at its first regular meeting for the year, 1916-1917, desire to acknowledge their indebtedness to the Premier, the Leader of the Opposition, and the Provincial House, in granting to the Province as a war measure, "The Prohibition of the Liquor Traffic." While they are pleased to note the improvement in the lessening of drunkenness, and the number of criminal offences, they desire to hope that the section of the law permitting certain retail privileges to breweries, and the inter provincial trade in liquors be remedied at the approaching Legislative Assembly. They further desire to express their appreciation of the enforcement of the law; and beg to assure you that they shall not be lacking in assisting to mould public opinion favorable to the law.

Signed on behalf of the Ministerial Association,

Rev. E. C. Currie, Rev. J. N. Clarry, Committee; J. N. Clarry, Sec.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

Mrs. Adam Leslie, Bridge Street East, left today for Toronto to visit her daughter Mrs. P. S. Eccles.

Mrs. Arthur Pittis of Winnipeg, is visiting her brother Mr. D. Andrews, Station St.

Mr. Peckliard Burke, of Toronto, returned home today after attending the bedside of his brother, Mr. John Burke.

Mrs. Harry Croshaw and little son Harold, 27 Wallbridge St., this city spent a few days with her husband Pte. Harry Croshaw, 155th Battalion Barriefield.

HAD THOUGHT OF OTHERS

Last Words of the Late Sergt. Alf. Smith.

Capt. W. H. Smith, says the Cobourg Sentinel Star, has received a letter from Sergt. Allen J. Hawley, for many years a chum and friend of his son, the late Sergt. Alf. Smith, Kingston, and a comrade in the same unit. He says: 'Alf died August 11th, at 4.15 p.m. While at an advanced post he was wounded by an explosive bullet, which caused his death one hour and thirty minutes after. Alf after being wounded was quite conscious. He talked to his men, directing them to hold the position at all costs. This being his motto, to always attend to duty first, thinking only afterwards of himself. For his many brave acts during the big battle, June 1st, he was made bombing sergeant, and many know he will be a great loss to this battalion, being highly respected by every one who knew him."—Kingston Whig.

Note—Sergt. Alf. Smith was at one time a linotype operator in The Daily Intelligencer, from whence he went to the Kingston Whig.

MINISTERIAL ASSOCIATION

The Ministerial Association of Belleville held its first meeting of the autumn in the parlor of the Y.M.C.A. on Monday at 10 A.M. In the absence of the President Rev. S C. Moore, the chair was occupied by the vice-President, the new Secretary, Rev. J. N. Clarry, who has had much experience in such office, did duty as Scribe. Being the first meeting the attendance was not as representative as usual, but some of the brethren from the greatest distance were present. A good deal of business was done and the first subject on the program was dealt with by the Rev. M. E. Wilson of Cannifton. the subject "the greatest menace to the Church to day," was well suited to Mr. Wilson's intellectual ability, and was dealt with in a clear, concise manner. Three things very much pleased all present viz. the historical setting, the breadth of vision, and the facile, and the comprehensive presentation.

Plans were made for the reorganization of the Lord's Day Alliance and for a systematic Hospital visitation, which will be resumed Thursday afternoon of this week.

The acting president and the secretary were appointed a committee to draft a resolution expressing the associations thanks to the Premier, the leader of the oppositon and the Local Parliament for granting the new temperance legislation to the Province, a copy of the resolution will appear in the local press.

Should Receive A Consideration

(Kingston Whig)

It is rather an astounding fact that recruits are not coming forward as fast as needed but that there are boys in the convalescent homes who after having gone through the mill, are making applications to get overseas again

The camp headquarters has received many applications from invalided soldiers to allow them to re-inlist The men who have not been shot full of holes are more than anxious to enlist. There must certainly be a great fascination for a man who has been under fire when after being home for a few weeks his most urgent wish is to go back.

Inquiries made brought out the fact that it is impossible to show how great a percentage of the soldiers return to the front, as soon as they are discharged. Many try the medical examination and if possible reinlist. Of course in many cases they do not pass the examination, but with the number of overseas buttons that are worn by men of the three battalions in the camp the fact that a large percentage are going back to the front.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

"ALIEN SOULS" AT GRIFFIN'S TO-NIGHT

Sessue Hayakawa, the noted Japanese actor supported by such popular photoplay favorites as Earle Fox and Grace Benham, appears at the Griffin Opera House tonight and Thursday in Hector Turnbull's absorbing drama, "Alien Souls" the theme of the story centres on the conflict that is ever going on betwen peoples of opposite races. Besides the above five part offering, Frank Daniels appears in a very amusing comedy entitled, "Mr. Jack Hires a Stenographer." Pathe News with its interesting budget of news gathered the world over will also be exhibited

"TWIN BEDS" IS A LAUGH FEAST

At last Belleville is to see the play that is making all the world laugh, "Twin Beds," Salisbury Field and Margaret Mayo's much heralded side-splitting comedy which opens an engagement at the Griffin's Opera House next Tuesday Night under the direction of A. S. Stern and Company. "Twin Beds" for an uninterrupted year kept New Yorkers in a delirium of laughter ranging from a smile to a roar during almost every minute of the play, and as cause for laughter generally plays a large part in the success of a play, it is safe to say that "Twin Beds" is destined to live a long life and a well deserved one.

The story of "Twin Beds" deals with the felicities or infelicities of three married couples, to say nothing of a maid who is a paragon in various ways, in their futile effort to rid themselvs of a trouble-brewing proximity in a fashionable New York apartment house. Harry Hawkins is a young business man who "married for a home," in addition to being distractedly in love with his charming wife, and who resents in no unmistakable manner the fondness of his little wife for striking up acquaintances and giving parties for them. In particular he objects to a fat Italian tenor and his Amazon of a wife, who have apartments above them, and whose tenth aniversary they are celebrating at the opening of the play, much to the disgust of Harry. This disgust inspires him with the clever idea of moving to another part of the town. Unhappily he follows his inspiration to a dot, and embroils himself in troubles so thick and fast that he can scarcely escape them in time for the final curtain.

Our Heroic Allies Deserve
More Help than We are Giving

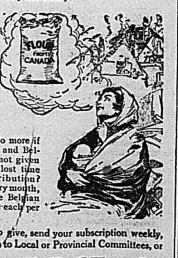
An accident of geography, and the fortunes of war, have subjected Belgium to the cold-blooded, calculated cruelty and attempted starvation of the German conquerors—while we in Canada, secure from danger, are making money out of the War.

Legitimate though our profits are, we surely owe a substantial share of them to our Allies, who are destitute because they dared stand up for their rights and defy the enemy.

We have given much—but barely enough to help keep the Belgians alive. More of them every week are calling for help, as their own resources are exhausted, and every one of the millions should have something more than the three slices of bread and the pint of soup which is all the Relief Commission can supply out of present contributions.



If you have been helping, do more if you can till the war is over and Belgium is free. If you have not given yet, will you make up for lost time with a substantial contribution? Better still, will you give, every month, enough to feed one or more Belgian families, at the rate of $2.50 each per month?

Whatever you can afford to give, send your subscription weekly, monthly, or in one lump sum to Local or Provincial Committees, or

The horses are registered thoroughbreds, and are certainly a fine type of horse flesh. The animals were exhibited at Toronto, Ottawa and Picton, and as a result Mr. Long secured 11 first prizes, 12 second prizes and 1 third prize for a two year old colt shown at Ottawa. At the latter place the championship prize for the best two year old shown in Canada, was won by Mr. Long, who prizes much the ribbon won.

Mrs. E. Comey, Mr. C. Comey and Master Earl, visited friends near Stockdale, recently.

Mr. D. L. Fleming is having an addition built to his house.

Mr. R. Wallace and sister, Ethel, of the North Line, were Sunday guests of Miss Edith Tummon.

Mr. Wm. Gay, Jr., spent a few days recently in Newcastle, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Parker.

Mr. Richard Simpson of Lindsay, visited at the home of Mr. S. Shaw's a few days last week.

Mr. R. Beatty of West Huntingdon, spent Tuesday evening with Mr. H. Welsh.

Miss A. Rollins spent last week with Mrs. A. Stevenson, Holloway.

Mrs. Jane Rollins and daughter Marion, also Mrs. T. S. Tummon, were visitors at the home of Mrs. A. B. Reid, last Friday.

Mr. Henry McIntosh of the United States, visited Mr. and Mrs. J. Rollins and other friends in this vicinity last week.

Mrs. John French of Crookston, spent last Thursday with her father, Mr. J. Benson.

On Tuesday evening last the members and friends of the Epworth League enjoyed a corn-roast after the usual programme of the League.

Miss T. Wood spent Sunday evening with Mr. and Mrs. J. Wood.

Mrs. McConnell of West Huntingdon, is visiting Mrs. J. Rollins for a few days.

Mrs. J .Roy is spending a few days with her sister, Mrs. Murray, of Madoc.

MELVILLE.

A heavy frost on Saturday night fell with blighting effect on the summer flowers, except those that were in sheltered locations. These are still showing a gay riot of color in keeping with the bright and glowing tints of the Autumn foliage.

Rev. H. H. Mutton and Mrs. Mutton are contemplating spending the Thanksgiving holidays at Port Hope and Peterboro.

Mrs. Albert Davern entertained friends from Waupous over Sunday.

Mr. O. Bovay spent the week-end with friends in Trenton.

Master Clare Zufelt was the winner of several prizes in the sporting contests at Ameliasburg school fair, which was held at Roblins Mills on Thursday.

Mrs. M. Johnson and Miss Lida Weeks spent a few days last week with Mrs. L. Walt, North Lakeside.

Melville was well represented at the Missionary banquet in First Methodist Church, Picton, on Friday evening. Among those present were Rev. H. H. Mutton, and Messrs. F. Zufelt, Eldon Walt, S. Kinnear, Chas. Kinnear, Orville Locklin, Geo. Weeks, Gilbert Osborne, John Morton and James Morton. All report a pleasant and profitable evening.

Mr. Charles Kinnear has purchased a new Ford car.

"I HAVE never met that young man face to face," said a business man recently, as he hung up his receiver after a telephone conversation; "but the way he talks over the telephone is typical of the whole organization of that house. They always answer every question in a polite and courteous manner. They never keep you waiting unnecessarily. They all seem to take a personal interest in what you have to say, and you can be sure that your telephone requests will have the most careful attention."

Isn't such an endorsement of your house by those who deal with you by telephone a valuable business asset?

It is well worth while to make sure every employee in your organization appreciates the value to himself and to your house of telephone courtesy.

LADY HENDRIE'S APPEAL

(Mail and Empire)

To the women of Ontario Lady Hendrie has sent out from Government House an appeal for an offering to the Duchess of Connaught's Prisoners of War Fund. To this appeal there ought to be a large collective response, large in the number as well as in the totality of the contributions. In this war Ontario manhood has been well seconded by Ontario womanhood. When it is over it is to the women, who have borne the self-denials, the labors and the heart-breaking sorrows, that the palm of heroism will be awarded by their brave sons, brothers and husbands home from the front. Besides bearing their own heavy burden they are heartening the men in the field and contributing to their comfort, while at the same time they are putting into many would-be stay-at-homes the spirit to go to the fighting line. It is therefore safe to say that they will do their part to swell this fund for our prisoners-of-war. And they will do it with the greater pleasure because her Royal Highness the Duchess of Connaught asks that it be in that way they betoken their farewell feeling, rather than in the form of a personal keepsake to herself, as was proposed, and as has been the charming custom on the leavetaking of the Governor-General's wife. On account of its object no fund has stronger claims upon the warmhearted patriotism of our people than this one has, and the circumstances that it will also be welcomed by her Royal Highness as a valedictory testimonial gives it additional claim. Every Ontario woman may send her contribution directly to the Honorary Treasurer, Mr. Clarence Bogert, general manager of the Dominion Bank, Toronto. The subscription list will remain open only until the 13th inst. Lady Hendrie's appeal should meet with a success proportionate to that of Sir John Hendrie's in behalf of the Red Cross Fund a year ago.

VIEWED FROM A LABOR STANDPOINT

From The Hamilton Spectator we gather the information that at the Trades Congress held in Toronto on Saturday last strong opposition was made not only to conscription, but to any form of registration which might be regarded as a preliminary thereto. Perhaps these delegates do not realize how much has yet to be done before we win the war. Our victory is inevitable, if ye keep up the supply of men and munitions, but that "if" cannot be ignored. We are sure the workingmen of this country are prepared for any sacrifice true patriotism may yet require. They say they will co-operate in keeping up the supply of labor in munition factories, if assured that contractors are not making undue profits. That is reasonable.

"They concur in the proposal that the Federal Government deal with the high cost of living by fixing certain food prices by Order-in-Council under the War Measures Act." says The Spectator. "This is going back to the political enconomy of the dark ages. The notion that any Government can regulate the prices consumers have to pay for foodstuffs was long since exploded.

"They hold that the Government should nationalize railways, mines and other public utilities; build highways; promulgate a new land settlement policy; shorten the working day; spread the disbandment of Canada's army over two years; establish state-owned flour mills, abattoirs and cold storage plants. Quite a program. There is much to be said for some of its items. But others open up vast questions, which cannot be settled in a day, or a year.

"They favor liberal treatment of ex-soldiers and surviving dependants of those that have fallen, in the Government pension scheme. This is in harmony with the general feeling of the country.

"They want not only restriction of Asiatic immigration, but the boycotting of restaurants, etc., operated by Asiatics."

"Perhaps the best thing the Congres did was to demand of the Federal Government "the apointment of a Royal Commission of representative men to investigate fully present industrial, social and economic conditions, and eliminate the many evils of our present system." This probably mans an investigation into the causes of the high cost of living. Such an investigation we cannot doubt the Dominion Government has already in view.

Montreal Gazette:—Count Tisza, the Hungarian premier, declares that he was surprised when Roumania entered the war on the side of the Entente Allies. If that is correct, the Count could not have been paying much attention to the newspapers, not to mention statements by speakers for Roumania. Talk of Roumania's participation had been open and extensive for many months before the plunge was taken. And the speakers announced that their country was not going to be ranged with the losing combination.

The boom in Standard Oil stocks in New York has carried prices so far forward that shares in the New Jersey Coompany are worth over $2,000 each. In consequence, the head of the concern, John D. Rockfeller, is today reputed to be a billionaire. That is a distinction without a doubt, but the bearer of the monetary title is not likely to notice the difference. He had more money almost than he knew what to do with when he was only a multi-millionaire.

A New York newspaper correspondent, who quite recently made a trip through Northern Mexico, was told by Mexicans of all classes whom he questioned that Pancho Villa would die of old age. This may be taken to indicate that the bandit has popular support in his own country. Cynics may feel inclined to remark that Villa is wicked enough to reach a ripe old age, anyway.

CHAS. J. SYMONS

"THE STORE WITH THE ELECTRIC MAN"

The German Chancellor's speech at the opening of the Reichstag was an official "chant of hate" against England.—Montreal Mail. That's nothing. We are quite familiar with the old chant and its harmless nature.

High cost of living is not confined to Canada. The governor of Massachusetts has ordered an investigation in that state, and the result will likely be no more satisfactory, as to relief, than the one authorized by any other board of control.

It is refreshing to notice that President Wilson has plucked up courage enough to defy the hyphenates and plainly tell them that he doesn't want their votes and would feel their support of him as a humiliation. That is the president's bravest utterance since he was inaugurated.—Hamilton Herald.

Some of us boast of what Australia has done, and we may legitimately boast of it. But let us not deceive ourselves. We stand here to-day as free men and women because we are part and parcel of the British Empire; we stand or fall together. But for that great navy, under whose outstretched wings we have been sheltered two years, this great city would have been reduced to ruins.—Premier Hughes, of Australia.

Prince Rupprecht, of Bavaria, commander at the Somme, is reported as saying that the Germans have everything so thoroughly prepared that they are able to contemplate the situation with equanimity, whatever comes. In a way his boast is a confession of cold-bloodedness. It takes a pretty hardened sinner to regard with an even mind the slaughter of thousands of his fellows.

King Albert of Belgium, it is reported, has aged under his load of care and makes a point of never leaving the small strip of territory over which the Belgian flag still flies. If full justice is done, his place of movement should in time be greatly extended. Belgium was the innocent bystander in the war and has suffered terribly through no fault of its own. Heavy compensation is due the kingdom which refused to be a party to a crime against its neighbor.

How to Steal a Cow.

One of Daniel O'Connell's clients, who was acquitted upon a technical point of stealing a cow at night, was asked by O'Connell how he managed to steal the fattest cow in the dark.

"Why, then, I'll tell your honor the whole secret of that, sir. Whenever your honor goes to steal a cow always go on the worst night you can, for if the weather is very bad the chances are that nobody will be up to see your honor. The way you'll always know the fat cattle in the dark is by this token—that the fat cows always stand in the most exposed places, but the lean ones always go into the ditch for shelter."

Wonderful Shoes.

I have just cum frum a movie foundry. I have seen sum wonderful sites witch have filled my sole with awe (whoever that iz). I saw a buteeful gurl witch wore fancy cloth top shoes when her father druv her frum his doar in anger in the furst reel. Seven years later wen she returned 2 kiss him gud-bye (he waz getin' reddy 2 croak) she had on the saim shoes. Witch shows nutthin iz impossible in the movies. I'm gonna buy me sum shoes like them.—Treve Collins, Jr., in Music and Movie Monthly.

Man and the Camel.

When man first saw the camel he was so frightened at his vast size that he fled away. After a time, perceiving the meekness and gentleness of his temper, he summoned courage enough to approach him. Soon afterward, observing that he was an animal altogether deficient in spirit, he assumed such boldness as to put a bridle in his mouth and to set a child to drive him. Use serves to overcome dread.—From Aesop's Fables.

Following Family Traditions.

Evidently English Princesses are still accustomed to doing little things for themselves without feeling that they lose prestige thereby, for Princess Patricia, as she rose from luncheon recently, pushed back her own chair, and, of course, quite unconsciously brought back to the minds of those who saw the little act that the story told of her aunt, the Princess Royal, who found the verbotens of the German Court very irksome when, as the wife of Crown Prince Frederick, she fell under their yoke. Happening to want some chairs moved into her nursery one day, she carried them herself. Later, when called to account for such an astounding forgetfulness of Royal dignity, the Princess replied that she had often seen her mother move chairs, and what the Queen of England did she thought could safely be done by a mere German Princess.

In And About The City

BICYCLES CLAIMED

Three bicycles which were found upon the street recently and taken to the police station for safe keeping have all been claimed .

MADOC FAIR

Many residents of this city and vicinity were today in attendance at the Madoc Agricultural Fair. The exhibits are numerous and an excellent program has been provided.

ANSWERED A CALL

The police last night were called to a house on South John Street where a dance was in progress and trouble was ensuing. All was quiet when the officers of the law arrived upon the scene.

GOES OVERSEAS

Rev. (Capt.) H. B. Kenry, who was chaplain of the 139th, was asked to report at Kingston and it is understood leaves for overseas very shortly as chaplain of another unit The best wishes of many friends and admirers will go with him .

NEW TEMPERANCE ACT

A procedure took place in Madoc before Magistrate Casement under the Ontario Temperance Act agaist William Blakely for being intoxicated. Upon investigation the evilence was so weak that the Prosecution decided to drop the case. W. C. Mikel appeared for the accused.

CONTRACT AWARDED

Mr Lucius E. Allen of Belleville, has been awarded the contact of erecting for the J. C. Wilson and Company of this city a steel and concrete machine shop, 150x50 feet. The work will be commenced at once and rushed forward to completion by the midle of November.

ASK FOR MAGAZINES

The 155th Battalion stationed at Barriefield, has sent out a request for magazines, papers, books, small games such as checkers, dominoes, etc., these to be used by the men on the trains and transport en route overseas. This request was made to the Mayor, H. F. Ketcheson, and also to the Y.M.C.A. Secretary. If friends of the 155th Batt. would send their donations of magazines, books, games, etc, to the Y.M.C A. sometime before Oct. 11th they will be shipped to Barriefield.

NEARLY ALL IN UNIFORM

Belleville Cadet Corps Had Forty Boys When Started — Lieut.-Col. D. Barrager, Was Organizer

Lieut.-Col. Barrager. commandant of the School of Infantry, has received several letters from boys at the front who had their first military experience in the orignal Quieen Mary School in Belleville of which he was principal.

When the cadet corps was organized some eight years ago Col. Barrager immediately applied for permission to organize one for his school. Proving that the application was one of the first was the reason why the corps was given the number eight. There were forty boys in the corps and though no uniform was allowed the enthusiasm was at high pitch. Today with one or two exceptions every one of those boys are in uniform in units connected with the first contingent.

The fact that such a large percentage of the boys have enlisted is one of the greatest tributes to the cadet corps movement and in years to come with the present system of government assistance the corps should flourish even more than ever.

CALLED BY DEATH.

MRS. AGNES FRADETTE

Last evening after an illness of three weeks' duration, Mrs. Agnes Fradettte whose home was on Wharf St Belleville, passed away. Deceased who was in her 60th year, was born in England, being a daughter of the late Mr Thomas Wheeler. About thirty years ago she came to Canada and lived here for some years. She was a member of the Anglican Church. Three daughters and one son survive, all of whom live in Belleville. The sons are Grenville and Walter, and the daughters are Mrs. Bert Parks and Missess Muriel and Dorthy.

FOR SPRAINS LAME MUSCLES

Absorbine, Jr., brings quick relief. Keep it always at hand, for instant use. Athletes use Absorbine, Jr., for the muscle that has been strained, for the cut or laceration that runs a chance of infection for the abrasion that pains and the limbs that are stiff and lame from over-exertion.

Walter Johnson, the famous pitcher of the Washington Americans says: 'Absorbine, Jr, is a first-class liniment and rub-down for tired muscles. I have used it myself to advantage and can heartily recommend it to ball players everywhere."

Absorbine. Jr., is a concentrated antiseptic liniment—only a few drops required at an application. It is safe and pleasant to use—leaves no greasy residue. Sold by most druggists, $1.00 and $2.00 a bottle or postpaid. Liberal trial bottle for 10c. in stamps.

COUNTRY CORRESPONDENCE

GILEAD.

Owing to the absence of our pastor, M. Pimlott of Belleville, preached in the Methodist church on Sunday, and Rev. Mr. Mitchell of Roslin conducted Holy Communion in the Presbyterian church.

Miss M. Reed visited Mrs. E. Leavens on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Allison of Aubury, visited the former's sister, Mrs. H. Chirman, last week.

Mr. James Hall of Latta, is spending a few days the guest of his sister, Mrs. J. F. Yorke.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Leslie and children of Roslin, spent Sunday at the home of Mr. E. Yorke.

OAK HILLS.

Arnold McKutchen and Bessie Gambers, who have ben ill, are recovering slowly.

Mrs. E. Potter, Belleville and sister, Mrs. Wallace Hoard, spent Sunday with friends here.

Those from here who attended the Frankford Fair reported everything very pleasing, but one gentleman had the misfortune to lose his Panama hat while driving over the bridge, which spans the river.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Brintnell, Corbyville, visited the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Bronson, on fair day.

The service which was held at the home of Mr. J. Juby on Sunday, conducted by the Rev. Mr. Byers of Stirling, was largely attended.

Miss Isie Eggelton and friends spent Saturday and Sunday visiting in Belleville and vicinity.

'Meat Prices Will Not Come Down" is the cheerful news from the Department of Agriculture. Meat prices will not worry the man or woman who knows that a Shredded Wheat Biscuit will supply more real body-building nutriment than beefsteak or eggs and at much less cost. Shredded Wheat remains the same price, the same high quality, supplying all the nutriment a man needs for a half-day's work. Two shredded wheat biscuits with peaches and cream or other fruits make a complete, nourishing meal at a cost of not over five cents.

St. Julian Chapter I. O. D. E. Promotes Successful Fair—A Worthy Object—Delightful Entertainment

Under the auspices of St. Julien Chapter, I.O.D.E., of this city, a fair was opened up yesterday in the Y. M. C. A. building, and was continued today. It has proved to be an attraction and the ladies in charge will no doubt be pleased with the result of their efforts to secure funds for a most worthy object, namely: procuring comforts for the boys at the front. The main floor of the building has been converted into a bowery of beauty. In addition to the fish pond which is well patronized, there are three booths tastefully decorated. The information bureau in the centre is in charge of Mrs. J. Neate, as Mother Goose, and she is assisted by Misses Gladys Mayo and Edna Bowen.

The fancy work table is presided over by Miss Norma Clarke and her able assistants are Misses Pascoe and Dickens.

The candy table is in charge of Misses Forrester, Goodsell and Bell and is sought after by many who attend the fair.

Miss Bessie Handley is in charge of the tea-room, and is assisted by a number of young ladies who are ever ready to wait upon those who are desirous of partaking of light refreshments and a cup of tea.

The Gypsy Camp is in charge of Miss Dolan, who is designated as Queen Zoe. Diona, tells business and love secrets, as revealed by cards, and Mrs. Wheatley is in charge. Miss Young is in charge of the palmistry tent.

Misses Bessie Clarke and Luella Curry are in charge of the fish pond, and are certainly kept busy.

EVENING ENTERTAINMENT..

Great credit is due to Mrs. Dr. MacCol'l, and all who took part in the evening's entertainment. A operetta entitled. "A Day in Flowerdom" was presented, and it was certainly presented in a manner that was most pleasing and entertaining. The various characters in the operetta were well taken and portrayed by the young ladies. Mrs. MacColl presided at the piano, and Mrs Prof. Johnstone deserves much credit in training the young ladies in the execution of the dances in the play. The characters and those portraying same were as follows.—

Papa Jaques, Rose, Miss Mabel Burke.
Mama Jaques Rose, Ruth Snell.
White Rose, Grace Foxton.
Pink Rose, Lela Weese.
Moss Rose, Annetta McCormick.
Blue Bell, Gladys Rayfield.
Lily, Clela Bruein.
Lilac, Verna Coleman.
Pansy, Mrs. Backus.
Sunflower, May Wallace.
Queen, Maud Foxton.
Cricket, Margaret McCrodan.
Daisy, Jean Wiggins.
Sweet pea, Edna Bowen.
Batchelor Button, Marjorie Gulliver.
Poppie, Doris Brooks.
Marguerite, Gladys Mayo.
Caranation, Marion Bruein.

During the performance, Miss May Wallace gave a recitation in a manner that was much appreciated, and the solos rendered were also well given. The operetta will be repeated this evening.

BOURASSA CALLS ENGLAND AN EGOTISTIC OPPRESSOR

MONTREAL, Oct. 3.—Special—Between five and six thousand people listened Saturday to Henri Bourassa and Paul Emile Lamache, at Nicolet in the County of Yamaska.

Mr. Lamarche defending his attitude in resigning from the Federal Parliament as a protest against prolonging the term, which action he characterized as tyranical. He said that when a man got a hundred or two hundred thousand dollars' worth of public works for his country it was a prima facie evidence that he had sold his conscience and his principals.

Bourassa's Violent Attack

Mr. Bourassa made a vehement attack on Sir Wilfred Laurier, and sarcastically refered to him as the idol of the people. He characterized Sir Wilfrid as one of the nefarious men of Canada and ridiculed his pretended love for France, saying that in 1870 Laurier was young enough to go and fight for France but did not do so. Mr. Bourassa went over all his previously used arguments against the participation of Canada in the present war and ridiculed the pretension that England was fighting for the defence of small nations. He said England was fighting for Belguim because Belguim protected her from the advance to Callas of the Germans.

Mr. Bourassa said the peers of England, dignitaries of the Anglican Church, deputies and hundreds of prominent English people were receiving a commission of 22 per cent on every shell fired by the Germans at the British soldiers, and referred to these people as trafficking in human flesh. He referred to imperialism as a diabolical idea. He said France was paying for her apostasy, her sacrilegious rupture of relations with the Holy See and expulsion of religious orders. He stated that if Canada were to have a war with the United States, no one supposed that France would send an army to help them.

Vehement Attack on England

England he characterized as an egotistic and repacious nation, which attained its present size by spoliation of weaker peoples. He said that English army was routed out of Gallipoli through the incompetence of the army officers.

For 150 years he said England had robbed more nations than any other people since the fall of the old Roman Empire, and that England, if it suited her purpose, would as soon make an alliance with Turkey or any other barbarous nation.

He referred to England's tyranny in Africa, India and Acadia in the old days.

SAWDUST ALCOHOL TO RUN MOTOR CARS

Chemists Assert it Soon Can be Produced to Sell for 25 cts. a Gallon.

(New York Times)

Chemists who attended the afternoon session of the American Chemical Society in the Chemist's Club predicted that the day of cheap alcohol was at hand and that in the near future the cartoonists would have to seek something to replace there "a fliver with every gallon of gasoline pictures." They have discovered alcohol in all sorts of unexpected places, they revealed during their lengthy discussion of the subject of "Industrial Alcohol, Acetone, and Acetic Acid" and now consider any manufacturer who throws anything away without first having it examined chemically as a person whose business methods are antiquated.

Sawdust for instance has been found to be a most prolific source of alcohol. Moreover, it is "grain" alcohol that is being extracted from this erstwhile waste matter of the sawmill and the chair factory, and not "wood" alcohol One of the chemists afterwards explained to a group of reporters just why, under a new process, the alcohol extracted from sawdust is grain alcohol instead of wood alcohol, using up three pages of foolscap with analyses of reactions and swarms of symbols and formulae, and making the matter perfectly clear to other chemists who happened to be listening.

By the new method of treating sawdust, it appeared, sulphuric add is added and the combination subjected to heat and pressure. By that tme the cellulose is willing to split, and from then on it is a sensible matte. The mixture then has only to be femented and grain alcohol is derived from it.

DERIVE IT FROM MOLASSES TOO

Among other waste substance from which this alcohol can be made, the chemists named sulphide liquor and "black strap"—that is, a heavy molasses that is a by-product of the sugar refinery. For years the chemist have been experimenting with methds of making use of the by-products of large industries and now they are convinced that in the case of alcohol at leat they have succeeded. It has been produced so cheaply, they say, that it can now be used for automobile fuel, and soon they expect to have alcohol motor boats and to have alcohol replacing gasoline in numerous other fiels.

Arthur D. Little, a chemical engineer of Boston, considered a leading authority on paper and wood pulp chemistry, presided at the meeting and said.

"There is no longer any queson of commercial success in the maufacture of alcohol for automobiles. Experiment have shown that alcohol can be manufactured as low as 25cents a gallon, and at that price it will be undoubtedly be preferable to gasoline.

"Alcohol is cleaner than gasoline for use in internal combustion engines and it will not explode or easily catch fire, and it will develop practically as much power as gasoline"

Mr. Little said that alcohol was the only fuel in sight that promised to reduce or hold down the price of gasoline and he read a telegram from the Du Pont Powder Company's laboratory head saying that the making of alcohol from sawdust was undoubtedly commercial success. Mr. Little said that throughout the country there are 10-000,000 tons of waste material per annum which could be used in making alcohol.

WAR AIDS CANADIAN CHEMISTS

Dr. John S. Bates, of McGill University, Montreal spoke briefly during this alcohol conference. He said that the war had proved a stimulus to several branches of the chemical industries in Canada. Ontario went dry recently he said, and a distiller there immediately began using corn in making acetone and fuel alcohol by chemical process, and already its experiment has resulted in the industry being established on a commercial basis. The acetone is being used in the manufacture of smokeless powder, cordite, chloroform, and acetyne he said.

The Technical Association of the pulp and paper industry held a session in Techermerhorn Hall, Columbia University, while other divisions of the American Chemical Society were meeting in other halls at Columbia and at the Chemists' Club, on East Forty-First Street. Dr. Hugh P. Baker, Dean of the State College of Forestry at Syracuse University, told the gathering that half the area of New York was idle which ought to be utilized and that a large part of it could be made productive for paper manufacturers. From 50 to 75 per cent. of the State of Maine where there were many forests that could be made to produce great quantities of wood pulp for paper making should be similarly used, he said.

An inportant announcement was made at a joint meeting of several divisions of the society by Dr. Charles L. Parsons, Chief Chemist of the United States Bureau of Mines. He announced a discovery that is expected not only to make America independent of foreign countries for material for the white ware industry, but actually to improve on the best material that was formerly imported.

POTTERS CLAY NOW ABUNDANT

It has long been known that immenses quantities of secondary kaolin, or potters clay were to be found in South Carolina and Georgia, but this was considered to be of no value to the ceramic industry because of certain metallic impurities which discolored it. In a study carried on the bureau of Mines, Dr. Parsons, announced, a method of extracting the metals has been found. There were few uses for the domestic kaolin before, now, with an expenditure of a few cents a ton it could be altered from a material selling at $4.50 a ton to a material marketable at twice this figure for use in potteries. Dr. Parsons announced. In addition, however he said, white tile made from this kaolin, mixed with American feldspar has been produced with a greater degree of whiteness and greater refractory strength than the best that was previously obtained from English china clay and Cornwall stone.

It remains for an erudite techinal discussion of potash and the possibilities of this country establishing its independence of other countries in the manufacture of potash by chemical process, however, to inspire to poetical expression one of the dignified chemists participating in the discussion. It was Professer H. A. Houston whose chemical muse, in the midst of the potash discussion, produced the following:

I'm coming! I'm coming!
My price is trending low,
I hear your hungry voices calling,
K 2O.

Envious colleagues grudgingly granted him the title "Poet Laureate of Potash" and adjourned to the smoker held at the Hotel Astor by the American Electrochemical Society which began its annual meetings yesterday in the hotel, and had as guests at its smoker the members of the other divisions of the American Chemical Society.

RECRUITS IN SEPT. LESS THAN LOSSES

Directors of National Service to Meet Next Week to Consider The Problem of Supply—Eight Thousand Men Have Returned From Front and Been Discharged

OTTAWA, Oct. 5—Special—The newly appointed Directors of National Service will meet in Ottawa next week for organization purposes, and to discuss plans for carrying out the task entrusted to them by the Government. The falling off in recruiting during the past two or three months, and the imperative need of systematic method of adjusting the supply of men to meet the calls of both war and industry, call for prompt action by Sir Thomas Tait and his directors. Sir Thomas, in co-operation with the officials of the Militia Department and of other departments of the State, is now preparing detailed recommendations for the consideration of the board when it meets here next week.

RECRUITING FAR BELOW WASTAGE

It may be noted that the recruiting total of 6,351 for the last month fell very short of wastage at front during the month of September. Considering the number of casualties and the comparatively large number of men who are now being weeded out of the battalions proceeding overseas through the final medical examination prior to leaving Canada, it is safe to say that there are fewer men actually in the expeditionary ranks now than there were at the begining of August.

ALLIED TROOPS PRESS BULGARS

Further Ground Has Been Gained and The Town of Buf Occupied

Canadian Press Special.

PARIS, Oct., 5—Allied troops on the western end of the Macedonian front continue to press back the Bulgarian forces before Monastir. The War Office today announced further ground had been gained and the town of Buf, twelve miles south of Monastir had been occupied.

Great Iron Ore Discovery Made

Immense Deposits Found on East Coast of James Bay — Of Finest Quality

TORONTO, Oct. 5.—Special—News of what is claimed to be one of the greatest discoveries of iron ore, came to town yesterday. The location is on the east coast of James Bay on one of the uncharted islands. Analysis shows phosphorus to be present in quantities of less than one-half of one per cent., which in many degress is better than that from which Great Britain constructs her war munitions.

The big strike was made by Sandy A. Gemmell, of Toronto, who, with Eugene Le Duke, Sam. Sainsbury and Stewart Gushue, made the long jaunt via steel rail, canoe, hard trapping, and finished up by a rough trip across James Bay in a fishing smack. It was an eight weeks' journey, and they spent twenty days on the islands prospecting and staking their claims.

Four thousand acres of almost continuous iron ore deposits is what these men have staked out. They found a dyke of solid iron ore which they calculated to run seven miles long and ranging from 40 to 60 feet in width. It is 50 percent. metallic iron and all grades below 1 per cent. in phosporus. The ground was staked July 1 this year.

Women Succeed as Munition Workers

Some in Canada are Earning $4 a Day on Piece Work

OTTAWA, Oct. 4—Hon. T. W. Crothers has returned to Ottawa after a visit to Toronto and an investigation into the employment of women in the munition factories. He goes to Montreal in a day or two to conduct a similar enquiry there.

The Minister of Labor pronounces the employment of women to be a decided success. Women have shown themselves to be well adapted to the more delicate work of munition manufacture, such for example as the making of fuses and parts which require very careful handling. Thousands of women have volunteered and some 1,200 to 1,500 are being employed, although there are some times objections on the part of foremen ond other employees to the employment of many women. Those who have gone into the industries are many of them former store women. They go in at $1 to $2 a day and some earn as high as $4 a day on piece work after they have become proficient.

Invalid Port Wine Fiend The Latest

Toronto Merchant Says Employe "Has Gone to Pieces" by Use of Liquid

TORONTO, Oct. 5.—Special—A wholesale merchant wrote to Vice-Chairman Dingman of the license board yesterday, saying that one of his employees, an excellent man at his particular job, that is, when he was sober, had simply gone to pieces since the advent of prohibition through drinking invalid port wine. He pointed out further that the druggists had apparently featured the sale of invalid wine, and asked the board what they could do about it.

It is quite within the bounds of possibility, it is stated in well informed quarters, that legislation may be submitted at the next session of the legislature with a view of amending the present difficulty of prosecuting under the Patent Medicine Act, which simply provides that there shall be sufficient medication in such preparations to render them unpalatable. But on the question of palatability there may be wide divergence of opinion, and even after conviction the medication would be increased only slightly.

798 Peterboro Men Killed in The War

Three More Added to List, Lt. Morris, Sgt. C. Smith and Gunner Barrie

PETERBORO', Oct. 5.—Special—Official information was received here yesterday of the death of three more Peterboro' boys—Lieut. F. W. Morris, son of W. R. Morris, who died of wounds September 30th; Sergt Clarence Smith, Canadian Mounted Rifles, killed in action September 15th, and Gunner Norman Barrie, Canadian Artillery, killed in action September 21st. These make a total to date of 798 fatal casualties to Canadian soldiers from Peterboro' district since the war began.

Six Cannon From Teutons

Canadian Press Special.

PETROGRAD, Oct. 5—Six cannons have been captured by the Russians in prosecuting the offensive movement with Roumania against the Teutonic allies, today's war bulletin announces. This capture of guns was in addition to seven taken by the Roumanians.

IRELAND MAY BE FORCED TO JOIN IMPERIAL COLORS

LONDON, Oct. 5.—Special—When Parliament reassembles next week the government will be confronted with new embarrassing proposals for the application of conscription to Ireland. The Times and other newspapers recently have been conducting a strong campaign with this object in view, and the decisions announced yesterday by the man power distribution board and by Gen. Sir William Robertson, chief of the Imperial Staff, that more men are urgently needed, will, it is believed, strengthen the hands of the agitators, who have been joined by Sir Edward Carson.

German Division Of Belgian Crops

MONTREAL, Oct. 5.—Deprived of all means of livelihood, their factories closed, their shops empty and their cattle driven away to a foreign land or slaughtered to feed a foreign navy, a new scourge has now been visited on the people of Belgium, who are left behind in the territory occupied by the German troops.

Word has reached here that after having worked diligently all summer in an effort to raise crops that would help tide over the winter and allay a bit of the starvation that is the lot of the people, the Germans have now decided that one third of the crops is sufficient for the people who raised them and the balance must go to feed their conquerors.

Severe as this seems, it was only through the efforts of Mr. Herbert Hover, the American who is heading the neutral committee of the Belgian Relief Committee, that this concession was obtained. Mr. Hoover has worked indefatigably in the interests of the Belgians for over two years, giving his time, money, and energy, and receiving not a cent for his efforts. His is a shining example to those of the allied nations who are in a position to help this deserving cause, the cause that is endeavoring to save millions of aged men, cripples, women and helpless little children from death by starvation.

The third of the crops which Mr. Hoover succeeded in diverting from the Germans to the rightful owners, will assist in the food situation, but under normal conditions Belgium is obliged to import foodstuffs, so the conditions that will obtain during the coming winter are likely to be as serious—more serious in some ways—as in the past two winters. The problem now facing the commission, in addition to the providing of food to keep starvation away, is the providing of food of such nutritive qualities that it will build up the wasted tissues and repair the broken health of the thousands who have been declining in their state of health through months of underfeeding.

The problem is the greatest of the kind that has ever faced the world and it is now at a climax. Help from all quarters is necessary. Thousands of dollars and millions of tons of food are necessary to meet it. Canada is being asked to bear her portion of the responsibility that rests on the shoulders of those nations that can help.

There is a Belgian Relief Committee branch in almost every community in Canada. Two dollars and a half will keep a Belgian family a month—twenty-five dollars will keep a family a year. If not to the committee in your district then send your contribution to the treasurer, Belgian Relief Committee, 59 St. Peter St., Montreal. The money will be spent in Canada to buy Canadian products for those starving, dying people over the seas.

CAPTURE AN ENTIRE TOWN

British Troops Take Yenikeui Village in Greek Macedonia, Two Miles East of Struma

Canadian Press Special.

LONDON, Oct. 5.—British troops yesterday morning captured the entire town of Yenikeui, a village in Greek Macedonia, which lies two miles to the east of the Struma river, says a British official statement issued today. Scottish and Irish battalions especially distinguished themselves in fighting for this position, and the Bulgarans are reported to have suffered heavy losses.

Successful Fair Brought to a Close

Event at The Local Y. M. C. A. Proved Pleasing Success — About $150.00 Realized

The fair, which was held in the Y. M. C. A. on Tuesday and Wednesday under the auspices of the St Julien Chapter, I.O.D.E., proved to be in every respect most successful. There was a large attendance during yesterday and last evening, and the booths were well patronized, as was also the fish pond and the fortune telling apartments. Miss Riordon told fortunes to the delight of the patrons.

At the close of the performance last evening Mrs. (Prof.) Johnstone, who instructed the young ladies in the intricates dances of the operette, was presented with a beautiful three piece glass tea set, with silver trimmings. Mrs. (Dr.) MacColl was the recipient of a beautiful bouquet of roses. The affair was as far as finances are concerned, most gratifying, fully $150.00 being realized.

CALLS ON GOVERNMENT TO STOP BOURASSA

Montreal La Patrie Speaks of Infamous Speeches of Certain Demagogues

MONTREAL, Oct. 5—Speaking of the speeches of Henri Bourassa and Armand Lavergne, which the Messrs. Tarte's paper designates as "Infamous Work" La Patrie asks how long the government is going to allow this thing to go on with impunity, while our valiant soldiers at the firing line are waiting in vain for reinforcements which would hasten the final victory.

"In three months" La Patrie continues, "the British army has lost over 300,000 troops, and while the heroic armies of Great Britain and France are sheeding blood for the common cause certain demagogues have resumed an anti-patriotic agitation seeking with more energy than ever before to show our rural population that we are not concerned in this war, and that all we have to do is to remain quietly at home, that we owe nothing to England and await the Allied victory which is being obtained at a price of awful sacrifices."

Prisoner Guilty of Manslaughter

Jury Acquits Him of Murder Charge — Self-Defence Was Pleaded

WELLAND, Oct. 5.—Special—John Migro was tried at the Assizes yesterday on a charge of the murder of Nick Dulcie, a fellow workman on a construction gang on the Wabash Railway at Welland Junction last June. The jury brought in a verdict of not guilty of murder, but guilty of manslaughter.

Testimony for the defence claimed that the murdered man was drunk, and had first attacked Migro with a knife,, and upon this evidence the defence based its plea of self-defence. Migra killed Dulcie with a shot-gun. Sentence was postponed. W. M. German, K.C., M.P., for the defendant, and Gordon N. Shaver of Toronto, prosecuted for the Crown.

SUSPENDED SENTENCE

A young man was this morning before Judge Deroche convicted of an offence, and was given a suspended sentence of one year, on the understanding that he is to enlist for overseas service. Mr. Carnew for Crown, and Mr. Shorey for accused.

ENGLISH METROPOLIS PERFECTS PROTECTION AGAINST RAIDS

LONDON, Oct. 5.—Special—London will continue to be visited by Zeppelins despite the recent losses and the great imporvement in the capital's air defenses. This opinion was expressed to The Canadian Press by the Earl of Derby, who said:

"Raids will continue for the effect on the German people who have been taught that Zeppelins, like submarines, could bring England to her knees. Hence the ridiculous communiques and newspaper articles in Germany representing that England was terrorized and London in flames. I will not say that London is the best defended of the Allies' capitals, but I can asesrt that there has been a vast improvement, which means that other Zeppelins will be brought down when they come again."

Lord Derby expressed satisfaction with the progress of the western campaign which he declared only needed good weather to show substantial progress.

ROUMANIANS DESTROYED

Bulgarian Official Despatch to That Effect Regarding Invaders

Canadian Press Special.

LONDON, Oct. 5.—A despatch from Bucharest by way of Rome, denies the statement of the German and Bulgarian war office that Austrian monitors have destroyed a pontoon bridge across the Danube, over which the Roumanian forces passed to invade Bulgaria. It is said the passage of troops and munitions continues; the despatch also says the battle in Dobrudja is increasing in violence.

Germans and Bulgarians are suffering enormous losses. A Bulgarian official statement says the Roumanian forces which invaded Bulgaria are being destroyed.

War Office announced today that fortified position in River Karaburnu region has been captured and great losses inflicted on the Turks.

Contributions For Farewell Dinner

An Appeal to Provide 155th Batt. With a Sumptuous Banquet Before Leaving for Overseas

Special to Intelligencer)

KINGSTON, Ont., Oct. 5.—The Women's Patriotic League of Brockville, sent a cheque this morning to Dr. Evans of the Daily Standard, for one hundred dollars as a contribution to the Thanksgiving dinner fund for the soldiers in Barriefield Camp.

An appeal is being made to the citizens of Belleville and Hastings County on behalf of the 155th Battalion, and it is fully expected that Belleville and Hastings County will remember the soldier boys on this the last Thanksgiving day before going to the front. All preparations are being made for a big Thanksgiving dinner for the overseas forces in this war camp on Monday next.—The Daily Standard.

MILITARY MATTERS AT BARRIEFIELD HEIGHTS

ORDER ON DESERTIONS

Names Are Given in Orders of Men Who Deserted From Ships Going To England

Officers commanding units of the C. E. forces will be held personally responsible that no men, who are known to be absent from any ocean going boat, are enilsted in the C. E. F.

These men are all sworn in in England for the the return trip, and if they desert their ship they are liable to imprisonment.

Recruiting officers or others are not to endeavor to enlist sailors on their arrival at any port in Canada.

Any men who are already enlisted are to be immediately discharged and detained pending arrival of officials who will take them in charge and officers commanding units are to to report at once to this office the names of any such men.

RETURNING ABSENTEES

Many men who have become deserters by accident through going on leave and exceeding their passes, or by going without passes but with no intention of deserting, are now returning to their units in camp. Seven absentees have already returned to the 155th Battalion, and as all are being treated generously it is felt that all absentees will return to go overseas with their units. Any man returning within the next ten days will escape punishment beyond the loss of pay during the period of his absence. If he is arrested as a deserter after his battalion has left Barriefield camp, he is liable to a punishment of two years' imprisonment and at the end of his term can be compelled to serve out the balance of his term of enlistment. There is every inducement for the absentee and deserter to return to the fold before it is too late.

NOTES

Although living in Wisconsin, David W. Benson, upon hearing that several of his Picton friends had enlisted in the Cobourg Heavy Battery, immedaitely gave up his position and came over the line and enlisted.

Lieut.-Col. Lazier, Lieut.-Col Stewart, and R. Elliott, all of Belleville, were guestst of Lieut.-Col. Adams on Monday at the camp.

The machine gun section of the 155th Battalion has returned from its trek after attending the various fairs in Hastings and Prince Edward Counties.

Stomach Medicines Are Dangerous

DOCTORS NOW ADVISE MAGNESIA

Just how dangerous it is to indiscriminately dose the stomach with drugs and medicines is often not realized until too late. It seems so simple to swallow a dose of some special mixture or take tablets of soda, pepsin, bismuth, etc., after meals, and the folly of this drugging is not apparent until, perhaps years afterward, when it is found that gastric ulcers have almost eaten their way through the stomach walls. Regrets are then unavailing; it is in the early stages when indigestion, dyspepsia, heartburn, flatulence, etc. indicates excessive acidity of the stomach and fermentation of food contents that precaution should be taken. Drugs and medicines are unsuitable and often dangerous—they have little or no influence upon the harmful acid, and that is why doctors are discarding them and advising sufferers from indigestion and stomach trouble to get rid of the dangerous acid and keep the food contents bland and sweet by taking a little pure bisurated magnesia instead. Bisurated Magnesia is an absolutely pure anti-acid which can be readily obtained from any drug store. It is absolutely harmless, is practically tasteless and a teaspoonful taken in a little warm or cold water after meals, will usually be found quite sufficient to instantly neutralize excessive acidity of the stomach and prevent all possibility of the food fermenting.

MADOC FAIR

The attendance at the second and last day of the Madoc Fair, yesterday, was exceptionally large, in fact the number of visitors was the largest ever seen upon the grounds. The number of entries in the various classes were in exces of former years. A fine programme of events was provided and carried out to the delight of all present. The manual exercises of the machine gun section of the 155th Battalion and the exhibition of firing live ammunition from the guns, was much appreciated by all present. In the evening an entertainment was given in the hall, and there was a large attendance. A programme of a varied nature was presented.

The Seat Sale Starts Friday

For the benefit of patrons, the sale of seats for "Twin Beds" will be opened at Doyle's Drug Store to-morrow.

Try This If You Have Dandruff

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

'ALIEN SOULS" AN EXCELLENT PRODUCTOIN

The excellent production 'Alien Souls" drew a large crowd at Griffin's last night. The photoplay deals with the ever prevalent problem, should Americans marry Orientals. The leading artists are Sessue Hayakawa, the Japanese star, who is supported by Tsuru Aoki, a clever little Japanese actress. Earl Foxe, who plays the part of Lindsay, a man living on his wits and women, and Grace Benham, in the role of Mrs. Conway, a widow.

Yuri Chan (Tsuru Aoki) comes to America from the Flowery Kingdom, to obtain an American education. Sakata (Hayakawa) who is betrothed to Yuri Chan, also in America, is engaged in business as a curio dealer. Moving about in American society the girl becomes infatuated with a young American, Aleck Lindsay, who being short of money, contrives to a bogus marriage, in an effort to secure Yuri Chan's money. He is foiled, however, in the appearance of Sakatos, after a series of stirring dramatic scenes which culminate in a happy manner.

An exceedingly funny comedy of the Mr. Jack series, and Pathe news, which is especially attractive this week, is also on the programme, which will again be shown for the last time this evening.

SEAT SALE FOR "TWIN BEDS" TOMORROW

The seat sale for the engagement of "Twin Beds" at Griffin's Opera House next Tuesday night, is announced to open at Doyle's Drug Store to-morrow morning. The wonderful popularity of this gem of a comedy, not only in New York, but also in Australia and London, is said to be largely due to work of mouth advertising. Everybody who sees it advises somebody else to see it. Thus a never ending chain of patronage is formed. The appeal of "Twin Beds" is universal and irresistible. Never in the history of the theatre have audiences been known to laugh as they do in "Twin Beds." It is continuous and uproarious and like a contagion that everyone has caught. The audience is said to fairly shake and rock and quake with merriment and to keep on laughing during the steady shower of ridiculous situations that make up this irresistible comedy. Then, too, there is no small amount of genuine wit in the dialogue. The cast which A. S. Stern and Company have provided, musters a roll of well known players in the persons of Jas. Morrison, William Weston, Luis Alberni, Warren Hastings, Marguerite Risser, Antoinette Rochte, Elizabeth Stafford, Martha McGraw and others.

GRACE ELLISTON AT GRIFFIN'S TOMORROW

Metro has scored again with an unusual and intensely interesting feature picture in "Black Bear" a five part photodrama which will be seen here at Griffin's Opera House, tomorrow night and Saturday matinee and night. This picture was produced for release on the Metro Program, upon an elaborate scale, no expense being spared for either sets or in the quality of the artists engaged. An all-star cast, including Grace Elliston, Grace Valentine, Edward Brennan, and other prominent artists of the stage and screen were used to make 'Black Bear" one of the sensations of the season in filmland.

"Black Bear" contains a gripping story of the fast increasing cocaine habit among a certain class of people in New York City. This vital yet somewhat difficult subject is treated in a masterly manner, and there is an interesting love story running through the plot which is absolutely novel and new. The production contains many big scenes, the death of the man who topples out the fourth story of a pretentious home in Riverside Drive, a faithful reproduction of New York Juvenile Court, and a thrilling scene in the Supreme Court. "Black Bear" is easily the sensation of the season, and a production that causes people to remember it, long after they have seen it on the screen. Miss Elliston, who heads the stellar cast makes her screen debut in this production. As the creator of the leading female roles in "The Lion and the Mouse" and other Broadway stage successes, she is known to a host of theatre goers. On the same program with the above offering the 2nd whirl of the musty affair comedy series will be exhibited along with Pathe Gazette with its interesting review of English and European events.

teresting review of English and European events.

WHO IS RESPONSIBLE

for the health of the family? The mother, of course! She is naturally particular to give her children only the purest of internal medicines, but she may not always know that a remedy applied to the skin enters the child's system, by absorption, just as surely as a medicine that is swallowed. This is a fact, and the mother should, therefore, use only the purest ointment obtainable.

Scientific analysis has proved Zam-Buk to be absolutely pure. The great English Chemist, Mr. W. Lascelles Scott, says: "I have made an exhaustive analysis of Zam-Buk and have no hesitation in certifying its purity and its inestimable value for skin ailments and injuries."

Although the healing powers of Zam-Buk are beyond those of other ointments, it is at the same time so refined that it agrees with the most sensitive skin—even the skin of a baby. Mothers who have once used it say they cannot do without Zam-Buk.

It is best for eczema and all skin diseases, ringworm, blood-poison, scalp sores, ulcers, boils, pimples, piles, burns, scalds, cuts, etc. All druggists or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, 50c. box, 3 for $1.25.

To Free Your Skin of Hair or Fuzz

(Boudoir Secrets)

No toilet table is complete without a small package of delatone, for with it hair or fuzz can be quickly banished from the skin. To remove hairs you merely mix into a paste enough of the powder and water to cover the objectionable hairs. This should be left on the skin about 2 minutes, then rubbed off and the skin washed, when it will be found free from hair or blemish. Be sure you get genuine delatone.

FROM PTE. A. BEATON

Dear Mother:—I am going to drop you a few lines to let you know that I received the two boxes and the writing paper, also the Belleville papers. I was just going to the trenches when I got the box, and that tobacco was just the thing, but the box was all broken up. The next box you send get a tin one, so that it won't get broken, for a paper box can't stand to come so far.

We had a pretty hot time in the trenches this time. We went over and took German trenches, and say we had some time when we got over. They had enough men to eat us when we got there, but as soon as they saw us going over they started to shoot us, but when we got pretty close to their trench you would see them jump out of their trench and throw up their hands and run to meet us, and some of their bombers and snipers were the only ones to show any fight. I got down in a shell hole half way over. I saw a German bomber so I got my rifle going at him, and I soon stopped him. He will never throw another bomb, and they were calling "Canadians, mercy, mercy," and there were quite a number of them wounded or killed in the trench, and as soon as we got in the trench if we saw a German that could walk we told him to give up his rifle and if he refused to give it up we shot him. We captured quite a number of them, and those who got away ran for half a mile, but we put the machine guns on them and we were all shooting at them, but there was only a few of them who escaped. About two o'clock that night I was on guard and I could hear them calling. I guess they were shot while they were running away, but the ones that came back gave themselves up and we let them come in. I thought we were going to have a hard time when we got there, but it was easy, and all the boys were on the job. When the Captain said "Go, boys," they all jumped out, and over they went but our Captain was wounded before he got over. When we were coming out of the trenches I came across Scottie Mercer. I saw a McDougall fellow, and I asked if Scottie was with him, and he ran down and told Scottie that I was having a rest out on the road, and Scottie was on drill, so ran up to see me, and I went back that night to see him.

You were asking me about what money I was getting here. I suppose it would be better to know. We get twenty cents a day here and we got $15 in England, so if anything should happen you will know.

My old friend Caddick was killed with a shell. He lived on 26 Earl Street. I was thinking about writing to his wife and let her know, but she will find it out before my letter gets there, but it might give her more courage if I told her how he was killed, and buried with honors.

I have not been touched yet, and I am feeling fine, and I hope these few lines will find you the same. I have not much news to tell you. We got a few new helmets and I thought I would take one out with me. I was using a German rifle when I was on guard, and was shooting Germans with their own rifles. I would like to send Joy one of the rifles, but it would never get home, so I had to leave it. They had lots of bottled drinks and cigars in the trenches, and we had some time smoking their cigars. I got a couple of his "batches" I may send home, and a gas helmet. They may never get there, but if I live to get out I will have lots of time to get more to take home. I guess I will close for now, as I have more letters to write.

Your loving son,
ALEX. BEATON.

FROM REV. BISHOP A McDONALD

Victoria, B. C. Sept. 20 1916

Dear Cousin,—

For such you are by marriage. I have just offered the Holy Mass for the first time this morning for the repose of the soul of your darling boy.

I can feel in your letter the heart-throbs of your love for him. It is hard to part with him, but God knows best. He could scarce have died more nobly than in the service for King and Country. I say "scarcely" for there is one death more noble and that is martyrdom for the Faith Indeed to die in the service of the King in this world was next to martyrdom: the issue at was next to martyrdom: the issue at stake is so sacred, justice and right. I remember Isabell very well; not your Isabell, but the one after whom she is named. What can I wish for yours but that she should follow in the footsteps of her grandmother and be good and true as she was. Love to all.

Yours sincerely
Rt. Rev. Bishop.
Alex McDonald

KEITH MERRIN

Somewhere in France, Sept. 18.

Mr. T. H. Marshall,
60 Emily Street,
Belleville, Ont.

Dear Uncle and Auntie:—Well, here I am all well, and the rest the same. We left the base on Wednesday at 7.30 P.M., and had a seven mile walk to the train, and left that place at 1 A.M., and got to another place at 7, where we went to a rest camp till 4.30 P.M. It was quite a large place. We were on the train from 4.30 P.M. until the next day at 12.30 P.M., where we put up for the night at a rest camp. The country is like Canada in nearly everything. The crops all along the line looked good. Of course, it was all cut.

Saturday morning we left the rest camp at 8.0 in wagons, and got to the D.A.C. at 4.30 P.M., and had a good night's sleep, even if the guns were going all night. All the others were put on fatigues and driving, but I was lucky enough to get a job as telephonist, but I guess it will be only for two or three days, as I am only relieving a fellow.

Well, I have been under shell fire, but have still to get my full baptism of same. However, I didn't feel a bit different and you don't feel the way you expect to when the shells are going over you. They make a noise like a match does, when you throw it.

I am within five miles walk of McKee, Davis and a lot more Belleville fellows. I saw Porky Thomas and Clarence Bowen and about a dozen others from home last night.

I do four hours on duty and twelve hours off; so you see it is hard work receiving and sending messages.

I heard to-day from one of the boys of Jimmy Varley's battalion, that he has gone to England wounded, but not serious.

We are doing good work on this front, as you will no doubt see by the papers, and after it gets dark it has all the 24th of May celebrations beat to nothing and certainly is a grand sight, but not a grand noise.

I don't know when I will be sent to a battery, but until then I will be with the D.A.C. I may be with them for months and probably a few days.

Remember me to all. Am writing this in my bivy, which I made yesterday out of ammunition boxes. It is about 3 feet high, 2 feet wide and 6 feet long, and is small but comfortable enough. I sleep on boxes with my overcoat for a cover. It has been raining all day and still at it, but up to to-day we have had lovely weather, but cold early in the mornings.

We were very lucky yesterday, as all the draft drew 20 francs each, which is $4.00. The money here is very easy to get on to, as it runs like Canadian money, in fives.

Well, I can't say any more, although I could write about twenty more pages. I will close for this time, with love to you both. Write often, and please send a few cigars.

Your loving nephew,
KEITH.

WILLIAM POST KILLED

The following communication which explains itself, was received by Mrs. Post, whose husband Corp. William Post, a stretcher bearer in the 4th C. M. R. was killed by a German sniper while in pursuit of his duties.

Sept 19 1916

Mrs. Wm. Post,
Belleville, Ont.

Dear Mrs. Post,—

It is with the greatest sorrow that I have to advise you that your husband was killed on Sept. 13 1916, being sniped by one of the enemy. No man was better liked in my company than the late Corp. Post, he was always there, ready to attend the wounded where the fire was the greatest. His position called him to his duties in the zone, but he never hesitated when called upon to assist or take charge, men of his courage are few and far between. We buried your husband behind the lines and had service by the chaplain of our company. I cannot tell you the place just now but at some future date I will be able to name it.

The men in the line now have very few personal effects but whatever there is will be forwarded on to you.

Any further information I can get will be given with the best of my ability.

Again asking you to accept from the officers and men of C. Co'y the deep sorrow they feel toward the loss of Corp. Post. I remain,

Yours Sincerely
A. S. Hamilton, Capt.

Mr. John Killorin and Mrs. J. Breautt spent Saturday in Napanee.

Mrs. M. Yorke and daughter Mae, have returned home from Ivanhoe.

Mrs. Robt. McLaughlin and son Donald, have returned home after spending a few days with relatives at Gilead.

Mr. Fraser Stinson and Miss M. McLaughlin visited at Mr. Robert Gilmour's on Sunday.

Mrs. A. A. Allen has returned home from Orillia, after spending three months with her daughter, Mrs. F. Cook.

The Call To Breakfast

Has a new appeal for those who awake to a breakfast of

New Post Toasties

These new corn flakes have a unique deliciousness because of their self-developed flavor and improved form. The flavor is the true essence of choice, ripe Indian corn. Unlike ordinary "corn flakes," the New Toasties do not depend upon cream and sugar for their palatability.

Try some dry—they're good that way and the test will demonstrate their flavor. Then try some with cream or good milk. Note that New Post Toasties are not "chaffy" in the package; and that they don't mush down when cream is added.

New Post Toasties are known by the tiny "bubbles" on each flake, produced by the quick, intense heat of the new process of making. They come in a wax-sealed package that preserves their oven crispness and delightful flavor—the most perfect corn flakes ever produced.

Fry's Pure Cocoa

NO need to ask if you want your little girl to be bonny, plump and rosy-cheeked. Of course you do! Yet little folks' appetites are "finicky" and sometimes turn from ordinary foods. That is just the time to use FRY'S Pure Cocoa. It makes a delicous food beverage that no child can resist and its rich nourishment is absorbed by the little body as eagerly as the flowers drink in the spring rains. All good grocers sell it, but, of course, remember

SPECIAL POSTAL DELIVERY

The one suggestion which the Montreal Journal of Commerce would offer, in commenting favorably upon the efficiency of the Federal Post Office Department—a suggestion with which we quite agree—is the necessity of effecting an international special delivery service, that the addresses in the United States may receive his message at the earliest possible hour. Under the present system the special delivery stamp attached to a letter posted in the United States, addressed to a person in Canada, secures no advantage when the letter reaches the place of its destination. The letter is treated precisely as a letter not so specially prepared. The same condition is found in the reverse operation. The Canadian correspondent who puts a special delivery stamp on a letter addressed to an American city wastes his money. There is no special delivery under such circumstances. It should be possible to make an arrangement with the United States Post Office Department for an exchange of special delivery facilities . There is, of course, a special delivery connected with such delivery. The ten cents paid on the letter posted in the United States goes into the American treasury. Canada receives no part of it, yet Canada has to pay the cost of delivery to the Canadian citizen. This might be an argument against the suggestion if it could be assumed that correspondence of this kind would be one-sided. But surely such an assumption would be unwarranted. In the case of the ordinary delivery, letters posted in the United States, addressed to Canada, pay a tribute of two cents to the American treasury, while the Canadian Post Office has to pay the expense of delivery in Canada. This, however, is not deemed a burden, because the United States postal authorities reciprocate by delivering letters from Canada on which they have received no postage. Why will not the same reason apply to the case of special delivery letters? The subject is worthy of the attention of the Post Office Departments of both countries. A reciprocal handling of special delivery letters is much to be desired and there does not seem to be any good reason aaginst it.

AN ENIGMATIC ATTITUDE

The assertion of Mr. Albert Ballin, head of the famous Hamburg-America line of steamships that "This insane war might have been avoided if the English statesmen had acted wisely," may readily taken up from an opposite viewpoint.

"To speak of the war as "insane," and to do it without any limiting of the characterization to the antagonists of the speaker's country, is, for a German as eminent as Herr Ballin, to bring criticism dangerously close to those at home who have been declaring Germany's part in it holy because defensive. It would seem inadvisable for any European, and most of all for any German, to call the war as a whole "insane." To do it contradicts the assertions that each of the nations involved makes it its own behalf, and at the same time it vitiates all the arguments on which they depend for the sympathy of the countries still remaining out of the struggle and officially neutral.

Only the combatants that are in the wrong are open to the charge of insanity, and nothing could be more unjust or base than to join them all in a common condemnation Surely they are not mad who offer their lives for the preservation of national existence and national liberties. Some of us think the Allies have done this magnificent thing, and others give the Central Empires like credit, but we do not talk of "this insane war" unless we belong to the group that calls all war indefensible and would prefer it to any sort of peace.

CHANADA'S SHORT CROPS

The latest returns received by the Canadian census authorities with reference to this year's crops of wheat and other cereals in the Dominion, indicate a serious shortage. In a despatch from United States Consul General Foster at Ottawa to the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, the final figures show a crop of wheat amounting to 168,811,000 bushels this year from 10,085,300 acres, against a yield of 376,303,000 bushels last year from 12,986,400 acres.

The great bulk of the Canadian wheat and oat crop was absorbed by Great Britain last year owing to the demand for military purposes. The shortage this year will necessarily be made up from the crop in the United States and possibly from Russia. Of the area of Spring wheat, 13.7 per cent. has failed entirely, so that the falling off of winter wheat will not be compensated for from the Spring wheat crop.

The greater part of this year's crop, however, is Spring wheat coming from Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta. The average yield in those provinces show how the wheat crop has failed this year. The yield per acre in Manitoba was 10½ bushels, in Saskatchewan 16, and in Alberta 24½. The rye crop in Canada this year is 1,990,800 bushels, against 2,394,100 bushels last year. The barley crop this year totals 34,408,000 bushels, against 53,331,300 bushels last year. The out yield is 341,602,000 bushels, compared with 520,103,000 bushels lat year.

Journal of Commerce:—The exhibition of goods of German and Austrian manufacture now being shown in Toronto, should give our manufacturers an opportunity to inspect at first hand the methods followed by these countries in catering to foreign trade. Several factors are clearly portrayed. In all cases the goods were made to suit the customers and wants of the people, whether in Africa, or Asia or elsewhere. Truly, much of the stuff is "junk," but the evidences are just as apparent in the high class goods The textile exhibits should be most valuable. Here price terms and credits have played an important role and the Germans appear to have excelled in these particulars. Many valuable suggestions are contained in the exhibits.

Montreal Gazette:—A Toronto newspaper intimates that there would be very little industrial activity in Montreal if it were not for the business of supplying whiskey to the thirsty folks in Ontario. This of course, is not the case. Everyone knows that there are more distilleries in Ontario than in Quebec or any other province in Canada, and that the product of some of them is shipped all over the world in large quantities annually. Montreal's industries are numerous and embrace practically every line of activity. Their capital is in the hundreds of millions and they give employment to tens of thousands of persons. They attract workers from Europe and from the United States, and from Toronto, too. And the mills and factories of every description are growing in number and size all the time. It is a growth that even war cannot stop.

Current Comment

The newspapers of the West from day to day contain interesting sidelights on what an Ottawa paper has called the after effects of the big drunk.

Bethmann-Hollweg need not give himself any unnecessary worry about hanging German "statesman." The allies are going to attend to that in due time.—Halifax Chronicle.

In the United Kingdom, where the war contracting business has assumed enormous proportions, the criminal courts are quite busy with cases of fraud, both on the part of contractors and Government agents.

Despite the fact that President Wilson spent much time in finding nice phrases for his notes to the Huns in Germany, he didn't mince words in addressing the bunch of hyphens at home.—Ottawa Free Press.

The Red Cross Club has passed the 10,000 mark by 2,000, and the goal now is a membership of 15,000. As each member is pledged to contribute $1 a month during the war, it is plain that the Red Cross is to benefit in great degree by this system of regular contributions.

General Joffre has seen fit to remind his armies that Verdun has been relieved and twenty-five villages reconquered as a result of the last three months' fighting on the Somme. His message shows that France is slowly but surely being freed from the grip of the invader.

In three months the British losses on all fronts totalled 307,169, which is not far short of the strength of the entire force Canada has enlisted for this war. There should be no slackening of the recruiting movement until we have 500,000 men under arms.—Mail and Empire.

Bakers of London and western Ontario in session at London, Ont., Tuesday night decided to ask the Attorney-General's Department for an amendment to the Ontario bread act whereby bakers may turn out loaves of any size they desire, so long as the weight of the loaf is marked clearly on the label.

In And About The City

BUILDING PERMITS

For the month of September the building permits issued by Mr. J. W. Evans, City Engineer totalled $17,230 which is a considerable increase over the previous month.

REPLANKING BRIDGE

The work of replanking the lower bridge is in progress and in consequence is closed up for traffic. An effort is being made to have the work completed for Saturday's traffic.

ONLY A SCARE

Last evening the police answered a call to a house on the corner of Stone and Baldwin Streets it being reported that a suspicious looking character was about the premises. The officer responding to the call was unable to find any person about the place.

NEW RECORD IN CHEESE

At the Peterboro Cheese Board yesterday 1882 boxes were offered for sale. The bidding started at 20cts and reached 21 13-16 cts. at which figure J. A. Kerr of Belleville secured the whole board.

NEWSPAPER CHANGES HANDS

T. F. Matthews, of the Matthews, Blackwell Company, and A. H. Strattron, formerly director of the Peterboro Examiner purchased the Peterboro Review at a liquidator's sale before the Local Master of that city.

CAUSE OF CROP FAILURE

TWEED, Oct. 4—William Beatty, Flinton, returned Saturday from a trip to Morden, Man., where he had been visiting his son, Charley, who is farming in that section. He reports that the harvest is light there. The farmers there believe that the heat of July 23rd. was responsible for the failure of their wheat crop. The heat was something terrific and the grain was just at that stage where it was most easily affected, and that it was practically cooked.

THURLOW BOY WOUNDED

Samuel Pope, a resident of Thurlow Township, has received word that his son Pte. J. S. Pope has been wounded at the front and is at present an inmate of an hospital in England. This is the second occasion that Pte. J. S. Pope has been hit by the Huns, on the first occasion he was struck in the back and is now suffering from wounds in the hip. He enlisted at Medicine Hat, Alta., and left with the second Contingent. His many friends in the community will wish for a speedy recovery from his wounds.

WEDDING BELLS.

FROST—WILSON

In Trinity Methodist Church parsonage at 1.30 yesterday afternoon, Janet Roberts Wilson, daughter of Rev. J. P. Wilson, Pastor of Trinity Church, Peterborough, was united in marriage to Major the Rev. Harry A. Frost, B. A B. D, son of Mr and Mrs James Frost, Roseneath, and recently returned to Canada, after service as chaplain in England, France and the Dardanelles The ceremony was performed by the bride's father, assisted by her uncle, the Rev. W. D. P. Wilson of Belleville There were no attendants

The bride was becomingly attired in pussey willow taffeta with lace trimmings and wore the customary bridal veil, and also the groom's gift, a platinum pendant set with diamonds She carried a prayer book with ribbon streamers caught with sweetheart roses.

The wedding music was played by Mr John Crane, organist of Trinity Church and Mr. Douglas Carlisle sang the after ceremony-solo. They received gold cuff links as gifts from the groom.

The ceremony concluded and congratulations having been conveyed to the bride and grom, a wedding repast was served.

The invited guests from outside points included Lady Hughes, Lindsay; Mrs. John Barr, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Flavelle, Lindsay; Mr and Mrs. F. W. Sutcliffe, Lindsay; Miss Pearl Campbell, Miss Roberta Bell Napanee; Miss Catherine Rowse, Toronto, Mr. and Mrs. James Frost, Roseneath; and Miss Mary Frost, Toronto; parents and sister of the groom; Mr. and Mrs. F. E. O'Flynn and Capt. E. D. O'Flynn, Belleville; Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Madole, Napanee; Capt. Cameron Wilson, and Mrs. Wilson, Napanee, brother and sister-in-law of the bride; Col. Wilson, cousin of bride; Lieut. D. Huycke, city; Lieut. S. Walsh, city; Sergt. Fred Jamieson, Bariefield Camp.

Major and Mrs. Wilson left on the afternoon C. P. R. express for a wedding trip, the bride wearing an oxford gray travelling costume with moleskin furs and taupe velvet hat. In two weeks' time Major Frost will return overseas and will be accompanied by Mrs. Frost. The best wishes of a wide circle of friends and acquaintances go with them.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Letters to the editor
Dear Sir,—

There seems to be considerable grievances both from the property owners and some of the aldermen about the oiling of certain streets and from reports I come in for all the blame. Now to make the matter clear, the oiling of streets was done by bylaw under the Local Improvement Act and all of the City Council concurred in what was being done. The Bylaws were drawn up by the City Solicitor and passed by the council in the regular way, also published in the papers.

The last tank of oil was wired for by the City Engineer and the frontage cost was also made up by him. Therefore, any person having any grievance in regard to the same had better take up the matter with the Engineer.

The last tank of oil cost 7¼ cents per gallon and it takes about 3-4 of gallon per square yard.

C. Whelan
Chairman Public Works

No Man's Land.

The term "no man's land" has sprung into prominence during the war. It means, of course, the "dead" ground between any two lines of advanced trenches, the enemy's and ours. There is, however, another kind of no man's land, delimited and guaranteed by treaties. One of these curious strips of neutral territory stretches across the isthmus that connects the Rock of Gibraltar with Spain. It is about half a mile wide, and our sentries and the Spanish sentries face one another by day and by night, year in and year out, from opposite sides. The territory in between these two chains of sentinels belongs neither to Britain nor to Spain.

Who wrote "Old Mother Hubbard"?

Probably very few people could say who wrote the famous "Mother Hubbard" lines, and fewer still know where the writer is buried. The author was Sarah Catherine Martin, and she was buried at Loughton, in Essex. Miss Martin was born in January, 1768, and was about thirty-seven years of age when she wrote the story of the old lady and her dog. Tradition says the original "Old Mother Hubbard" was the housekeeper at Kitley Hall, Yealmpton, the residence of Miss Martin's married sister. At any rate, it was when on a visit to her sister at Kitley that the famous rhyme was penned. The original publication is still at Kitley, and a cupboard is pointed out as being "the" cupboard.

GRIP TIGHTENS IN MONASTIR FIGHT

British, French and Serbians Make Rapid Advance--Roumanian Troops Retire Bulgarians Claim Victory North of The Danube River

LONDON, Oct. 6.—Special.—While the battle in the Dobrudja still hangs in the balance, the allied forces are sweeping forward along the whole Macedonian front. The Serbians are now only eight miles from Monastir. The British have established themselves firmly on the east bank of the Struma, while the French are prpearing for a blow along the Vardar.

Mystery surrounds the fate of the Roumanian troops who crossed into Bulgaria. The only certain thing is that the operation has come to an abrupt halt. Bucharest admits these forces have been withdrawn to the northern bank of the Danube. But Sofia officially claims the routing completely of 15,000 troops who crossed and killing or capturing most of them.

On the Dobrudja battle depends in large part the conduct of the allied offensive in the Balkans. Mackensen apparently is hard pressed, for the Russians are now massed in force against him, and with the Roumanianians are battering at the German line incessantly. The allied troops took thirteen guns in to-day's fighting. This indicates that the tide is still with the allies.

If Mackensen is defeated, despite the stiff resistance of his troops, the allied hammer and anvil can be applied to Bulgaria. That has been the whole tendency of the operations in the Balkans: a drive southward from the Dobrudja by the Russians and a thrust northward by Sarrail, catching the enemy between.

The southern movemeny seems to be moving into full swing. On both flanks of Monastir the allied forces are advancing.

Disastrous Fire in Lindsay Produce Plant

Flavelle Cold-Storage Plant, With $250,000 Worth of Goods Consumed

LIDNSAY, Oct. 5.—A serious blow to the produce exporting business of the town occurred about 4 o'clock this morning, when a fire was discovered in the extensive cold-storage plant and egg business of Flavelle's, Limited, on King Street. The entire equipment of the Fire Department was soon on the ground, and at every available point of vantage streams of water poured on to the doomed structure.

A number of box cars on a Grand Trunk siding in close proximity to the burning buildings were quickly removed. They were loaded, and said to contain some $45,000 worth of produce for early shipment. It is understood that the buildings were filled with produce almost to capacity, and shipment for the European market had been delayed only pending the arrival of output from American and Canadian agencies of the firm. It is said that the warehouse contained more than $250,000 worth of produce collections which would soon have been on their way to the English market. The plant was valued at $50,000.

An explosion occurred in the ammonia plant during the progress of the fire, the force of which blew the door of the engine-house across the tracks to the river.

It is impossible to get even an approximate estimate of the loss at midnight, or the amount of insurance. The firemen are still fighting the fire, which has broken out afresh, and threatens other property in the vicinity. From the nature of the construction of the buildings it was an exceedingly hard fire to fight.

The Peterboro' Fire Brigade came here by special train to-night and relieved the local fire-fighters, who were almost exhausted by their work of fighting the flames from 4.30 a.m. They came by special train, bringing their apparatus.

Chief of the local brigade tonight conveyed his thanks to the Peterboro' firemen who made such a prompt response to the call for assistance.

SECOND BOND ISSUE PLANNED FOR SMALL CANADIAN INVESTORS

Denominations From Ten Dollars Up With Interest of Approximately Five Per Cent.—Plan is Announced at Ottawa—Big Gain Recorded in Dominion Revenue

OTTAWA, Oct., 6—Special—In a statement isued today by the Finance Department announcing the satisfactory condition of Dominion trade and revenue, and urging on the public individual thrift as well as individual effort to increase the production of wealth the anouncement is made that opportunity will shortly be given for the investment of small savings in Dominion debenture stock.

It is understood that the Government intends to offer bonds of denominations from ten dollars up, which can be purchased through the banks, and on which an interest of approximately five per cent. will be earned, redeemable in five years.

The subscriptions to the last two war loans for over two hundred million dollars have in the main came from the larger investors, in amounts of a thousand dollars or upwards. The issue of the bonds of small denominations is designed to attract investment for several hundred thousand men and women who have comparatively small amounts to invest in something that will both be safe and patriotic. This scheme has already been adopted with surprising success in England where purchasers of Government bonds from one pound sterling up get 4 1-2 per cent interest on their money.

CUNARD LINER SUNK BY SUB.

Franconia Is Destroyed In The Mediterranean Sea — Twelve Men Missing

LONDON, Oct. 6—Special—The admiralty announces that the Cunard Steamer Franconia, employed for transport duty, was sunk in the Mediteranian yesterday by an enemy submarine. The steamer had no troops abroad. Twelve men of the crew of 302 are missing.

According to the latest available reports, the Franconia was being used as a British transport. She was a vessel of 18,150 tons gross, and was built in 1910. Her maiden voyage was between Liverpool and Boston in February, 1911.

Bears Making Headway Toward Lemberg — Counter Attacks Spirited, But Fruitless

Canadian Press Special.

PETROGRAD, Oct. 6.—Russian troops have made headway on the Galician front in their campaign for Lemberg, according to to-day's war office announcement, capturing Austro-German positions in the district south of Brzezany, southeast of Galicia's capital. Counter attacks are holding up the Russian offensive along the line to the north. Russian troops are continuing their offensive against the German and Bulgarian forces in Dobudja, says an official statement. They took some three hundred prisoners yesterday.

Last Night Was Characterized by Reciprocal Artillery Activity Enemy Does Some Bombarding

Canadian Press Special.

PARIS, Oct. 6.—Official statement—North of the Somme the night was characterized by reciprocal artillery activity. In the sector of Queennes vieres one of our reconnaissance parties went forward as far as the enemy's supporting trenches, and bombarded it with grenades. In the region of Verdun there was fairly great activity on both sides. The enemy bombarded Polvre hall and Laufee wood in the forest of Apremont. Our artillery dispersed a working party in Mullot wood.

FIERCE HUN ATTACKS FAIL

General Foch's Troops Press Toward East and Capture Nine Heavy Guns

LONDON Oct. 6—Special—The Germans yesterday delivered numerous counter-attacks in strength along a great part of the front north of the Somme. Their artillery fire is also becoming heavier new supplies of ammunition are being brought up.

Despite their strenous efforts however the British and French lines last night are unchanged, except for some local advances made by the French in the Morval sector. Here Foch's troops have pressed farther to the eastward, in the region of the Peronne- Bapaume high road, and have taken nine heavy guns.

The man in question stole a suit of clothes from a well known young Kingstonian. He then sold the suit to a mariner on board one of the local coal schooners. His next job was to steal the suit and other clothing from the mariner, and now both the clothes and the man are missing.

BRUTAL MURDER IN TOWNSHIP OF MADOC

Walter Montgomery, a Middle-Aged Farmer, Discovered in Drive House With Skull Crushed by Blow Robbery—Evidently Purpose of Murderer—Authorities Notified of Deed

Yesterday morning, the body of Walter Montgomery, a middle aged farmer, was found in the drive house on his farm, which is situated on lot 7, tenth concession of Madoc. Upon examination the skull of the unfortunate man was found to have been dealt a severe blow, inflicted by some blunt instrument, in the hands of an unknown person. The victim, had no faith in banks, and kept his money in a purse suspended from his neck on a strap, which he wore inside his clothing. The strap was severed and the money is missing, robbery undoubtedly being the motive of the foul crime. Montgomery was fifty-five years of age, being a bachelor of somewhat peculiar and eccentric habits, and resided alone in a wretched hovel, on his hundred-acre farm near the Sulphide mines, in the vicinity of Queensboro.

He was last seen alive on Tuesday of this week, W. J. Moorecraft, a neighbor saw him on that day, but yesterday nothing was seen of him and it was suspected that something was wrong. Yesterday morning, Moorecraft notified Joseph Montgomery and Frank McMullen, brother and brother-in-law of the murdered man, and the three made a search of the premises. When found Montgomery was in his little driving shed. A heavy abrasion on his skull indicated foul play. His body was clothed in his usual working suit, and was lying beside a bag of apples. He was probably stooping over sorting out apples when the blow was struck. A number of irons were lying around the shed any of which might have been used for dealing the blow.

Dr. Harper, coroner of Madoc was summoned immediately on discovery of the body. An autospy was performed and disclosed two contusions and a fracture at the back of the skull.

A jury was empanelled with Wm. McMecham as foreman. On viewing the remains the jury adjourned until Monday next for the taking of evidence.

County Crown Attorney Carnew of this city was notified,, and no doubt detectives will be detailed to work upon the case at once.

ALLIES CONSOLIDATE ALL GROUND GAINED ON MACEDONIAN FRONT

Canadian Press Special

LONDON, Oct. 6.—Official statement from Macedonian front. On the Struma front yesterday and on the preceding night the enemy showed no activity. Our troops have now consolidated all ground gained. Total prisoners captured in recent operations amount to three officers and 339 men.

This morning our artillery commenced the bombardment of Nevolyen, but after a short time the enemy was seen evacuating the town and it was occupied by us without loss.

A Bulgarian official statement received this morning says:

"An enemy battalion attempted an advance from Orljak bridgehead toward Nevolyen village but failed before our fire. The same Bulgarian statement says all efforts of the Russians and Roumanians to advance on Dobrudja front have resulted in failure.

MILITARY MATTERS AT BARRIEFIELD HEIGHTS

NATIONALITY AND RELIGION OF THE MEN OF THE 155TH BATTALION

Returns recently made to headquarters of the nationality and religion of the 155th Battalion of Belleville show that there are in the battalion 704 Canadians, 208 English, 26 Scotch, 11 Irish, 21 Americans, 3 Italians 1 Swiss, 2 Russians. In religion, a religious census shows the following: Church of England, 310; Methodists, 309; Roman Catholics, 121; Presbyterian, 116; Baptist, 13; Salvation Army, 10; Plymouth Brethren, 10; Disciples, 4. The Methodists are in the majority in the 155th with 392 adherents out of a strength of 976 men of all ranks. In nationality Canadians lead with 704 out of a strength of 976, and even in a unit recruited largely in the rural districts of Hastings and Prince Edward counties there are 208 Englishmen. The 21st Battalion recruited here had 753 Englishmen in its ranks.

With such a mixture in nationality and religious persuasion, the 155th Battalion enjoys immunity from national and religious wrangle, and all are united for one great and glorious cause.

GONE TO THE MOWAT HOSPITAL

Sergt. Charlie Gibson who has been in charge of the camp detention for some time, has been detailed for duty at the Mowat Memorial Hospital, and has taken over his duties as Sergeant in charge. "Charlie" who is well known in this district belongs to Belleville and has served his country on several occasions, and when there was no fighting to do for John Bull "Charlie" has done a little for Uncle Sam. In the present war he was wounded and invalided home. It is felt that all such jobs should go to returned soldiers.

LIEUT.-COL BARRAGER REMEMBERED

Yesterday afternoon, Lieut.-Col. Barrager received from the captains who have just completed the Field Officers' Course, a fine present in the form of a beautiful clock, and Major Porter of the I.S.I. staff, received a handsome case of pipes. Lieut.-Col Barrager is commandant of the Infantry School of Instruction, and the officers wanted to remind him and Major Porter that they appreciated the hard and honest work being done by the staff of the school. The presentation was a big surprise to both officers and is much appreciated.

WEIGHT, AGE, and HEIGHT OF 155TH

In averaging the height, weight and age of the men of the 155th Battalion the unit has an excellent showing. The average weight of the men of this battalion is 142 pounds, the average height five feet six inches, and the average age is twenty-four and a half years. The 155th has 10 qualified lieutenants among its non-coms and men, whom in case of casualties can be immediately promoted.

BAND CONCERT IN THE PARK

A farewell band concert will be given in MacDonald Park next Wednesday night by the band of the 155th battalion, and citizens will have a chance to hear this musical organization in a good concert program. This will be a farewell concert, and the last chance that Kingstonians will have to hear this band which has a reputation honestly earned.

NOTES

Majors Allen and Cook and Lieut. Allen, 155th Battalion, are recruiting for the battalion in Hastings County.

Only 125 rations were drawn Wednesday for the 155th Batt. owing to the fact that most of the Battalion is on leave.

"BLACK FEAR" AT GRIFFIN'S TO-NIGHT

The feature photoplay offering at Griffin's Opera House to-night and Saturday night, and at the Palace Theatre, Saturday matinee, is "Black Fear," a five part story of absorbing interest.

"Black Fear" is mounted on an elaborate scale, and an all-star cast, headed by Grace Elliston, the noted stage star, who will be seen in the stellar role. The other prominent artists include Grace Valentine, Edward Brennan, Paul Sverton, and John Tansey, the phenominal boy actor. The story which is one of the most sensational features ever produced for the Metro feature corporation. The principal theme concerns the increasing use of cocaine in New York City and the menace it is proving to society. The subject is handled in a masterly and highly interesting manner. There is a pretty love story running through the feature and a thrilling climax in a big court room scene. John W. Noble directed the picture, and it is said he considers it one of the best of the many subjects he has produced for the screen. On the same program with the above offering will be the 2nd whirl of the musty suffer comedy series, which affords 15 minutes of hilarious laughter. Pathe Gazette with its interesting review of English and European events will also be exhibited.

"TWIN BEDS" HERE TUESDAY

The seat sale opened at Doyle's Drug Store this morniing for Salisbury Field and Margaret Mayo's brilliant comedy, "Twin Beds" aptly described as "Mirth's Marathon Winner," which comes to Griffin's Opera House next Tuesday night under the direction of A. S. Stern and Company, direct from a solid year's run in New York, where it played to the largest average audiences ever assembled in a metropolitan playhouse. It has also to its credit six months in Australia and has already reached its second year in London. Laughter is said never to leave off in "Twin Beds," it is a riot almost all the time, a tornado of harum-scarum fun. "Twin Beds" is just one uproarious joke. It concerns itself with the harrowing experience of three couples who live in a large and fashionable apartment house, and, through the first friendliness of one of their number, suddenly find that, try as they may, they cannot escape each other. In the scramble for peace and privacy, both of which recede steadily as the plot unfolds, the characters are intensely amusing. An ideally balanced cast has been provided for "Twin Beds" by Stern and Company, prominent among whom are James Morrison, William Weston, Luis Alberni, Warren Hastings, Marguerite Risser, Antoinette Rochte, Elizabeth Stafford, Martha McGraw, and others.

TORONTO

Dear Madam:—I have been asked to place before the women of Ontario the appeal for a contribution to supplement the Duchess of Connaught's "Prisoners of War Fund," Her Royal Highness having graciousy approved of this form of farewell, in war time, rather than a personal gift as had been at first suggested to her.

Accordingly a meeting of representatives from the leading Women's Societies with branches throughout the Province was held at the Parliament Buildings, Toronto, to-day, at which the proposal was unanimously agreed to; and also that the officers of each society should undertake to collect subscriptions from its members, remitting to Clarence Bogert, Esq., General Manager, Dominion Bank, Toronto, who was appointed Honorary Treasurer.

In order to give every woman in the Province an opportunity to participate in this most praiseworthy object sums of money from women not connected with any contributing society may be sent direct to the Honorary Treasurer, or deposited with the local bank or Post Office.

Should war conditions arise on account of which the whole amount of this supplementary contribution shall not be required for the relief of Prisoners of War, it is understood that Her Royal Highness shall be free to apply such surplus as she may deem best for the benefit of Canadian soldiers.

The subscription will be closed on the 13th of October next.

Mrs. Arthur Van Koughnet, 238 College Street, Toronto, was appointed Hon. Sec., and all correspondence, but not subscriptions, should be sent to her.

The good accomplished by this fund has been inestimable and I feel sure this appeal to the women of Canada President for the Province of Ontario. will receive a cordial and prompt response.

Yours very sincerely,
LENA M. HENDRIE.

MELANCHOLIC WOMAN COMMITTED SUICIDE

TORONTO, Oct. 4.—Mrs. Sarah Cohen, aged 28 years, yesterday committed suicide by hanging herself from a bed post in her bedroom at 247 Markham Street. Her body was discovered by a relative, Harry Cohen, who had come to visit her. The woman had been suffering from melancholia for some time past and left a note saying that she intended to take her life and directing that all her personal effects be divided between her two children, aged three years and six months respectively. The body was removed to the Morgue where the coroner disposed of the case as one o fsuicide.

LITERARY NOTES

ROD AND GUN

"In "The Outlaw" in the October number of Rod and Gun Magazine which is now on the news-stands, H. C. Haddon gives some intimate details in the life of a family of wolves, from the birth of the cubs up till the time when one of their number became a famous hunter and a destroyer of cattle on the ranch of a Western farmer. In 'A Bull of Triple Creek" A. Ray Giddings gives a dramatic account of a fight between two bull moose, the human element being supplied by the two trappers and a woman, the wife of one of the trappers, who witness the encounter between the two rival bulls, and one of whom is narrowly rescued from death. The Light that Saved, Camp Magic, On the Trail of the Wounded Bull Moose, A Story of Eggs and Skins, and other articles besides the regular departments, constitute an interesting issue for the sportsman whose thoughts at this time of the year are turning to the opening of the big game season. ## ANOTHER BELLEVILLE BOY IS WOUNDED

Mrs. E. Miller, residing on Dunbar street, Belleville, this morning received an official message from the Record Office, Ottawa, stating that her son, Pte. John Miller, was on September 28th, admitted to the Southampton Hospital, England, suffering from gunshot wound in chest.

The young private above referred to enlisted in the 21st Kingston Battalion, with other Belleville boys. He left for overseas in May, 1915, and had been in the trenches for some time. His many friends in Belleville will hope that the wound received is not of a serious nature. Miss Lila Miller, a sister of the unfortunate young soldier, is an employee of the Intelligencer Office.

DEVICE MAKES BODY PHOTOGRAPH ITSELF

By British Discovery Internal Organs are Pictured in Way Not Possible with X-ray

The new discovery says the Journal appears to succeed just where X-ray photography fails. It takes up the tasks of producing pictures of structurers, hidden far below the surface of the body just at the point where the X-ray photography ceases to perform it effectively. In other words the new work attempts a delineation not of dense structures such as bone, but of the living organs.

By means of this discovery it is possible in broad daylight to obtain detailed pictures of any organ or body brain, liver, kidney, and spleen, and to see at a glance by what gross lesions they are affected. Thus it is possible to see blood vessels in the brain, to observe a blood clot on the brain, to detect abcesses in the liver, and wounds or cuts in any organs. In one case concretion of the appendix was seen clearly when the picture was complete.

The miracle is achieved by utilizing the currents of electricity which the body is believed to generate. Two electrodes, each ending in a perforated zinc wire screen, are employed. These are connected with batteries in the ordinary way, but are not placed in contact with the patient's body. One screen stands on a pedestal in a vertical position near the patient's body. The other is hung horizontally at right angles to the first one. In this way any electricity field coming from the first screen is always at right angles to that of the second.

The patient is placed with the part to be examined quite close to the first screen and directly under the, but at a distance from the second. The current is turned on. Then the third electric element, the current from the patient's own body is released.

"The inventor" says the British Medical Journal, "believes the results are primarily due to the fact that the process interposes between two alternating electric fields of equal strength and at a precise point where they meet a third electric field, whose faculative potential force is thus released and can be convereted into dynamic power."

The third field is made to operate a sensitive needle which works upon a revolving cyclinder carrying a waxed paper. The so-called hammer needle moves across the cyclinder tapping out little holes in the wax, and when later the wax is held up to a light a diagram is seen which precisely resembles the outline of the living tissues, lying vertically below the second screen.

This diagram can be converted into an ordinary photograph by processes familiar in the applied arts. The actual finished photographs are remarkable and show blood vessels in the brain in detail, also wounds, but not the actual brain substance. In other words differences such as deceased organs are shown.

The apparatus has to be specially timed for each organ. Thus the electricity force, residing in the blood, is very small, so when blood vessels are to be delineated the alterations must be very rapid. Contrariwise, since the electric force residing in the heart muscles is great the alterations must be slow when the heart is to be delineated.

An advantage of this is that when blood or pus occurs in areas where it should not be it shows at once on the picture as a blur. It is not delineated and so its presence is made evident.

The apparatus works as long as the body is alive and even until molecular death has occurred. After that it does not work.

The inventor is James Shaerer, aged 30, a sergeant in the Medical Corps and working at the casualty clearing station. He is a Scotchman, but received his education in America where he was graduated as an M. D. and Ch. M. at the University of Washington. He has no commission as the medical degree he holds is not one of those recognized in Great Britain.

BERLIN CHEERS U-BOAT PLAY

Sinking of an American Liner the Big Scene in "Bluejackets."

"Bluejackets", a war play dealing with the feats of a German submarine is the most popular of the season's productions in Berlin, according to reports in the London press upon reviews of the play appearing in Berlin newspapers.

The climax of 'Bluejackets" is the sinking of an American passenger liner at night by a U-boat! While the orchestra roars in tones illustrative of panic, passengers, including women and children, crowd to the deck. Presently an immaculate submarine commander clambers on board and bids the passengers compose themselves and take to the lifeboats. After this the stage is darkened, and then the vessel, with the Stars and Stripes drooping at the stern, plunges to the bottom, the victim of a resounding German torpedo.

Before this is done the audience learns that the U-boat is compelled to sink the ship because it is loaded with munitions for the Allies. "Bluejackets" got a tumultuous reception at its first production on September 1, but one or two critics say that the piece is hardly designed to shed fresh lustre on the German drama.

THE PRESBYTERIAN PROBLEM

With a view to further discussing, and if need be planning for a determined stand in behalf of the continuity of the Presbyterian church as an independent body, a call has been drafted and sent out to those opposed to the Union of churches in Canada, in contravention to the vote lately passed by a body of church delegates. Many influential names are associated with this movement, and there is every prospect that the meetings will be attended with some importance. It was, perhaps, inevitable that something of this kind should happen after the very emphatic way in which the Presbyterians of Canada, through their representatives, the Commissioners to the General Assembly, spoke in June last. By a majority unexpectedly large, organic union with the Methodists and Congregationalists was decided upon, to become effective after the end of the war. Taking up the problem editorially, The Montreal Herald and Telegraph says:—

"No one questions the right of the individual Presbyterian, whether he be minister or layman, to join in this great movement for the breaking down of denominational barriers or to stand aloof from it. It is a matter for the individual conscience. We cannot, however, refrain from expressing our regret that so much energy should be put into a campaign to block the successful carrying into effect of a union which promises so much as that agreed upon by the Presbyterians, Methodists and Congregationalists.

In the Presbyterian Church the opponents of union have, with much ability, carried on a systematic attack upon the whole question. They appealed to the loyalty of the people to the Presbyterian Church, to its creed, to its history, and to its traditions. They saw insurmountable difficulties in the way—difficulties as to the material possessions of the Church. They used printer's ink without stint; they distributed literature far and wide. And in spite of their campaign the cause of union has steadily won ground and the friends of union were overcome with thankfulness that the Church had spoken with no uncertain voice, and had ranged herself on the side of progress, and was preparing to be stronger and more effective than ever to meet the great problems that Christianity will have to meet after the war.

The minority, however, would not bow to the decision of the General Assembly, and the campaign has been carried on. There has been much writing to the press of Canada, and even in the heat of the summer the leaders of the movement to block union have been far from idle. Their efforts have been chiefly directed towards convincing the public that everything that has been done looking towards union is illegal, and that not the General Assembly, not the venerable "fathers of the Church," but they themselves—the minority who voted against union—are now the Presbyterian Church in Canada. Their whole campaign has been ably conducted. They have had strong leadership, and that is just the point where a difference between the parties is noticed. While there have been brilliant deliverances on behalf of union from a number of leaders in the Church, there has been no real attempt made to line up the forces in favor of union, to minimize the cleavage in the Church that the anti-union propaganda is bound, to some extent, to create.

It would have been too much to have have expected absolute unanimity among so conservative a body of Christian people as the Presbyterians, on a matter of this kind. It is clearly time that strong measures should be taken by those who believe they are serving the best interests of the Master by removing the barriers which sparate His people, and that such measures as wisdom would suggest be taken to lead the people along the lines that they have chosen to follow. They must have leadership, however. We think it a mistake for ministers to desire to be neutral in the matter. It would almost seem necessary to have some organization, within the Church, composed of ministers and laymen whose business it would be to see that the people as a whole realize that church union means something now, and is going to mean a great deal more. We see endless possibilities for the United Church of Canada under the new world conditions that are at hand. Will the great Church be ready to take her rightful place in the new scheme of things?

Ontario Women.

Chatham, Ont.—"Some time ago I had a general breakdown. It terminated in quite a bad case. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription was recommended to me by a friend who used it and received much benefit. I began taking it and in six months I was completely cured of my ailment and have never had any return of same. I can recommend this medicine as being good, if one will give it a fair trial."—MRS. JOHN ACKERT, 67 Edgar St., Chatham, Ont.

Thousands of women in Canada have taken it with unfailing success.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a true friend to women in times of trial. For headache, backache, hot flashes, mental depression, dizziness, fainting spells, lassitude and exhaustion, women should never fail to take this tried and true woman's medicine.

Prepared from nature's roots and herbs, it contains no alcohol or narcotic, nor any harmful ingredient. In either tablet or liquid form. Write Dr. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., to-day for free medical advice.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets not only the original but the best Little Liver Pills, first put up over 40 years ago, by Dr. R. V. Pierce, have been much imitated but never equaled, as thousands attest. They're purely vegetable, being made up of concentrated and refined medicinal principles extracted from the roots of American plants. Do not gripe. One or two for stomach corrective, three or four for cathartic.

A DISTINCTIVE HONOR

In a few days His Royal Highness The Duke of Connaught will have ceased to represent the Home country as Governor General of Canada, and a new regime inaugurated. For the past five years our fair Dominion has enjoyd the presence of the Prince, the Duchess and Princess Patricia, whose flying visits to various sections of Canada have been hailed as a pronounced honor.

It was the first time in the history of Canada that a member of the reigning house of Great Britain has been called upon to fill international duties. The experiment has been a great success. It may be said that no Governor General of Canada has ever given more general satisfaction to all classes than has H.R.H. He leaves Canada with the good wishes of all and the satisfaction that his duty has been fulfilled. During the past two years more especially, H.R.H., with his long military experience, has rendered invaluable services. The tie which binds Canada to the Empire has been strengthened by the work and the presence of this scion of royalty. It was under the reign of Victoria that Canada secured responsible government and ultimately became a nation within the Empire. It was the only surviving son of this great monarch who assisted Canada in taking upon the world stage the great stand it now occupies. The good wishes of all Canadians, of the rich and the poor alike, will accompany the Duke and Duchess and H.R.H. the Princess Patricia as they leave Canada after having shed new lustre upon it.

Kingston Standard:—The Toronto Globe says that "Sir Wilfrid Laurier is the most conspicuous and outstanding figure in the public life of Canada today. With the vision, outlook, and sound judgment of a statesman, he has risen to every emergency." Has he? The use of the very word "emergency" proves that he has not. It was he who sneered at the "emergency" of this terrible war, and prevented Canada sending ships to take part in it. If he be all that The Globe says, how is it that after more than two years of war his "conspicuous and outstanding figure" has only been capable of sending 12,000 French-Canadians to the front out of 2,500,000? He is certainly conspicuous.

"Excuse me a moment, please, while I answer the telephone!"

Answer Your Telephone Promptly.

A practice that will do much to improve the quality of your service is that of answering your telephone promptly.

Promptness in answering is a courtesy that your telephone caller appreciates—delay may cause him to abandon the call and turn to a competitor who realizes the importance of a prompt response when the bell rings.

Prompt service over your store telephone is a welcome evidence to your customer that you and your staff are alert—anxious to serve.

Why not make it an invariable rule to answer your telephone promptly?

Hamilton Herald:—A provincial town-planning convention now in session in Hamilton has for its immediate object the establishment of a government department to deal with municipal affairs. There is no question about the possibilities for valuable service that such a department would afford. In countless ways it might be made useful to municipalities. Town-planning proper is one of the ways—scientific preparation for the future welfare of growing towns so that they may expand along proper artistic, sanitary and economic lines. But in many other ways could the department be helpful. It could give advice on municipal bookkeeping, finance, engineering, etc. Complaint is made that the provincial government and the legislature has not yet been fired with enthusiasm over the idea. The complaint is hardly just. So far there has been practically no popular demand for this new departure, and governments are always disinclined to move in advance of public opinion. Let it be made plain that the municipalities themselves favor the establishment of a municipal department in the provincial government and the proposition will be sure of serious consideration.

THE BRIDGE AT Q[illegible]

HISTORICAL SKETCH OF THE IMMENSE RAILWAY STRUCTURE

So Far the Bridge Has Taken Over Seventy Lives, of Whom Sixty Went Down in the Great Crash Ten Years Ago—Estimated Cost of Bridge Before Recent Disaster Was About Fourteen Million Dollars.

THE crash of a few days ago was the second disaster to the Quebec Bridge. Late in the afternoon of August 29, 1907, 240 feet of steel superstructure connecting the south shore pier to the anchor pier collapsed, killing sixty men out of the ninety on the section and causing a loss estimated then at $1,500,000, not to mention the indirect loss by a delay in the completion of the railway system of which it was an integral part. The fall of the section had twisted 1,200 feet of interwoven steel into a waste, and great parts of the masonry, never really estimated, were drawn inwards by the warping steel. Until even to-day there are doubts as to the cause of the first collapse. An inquest was held on the victims, when expert evidence was given, which added to the confusion of judgment. The verdict then returned was: "We have not been able to establish the cause of the collapse of the bridge, but we believe it our duty to declare that, according to the proof at the inquest, all the necessary precautions were taken to insure the safety of the structure." The final report of the Royal Commission, which was appointed to inquire into the causes, made on March 9, 1908, found the cause of the accident to be "the failure of anchor chords" made by the Phoenix Bridge Company of Pennsylvania, and which had been approved by Mr. Theodore Cooper, New York, the engineer to whom was entrusted the general supervision of the structure.

"The engineering press of the day summarized the trouble then as a "buckling of the bottom chords because the four ribs or webs of which each was built up were not sufficiently braced together to enable them to act as a whole." In a summary of the evidence from The Globe at the time it was stated: "It had been decided that the inspection of Mr. Cooper, Consulting Engineer of the Bridge Company, should be accepted by the Government. Mr. Cooper was known as a thoroughly competent bridge engineer, and the interests of the Bridge Company and the Government in the matter of inspection were described as identical."

Discussion followed in Parliament, but so far as the general public of Canada is concerned the reasons for the first collapse remain hidden in a mystery which the disagreement of doctors always brings about.

The Royal Commission then was [illegible] Montreal, Chairman; Mr. J. G. G. Kerry, Campbellford, Ont.; and Prof. John Galbraith of the University of Toronto. Over thirty witnesses were examined by them.

A bridge across the St. Lawrence five miles up river from Quebec, where the channel narrows down to its lowest on tide water, had been under serious discussion long before 1887, when the original company was formed to take it in hand. Their capital was $1,000,000. The estimated cost of the Quebec bridge before the disaster was $17,000,000. The first bridge was estimated to cost $7,000,000, and was of a total weight of 33,000 tons. A property loss of $1,500,000 was suffered. The second bridge should have weighed 90,000 tons with a length of 3,239 feet. The figures show how much underestimated the undertaking was from the first.

The story of the financing of the bridge work is one of vicissitude. When the first Quebec Bridge Company was formed with its million dollar capital, headed by Mr. S. N. Parent, afterwards Mayor of Quebec and Premier of the Province, the railway subsidy act of 1899 granted an additional $1,000,000 to the company, which was soon reorganized as the Quebec Terminal & Railway Company. Even then the total capital was regarded as not sufficient for so vast an undertaking. No direct control was maintained by the Government on the construction or affairs of the company, but the main lines of the bridge requirements were clearly laid down as a double-track railroad, two lines for electric cars and two ordinary roads for vehicles and foot passengers. Subsidy payments were made of $374,353 up to about a year before the first accident. There was a re-shuffle of the company, which amounted to the company having full charge of construction, expenditure, and financial operations, with the Government standing behind as guarantor for the bonds of the company, but minus direct control or responsibility for detailed operations. That was the position when the disaster of 1907 took place.

Mr. Collingwood Schreiber in 1903 had recommended that as the Government was paying a large subsidy they should appoint a competent engineer to inspect the bridge from time to time in order to see that it was being erected according to the approved plans. Though the order in Council approving this was passed, it was later agreed that the inspection by Mr. Cooper should suffice for the company and the Government.

After the first collapse a meeting of the shareholders of the company unanimously passed a resolution of confidence in the chairman, Mr. Parent, who was re-elected, and revindicating the necessity for continuing without interruption the work of construction. Whatever may be found to be the cause of the second disaster, one can only be struck with the dauntless courage of the first promoters which took in hand so huge an undertaking in face of financial conditions which must have been depressing, and engineering difficulties of a class and size not quite duplicated in the world.

Later another change took place. A Commission was appointed, in whose hands was placed the mammoth undertaking. The commission named was composed of H. E. Vautelet, Chairman, of Montreal; Ralph Modjeski, Chicago, and Maurice Fitzmaurice, Chief Engineer of the County Council of London, England. Mr. Fitzmaurice resigned and Chas. McDonald, formerly of Gananoque, Ont., but for many years one of the leading bridge engineers of the United States, was induced to go on the board until such time as a contract had been signed.

Tenders were received from one company in Germany, one in England, two in the United States, and from the St. Lawrence Bridge Company, the last named being a union of two strong Canadian companies. The contract was finally let to the St. Lawrence Bridge Company for the superstructure on April 4, 1911; that for the substructure having been let to M. P. Davis on January 10, 1910. C. N. Monsarrat became Chairman and Chief Engineer of the Bridge Commission, and Mr. McDonald was succeeded by C. C. Schneider of New York. The engineering staff heads were Phelps Johnston and George H. Duggan of Montreal.

Primarily the bridge was to have carried the Transcontinental Railway (as the N. T. R. is now termed officially), and its unique value lay in the strategic position well up the St. Lawrence, in addition to being a link from shore to shore of the river, making it possible to run from Vancouver to St. John or Halifax on an alternative all-Canadian route without breaking bulk or transhipment. During the building a powerful ferry has linked both sides of the river. The railway companies which will eventually use the bridge are: the C. P. R., the Grand Trunk, the Intercolonial (Government), the Quebec Central, the Canadian Northern, the Quebec & Lake St. John, the Quebec & Saguenay and the Delaware & Hudson.

WOOL SITUATION IS ODD.

Requirements Have Brought About a Strange State of Affairs.

It is just being realized in Canada that woollen goods are being actually consumed—going out of existence, so to speak—more rapidly under present war conditions than in normal times. Some millions of men on active service are being fitted out with woollen garments of a quality that hitherto has not been found on their backs. If they had been accustomed to wear them, the wear and tear as civilians and in peace times would not be nearly as great as in war service. At present jobbing houses not only find it difficult to obtain goods to supply normal requirements, but also find it difficult to explain to their customers what appears to be a continuous upward trend in prices. Woollens are selling at about ninety per cent. higher than they did just prior to the outbreak of war, or thirty months ago. There may be some lines that have not advanced quite so much, but it is safe to assume that the general advance is much nearer ninety per cent. than it is seventy-five per cent. Jobbers representing mills are delivering goods for fall use at a less figure than they are buying a similar class of goods for delivery next spring. Meanwhile the supply of goods in Canada is very much less than in pre-war times, although the demand (if we include that for the equipment of our forces) is greater. One jobber says that the value of his stock at the present time (about $200,000) is no greater than it was in March, 1914, and of the stock on hand forty per cent. represents woollen materials suitable only for uniforms or for our men on active service. The actual importation of coatings for the twelve months ending March, 1916, was 695,582 yards, as compared with 1,428,109 yards for the twelve months ending March, 1915. It is obvious, however, that, in view of the high price of raw material, the continuous advance in wages, and the scarcity of woollens, the price of garments will advance.

To Weed Out Unfit.

New regulations are being provided for ensuring the fitness of men accepted for service in the expeditionary force. Recruiting officers are to be required to make certain that men entering the force are within the age limits, and medical officers will also be called upon to exercise great care against the admission of unfit men. A recruit will be examined first by the local medical officer at the place of enlistment, and on reaching the mobilization centre he will be re-examined by a medical board, after he is finally attached for overseas service. If there is any doubt as to his condition, he may be re-examined on request by the medical officer.

Steps are being taken also to keep some sort of record of men rejected for unfitness, probably by obtaining from such men signed cards, certifying to their rejection. This is for the purpose of preventing men once rejected from applying at other places, a common practice.

Large Equipm[illegible]heet.

A man in a certain battalion at Camp Borden was recently discharged as being physically unfit for service, and after receiving his discharge papers reported to the pay office to receive the pay that was due him. On being told that his "equipment sheet" (a record of all his equipment) would have to be shown before he could draw his pay, he said, "Aw, I can't show that now, I wrapped it around my blankets and turned the whole thing in."

Evidently this man thought that the rubber sheet that had been issued to him was his "equipment sheet."

Drop in Fruits.

There has been a heavy "drop" in apples, plums, and pears in Ontario, as a result of the heated term.

ARRAY OF MINERALS.

Province of Ontario's Exhibit Showed Some Striking Facts.

The fame of the minerals of Ontario has increased so greatly in recent years that the exhibit of the Bureau of Mines in the Government Building at the Toronto Exhibition had very special interest for every patron of the exhibition. There were seen products from the richest mining lansd in the world that indicate something of the wonderful natural resources of the banner province of Canada. In the central booth stood a safe that contained gold ore valued at $10,000. This ore is regarded as some of the richest specimens ever discovered in Ontario, having been taken from the Croesus gold mine, Munro township, and it is the property of the Government. Another interesting specimen standing at the west side of the exhibit was a large piece of ore which was taken from the bed of Kerr Lake, Cobalt, after the water had been pumped out. It was cut from a large vein that was found after the draining of the rich lake. Nearby on another stand were two large pieces of native silver that are valued at $5,000.

While these are a few of the extraordinary features, the details of the exhibit bear careful examination. Among the cases of silver were samples of ores from mines like the Timiskaming, Trethway, Crown Reserve, Beaver, and the Nipissing. In the Coniagas exhibit of the ore and smelter products was a sample of their metallic arsenic, and there was a very fine collection of products from Cobalt ores displayed by the Delora Smelting and Refining Company.

The exhibit of gold ores was a very fine one, and in the case containing the ores were shown the materials used for the extraction of the gold. There were some rich samples also on view. Among the mines that contributed to this display of rich minerals were the Porcupine Crown, Dome and Hollinger, from all of which have come both gold and rocks. The little gold brick from the Porcupine mine was found especially interesting by the lay visitor.

There was a case of nickel, the much discussed mineral of which eighty per cent. of the world's supply comes from Ontario. In the same case were samples of copper from Sudbury. The iron pyrites shown by the Algoma Steel Company is the mineral from which sulphuric acid is manufactured. Among the less well known minerals shown are corundum, graphite, and barite. The samples of the last named from the Premier Langmuir mines were remarkable for the native silver in it. One case contained feldspar, used for producing the glaze in pottery. Chemists are now working on a process to secure potash from this attractive-looking mineral. There were also a number of samples of gypsum, mica, ad a little peat, as well as salt from the brine wells on the shores of Lake Huron and Lake St. Clair.

Of very special interest at the present time is the exhibit of molybdenite, from which is manufactured the valuable molybdenum steel. Very different from [illegible] white talc. George H. Gillespie and Company have built up a large industry at Madoc in talc, which is utilized for chalk, talcum powder, and other similar articles.

The various types of brick showed the clays of Ontario to advantage. The office used by the men in charge of the exhibit was constructed of Ontario marble, than which there is no finer in the world. For building purposes, Ontario also supplies sodalite, a particularly striking stone that is used as a decoration in the Old Country.

For Tubercular Veterans.

A new military sanatorium for the treatment of tubercular patients will be required in the near future in Ontario, judging from what has already taken place in the Province of Quebec. Some months ago the Laurentide Inn at St. Agathe was lent to the Military Hospitals Commission by Mr. D. Lorne McGibbon, of Montreal. About one hundred tubercular soldiers are now in residence there and at the neighboring Laurentian Sanatorium. A number of the men do not belong to Quebec, but to neighboring provinces. Several special sanitaria have been provided in various parts of the country for soldiers who have fallen victims to tuberculosis, and on August 26 there were 331 Canadian soldiers under treatment for lung trouble, while 180 more are expected from overseas within the next six months.

The Military Hospitals Commission has been able to make particularly good use in the treatment of tubercular and other patients, of hotels which have been turned over to it, in some cases fully equipped.

Margaret Anglin Born There.

When so large a measure of domestic life went on in the big Parliament Buildings at Ottawa years ago it was but natural that there should have been such incidents, not usually associated with State capitals, as births, marriages, and deaths. Margaret Anglin, the Canadian actress, was born in the Speaker's apartments, when her father was Speaker of the Commons. At least one member of the House died in one of the private rooms of the Speaker after a speech in the Commons, and many others at various times were seized with illness while resting or working in some of the apartments.

A New Way to Kill Rats.

A new way to kill the rats which infest the trenches is reported by a South African officer writing from France. He says: "We found one of our men putting a bit of cheese on his bayonet and firing a rifle every time a rat started to eat it."

Nibbling!

A British official statement says: "To date since the 1st of July the British forces alone on the Somme battle-front have met and engaged 35 German divisions, of which 29 have already been defeated and withdrawn exhausted."

GREECE AND SUBMARINES.

The Truth About Dr. Karl Peters' Tour of the Mediterranean.

The British are finding out, bit by bit, that they have a whole lot for which to thank the Greek King and his advisers. Even before the outbreak of war—and no doubt knowing that the Kaiser, ready "to strike when the hour has struck," had made up his mind that the hour was about to strike—these were playing the German game in a very crafty and cunning way. For it is now clearly established that various islands in the Aegean Sea have been employed as Austro-German submarine bases, and that the tour which the notorious Dr. Karl Peters—the German spy, posing as a savant, who was actually allowed to live in a London suburb for three months after the war began—made in the Eastern Mediterranean not long before the outbreak of war was directed to this end.

Here are the facts of Peters' activities in the matter as set out by an authority usually well posted in such matters: It appears that, prior to his tour in the Mediterranean, he paid a visit to Cairo and other parts of Egypt in the spring of 1914. He was supposed to be on a lecturing tour. But he was, in fact, acting as a German propagandist in the Middle East generally. At Corfu and several of the adjacent islands, he arranged for the storage of large quantities of petrol and other material requisite for the submarine and air services. However, his activities in Cairo and Alexandria, being largely devoted to the native quarters, did not escape the notice of Lord Kitchener, then British Minister Plenipotentiary in Egypt. Consequently Peters had to clear out of Egypt, and arrived in Athens some time before he was expected. This gave him the longer time, however, to devote to the perfection of his subtle and sinister plans in Greece before returning to England (once more in his capacity of savant) in July, 1914.

Women Workers.

Women are being used in the tramway department of the Glasgow Corporation, not only as drivers and conductors, but as assistants in the power station, according to the Electric Railway Journal. Several months ago four women were employed to assist the electrical engineer in the power station and they are now in full charge of a substation, while four others are at work on the power station switchboard. Women are also being employed for cleaning the electrical switch-pillars in the streets. The Glasgow Tramways Department in addition employs about 100 women as drivers, and they have been found to be very keen and enthusiastic, standing up to the work after a very short time as coolly and confidently as the most experienced motormen. At present it is impossible to say whether the employment of women has affected the current consumption and repairs, but the general impression is that women are, if anything, more careful in their driving than the men.

MR. JOHN R. SCHRYVER

Mr. John R. Schryver died last evening at the residence of his son-in-law, Mr. John Vandervoort, Front of Sidney Township. Deceased had been in failing health for the past three years, during which time he had been in Toronto, excepting a few days in this vicinity. He was born in Huntingdon Township in 1842, and for upwards of 30 years lived in Thurlow Township. He was a gentleman much respected by all who knew him. For years he had been a member of the Presbyterian church. An aged widow, two sons, Nelson of Belleville, and William of Toronto, and two daughters, Mrs. J. N. Vandervoort of Sidney and Miss Adore Schryver of Toronto, survive.

Weese v Weese, et al.—E. G. Porter, K.C., for plaintiff, J. L. Whiting, K.C., and T. German (Napanee) for Dominion Bank. U. M. Wilson, (Napanee) for widow.

Action by son and grandson for declaration that certain moneys deposited in Napanee branch of Dominion Bank are part of estate of late David Weese, and governed in the disposition thereof by his last will and testament.

Judgment: The money as held to be the joint account and for the joint usufruct of the two co-owners, to which kind of ownership the law attaches the right of survivorship to the one who lives as to all that remains at the death of the one who dies. .. .. Being so deposited, it is not subject to being disposed of by the will of either party. .. .. The action is dismissed, with costs from the time of filing the defence of each defendant. On the counter-claim the parties made an adjustment by which, instead of administration, the widow commutes all personal rights given by the will as to fuel and provisions, use and keep of hens and cows, and use of horse and conveyance, to a block payment of $1,500. To raise this amount by mortgage on the land, I give sanction, as it is in the interests of the infant, who takes the fee.

THE CHEESE MARKET

KINGSTON, Oct. 5.—The salesmen at the meeting of the Frontenac Cheese Board this afternoon broke forth in applause when the price went up to 22 1-16c., the highest price in the history of the Board. The big demand for cheese overseas is the cause of the high price. There were boarded 572 boxes of colored cheese and 349 boxes of white.

BROCKVILLE, Oct. 5.—At the regular meeting of the Brockville Cheese Board to-day 1594 boxes of white and 1542 boxes of colored were offered; 170 boxes of colored sold on Board at 21 7-8c. About 8000 boxes sold on the street at 22c.

She Was Used to It.

A soldier had been riding a motor cycle at one of the Canadian training camps when suddenly it stopped, and all his power could not convince the machine to go. He started in to loosen different parts about it, all the time uttering exclamations beneath his breath. Suddenly he stopped and turned to a small girl who had been watching him, and seemed very interested, and said: "I wish you would get away from here." Of course, she asked why? and the soldier quickly answered: "Well if you want to know, I'm going to swear." A smile came into the little girl's face, and she said: "Oh, then, I can stay, my daddy's got a motorcycle."

Death Ended A Useful Life

S. F. Lazier, K. C., Passed Away At Hamilton Wednesday Morning—Prominent in Educational Affairs

(Hamilton Spectator)

Following an illness which confined him to his home for several weeks, S. F. Lazier, K. C. one of the city's best known barristers, and most estimable citizens passed away at his home, 131 Charles Street this morning. Mr. Lazier had been ailing for some time, and while his physician held out but little hope for his recovery, the end came rather suddenly. The deceased had been a resident of Hamilton from his young manhood and in his death a link which bound the present to the past in the history of the city is severed. He was a man who took a quiet but active interest in all that pertained to the welfare of the city and his death will be a distinct loss to the municipality in which he had made his home for so many years past.

Stephen Franklin Lazier was born at Picton, Ont., on July 1, 1841, his ancestors being United Empire Loyalists. His early education began in the public schools, ending in his graduating from Victoria University, Cobourg. In his youth his parents moved to Dundas. After taking the full course in the law schools, in 1860 he received his B.A. degree from his alma mater; in 1864 the degree of M.A. and in 1865 the honorary degree of LL. B. In 1863 he came to Hamilton to practice his profession and was admitted as a barrister in 1864, and in 1890 he was advanced to the honorary title of K.C. Mr. Lazier was a man of retiring and modest disposition and all the honors of his profession came to him because of his legal acquirements, the brightest being that of a bencher of the Ontario Law association.

In August, 1871 he was united in marriage to Alice Maud Mary, the eldest daughter of Joseph Lister one of the leading citizens of Hamilton in the early days who accumulated some of the most valuable property in the heart of the city, known as the Lister Block. There were born to them two sons, and two daughters, Ernest who was a partner with his father in the law business, Harold who is over seas with the Canadian Contingent; Mrs. Duncan Bull, Brampton, and Mrs. (Dr) Mullen of this city.

Outside of his profession Mr. Lazier was probably best known on account of his connection with the Centenary Church, of which he was a life-long member and official. As in his professional life all the honors of his church life was bestowed upon him and in this connection he served for many years as recording steward. He had oftentimes been a representative of his church at the district meetings, and at the annual and general conferences of his church.

Another of his life interests was the matter for the education for the young and in the past years no one took a keener interest in the educational affairs of the city than he. In 1866 he was elected to the board as a representative of ward 2, and remained continuously there until 1910 a period of twenty-four years. During that time he served as chairman of the board in 1899, and on several occasions he was elected chairman of the several committees of the organization. When he retired in 1910 his place on the board was taken by his son E. F. Lazier. In addition to his connection with the board of education. Mr. Lazier served as president of the U. E. Loyalist Association, the Wentworth Historical Society and of the local branch of the Quebec Battlefield Association. He was also an active member of the Hamilton Branch of the Upper Canada Bible Society, of which he was president. He was also a director of the Union Trust Company, and vice-president of the Landed Banking and Loan Association. In looking backwards in its history we find that his life has not been an idle one. With large professional practice to occupy his time he still took an important part in the religious and worldly interests of life, especially in the Y.M.C.A. of which he was for many years president of the board. His Masonic connections were with the Barton Lodge, past master of the Temple Lodge and a member of the Scottish Rite. During his long connection with the legal profession in this city he was in partnership with J. White, K. Dingwall, Judge Monck and with his two sons, Ernest F. and Captain Harold L.

Mr. Lazier was a quiet man, though of genial disposition, and made a host of friends among those of whom he came in contact in his daily life. Regret will be felt in the community at his death.

BELLEVILLE HIGH SCHOOL FIELD DAY SPORTS

A Lengthy Programme of Events Provided For a Large Number of Spectators—Keen Competition Amongst The Pupils and Visitors—Winners and Champions

Considerable interest was manifested in the Belleville High School Field day sports, which took place yesterday. The weather was all that could have been desired for such an event. In the forenoon a portion of the events were carried out on the High School grounds, and in the afternoon the remainder were carried out at the Agricultural Park. Every year interest in these events is increasing, and especially is this the case with pupils of the school. There was keen competition in several of the events on the programme, which was a lengthy one. A number of pupils from Trenton High School were present, and took part in the competition, and some were successful in carrying off prizes. It was confidently expected that Master Max Herity would land the Senior Championship and he did so easily, being first in all the events he entered. He carried off the championship cup and medal. Master Fred Woodley was successful in winning the Intermediate Championship. Among the junior competitors there was an exceedingly keen rivalry, and the result was that three young pupils, namely K. VanAllen, M. Brant and J. Walmsley were tied for the championship, each securing the same number of points.

Owing to the length of the programme, it was not completed until the shades of evening were falling.

The events and the successful competitors were as follows:

BOYS EVENTS

BASKET BALL MATCHES

During the afternoon two basket gall matches took place on the High School grounds between teams representing the senior and junior girl pupils of the Belleville and the Trenton High Schools, and the result was a win for Belleville girls in both games. The match between the senior teams was close and exciting, the score being 20 to 19 in favor of Belleville. The junior girl players of this city, scored an easy victory over their opponents, the result being 20 to 0 in their favor. Many interesting spectators witnessed the games.

Britain Must Have More Men To Fill Gaps

Country Will be Combed Finer Than Ever to Get Every Available Man—Employ More Women

LONDON, Oct., 5—Great Britain is in urgent need of men for her armies and also for her munition factories.

A statement to this effect was given out today by the Mann Power Distribution Board, recently appointed to comb out men eligible for military service in the United Kingdom who have not yet enrolled in the army.

The Board reported that it had examined officials of the Admiralty, War Office, Ministry of Munitions and other departments, and that there was an urgent need of fresh men for the armies and munition factories in order "to maintain our forces in the field at the numbers already fixed for them, and at the same time to maintain the supply of munitions essential for their equipment and proper utilization."

The Board therefore directed that no exemption be granted certain classes hithertofore exempt, and that there be no more general dilution of skilled labor in munition factories with women and other workers heretofore untrained. It suggested conferences of employers and employees with a view of freeing skilled labor now engaged in private work for employment in munition factories."

"It is essential," the report says, "that a large part of the labor now engaged in private work shall be diverted to government orders or release for the army."

The Board has under consideration the extended use of women and men over military age, and also the release of man of military age, now employed in government offices. This is the only means, the Board says, whereby extentions of the age for compulsory service can be avoided

Hastings Boy Passes Away

Veteran of Present War Succumbed to Pneumonia

Pte. J. M. Gullett, a County of Hastings soldier, who returned from overseas died in Welland, Ontario of pneumonia, recently and was buried in that town. Pte. Gullett, was attached to a Montreal Battalion, and fought at Hill 60, St Julien, and many other engagements in the first year of the war. He received a dose of poisonous gas at St. Julien, and was wounded with a grenade.

While carrying despathces he had the misfortune to be thrown from his motorcycle, breaking his nose, had his knee cap dislocated, and a number of ribs on his left side were crushed His machine was travelling at rate of 55 miles an hour at the time.

Pte. Gullett, was a man of giant stature, but owing to the strain he had suffered at the front, his constitution appeared to be undermined which undoubtedly caused him to be susceptible to bring weakness and pneumonia.

THANKSGIVING MARKET

The Belleville market was largely attended to-day and much produce was offered for sale. Owing to the fact that Monday is Thanksgiving Day there was a large display of dressed poultry, which commanded good prices.

Fresh dairy butter was somewhat scarce and sold readily at 45 cents per pound. A few basket lots were procured at a slightly lower figure.

Fresh eggs, while quite plentiful, sold at from 36c. to 38c. per dozen, and in some cases a higher price was asked, but the buyers did not respond.

Dressed chickens were fairly moderate in price, ranging from $1.00 to $1.25 and $1.40 per pair, according to size and quality. Ducks sold from $1.40 to $1.60 per pair, and in a few instances a higher price was paid for extra large ones. The ruling price for geese was $2 each. A few turkeys were offered and sold at $3 and $3.50 each.

Garden produce was plentiful and reasonable in price. Carrots, beets and parsnips sold at 5c. a bunch, and celery at 5 and 10c. a bunch, according to quality. A few crates of tomatoes were sold at $1.00 per bushel. Potatoes are rather scarce, and sold at 40c. per peck, and $1.50 per bushel.

Fruit., such as apples, pears and grapes, were sold quite readily, the former at 25c. and 30c. per peck, and pears at 40c. a peck.

SLAIN MAN'S BROTHER ASSERTS HIS INNOCENCE

Has Not Yet Been Accused of Madoc Murder—Man Murdered Possessed Wealth—Six Thousand Dollars and All His Papers Are Missing

MADOC, Ont., Oct. 7.—Special—The murder of Walter Montgomery on his farm eight miles from Madoc Village remains just as much a mystery as ever. No arrests have been made and nobody is suspected. The murderer got away clean with five years savings the least estimate of which is $6500, and the deeds and papers relating to Montgomery's property. The weapon used to kill the man, Constable St. Charles found, was a piece of a spade and it was dropped at the feet of the body.

Crumpled in one corner of the driving shed, Montgomery's body was found Thursday morning by his brother, Joseph A., his brother-in-law, F. McMullen and W. J. Moorecroft, a neighbor. A bag of apples Montgomery was carrying when struck down, lay scattered all around him. Near his feet Constable St. Charles found the piece of spade which undoubtedly was used by the murderer. It was used as a salt scoop and always lay in the salt barrel, well inside the driving shed. If the murderer was not lying in wait for Montgomery inside the shed, he had to creep the whole length of the building behind Montgomery to get the weapon. Clutched tightly in Montgomery's hand was a heavy piece of iron chain connecting two big rings. Constable St. Charles does not think Montgomery used the chain to defend himself. He thinks he grasped it in his death struggles.

Struck From Behind

From the lay-out of the shed, it seems the murdered man was struck down from behind, ten feet from the door, while carrying a bag of windfalls to a bin at the back. There were no evidence of a struggle, only a little blood on the floor where he was first struck. Somo on the apple bag and tongue of a wagon nearby was the only sign that a murder had been committed. Something the local police cannot understand is a small piece of wood found ten feet to the left of where the body lay, clotted and with some of Montgomery's hair clinging to it. Montgomerys eccentric habit of carrying all his money in a school bag hung around his neck on a piece of harness strap arose out of some difficulties he had with his brother Joe five years ago. When the brothers' father died Walter got all the property, but he gave Joe a deed to 100 acres. Walter took his mother and sister to live with him. Joe had his brother, the murdered man, taken into custody on the ground that he was insane and abused his mother. He also demanded the right to run the whole Montgomery estate, and asked that Walters interest be turned over to him. Constable St. Charles had Walter live with him for some time until he satisfied himself that he was sane, and the mother said she had not been ill-treated. Since then Walter would never trust his money out of his hands.

He went back to the farm and has had nothing to do with Joe since. On one occasion Joe wanted to help him with the harvest, but Walter warned him off the place. Joe declares he has not been on the premises since, until he led the search party Thursday morning.

Would Not Talk.

Joseph Montgomery, the dead man's brother, refused to give Coroner Harper and Constable St. Charles much satisgaction when they questioned him concerning his whereabouts on Tuesday, when, it is believed, Walter was killed.

Where were you Tuesday afternoon, Joe?" asked the constable.

"None of your business," was the reply.

Referring to two new abrasions on Joe's hand the coroner said: "You've been fighting, Joe—when was it?"

"Prove it," was the curt reply.

There was a bruise on Walter's forehead which might have been received by the fall or from a blow. Yesterday Constable St. Charles met him on the road and asked him if he would milk Walter's six cows.

"I'd rather not have anything to do with them," he said. "I see I am suspected."

St. Charles met McMullen a little while later and asked him to look after them.

"Why, Joe took them off my hands yesterday," he said. "He claimed the right to milk them."

When seen later by a newspaper representative, Joe Montgomery would do little talking. "I tell you I am innocent," he repeated. One theory is that some of the foreigners working in the mines near here had something to do with it. It is said three were discharged Monday and have not been seen since.

There is little doubt that the murder was committed Tuesday afternoon. Tuesday morning's milk was delivered, but the cows were not milked in the evening.

Was a "Square" Man

Walter Montgomery is well spoken of by all his neighbors. They say he was eccentric, but square in his dealings. His farm was paid off and since his father's death, his savings have accumulated and gone into the leather sack around his neck, all with the exception of $500 he gave his mother when he got the farm. Cattle buyers in the neighborhood declare they have paid him some thousands of dollars in business dealings in a comparatively short time, and he received about $700 in cash for a piece of land sold to Hall Brothers not very long ago. Besides all this money he must have carried, there were the proceeds of his apple selling, pigs and ground crops. He was a wealthy man with not a cent in the bank, and everybody for twenty miles around, knew right where that wealth was. Instead of unstrapping the bag from Montgomery's neck the murderer turned the body on its back and cut the strap with a knife. He threw the strap beside the body, but contrary to first reports, the bag has not been found, although a search was made yesterday. The deeds and farm papers were in a tin box in the frame shack Montgomery had built to replace his brick house which was burned. The box was pried open with a knife and all the contents extracted. It is probable this part of the theft was committed Tuesday night. A young man in the village declares he drove by in the evening and saw a light in the window, although Montgomery must have been dead some hours at that time.

The whole neighborhood is aroused over the murder. So far Constable St. Charles has worked alone, but the assistance of the provincial police is expected. St. Charles has worked on the case practically night and day since the murder. The autopsy on the body was made in the driving shed, where Montgomery died. A fractured skull caused by two blows from a sharp edged tool, such as the spade remnant, caused death. The body was buried yesterday afternoon in Lake Cemetery. The inquest will be held Monday night in Hart's School House, four miles from Madoc.

CUT THIS OUT

OLD ENGLISH RECIPE FOR CATARRHAL DEAFNESS AND HEAD NOISES

If you know someone who is troubled with head noises, or Catarrhal Deafness, cut out this formula, and hand it to them, and you will have been the means of saving some poor sufferer perhaps from total deafness. Recent experiments have proved conclusively that Catarrhal Deafness, head noises, etc., were the direct cause of constitutional disease, and that salves, sprays, inhalers, etc., merely temporize with the complaint and seldom, if ever, effect a permanent cure. This being so, much time and money has been spent of late by a noted specialist in perfecting a pure, gentle, yet effective tonic that would quickly dispel all traces of the catarrhal poison from the system. The effective prescription which was eventually formulated, and which has aroused the belief that deafness will soon be extinct, is given below in understandable form, so that any one can treat themselves in their own home at little expense.

Secure from your druggist 1 oz. Parmint (Double Strength), about 75c. worth. Take this home and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and 4 oz. of granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day.

The first dose should begin to relieve the distressing head noises, headache, dullness, cloudy thinking, etc., while the hearing rapidly returns as the system is invigorated by the tonic action of the treatment. Loss of smell and mucus dropping in the back of the throat, are other symptoms that show the presence of cartarrhal poison, and which are often entirely overcome by this efficacious treatment. Nearly ninety per cent. of all ear troubles are directly caused by catarrh; therefore, there must be many people whose hearing can be restored by this simple home treatment.

Every person who is troubled with head noises, catarrhal deafness, or catarrh in any form, should give this prescription a trial.

Important Note: In ordering Parmint always specify that you want double strength. Your druggist has it or he can easily get it for you. If not send 75c. to the International Laboratories, 74 St. Antoine St., Montreal, Que., Can., and they will supply you. In sending money use postal note or money order.

How You May Reduce Your Weight

Overstoutness is a very unwelcome condition especially in the present day, when slender figures are so fashionable, and every reader of this paper has noticed the tendency of some people to put on an excessive amount of fat.

If you happen to be one of those whose weight is more than it should be, don't try to starve yourself, eat all you want, but go to your druggist and get oil of orilene in capsule form and take one with each meal.

Oil of orilene increases the oxygen-carrying power of the blood and dissolves the fatty tissue, in many cases at nearly the rate of one lb. per day. Be sure to get oil of orilene in capsule form. It is sold only in original sealed packages. Any good druggist has it, or a large size box will be sent on receipt of $1.00 Postal note or money order. Address D. J. Little Drug Co., Box 1240, Montreal, Can.

In And About The City

NO PAPER

Monday being Thanksgiving Day and a public holiday, the Intelligencer will not be published.

REPORTED KILLED

A report was current upon the street today that Harold Boyle of this city had been killed in action. He left here some months ago as a member of the 34th Battery.

BRIDGE REPLANKED

The replanking of the lower bridge was completed last evening, and traffic was resumed. Ex-Ald. White superintended the work, and an excellent quality of British Columbia fir boards was used for the covering.

HIGH COURT OF JUSTICE

On Tuesday next the jury sitting of the Supreme Court, fall assize, will open at Belleville before the Honorble Justice Clute. There are no criminal cases to be tried and the civil docket is light. The list of cases entered are as follows:—

JURY CASES

Keeler vs. The Campbellford Lake Ontario and Western R'y. Porter and Carnew solicitors for plantiff, McMurchy and Spence, solicitors for defendant.

NONJURY CASES

Lowery, vs. The Corporation of the Town of Trenton, Porter and Carnew, solicitors for plaintiff, A. Abbott, solicitor for defendant.

Patterson, vs. The Corporation of The City of Belleville, Porter and Carnew, solicitors for plaintiff, S. Masson for the defendant.

ENTERTAINED VISITORS

At the conclusion of the field day sports yesterday, held in connection with the High School, the visiting boys and girls from Trenton, who came to Belleville to participate in the events and to witness them, were entertained in the Assembly room of the High School. A luncheon was served which was thoroughly enjoyed and afterwards the evening was spent in social intercourse. Piano solos were given and vocal selections were rendered. The affair was most pleasing in every way.

BROKE AN ARM

George Shorey the young son of Edward Shorey, of Cannifton village was last evening the victim of a painful accident. The lad was cranking an auto truck the property of his father when the crank flew back, striking him on the right arm, breaking both bones between the wrist and the elbow.

NARROW ESCAPE

What might have proved a very serious accident occurred Wednesday morning when Mr. Harold VanAllen, an employee of the Stirling Box factory, was caught in the shafting, and but for the quick work of others who were near, might have been seriously mangled. As it was his clothing was torn to ribbons, and he was considerably scraped about the shoulder.

THANKFUL MOTHERS

Thousands of thankful mothers throughout Canada—many of them your own neighbors—speak with the greatest praise of that splendid medicine Baby's Own Tablets. Many mothers would have no other medicine for their little ones. Among these is Mrs. Albert Nie, St. Brieux, Sask., who says: 'I have been using Baby's Own Tablets for the past seven years and they have done my four children a world of good. I would not be without them." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

FOOD ECONOMY

Every housewife knows the length of time it takes to prepare the most ordinary soup, the cost of fuel, ingredients, etc. But with a few vegetables, one or two Oxo Cubes, a little flour and water, a most excellent soup can be prepared in a few minutes at the cost only of a few cents.

So with entrées, savouries, sauces, invalid dishes, the Oxo Cube way is the quick, convenient, efficient way, and makes for economy every time.

Another point of great importance is the peculiar power of Oxo Cubes to increase the nutritive value of other dishes. For instance, Oxo and rice is much more nourishing than rice without Oxo. Hence when Oxo Cubes are used lighter meals can be indulged in

HIGH FOOD PRICES

There is much indignation in Montreal because cheese was sold on the country boards at a price in excess of 23 cents per pound, and The Gazette suggests that the record was not reached under circumstances to suggest manipulation. "It is possible," says The Gazette, "that the quantities required could have been obtained at a smaller figure had other courses been followed by the chief buyers; but that is a matter of opinion. The rise in values, while it has been rapid, has been steady, and it is not sure that the limit, has been reached. The price is almost three times that which was counted fair in the memory of many in the trade. It is twice that which was counted good only a few years ago. The ordinary market rules are not now operating, and rising prices do not check the demand. The exports from Montreal since the opening of navigation this season have been 1,379,000 boxes; and this is a hundred thousand boxes more than were sent out to the same date in 1915. The situation in regard to butter is much the same. The fair merchantable articles is selling at from 30 cents to 38 cents a pound, which is fifty per cent. higher than the prices ruling only a few years ago. And the oversea exports from Montreal for the season to date have been 128,000 packages, quite six times the amount exported in 1915 to the same time. Eggs, also, have doubled in price in a few years, and now ordinary commercial stock commands 30 cents to 34 cents a dozen; and the shipments for the season have been some 4,800,000 dozen. The only limits on the exporters are those of production and freight space.

In cereal food articles, as regards prices, like conditions are noted. The ordinary standard grade of wheat has been sold in Winnipeg within the past few days at $1.67 a bushel, a figure double the ruling rate of a few years ago; and this means that the cost of the amount required to make a barrel of flour has increased in proportion. Oats, which now enter largely into human food, used to be counted fairly high when they were sold for 30 cents or 35 cents a bushel. Indian corn selling in ruling markets at 90 cents a bushel, is double the price it commanded not many years ago. And with cereals, as with dairy products and flesh meats, the overseas demand is such that if more could well be had more would be taken.

The causes of the conditions noted are found in Europe, and until peace is restored nothing may well be attempted to reduce their effects. When peace comes relief will be automatic. The war shut off from Great Britain supplies of grain that for years came to it from Southern Russia and the Danube countries, as well as the suppliesof diary products ordinarily obtained in Siberia, Holland and Denmark, which were large suppliers of dairy products, eggs and bacon, found in the markets of Germany a demand that was more profitable than that of the United Kingdom. Then much productive land in Northern France was laid waste or occupied by the enemy, and some of that country's needs had to be supplied from other sources. The armies were increased to the limit set by the ability of the factories to equip them; and soldiers, to be useful, have to be fed on a scale exceeding that of the ordinary civilian. This continent was the readiest source of supply for all that was wanted to make up for what the war had shut off or diverted. It has been drawn upon at a rate that has affected the market for practically everything saleable, the returns for labor advancing with the rest, in many trades.

The call has been made for governmental interference to secure lower prices. The facts do not promise much in the way of success. The middleman plays only a small part in the situation. The producer is getting them because men who have orders for all what he has, offering him in return practically what he asks, in the United States, where like conditions are noted, like results are being made the cause of complaint. In the case of Canada much of the stuff exported goes to feed Canadian soldiers on duty across the sea and their comrades in arms. No enquiry could alter the facts noted and it is doubtful if any government would venture to recommend export duties in such a situation. The high cost of living is part of the price of the war. If it is being paid by those who did not cause the war, it is only what has happened before. The conditions are worse in this war than they have been in others, because this is the world's worst and most destructive war.

A MATTER OF AMBITION

A writer in The New York Times,, gives much information regarding the ambitions of Germany during the past century, and, incidentally, her purpose in picking quarrels with weaker nations when conditions pointed to her advantage. Beneath the surface of the letter, however, is viewed the reason why the United States has been wary of a quarrel with the German Home Government, particularly since the declarations of war which set the present conflict in motion—President Wilson, no doubt, feeling that the interchange of plausable messages were better than downright hard-fisted demands, that might send the Horrible Hun on the rampage.

In summing up the attitude of Europe's ambitious belligerent, the writer, over the title of George Burton Adams, says in conclusion: "Three times at least in the present century Germany has been near to bringing on a general war, and would have done so if she had not either obtained her demands, as in reference to Bosnia and Herzegovina, or found herself, as she did at Manila, in too weak a position as the case developed, which was what prevented extreme action in the two Morocco incidents. In the present case Germany was forced to follow her policy to the bitter end by the fact that only by a war, if she did not obtain her demands, could she keep under her control the Balkan road to Asia, where she believed her best immediate opportunity was to be found. If Germany should by this war obtain her coveted world position, it would not be long before some issue of serious difficulty would arise, to all appearances very naturally no doubt, between Germany and the United States, and we should be compelled either to yield to Germany's demands or to try the issue of another war. As the evidence accumulates this is the conclusion to which we shall be brought, for Germany has not yet changed her ambitions nor her plans for their realization."

The time, however, was to come when Germany would meet her Waterloo, and, it is interesting to note that her defeat, as present indications point, is to be largely at the hands of Britain who, one hundred years ago, on or near the spot of the famous battle, caused Napoleon to sheath his sword in acknowledged defeat.

Speaking editorially of "Elections Signs in Canada, The Hamilton Herald declares that "whatever may be said in criticism of Sir Sam Hughes, it can at least be claimed for him that he has not betrayed the slightest trace of partizan spirit since the war started. His partizanship is swallowed up in his patriotism. The premier's attitude and utterances have been those of a statesman conscious of representing the whole nation rather than a political party. Mr. Rowell's speeches during the war have been as admirable for their freedom from party spirit as for their fervor and eloquence. Another Liberal statesman whose example is worthy of emulation is Dr. Michael Clarke. But the good examples set by the Rowells and Clarkes, the Bordens and Fosters, are not being generally followed. It is evident that the political pot is beginning to simmer, and the signs of an approaching election begin to multiply. It is t obe regretted.

Current Comment

The theory that the outbreak of infantile paralysis in New York would derease in severity with the advent of coller weather has been justified; but there has been an increase in the number of cases of the disease in Jersey City, just across the river.

R. D. Waugh, mayor of Winnipeg, has received the following cablegram from General Steel, at Shorncliffe: "You will be glad to know that the western brigade, one battalion of which is from Winnipeg, greatly distinguished itself under General Ketchen in the recent fighting capturing a large number of prisoners and pushing forward. Three other battalions were also placed under General Ketchen to co-operate with his own brigade in the work before them."

THE GUEST OF QUESNAY

By Booth Tarkington

Copyright, 1908, by the McClure Company
Copyright, 1902, 1908, by the Ridgway Company

"The Guest of Quesnay" tells the story of a pure woman's love and sacrifice for a debased, misled, pleasure loving man; it tells in captivating vein of picturesque Paris, too—of the cosmopolitan life of the famous capital. Its character sketches of continental society as well as peasantry are unmistakable in their picturing, and its romance, its mystery and its refreshing comedy give the same qualities to the novel that placed the author's "Monsieur Beaucaire" among the masterpieces of contemporaneous fiction.

CHAPTER I.

THERE are old Parisians who will tell you pompously that the boulevards, like the political cafes, have ceased to exist, but this means only that the boulevards no longer gossip of Louis Napoleon, the return of the Bourbons or of General Boulanger, for these highways are always too busily stirring with present movements not to be forgetful of their yesterdays. In the shade of the buildings and awnings the loungers, the lookers-on in Paris, the audience of the boulevard, sit at little tables, sipping coffee from long glasses, drinking absinth or bright colored sirups and gazing over the heads of throngs afoot at others borne along through the sunshine of the street in carriages, in cabs, in glittering automobiles or high on the tops of omnibuses.

From all the continents the multitudes come to join in that procession—Americans tagged with race cards and intending hilarious disturbances, puzzled Americans worn with guidebook plodding, Chinese princes in silk, queer Antillean dandies of swarthy origin and fortune, ruddy English thinking of nothing, pallid English with upper teeth bared and eyes hungrily searching for signboards of tea rooms, over-Europeanized Japanese unpleasantly

The Shadow of Death Hangs Over Belgium

3,000,000 People are Living Within A Few Days of Actual Starvation.

The situation in Belgium grows more critical with every passing week. The fate of women, children and old and wounded men, in steadily growing numbers, depends absolutely on the Belgian Relief Commission. If the food supplied by the Commission were cut off, the third day would find the weaker ones starving to death. Within two weeks 3,000,000 would be dead or dying, and 4,000,000 more would be suffering acutely.

Compare this with Canada—with our huge crops and busy factories—an abundance of food and plenty of money! Think of the average Belgian family! The father is in the trenches—or dead. The mother takes her place in the lengthening bread lines, to get the meager rations served out by the Belgian Relief Committee. The children, thin and pinched, and clad in rags, wait for what she will bring home.

So long as contributions to the Belgian Relief Fund keep up, each will get three slices of bread and a pint of soup a day. If givings fall off, some must go hungrier, or starve!

You can save at least one from such a fate! $1.00 a month—less than 4c. a day—will do it. $2.50 a month, in the hands of the Belgian Relief Commission, will feed an average family. Can you spare that much or more? Can you, with a clear conscience, withhold it? How many families will you undertake to feed till the war is over?

Whatever you feel you can give, send your subscription weekly, monthly, or in one lump sum to Local or Provincial Committees, or

NO PEACE UNTIL MILITARISM IS ENTIRELY CRUSHED OUT

Britain When Losing Did Not Squeal—Winning, She Will Tolerate No Intervention—France and Russia Will Stick, Says Lloyd George

(Toronto Star)

There is no end of the war in sight. Any step at this time by the United States, the Vatican or any other neutral in the direction of peace would be construed by England as an unneutral, pro-German move.

The United Press is able to make these statements on no less authority than that of the British man of the hour, the Rt. Hon. David Lloyd George Secretary of State for War.

Britain has only began to fight; the British Empire has invested thousands of its best lives to purchase future immunity for civilization; this investment is too great to be thrown way," was the Welsh statesman's size-up of the situation.

More than at any time since the beginning of the war there is evidenced throughout England a popular suspicion toward America, a suspicion that did not exist a year ago.

This feeling appears directly attributable to the notion generally entertained by the man on the street that President Wilson might be induced to butt in for the purpose of stopping the European war. A similar suspicion of Spain and the Vatican is also manifest.

Fighting For Fair Play.

Mr. Lloyd George was asked to give the United Press in the simplest possible language the British attitude toward the recent peace talk.

'Simple language?" he queried, with a half smile. Then he thought a moment.

Sporting terms are pretty well understood wherever English is spoken," he replied. 'I am quite sure they will be understood in America.

"Well, then, the British soldier is a good sportsman. He enlisted in this war in the sporting spirit—the best sense of that term. He went in to see fair play to a small nation trampled upon by a bully. He is fighting for fair play in international dealings.

"He has fought as a good sportsman by the thousands. He has died like a sportsman. He has never asked anything more than a sporting chance, and hasn't always had that. When he couldn't get it he didn't quit. He played the game. He did not squeal, and certainly he never asked anyone to squeal for him."

No Time Now To Let Up

"Under the circumstances, the British, now that the fortunes of the game have turned a bit, are not disposed to stop because of the squealing done by the Germans, or for the Germans by probably well-meaning, but misguided sympathizers and humanitarians. For two years the British soldier had a bad time—no one knows so well as he what a bad time it was. He was sadly inferior in equipment. On the average he was inferior in training. He saw the Allied cause beaten all about the ring, but he did not appeal to either the spectators or a referee to stop the fight on the ground that it was brutal; nor did he ask to have the rules changed.

"He took his punishment. Even when beaten like a dog, he was a game dog. When forced to take refuge in a trench, when too badly used up to carry the fight to the enemy, he hung on without whining, fought off every attack, bided his time, endured without wincing, worked without flagging."

WILL FIGHT TO FINISH

Mr. Lloyd George's eyes snapped as sitting at his desk at the War Office he tilted back his chair and studied the ceiling as if seeing there a picture of Tommy's game fight in the early stages of the contest.

"And at this time, under these conditions, what was the winning German doing?" he asked, "Was he worrying over the terrible slaughter? No! He was talking of annexing Belgium and Poland as a result of his 'victory' and while he was remaking the map of Europe without the slightest regard for the wishes of his people, the British people were preparing to pay the price we knew must be paid for the time to get the army ready.

"It is one thing to look back on the pounding the British soldier took the first two years of the war, but a different thing to look forward as he did and know the beating couldn't be avoided during these months when it seemed the finish of the British army might come quickly.

"Germany elected to make it a finish fight with England. The British soldier was ridiculed, held in contempt. Now we intend to see that Germany has her way. The fight must be to the finish—to a knockout."

CAN BE NO INTERVENTION

Dropping his colloquialisms, the half-smile fading from his face, Mr. Lloyd George continued in a more serious vein.

"The whole world including neutrals of the highest purposes and humanitarians with the best motives, must know that there can be no outside interference at this stage. Britain asked no intervention when she was not prepared to fight. She will tolerate none, now that she is prepared, until Prussian military despotism is broken beyond repair.

"There was no regret voiced in Germany over the useless slaughter. There were no tears by German sympathizers when the few thousand British citizens who never expected to be soldiers, who military education started only a few months previously, went out to be battered, bombed and gassed, to receive ten shells for every one they could fire—went out, fought and died like sportsmen without even a grumble.

"I repeat that there was no whimpering then, and the people who are now moved to tears at the thought of what is to come watched the early rounds of the unequal contest dry-eyed. None of the carnage and suffering of those Allied dead who stood the the full shock of the Prussian war machine before it began to falter.

WOULD BE CRUEL TO STOP NOW

"But in the British determination to carry the fight to a decisive finish, there is something more than the neutral demand for vengeance. The inhumanity, the pitilessness of the fighting that must come before a lasting peace is possible is not comparable with the cruelty that would be involved in stopping the war while there remains a possibility of civilization again being menaced from the same quarter.

"Peace now, or at any time before the final and complete elimination of this menace is unthinkable. No man and no nation with the slightest understanding of the temper of this ctizen army of Britions which took its terrible hammering without a whine or grumble, will attempt to call a halt now."

"But how long do you figure this can and must go on?" Mr. Lloyd George was asked.

"There are neither clocks or calendars in the British army today ," was his quick reply. "Time is the least vital factor. Only the result counts—not the time consumed in achieving it."

TIME IS IMMATERIAL

"It took England twenty years to defeat Napoleon and the first fifteen of these years were black with British defeat. It will not take twenty years to win this war, but, whatever time is required, it will be done, and I say this recognizing that we have only begun to win.

"There is no disposition on our side to fix the hour of ultimate victory after the first success. We have no delusion that the war is nearing an end. We haven't the slighest doubt as how it is to end."

"But what of France; is there the same determination there to stick to the end, the same idea of fighting until peace terms can be dictated by Germany's enemies?" Mr. Lloyd George was asked.

The Secretary carefully matched each finger of one hand with each finger of the other, and as he turned his chair slowly to gaze out over the khaki-dotted throng in Whitehall, it seemed the interruption had stemmed the flow of the conversation. There was a full moments' pause, and as the chair swung around again, the reply came in a voice and manner impressively grave.

FRANCE WILL STICK TO THE END

"The world at large has not yet begun to appreciate the magnificence, the nobility, the wonder of France," he said. "I had the answer to your enquiry given me a few days ago by a noble Frenchwoman. She had given four sons—She had one left to be given to France. In the course of my talk with her, I asked her if she didn't think the struggle had gone far enough. Her reply, without a moments hesitation, was, "the fight will never have gone far enough until we have made a repetition of this horror impossible." That mother was voicing the spirit of France.

"Yes, France will stick to the end. I suppose America's conception of France and the French soldier before the war was as erroneous as the British idea. I suppose you, too regarded the French soldier as ex-

HAZEL DAWN
FAMOUS PLAYERS STAR

Who appears at Griffin's Opera House Monday night, and at the Palace Theatre, Thanksgiving matinee, and Tuesday night in "THE GIRL."

MUSIC AND DRAMA

WONDERFUL SETTINGS FOR "THE FEUD GIRL"

Hazel Dawn Exquisite in Famous Players Mountain Drama

There is just one proper place to stage a motion picture of a big feud, and that is in the heart of the mountains. Therefore when it was decided by the Famous Players Film Company to star Hazel Dawn in "The Feud Girl," a tale of the south, Director Frederick Thomson immediately departed for the wild region in the northern part of Georgia, which has served as the scene of many a real feud in days gone by.

Into this country the motion picture camera has never before penetrated and when this Paramount Picture appears at Griffin's Opera House Monday night, and at the Palace Theatre Thanksgiving Matinee, and Tuesday night, there will flash upon the screen jagged, forest-covered peaks which, so to speak, make their motion picture debut in this production. More interesting than the mountains themselves, however, are the hundreds of mountaineers who have gathered together to represent the warring Haddon and Bassett factions.

Many of these picturesque characters had actually played grim roles in the feuds which had taken place in that wild country, and it is interesting to know that the motion picture company did no have to supply a single one of its impromptu actors with the necessary weapons for the feudal scenes. They all came 'toting" their own guns and they were as charry of their use as the veriest debutante of her newest ball gown.

Into this wholly absorbing community there came the fresh beauty of Miss Dawn, who as Nell Haddon, the favorite daughter of the head of one of the big clans, makes one of the most delightfully appealing and strongly sympathetic characters which has ever been portrayed on the screen.

Nell is a truly remarkable, girl—a real daughter of nature in her rustic simplicity and in her elemental character. Hers is a strong, positive nature, as forceful in its hates as in its loves. All her life she has been taught to hate the Bassetts with whom her father's clan has waged relentless war for the possession of Iron Mountain, a valuable property which lies between the disputants.

Through the influence of the railroad her father is induced to agree to make peaceful overtures to the Bassett leaders and offer the hand of Nell as a pledge of good faith. But Nell rebels at her father's scheme and declares that she will wed any Haddon who can win her by lot rather than marry a Bassett. But Nell's plan proves to be only the beginning of a new trouble and anguish for her as the lottery provides her, not with a Haddon for a husband, but one of the hated Bassetts.

The results of this marriage are fraught with dangers and trials for Nell, but they are better seen than described. In support of Miss Dawn there appear Irving Cummings, Arthur Morrison, Hardee Kirkland, Russell Simpson, and others who are equally well known on the screen.

In addition to the above five part offering the third episode of the popular Selig Athletic series will be exhibited along with a new and very amusing Bray Komedy Kartoon.

"TWIN BEDS" AT GRIFFIN'S-TUESDAY

Belleville theatre-goers are not likely to cease laughing for a long time over "Twin Beds" which comes to Griffin's Opera House, Tuesday night for its first local presentation, under the direction of A. S. Stern and Company. "Twin Beds" for one solid year had New Yorkers in a whirlwind of merriment and now Londoners are simply laughing their heads off over the play.

"Twin Beds" is just about the funniest play that ever was written. From the first night there never was any doubt of its success. Laughter, which at first it is said to be sporadic and intermittent grows and grows till no one attempts to hold out against it and the theatre is said to be at their loudest some little time before the finish of the comedy but they endure till long after the curtain is down. That is the general verdict of this delicious comedy. Is there any need to say much more about it? "Twin Beds" is a play that you will enjoy without feeling afterwards that you were a fool. It is joyously ridiculous. Seats are selling fast.

Doctor Tells How to Strengthen Eyesight 50 Per Cent in One Week's Time in Many Instances

A Free Prescription You Can Have Filled and Use at Home.

Philadelphia, Pa., Do you wear glasses? Are you a victim of eye strain or other eye weaknesses? If so, you will be glad to know that according to Dr. Lewis there is real hope for you. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored through the principle of this wonderful free prescription. One man says, after trying it: "I was almost blind; could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without any glasses and my eyes do not water any more. At night they would pain dreadfully; now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for fifteen days everything seems clear. I can even read fine print without glasses." It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by following the simple rules. Here is the prescription: Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Drop one Bon-Opto tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and allow to dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes two to four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start and inflammation will quickly disappear. If your eyes are bothering you, even a little, take steps to save them now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have been saved if they had cared for their eyes in time.

Note: Another prominent Physician to whom the above article was submitted, said: "Bon-Opto is a very remarkable remedy. Its constituent ingredients are well known to eminent eye specialists and widely prescribed by them. The manufacturers guarantee it to strengthen eyesight 50 per cent. in one week's time in many instances or refund the money. It can be obtained from any good druggist and is one of the very few preparations I feel should be kept on hand for regular use in almost every family." Sold by J. use in almost every family." It is sold in Belleville by J. S. McKeown, W. H. Lattimer and druggists generally.

Nights of Sleep vs. Nights of Agony

Verdict Favors D. D. D.

It is foolish to lie awake all the long night through with that intolerable itching caused by Eczema and await the coming of the day. D. D. D. Prescription is made for you if you are a sufferer. It will cool that hot, inflamed and itching skin, you will be able to rest at night, awake in the morning refreshed and life will be worth living. We know it will do all these things, as we have testimonials from many sufferers right among your neighbors. Try a bottle and you will not regret it. Come in to-day.

WEDDING BELLS.

SWAYNE—MORDEN

On Wednesday, Oct. 4, a quiet wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Morden, Shannonville, when their only daughter Grace Gertrude, was united in marriage to Rev. E. F. Swayne of Hybla.

Only the immediate relatives of the contracting parties were present to witness the ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. J. N. Clarry, B.A., B.D., of Belleville, assisted by the Rev. J. S. Robeson, of Shannonville.

At two o'clock to the strains of the wedding march beautifully played by Mrs. (Rev.) Clarry, the bride entered the drawing-room leaning on the arm of her father, and took her place beneath a beautiful arch of fall maple leaves.

She looked beautiful in a gown of white satin and lace, and wore the bridal veil fastened with orange blossoms and carrying a beautiful bouquet of roses and carnations. At the close of the ceremony a buffet luncheon was served. The gifts were both numerous and costly, showing the esteem in which the bride was held. The choir, also her Sunday School class, met and presented her with beautiful cut glass dishes.

Mr. and Mrs. Swayne motored to Belleville where they took the train for Toronto and Western points. The bride travelling in a suit of navy blue serge with hat to match. Their many friends join in wishing them many years of happy married life. On their return, they will reside at Hybla, where the groom is the residing pastor.

STRANGERS ENTER RESIDENCE

At about four o'clock this Saturday morning a residence situated near the Grand Trunk Railway station was entered by some unknown person who took the trouble to light the wood fire and help himself to eatables which were left on the table. A lamp in the house was also lit. The inmates heard a party walking about the rooms but thought it was a boarder who had come in from his train. The stranger walked out leaving the lamp burning and the back door open.

No Peace Until Militarism Is Entirely Crushed Out

"Nothing was more unwarranted than the popular idea of the Frenchman as a poor defensive fighter. History never justified this idea, but there will be a new appraisement, a new appreciation when the real heroic, nobility and genius of the defence of Verdun is fully understood. France has fought the longest wars of any nation of Europe and her history itself is assurance enough that she will hold to the end.

"With the British it will be the sporting spirit that will animate the army to the last, fair play the motive—fair fight the method. With the French it will be that fiercely burning pariotism that will sustain the army to the end regardless of when the end may come."

RUSSIA WILL GO THROUGH

"And Russia?"

"Will go through to the death!" interrupted Mr. Lloyd George. Russia has been slow to arouse, but she will be equally slow to quiet. The resentment of the Russian against having been forced into the war is deep.

"He has neither forgotten nor forgiven the fact that this happened when he was ill prepared and unsuspecting. No, there are and will be no quitters among the Allies.

"Never again!" has become our battle cry. At home the suffering and sorrow is great and is growing. As to the war zone, its terrors are indescribable. I have just visited the battlefields of France; I stood, as it were at the door of Hell I saw myriads marching into the furnace, I saw some coming out of it, scorched and mutilated.

"This ghastliness must never be re-enacted on this earth, and one method at least of answering that end is the infliction of such punishment upon the perpetrators of this outrage against humanity that the temptatation to emulate their exploits will be eliminated from the hearts of the evil-minded amongst the rulers of men."

TENDERS FOR PULPWOOD AND PINE LIMIT

Tenders will be received by the undersigned up to and including the 1st day of December next for the right to cut pulpwood and pine timber on a certain area situated on the Pic River and other territory adjacent thereto, in the District of Thunder Bay.

Tenderers shall state the amount per cord on pulpwood, and per thousand feet, board measure, on pine, that they are prepared to pay as a bonus in addition to dues of 40 cents per cord for spruce, and 20 cents per cord for other pulpwoods, and $2.00 per thousand feet, board measure for pine, or such other rates as may from time to time be fixed by the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council, for the right to operate a pulp mill and a paper mill on or near the area referred to.

Such tenderers shall be required to erect a mill or mills or on near the territory and to manufacture the wood into pulp and paper in the Province of Ontario—the paper mill to be erected when directed by the Minister of Lands, Forests and Mines.

Parties making tender will be required to deposit with their tender a marked cheque, payable to the Honorable the Treasurer of the Province of Ontario, for twenty-five thousand dollars ($25,000), which amount will be forfeited in the event of their not entering into agreement to carry out conditions, etc. The said $25,000 will be applied on account of bonus dues as they accrue, but the regulation dues, as mentioned above, will require to be paid in the usual manner as returns of cutting of wood and timber are received.

The highest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

For particulars as to description of territory, capital to be invested, etc., apply to the undersigned.

G. H. FERGUSON,
Minister of Lands, Forests and Mines.

IMPRESSIVE SERVICES AT ST. ANDREWS CHURCH

A Memorial Service For Lieut. E. Hyman, Privates Walter Craig George and Raymond Matthews, Who Have Sacrificed Their Lives For King and Country

At St. Andrews Presbyterian church on Sunday a memorial service was held in connection with the regular service. The memorial service was for Lieut. Eugene Hyman, Private Walter Craig, Privates George and Raymond Matthew, who have been killed in action. The two latter were sons of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Matthew of Calgary, who when living in Belleville, were members of St. Andrew's church. A large congregation was present at the impressive service. TThe pastor, Rev. A. S. Kerr, officiated, and previous to referring to the death of the departed heroes, preached a most appropriat discourse, the subject of which was "God's Plan For Every Life." The text was from Exodus 2nd Chapter and 10th verse.

And the child grew, and she brought him unto Pharaoh's daughter, and he became her son. And she called his name Moses, and she said, because I drew him out of the water.

The divine in the discourse said that God had a plan for every life, and His was a definite plan. He had a definite plane for Moses, and it was carried out. Just as God's hand is at work in nations and men, so it is with individuals. Moses was delivered in a critical hour, when his life was in jeopardy, and he was placed in a place of security. How did he come to be delivered? This child Moses was a goodly child, fair to God. He was extraordinary beautiful and seemingly divinely. The mothers heart protested against the child being destroyed by the order of Herod. Every child is wonderful to its mother, more beautiful and attractive. As God had a plan for the future of Moses' life, so is the future of all children. His mother had faith, and bravely resisted and thwarted the proclamation of the king. It was her faith that accomplished the childs deliverance. The faith of this mother was the agency used by God in the deliverance of Moses. A mother's faith, what is it? and a mother's prayer, what an influence? A mother's persistent faith has been the means of accomplishing God's plans. Although the mother had genius to plan, behind it all was the hand of God. God even causes the wrath of man to praise Him. He usese divers ways to have praise accorded Him. Let us remember this that if we find ourselves in life and existence it is because God wants us to live and has a mission for us to live. What is of no use is cast aside. Individual man has a place and has a part in God's all wise Providence. We must utilize our energies for the accomplishment of His purposes. If we refuse to let our eyes see, the time will come when we cannot see, so with other members of the body we do not use. Let us be convinced of this. Let us work until life's work is accomplished. How are we to understand our place and calling in life? This may be difficult to answer as we are not alike constituted. Consult your own nature and capacity. There are no two leaves or trees alike; all are different. So it is with human life. We are not alike, but endowed with different capacities. We must know what we are able to do and do it. There are those who say they are handicapped by environments, and my life is not like other people's lives. If we would known what God's purposes are in regard to us, we should consult others. It is a good thing to see ourselves as our friends see us. the importance of friendship can't be too much emphasized. Let us depend upon the wise counsel of friends. Let us above all consult God and our life's plan will be in harmony with Him. Nothing that is in harmony with the holy will of God will prosper. He will guide us ino the whole truth about Him and about ourselves. Let us consult Him and He will reveal our mission in life. Let us not be impatient. God does not reveal all at once, but it unfolds like the petals of the flower and like the early dawn brightens to the noon day hour. We know not the future, but we can look back and see what God has done for us in the past. Let us be cheerful and courageous. Let us wait on God, follow His guiding hand, and we will live a happy and well-ordered life.

MEMORIAL SERVICE

At the conclusion of the sermon an appropriate hymn was sung, after which Rev. Mr. Kerr referred to the departed heroes.

Lieut. Hyman, who enlisted for oversea service, was in his youth a Sunday School scholar of St. Andrews church. He went away from the city and enlisted out west. He was popular and deservedly so.

Walter Craig was well known in the city, and also among the congregation of St. Andrew's church. He had always been identified with the church. He enlisted from here and was killed whilst he (the speaker) was away attending the General Assembly. He was a fine young man and possessed of sterling qualities. In June last he met his death.

Privates George and Raymond Matthews were the only sons of a family who were members of St. Andrew's church, but now reside in the west. They were exceptionally good boys, and were in relationship with the church. They enlisted out west. George died of wounds and Raymond was killed.

We mourn the passing away of these four soldiers, and loved ones are called upon to bear a heavy burden. They were loyal and gave their best for King and country. While words of sympathy seem vain and empty we extend to the loved ones our deepest sympathy in the loss they have sustained.

At the conclusion of the remarks by the pastor a hymn was sung and the congregation remained standing while the organist, Miss Fenn, played the Dead March, which was most impressive.

During the service Miss Baum sang sweetly and in fine voice the solo, "Jesus Lover of My Soul." The singing of the National Anthem brought the services to a close.

Counsel Refused By Montgomery

Accused Man at Madoc Declines Lawyer's Aid—Brothers on Bad Terms

MADOC, Oct. 10.—After examining fifteen witnesses at the coroner's inquest into the cause of death of William Montgomery of the 10th concession of Madoc, which opened yesterday afternoon at Hart's School house, four miles away, an adjournment was made until Thursday night. At the close of to-night's sitting Crown Attorney Carnew of Belleville stated that he will put the prisoner, Joseph Montgomery, brother of the deceased, in the witness box at next hearing when Provincial Inspector Reburn will produce some new evidence. "I want to give the accused man the benefit of all the evidence it is possible to adduce before asking him to take the stand," said the Crown Prosecutor.

The prisoner has declined to make any statement to the Crown officials except to say: "I am not afraid of the outcome of the case because you cannot prove an innocent man guilty."

The recipient made a most suitable reply o the address and thanked them for the beautiful gift.

AUTO TURNS TURTLE WITH FATAL RESULTS

George Washington Palmer, The Victim of Deplorable Accident Other Inmates of Car More or Less Seriously Injured

As the result of a Ford automobile turning turtle on Sunday, a life has been sacrificed and other occupants of the car were more or less seriously injured. The victim of the distressing accident is Mr. George Washington Palmer, of Cannifton village, Thurlow Township.

It appears that on Sunday morning between the hours of 8 and 9 o'clock, Mr. Palmer owner of the car, and who was driving same, left Cannifton to visit friends in Madoc Township. He was accompanied by his wife, and four other persons namely; Mr. and Mrs. Ryan Kellar, of Cannifton, Mrs. Stephen Smith, of Belleville, mother of Mrs. Kellar, and a young son of Mrs. Kellar. All went well until near the completion of the journey. About two and a half miles east of Madoc on the Tweed road, there is a hill which is quite steep. They were descending this hill when the unfortunate accident occurred. At the foot of the hill the main travelled road takes a decided turn to the left and there was where the trouble occurred. From some cause the auto swerved off from the right and run up against an embankment, resulting in it turning turtle. Some of the occupants where thrown out, and whilst others including Mr. Palmer were beneath the wreck. Near by the accident was a residnce and from there help was secured.

When rescued from beneath the car it was apparent that Mr. Palmer had been severely injured as he was unable to use the lower portion of his body. The other inmates of the car were able to walk to the house. As soon as possible Mr. Palmer was conveyed to a house near by, and medical aid wes summoned from Madoc and Foxboro. Drs. Eggleton and Bert Faulkner responded to the call. Upon a casual examination it was ascertained that Mr. Palmer had sustained a fracture of the neck rendering his body perfectly helpless. His case was hopeless, and he lingered until 2.30 Monday afternoon when he passed away.

Mrs. Palmer sustained severe injuries to her hips and spin and was also bruised about the body. Today her condition is by no means favorable. She was last evening conveyed to her home in Cannifton.

Mr. Kellar had two ribs broken, his nose was smashed and he was otherwise bruised about the body.

Mrs. Kellar, her mother and her young son fortunately escaped injuries

The remains of Mr. Palmer were subsequently brought to Tickell and Sons undertaking establishment in this city and after being prepared for burial was taken to his late home in Cannifton.

THE VICTIM

Mr. George Washington Palmer, the victim of the accident was well known and highly esteemed not only in the Township where he resided, but throughout the County of Hastings. He was born in Thurlow in 1845 being thus 71 years of age. He was a son of the late Samuel Palmer. Deceased all his life had resided in this vicinity. For many years he successfully conducted a general store at Cannifton and Corbyville. He was for two years in the grocery business in Belleville and for a lige number of years was lessee of the Belleville Market. Of late years he had lived a retired life. Mr. Palmer was identified with a number of fraternal societies, being a member of the Belleville Lodge, 123, A.F.&A.M. Home Circle, Orange Lodge and A.O.U.W. of Cannifton. In religion deceased was a Methodist. Mr. Palmer was a most genial man and made friends wherever he went. His untimely death will be sincerely regretted bya ll who knew him. In addition to the widow one daughter Mrs. Edward Shorey of Cannifton survives. Three brothers are living namely, R. R. Palmer, of Corbyville, Samuel, of Rochester and another who resides in the States. The two sisters are Mrs. Geo. Saunders, of Havelock and Mrs Robert Ross, of Toronto.

Gunner Boyle joined the 34th Battery of Belleville and left Kingston on June 15th, 1915, for overseas. He was only 19 years of age, and a young man who had many friends in this city. To the bereaved parents will be extended the heartfelt sympathy of all citizens. A brother, Sergeant-Major Gordon Boyle, is upon active service.

POETS AS PUNSTERS.

Even Shakespeare and Milton Broke Into This Form of Humor.

Shakespeare was an inveterate punster, and Dr. Johnson in his preface to an edition to the poet's works deplores his habit of punning on serious occasions. Hamlet is made to pun when he asks the gravedigger:

"Whose grave's this?"

"Mine, sir," answers the clown.

Hamlet replies:

"I think it be thine indeed, for thou liest in't," and adds later, "Thou dost lie in't to be in't and say it is thine."

To King Richard's question, "What comfort, man? How is't with ancient Gaunt?" Shakespeare makes Gaunt reply: "Old Gaunt indeed and gaunt in being old. Within me grief has kept a tedious fast. And who abstains from meat that is not gaunt?"

Milton is the last poet one would think to be guilty of punning, and yet he once wrote a punning epitaph upon a carrier who plied between Cambridge and London and who died after losing his trade on account of the plague.

This carrier was the Hobson whose "choice" is so famous. He used to hire out horses, but travelers had to take the horse Hobson offered or none, so that "Hobson's choice" came to mean no choice at all.

The whole poem, written on the death of this carrier, is full of puns. One passage runs:

Rest that gives all men life gave him his death,
And too much breathing put him out of breath;
Nor were it contradiction to affirm
Too long vacation hastened on his term.

Cowper made a pun which has become quite famous. In the poem describing the ride of John Gilpin, who had to go where his horse took him and eventually arrived at the house of a friend from whom the horse had been borrowed, Gilpin says:

I came because your horse would come.
And if I well forbode.
My hat and wig will soon be here.
They are upon the road.

Tom Hood's humorous poetry is full of puns. In "The Lady's Dream" he writes:

They talked together like two egotists
In conversation all made up of eyes.

And in "The Mermaid of Margate" he says:

On Margate beach, where the sick one roams
And the sentimental reads,
Where the maiden flirts and the widow comes
Like the ocean—to cast her weeds.

But examples could be multiplied indefinitely. Hood's best known pun reads:

His death, which happened in his berth,
At forty odd befell.
They went and told the sexton, and
The sexton tolled the bell.

CHURCHILL GETS CREDIT FOR TANKS

He Urged Building of the New Armored Fortresses.

ADAPTATION OF TRACTORS

New Machines of War Were His Pet Enthusiasm for a Long Time Before He Persuaded War Office to Build Them—They Are Far More Effective Than Zeppelins.

THE British War Minister, David Lloyd George, gives credit to Winston Spencer Churchill, the former First Lord of the Admiralty, for the new armored cars which have appeared in the British lines on the Somme front. In an interview Mr. Lloyd George said:

"It is really Winston Churchill more than anyone else to whom credit for the new armored cars is due. He took up with enthusiasm the idea of making them a long time ago, and met with many difficulties. He converted me, and at the Ministry of Munitions we went ahead and made them.

"The Admiralty experts were invaluable and gave the greatest possible assistance. They, of course, are experts in the matter of armor plating. Major Stern, business man at the Ministry of Munitions, had charge of the work of getting them built and he did the task very well. Colonel Swinton (of the Intelligence Department of the General Staff) and others also did valuable work."

WINSTON CHURCHILL.

Asked for his personal opinion about the cars, the War Minister said:

"We must not expect too much from them. But so far they have done very well and reflect credit on those responsible for them. The enemy has by no means a monopoly of inventive ingenuity."

The original inventor remains undisclosed, but the Associated Press is informed by a reliable authority that the new war machine is an adaptation of the caterpillar tractor. According to this authority the invention was brought to the attention of the War Office early in the war. Great Britain declined to finance the project unless the machines were manufactured in England.

These armored ships on land are mounted on four caterpillar tractors, which not only make the machine incapable of being capsized, but enable it to cross ditches. The idea of using a caterpillar tractor has been worked on for the last ten years, and the problem was solved finally by equipping the machine with engines of such tremendous horsepower that they are able to pull the heaviest harvesting machines and gang-plows over extremely rough ground.

The man who brought the plans to England declines to permit the use of his name, declaring that for business reasons he does not desire to dim the glory of those claiming the credit. He says he has plans for a tractor which will probably be more effective than the tanks.

The Times correspondent at British Headquarters, referring to the part played by tanks, says:

"In one short hour they did more military service, killed more Germans in uniform, and had greater influence on the war than all the Zeppelins have ever done. It may be they will not continue their success indefinitely. The surprise, of course, was a factor in their formidableness.

"It may be that before this war is done we, the Germans, and all the Allies alike shall be building other monsters, huger and each more horrible than the last, till there will be land battles of whole fleets of dreadnoughts and terrestrial monitors, but what is obvious at the moment is we have done it first this time. We have used nothing which is not entirely civilized, and in accord with every convention that was ever signed, and we have scored heavily."

His Own Defence.

A story is being told in the London clubs about the one and only G. B.S. Shaw drew up, with his usual ingenuity, three possible lines of defence for Sir Roger Casement. One of these was based on the plea of insanity. When Casement saw the manuscript he rejected it at once as quite out of the question. "No, no," he said, "Shaw must have thought he was writing his own defence."

Nest in Nosebag.

A bantam which had been missed by Mr. David Richardson, of Hailsham, Sussex, for a week was found sitting on six eggs in a nosebag which was hanging on a wall in the stable.

The Feud Girl Well Received

When Hazel Dawn, the Famous Players screen star, portraying Nell Haddon, the woodsman's daughter, declared she would never marry a Bassett, and offered herself in marriage to any one of the Haddon clan rather than be drawn among the hated people, she meant what she said, and fought to a finish for her rights.

A new mining engineer, sent from the eastern office of a big corporation, under the title of Dave Rand, and impersonated by Irving Cummings, happened to be in the crowd, and took the young lady at her offer. An admirer of the girl objected to strangers interfering, but as he was young, good looking and unmarried, there was no reasonable excuse for his being barred. Sticks were selected by Nell, the longest to take the girl, and, Nell manipulating them to her liking, the young engineer won, but was compelled to fight to hold his bride-to-be. Then followed as pretty a wood fight as could be asked for, Dave winning easily. Marriage, followed, but murder would out, and Dave Rand proved to be the runaway son of the hated Bassett, who had made good in city life, but had not been recognized as Nell's childhood sweetheart, whom she had driven away because he was a Bassett. To be sure, there was trouble aplenty, Nell slapping her husbands face, returning to her father's home, and refusing to see him. But love had struck deep into the girl-heart, and an occasional peek through the window of a cabin occupied by Dave, could not be foregone, events following which were extremely interesting, and finally culminating in a reconciliation, Nell deciding that his people should be her people. The closing scenes are most absorbing., particularly the ending of the Bassett-Haddon feud, brought along by the union of the young people.

This captivating play, with several shorter humorous productions, will be repeated at the Palace Theatre this evening.

"The White Flour Pinch"—have you felt it? With the advancing price of wheat "the seven-cent loaf is doomed," say the bakers. In its place we have the eight-cent loaf—in many cities only the sixteen-cent loaf. A loaf of white flour bread is not a complete ration. However wholesome and pure, it does not supply all the proteids the human body needs. In Shredded Wheat Biscuit you have all the body-building nutriment in the whole wheat grain prepared in a digestible form. It is always the same price, always the same high quality. Eat it for breakfast with milk or cream or with fruits.

If Stomach Hurts Drink Hot Water

A Physician's Advice

If dyspeptics, sufferers from gas, wind or flatulence, stomach acidity or sourness, gastric catarrh, heartburn, etc., would take a teaspoonful of pure bisurated magnesia in half a glass of hot water immediately after eating, they would soon forget they were ever afflicted with stomach trouble, and doctors would have to look elsewhere for patients." In explanation of these words a well known New York physician stated that most forms of stomach trouble are due to stomach acidity and fermentation of the food contents of the stomach combined with an insufficient blood supply to stomach. Hot water increases the blood supply and bisurated magnesia instantly neutralizes the excessive stomach acid and stops food fermentation, the combination of the two, therefore, being marvelously successful and decidedly preferable to the use of artificial digestants, stimulants or medicines for indigestion.

JOHN STREET JOTS

The Thank Offering Meeting of the W. M. S. which was held on last Wednesday evening was a great success both in the matter of attendance and program. The address was given by Mr. Kipp, of Toronto, and the offering including a life membership amounted to over a hundred dollars.

many of our people were absent from the city. The musical program at both services was exceptionally good. A solo was given in the morning by Mrs. H. A. Singer, and another in the evening by Miss Florence McLeod, B. A. of Brighton. At the evening service Mr. Currie suggested some new things for Thanksgiving among which

4—The growing assurances of world-

1—The success to the cause of the Allies.

3—The amazing spirit of voluntary sacrifices in Canada.

Mrs. Rev. K. C. Currie was called to peace.

5—The promise of a larger place in world-service for Canada.

6—The measure of hope and courage which inspire the people to assume the larger responsibilities which come.

7—The Temperance Legislation for Ontario and the progress of the Temperance movement from ocean to ocean

8—The religious spirit of the people.

THIS IS THE 804TH DAY THE BRITISH EMPIRE HAS BEEN AT WAR WITH GERMANY.

WHAT THE CARLETON VICTORY MEANS

It is doubtful if the results of the by-election in Carleton N.B., was received with more satisfaction among Conservatives than among those Liberals who still look back with regret upon the lost ideals that lit the path of Liberalism a quarter of a century ago. Those Liberals—and there are stiil many of them left in Canada—are becoming more and more restless under a leadership that points persistently away from the path of decency, of party self-respect and of national honor.

These men know that the presence of such men as Carvell in public life and the adoption of such political tactics as those practised by Carvell, are not good things for Canada. They have had some evidence of the Carvell kind of patriotism, a kind that has never been considered suitable for adoption generally by Canadians, even in times of peace. They know well enough that the continued activities of Carvell and his like, thrown as they are in sharp relief against a background of great national stress and effort are placing upon Liberalsism a burden which will weigh their party down for many years to come.

If this condition was the fault of Carvell alone, it would not mean so much, and decent Liberals might have some ground for hope of better things. Carvell may not be to blame personally for what he is. His disposition may be an evidence rather of suitability of soil rather than of careful and panistaking cultivation. The tactics which he employs are only ones he knows. Carvell, left alone, would be a study in psychology rather than a political problem.

The real trouble lies in the readiness of the Liberal leaders not only to tolerate the poisonous presence of this man, but to welcome it, and to accept his services while knowing the nature of them. This, the attitude of the party leaders, constitutes the real menace to Liberalism.

There may be some ground to hope that after the fiasco which came of the Carvell campaign in Carleton, the futility, not to say the danger, of depending upon the Carvell methods, may open the eyes of Laurier and his advisers, who have let Carevll run amuck so long. It is too much to expect that these men will curb Carvell through any genuine conversion to ideals of political cleanliness. There is an old proverb that you cannot make a silk purse out of a sow's ear. What is possible, however, is that Laurier and his ring may conclude, after Carleton, that Carvell and his "kultur" are not efficient, that they cannot deliver the goods. In this way, and without hoping for a change of heart, a change of metnod may be looked for. Such a change must needs be for the better, because there is nothing lower known in politics that the orgies of political degeneracy practised by Carvell with the sanction and approval of his chief.

The election of two Conservatives by substantial majorities in the provincial by-election in Carleton, was a direct personal defeat for Carvell. Although a provincial contest, he made the fight his own, introduced federal issues, and sought to secure the defeat of the Conservative candidates for the purpose of damaging the prestige of the Borden Government. All that be could do to that end he did. There is no need to describe what he did.

It must be remembered that he had a clear field. He was in his own county, working among the people who sent him to Ottawa, and that the federal government left him to the full enjoyment of every local advantage that he could possess. So far as the Ottawa government was concerned there was absolutely no interference in the Carleton contest. So far as the Ottawa Opposition was concerned, there was interference, Carvell being liberally supported in the fight that he was waging. He was beaten, and beaten badly.

This is a significant result, but it is doubly so when Richmond is remembered. The two men chiefly responsible for the slanderous attack upon the munitions industry of Canada were Carvell and sis puppet, G. W. Kyte, of Richmond, N.S. Since that attack has been made there have been elections in both Richmond and Carleton. In both these constituencies the Liberal nominees have gone down to defeat.

Ottawa Free Press: The scheme of Sir Thomas White, Minister of Finance, to secure further investment by small bank depositors in government war loans by means of "war saving certificates" should be very effective. The minister proposes to encourage participation in government loans by the small investor by the method of having established in the branches of chartered banks and Post Office saving banks "war savings accounts" from which, when a certain sum has been accumulated, there may be purchased on attractive terms a government loan Certificate. Not only should this scheme assist largely in having the Dominion itself as far as possible, but it should do a great deal to encourage thrift among the public and stimulate interest in public affairs. We would have liked to see the last war loan split up into smaller bonds, but this plan of the minister should have an equally desirable result.

Monetary Times: For a long is of the opinion that the unhorsing of Prussian militarism can and will be accomplished "from within" by the German democracy. He says that "a German democracy will not plot and plan wars, as Prussian militarism plotted wars," and adds "but this salvation of Germany must come from within and cannot be imposed from without." That is unless the German people choose to ditch the Hohenzollerns after the war and to adopt a democratic form of government, the Hohenzollerns must stay. This seems to be a fair inference from our Foreign Minister's statement, and does not sound very convincing as a method of carrying out the Asquith policy when the latter delcared in Parliament last February "we shall never sheathe the sword * * * until the military domination of Prussia is wholly and finally destroyed."

Moullary Times: For a long time now, the business interests of the Canadian Pacific coast have urged the appointment of Canadian customs officer at New York. Eastern shippers cannot make use of the Panama Canal because they are not permitted to send their freight through New York in bond for water-carriage to Vancouver. This has had an unfavorable effect upon trade between Eastern and Western Canada. No good economic reason exists, so far as we can see, for a refusal of the Dominion Government to make the suggested appointment.

New York Sun: The British "tank" (converted Peoria farm motor) must be a huge success if the German Government intends, as Geneva reports, to complain to the International Red Cross that the use of the machines is contrary to the recognized methods of civilized warfare. How or why it would be difficult to understand. But such a protest would be protesque sc long as Germany is slaying innocents in England from the bomb deck of her Zeppelins.

Current Comment

Sir John S. Hendrie, Lieutenant-Governor of the Province at a meeting yesterday named a committee for the purpose of conferring with representatives of the Toronto and York patriotic fund association, the Toronto branch of the Red Cross Society and the British Red Cross Society, concerning the advisability of conducting a joint campaign to raise funds for the three organizations in Toronto.

Urging the Provincial Government to pass a law prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors in the Province of Quebec, a delegation composed of some three hundred citizens of the province, including church dignitaries, representatives of all temperance organizations, and all classes of society, waited on Sir Lomer Gouin and the members of the Provincial Cabinet in the Legislative Assembly chamber Wednesday afternoon.

The estimate is made that the result of the taxation legislation of the late session of the U. S. Congress will be to add $18,000,000 a year to the sums collected from the people. The taxes on telegrams and telephone calls and some others that were annoying and only produced a moderate return were ended, but others that will yield some $200,000,000 a year were imposed.

The trade commission sent to Australia by the Government of Japan has met with a warm reception everywhere, the merchants and others encouraging the idea of more extensive business between the countries. The incilent is significant, when it is considered that it is only a few years since there was talk, in Australia, as in America, of a Japanese peril—Montreal Gazette.

THE GUEST OF QUESNAY

By Booth Tarkington

Copyright, 1907 1908, by the Ridgway Company

—"The Guest of Quesnay" tells the story of a pure woman's love and sacrifice for a debased, misled, pleasure loving man; it tells in captivating vein of picturesque Paris, too—of the cosmopolitan life of the famous capital. Its character sketches of continental society as well as peasantry are unmistakable in their picturing, and its romance, its mystery and its refreshing comedy give the same qualities to the novel that placed the author's "Monsieur Beaucaire" among the masterpieces of contemporaneous fiction.

CHAPTER I.

THERE are old Parisians who will tell you pompously that the boulevards, like the political cafes, have ceased to exist, but this means only that the boulevards no longer gossip of Louis Napoleon, the return of the Bourbons or of General Boulanger, for these highways are always too busily stirring with present movements not to be forgetful of their yesterdays. In the shade of the buildings and awnings the loungers, the lookers-on in Paris, the audience of the boulevard, sit at little tables, sipping coffee from long glasses, drinking absinth or bright colored sirups and gazing over the heads of throngs afoot at others borne along through the sunshine of the street in carriages, in cabs, in glittering automobiles or high on the tops of omnibuses.

From all the continents the multitudes come to join in that procession—Americans tagged with race cards and intending hilarious disturbances, pursed Americans worn with guidebook plodding, Chinese princes in silk, queer Antillean dandies of swarthy origin and fortune, ruddy English thinking of nothing, pallid English with upper teeth bared and eyes hungrily searching for signboards of tea rooms, over-Europeanized Japanese unpleasantly immaculate, burnoosed sheiks from the desert and red fezzed Semitic peddlers, Italian nobles in English tweeds, Sudanese negroes swaggering in frock coats, slim Spaniards, squat Turks, travelers, idlers, exiles, fugitives, sportsmen. All the tribes and kinds of men are tributary here to the Parisian stream, which on a fair day in spring already overflows the banks with its own much mingled waters—soberly clad burgesses, bearded, amiable and in no fatal hurry; well kept men of the world swirling by in miraculous limousines, legless cripples flopping on hands and leather pads, thin whiskered students in velveteen, walrus mustached veterans in broadcloths, keen faced old prelates, shabby young priests, cavalrymen in casque and cuirass, workingmen turned horse and harnessed to carts, sidewalk jesters, itinerant venders of questionable wares, shady loafers dressed to resemble gold showering America, motor cyclists in leather, hairy musicians, blue gendarmes, baggy red zouaves, purple faced, glazed hatted, scarlet waistcoated, cigarette smoking cabmen, calling one another "onions," "camels" and names even more terrible. Women are prevalent over all the concourse—fair women, dark women, pretty women, gilded women, haughty women, indifferent women, friendly women, merry women, fine women in fine clothes, rich women in fine clothes, poor women in fine clothes, worldly old women reclining befurred in electric landaulets, worldly old women hoidenishly trundling carts full of flowers, wonderful automobile women, quick glimpsed, in multiple veils of white and brown and sea green; women in rags and tags and women draped, coifed and befrilled in the delirium of maddened poet-milliners and the hasheesh dreams of ladies' tailors.

So if you sit at the little tables often enough—that is, if you become an amateur boulevardier—you begin to recognize the transient stars of the pageant, those to whom the boulevard allows a dubious and fugitive role of celebrity and whom it greets with a slight flutter, the turning of heads, a murmur of comment and the incredulous boulevard smile, which seems to say: "You see—madame and monsieur passing there. Evidently they think we still believe in them."

This flutter heralded and followed the passing of a white touring car with the procession one afternoon just before the Grand Prix, though it needed no boulevard celebrity to make the man who lolled in the tonneau conspicuous. Simply for that, notoriety was superfluous; so were the remarkable size and power of his car; so was the elaborate touring costume of flannels and pongee he wore; so was even the enameled presence of the dancer who sat beside him. His face would have done it without accessories.

My old friend George Ward and I had met for our aperitif at the Terrace Larue, by the Madeleine, when the white automobile came shaking its way craftily through the traffic. Turn- side, it was forced down to a snail's pace near the curb and not far from our table, where it paused, checked by a blockade at the next corner. I heard Ward utter a half suppressed guttural of what I took to be amazement, and I did not wonder.

The face of the man in the tonneau detached him to the spectator's gaze and singled him out of the concourse with an effect almost ludicrous in its incongruity. The hair was dark, lustrous and thick, the forehead broad and finely modeled and certain other ruinous vestiges of youth and good looks remained, but whatever the features might once have shown of honor, worth or kindly semblance had disappeared beyond all tracing in a blurred distortion. The lids of one eye were discolored and swollen almost together. Other traces of a recent battering were not lacking, nor was cosmetic evidence of a heroic struggle on the part of some valet of infinite pains to efface them. The nose lost outline in the discolorations of the puffed cheeks. The chin, tufted with a small imperial, trembled beneath a sagging gray lip.

The figure was fat, but loose and sprawling, seemingly without the will to hold itself together. In truth, the man appeared to be almost in a semistupor, and, contrasted with this powdered Silenus, even the woman beside him gained something of human dignity. At least, she was thoroughly alive, bold, predatory and, in spite of the gross embonpoint that threatened her, still savagely graceful. A purple veil dotted with gold floated about her hat, from which green dyed ostrich plumes cascaded down across a cheek enameled dead white. Her hair was plastered in blue-black waves, parted low on the forehead. Her lips were splashed a startling carmine, the eyelids painted blue, and from between lashes gummed into little spikes of blacking she favored her companion with a glance of carelessly simulated tenderness—a look all too vividly suggesting the ghastly calculations of a cook wheedling a chicken nearer the kitchen door.

"Who is it?" I asked, staring at the man in the automobile and not turning toward Ward.

"That is Mariana—'la bella Mariana la Murciana,'" George answered—"one of those women who come to Paris from the tropics to form themselves on the legend of the one great famous and infamous Spanish dancer who died a long while ago. Mariana did very well for a time. I've heard that the revolutionary societies intend striking medals in her honor. She's done worse things to royalty than all the anarchists in Europe. She danced at the Folie Rouge last week."

"That is Mariana—'la bella Mariana la Murciana.'"

"Thank you, George," I said gratefully. "I hope you'll point out the Louvre and the Eiffel tower to me some day. I didn't mean Mariana."

"What did you mean?"

What I had meant was so obvious that I turned to my friend in surprise.

"Oh!" He laughed sourly. "That carrion?"

"You seem to be an acquaintance."

"Everybody on the boulevard knows who he is," said Ward curtly, paused and laughed again with very little mirth. "So do you," he continued, "and as for my acquaintance with him—yes, I had once the distinction of being his rival in a small way, a way so small, in fact, that it ended in his becoming a connection of mine by marriage. He's Larrabee Harman."

That was a name somewhat familiar to readers of American newspapers even before its bearer was fairly out of college. But frolic degenerated into brawl and debauch. What had been scrapes for the boy became scandals for the man, and he gathered a more and more unsavory reputation until its like was not to be found outside a penitentiary. The crux of his career in his own country was reached during a midnight quarrel in Chicago, when he shot a negro gambler. Harman's wife left him, and the papers recorded her application for a divorce. She was George Ward's second cousin, the daughter of a Baltimore [illegible] belle in a season and town of belles and a delightful headstrong creature from all accounts. She had made a runaway match of it with Harman three years before, their affair having been earnestly opposed by all her relatives, especially by poor George, who came over to Paris just after the wedding in a miserable frame of mind.

Harman next began a trip round the world with an orgy which continued from San Francisco to Bangkok, where, in the company of some congenial fellow travelers, he interfered in a native ceremonial with the result that one of his companions was drowned. In Rome he was rescued with difficulty from a street mob that unreasonably refused to accept intoxication as an excuse for his riding down a child on his way to the hunt. Later we had been hearing from Monte Carlo of his disastrous plunges at roulette.

I still take three home newspapers, trying to follow the people I knew and the things that happen, and the ubiquity of so worthless a creature as Larrabee Harman in the columns I dredged for real news had long been a point of irritation to this present exile. Not only that. He had usurped space in the continental papers, and of late my favorite Parisian journal had served him to me with my morning coffee, only hinting his name, but offering him with that gracious satire characteristic of the Gallic journalist writing of anything American. And so this grotesque wreck of a man was well known to the boulevard—one of its sights. That was to be perceived by the flutter he caused, by the turning of heads in his direction and the low laughter of the people at the little tables. Three or four in the rear ranks had risen to their feet.

"Evidently!"

The dancer was aware of the flutter and called Harman's attention to it with a touch upon his arm and a laugh and a nod of her violent plumage.

At that he seemed to rouse himself somewhat. His head rolled heavily over upon his shoulder, the lids lifted a little from the red shot eyes, showing a strange pride when his gaze fell upon the many staring faces.

Ward pulled my sleeve.

"Come," he said, "let us go over to the Luxembourg gardens where the air is cleaner."

He has painted most of the very rich women of fashion who have come to Paris of late years, and he has become so prosperous, has such a polite celebrity and his opinions upon art are so conclusively quoted that the friendship of some of us who started with him has been dangerously strained.

His sister, Miss Elizabeth, looks after him now. She came with him when he returned to Paris after his disappointment in the unfortunate Harman affair, and she took charge of all his business as well as his social arrangements (she has been accused of a theory that the two things may be happily combined), making him lease a house in an expensively modish quarter near the Avenue du Bois de Boulogne. Miss Elizabeth is an instinctively fashionable woman, practical withal, and to her mind success should be not only respectable, but "smart."

It was George's habit to come often to see me. He always really liked the sort of society his sister had brought about him, but now and then there were intervals when it wore on him a little, I think. Sometimes he came for me in his automobile, and we would make a mild excursion to breakfast in the country, and that is what happened one morning about three weeks after the day when we had sought pure air in the Luxembourg gardens.

We drove out through the Bois and by Suresnes, striking into a roundabout road to Versailles beyond St. Cloud. It was June, a dustless and balmy noon, the air thinly gilded by a faint haze, and I know few things pleasanter than that road on a fair day of the early summer and no sweeter way to course it than in an open car.

"After all," said George, with a placid wave of the hand, "I sometimes wish that the landscape had called me. You outdoor men have all the health and pleasure of living in the open, and as for the work—oh, you fellows think you work, but you don't know what it means."

He indicated the white road running before us between open fields to a curve, where it descended to pass beneath an old stone culvert. Beyond stood a thick grove with a clear sky flickering among the branches. An old peasant woman was pushing a heavy cart round the curve, a scarlet handkerchief knotted about her head.

"You think it's easy?" I asked.

"Easy! Two hours ought to do it as well as it could be done—at least, the way you fellows do it!"

He was interrupted by an outrageous uproar, the grisly scream of a siren and the cannonade of a powerful exhaust, as a great white touring car swung round us from behind at a speed that sickened me to see and, snorting thunder, passed us.

"Seventy miles an hour!" gasped George. "Those are the— Oh, Lord! There they go!"

CHAPTER II.

SWINGING out to pass us and then sweeping in upon the reverse curve to clear the narrow arch of the culvert were too much for the white car. In the middle of the road, ten feet from the culvert, the old woman struggled frantically to get her cart out of the way. The howl of the siren frightened her perhaps, for she went to the wrong side. Then the shriek of the machine drowned the human scream as the automobile struck.

The great machine left the road for the fields on the right, reared, fell, leaped against the stone side of the culvert, apparently trying to climb it, stood straight on end, whirled backward in a half somersault, crashed over on its side, flashed with flame and explosion, and lay hidden under a cloud of dust and smoke.

The peasant's cart, tossed into a clump of weeds, rested on its side. A pair of smashed goggles crunched beneath my foot as I sprang out of Ward's car, and a big brass lamp had fallen in the middle of the road, crumpled like waste paper. Beside it lay a gold rouge box.

The old woman had somehow saved herself, or perhaps her saint had helped her, for she was sitting in the grass by the roadside wailing hysterically and quite unhurt. The body of a man lay in a heap beneath the stone archway, and from his clothes I guessed that he had been the driver of the white car. I say "had been" because there were reasons for needing no second glance to comprehend that the man was dead.

Ward meanwhile was dragging a woman out of the wreck, and after a moment I went to help him carry her into the fresh air. She pushed our hands angrily aside and completed the untanglement herself, revealing the scratched and smeared face of Mariana, the dancer.

"Oh, the pain!" she cried. "That imbecile! If he has let me break my leg! A pretty dancer I should be! I hope he is killed!"

Another automobile had already come up, and the occupants were hastily alighting. Ward shouted to the foremost to go for a doctor.

"I am a doctor," the man answered, advancing and kneeling quickly by the dancer. "And you—you may be of help yonder."

We turned toward the ruined car, where Ward's driver was shouting for us.

"What is it?" called Ward as we ran toward him.

"Monsieur," he replied, "there is some one under the tonneau here!"

From beneath the overturned tonneau projected the lower part of a man's leg clad in a brown puttee and a russet shoe. Ward's driver had brought his tools, had jacked up the car as high as possible, but was still unable to release the imprisoned body.

After considerable effort we rescued the imprisoned body, which stirred in pain.

I found that I was looking almost straight down into the upturned face of Larrabee Harman, and I cannot better express what this man had come to be and what the degradation of his life had written upon him than by saying that the dreadful thing I looked upon now was no more horrible a sight than the face I had seen, fresh from the valet and smiling in ugly pride at the starers, as he passed the terrace of Larue on the day before the Grand Prix.

We helped to carry him to the doctor's car and to lift the dancer into Ward's and to get both of them out again at the hospital at Versailles, where they were taken.

"Did it seem to you," said George finally, "that a man so frightfully injured could have any chance of getting well?"

"No," I answered. "I thought he was dying as we carried him into the hospital."

"So did I. The top of his head seemed all crushed in. Whew!" After a pause he added thoughtfully, "It will be a great thing for Louise."

Louise was the name of his second cousin, the girl who had done battle with all her family and then run away from them to be Larrabee Harman's wife. Remembering the stir that her application for divorce had made, I did not understand how Harman's death could benefit her, unless George had some reason to believe that he had made a will in her favor. However, the remark had been made more to himself than to me, and I did not respond.

The morning papers flared once more with the name of Larrabee Harman, and we read that he was lingering. And the dancer had been right. One of her legs was badly broken. She would never dance again.

A great many people keep their friends in mind by writing to them, but more do not, and Ward and I belong to the majority. After my departure from Paris I had but one missive from him, a short note written at the request of his sister, asking me to be on the lookout for Italian earrings to add to her collection of old jewels. So from time to time I sent her what I could find about Capri or in Naples, and she responded with neat little letters of acknowledgment.

Two years I stayed on Capri, eating the lotus which grows on that happy island and painting very little. But even on Capri people sometimes hear the call of Paris, so there came at last a fine day when I, knowing that the horse chestnuts were in bloom along the Champs Elysees, threw my rope soled shoes to a beggar, packed a rusty trunk and was off for the banks of the Seine.

At the end of a fortnight I went over into Normandy and deposited that rusty trunk of mine in a corner of the summer pavilion in the courtyard of Mme. Brossard's inn, Les Trois Pigeons, in a woodland neighborhood that is there. Here I had painted through a prolific summer of my youth, and I was glad to find, as I had hoped, nothing changed, for the place was dear to me. Mme. Brossard (dark, thin, demure as of yore, a fine looking woman with a fine manner and much the flavor of old Norman portraits) gave me a pleasant welcome, remembering me readily, but without surprise, while Amedee, the antique servitor, cackled over me and was as proud of my advent as if I had been a new egg and he had laid me. The simile is grotesque, but Amedee is the most henlike waiter in France.

He is a white haired, fat old fellow, always well shaved, as neat as a billiard ball. In the daytime, when he is partly porter, he wears a black tie, a gray waistcoat broadly striped with scarlet, and from waist to feet a white apron like a skirt and so competently encircling that his trousers are of mere conventionality and no real necessity, but after 6 o'clock (becoming altogether a maitre d'hotel) he is clad as any other formal gentleman.

Amedee's suggestions as to my repast were deferential, but insistent. His manner was that of a prime minister who goes through the form of convincing the sovereign. He greeted each of his own decisions with a very loud "Bien!" as if startled by the brilliancy of my selections, and, the menu being concluded, exploded a whole volley of "Biens" and set off violently to instruct old Gaston, the cook.

The inn itself is gray with age, the roof sagging pleasantly here and there, and an old wooden gallery runs the length of each wing, the guest chambers of the upper story opening upon it like the deck rooms of a steamer, with boxes of tulips and hyacinths along the gallery railings and window ledges for the [illegible].

HOW TO KEEP WELL

BABY SICKNESS.

CONVULSIONS

A CONVULSION in an infant may be the symptom of any acute illness or of indigestion. It does not usually mean brain disease, but it is alarming. The best thing to do is to give an injection of half a pint or so of warm soapsuds to induce a movement of the bowels. After this place the baby in a baby's bath-tub half full of water of a temperature not over 105 Deg. F. Test the water with a thermometer or by dipping the arm over the elbow in the water. Don't do as the writer once saw an otherwise intelligent mother do upon one occasion. In order to heat the water the tub was placed upon the stove and when the water seemed to be warm enough the baby was placed in the tub on top of the stove. Of course, the bottom of the tub was about as hot as the top of the stove; the consequence was that the buttocks of the poor baby suffered severely and took some time to heal of the resulting burn. Unless the convulsion is checked at once, the doctor should be called in.

• • •

COLDS

Many communicable diseases start like common colds; for example, measles, whooping cough, and to some extent cerebro-spinal meningitis. Colds are contagious or catching; they usually spread through a whole household when one member of the family becomes affected. At the onset of a cold it is best that the sick one be isolated in a separate room. One cannot tell at the beginning what trouble may be coming on.

• • •

CONSTIPATION

If the baby's bowels have not moved for forty-eight hours or longer he should be given an injection of two or three ounces of warm soapsuds or a suppository of soap or glycerine. Milk of magnesia, a dessert spoonful, may be given at six months. Keep the following things in mind if the baby becomes constipated:—

(1) Have a regular time for bowel movements, best in the morning. Let nothing interfere with this.

(2) Teach the baby to drink boiled water and let him have plenty of liquids. This should amount to one and one-half or two ounces in the twenty-four hours.

(3) Give the baby orange juice and prune juice. These are best given in the morning. Two teaspoonfuls may be given at first and increased up to one tablespoonful or the juice of a whole orange as the child gets older.

(4) The addition of more fat in the form of cream to the food.

(5) As the baby gets older coarse cereals may be given. These add bulk to the movement.

(6) Massage the abdomen beginning at the lower right hand portion, rubbing up; then to the left and then down to the left-hand portion.

WORMS

Worms are rare in infants. The diagnosis cannot be made unless one sees the worms, which in infants are of the variety known as thread-worms. All sorts of symptoms are put down to worms, such as "picking the nose," "worm fever," etc. This is all nonsense. The chief trouble with most infants who are sick is that they are stuffed too much with nurse or food. If worms are seen a doctor should be called in. It is not wise for the mother to fool with the treatment of an infant. The early service of a reliable doctor is always the wisest course to pursue.

• • •

VACCINATION

All babies should be vaccinated before they are a year old, because at this age they can be well taken care of. There is no danger from vaccination if the little wound is protected from dirt and injury.

• • •

MILK

There are a great many babies killed in this country every year by dirty milk. Milk is an excellent food for children, if it is clean and properly taken care of. In order to have clean milk the cows must be healthy, well fed and their udders kept clean. The hands of the milkers must also be clean. The Board of Health has a "Movie" picture which many of you have seen. It depicts more clearly than one can tell the story of how milk is often produced on farms. The cows wade through mud and manure to the stables, which are far from clean. The milker is a dirty old chap, the pail stands in the stable filth and, to crown it all, the milker spits on his hands before sitting down to fill the pail from the dirty udder of the cow whose swishing tail and dirty flanks contribute their share to the contents of the milk pail. How can the milk be good and wholesome under such conditions?

TO-DAY

his descendant, Mr. J. Cartier of 2912 Clarke Street, Montreal, has been cured of eczema by essences of roots and herbs. These, however, instead of being crude as used by his ancestor, were prepared for modern use and put up in the form of Zam-Buk. Mr. Cartier, who is Justice of the Peace and Assistant Clerk of the Circuit Court of Montreal, says there is nothing that can compare with Zam-Buk for the treatment of skin diseases. He goes on:

"Allow me to express to you my gratitude for the benefit I derived from the use of Zam-Buk. It is the best remedy obtainable for eczema. I always keep it in the house as our family doctor; its healing and curative power is immense. I have no objection to your publishing my letter, as I wish everyone to know the high quality of Zam-Buk."

Zam-Buk is best, not only for eczema, but also for ringworm, ulcers, abscesses, running sores, old wounds, blood-poisoning, boils, piles, burns, scalds, cuts and all skin injuries. All druggists or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, 50c. box, 3 for $1.25.

FOREST GAME IN MARITIME PROVINCE

In the summer season the Province of New Brunswick is a happy land, where the sunny hours speed away on the feet of delightful dreams. In the fall she is lovely in her rich dress of brown; and in the winter, when she is arrayed in her robe of virgin whiteness, she is fair and charming; and if she is then cold, her admirers do not feel that her chilliness is a chilliness of heart.

This favorite Canadian haunt is preeminently a land of the holiday-maker and sportsman. St. Andrews, where is situated the popular Canadian Pacific Algonquin Hotel, and many other seaside places are loved haunts of the bather and outdoor game player during the holiday season of June, July, August and September. No sooner have the summer holiday folks and fishermen left the province than the hunters of the big game take their places, for at the opening of the big game season large numbers of hunters of both sexes appear with their guns amidst the thick forests of the land. New Brunswick is one of the most popular of the Canadian provinces for big game hunting. Moose, caribou and deer are plentiful in this region.

A magnificent specimen of big game is the moose. When fully grown he weighs over 1,600 lbs. His massive antlers are long and generally average six feet in width. He may be found in twelve of the fifteen counties of the province. It is only the hunting folks and the wary guides who know how to hunt the moose. There is the "calling" done early in the season, and the "still hunting" done later on—in the cold weather. In September and October the moose is often surprised and shot wading in the lakes and rivers, feasting on the roots of water plants. While pursuing the moose, the hunter can distinguish between the tracks of the male and the female, for the male leaves round tracks and those of the female are somewhat pointed. Fredericton, Havelock, Newcastle, Bathurst, Campbellton and Perth are good starting points.

A graceful antlered monarch of New Brunswick is the caribou. He weighs about 600 lbs. on an average. It is a delightful sight to watch him stride at a walking rate, or trot or gallop over the country. A full grown caribou stands from four and a half to five feet in height. Of this animal there are two varieties, the woodland and the barren ground species. The woodland is somewhat taller than the other and its color is darker about the body, but the horns are lighter. It is generally found in herds of about half a dozen. The barren ground caribou travels in large herds, and its coat is light. This kind is noted for its migratory habits. In New Brunswick the places where the hunters are likely to achieve the best results are North West Miramichi, Restigouche, Upsalquitch, Nepisiguit, and Tobique Rivers. The starting points for these areas are Newcastle, Campbellton, Bathurst, Chatham and Perth, all of which are reached by the Edmundston Branch of the Canadian Pacific.

There are few localities in New Brunswick where a deer may not be located. Like the moose and the caribou, he gives those who follow him an interesting and pleasant sport.

Sportsmen desirous of hunting the big game of New Brunswick may secure good accommodation at the homes of their guides. Good hotels and boarding houses are also available.

The season for the hunting of the moose, caribou, and deer opens on September 15th and continues to November 20th. Shooting on Sunday is prohibited by law. Non resident hunters must be accompanied by a licensed guide. The license to kill one bull moose, one bull caribou, and two deer costs a bona fide resident of the province $3 and a non-resident $50. Hunting with hounds is forbidden.

This year the opening of the big game season was marked by the exhibition for sale on the St. John market of moose and deer meat. In recent times there has been a considerable reduction in the number of males amongst the larger New Brunswick game, and the people are becoming alive to the necessity for being more careful. Indiscriminate shooting is being checked to some extent at all events, and it has been suggested that the sale of the meat of big game on the markets should be stopped to discourage the hunter who hunts for the purpose of making money.

Second Anniversary of Marne

FRANK SIMONDS, the leading American war commentator, is strongly pro-Ally, but has a very low opinion of what the British army has accomplished to date. According to him the British army was not engaged in the Battle of the Marne at all, and it was due to French's blunders that this battle was not a decisive victory for the Allies. He says that General French apparently failed to understand the whole situation, and permitted von Kluck to withdraw a large part of his army from the British front and stow it safely away, leaving only a screen of cavalry in front of the British. Had French understood what was happening it might have been possible for the Allies to inflict a crushing defeat upon the Germans at the Marne and prevent them from digging in at the Aisne. It will remain for future historians to discuss the part the British played at the Battle of the Marne, which is already recognized as one of the greatest battle in the history of the world, if not, indeed, the greatest.

Mr. Simonds' review of the battle on its second anniversary is interesting, even if he does disparage the part played by the British. He was in France a couple of months ago, and had the advantage of interviews with leading French officers as he went over the ground. He says that several legends have grown out of the battle which historians must disregard. One of them is that of the army in taxicabs that Gallieni sent from Paris. It is true that Gallieni did send this army, but it was not to the Battle of the Marne. It was to the Battle of the Ourcq. He does not belittle the assistance rendered by Gallieni, for it was Gallieni who discovered the intentions of the Germans and informed Joffre, thus enabling the French commander to alter his plans and defeat von Kluck. Another legend is to the effect that at the Marne several hundred thousand beaten Frenchmen turned savagely upon the enemy and defeated him. The French were never defeated. They had retreated according to the plans of Joffre, and when the moment arrived they turned, as Joffre had planned. There was no question of recovering from a rout.

He says that in the early days of the war the whole strategy of the French armies was to remain intact, and to retreat before the invader until it was understood what he was trying to do. Incidentally there were battles, offensives by the French, and so forth, but Joffre was playing a waiting game. The French were outnumbered, but Joffre was planning that they should not be outnumbered at the points where the real battles were to be fought. It was beyond his power to remain not outnumbered at all points, for the Germans had in fact the numbers. So the French retreated. They were within 20 miles of Paris two years ago. It was a tempting bait, and Joffre hoped that Kluck would take it; but Kluck refused. He knew that to capture Paris would take time, and would weaken his line. But having gone thus far in the pursuit of the retreating French armies, he had no choice but to continue in his effort to destroy the left wing of the French field armies.

Thus he had to march past Paris. The move was safe if the Paris garrison was small; it was dangerous if in Paris was a large enough army to sally forth and threaten his flank. He did not know that near Paris Joffre had concentrated a new and strong army, that of Manoury, and he labored, too, under the delusion that he was pursuing beaten troops. Up to this time he had been driving upon Paris. Now he swung away, and Gallieni informed Joffre. The French generalissimo then issued his famous order to the effect that the time had come for the French to strike, and that those that could not go forward should die in their tracks. Joffre calculated that while the main armies engaged, Manoury's army from Paris would strike at the German flank. At the beginning of the action Manoury had only 100,000 men, but this force was doubled before the engagement was over, and it fell as Joffre predicted. Kluck was caught on the flank and had to retreat. In summing up the results of this battle Mr. Simonds says:

The German high command said: "We have more men, better guns, better troops; we will violate the neutrality of Belgium, turn the French fortresses, and, arriving in the plains of Northern France, we will destroy the French armies, take Paris, and then turn east and dispose of Russia. We shall win the war in six weeks and take Paris in seven. We shall hold France to ransom and dispose of the French danger for all time." Not one detail of this grandiose plan was realized. Not one detail has been realized after two years of war. We all see that if France had failed Russia would have been conquered, and even the British Empire would have come to the edge of ruin. But France did not fall. She won her greatest victory in a wonderful history, with but the least possible support from Britain; she saved herself, Britain, and Russia, and after the Marne the war had new horizons and different possibilities. Thus in every sense the Battle of the Marne was one of the few truly decisive battle in all human history, a battle whose consequences, though we may not yet accurately measure them, seem at the distance of two years incomparably greater than on the day when the world first learned that the German invasion would not reach Paris.

Moral Change Needed.

A crowd which filled the churchyard of St. James' in Piccadilly was addressed the other day by the Bishop of London from an outdoor pulpit, his topic being "A moral change required in London." The Bishop wore a khaki uniform as chaplain of the forces, and carried his pastoral staff.

He denounced the white slavers who "walk up and down this very Piccadilly night by night," and told his audience that shooting was too good for them. He also attacked immoral plays, and continued:

"For the sake of the boys who fight for us, the boys who have died for us, for the sake of the children of the future let us free London from the curse of lust and sin and make it the ante-chamber of the city which hath foundations whose builder and maker is God."

Toronto Has Grave Cat Problem

ON the second floor of an outbuilding in the rear of 197 McCaul street, Toronto, stands a neatly varnished, trim, and business-like wooden box. In through the hinged top go unwanted cats and 1,100 volts of electricity. Out of the copper lined inner compartment, when the sands in a tiny hour-glass have run their course, comes a limp puss; very much dead. Cat electrocutions in bulk take place regularly twice daily.

The substantial box is the automatic electric cage of the Toronto Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. It is the death chair of homeless and sick cats. And it stands as the "dernier cri" in modern inventions for painlessly extracting the nine lives of Sir Thomas Cat and Miss Matilda Mouser.

Of sick, maimed, and homeless cats, Toronto has more than its just quota. Each year the number steadily increases. Last year over 5,000 were destroyed in the electric cage by the Humane Society. In 1914 the number was 2,630. The year before it was but 894. This year Mr. R. C. Craven, secretary of the society, estimates that the number will exceed 6,000.

Mr. Craven, deploring the cruelty practised upon cats, makes the following significant statements: "If the cat population of Toronto was to remain stationary for five years there would still be as many cats as Torontonians can successfully deal with and care for. There are more than 25,000 cats in the city to-day, how many more I am unable to say. There is more cruelty practised upon cats than upon any other animal."

At the root of the entire situation is the following fact: Affection for a kitten does not mean affection for a cat. Everyone loves a kitten. No one can resist the charms of a playful round ball of fur. But in a few months when kittenhood is past, the cat is regarded as something of a nuisance. Most cats are taken into homes as kittens; a plaything for the children. When the cute kittenish ways are gone there remains a cat upon which the door of the home is closed; a scavenger to frequent the alleys and the refuse piles; a songster to make the night hiedous with its complaints.

Friendship between cats and their owners are rarely lasting. For one thing cats are disgustingly fond of bringing miniature editions of themselves into the world. A litter of five or six kittens two or three times a year rarely pleases anyone but the small boy and girl and Mrs. Mouser. A dog becomes attached to a person; a cat to a home or a locality. Witness the many cats which are carried into a new street when families move. In the majority of cases puss returns to her old haunts, leaving the family catless and somewhat relieved. Witness also the many gaunt denizens of shell-wrecked European villages which soldiers of the Allies, in their forward march, have found among the ruins. Tom and his wife did not join in the exodus from the once prosperous village. Love of the locality was strong and the feline couple chose to remain.

Tales of horror from the Island and from Muskoka reach officials of the Humane Society every autumn. A kitten for the children usually accompanies the family when, at the beginning of warm weather, the summer home is occupied. Upon the return to the city in the fall the now matured cat is left to shift for itself; to endure the rigors of a severe winter; to starve to death, or failing to die, to revert to the wild stage and procreate itself. And a cat clings tenaciously to life, suffering agonies until it finally becomes too weak to move. To abandon a cat under such conditions is a carefree cruelty which arouses the ire of the Humane Society workers as does nothing else.

The organization makes no charge for destroying a cat or a dog when the animal is brought into headquarters at 197 McCaul street. But when the motor van was put into operation, to meet the expenses of tires, gasoline, and upkeep, a small fee was fixed for each trip which the motor was called upon to make to residents who did not wish to bring their pets to the society. It was felt that individuals would then not have their independence sacrificed by public charity being thrust upon them.

For the superfluous cat the committee in charge of the work fixed the boundary between personal independence and charity at a quarter.

And the conflict which has since been waged has in many instances resulted in triumph for those who determined there should be no quarter for the cat. The society confesses to many defeats in the matter of tactics. In most cases the inspector gets the pet but no silver. Frequently the inoffensive collector of the city's unwanted cats receives such an upbraiding that he feels like change out of a cent. Occasionally a woman of masterly mien announces that she will see her husband about it. If he approves, etc., she will send it along. In one case out of 200 the money is mailed.

At other times, after making a three or four-mile run, the inspector finds that puss' owner has gone shopping, or that puss herself is out for a constitutional. Result: a fruitless (more properly a catless) trip. For man is not made who can compete with the members of the genus felis in getting over fences, through narrow passages and up trees. The inspectors of the Humane Society are accomplished men, and courageous. They brave the retractile claws and the thirty-two needle teeth of Sir Thomas and his family. But they are not fool-hardy. They know the limitations of even a human acrobat. So the cat is not pursued.

Germans Make Slaves of Victims

If Belgians Refuse to Work For Them They are Taken Where They Must work

"Instead of resorting to judiciary prosecutions, the Governor may order the refractory workmen to be forcibly taken and conveyed to such places where they must work."

The above is an extract from the orders issued by the military government conducted by the Germans in the occupied part of Belgium. This gives a clear idea of the tremendous pressure that the Germans are putting on Belgium in their eort to win the war. Not satisfied with devastating the country, committing atrocities and attacking women and children, they are even now, after two years, endeavoring to force the Belgian men and women, whose spirit is unbroken to work for them and the German army.

Almost to a man—yes, and to a woman—the Belgian people have met all advances with stubborn refusal and only force can make them do this work.

Referring to this order Premier Asquith said. "In other terms the governor may order that they be treated as slaves. Such is the climax of a policy which has tried unsuccessfully to break the splendid and unbendable spirit of these heroic people who refuse to associate themselves with the plunderers of their native country.

"We, here in Great Britain," continued Mr. Asquith, "take note of all these acts. We do sot think we shall ever forget them. And we want for all of that a just reparation. Nothwithstanding that, the spectacle of the sufferings and anguish of these patient and resolute victims calls forth the sympathies ,not only of the Allies, but also those of the neutral states of the world."

These sympathies must, under the circumstances, take tangible form. Belgium needs help. Her women and children—seven millions of them—are starving. They must be fed if they are to face conditions like these and still maintain the firm stand that they have taken.

This is the function of the Belgian Relief Committee. This committee is providing the food that keeps these heroic, suffering people from death by starvation. It is little enough to do for them but it is the best that can be done unless money and more money is given. There is a branch of the committee in your community. Send your contributions to these Belgians through it, or send it direct to the Belgian Relief Committee, 59 St. Peter Street, Montreal.

Washing Won't Rid Head of Dandruff

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this tonight, and by morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and never fails to do the work.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

"TWIN BEDS" AT GRIFFIN'S TONIGHT

If laughter be a panacea for all the human ills, then will those who see "Twin Beds" on its first local presentation at Griffin's Opera House, tonight be forever immune from bodily and mental trouble. "Twin Beds" is the success of three continents, having ran not only for one solid year in New York and for six months in Australia, but is now in its second year in London. From the moment the curtain rises on "Twin Beds" the audience is said to laugh, at first quietly then more loudly, then at last uproariously.

As a mirth provoking vehicle, it fulfils its mission in no uncertain manner. It is as sweet as a honeysuckle; a tonic for every man, woman or child. It is a babbling spring of humor, and it is refined humor all the time, and if you want to be entertained tonight in away that will be more pleasing and satisfactory than you have in many a day, "Twin Beds" will come nearest to what you are looking for, and whether you come prepared to laugh or whether you come undecided will make no difference after you once get to the Opera House. The advance sale is very heavy.

MARY PICKFORD IN ROLE OF FACTORY WORKER

Famous Players "The Eternal Grind". Gives her Wonderfully Powerful And Sympathetic Part.

"The Eternal Grind" in which the incomparable Mary Pickford is starred by the Famous Players Film Company is the Paramount Picture at Griffin's Opera House, Tomorrow and Thursday night. It is, if possible, even more powerful than any photoplay in which Mary Pickford has ever appeared and gives that star the greatest opportunity of her film career. The story, briefly, is as follows:

Three sisters, Mary, Amy and Jane, live together in dire poverty, working in a factory owned by James Wharton, Mary, the role enacted by Mary Pickford is a capable, fearless girl, who has assumed the responsibility of caring for her other sisters, Amy, a moral weakling, and Jane, a chronic invalid. Ernest the worthless son of Wharton, establishes Amy in apartments of her own and the worry and anguish which Amy's terrible mistake causes her sisters result in the complete breakdown on the part of Jane.

If Jane is not sent away, the doctor gives Mary no hope for her recovery. In her desperation, Mary makes a direct appeal to the elder Wharton, but is summarily dismissed from his home. Ernest, however, sees Mary and captivated by beauty, attempts to win her as he did Amy. The latter's suspicions aroused by Ernest's indifference, she arms herself and follows him to see who the new charmer might be. The sacrifices which she has made for Jane have necessitated Mary's removal from the old rooms to more humble quarters. So when Amy follows Ernest into a tenement house and confronts him with a revolver as he takes another girl in his arms, she is stunned to find that the girl is her own sister Mary.

In a tremendous scene, Mary takes in the situation and seizing the revolver from Amy's hand, she holds Ernest at bay, while a minister is obtained, then she slides behind a curtain and holds the gun at Ernest's back while he and Amy go through the marriage ceremony.

Mary, meanwhile has found a new and deep interest in Owen Wharton, Ernest's very manly brother. Owen is deeply in sympathy with the factory workers and even goes so far as to take a position in the plant under a different name. When the rotten factory floor caves in, Owen is caught in the debris and seriously injured. Mary finds him and assists in saving his life. Of course the father finally relents and changes his views on the subject of factory construction—and of daughters-in-law—but it is not until Mary has fought a few more battles.

On the same program with the above offering, Pathe News, which contains crispy news items gathered the world over will be exhibited along with a very amusing comedy featuring Frank Daniels entitled "Mr Jack goes into Business."

NO SECRET ABOUT VINOL

The Complete Formula of This Great Tonic, Strength Creator is Printed On Every Label

There is no secret about the reason why Vinol surpasses all other tonics and cod liver oil preparations to create strength for weak, run-down, overworked, debilitated men and women, after sickness, for feeble old people and delicate children. It is because it is a scientific combination of the greatest tonics known to medicine, viz., beef and cod liver peptones, iron and manganese peptonates and glycerophosphates, etc.

That is why Vinol quickens the appetite, aids digestion, supplies iron to the blood and brings back the strength of renewed health.

The letters from people who have benefitted, by Vinol, which we are continually publishing in the columns of this paper, form a chain of evilence which proves beyond question that Vinol is the greatest strength creator on the market.

As the formula is printed on every label anyone can see there is nothing harmful in Vinol.—J. S. McKeown, Druggist, Belleville, also at the best druggists in all Ontario towns.

An Unfailing Way To Banish Hairs

(Beauty Notes

Ugly hairy growths can be removed in the privacy of your own home if you get a small original package of delatone and mix into a paste enough of the powder and water to cover the hairy surface. This should be left on the skin about 2 minutes, then removed and the skin washed and every trace of hair will have vanished. No harm or inconvenience can result from this treatment, but be sure you buy real delatone.

FATE OF THE SILVER SHIP.

Romantic Craft is Now Humble Halibut Fishing Boat.

The Silver Ship has come upon evil days. Once a rich man's expensive toy, later the yacht that carried Robert Louis Stevenson to his last home at Vailima in the south seas. Now, with her wings clipped and an ill-smelling gas engine doing the work her sails once did, the schooner Casco is employed in the North Pacific Ocean bringing home cargoes of fish.

The Silver Ship, the picturesque nickname given the schooner by the natives of Fakarava when Stevenson sailed to their country, served some years as the private yacht of a San Francisco millionaire. In 1888 Stevenson was induced by failing health to try a desperate venture. He invested all of his money, $10,000, in the charter of the Casco with the intention of cruising in the south seas and writing a book of travels. The journey ended when the author chose his Samoan home at Vailima, where he died six years later.

After the Stevenson voyage the Casco joined the notorious seal poaching fleet that used to sail in the early nineties out of Victoria, British Columbia. Her wonderful speed under sail many times served in good stead at this hazardous game.

When pelagic sealing finally ended by joint treaty between Great Britain, Japan, and the United States the Casco lay idle until four years ago, when she was bought cheap, to be turned into a fisherman.

Rules of War.

The father of the rules of civilized warfare, which Germany has broken so ruthlessly, was Grotius, a native of Delft, who attempted to codify existing customs during the Thirty Years' War.

That was three hundred years ago, and his book soon became the basis of warfare, for when countries were fighting to extend their territory they were wise to recognize the advantages of propitiating their future subjects.

So punctilious were the old fighters that during the wars which followed the French Revolution those attacking the French actually paid hire for camping-grounds and for hospitals. Even more ludicrous was an incident which occurred during the fighting round Mainz in 1793.

An Austrian regiment, anxious to cross the river, were held up by the ferryman because he demanded ready-money for the, toll. Rather than disobey the code by seizing the ferry for themselves, the Austrians calmly surrendered to the advancing French.

But France was fighting for her life, and disregarded the little niceties of the rules of warfare, and those of her enemies who still observed them faithfully were taken at a disadvantage, so by degrees the elaborate politeness disappeared.

But the Prussians have always acted on the ideas set forth by Clauswitz after Waterloo, which may be summed up in two of his sentences: "The use of force in war is absolute," and "Every idea of philanthropy in war is a most pernicious error."

The Pepper Vine.

The most common and widely used of all spices is pepper. It is a native of the East Indies, but is now cultivated in various parts of the tropical belt of this hemisphere. The plant is a climber and has a smooth stem sometimes twelve feet long. The fruit is about the size of a pea and when ripe is of a bright red color. In cultivation the plant is supported by poles. In some localities small trees are used instead of poles, for the best pepper is grown in a certain degree of shade.

CUNNING NEST BUILDERS.

Humming Birds' Homes Are Not Hidden, Yet They Defy Detection.

Even in those parts of tropical America where, as in Colombia, humming birds are vastly numerous, it is almost impossible for the most experienced naturalist to find their nests, in this, although as a rule they are not hidden at all, the feathered builders relying for concealment upon the likeness of their tiny houses to the surroundings amid which they are placed. A hummer's nest always corresponds exactly in color with the branch to which it is attached. It may imitate a knot or other excrescence. Thus the Calliope humming bird of the western United States often builds on a dead pine twig, either upon or near a cone of similar size and hue.

Usually the nests of humming birds are cup shaped or turban shaped, and their material is always plant down. Such down, resembling cotton wool, but of more delicate fiber, is gathered from the stems of ferns and other plants. This is woven together with spiders' webs into a compact mass. Usually they ornament the outside of the nest with small feathers or lichens which they obtain by detaching them from the rocks where these humble plants grow. These they fasten with cobwebs all over the exterior of their tiny house.

When these wee architects suspend their nets from leaves or tendrils they are always weighted for stability in order that they may not be upset by every passing breeze. For this purpose the bottom is made very thick. But the most remarkable expedient is that adopted by the hill stars, which dwell far up near the snow line of the Andes. They weight the tiny suspended house on the lighter side with a pebble to give the proper balance. There is no question whatever that this is done, and many of the nests of such species preserved in collections are found to contain pebbles.—Rose L. Honeyman in St. Nicholas.

Louise Colet and the Fever.

Louise Colet, the French poet, novelist and general writer, was born at Aix in 1810. She was better known in life than to posterity not only by her writings, but from various incidents with which she was connected. One of the most trying was when she intended to winter in the isle of Ischia, in the gulf of Naples. No sooner was she established there than an epidemic broke out. The people thought it must be the stranger who had brought the trouble. She was threatened and narrowly escaped death by the devotion of a friend who got her away in a yacht. Strange as it may seem, when the "teath muse" had left the island the fever disappeared.

The Suicide of Hannibal.

Defeated at Zama, Hannibal fled to the east to avoid falling into the hands of the Romans and found temporary security in the dominions of Mithridates. He incited this monarch to engage in a Roman war, and, his advice as to its conduct being rejected, the war proved unsuccessful, and Mithridates was required as one of the conditions of peace to deliver up Hannibal to his enemies, the Romans.

The unfortunate Carthaginian heard of his approaching fate, swallowed the poison which for years he had carried about his person and expired just as the envoys arrived to take him away as a prisoner.

A NEWSPAPER CABINET.

New Danish Premier Has Made His Colleagues Ministers.

The inclusion of newspaper men, or journalists as they are more formally termed, in Governments is no new thing, but the Government of a nation by a Cabinet composed almost entirely of journalists is an innovation. Never before in the world's history has a group of journalists conducted the political governance of a people, though often by their influence they have made and unmade politicians and policies. Denmark is the country with the unique claim to distinction. Its Government, which seems at last somewhat discredited by a Parliamentary defeat in the Landthing, or Upper Chamber, is practically the political staff of the great Copenhagen newspaper, the Politiken. The story of the rise of the editors of this paper to the chief positions in the gift of the Danish people is most interesting. The very composition of the Government is an assurance that the Danish Cabinet is strongly pro-Ally, and would be on general principle, quite apart from dynastic or racial reasons or memories of Schleswig-Holstein.

The Danish Premier, Zahle, is the son of a shoemaker, and worked up to the highest office in the State at the early age of 43. He was born and educated at Roskilde, and took his degree in law in 1890. Instead of taking up law, however, he took up journalism, and became the editor of the Aarhus Amstidende. In Aarhus, the second town in Denmark, Zahle began that intimate connection between journalism and politics that is so common in Scandinavian countries. In 1891 he joined the Politiken as an associate contributor, and began relations with Edward Brandes, co-editor of the paper. Four years later Zahle was elected to the Folkthing, or popular chamber, and quickly made his mark in budget and other discussions. At that time the old King of Denmark was fighting his last fight against the oncoming tide of democratic sentiment, and Zahle found a most popular place in the people's esteem as the champion of Radical ideas. In 1901 the struggle ended with the capitulation of the king, and with the incoming of the Deutzer Liberal Ministry he was made a member of the Finance Commission. In 1909 Zahle became Prime Minister, but his Cabinet did not last long, and it was not until 1913, when the Radicals and Socialists swept the country, that he again assumed office.

There is nothing out of the ordinary about the elevation of an editor to a Prime Ministership, but when Zahle began to select his Cabinet he adopted peculiar methods. He believed his policies and the good of the country would be best served by co-workers on the Politiken. That important organ of European opinion, by the way, was the leading force in the creation of Danish democracy. It had extraordinary influence. It had a sting and a thrust. It had the best contributors in Denmark, and, indeed, in the whole of Scandinavia. George Brandes favored it often with reviews. Its political staff dominated Danish politics. When in 1913 the Socialists declined office, it was regarded as quite natural that Zahle should seek the sanctums of the Politiken for his Cabinet material. From them he drew Edward Brandes, who is his Minister of Finance; Scavenius, his Foreign Minister; Ove Rode, his Minister of the Interior, and present editor of the Politizen; Munch and other lesser members. The leading members form as striking a group of writers as ever faced each other across a Cabinet Council table.

Banana Crop Destroyed.

Information collected from all parts of the island of Jamaica respecting the damage done by the recent hurricane, indicates that for all practical purposes this year's banana crop has been completely destroyed, the crop for 1917 reduced by fifty per cent., and barring further blows, the full output from all plantations will not be in effect before 1918. The serious nature of the situation which has been brought about will be recognized when it is stated that bananas represent fully sixty per cent. of the island exports.

While the loss in cocoanuts is considerable, due to the blowing down of immature nuts, the loss in growing trees is probably not more than two per cent. on the average. So far as is shown from reports from mountain districts, damage to coffee has been negligible; and the same may be said of other crops. Although the island was practically in the teeth of the storm, the damage done was moderate as compared with that wrought by the "blow" of 1903.

Balfour's Cattle.

The advertisement announcing the sale, on August 31, of Mr. Balfour's shorthorns at Whittingehame, East Lothian, is a reminder that the ex-Premier has been, longest of all, an agriculturist. Years before politics engaged his attention he was a keen farmer, and Scottish papers often stated that "Mr. A. J. Balfour, of Whittingehame, has taken prizes for his agricultural exhibits." Aided by his mother, Lady Blanche Balfour, the later Lord Salisbury's sister, the future statesman devised plans for improving his farms and the comfort of his tenantry. His first speech, made when 12, was in connection with agriculture, and given at an open-air entertainment to his tenants and employees in response to a vote of thanks to himself and mother.

Co-operative Farming.

The Co-operative Wholesale Society is now going in for farming. It has recently purchased farms aggregating 6,500 acres, situated near Goole, Crewe, and Wisbech. Another interesting agricultural development is being undertaken by Mr. Thornton, the general manager of the Great Eastern Railway, who is about to form egg societies and egg-collecting depots in the Eastern Counties. Egg demonstration railway vans and motor omnibuses are to tour the district.

"HEFTY ANNIE" IN WAR

BRITISH BIG GUN HAD A REMARKABLE JOURNEY.

She Had a Big Train Drawn by a Huge Gasoline Tractor and an Army of Men to Take Care of Her—Her Range is "Fifteen Miles or a Bit More"—Coughs All Day Long.

THE young newcomer to the billet sat up with a start and stared in wonderment while the ground rocked under him.

"Needn't be alarmed, sonny," quoth an old-timer there as he unconcernedly lighted a "fag," "that's only 'Hefty Annie' doing a cough and spit at the Boches. Never heerd big guns barking before, I s'pose?"

The youngster admitted that he had not.

"Well, you'll soon get used to them here, an' then you won't mind them no mor'n if they was your mother singing y' to sleep. It's fine music, m' boy, fine music when it's made by your own side, and damned unwelcome when it's made by the other." Having delivered himself of this terse description of gun-fire the old-timer stretched comfortably back and whiffed his "fag" with great enjoyment.

"Hefty Annie" lay out in the fields nearby cunningly screened from the sharp eyes of the hawkmen from over the barbed-wire border who were always trying to locate her whereabouts with the sinister motive of compassing her destruction. Official documents, in their cold, unimaginative way, described her as "Howitzer, 15-inch, mark ——," and so on. But to the more understanding minds of the men who expended much loving care upon her, "Annie" was a creature with a soul, something that could be talked to and had a truly feminine way of exacting little attentions from the male folk around her—not a mere cylinder of steel which alternately labored and slept. But then officialdom, dry as dust and dull of vision, does not understand the psychology of guns as the men who work them do.

"Hefty Annie" was not only "hefty" in herself but she demanded the same useful quality from the "court" over which she queened it with most exacting autocracy. No room there for unmuscular weaklings nor any slow of foot.

When "Annie" started upon her travels she did so in almost royal state. Her train spread over quite a considerable length of roadway. A huge petrol tractor led the van—a strange-looking contraption with rear wheels almost as high as an omnibus' knife-board; then came "Annie" herself in solitary grandeur upon her special carriage and robed in tarpaulins—the scarlet and ermine of her line. After her rolled the "pill-boxes," otherwise the ammunition wagons (so called because the battery humorist had chalked "Pills for the Kaiser" on their dull grey sides); then the "wireless" truck and sundry other vehicles all designed for the specific purpose of ministering to "Annie's" needs. These trundled along at a good pace under the persuasion of the tractor, which, although a queer-looking affair in itself, was indubitably "hefty" when it came to pulling.

"Somewhere in France" at last, and "Hefty Annie" was settling down to "own a bit of the earth." Dexterously, yet carefully, her "subjects" went about the task of erecting her throne. First, they laid the bed-plates which formed the base of it; when all was ready tackles were rigged and "Annie" was enthroned with somewhat less pomp, perhaps, but with far greater solicitude for the permanency of her seat than is usually shown towards monarchs. Just what was done, how it was done, and why it was done would make an interesting story. Doubtless history will tell us all about the matter one day. This narrative, not being history, must stop at arousing curiosity and not go on to satisfy it.

Suffice it, therefore, to say that everything that had to be done was done—swiftly, deftly, and correctly, as the work of well-trained hands always is. Its completion found "Hefty Annie" sitting grimly on her seat and poking an ugly round snout contemptuously towards the enemy.

"All ready for action, sir," shouted a subaltern, poking his head into a hole and addressing someone apparently down in the bowels of the earth, who answered:

"Righto. What's your full range, did you say?"

"Fifteen miles or a bit more, sir," replied the "sub," whereat the subterranean voice rumbled back an expression of great satisfaction.

And so it was that "Hefty Annie" began her reign. At intervals she coughed, a deep, raucous "hoof" that ripped its way through her whole body. Sometimes she did this just once or twice, at others quite a long paroxysm seized her. As "Annie" coughed she spat from her iron lips great mouthfuls of bright yellow flame, from the midst of which was ejected a huge shell that shrieked viciously away to a place so far off that only the observers aloft and in the lairs ahead could get even the dimmest sight of it.—London Daily Mail.

Loss to Surgery.

It is the opinion of Sir Frederick Treves that Sir Victor Horsley's death means a great loss to the country. He was a very eminent surgeon, and almost revolutionized the surgery of the brain. He really was, in fact, the pioneer of brain surgery.

A great operator, and a man of very considerable scientific attainments, Sir Victor took a very active and strenuous interest in medical politics. He went on war service as a consulting surgeon, and his work should have great value in connection with injuries to the brain and spinal cord.

RED SOX WIN FIRST AND SECOND GAMES

It appears as if the Boston Americans will again be the World's champions this year. After watching the Red Sox with the first game on Saturday, by 6 to 5, many prominent baseball authorities of the country, were not so sure that the Brooklyn Dodgers would carry home the bacon. This opinion was further strengthened yesterday when the Red Sox downed the Dodgers by 2 to 1, in a 14 inning game.

After Saturday's game, Manager Wilbert Robinson of the Dodgers, stated "I can see plainly that we will have to develop a powerful attack if we are to win this series." This is a candid idmission on the part of the Brooklyn leader.

Although Marquard, the Brooklyn twirler, outpitched Shore, and came nearly winning the first game in a grand rally in the ninth inning, the wonderful defence of the champion Red Sox came to Shore's rescue, and defeated the determined efforts of the Dodgers from turning a 6 to 1 defeat into victory. The rally of the Brooklyns, near the end of the game, is typical of the style they have played all season. They are known as a one-inning team, never acknowledging defeat and dangerous until the last man has been retired.

ENEMY ARTILLERY ACTIVE ALLIES SUCCESSFUL IN ATTACKS

Canadian Press Special

LONDON, Oct. 11.—Enemy artillery, says a British official statement issued today, was somewhat more active during the night on the greater part of the battle front in Northern France. North of Neuville St. Vaast, the enemy blew a camoufiet early this morning withou inflicting casualties. Successful minor enterprises were made by our troops against the enemy's trenches south of Hulluch.

Maple Leaf Tire Co. Pushing Work on Plant

Supplies For Large Structure Have Arrived, and No Delay Will be Made in Completion

Work has for some time been virtually at a stand still at the Maple Leaf Tire Company's plant in this city owing to the fact that it was impossible to secure the steel and necessary machinery used in connection with the construction of the buildings. This difficulty has now been overcome, and the work will be rushed through to completion, and when ready for business it will be classed among the up-to-date buildings for the purpose intended. The main building will be 275x133 feet, and other buildings will be added. A visit to the grounds to-day in, the northwest part of the city demonstrated that the company was composed of gentlemen who were prepared to make good their claims. The scene was an animated one, as many workmen were employed.. The steel contract was let to the Trussed Concrete Steel Co., Limited, of Walkerville, and the steel for the walls is now at a railway siding in the city.

The lumber and cement used in the construction of the necessary buildings are being secured from the Schuster Company of Belleville. A large cement mixer, which is in operation, and other necessary building equipments, have been obtained from Messrs. Thos. Manley & Sons. A stone crusher used to crush stone for the mixer, was procured from the Hastings County Council.

The concrete foundation for the main and adjacent buildings to be erected, are completed, and work on the walls commenced, which will be rushed through to a finish as quickly as it is possible to do so.

While the contracts for the steel roof have not been let, they are under consideration, and will be let within a day or so.

Mr. Fitzsimmons, chief engineer of the Grand Trunk Railway and his staff, have laid out the site for a siding running to the factory, and work on this important branch of the concern will be proceeded with at once.

That a rubber plant, such as is being established here, is an incentive to other industries being established, is borne out by the fact that Akron City, in Ohio, owes its remarkable growth during the past ten years, largely to the fact of the development and expansion of the rubber industries in that city. It is to be hoped that this will prove to be the case in Belleville.

IN & ABOUT THE CITY

COURT COMPLETED

The sittings oft he Supreme Court, fall assize were brief this fall in Belleville. Only two cases were tried, and they were disposed of yesterday afternoon and this morning.

TRESPASSER FINED

James Ashbury was this morning by the Police Magistrate found guilty of trespassing upon the G.T.R. property, and was fined $2 and costs, which was paid.

HORSE AND VEHICLE MISSING

Mr. Allan, liveryman of Deseronto, was in the city today in search of a horse and rig which was yesterday hired from him and the party hiring it failed to return.

A GENEROUS CONTRIBUTION

George Street Methodist Church congregation, Peterboro', contributed $1,098 towards the $100,000 endowment fund of Albert College. The pastor announced this fact on Sunday when large congregations were present for the special Thanksgiving services.

A FINE CATCH

Mr. F. Davey Diamond, Inspector of Weights and Measures, and his son, Clark Diamond, spent Saturday and Monday fishing on Hay Bay. They secured three large lunge, weighing sixteen, eighteen and twenty pounds respectively, and lost another. It is said to be the largest catch of the season in that vicinity.

DESPERADOES BROKE JAIL

Belleville was notified to be on the look out for two American desperadoes, named William Smith and Joseph Harris, who yesterday attacked Governor Brown and turnkey Cook of the Brantford jail, and made good their escape. The menn were incarcerated for horse stealing and are wanted in other places for offences committed.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

MARKS BROS. COMING HERE NEXT WEEK

It will be a pleasure for the friends and acquaintances in this city to know that May Bell Marks, the people's favorite actress, will be seen here at the head of The Marks Bros. No. 1, dramatic company for a stay of one week with matinees on Wednesday and Saturday.

The name of R. W. Marks is a guarantee to everyone that they will witness plays that no other attraction can secure, and that they will be given a production of every play as they are noted for their strict attention given to all the details of electrical effects and mountings.

May Bell Marks former appearance here will be remembered for her originality, grace and ease, as well as her entirely different conception of many roles she has portrayed. Never has she been known to play two parts alike, and all times she has received the highest of praises from both the press and public, for her clever work. She is an actress that is at home either in comedy, dramatic or romantic roles. The play selected for the opening performances next Monday night is "Within the Law" without doubt the most interesting play that has been staged in recent years, and for which Mr. R. W. Marks pays the author a large royalty for its exclusive presentation in Canada.

WEDDING BELLS.

FITZPATRICK—O'DONOHUE

At St. Mary's church, Campbellford, at 8 o'clock this morning, a wedding took place which attracted many to witness the ceremony, which was performed by Rev. Father Whibbs. The groom was Mr. Frank Fitzpatrick of Belleville, the genial and popular clerk of the Hotel Quinte, and the bride was Miss Mabel O'Donohue, daughter of Mr. Michael O'Donohue of Campbellford, and one of the village's popular young ladies. Miss Jeanette O'Donohue, a sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, and Mr. John Oliver of Toronto, who is connected with the Inland Revenue Department in this city, was best man. After the celebration of the nuptial mass, Mr. Brady of Lindsay, sang a solo and a duet was rendered by Mr. and Miss Brunnelle of Campbellford. At the conclusion of the ceremony the wedding party repaired to the residence of the bride's parents, where a sumptuous wedding breakfast was partaken of. The young couple this afternoon motored to Belleville, and took the flyer for a trip to points of interest in the west. Upon their return they will take up their residence on Ann street, Belleville. To Mr. and Mrs. Fitzpatrick will be extended hearty congratulations by their many friends and best wishes for a happy and prosperous journey through life.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Fisk and their daughter, Miss Ruby Fisk, have returned from a short visit in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. James W. Warham of this city, have returned home after pending Thanksgiving in Toronto.

Pte. Francis G. Middleton has returned to Barriefield after being home on his last leave before going overseas.

Miss L. Lagrove of Stirling, who is known to many in the city, is dangerously ill at Hotel Dieu, Kingston.

Q. M. Sergt. Farrow, Orderly Room Clerk of the 155th Battalion, and Pte. W. P. Farrow, also of the 155th Battalion, have returned to Barriefield Camp after spending their last leave in the city before going overseas.

EDITORS LIBERATED IN WINNIPEG CASE

WINNIPEG, Oct. 10.—Mr. Justice Haggart this mornign gave judgment that the warrants committing the four Winnipeg newspaper men to jail for contempt of court should be quashed and applicants discharged from custody. He ruled that Commissioner Galt in sending Edward Beck, B. R. W. Deacon, Stanley Beck and Knox, Magee to jail, exceeded his powers.

Mr. Justice Haggart said he had heard theo riginal application with regret. A judge stitting as a commissioner had he said, no greater power than any other citizen who might be appointed commissioner. The powers of a commissioner were limited by statute and there was nothing in the statute giving a commissioner by inference or otherwisep ower to punish for contempt of court.

"With all due respect," he said, "I think that the commissioner erred in thinking he had the power to commit for contempt, and in taking a course for whichth ere wasno precedent." which even a court could punish summarily. He therefore ordered that the warrants be quashed and the parties be discharged from custody.

A ROYAL COMMISSION

LONDON, Oct. 11.—Special—The British Government has decided to appoint a Royal Commission, with Lord Crawford as Chairman, to take steps necessary to insure adequate and regulars upplies of wheat and flour. Announcement to this effect was made in theH ouse of Commons yesterday by Walter Runciman, President of the Board of Trade. Mr. Runciman said is had become clearth at the supplying of wheat for Great Britain could not be left to private enterprise.

BOLD CAR THIEVES

Tricks of the Clever Crooks That Steal Automobiles.

DARING IN THEIR METHODS

One of Their Pet Schemes Is to Disguise Themselves as Repairers and Openly Tow the Car Away—Ordinary Safeguards Are a Joke to Them.

The man who steals an automobile is one of the cleverest mechanicians in the country. He knows every make of car from the steering wheel to the tires, and there is scarcely any precaution taken by the owner of the car to safeguard his property that the automobile thief cannot beat.

Some car owners fondly imagine that when they chain the wheel of their car with a fairly thick steel chain they have made it impossible for any crook to move the auto from its anchorage. The simplicity of this safeguard must cause hilarity among the motorcar crooks, for the ordinary steel chain can be cut in a second with the appliances that the motor thieves carry in their outfit.

But most car owners consider they have made the car immovable by merely locking the switch box. It will interest them to know that the car thieves can beat this precaution very easily. The clever mechanician who makes a business of stealing cars can cross wires so as to cause ignition and move the engine without bothering with the switch box at all. A method that is kindergarten to the car thief is to connect wires from the dry cell battery direct to the ignition coil, thus starting the motor without difficulty.

Some cars have devices by which the gasoline supply can be locked, and this is regarded by some owners as placing a hopeless barrier in the way of the thief who would run off with the standing car. For how can a car be moved when the supply of gasoline is shut off? Nothing easier. The motorcar thief carries with him his own supply of gasoline in a flask. With this gasoline the automobile thief can negotiate a good run with the car by connecting his flask of gasoline direct to the carburetor. Feeding the gasoline to the carburetor through a rubber hose, the automobile thief can send the car sufficiently far to enable him to put the gasoline tank and the car in regular commission and speed where he will to safety and a sale.

But the commonest and therefore the safest trick of the automobile thief requires no expert mechanical knowledge. It simply requires nerve, which these thieves possess to an unusual degree. This trick is the old one of driving up in an auto that looks like a garage repair wagon, hitching a rope to the car that is to be stolen and towing it away. The thieves dress for the part in oil soaked overalls. When they have selected the car to be stolen, picking one that is in a side street and not likely to be under the eye of a policeman who may have been tipped to watch the car, the thieves come up to the scene in their old car, looking like the ordinary crew sent for from the garage to repair a car that is in trouble or isn't working as well as its fastidious owner would wish.

They alight from their own car and make a great pretense of examining the car that they intend to spirit away. They remove the hood and scrutinize the motor. They get out a kit of tools and tinker for awhile with some part of the machinery. If any one should happen to be watching them or looking on from a neighboring window all the men do has the appearance of natural work by honest workmen from the repair shop. Presently the men hold a consultation, pointing to some part of the motor machinery, and apparently come to the conclusion that the car cannot be started with the tools at their command. Then they hitch a rope to the car and tow it away at the end of their own car. Could anything be more simple?

How can you beat such a game as this? Carrying away part of the machinery does not prevent the thieves from towing the car away. One sure way to prevent robbery is to have the car watched. The policeman on that patrol will keep an eye on it if you are only going to make a visit to some office building and coming back in a short time. But if you keep your car in the street the entire day no one can watch it. You are simply taking a chance with the car thieves.

There are other ways of making the path of the motorcar crook as steep and difficult as possible. One motorist believes he has solved the thief problem by having a slot cut in the clutch pedal shaft. Through this he passes a bar which he locks. So far his car has not been stolen. Another way is to remove the rotor. This makes it very difficult for any thief to steal the car, for he would have to carry a number of rotors to be sure of having one that would fit that particular motor.

An announcement says that President Wilson will address only nonpartisan audiences in his campaign. But where will he get them?

MILITARY MATTERS AT BARRIEFIELD HEIGHTS

It is understood that the military authorities have more "blind-pigs" in the city under observation, and as soon as conclusive evidence is secured, there will be some more $200 fines handed out by the magistrate.

The letter from headquarters, which appeared in orders a few days ago, should be of great assistance in this matter. The letter shows that the Civil courts have power to detain a person found under the influence of liquor until he declares where he obtained it. All cases therefore, which now come before the commanding officers are turned over to the civil powers for investigation.

Fortunately, there is little drunkenness among the soldiers here and the same has been true all summer, but there are always a few who indulge, and in such cases those who are responsible are to be made pay the costs for their fun.

THE SCHOOL OF COOKERY

Major J. Hamilton is the Commandant—Will Carry out Practical Field Work.

On Monday a School of Cookery was started at the camp, with thirty members in attendance. As usual, Major J. Hamilton, A. D. of S. and T. is commandant, as the work is under the direction of the Army Service Corps. The adjutant is Lieut. Keith Lennox, and the instructors are Sergt.-Major Inst. Rolfe and Sergt.-Major Inst. Brown.

It has been decided that for this course there will be no ranges or stoves of any kind used. The school work will be carried out according to the methods that have proven their worth in the field. In such work, when carried out according to the instructions given at the school, it is possible for 120 men to have sufficient to eat for 120 men to have sufis no waste and no "left-overs."

As far as possible the school will be conducted in such a way that the men will be able to return to their units thoroughly qualified in all branches of the culinary art for soldiers on active service.

THE 155TH BATTALION

It was expected that perhaps Belleville would do something for the 155th but the people of Hastings have been so active that perhaps this was impossible. However, the 155th battalion were taken care of, and the gift of the people were supplemented by $100 from the battalion fund, and the store of the quartermaster was loaded with good things on Saturday and Sunday. The tables were nicely spread and the rich fruit piled in the centre, and there was enough and to spare for all. Officers and men were free in their praise of the work done for Thanksgiving day. Kingston Standard.

REMEMBERED THE SOLDIERS

Sunday afternoon at the Holloway Street Methodist Sunday school, was the occasion of a remembrance of several of the members who have enlisted and are about to go overseas. A very suitable address was read and each of the former attenders of the Sunday School, who have got into khaki, and are now with the 155th Battalion, were presented with fountain pens. Harold Coburn, Sherman Jones, James 'Burb' Symons, Gerald Dobbs, Frank Sills and Wilfred Vandervoort, were the recipients.

Important New Business Coming To Belleville

Some time ago these columns contained a report of the first meeting of the Shareholders of the Quinte Produce Co. Ltd., when the following gentlemen were elected directors of this company: Ira Windover, Belleville; F. Knight, H. R. Hunt and T. Haslip, Sidney; C. A. Palmer and T. . Elliott, Thurlow; D. Callahan, Tyendinaga. Since that time these directors have held three meetings and considerable business has come before them for discussion and much progress has been made. Among other things passed on by the board was the appointment of Mr. John Hart, former proprietor of the Anglo-American Hotel, this city, to the position of General Manager of the company, with Mr. T. E. Elliott, of Roslin as assistant manager.

The company was fortunate in securing the services of Mr. Hart as he has had considerable experience in branches of this business and is a man who has been successful in anything which he undertook. He will be ably seconded by Mr. Elliott who has also had considerable experience especially in the cattle and hay end of the business, as he in company with Mr. Haslip bought cattle extensively in this district in the spring of 1912 and shipped to Calgary, also he has shipped to Toronto, Montreal, Hull and Ottawa and is thoroughly conversant with this branch of the business and this branch will be well looked after for the farmer shareholders of this company.

Another matter which has been completed by the board is the leasing of the premises known as 302 Front Street and now occupied by Huffman & Bunnet, Machine Agents.

Mr. Huffman has leased the premises formerly occupied by the Bal moral Hotel at the corner of Bridge and Front Streets, where he in company with Mr. Simmonds is opening up an automobile salesroom for Studebaker cars and all automobile accessories. It is also reported they are to instal a gasoline pump at the corner of Front and Bridge Sts.

The Quinte Produce Co. Limited, are to take part possession of their new premises, Oct. 16th, 1916, and organization and preparations are being rushed so as they can get started doing business by Oct. 23, 1916 at the latest. This is a new departure in the Produce Business, the majority of shareholders are farmers and one of the objects which this company expect to attain is to act as the direct and only intermediary between the farmer and the consumer on the one hand and the manufacturers and the farmers on the other and with what has been done already the shareholders of the company should be congratulated on obtaining as able a board of directors as they have, also the able management as it appears they are to have.

It has been advocated the opening of a rest room for farmers' wives where they can have their parcels etc., sent direct, leave their baskets, and have full privileges of using for their convenience. This should be a good thing for our farmer friends and with the greatly reduced hotel accomodation will be greatly appreciated no doubt by them. The board meets again Wednesday afternoon, Oct. 11th. when Mr. Carnew who has been appointed solicitor for the company will be present to assist in the drafting of the by-laws.

HELD JAM AND MARMALADE SHOWER

The jam and marmalade shower recently given by the "Y" at the home of Mrs. Williams was a decided success. One barrel containing 50 jars was packed and shipped to the boys in the trenches last week. The "Y" has a second barrel about half-full and they are trusting the liberality of their friends will soon complete it, so it can be shipped to the front in time for Christmas.

Over ninety yards of cheese-cloth was also received this week and is being made up into much needed comforts for those suffering the ills of trench life. The "Y" is trying to do its little bit and feels very grateful to the many friends who have so generously assisted.

Evangelist Johnston on Revelation

Brings Out Some Strong Points on Revelations — Claims Christ Was Known to Ancient Patriachs

Another excellent crowd was present Sunday evening in the hall on Campbell Street, two doors east of Y.M.C.A. to hear Evangelist Johnston give the introduction of his series of studies on The Seven Churches of Revelations. The opening language of this book, he declared, proclaims it to be "The Revelation of Jesus Christ," and upon this expression the evangelist dwelt considerably. He showed that the Gospel was not a new thing belonging to what is known as the new dispensation. All the old patriarchs and prophets knew of Christ and leaned on him through the offerings of lambs and other beasts, all of which were typical of the sacrifice of Christ, and as a proof that the ancients knew of Christ, he pointed to the words of Christ himself, which says in John 5; 46, 47, that Moses wrote of Christ, also Luke 24; 27 34, which says that all the prophets and the psalmists wrote of Christ, that Abraham had the Gospel preached to him, Gal. 3: 8, and where, the evangelist enquired, will you find in the new testament the Gospel of Christ more fully delineated than in the words of Isa. 53. The proof therefore is abundant that the Gospel dispensations is more than nineteen centuries old. It reaches back even right to the days of Creation, and as the Lord of Heaven was then prefigured to be slain the prophet in Revelations 13; 8 could say that Christ was the"Lamb slain from the foundations of the world."

The book of Revelations, he said, was addressed, however, to the seven churches, Ver. 4, but as the messages of the book are far more than seven, why then, he enquired, should seven be specified? Because that seven in the Bible is a symbol of completeness. The seven devils in Mary Magdaline are not seven persons, but rather the fullness of the devil. There are seven colors in sunlight, seven notes in music, seven days in the week, all of which in every case is a complete number. So in the seven churches. It is a complete prophecy of the Christian Church its successes and reverses from the days of Christ till the close of time, and the names of these churches are indicative of the character of the seven periods.

BIG WEEK AT Y.M.C.A.

This is the big week at the Military Y.M.C.A., with a splendid concert and entertainment every evening. On Monday evening, a special programme was carried out, on Tuesday, Bishop Bidwell is expected. On Wednesday Miss Nesbitt, of Brock street, is arranging a programme, on Thursday, Bishop Farthing may be present, and on Friday there will be an innovation, in the shape of an "At Home" for the soldiers.

TO CURE CATARRHAL DEAFNESS AND HEAD NOISES

Persons suffering from catarrhal deafness and head noises will be glad to know that this distressing affliction can be successfully treated at home by an internal remedy that in many instances has effected a complete cure after all else has failed. Sufferers who could scarcely hear a watch tick have had their hearing restored to such an extent that the tick of a watch was plainly audible seven or eight inches away from either ear.

Therefore, if you know someone who is troubled with head noises of catarrh, or catarrhal deafness, cut out this formula and hand to them, and you will have been the means of saving some poor sufferer perhaps from total deafness. The prescription can be prepared at home, and is made as follows:

Secure from your druggist 1 oz. Parmint (Double Strength), about 75c. worth. Take this home, and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and 4 oz. of granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day.

The first dose should begin to relieve the distressing head noises, headache, dullness, cloudy thinking, etc., while the hearing rapidly returns as the system is invigorated by the tonic action of the treatment. Loss of smell and mucus dropping in the back of the throat, are other symptoms that show the presence of catarrhal poison, and which are often entirely overcome by this efficacious treatment. Nearly ninety per cent, of all ear troubles are said to be directly caused by catarrh, therefore, there must be many people whose hearing can be restored by this simple home treatment.

Every person who is troubled with head noises, catarrhal deafness or catarrh in any form, should give this prescription a trial.

Important Note: In ordering Parmint always specify that you want double strength. Your druggist has it or he can easily get it for you. If not send 75c. to the International Laboratories 74 St. Antoine St., Montreal, Que., Can., and they will supply you. Send Postal Note or Money Order.

An Australian Mole.

The Australian mole burrows obliquely in the sand, going two or three inches under it and never betraying its passage except by a slight undulation of the soil. In digging it uses its conical nose, which is protected by a horny plate, and the strong, mattock shaped claws of its fore feet. The hind feet, which are wider and spade shaped, throw the sand back, so that no trace is left of the tunnel which it hollows. It comes to the surface a few yards farther on and then buries itself again, all without making any noise.

Murderous.

The Christmas Seal

As A Helper of Canada's Greatest Charity

With the approval and commendation of the Hon. The Minister of Education, the Public and Separate Schools of the Province are being visited and the co-operation being asked for in promoting the interest of the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives. The Christmas seal has been used in that connection for some ten years past, and has been found an efficient ingatherer of small contributions.

In that institution to-day there are 283 patients, 246 of whom are without means, pay nothing. It is dependant chiefly upon the contributions it receives from all sorts and conditions of people.

Everbody wishing to help may do so by purchasing Christmas Seals.

The need is great, the cause is undoubtedly worthy of the support of all good people.

POETS AS PUNSTERS.

Even Shakespeare and Milton Broke Into This Form of Humor.

Shakespeare was an inveterate punster, and Dr. Johnson in his preface to an edition to the poet's works deplores his habit of punning on serious occasions. Hamlet is made to pun when he asks the gravedigger:

"Whose grave's this?"

"Mine, sir," answers the clown.

Hamlet replies:

"I think it be thine indeed, for thou liest in't," and adds later, "Thou dost lie in't to be in't and say it is thine."

To King Richard's question, "What comfort, man? How is't with ancient Gaunt?" Shakespeare makes Gaunt reply: "Old Gaunt indeed and gaunt in being old. Within me grief has kept a tedious fast. And who abstains from meat that is not gaunt?"

Milton is the last poet one would think to be guilty of punning, and yet he once wrote a punning epitaph upon a carrier who plied between Cambridge and London and who died after losing his trade on account of the plague.

This carrier was the Hobson whose "choice" is so famous. He used to hire out horses, but travelers had to take the horse Hobson offered or none, so that "Hobson's choice" came to mean no choice at all.

The whole poem, written on the death of this carrier, is full of puns. One passage runs:

Rest that gives all men life gave him his death,
And too much breathing put him out of breath;
Nor were it contradiction to affirm
Too long vacation hastened on his term.

Cowper made a pun which has become quite famous. In the poem describing the ride of John Gilpin, who had to go where his horse took him and eventually arrived at the house of a friend from whom the horse had been borrowed, Gilpin says:

I came because your horse would come.
And if I well forbode,
My hat and wig will soon be here.
They are upon the road.

Tom Hood's humorous poetry is full of puns. In "The Lady's Dream" he writes:

They talked together like two egotists
In conversation all made up of eyes.

And in "The Mermaid of Margate" he says:

On Margate beach, where the sick one roams
And the sentimental reads,
Where the maiden flirts and the widow comes
Like the ocean—to cast her weeds.

But examples could be multiplied indefinitely. Hood's best known pun reads:

His death, which happened in his berth,
At forty odd befell.
They went and told the sexton, and
The sexton tolled the bell.

Derby as P. M. G.

The Earl of Derby was from 1900 to 1905, under the then existing Unionist Government. It is quite an error to imagine that Lord Derby's political career began with the Derby scheme.

Cromwell's Motto.

"Pax Quaeritur Bello" was Oliver Cromwell's motto, and it applies excellently to the present day. It means "Peace is sought by war."

A Learned Judge.

Mr. Justice Sargant, who while his learned brethren are holiday-making in England, is acting as Vacation Judge, has been on the Bench little more than three years. He was the Attorney-General's "devil" on the Chancery side before he became a judge, and, like Mr. Justice Rowlatt, was raised to the Bench without having worn a silk gown.

He is a tall man, with a grave countenance, but he has, unlike most Chancery lawyers, an agreeable gift of humor. They are occasionally merry in his court "within the limits of becoming mirth." What is even more important is that he is a very learned and courteous judge.

As a billiard player he has no equal on the Bench. His other recreations are fishing and golf. His sister, Miss Ethel Sargant, is a well-known botanist, and was the first woman to preside over a section at the British Association's meeting.

British Amazons.

Russian ladies now fighting in the ranks—one a gunner in her husband's battery—would find many rival amazons among the records of the British Army. Christiana Cavanagh was buried with full military honors because she had fought beside her husband under Marlborough in "the cockpit of Europe," where her descendants may be storming German trenches at the present moment. Mrs. Cavanagh was twice severely wounded, and fought a duel before she returned home, received a pension, and became a pie-maker. Anne Chamberlayne, who is buried in Chelsea parish church, "fought valiantly against the French," Phœbe Hessel, according to her epitaph at Brighton, served many years as a soldier, while Mary Anne Taylor followed her lover, an infantry officer, to the wars, and afterwards became a sailor, the celebrated "Billee" of the ballad.

Becomes a Grandfather.

By the birth of a son to the Hon. Cecil Vavasseur Fisher and Mrs. Fisher, Lord Fisher of Kilverstone becomes the grandfather of a boy. His only son, the happy father, was born 48 years ago. He was educated at Charterhouse and Magdalen College, Oxford. He entered the Indian Civil Service in 1890, and retired after 16 years' service. In 1910 he married the daughter of Mr. Randal Morgan, of Philadelphia. All three of Lord Fisher's daughters married into the Royal Navy.

Do Your Best!

"Dyb, Dyb, Dyb" (Do your best) is the war cry of the scoutmasters of the Wolf Cubs, the great organization which General Baden Powell has founded for boys who are too young to join the Boy Scouts. The Wolf Cubs reply by shouting "Dob, Dob, Dob" (Doing our best). The new boys' army is likely to rival the Boy Scouts in numbers, and will form a valuable feeder to the existing body.

Bows to the People.

At the main entrance doors of the house of commons is still enacted a scene that recalls stern ceremonies of Elizabethan days. When the king's messenger, the black rod, approaches the house of commons the doors are closed and locked in his face. He must knock three times and bow three times with true humility to the common people; then and only then will the king's message be heard by the people's representatives in commons assembled. In such customs is indicated the inherent purpose of the house of commons to insist upon its full prerogative as the direct representative of the common people from which the creation of republics and democracies is made possible.—London Globe.

"One Gun One Vote."

The Daily Express congratulates the Canadian Minister of Militia on showing the way in regard to the enfranchisement of the men in the trenches in connection with the British Columbia elections and expresses the hope that Canada's lead will be followed by the British Government. "One gun, one vote," is the Canadian War Minister's motto.

In urging the Cabinet to see that the British fighting men are not deprived of their votes, the Express asserts the country will never submit to a system that gives preference to the peace crank, the slacker and the conscientious objector.

A GOOD WAY TO PREVENT BALDNESS

Says This Recipe Will Often Grow New Hair in Two Weeks' Time

Most men take baldness as something inevitable though why it passes understanding. There is no more reason why hair should cease to grow on the top of the head than on the sides of the face—and most men have to shave to the end of their days or wear a beard.

If your hair is growing gray or getting thin in patches and you find great quantities of it in your brush and comb, the following recipe for a good home made hair tonic can be strongly recommended. Get from any druggist 2 oz. of Lavona de Composee and 6 oz. of pure Bay-rum. Mix together, adding one-half drachm of Menthol Crystals and a little perfume if you desire it. This mixture should be allowed to stand over night, when it is ready for use.

This preparation will in almost every instance stop falling hair within two or three days and numerous instances have been reported in which it has been the cause of new hair growth after years of partial baldness. It is quite important in using the prescription to apply the tonic directly on the scalp, rubbing briskly into the pores with the finger tips so that the hair roots can absorb its full nourishment. While the preparation contains no coloring matter and will not make the hair greasy or sticky, it often will restore hair to its natural color by its revitalizing action on the hair roots.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

"TWIN BEDS" ENTERTAINED.. BIG AUDIENCE AT GRIFFIN'S

A full house greeted "Twin Beds" on its initial appearance here at Griffin's Opera House. The comedy came up to all expectations and it is all what the advance notices have said regarding it.

"Twin Beds" contains no plot, dealing with an apartment house mix-up, in which the husband of one couple, pays marked attention to the wife of another, which causes many extraordinary funny situations, and keeps the audience in one continuous laugh throughout the whole performance, from the time when Mr. Harry Hawkins tries in vain to make his sweet, sociable wife stop having tango teas, for the benefit of the other occupants of the apartment house, till the drop of the curtain.

Marguerite Risser, who takes the part of Mrs. Blanche Hawkins, is exceedingly clever and is well adapted to her part, and won the sympathy of the audience, even though she did make her husband do as she pleased by her crocodile's tears, which were generally preceded by a mournful wail. Mr. J. Warrell as Harry Hawkins, the young husband, was excellent in his allotted part. The role of Signora Monti, one-time cabaret singer, who married Signor Monti, an Italian tenor, who made $2,000 a night, three nights a week, was admirably played by Antoinette Rochte, who carried off the honors of the evening, being well adapted to her part. She knew how to manage "Monti" she was "wise to her "dago" husbaed all right. Signor Monti, admirably taken by Louis Alberni, was certainly strong with the women, and was the cause of all the fun during the comedy. His acting when he comes home intoxicated was particularly good. Elizabeth Stafford, who took the part of Nora the maid, was excellent.

The comedy was well staged with excellent settings and the gowns worn by the ladies of the company were admirable.

MARY PICKFORD AT GRIFFIN'S TONIGHT

Mary Pickford has scored her greatest triumphs on the screen in such productions of the Famous Players Film Company as "Madame Butterfly" and "Poor little Peppina," in both of which she has assumed the role of a victim of circumstances. In "The Eternal Grind" which will be shown at Griffin's Opera House Tonight and Thursday night, however, Miss Pickford plays a totally different role, certain to become one of her most popular impersonations — The capable, undaunted, powerful personality which rises unflinchingly to meet every crisis in a life of hardship. She is a factory girl, one of whose sisters is a moral weakling, and the other a chronic invalid. Against the grasping and brutal owner of the factory in which she is employed, against his vicious young son who victimizes her sister and against the terrible disease that is gradually crushing her other sister, the indomitable will of the resolute factory girl wages ceaseless warfare. It is by far the greatest character which Miss Pickford has presented on the screen and one in the ultimate triumph of which every human heart will rejoice.

In addition to the above excellent five-part offering, Frank Daniels appears in Mr. Jack Goes into Business." Pathe News, with its interesting review of crispy news items will also be exhibited.

RED ROSE TEA "is good tea"
1500 TEA

This Bush Yields only 2½ ozs. yearly

A VERY small yield considering the size of the bush. It takes about 6½ bushes to yield a pound of ordinary tea—and about 10 bushes to yield a pound of Red Rose Tea, as only the tender shoots and buds are used to produce the distinctive flavor and richness which characterize this high-grade tea.

In sealed packages only. Try it.

CANINE SWIFTNESS.

Eskimo and Siberian Dogs Are Fast, but the Greyhound Excels.

Few people realize of what remarkable speed dogs are capable. Some statistics in regard to this have been gathered by M. Dusolier, a French scientist. After pointing out the marvelous endurance shown by little fox terriers who followed their masters patiently for hours while they were riding on bicycles or in carriages he says that even greater endurance is shown by certain wild animals that are akin to dogs. Thus the wolf can run between fifty and sixty miles in one night, and an arctic fox can do quite as well, if not better.

Eskimo and Siberian dogs can travel forty-five miles on the ice in five hours, and there is a case on record in which a team of Eskimo dogs traveled six and one-half miles in twenty-eight minutes.

According to M. Dusolier, the speed of the shepherd dogs and those used on hunting ranges is from ten to fifteen yards a second. English setters and pointers run at the rate of eighteen to nineteen miles an hour, and they can maintain this speed for at least two hours. Fox hounds are extraordinarily swift, as is proved by the fact that a dog of this breed once beat a thoroughbred horse, covering four miles in six and a half minutes, which was at the rate of nearly eighteen yards a second.

Greyhounds are the swiftest of all four footed creatures, and their speed is equal to that of carrier pigeons. English greyhounds, which are used for coursing, are able to cover at full gallop a space between eighteen and twenty yards every second.—Our Dumb Animals.

MOVING THE CROP.

Canadian Northern Alone Hauled 109,122 Cars of Grain Last Year.

Western Canada's crop year commences on September 1st and ends on August 31st the year following. So it happens that during September, those chiefly interested in the marketing of the crop, collect and compile statistics to show how the details compare with those of the preceding twelve months.

Grain figures are of interest wider than most. To the multitude concerned in the movement of grain from the farmers' siding to the consumer, they surpass in interest the latest fiction. To the business section, they speak of obligations met and credits renewed; to manufacturers, as foreshadowing a revival of ordering and a busy season for the industries; to the farmer and his people, they take tangible form in new articles of comfort about the home; but to the men on the railways, they provoke reminiscences of days and nights on the road, and continuous striving to keep the ordinary traffic of the country in motion while the wheat was moving to the sea.

During the twelve months ended August 31st, the Canadian Northern Railway handled over its lines between Lake Superior and the Rocky Mountains, 109,122 cars of grain produced along its rails, and inspected by the Government at Winnipeg, Calgary, and other points in the West. This is an increase of 69,828 cars over the total of the last previous year, and represents a gain of 178 per cent. A modern box car carries 1,200 bushels, so that the figures mean really that the Canadian Northern transported over its steel more than 130,000,000 bushels of grain.

Coupled together, these 109,122 cars would form one continuous train from Toronto to Montreal and back, and up north as far as Parry Sound. Split this up into freight trains of fifty cars each, which is the average over the Canadian Northern between Winnipeg and Port Arthur, and there are 2,182 trains, each with locomotive, caboose, and train crew. The cars handled over and above the total of the year before, would constitute a train continuing without a break from Toronto to New York.

The terminal elevators at Port Arthur have been making records also. Of the crop of 1914, the movement of which closed on August 31st, 1915, the Canadian Northern Railway elevator at Port Arthur, the largest consolidated elevator plant in the world, handled 18,000,000 bushels. Of the crop year which ended with August last, the same elevator handled 55,884,560 bushels. Its receipts of wheat alone this year totalled 38,582,531 or more than twice the handlings for the elevator of all grains during the preceding crop year.

MANY RICH FINDS.

Stefansson Party Has Made Valuable Discoveries of Copper.

The seven members of the party of Dr. Rudolph M. Anderson, commander of the southern branch of the Stefansson Canadian expedition into the far north, are preparing to make reports to the Canadian Government. They report many interesting discoveries, including findings of great quantities of copper, new species of small mammals, and perhaps new species of flowers. Stefansson, it was reported, was believed to be continuing his explorations north of Prince Patrick Island.

"We were instructed to survey the copper deposits already known and seek new ones. Every explorer from the earliest times had noted that the Esquimos east of the Mackenzie used knives, spear heads, and other weapons and utensils hammered from copper, and the Coppermine River, which empties into the Arctic, got its name from mineral discovered many years ago. We found on Coronation Gulf and Bathurst Inlet vast deposits of copper of low grade. We were not equipped to undertake mining operations, but upon the sides of cliffs we could measure the depth of successive flows of amygaloidal lava containing nuggets of copper. An Eskimo brought to us a lump of copper weighing forty pounds. There were seams in the lava that had been filled with pure copper. Geologist O'Neill took many samples of rock, which will be assayed. He also made many estimates of the area of ore in sight. This information is for the Canadian Government, and not to be published by us. The ore had many of the characteristics of the Lake Superior copper rock. It is workable from the surface, and is near navigable waters. It would be feasible to construct a railroad from the Mackenzie River, which is navigable five months of the year, to Great Bear Lake, which also is navigable much of the year. A further railroad line could be built from the lake to the copper fields, enabling the transportation of the ore to the interior of Canada by way of the Mackenzie River.

"We probably have discovered a number of new species of small mammals, and we shall find out about that when the skins and skeletons are examined at Ottawa. It would not be possible to find a new species or even a new geographical variety of the large mammals. Our botanical specimens probably contain new species of flowers, but we do not yet know for a certainty.

"The expedition we regard as having accomplished its purpose."

Orders From Italy.

It is expected that Canadian knitting mills will receive some further orders for knitted goods from the Italian Government through the Knit Goods Association of London. The mills are at present working upon a contract for 500,000 shirts for Italy. The order was placed with the Knit Goods Manufacturers' Association of Canada, and the value of the contract is something in excess of $600,000. A similar order was filled last year. The goods now being manufactured will go forward from New York.

It is expected that this order will net the mills a fair profit and supplement their regular business favorably. The results should be seen in the annual statements. At the same time the taking of these orders is likely to make it increasingly difficult for late retail orders to be filled for fall delivery. The larger merchants invariably benefited by the universal experience of the last two years and placed their fall orders early this spring, but a number of the smaller men were content to "trust to luck" or to the chance of the war closing in the early fall and bringing about a slump in the wool and yarn markets, with a downward reaction to themselves in the manufactured gods. However they did this in the face of repeated warnings both of the mills and the wholesale dealers.

One Better.

"Somewhere in France," the men of a Canadian Battalion were resting on a side of the road, and a major was sitting with his men. One of the privates stared at the major for nearly ten minutes, after which the major, feeling rather bored at this man for staring at him like that, said to him: "Well what's the matter? Why are you looking at me like that?"

The private slowly said: "I was just wondering how a man with a face like yours came to be a major, when a man like me is only a private.

LANTERNS IN CHINA.

Of All Sizes, Shapes and Prices, They Are In Common Use.

Particularly gay and attractive are the shops of the lantern venders in the Chinese cities.

All varieties of lanterns are to be seen—the large silken ones three and four feet high, gorgeously painted with variegated colors, embroidered in gold and silver or decorated with deep fringe of the same material, costing from $100 to $200 and used by the wealthy mandarins and others, and common small horn and paper lanterns, used by the coolies, which cost one-sixteenth of a dollar.

The mode of making horn lanterns is very ingenious; the horns are cut into remarkably thin slices which, by means of heat and pressure, are joined together and formed into various shapes; round, square, hexagon, octagon, and some shaped to resemble an hourglass.

It is usual for servants, after sunset, to carry before their masters large lanterns made either of horn or highly varnished paper, with the name, title and dignities painted in large letters thereon.

At the feast of lanterns, which takes place in the early part of the Chinese New Year, these lantern shop proprietors reap a rich harvest, as it is customary for parents to make presents of lanterns to their children, brother to sister, friend to friend, inferior to superior, [illegible]

Had Terrible Pains in Kidneys and Back.

Dear Mr. Editor—I want to write you about "Anuric." I was very sick, could hardly be up; I was in bed most of the time. Had terrible pains in my kidneys and back, so much so that I had to scream sometimes when I was sitting down and wanted to get up, the pain was so great. I had tried a well-known kidney medicine but it didn't help me. I heard of Dr. Pierce's Anuric Tablets so I thought I would try them. I took only one box of the Tablets, and my back is now free from pain and I can work and take care of my family. I feel I cannot say enough for this medicine. Sincerely, MRS. WM. KELLER.

NOTE: This "Anuric" is adapted especially for kidney complaints, and diseases arising from disorders of the kidneys and bladder, such as backache, weak back, rheumatism, dropsy, congestion of the kidneys, inflammation of the bladder, scalding urine and urinary troubles. The physicians and specialists at Dr. Pierce's great Institution, at Buffalo, N. Y., have thoroughly tested this prescription and have been with one accord successful in eradicating these troubles, and in most cases absolutely curing the diseased kidneys.

Patients having once used "Anuric" at Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, have repeatedly sent back for more. Such a demand has been created that Dr. Pierce has decided to put "Anuric" in the drug stores of this country, in a ready-to-use form. If not obtainable send one dime by mail to Dr. Pierce for trial package or 50 cents for full treatment.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is a blood cleanser and alterative that starts the liver and stomach into vigorous action. It thus assists the body to make rich, red blood, which feeds the heart, nerves, brain and organs of the body. You feel clean, strong and strenuous.

Meals for M. P.'s.

When next the Parliament of Canada meets in session, probably some time in January, the members will not have to travel so far for their meals. After the fire, when the two houses moved into the Victoria Memorial Museum, there was no longer a Parliamentary restaurant, nor space in which to put one. Members who had been accustomed to travel no further than an elevator could take them, were forced to seek pastures new and often distant. The steward of the restaurant found his occupation gone. To overcome in part this discomfort, a large house across the street from the Museum has been taken under lease and is now being remodelled and equipped as a restaurant for members and senators. There will be a dining-room, smoking-room, etc., and it is probable that the sergeant-at-arms will have quarters in the building.

"Canada in Flanders."

Obed Smith, Commissioner of Emigration, has received, by order of the Canadian Government, ten thousand copies of Sir Max Aitken's book, "Canada in Flanders" for distribution in English schools. Letters acknowledging the books are most striking. The head master, St. Thomas, Bolton, for instance, writes: "Over a hundred of my old boys enlisted in the Canadians." Miss Botheroyd of Grimsby remarked: "My girls correspond with those of a Canadian school, and love it." Miss Brown of Cheltenham says: "We have twenty scholars corresponding regularly with scholars in sponding regularly with scholars in Canada." W. J. Walsh of Cheetham Hill says: "My eldest son, a sergeant in the 10th Battalion, fell in the charge in the Wood in April, 1915." David Reckie of Bolton says: "My son was killed at Ypres."

Offer No. 1

In order to give you an opportunity of examining our famous "Special Selected" Rye Whisky free of charge, we will send on all introductory orders, express charges prepaid, a large bottle as well as a trial bottle. The latter is 2 ounce capacity, the same size as shown in this advertisement, containing exactly the same quality of whisky. When you get these two bottles, try the smaller one first. If you don't find it the smoothest, mellowest and finest whisky you ever drank, or if for any reason you are not satisfied with it, send the large bottle back, charges collect, and we will ask no questions whatever. We will send these bottles to you upon receipt of $1.50 and return the money if you return the large bottle. This is the fairest way we know of giving you a chance to try this—the Quality Whisky of Canada—free of charge.

Offer No. 2

For $5.00 we will send you four large bottles of our "Special Selected" Rye Whisky, express charges prepaid. This whisky which we call "Special Selected" is seven years old and is distilled from the choicest grains selected by our experts and distilled in our distillery at Corbyville, Ontario, recognized as the most modern and up-to-date distillery in Canada. The whisky is matured in the old-fashioned way in charred oak casks in warehouses warmed during the cold weather so as to carry on the ageing at all seasons. We guarantee this and all our whiskies pure and conforming with all the requirements of the law.

THIS IS THE 805TH DAY THE BRITISH EMPIRE HAS BEEN AT WAR WITH GERMANY.

THE LATE SENATOR COSTIGAN

Obituary notices of the late Hon. John Costigan, which have appeared in Ontario journals, state that "Mr. Costigan left the Conser- "vative party in 1896 on the school "issue and represented Victoria, "N.B., in the house as a Liberal "until 1904, when he was appointed "to the Senate."

This is an error. Mr. Costigan did not leave the Conservative party in 1896 "on the school issue." On the contrary the record shows that he was an unflinching supporter of the Conservative policy upon that question, and that he approved and supported it while a member of the Governments of which Sir Mackenzie Bowell and Sir Charles Tupper were alternate premiers. As an evidence of this fact, he, while a member of Sir Charles Tupper's Cabinet made the question of the settlement of the Manitoba school difficulty, as proposed by the Conservative Governments of which he was a member, a plank in his political platform, when seeking re-election in the County of Victoria, in the Province of New Brunswick.

Mr. Costigan's reason's for leaving the Conservative party, as explained by himself during a debate in the House of Commons, was that he had last confidence in his former leader, Sir Charles Tupper, adding that if Sir Mackenzie Bowell was still at the head of the party he would be found supporting it.

The article also states that "Now "that Senator Costigan has passed "away, Sir Mackenzie Bowell is the "only ex-member of the Macdonald "administration stiil living." This is also an error. Had the biographer's statement been that Sir Mackenzie Bowell was the only living member of Sir John Macdonald's Government of 1878, of which the late Mr. Costigan was not a member, he would have been correct. The Hon. Sir Charles Hibbert Tupper and the Hon. Sir George E. Foster were both members of Sir John's Government, but not of that year—1878, and are still alive, fighting vigorously political battles, and likely to remain in active service for some time to come.

REMEMBER THE PAST.

It were well if some of the United States politicians would study history relating to their own country. It might save them a good deal of vapouring about the action of the Allies during the present conflict with Germany, particularly upon the trade question. The Montreal Star points out an interesting case in which England did not grumble because the United States found it necessary during the Civil War to adopt a policy which seriously affected the industries of that country. The article points out that:

> Touching on the question of cotton as contraband, the following extract from a paper read by Robert Applegraph before the Hotspus Club, London, England, in 1898—long before this war and its cotton policy was in the public mind—serves to show how the English people acted when the Northern States shut off their supply of cotton during the American Civil War:
>
> In December, 1862, I visited the center of the famine district of Lancashire. In consequence of the American war stopping the cotton supply, many women and children died for lack of food, and thousands would have starved to death but for the public subscriptions. Still these poor people, with little food and less fuel, met in the midst of their dire distress and passed a resolution congratulating Abraham Lincoln on his having abolished slavery. On January 19, 1863, Lincoln replied: "I cannot but regard your decisive utterance upon the question as an instance of sublime Christian heroism which has not been surpassed in any age or in any country."

HATRED OF BRITAIN

Western papers contain some specimens of Fenianism. A couple of extracts from letters which appear in those journals will give some idea of the hatred which this class of Fenian Rebels entertain and cultivate against England. A Mr. Higgins writes:

> "The gentle person who under the signature of a Benevolent Neutral states he would make all the Irishmen of Minnesota neutral by hanging them, is certainly not benevolent or neutral. The Irishmen of Minnesota, acquainted with the history of Old Erin, have very naturally taken sides in the world war, and, naturally enough, they do not favor the bloody robber nation, England. The outrages perpetrated on their defenseless mother country do not inspire them with anything but a just hate for this land grabbing nation. I would advise this Anglo-maniac who signs himself a Benevolent Neutral to give his name when he writes such uplifting (?) articles for the Pioneer Press. Mr. Benevolent Neutral please come out in the open, and make an argument instead of an assertion.

Another, a Mr. Schand, not an Irish name by any means, says:

> A benevolent neutral wants all Irishmen hanged. England has been hanging them for 300 years. She has been doing more. She has been starving them, tearing their homes down over their heads, driving them out into the fields to perish, forcing them into exile, oppressing them by every means that the ingenuity of greed and cruelty could devise—and yet Ireland still is Ireland. As one man has expressed it. He adds:
>
> "Old Ireland was old Ireland
> "When England was a pup;
> "And Ireland will be Ireland
> "When England has gone up."

A gentleman in the city, who has for years been employing continuously some eight or ten laboring men in his business, which is of a character that would lead them to take a drink, remarked to a friend that in the last pay day he noticed that not a man of them gave evidence of having been indulging in intoxicants, which during his long experience had never before occurred so much for prohibition.

The Canadian Army Council is issuing an order forbidding honorary colonels to wear a uniform in this country. This will be generally welcomed among the Canadian community here. English papers have had caustic comments upon "Honorary Canadian colonels who stalk along Whitehall receiving salutes galore from the genuine article in every rank." This order should have been issued long ago. It is ludicrous enough to have the title of Colonel conferred upon men who never did an hour's military duty, but is a howling farce to see them strutting about decorated in a Colonel's full uniform.

Mr. N. W. Rowell says New Zealanders recall with pride and gratification the fact that they are represented in the British navy by the battle-cruiser "New Zealand." But for the party which Mr. Rowell supports at Ottawa, Canada would now have three such battle-cruisers in the North Sea. It was Sir Wilfrid Lauier, with whom Mr. Rowell, the Ontario Liberal leader, is to appear at London next week, who used his followers in the House of Commons and his appointees in the Senate to keep Canada out of the British navy. What contrary politicians these two leaders of a party are.

When Sir Robert Borden took office Quebec Nationalism ceased to be powerful at Ottawa. When the Liberal Government was defeated Sir Wilfred Laurier coalesced with the Naionalist agitators to prevent an emergency contribution of Dreadnoughts to the British Navy and to destroy the educational regulations of Ontario and Manitoba. A vote for Laurier is a vote for Bourassa.

TO QUICKLY RELIEVE SORENESS AND INFLAMMATION

Rub in a few drops of Absorbine, Jr. It is surprising how promptly it penetrates and acts—how clean and pleasant it is to use and how economical, because only a few drops are required to do the work.

In addition to being a dependable liniment, Absorbine, Jr., is a safe, powerful, trustworthy antiseptic and germicide which doubles its efficiency and its uses.

When applied to cuts, bruises, and sores, it kills the germs, makes the wound aseptically clean and promotes rapid, healthy healing. It allays pain and inflammation promptly. Swollen glands, painful varicose veins, wens, and bursal enlargements yield readily to the application of Absorbine, Jr.

Absorbine, Jr., is sold by leading druggists at $1.00 and $2.00 a bottle or sent direct postpaid.

A Kitchener alderman objected to a battalion being quartered in that city for the winter unless a guarantee of good conduct was given.—Kitchener's Mayor is over fastidious.

A St. Louis clergyman was married by telephone. It would have served him jolly well right had the operator butted in a few times and told him "Line's busy!" just when the bride was asked if she would love, honora nd obey him.

John Wesley comes down, Sam goes up. Many shall be called but few chosen.—Ottawa Free Press. Same is frequently called down by the Opposition press, but it does not prevent his ascendency. Merit ever wins.

But for the party which Mr. Rowell supports at Ottawa, Canada would now have three such battle-cruisers in the North Sea.—Toronto News.

A hen at the Agricultural College, Guelph, laid 310 eggs in 355 days. This is just about one a day, omitting Sundays, Christmas, and the Queen's Birthday, showing that the hen, while industrious, insisted on her legal rights.—Toronto Star.

Rush orders have just been placed at Pittsburg, Pa., for steel to complete a new span in the Quebec Bridge to replace the one which recently fell into the St. Lawrence river, it became known to-day. The Dominion Bridge Company has placed a contract with the American Bridge Company to fabricate the new span and the Carnegie Steel Company will roll 5,000 tons of steel shapes and beams at its Homestead plant.

American engineers have drawn up details of a plan to dig a canal from the Artic Ocean, through Russia and Finland, to the Gulf of Bothnia, according to a Stockholm despatch to the Morning Post. The despatch says that the project is strongly supported in Russia.

The proposed canal would run from Kandalaska, on the White Sea, to Thornes, near the Swedish frontier, and would cost 300,000,000 roubles.

Henry Woodhouse, a governor of the Aero Club of America, has confided in the New York Times that Canada is soon to have an Air Minister, and that the gentleman selected for the new portfolio is the well-known Hamilton manufacturer, Charles Seward Wilcox. This comes as a distinct piece of news in Canada, but it may be quite true for all that.—Montreal Herald.

The United States Senate this afternoon adopted a resolution directing the federal trade commission to investigate the scaring increase in the price of print paper. The fact that the government printing office has only enough paper for sixty days instead of for six months, as is usually the case, was one of the factors in the immediate adoption of the measure.

Cheap Cathartics and Cheap Salts Can't Cure Constipation

ABBEY'S EFFERVESCENT SALT ACTS GENTLY AND GIVES PROMPT RELIEF

Purgative pills, sweet lozengers, cheap salts and other cheap cathartics cannot cure constipation. They merely irritate and sting the tired bowels.

Abbey's Effervescent Salt overcomes constipation in an easy, gentle, normal way. It acts on the liver, stimulates the flow of bile, regulates the bowels and kidneys, and puts the whole system in a vigorous, active condition. Take it first thing on arising in a tumbler of warm water.

In the course of time and well within the bright twilight Amedee spread the crisp white cloth and served me at a table on my pavilion porch. He feigned anxiety lest I should find certain dishes (those which he knew were most delectable) not to my taste, but was obviously so distended with fatuous pride over the whole meal that it became a temptation to denounce at least some trifling sauce or garnishment. Nevertheless so much mendacity proved beyond me, and I spared him and my own conscience. The salad prepared and the water bubbling in the coffee machine, he favored me with a discourse on the decline in glory of Les Trois Pigeons.

"Monsieur, it is the automobiles. They have done it. Formerly, as when monsieur was here, the painters came from Paris. What busy times and what drolleries! Ah, it was gay in those days! Monsieur remembers well. Ha, ha! But now, I think, the automobiles have frightened away the painters.

"I should have said that we should be happier if we had many like monsieur," went on Amedee. "But it is early in the season to despair. Then, too, our best suit is already engaged."

"By whom?"

"Two men of science who arrive next week. One is a great man. Mme. Brossard is pleased that he is coming to Les Trois Pigeons, but I tell her it is only natural. He comes now for the first time because he likes the quiet."

"Who is the great man, Amedee?"

"Ah! A distinguished professor of science, truly. He is a member of the Institute. Monsieur must have heard of that great Professor Keredec?"

"The name is known. Who is the other?"

"A friend of his. I do not know. All the upper floor of the east wing they have taken—the grand suit—those two and their valet de chambre. That is truly the way in modern times—the philosophers are rich men."

"Yes," I sighed. "Only the painters are poor nowadays."

"Ha, ha, monsieur!" Amedee laughed cunningly. "It was always easy to see that monsieur amuses himself only with the painting."

"Thank you, Amedee," I responded. "I have amused other people with it, too, I fear."

"Monsieur remembers the Chateau de Quesnay, at the crest of the hill on the road north of Dives?"

"I remember."

"It is occupied this season by some rich Americans."

"How do you know they are rich?"

"Dieu de Dieu!" The old fellow appealed to heaven. "But they are Americans!"

"And therefore millionaires. Perfectly, Amedee."

"Perfectly, monsieur. Perhaps monsieur knows them."

"Yes, I know them."

"Truly!" He affected dejection. "And poor Mme. Brossard thought monsieur had returned to our old hotel because he liked it and remembered our wine of Beaune and the good beds and old Gaston's cooking!"

"Do not weep, Amedee," I said. "I have come to paint, not because I know the people who have taken Quesnay." And I added, "I may not see them at all."

Miss Elizabeth had mentioned in one of her notes that Ward had leased Quesnay, but I had not sought quarters at Les Trois Pigeons because it stood within walking distance of the chateau. In my industrious frame of mind that circumstance seemed almost a drawback. Miss Elizabeth, ever hospitable to those whom she noticed at all, would be doubly so in the country, and I wanted all my time to myself since my time was not conceivably of value to any one else. I thought it wise to leave any encounter with the lady to chance. George himself had just sailed on a business trip to America, and until his return I should put in all my time at painting and nothing else, though I liked his sister, as I have said, and thought of her often.

Amedee laughed incredulously. "But monsieur will call at the chateau in the morning," the complacent varlet prophesied. "Monsieur is not at all an old man—no, not yet. Even if he were—aha—no one could possess the friendship of that wonderful Mme. d'Armand and remain away from the chateau."

"Mme. d'Armand!" I said. "That is not the name. You mean Mlle. Ward."

"No, no!" His fat cheeks bulged with a smile. "Mlle. Ward"—he pronounced it "Ware"—"is magnificent. Every one must fly to obey when she opens her mouth. It needs only a glance to perceive that Mlle. Ward is a great lady, but Mme. d'Armand—aha!" He rolled his round eyes to an effect of unspeakable admiration. "But monsieur knows very well for himself."

"We were speaking of the present chatelaine of Quesnay, Mlle. Ward. I have never heard of Mme. d'Armand."

"Monsieur is serious?"

"Truly!" I answered, making bold to quote his shibboleth.

"Then monsieur has truly much to live for. Truly!" he chuckled openly.

He had cleared the table.

"Amedee," I said, "who is Mme. d'Armand?"

"A guest of Mlle. Ward at Quesnay. In fact, she is in charge of the chateau, since Mlle. Ward is, for the time, away."

"Then monsieur has truly much to live for. Truly!"

"Is she a Frenchwoman?"

"It seems not. In fact, she is an American, though she dresses with so much of taste. Ah, Mme. Brossard admits it, and Mme. Brossard knows the art of dressing."

"Mme. d'Armand's name is French," I observed.

"Yes; that is true," said Amedee thoughtfully. "No one can deny it; it is a French name." He rested the tray upon a stump near by and scratched his head. "I do not understand how that can be," he continued slowly. "Jean Ferret, who is chief gardener at the chateau, is an acquaintance of mine, and Jean Ferret has told me that she is an American."

"I believe," said I, "that if I struggled a few days over this puzzle I might come to the conclusion that Mme. d'Armand is an American lady who has married a Frenchman."

"Ha! Without doubt! Truly she must be an American lady who has married a Frenchman. Monsieur has already solved the puzzle. Truly, truly!" And he betook himself across the darkness to emerge in the light of the open door of the kitchen with the word still rumbling in his throat.

I rose from the chair on my little porch to go to bed, but I was reminded of something and called to him.

"Monsieur?" his voice came briskly.

"How often do you see your friend, Jean Ferret, the gardener of Quesnay?"

"Frequently, monsieur. Tomorrow morning I could easily carry a message if"—

"That is precisely what I do not wish. And you may as well not mention me at all when you meet him."

"It is understood—perfectly."

"If it is well understood there will be a beautiful present for a good maitre d'hotel some day."

"Thank you, monsieur."

CHAPTER III.

One evening I returned to the inn to find a big van from Dives, the nearest railway station, drawn up in the courtyard at the foot of the stairs leading to the gallery, and all the people of the inn, from Mme. Brossard (who directed), to Glouglou (who madly attempted the heaviest pieces), busily installing trunks, bags and packing cases in [illegible] the "great man of science" on the second floor of the east wing of the building. Neither the great man nor his companion was to be seen, however, both having retired to their rooms immediately upon their arrival, so Amedee informed me.

I made my evening ablutions, removing a Joseph's coat of dust and paint, and came forth from my pavilion, hoping that Professor Keredec and his friend would not mind eating in the same garden with a man in a corduroy jacket and knickerbockers, but the gentlemen continued invisible to the public eye, and mine was the only table set for dinner in the garden. Upstairs the curtains were carefully drawn across all the windows of the east wing, little leaks of orange here and there betraying the lights within.

"It is to be supposed that Professor Keredec and his friend are fatigued with their journey from Paris?" I began a little later.

"Monsieur, they did not seem fatigued," said Amedee.

"But they dine in their own rooms tonight."

"Every night, monsieur. It is the order of Professor Keredec. And with their own valet de chambre to serve them. Eh?" He poured my coffee solemnly. "That is mysterious, to say the least, isn't it?"

"To say the very least," I agreed.

"Monsieur the professor is a man of secrets, it appears," continued Amedee. "When he wrote to Mme. Brossard, engaging his rooms, he instructed her to be careful that none of us should mention even his name, and today when he came he spoke of his anxiety on that point."

"But you did mention it."

"To whom, monsieur?" asked the old fellow blankly.

"To me."

"But I told him I had not," said Amedee placidly. "It is the same thing."

"I wonder," I began, struck with a sudden thought, "if it will prove quite the same thing in my own case. I suppose you have not mentioned the circumstance of my being here to your friend Jean Ferret of Quesnay?"

He looked at me reproachfully. "Has monsieur been troubled by the people of the chateau? Have they done anything whatever to show that they have heard monsieur is here?"

"No; certainly they haven't." I was obliged to retract at once. "I beg your pardon, Amedee."

"Ah, monsieur!" He made a deprecatory bow, which plunged me still deeper in shame. "All the same," he pursued, "it seems very mysterious—this Keredec affair!"

When a man is leading a very quiet and isolated life it is inconceivable what trifles will occupy and concentrate his attention. Thus, though I treated the "Keredec affair" with a seeming airiness to Amedee, I cunningly drew the faithful rascal out until virtually I was receiving every evening at dinner a detailed report of the day's doings of Professor Keredec and his companion.

The reports were voluminous, the details few. Professor Keredec's voice could often be heard in every part of the inn, at times holding forth with such protracted vehemence that only one explanation would suffice—the learned man was delivering a lecture to his companion.

Amedee brushed away my suggestion that the auditor might be a stenographer to whom the professor was dictating chapters for a new book. The relation between the two men, he contended, was more like that between teacher and pupil. "But a pupil with gray hair," he finished, raising his fat hands to heaven, "for that other monsieur has hair as gray as mine."

"That other monsieur" was further described as a thin man, handsome, but with a "singular air," nor could my colleague more satisfactorily define this air.

I ascertained that, although "that other monsieur" had gray hair, he was by no means a person of great age. Indeed, Glouglou, who had seen him oftener than any other of the staff, maintained that he was quite young. Nevertheless, Amedee remarked, it was certain that Professor Keredec's friend was neither an American nor an Englishman.

"Why is it certain?" I asked.

"Monsieur, he drinks nothing but water, he does not smoke, and Glouglou says he eats his soup silently."

"Glouglou is an authority who resolves the difficulty. 'That other monsieur' is a Frenchman."

"I can find no flaw in the deduction," I said, rising to go to bed. "We must leave it there for tonight."

The next evening Amedee allowed me to perceive that he was concealing something under his arm as he stoked the coffee machine.

"What is that?" I said.

"It is a book."

"But why do you bring it to me?"

"Monsieur," he replied in the tones of an old conspirator, "this afternoon the professor and that other monsieur went, as usual, to walk in the forest. When they returned this book fell from the pocket of that other monsieur's coat as he ascended the stair, and he did not notice."

The book was Wentworth's algebra—elementary principles. Painful recollections of my boyhood and the binomial theorem rose in my mind as I let the leaves turn under my fingers.

His tone became even more confidential. "Part of it, monsieur, is in English. That is plain. I have found an English word in it that I know—the word 'O.' But much of the printing is also in Arabic. Yes, monsieur, look there." He laid a fat forefinger on "$(a+b)^2=a^2+2ab+b^2$." "That is Arabic. Old [illegible] has been to Algeria. He looked at the book and told me it was Arabic."

I shed no light upon him. The book had been Greek to me in my tender years. It was a pleasure now to leave a fellow being under the impression that it was Arabic.

But the volume took its little revenge upon me, for it increased my curiosity about Professor Keredec and "that other monsieur." Why were two grown men—one an eminent psychologist and the other a gray haired youth with a singular air—carrying about on their walks a text book for the instruction of boys of thirteen or fourteen?

The next day that curiosity of mine was piqued in earnest. It rained and I did not leave the inn, but sat under the great archway and took notes in color of the shining road and bright drenched fields. My back was toward the courtyard, and about noon I became distracted from my work by a strong self consciousness which came upon me without any visible or audible cause. Obeying an impulse, I swung round on my camp stool and looked up directly at the gallery window of the salon of the "grande suite." A man with a great white beard was standing at the window, half hidden by the curtain, watching me intently. He perceived that I saw him and dropped the curtain immediately.

The next day I painted in various parts of the forest, studying the early morning along the eastern fringe and moving deeper in as the day advanced. The path debouched abruptly on the glade and was so narrow that when I leaned back my elbows were in the bushes. I had the ambition to paint a picture here—to do the whole thing in the woods from day to day, instead of taking notes for the studio, but when I rose from my camp stool and stepped back into the path to get more distance for my canvas I saw what a mess I was making of it. At the same time my hand, falling into the capacious pocket of my jacket, encountered a package—my lunch, which I had forgotten to eat. Whereupon, becoming suddenly aware that I was very hungry, I began to eat Amedee's good sandwiches without moving from where I stood.

Absorbed, gazing with abysmal disgust at my canvas, I was eating absentmindedly and with all the restraint and dignity of a Georgia darky attacking a watermelon when a pleasant voice spoke in French from just behind me:

"Pardon, monsieur. Permit me to pass, if you please."

I turned in confusion to behold a dark eyed lady, charmingly dressed in lilac and white, waiting for me to make way so that she could pass.

I have just said that I "turned in confusion." The truth is that I jumped like a kangaroo, but with infinitely less grace. And in my nervous haste to clear the way, meaning only to push the camp stool out of the path with my foot, I put too much valor into the push, and with horror saw the camp stool rise in the air and drop to the ground again nearly a third of the distance across the glade. Upon that

I squeezed myself back into the bushes, my ears singing and my cheeks burning.

There are women who will meet or pass a strange man in the woods or fields with as finished an air of being unaware of him (particularly if he be a rather shabby painter no longer young), but this woman was not of that priggish kind. Her straightforward glance recognized my existence as a fellow being, and she further acknowledged it by a faint smile, which was of courtesy only, however, and admitted no reference to the fact that at the first sound of her voice I had leaped into the air, kicked a camp stool twenty feet and now stood blushing, so shamefully stuffed with sandwich that I dared not speak.

"Thank you," she said as she went by and made me a little bow so graceful that it almost consoled me for my caperings.

Then, discovering that I still held the horrid remains of a sausage sandwich in my hand, I threw it into the underbrush with unnecessary force and, recovering my camp stool, sat down to work. I did not immediately begin. At thought of the jig I had danced to it my face burned again.

Suddenly a snapping of twigs underfoot and a swishing of branches in the thicket warned me of a second intruder forcing a way toward the path through the underbrush, and very briskly, too, judging by the sounds.

He burst out into the glade a few paces from me, a tall man in white flannels, liberally decorated with brambles and clinging shreds of underbrush. The youthful sprightliness of his light figure and the naive activity of his approach gave me a very faunlike first impression of him.

"Have you seen a lady in a white and lilac dress and with roses in her hat?" he demanded eagerly.

What surprised me was the instantaneous certainty with which I recognized the speaker from Amedee's description.

My sudden gentleman was strikingly good looking, his complexion so clear and boyishly healthy that, except for his gray hair, he might have passed for twenty-two or twenty-three, and even as it was I guessed his years short of thirty. But there are plenty of handsome young fellows with prematurely gray hair, and, as Amedee said, though out of the world we were near it. It was the newcomer's "singular air" which established his identity. Amedee's vagueness had irked me, but the thing itself—the "singular air"—was not at all vague. Instantly perceptible, it was an investiture, marked, definite and intangible. My interrogator was "that other monsieur."

In response to his question I asked him another:

HOW TO KEEP WELL

A NEW SEWAGE TREATMENT.

At the last meeting of the Health Officers' Association Mr. T. Chalkley Hatton, Engineer to the Sewerage Commission of Milwaukee, described a new treatment of sewage by means of activated sludge which bids fair to outrival the methods of sewage treatment in present use. The method, first outlined by English sewage experts, consists in treating sewage with old sludge (the solids of sewage) rich in bacteria—about 21,000,000 to the cubic centimetre. The mixture while held in tanks has air in fine bubbles forced through it. This process is continued from two to four hours; the sewage is run into tanks where it mixes with the activated sludge.

In Milwaukee, where the process has been carried on extensively in an experimental way by Mr. Hatton, the proportion of activated sludge used is 20 per cent. and 0.437 cubic feet of air to each gallon of sewage is pumped through the mixture. About 95 per cent. of the purification is accomplished in the first hour. The sewage then flows into another tank and the sludge sedimented out. The sewage liquid from which 95 per cent. of the bacteria is removed flows away continuously, and the sludge is dried, pressed, and sold for fertilizer.

In the Milwaukee plant one million gallons of sewage produces three to five thousand gallons of sludge. This, when dried, is worth $12.00 per ton as a fertilizer. It costs $3.00 a ton to dry the sludge, which is worth $6.00 a ton. It requires a million gallons of sewage to produce a ton of sludge, so that there is a profit of $3.00 on each million gallons of sewage. This of course does not include the cost of operation, up-keep, and interest.

The advantages claimed for this method are, that,—

(1) There are no odors.
(2) The effluent is never offensive.
(3) The sludge is inoffensive and easily dried.
(4) The sludge makes a certain profit.
(5) The method is cheaper than any other known complete method.

This method of sewage treatment is under consideration by several towns in Ontario. It has been shown to operate successfully in zero weather, and is worth the attention of communities contemplating installation of sewage disposal plants.

TUBERCULOSIS.

COLD ABCESS

A cold abcess is a collection of pus or matter caused by the bacillus of tuberculosis. It is called "cold" because, while an ordinary abcess has the usual inflammatory symptoms of pain, redness, and tenderness, these are absent in cold abcess. This form of abcess occurs both in children and adults; and the patient, in addition to the local treatment of the abcess itself, should be very carefully examined for symptoms of lung or other forms of tuberculosis. If there is any fever he requires rest, the best of food, outdoor life and should abstain from alcoholics. No particular medicine is required, but if any is thought necessary it should be administered under the direction of a skilled physician.

SLEEPING WITH A CONSUMPTIVE

There is no danger if the patient with tuberculosis of the lungs does not expectorate, but it must be remembered that such patients usually have some expectoration, and the sputum contained in the tubercle bacillus constitutes the danger. Such patients should sleep alone until it is made certain by repeated examinations that the sputum does not contain the bacilli. Besides this, patients with tuberculosis are better to sleep alone because they have greater advantages in the way of fresh air, etc.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

J. S. G., Hamilton, E.

Q.—Kindly inform me how I can prevent the breeding of flies about my place?

A.—If you have a horse or cow keep the manure in a fly-proof box and have the box emptied and the contents taken away at least weekly. The careful disposal of manure is the most important anti-fly measure. If the manure cannot be taken away promptly it should be treated by dissolving borax in water and sprinkling the manure, using one pound of borax to every 16 cubic feet of manure.

Sulphate of iron is another means of prevention of fly breeding in manure. Two pounds (2lb) in one gallon of water is sufficient for the manure from one horse for one day.

AUCTIONING OFF A WIFE.

Last Case of a Once Rather Common Custom in England.

It was long a popular belief among the ignorant in England that if a man sold his wife at public auction such a sale had all the legality of a regular divorce. The latest case of the kind on record occurred in 1832.

John Thompson, a farmer, had been married for three years, and he and his wife agreed to separate. Thompson brought his wife into the town of Carlisle, and by the bellman announced he was about to sell her.

At midday Thompson placed his wife on a large oak chair with a rope or halter of straw about her neck. He then made this announcement: "Gentlemen, I have to offer to your notice my wife, Mary Anne Thompson, otherwise Williams, whom I mean to sell to the highest and fairest bidder. It is her wish as well as mine to part forever.

"She has been to me only a born serpent. I took her for my comfort, the good of my home. But she became my tormentor, a domestic curse, a night invasion and a daily devil.

"I speak truth from my heart when I say: 'May God deliver us from troublesome wives and frolicsome women! Avoid them as you would a mad dog, a roaring lion, a loaded pistol, cholera morbus, Mount Etna or any other pestilential thing in nature.'

"Now, I have shown you of her dark faults and failings. I will introduce the bright and sunny side of her and explain her qualifications and goodness. She can read novels and milk cows. She can laugh and weep with the same ease that you could take a glass of ale when thirsty. Indeed, gentlemen, she reminds me of what the poet says of women in general:

"Heaven gave to woman the peculiar grace
To laugh, to weep, to cheat the human race.

"She can make butter and scold the maid. She can sing Moore's melodies and plait her folds and caps. She can not make rum, gin or whisky, but she is a good judge of the quality of each from long experience in tasting them. I therefore offer her, with all her perfections and imperfections, for the sum of 50 shillings."

The woman was finally sold to one Henry Mears for the sum of 20 shillings and a Newfoundland dog. Man and wife parted in perfect good temper, Mears and the woman going one way, Thompson and the dog another.

Most Original Club In America.

There exists in one of our great western cities a unique secret club—called by the members the Get Out and Get On club. It was organized years ago by ten ambitious men who looked upon themselves as not yet having won success. Membership for twelve years has been limited to fifty. The rules are what make this club different. No member may call himself a success until the club votes him one, and when the club votes any member a success, he is expelled and his place is filled by another. But before a success is expelled a dinner is given in his honor and to welcome the new member. At this dinner the success must read a paper explaining to his fellows how and why he won. These papers are preserved.—American Magazine.

Rare Violins.

The rarest violins in the world are those which were made by Guarnerius del Gesu, only about forty of them being known to exist. One of these instruments was purchased by Ysaye for $30,000. Two famous Stradivarius instruments which were used by Sarasate during his great concert tours were sold. One of these, the Boissier, is in a museum at Madrid. It is valued at $50,000. The other is in a museum in Paris. There are only twenty-nine Stradivarius 'cellos in the world. Of the 300 Stradivarius violins that were made more than 200 have been bought and sold by one dealer.—Argonaut.

Imitation Gold.

By combining ninety-four parts of copper with six parts of antimony and adding a small quantity of magnesium carbonate to increase the weight, a substitute for gold is produced. This alloy, it is said, can be drawn, worked and soldered much the same as gold, and it also takes and retains a gold polish. It can be made for about 23 cents a pound when its constituents can be bought at normal prices.

A TALE OF TURKEY.

Queer Things That Happened in the Name of the Constitution.

The ignorance of the Turkish masses concerning political questions, says Sir Edwin Pears in "Forty Years in Constantinople," is shown by certain incidents of the revolution of 1908. The hamals, or porters, in the towns, like the peasants in the country, when they heard that his majesty had sworn to be faithful to the constitution, inquired what it was. Was it a person? Was it a new caliph? And very few could give any clear explanation. The words "liberty" and "equality" meant something good, although they could not have said what. To some they signified general license.

Two English friends of mine were motoring outside Smyrna when a number of Turkish boys set upon them and flung stones at them. The Englishmen gave chase and caught the principal offenders. The eldest was asked why he had thrown stones.

"Hurriet var," was the reply. "There's liberty. We can do what we like now."

The Englishman replied, "Hurriet var, and I am at liberty to give you a good thrashing, am I not?"

One of the boys said yes, he supposed that would be so, but he hoped the liberty would not be used. The Englishman replied that it would not be used that time, but if the offense were repeated he would use it to the fullest extent.

"But why?" asked the owner.

"Because there is a constitution."

The tramway men struck for higher wages, and the only justification that they put forward was that there was now a constitution. Yet men of all classes cheered in the lustiest manner for the constitution. Throughout the month of August smuggled tobacco was openly sold in the streets at a very cheap rate, buyers and sellers alike considering that the constitution allowed men to set aside the law that had made the sale of tobacco a government monopoly.

HOSPITALITY IN SYRIA.

A Custom That May Have a Bearing on a Passage In Scripture.

Approaching his hoped for guest, a Syrian engages him in something like the following dialogue, characterized by a glow of feeling which the translation can only faintly reveal:

"Ennoble us by your presence."

"I would be ennobled, but I cannot accept."

"That cannot be."

"Yea, yea, it must be."

"No, I swear against you by our friendship and by the life of God. I love just to acquaint you with my bread and salt."

"I swear also that I find it impossible to accept. Your bread and salt are known to all."

"Yea, do it just for our own good. By coming to us you come to your own home. Let us repay your bounty to us."

"Astaghfero Allah (by the mercy of God) I have not bestowed any bounty upon you worth mentioning."

Here the host seizes his guest by the arm and with an emphatic, "I will not let you go," pulls at him and would drag him bodily into his house. Then the guest, happy in being vanquished "with honor," consents to the invitation.

Do you now understand fully the meaning of the passage in the fourteenth chapter of Luke's gospel? "A certain man made a great supper, and bade many, * * * and they all with one consent began to make excuse. * * * And the Lord said unto the servant, 'Go out into the highways and hedges, and compel them to come in, that my house may be filled.'"—Abraham Mitrie Rihbany in Atlantic Monthly.

Military Masters.

Alexander the Great's active military career began when he was only eighteen years old and ended at thirty-three; Hannibal's lasted from thirteen to forty-seven; Caesar's from forty to fifty-five; Gustavus' from sixteen to thirty-eight; Frederick's from twenty-eight to fifty-one, and Napoleon's from twenty-seven to forty-six. When thirty-five years old Napoleon said of himself: "One has only a certain time for war. I shall be good for it but six years more; then even I shall stop." His downward career began when he was forty.

Havana.

Havana, or San Cristobal de la Habana, as it was originally named, was the last of seven cities founded in Cuba by the island's conqueror, the Adelantado Diego Velasquez, the date being July 25, 1515. Since that was twenty-three years after the well known Columbus date there can't be many new world cities older than Havana, assuming that most of the other six in Cuba have since disappeared.

MARK TWAIN AS A LECTURER.

The Story of His First Appearance Upon the Platform.

The story of Mark Twain's first great public lecture is told in Albert Bigelow Paine's "Boy's Life" of the humorist in St. Nicholas. It had been suggested that he should lecture on the Sandwich Islands, where he had been spending some weeks as a newspaper correspondent, and one of his San Francisco friends urged him to hire the largest hall in the city and charge a dollar a ticket.

"Without waiting until his fright came back," writes Mr. Paine, "Mark Twain hurried to the manager of the Academy of Music and engaged it for a lecture to be given Oct. 2, 1866, and sat down and wrote his announcement. He began by stating what he would speak upon and ended with a few absurdities such as:

A SPLENDID ORCHESTRA
Is In Town, but Has Not Been Engaged.
Also
A DEN OF FEROCIOUS WILD BEASTS
Will Be on Exhibition In the Next Block.
A GRAND TORCHLIGHT PROCESSION
May Be Expected; In Fact, the Public
Are Privileged to Expect Whatever
They Please.
Doors open at 7 o' clock.
The trouble to begin at 8 o'clock.

"Mark Twain was well known in San Francisco and was pretty sure to have a good house. But he did not realize this, and as the evening approached his dread of failure increased. Arriving at the theater, he entered by the stage door, half expecting to find the place empty. Then suddenly he became more frightened than ever. Peering from the wings, he saw that the house was jammed—packed from the footlights to the walls. Terrified, his knees shaking, his tongue dry, he managed to emerge and was greeted with a roar, a crash of applause that nearly finished him. Only for an instant—reaction followed. These people were his friends, and he was talking to them. He forgot to be afraid, and as the applause came in great billows that rose ever higher he felt himself borne with it as on a tide of happiness and success. His evening from beginning to end was a complete triumph. Friends declared that for descriptive eloquence, humor and real entertainment nothing like his address had ever been delivered."

DRAWING A STAR.

Trying It This Way Is Said to Be as Funny as a Circus.

When your party is not making progress enough to suit you try the following on them: Take a large sheet of plain paper and draw a five or six pointed star on it. Have the star about ten inches wide from point to point. Then draw another star on the outside of the first one, so that a space of about half an inch is left between the two stars all the way around.

Then provide yourself with a hand mirror and a book. Place the paper flat on the table. Put the book end up on the side of the paper nearest you. Take the mirror and place it on the opposite end of the paper. Then looking into the mirror you should be able to see the whole star. Having provided yourself with a pencil, fix it on a spot inside the two lines of the star and proceed to draw another star on the inside the two lines by looking only at the star through the mirror.

The book is simply used to prevent your eyes dropping down to the drawing itself. If your pencil goes outside the lines or inside you have lost your turn.

Try it out and see what you can do. Some say it can be done, and others say it can't, but whether it can or can't has little to do with it; it will furnish enough amusement to keep a crowd convulsed for an hour.

What Is Good Water?

Good water is colorless, clear, free from suspended matter, of brilliant luster and free from smell or taste. Bad water may sometimes meet all these specifications and yet be full of germs. Rainwater is good; so is water from clear ice or from springs, lakes, large rivers and streams in uninhabited districts. Rainwater from polluted surfaces is bad; so is the water from snow ice, small ponds, streams and wells in inhabited places. Marsh water is bad, and streams below towns are almost certainly full of germs and sewage.—Outing.

CURIOUS CORDOBA.

This Spanish Town Is So Compact It Looks Like One Building.

Cordoba is scheduled on the European itinerary as a half day stand. Those who go from Seville to Granada and those who go from Granada to Seville take Cordoba on their way. Fifteen minutes for the cathedral, five for the alcazar, an hour for luncheon and on to further discoveries—that is the Cordoba program. The hotels of Cordoba are, in consequence, unpalatial, a circumstance in itself which endears the little town to the judicious. I do not believe there is a lift in all Cordoba, and if your wife wishes for any reason to buy a new hat she must go out of the hotel for it, and then it will be three years old.

At night all the tourists are gone to Seville or Granada, and you and the Cordobans and the stars share the amenities of Cordoba's one boulevard, of which everybody is very proud, because it is much superior to anything that Paris or even Madrid can show. It was a lucky chance which caused them to build Cordoba so handily between Seville and Granada. It has provided a still little backwater for the traveler's repose, a spot where he may forget that American bars exist, eat his meals untroubled by the squeaking of a tango band and adventure himself among the mysteries of a bill of fare jelly printed in blue and illegible Spanish.

You could put your hat over Cordoba, and very little would protrude. It is the compactest little town. From the tower of the cathedral it all looks like one building. You can hardly perceive the streets, so closely do they wriggle among the houses. The roofs are yellow, brown, gray, red; the walls and their shadows every color in the world. Among the buildings the green of palms, orange trees, lemon trees, chestnuts, soothe the glare struck eye. The Guadalquivir snakes through its rich plains from the faraway flat hills (red, gray brown, yellow), and over all are the great sky of the south and the huge sun of the south, which imposes silence on the world till night shall set the guitars a-buzzing.—William Caine in Century.

CAUSE OF RHEUMATISM.

Cavities Holding Pus, It Is Claimed, Breed the Dread Ailment.

In the American Magazine is an article on rheumatism by Dr. Arthur B. Reynolds, who says:

"The cause of rheumatism is pus formed and imprisoned in some part of the body. It gets into the circulation and is carried by it to the region affected. These pus places may be in spots more or less closed up, so they are not easily drained. They may be located about the teeth, at the end of the roots of dead or diseased teeth, in the crypts of the tonsils, in some of the sequestered places in the nostrils, in the bony sinuses of the head. They may be in the bladder, the kidney, the gall ducts or other places. The pus producing spot may be as small or smaller than a pea or it may be larger. Its existence is frequently unknown to the patient, especially if it be hidden in soft tissue like the tonsil. It may even exist in the bony socket of a tooth without giving pain.

"Several different organisms produce pus, and any or all may produce rheumatism when transferred to the joints or the heart.

"The physician today seeks for the pus cavity when he meets a patient with rheumatism, and he endeavors to clean it up. Rheumatic pains have been stopped with magical promptness by simply extracting the offending tooth. It is not always easy to find the pus places in the hidden parts of the body. The X ray shadowgraph is essential in locating the trouble. It shows definitely and accurately all trouble about the roots of the teeth, and its use is therefore of the first importance in ferreting out the pus in the deep structures."

Duncan Smoked In Church.

Sir Walter Scott in his "Heart of Midlothian" refers to one Duncan of Knockdunder, an important personage, who smoked during the whole of the sermon from an iron pipe tobacco borrowed from other worshipers. We are told that at the end of the discourse he knocked the ashes out of his pipe, replaced it in his sporran, returned the tobacco pouch to its owner and joined in the prayer with decency and attention.

Antiquity of Earrings.

The very earliest mention of earrings is to be found in the book of Genesis. Jacob, it will be remembered, on reaching Bethel buried certain strange idols, among them some earrings belonging to his family. Doubtless these ornaments were regarded purely in a propitiatory light as amulets or talismans, such being still their principal office in the east today. That they are of eastern origin is certain, and among orientals, with the exception of Greeks and Hebrews, it has always been the custom for both sexes to wear them, while frequently only one ear was adorned. Among other races, however, earrings were always worn in pairs and by the women only.

The Judge's Advantage.

One of the best stories of Judge Parry, a famous English jurist, related to a feeble looking man who was rebuked for supporting a ridiculous claim made by his wife. "I tell you candidly I don't believe a word of your wife's story," said Judge Parry.

"Yer may do as yer like," replied the man mournfully, "but I've got to."

It was once the doubtful privilege of Judge Parry to overhear the comments of two men against whom he had decided. "'E's a fool, but 'e did 'is best," was the verdict of these disappointed suitors. "One might sleep under an unkinder epitaph," was the philosophic comment of the judge.—London Graphic.

Tireless Talker.

In the days of his youth Senator Blackburn of Kentucky was asked by a friend to second a duel. He consented, and at the next sunrise the parties met. It was Mr. Blackburn's duty to say the last word concerning the terms of the duel. One of the senator's colleagues recently said at a Washington dinner that, although Mr. Blackburn faithfully performed the duty, the duel never took place.

Held Bible and Rudder.

Some years ago Japan was neither so free nor so friendly with other nations as she is today. In those old days when a foreign ship entered the Japanese ports the captain was obliged to place his Bible and rudder in charge of the chief officer of the port and leave them there until he was ready to sail. Of course he wouldn't sail without either, and the Japs could easily keep tabs on the movements of all ships in their harbors.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE WOMEN'S CHRISTAIN ASSOCIATION

The annual meeting of the Women's Christian Association of the City of Belleville was held yesterday afternoon in the Council Chamber of the city building. Mrs. Judge Deroche, President, occupied the chair. Many of the noble ladies of the city, who are identified with the Association, were in attendance.

Rev. A. M. Hubly of the Emmanuel Reformed Church was present, and opened the proceedings by the reading of a scripture lesson and prayer.

Reports of the year were then presented as follows:

RECORDING SECRETARY

Madame President, officers and members of the Woman's Christian Association:

I have the honor of presenting to you the 7th annual report of the Woman's Christian Association of Belleville. For the past few years the yearly report has been a record of progress, and when you hear the reports of 1915-16, I am sure you will agree that the W.C.A. is still going forward in strength and usefulness.

The Hospital, perhaps the largest part of the Association work, has had a most successful year, with a very satisfactory financial statement. The management is still in very capable hands. To Mrs. Moynes, Chairman, of the Hospital Board, Miss Jessie Anderson, Treasurer and Convenor of the Hospital Board Auxiliary, and their several assistants. No small portion praise is due for their untiring work. No especial improvements have been made during the year, but many needed repairs, such as the painting and redecorating of the nurses' quarters, the fisherman's ward, nursery, operating room No. 2, corridors, kitchens, verandahs, etc. The Ackerman Ward and Masonic Wards No. 1 and No 2, have been redecorated through the kindness of Mr. and Mrs. H. Ackerman and the Masonic lodges. The old fire hose in the main building has been replaced by new, oak furniture for the annex has been provided, also some extra storm windows. In fact the whole Hospital has been renovated, placing it in an entirely satisfactory condition.

The Association has received three legacies during the past year for the benefit of the Hospital, one from the estate of the late Miss Emberson, another, a small piece of land in the Township of Sidney, from the estate of the late Mr. J. W. Ward of Belleville, and from the estate of the late Miss Emma Yeomans.

I do not think anything can be added to what you all know of Miss Greene's and Miss Morrison's work. They are ever faithful in the discharge of their duties, and it is owing very largely to them and to the medical staff, that the Belleville Hospital is now one of the best in the Province.

During the year there have been several changes in the medical staff, and we all regret the death of one of the most interested members and a good friend of the Hospital, Dr. J. F. Mather.

It was the great regret that the Association was obliged to accept the resignation of Mrs. Warren, for ten years convenor of the Home Board. Mrs. Warren's services in that capacity have been invaluable, and we look forward to her return, renewed in health.

The Home has also had some very necessary repairs made this year, chiefly among them being sewer connection, and the draining of the cellar and the building is also in a very good condition. The old people are as usual in the best of hands. The matron after several years of service has proved her worth and the Association is most grateful.

The Association also wishes to thank the ladies and gentlemen who so kindly have assisted with the services at the Home each Sunday afternoon, and the many kind friends who have remembered, at different seasons of the year, the old people with gifts, sharing with the less fortunate the abundance of their blessings.

Mrs. Holmes and her ward visitors are still a busy band. Each month as the reports come in, one realizes the amount of time, tact and patience the convenor of the Indigent Committee must exercise each day.

The other committees, the Dorcas, Linen, Devotional and Magdalene and Jail have all done excellent work in their separate branches.

By the death of Miss Helen Emberson the Dorcas has lost a much loved member. The many demands made on her, for work or advice, were always met in the same cheerful, happy manner, that she displayed in all her work, for she had that happy dispostion that could always trace the rainbow through the rain. Her place will be very hard to fill.

Block day and the two garden parties at the Hospital and Home, were as usual very successful. Outside of the donations and membership fees, these are the only appeals the Association makes to the public, and they are always very gratified with results.

When one looks back over the 37 years of the life of the Association, one marvels that from such a small beginning should develop such a large and useful organization. It has only been by the tenderest care, the most faithful, watching prayer that this has been accomplished. Can we not, in loving memory of the brave women who undertook this work, which sometimes must have seemed almost insurmountable, go forward in our work, not deeming anything too great a task, but always with our eyes lifted up unto the hills.

HELEN G. WALLBRIDGE,
Recording Secretary,
W. C. A.

Of these 46 were business letters and 2 sympathy letters. 48 invitations to nurse's graduation were sent out. 75 annual reports were sent to the following: City Clergy, Advisory Board, Mayor and City Council, County Council, City Physicians, reading rooms, Corby Public Library, Mrs. Sills, Mrs. Coulson and Miss Julia Ponton. Life membership certificates were sent to Mrs. Hyman and Mrs. Coulson. W. C. A. notes were given to local papers each month, reporting expenditure for Hospital and Home, receipts from Hospital and number of patients admitted during the month, also gifts to the Home.

The annual meeting was advertised in the daily papers and notices read in the city churches. These were kindly type-written by Miss Macrae.

I wish here to thank Mrs. R. J. Bell, who has so kindly and efficiently performed my duties for the past four months.

HOSPITAL BOARD REPORT

From October 1st, 1915 to September 30th, 1916.

Another year of work has come to an end, and we beg to submit the record to the friends and patrons.

This year has been a most successful one as regards the work in the Hospital, and it is most gratifying to those who have devoted so much time and care to see year by year an increase in the demand for Hospital treatment. It means a greater appreciation by the public of its necessity. However, the increased number of patients has necessitated an increase in the nursing staff, and consequently the nurse's quarters are entirely inadequate and over crowded. This matter has been before the Board for some time and has been given serious consideration.

The Board has decided to furnish the third flat over the nurse's quarters, and by that means seven bed rooms, with bath and lavatories will be added, and that will relieve the situation for the present.

Considerable work has been done in the interior of the Hospital during the year. The present nurses' apartments have been put in good condition. The walls, ceiling woodwork and corridor have been painted, and new furnishings added. The reception room and study, three nurses' bed rooms with bath rooms, the corridor, the assembly hall and surgery in the main building have also been painted throughout. The Masonic Wards, No. 1 and No. 2 have been thoroughly renovated.

Through the kindness of Mrs. Ackerman, their ward has been redecorated and new furnishings added. The walls, ceilings and woodwork of the Nursery and Fisherman's Ward, with bath room and corridor have been painted throughout. New fire hose has been installed on three flats.

I am highly pleased to be able to report on the ministerial Hospital visitation. Early in the present year the Ministerial Association formulated a regular scheme of weekly Hospital visitation of the Public Wards, and (by invitation) private patients, on Monday afternoon by two ministers. The following have taken part: Revs. Osborne, Clarry, Hubly, Moore, Currie, Kerr, Rough, Smith and Capt. Rustin.

They report the sympathetic cooperation of Miss Green and Miss Morrison and the staff of nurses in their task undertaken in the name of Him, who said: "I was sick and ye visited Me."

Of the year's work the saddest feature is the removal by death of Dr. Mather, a valued member of the medical staff. We extend to Mrs. Mather our deep sympathy in her sorrow.

Signed on behalf of the Hospital Board.

M. E. MOYNES.

HOME MANAGEMENT REPORT

At present there are seven inmates in the Home; three men and four women, five having been admitted during the year. There were no deaths. The collective days' stay is 3177, a decrease of 129 days since last year.

Devotional services have been held, and we desire to thank those who assisted, particularly Mrs. Bishop, who presided at the organ at services.

In May the Royal Templars of Temperance gave the old people a very pleasant evening, at the close serving oranges and candy.

In July the annual garden party was held on the Home grounds. The I. O. O. F. band again generously supplied music, and we wish to thank them for their services, also the many others who helped to make it a success, the proceeds of $88.87, being an increase over last year.

During the year some improvements recommended by the secretary in the last annual report, have been made namely, the connection of the ceiling.

We desire to thank the many friends who have helped in the work by sending gifts and clothing, amounting in value to $121.80. Particular mention should be made of Mr. Rough, of the Marchmont Home, who for the past five months has supplied us with milk.

We are fortunate in having a matron who gives such competent and painstaking care of the old people.

We regret that during the year Mrs. Warren, who for many years has efficiently managed this department has removed from our city.

NELLIE C. DYER,
Convenor.

A BUILDER OF CANALS

MAJOR D. Z. WELLER HAS CLAIMS ON FAME.

Engineer in Charge of the Welland Canal Was a Crack Rifleman and Was a Member of the Bisley Team of 1896—He Served in the North-West Rebellion—His Engineering Feats Are Notable.

MAJOR J. L. WELLER, on whose shoulders rests the main burden of the mammoth construction work now in progress on the new Welland Ship Canal, is a native of Ontario, having been born at Cobourg in this Province, some 56 years ago. He was graduated from the Royal Military College with honors in 1883, taking the first prize in civil engineering, physics, and artillery. He has been constantly in the employment of the Department of Railways and Canals of Canada from 1883 to the present date, being connected with the construction of the Trent, Murray, and St. Lawrence Canals. He was superintending engineer of the Welland Canal from 1900 to 1912, and at present is engineer-in-charge of the survey, design, and construction of the proposed Welland Ship Canal, which is estimated to cost $50,000,000.

He has had a varied experience both as soldier and as engineer. He served in the North-West Rebellion in 1885 as lieutenant in the Midland Battalion, and as staff adjutant at the base under Major-General J. W. Laurie. Later he served as captain and adjutant in the 59th Stormont and Glengarry Regiment, retiring when senior major on moving out of the district. He was a member of the Bisley team of 1896, winning many prizes, among others the High Commisisoner's Cup. He was also a member of the Kolapore Cup team of that year, which was successful in winning the cup.

He was placed in charge of the repairs of the disastrous break in the Cornwall Canal bank in 1908, which was repaired by building a timber crib dam 428 feet long by 20 feet wide and 20 feet high around the washout, in ten days, and the canal was in operation in less than three weeks afterwards. Among his other claims to distinction may be mentioned the fact that he was the original inventor of reinforced concrete poles for electric lines.

Major Weller's great daring and resourcefulness have won him a reputation. Some years ago he accompanied a party of Government officials on a trip of inspection from Port Colborne to Port Stanley on Lake Erie. The party traveled on Lake Erie. The party traveled on a tug boat and the trip was made in November, when the weather is usually cold and the lake rough. A skiff was being towed behind the tug, and on the way to Port Stanley the tow line became fouled in the screw of the propeller of the tug. Efforts to free it were unavailing, and navigation of the boat was rendered impossible. The only solution was for one of the party to go down under the water and cut the rope away—not a very inviting prospect in the ice cold waters of the lake, and with a fair gale blowing. Major Weller volunteered for the service, and, after stripping off his outer garments, was lowered down behind.

Owing to the coldness of the water he was unable to accomplish the task at once, and was raised to the boat again. In a short time he again went down and succeeded in partially freeing the propeller, but not sufficiently to enable it to be operated. It was necessary for him to be raised and lowered five times before the task was completed, and by that time he was completely exhausted and indifferent as to the state of the elements. With careful attention, however, and, thanks to his robust constitution, he was gradually brought back to normal, but not without serious cogitation on his part as to the possible consequences of such exposure. By next day he was himself again, and had added another instance to the many where his daring has overcome difficult situations.

Major Weller was a splendid marksman, having been (as mentioned above) a member of the Bisley Team of 1896, from which he brought back many trophies and on such trips as the one just mentioned, he would often entertain the party by shooting pennies from between the fingers of his companions, who had such confidence in his aim that they were not at all diffident about offering a mark of this kind for his revolver.

Maj. Weller in 1885 married Miss Whitehead of Kingston. He has one son and two daughters. The son is Mr. W. H. Weller, general contracting engineer, who also graduated from the Royal Military College.

Cotton Prices High in Britain.

A Canadian manufacturer, recently returned from the cotton centres in the United States, is convinced as a result that cotton will continue to advance until the twenty-cent mark is reached. At present the price in Liverpool is four cents above that in New York, and that accounts for the fact that Canadian buyers who have recently visited England were not able to place orders there to the extent they desired because of prices being out of line altogether with those on an import basis from New York. The cause of the high price of raw cotton and of goods manufactured therefrom in Lancashire is the high cost of freight from the United States. Naturally Canadian buyers do not like being thus forced into the United States market. They not only have to contend against much higher prices for the manufactured product in Britain, but the price of bringing them over, say from Manchester, which is from ten to twelve per cent., as compared with two and a half per cent. from the United States centres.

TO BEATIFY MARTYR.

Father Jogues Will Be Honored by Roman Catholics.

The story of a French-Canadian priest-martyr, and the efforts made to have the Roman Catholic church properly honor his memory, are told in a letter from Rev. J. J. Wynne, of New York. It will interest Canadian Catholics particularly.

Sir: A cablegram from the Rev. Charles Mackesy, of the Gregorian University, Rome, announces that the cause of the beatification of Father Isaac Jogues has been introduced before the Congregation of Rites for definite consideration and settlement.

Although the death of Father Jogues at the hands of the Mohawk Indians occurred in 1652 on the site of the present village of Auriesville, the cause of having him declared a martyr and worthy of the veneration of all who hold the Christian faith was not actually begun until the year 1903. Prior to that time considerable preparation was made by the compilation of documents concerning Father Jogues and other missionaries who had labored with him, and who were put to death by the Iroquois in Canada, Brebeuf, Lalemant, Daniel, and Garnier. The result of these investigations was laid before a tribunal of ecclesiastics in Quebec, headed by the present Cardinal Begin, of that city. Prominently among the witnesses before this tribunal were persons who had made studies in the lives of these martyrs; among them the Rev. Arthur Jones, of Montreal; the Rev. Daniel Lowery, representing the Albany diocese, as Father Jogues was tortured and put to death in the limits of that diocese, and the Revs. T. J. Campbell and John J. Wynne, of this city. The evidence then presented has since been properly submitted to the authorities in Rome, who advocate the canonization of persons eminent for holiness, and to the devil's advocate, whose office it is to oppose the canonization in every way, and to show, if possible, that the persons in question are not worthy of special veneration.

This part of the process is so thorough and searching that the consent of the advocates on both sides to the formal introductions of the cause before the Congregation of Rites is usually equivalent to the declaration that the persons involved led saintly lives, doing great service for religion, and, in this instance, shedding their blood for it.

How long the Congregation of Rites may require before declaring these martyrs beatified and deserving of veneration it is impossible to say, though there is no reason why there should be any serious delay. In canonizing such men the church will only be approving a universal sentiment in favor of their veneration.

Among other items of evidence presented at Quebec was a letter from a prominent Protestant divine who had gone so far in his veneration for Isaac Jogues as to place a stained glass effigy of him in his church. Among those who took a principal part in locating the site of the Jogues martyrdom and in tracing testimony from the customs of the Mohawk families to prove that they killed him out of enmity to religion was the late General Clark, of Auburn, who, though not a Catholic, was most devoutly impressed by the life and sufferings of Father Jogues.

The one who is now loking after the process of his beatification in this country is the Rev. John J. Scully, located at Auriesville, N.Y., in charge of the shrine erected on the site of the martyrdom.

To Extend Good Roads.

The good roads propaganda instituted by the Provincial Department of Highways is to be extended this fall to every county in Ontario that is not already participating in the scheme. A circular outlining the whole scheme is being circulated to every home in these counties, showing the farmer just what advantage he will get from good roads, what it will cost the country, what his proportion is, and what the Province will do to help him. The illustrations are not given in percentages, but in plain dollars and cents; for instance, the circular says that for every 60 cents the county contributes towards construction the Government will give 40 cents. Other tables illustrate that the cost of maintenance is not heavy in counties where improved highways have been built, while other readable information conveys what is required to have the roads built and kept in proper condition. Hon. F. G. Macdiarmid, Minister of Public Works and Highways, has a practical knowledge of this subject and is bringing to bear an exceptional organizing ability in order that the movement may be widespread over the Province and its benefits enjoyed by every class of the community.

Amount is Exceeded.

Applications from burned-out settlers in Northern Ontario for Government loans have already exceeded the $100,000 set apart for that purpose, and Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Minister of Lands, Forests, and Mines, recently announced the intention of the Government to set aside other amounts necessary to meet all the bona fide claims. Conditions in some cases are most severe, and requests for assistance continue to pour in.

A considerable portion of the money originally set aside for the relief of settlers has already been despatched to the north, and the Minister stated that it was the intention of the Government to make another appropriation for seed grain for settlers similar to that of last year, when $50,000 was expended for the purpose.

A Two-headed Calf.

A calf was born recently on the farm of Mrs. John Bossence at Harrington, Zorra township, which had two well-developed heads. The body was slightly deformed. It died a few minutes after birth. Dr. J. A. Walsh, V.S., is having the two heads mounted.

THE "TANK."

Latest Device in Warfare is a Winner Offensively and Defensively.

"Britain's latest weapon of war is nothing more nor less than a huge land ship fully armored and capable of travelling at fair speed over the shell-battered and cratered terrain of Picardy. Designed, as they are, to traverse the most difficult country and to sweep away all obstacles in their path, they naturally are of fairly large size, with caterpillar wheels constructed to cover the widest trench or shell hole and to enable the vehicle to tackle almost any depth of mire. Their crews are protected by varying numbers of armored plates, any one of which is impervious to machine gun or rifle fire as well as shrapnel bullets, and it is asserted that only a direct hit from a gun of large calibre could put one of these monsters out of commission.

"While from a defensive point of view they are almost perfect, their offensive qualities are even superior, and when they have cleared a trench of the enemy or have forced the survivors into the shelter of their dugouts, these land ships—'tanks,' as the Tommies prefer to call them—have another little surprise in store for the beaten enemy, about which perhaps it were wise not to say more.

"Most of the great engineering works in Britain can claim a share in the production of these armored cars. They are built in parts at different factories in order to preserve the secret of their construction, and they are then assembled at a central factory under the supervision of experts of the armored car division."

Hall Caine, in a special article, says he has been told that if the Allies had 3,000 "tanks" the war would be over in a month.

Other writers say that the "tanks" smash trees and other like obstacles to their progress, including wire entanglements, with the greatest ease. They carry both large and small guns, weigh over 400 tons, and have a speed of five miles an hour.

Heavy Losses in Cherry Orchards.

The losses in Ontario cherry orchards as a result of leaf spot are proving quite as great as indicated by special reports published last summer. The disease began to be serious last season, and as a result over 1,400 young trees in one Norfolk county orchard and 400 in another orchard in Prince Edward county were dead this spring, while complaints of smaller losses were all too frequent. More will be found dead next spring.

Mr. P. E. Angle of Norfolk county was able to control the disease with lime-sulphur spray. He sprayed with concentrated lime-sulphur, testing 32 degrees Baume, mixed one gallon of lime-sulphur to nine gallons of water early in the season before the buds start, and [illegible] spraying.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST LAND REGULATIONS.

The sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at any Dominion Lands Agency (but not Sub-Agency) on certain conditions.

Duties—Six months residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required, except where residence is performed in the vicinity.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Six months residence in each of three years after earning homestead patent; also 50 acres extra cultivation. Pre-emption patent may be obtained as soon as homestead patent, on certain conditions.

A settler who has exhausted his homestead right may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.

The area of cultivation is subject to reduction in case of rough, scrubby or stony land. Live stock may be substituted for cultivation under certain conditions.

DRAFT ELDERLY MEN

LONDON, Oct. 11.—Reuter's Amsterdam correspondent quotes the Tageblatt, of Berlin, to the effect that examination of the military classes of 1870 to 1875 (men between the ages of 58 and 62) will take place this month in the Province of Brandenburg, in which Berlin is situated. The despatch says the order refers to all those who previously have been declared unfit for military service.

GERMAN GAS ATTACKS MADE AGAINST RUSSIANS

Bombard Positions in Front of Uskull Bridge Fortifications But Were Repulsed—Defenders Maintained Their Positions by Machine Gun and Artillery Fire

Canadian Press Special.

PETROGRAD, Oct. 12.—Three German gas attacks launched against Russian positions in front of the Uskull bridge fortifications on October 8, were unsuccessful, says Russian official statements reporting operations on the Western Russian front. The defenders maintained their positions by machine gun and artillery fire and destroyed the gas apparatus. A bridge erected by Germans over the River Baldurka in the region of Belauce village was destroyed by Russian artillery.

In the Caucasus nothing important occurred.

Liberal Leaders Arrive in London

Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Aides Reach City For Conference

LONDON, Oct., 11—Sir Wilfrid Laurier arrived here at 11.30 to-day and immediately left his private car to go to a luncheon given in his honor by Sir George Gibbons. On the way up from Toronto the Liberal chieftain was in consultation with other leaders of the party. For most of the trip he had Mr. N. W. Rowell, Hon. T. C. Norris, Hon. George P. Graham, Hon. Charles Murphy, and Mr. J. G. Turriff, M. P. in the private car with him. "Just meeting his friends," said Sir Wilfrid's secretary.

Drive Turks From Slopes

Russians Score Victory Over Ottoman Troops in Caucasus

PETROGRAD Oct. 11—The following announcement was made to-day by the War Office:

"In the coastal region on the Caucasian front our gallant troops dislodged the Turks from the mountain slopes near Soga and Olmardjik and gained the right bank of the River Karshutdarasi to the mouth.

"On the western (Russian and Galician) front there were no events of importance."

To Enforce The Temperance Act

KINGSTON, Oct. 11.—In order that the city may get the fines levied for violations of the new Temperance Act, the City Council last night appointed the Chief of Police to enforce the act in Kingston. Several fines have been levied during the past week, but because the city had no official to enforce the Act, the fines went to the Ontario Government. Now the city will get the fines, which during the winter may amount to hundreds of dollars.

FORMER KING OTTO OF BAVARIA DIES IN CONFINEMENT AT MUNICH

Canadian Press Special.

LONDON, Oct., 12—Former King Otto of Bavaria, insane for many years, has died suddenly, according to an official announcement in Berlin quoted in an exchange telegraph despatch from Copenhagen. He died in Fuerstenried Castle, near Munich, where he had been confined since 1873.

MILITARY MATTERS AT BARRIEFIELD HEIGHTS

HEADQUARTERS AT KINGSTON

Officers to be Established in the Armories—Barriefield may Close Next Week.

Barriefield Camp will close probably about the middle of next week if the camp work is completed by that time. The headquarters and departmental corps will return to take up offices and stores where cold weather will not interfere with work. The headquarters staff immediately under Brig.-Gen T. D. R. Hemming, will, of course, occupy the Armouries as before. Lieut.-Col. H. R. Wilson is now making arrangements for the proper distribution so that with the increased staff there will be no crowding to interfere with the high efficiency standard maintained. Both the general and Col. Oglivie will take over their old offices, but the other rooms will likely be subjected to a change. The Engineers may take rooms over the Bank of Toronto or in some other suitable building, and this will allow two more rooms to be added to the General Staff officers' quarters. It is likely that the offices for Lieut.-Col. G. H. Gillespie, Major D. E. Mundell and Major J. M. Wilson will be in the old 146th Battalion rooms.

THE CAMP TOOTH-PULLERS

The report of the Dental clinic at the camp shows that only seventy-two members of the 155th Battalion had perfect teeth before coming into camp, but now the full compliment of men have well working dental fixtures. On July 21st, work was started on the Belleville battalion men and an examination made of every man's set of teeth. There were 886 N.C.O.'s and men examined, and for each man a dental history sheet was started. On the 814 men who have to have treatment there were 6,110 operations and 124 artificial dentures were inserted.

The dental clinic has certainly been doing a great amount of work in its quiet way, and this is emphasized by the fact that beside the work of the 155th Battalion members there were 1,170 emergency cases taken care of.

With the completion of the work for the 155th Battalion the dentists have commenced to repair the teeth of the men in Queen's Field Ambulance, and are making the necessary examinations.

NOTES

Lt.-Col. Adams of the 155th Battalion has returned from a visit to Picton.

The demand for qualified nurses for overseas service comes quite frequently to this district, and so far Lt.-Col. Gardiner, A.D.M.S., has been able to respond to every request.

The Bishop of Kingston has sent to Mr. Tom Pearson, of the Y.M.C.A. staff, a number of prayer books for distribution among the men. The gift is very much appreciated.

Lieut. Lanos, of the staff of the Royal Military College, has received from Brig.-Gen. Hemming a letter thanking him for the excellent work that he has done during the camp season at Barriefield.

Captains S. J. Gilmour and S. E. Vermilyea of the 155th Battalion, are among those who have qualified as Field Officers.

Barns and Crops Destroyed by Fire

Fifty Tons of Hay Burned at Conflagration Near Bethel

PETERBOROUGH, Oct. 11.—Fire destroyed all the barns and adjoining sheds on the farm of Mr. Edwin Fife near Bethel Church, Otonabee last night. The fire started in one of the lofts while the members of the family were busy milking the cows, and the blaze had made considerable headway before it was noticed.

Efforts were successfully made in getting the horses out of the stables but four head of cattle, six hogs and a number of hens were destroyed, as well as an immense crop of grain, 50 tons of hay and many farm implements.

It is thought that spontaneous combustion was the cause. There is some insurance.

Berlin Delighted Over Sub. Raid

German Press Enthusiastic Over Latest Exploits of Their Underwater Craft

BERLIN Oct., 10—The submarine U-53 today furnished two surprises for the people of Berlin, first its unexpected arrival at Newport, and then the reports of the sinking by the submersible of British freighters off the American coast. The exploits of the submarine occasioned long and enthusiastic press comment. Regardless of various attitudes of the newspapers with regard to the present submarine controversy, all the journals express the keenest pride and pleasure in the achievements of the U-53, dilating particularly on the fact that she was able to resume her voyage from Newport and operate against the enemy merchantmen without taking advantage of the International privilege of replenishing her fuel and other supplies.

There is no fear here of complications with the United States over the warlike activity of the submarine, as it is generally assumed in official as well as newspaper circles, that her operations are being conducted in accordance with the requirements of regular cruiser warfare as specified by the law of nations and recognized by the American Government.

No information is obtainable here concerning the voyage of the U-53 or her mission, nor is anything said as to whether other submarines than the U-53 are operating in the trans-Atlantic waters or are on their way there.

POPE MAKES APPEAL TO GERMAN BISHOPS

Seeks To Pave The Way For Ending The Hostilities in Europe

BERLIN, Oct., 11—A Cologne despatch says that the Pope has addressed a letter to the German Bishops through Cardinal von Hartmann, declaring that though his efforts for peace at present are unsuccessful he is endeavoring to soften the violent animosity between the belligerent peoples.

"Our bitter grief," writes the Pontiff, "over the frightful bloodshed is increased by the fact that our repeated efforts for peace encounter, on the part of some, contemptible attempts to cast suspicion on our motive, by others, open rejection. We wish, however, while steadfastly awaiting peace, to lighten to some little extent at least by all means in our power, the heavy burden which the war entails. The most important task today is an effort to end that animosity between the members of the various nations, now sharpened through war, but decreased by mutual works of Christian mercy."

DRIVE TO TRIESTE NOW OCCUPIES ITALIAN FORCES

Capture Over 6,000 Prisoners — Smash Austrian Lines in Trentino and The Julian Alps—Storm Strongly Defended Heights

LONDON, Oct. 12—Special—Italian troops, fighting in the Carso region southeast of Goritz, have resumed their march toward Triest, capturing several lines of Austrian trenches and more than 5,000 prisoners, says the official statement issued by the War Office yesterday. In addition they have occupied strongly defended heights between the Viccapo River and Hill 208, taking quantities of arms and munitions.

Through successes on two other fronts the Italians captured 1,400 additional prisoners. The advances were made in the Cosmagnon sector on Pasubio, in the Trentino, and on the front of Julien Alps between Tobar and Vertoba, south of Goritz. The Austrian line on the Julian front was broken, the statement adds. On the Pasubio front 530 prisoners were taken and 860 on the Julian front. In addition 164 officers were taken in the Carso advance.

DRINKS WOOD ALCOHOL AND DIES IN HOSPITAL

Abraham Cohen, a Married Man, Succumbs to Effects of Several Doses

TORONTO, Oct., 11—Abraham Cohen, aged forty-two years, married, 83 Niagara Street, died in the Western Hospital about 9.45 o'clock last night, as a result of several doses of wood alcohol which he had taken during the past few days. Dr. Breslin was called to the man's house shortly before 9.30 o'clock last night and on discovering the seriousness of Cohen's condition he immediately sent him to the Western Hospital. The stomach pumps were applied by Dr. W. E. Ferguson, of the hospital, but Cohen died in ten minutes after his admittance.

LOST LEGS AND ARMS

Man Run Over by Train Near Strachan Avenue, Toronto

TORONTO, Oct. 11.—After an accident on the G.T.R. right of way near Strachan avenue, in which he lost both legs and both arms, this morning George Calhoun, of Cooksville, about 35 years old, was lifted by Conductor Fred Crone and John Daniels, of a westbound freight train, from his position across a track over which rushed a fast passenger train a few minutes later. He was placed on a freight train which was standing nearby and was taken to the Western Hospital, where he died shortly afterwards.

It is believed that Calhoun either tried to board a moving train or was struck while trying to cross the track. He was semi-conscious when picked up.

DEMANDS REPARATION

LONDON, Oct. 12—Special.—"This is no time for faltering counsel or wavering purposes," said Premier Asquith in addressing the House of Commons today. "This war cannot be allowed to end in some patched-up, precarious and dishonoring compromise masquerading under the name of peace.

"No one desires to prolong for a single moment longer than is necessary the tragic spectacle of bloodshed and destruction, but we owe it to those who have given their lives that their supreme sacrifices shall not have been unavailing.

"The ends of the allies are well known. They have been frequently stated. They are not selfish, they are not vindicative, but they required adequate reparation for the past and adequate security for the future."

REPORT ALLIED REPULSE

Canadian Press Special.

BERLIN, Oct., 12—All attacks made yesterday by the Anglo-French forces against German positions on the Somme front, according to to-day's German official statement, were repulsed.

New Ultimatum To Constantine

Allies Demand That He Hand Over The Greek Fleet

LONDON, Oct. 12.—Vice-Admiral Dartige du Fournet, Commander of the Anglo-French fleet in the Mediterranean, has presented an ultimatum to Greece, demanding that Greece hand over the entire Greek fleet, except the armored cruiser Averoff and the battleships Lemnos and Kilkis, to the Entente allies by 1 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, according to Reuter's Athens correspondent.

Demand is also made for the control of the Piraeus-Barissa railway.

"The Minister of Marine," the correspondent continues, "says Vice-Admiral Fournet's demands will be complied with, and that the fleet will be handed over before the prescribe time.

"The demands were made as a precautionary measure to insure the safety of the allies' fleet."

BRITISH GENERAL DEAD

Brigadier-General Howell Had Great Career in India

LONDON, Oct. 12.—Special.—Brigadier-General Philip Howell has been killed in action.

General Howell was mentioned in despatches last year, and was made a Commander of the Order of St. Michael and St. George. He was only thirty-nine years old, and had had a distinguished career in India, where he saw service on the northwest frontier, and received the war medal with clasp.

ROUMANIANS DRIVEN BACK TO FRONTIER POSITIONS BY HUNS

Canadian Press Special.

BERLIN, Oct., 12—Teuton troops are pursuing the Roumanian forces on the whole eastern Transylania front, says an official statement issued today by German army headquarters staff. Second Roumanian army announcement adds: "Have been driven back into frontier positions."

SUPREME COURT CASES

The fall sittings of the Supreme Court, Fall assize was concluded in Belleville yesterday before the Honorable Justice Clute. Only two cases were tried, both without a jury.

A case of Murray vs Murray was tried. It was a motion of James Murray and opposed by Mrs. Murray to set aside a deed of property made in 1916 to Mrs. Murray. A number of years ago a lot was bought for $75 and a house built, the entire property being worth perhaps $1,100 today. The deed to Mrs. Murray was not made until 1916, although the house was there in 1916.

Judge Clute found that the greater part if not the whole of the money that went into the lot and house was that of the husband. There may have been some small proportion given to the wife, possibly $100. The greater part of the work of building was done by the husband. Two years before the deed was made an insurance was effected upon the house for $700. Both parties were present and the ownership was declared to be in the wife's name. The husband in the box declared that he paid no insurance. The plaintiff's own statement that his wife urged him to have the deed made to her and that he finally consented on the understanding that she was to give the property back to him whenever he asked for it was not corroborated by Col. Ponton, the solicitor who drew the deed. The judge considered that the deed was a gift from the husband to the wife, reluctantly but still made. The plaintiff had not succeeded in displacing that view of the case. Therefore Judge Clute found it was no trust secret or otherwise for the husband. Having regard to the fact that most of the husband's earnings went into the house, the action was dismissed without costs.

Mr. W. C. Mikel, K.C., appearing for the plaintiff asked for 15 days' stay which was granted. Mr. W. D. M. Shorey appeared for the defendant.

The judgment will likely be appealed to the divisional court at Osgoode Hall.

Keeler vs. The Campbellford Lake Ontario and Western Railway—By consent judgment entered for plaintiff for $1,500 and $200 costs. Messrs. Porter & Carnew for plaintiff; Messrs. McMurchy & Spence for defendant.

Four cases were by consent traversed to a subsequent court.

Walkinson v.s. Bierworth—This was an action for possession and for declaration of ownership of two lots in Faraday Township, Hastings County, and for minerals thereon. Judgment was given by Justice Clute for plaintiff as prayed, Messrs, Northrup, K. C., and Ponton, K.C., for plaintiff; Mr. Wilkins, Toronto, for defendant.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

MARY PICKFORD IN "THE ETERNAL GRIND"

If possible, this popular film star appeared to better advantage in last night's presentation of "The Eternal Grind," a factory photoplay, than any production she has previously graced, her apt insight into the conditions of the poverty stricken classes, among which her lot was cast, bringing out many beautiful characteristics. The scenes, laid in a New York sweatshop, were true to life, the hard-hearted owner, his profligate son, the brutal foreman of the workroom, the fainting of half-fed work-girls, and the squalor in which they dwelt, proving a revelation to the large audience. But, as in all such plays, the day came when better things were experienced. Mary Martin, impersonated by Mary Pickford, was the instrument in the hands of Providence, to bring about more congenial conditions, the faithful little worker finally becoming the wife of the proprietor's second son, a manly young fellow of sterling principles. The play is enticing, and with "Frank Daniel's Venture into Business" on the same programme, will be repeated this evening.

FRANCIS X BUSHMAN AT GRIFFIN'S TO-MORROW

"The Wall Between," a five part Metro wonderplay, with Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne in the starring roles, will be seen as the next feature attraction at Griffin's Opera House, Tomorrow night and Saturday night and at the Palace Theatre, Sat. matinee. In this production Mr. Bushman and Miss Bayne have the best vehicle in which they have appeared in their long careers upon the screen Both have appeared in more than five hundred pictures, but were never given roles better suited to their distinctive artistic talents than in this production.

On the same program with the above offering the third whirl of the "Musty suffer comedy series will be exhibited along with the Pathe English News Gazette.

MAY BELL MARKS AT GRIFFIN'S NEXT WEEK

May Bell Marks supported by the R. W. Marks stock company appear at Griffin's Opera House all next week, with a change of play and vaudeville nightly. No company travelling today has a more enviable reputation than this well known and popular company. It is an organization that is accepted throughout the country as a standard of excellence, and the reputation it has acquired during the part of a few years of unvarying success will be more sustained during the present season. The company is large and well-balanced, containing in its roster some of the best artists in the theatrical profession. It has been equipped with all special scenery and electrical effects necessary for a first class performance, each being presented with special scenery and beautiful and expensive costuming. High class specialties will be introduced between the acts making a continuous performance, thus doing away with the long waits usually found with all travelling attractions. The play selected for the opening performance next Monday evening is the supreme success of all stage successes, "Within the Law." Six high class vaudeville specialties are carried by the company this season besides a carload of scenery and effects.

Just One Application and the Hairs Vanish

(Modes of Today)

A harmless, yet very effective, treatment is here given for the quick removal of hairy growths: Mix enough powdered delatone and water to cover the undesirable hairs, apply paste and after two or three minutes remove, wash the skin and the hairs have vanished. One application usually is sufficient but to be certain of results, buy the delatone in an original package.

WEDDING BELLS

TRIPP—PETTET

On Wednesday, Sept 27th, the relatives and a few near friends of the bride and groom assembled in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Pettet of Frankford, to witness the marriage of their youngest daughter Ada Selina, to Mr. Sherman H. Tripp, son of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Tripp of the 6th concession of Sidney. At 9 a.m. the young bridegroom took his place under a beautiful arch, in the midst of a profusion of flowers, immediately before Rev. J. D. P. Knox, the officiating minister, and was there joined by the fair bride, who entered the room with her father to the strains of the wedding march played by the bride's aunt Mrs. W. W. Bell. The vows were read, the covenant made, and in the solemn and appropriate stillness the happy and popular young couple were pronounced to be husband and wife together.

Congratualtions were offered, the registers were signed, and a most delicious wedding breakfast was served after which Mr and Mrs Tripp motored to Trenton where they entrained for Toronto, Niagara and other points, returning on Saturday, Oct. 7th. After spending a short time among friends in Frankford, they will remove to Prince Edward County where they will reside in the future. Sherman and Ada are both very popular here in the church and Sunday school, and will be greatly missed. They are followed by the hearty good wishes of their host of friends.

Previous to the marriage a miscellaneous shower was given by the friends of the young couple and a very large number of valuable beautiful and useful articles needed in housekeeping were received.

Editor's Note—The above reached our desk this (Thursday) morning. While always glad to receive such news items, The Intelligencer would appreciate more promptness on the part of the senders.

SPORTING

BOSTON GAINS LEAD OVER BROOKLYN CLUB

Threatened with having the world's series knotted on them, the Red Sox, yesterday afternoon squarde off again" st the Dodgers, determined to return to their own home for to-day's game, with the edge in their favor.

Brooklyn made their two runs in the first inning. Boston coming to bat in the second, they secured three runs, thanks to Gardner who made his second home-run of the series, scoring Hobby and Lewis. ## Edison Recital And Tone Test

Delighted A Large Audience at Young Men's Christian Association Auditorium

The Edison recital and tone test, which was presented to the music lovers of Belleville in the Y.M.C.A. auditorium last night, was a decided success. That the people of this city appreciate a good thing, musically, was amply demonstrated by the crowded hall last night. At the close of the delightful evening's programme many people present personally expressed their appreciation to the visiting artists and to Mr. W. B. Riggs, through whom the recital was made possible. Owing to ill-health Miss Ida Gardiner was unable to be present, as advertised, and her place on the programme was taken by Mr. Hardy Williamson, a noted English tenor, who is soloist at the Collegiate Church of St. Nicholas, corner of 5th Ave., and 48th Street, New York. Mr. Williamson captivated the large audience by his rich, melodious voice. Mr. Harold Lyman, a clever flutist, also rendered several numbers in pleasing style.

The new and delightful nature of last evening's programme was the Edison tone-test, in which the beautiful Edison instrument and Mr. Williamson sang together. Their voices blended perfectly, and by closing the eyes one could not tell but that two people were standing on the platform and singing together. Mr. F. A. Dillon, of the R. S. Williams & Sons Co., Toronto, assisted Mr. Riggs during the evening.

New Boarder Loots Rooms

Engaged Room and Board From Landlady, and Then Helped Himself To About Forty Dollars in Cash

Shortly after noon yesterday a stranger called at Mrs. Bryce's boarding house on Pinnacle street, Belleville, and made a request for a room and board for a week. He was accommodated and was shown up to a room, where he apparently remained for some time and then came down stairs and went out. Later in the day when some of the boarders returned to Mrs. Bryce's place, they were rather surprised upon entering their room to find that some one had been ransacking their personal effects. Upon investigation it was ascertained that upwards of $40 in money had been taken from some of the boarders, which was no doubt done by the stranger who has not since been seen. The affair was reported to the police, who are endeavoring to locate the stranger. He is described as a young man about 25 years of age, rather short in statue, and of heavy build. He had the appearance of being a Frenchman.

The residence of Joseph Montgomery, of Madoc Township, the man who is under arrest, suspected of murdering his brother, Walter Montgomery, was on Tuesday night destroyed by fire, together with the greater portion of its contents. The origin of the fire is not known. The loss on building and contents will be considerable.

INSURANCE MEN MEET

A number of insurance men of the city and some invited guests including Messrs J. W. Johnson, M.P.P.; J. Elliot, W. C. Mikel and Dr Boyce, last evening partook of a supper at Hotel Quinte. The object of the meeting was to meet and do honor to Mr. Burt Morgan, of Victoria, B. C. who is President of the Underwriters Association of Canada. Amongst the local insurance agents in attendance were the Past President and Past Secretary-Treasurer of the Belleville Association. The affair while informal was of a pleasing nature.

BRIDGE ST. EPWORTH LEAGUE

The last meeting of this church organization was largely attended, the programme exceedingly interesting. The meeting opened with the singing of "God Save the King," followed with prayer by Rev. Dr. Scott, an address on "The Good Samaritan," or "Selfishness vs. Unselfishness,' by Miss Morton, and a solo by Mr. E. Ridley. The president, Mr. Hyde, occupied the chair, and Miss Morton was in charge of the programme. All young people are cordially welcome at these meetings.

TAX NOTICE

Taxes are payable at par until Oct. 16, Monday next, as the 15th falls on Sunday.

All persons owing arrears make provision to pay them by this date, as warrants are now being issued to the Bailiff, which include 1916 taxes. Interest will be added to all arrears as well as the bailiff's costs.

Dyspeptics Should Avoid Drugs And Medicines

Try a Little Magnesia Instead

Some people instinctively shut their eyes to danger, and it may be that instinct, or custom or habit causes dyspeptics to take drugs, patent foods and medicines, artificial digestents, etc.

But closing the eyes does not banish the danger, and it is certain that neither drugs nor medicines possess the power to destroy the harmful excessive acid in the stomach, which is the underlying cause of most forms of indigestion and dyspepsia. They may give temporary relief, but ever increasing quantities must be taken, and all the time the acid remains in the stomach as dangerous as ever.

Physicians know this and that is why their advice so often to sufferers from digestive and stomach trouble is "Just get about an ounce of pure bisurated magnesia from your druggist and take a teaspoon in a little water immediately after every meal." This will instantly neutralize all the harmful acid in the stomach and stop all food fermentation, thus enabling you to enjoy hearty meals without experiencing the least pain or unpleasmuvver broke 'er teapot on.'

Admiral Jellicoe Sends Out Call For Canadians

Invites Men From Dominion to Join Navy Because of The Fleet's Expansion

Hon. Rupert Guinness who is conducting a campaign in Canada for recruits for the Imperial Navy, has received the following appeal from Admiral Sir John Jellicoe, in command of the Grand Fleet:

"Dear Captain Guinness, — I wish you all success in your mission to Canada, and feel sure the response of the Dominion to the call of the Imperial Navy will equal—in proportion—that grand response given by Canada to the Empire on the declaration of war.

"I give you the following message to the people of Canada:

"On the memorable occasion early in the war the navy watched with pride the magnificent stand made by Canadian troops, when their self-sacrifice, gallantry and tenacity saved a very critical situation.

"The officers and men of the fleet which I have the honor to command now look forward to seeing these men of Canada, who have hitherto not been able to join the contingents from their Dominion for service on shore, come to sea to share with them the task of watching and guarding the wide sea f[illegible]t of our Empire, a duty which is our honor and privilege to have entrusted to our keeping.

"The task of the navy is to safeguard the coasts of the Empire, to protect the Empire's commerce, the passage of Imperial troops and munitions of war, a task rendered more difficult as time goes on.

The immense expansion of the fleet which these various duties involve, together with the inevitable losses which occur, necessitate a large increase in the personnel, and it is for this reason that I would invite the men of Canada to join us.

"With their help we shall accomplish all the sooner the task for which the allies are working, viz., the freedom of smaller and weaker nations and the safe-guarding of treaty rights."

(Signed) J. N. Jellicoe

THIS IS THE 806TH DAY THE BRITISH EMPIRE HAS BEEN AT WAR WITH GERMANY.

GRATIFYING RECORD

The official statement of receipts and expenditures of the Government of Canada for the half year from April 1st to September 30th bears testimony to the improvement in business with outside countries and to the efficiency of the war taxes as a means of providing money for the great work in Europe. The income from every item was greater this year than last. The details for the two years are as follows:

| | 1915-16 | 1916-17 |
|---|---|---|
| Excise.. .. .. .. | 10,190,055 | 11,941,551 |
| Post office .. .. | 7,999,779 | 8,800,000 |
| Works and railways.. .... | 7,834,871 | 12,876.89 |
| Miscellaneous | 4,012,228 | 5,857,363 |
| | $73,243,514 | $103,589,680 |

The increase in the first half of the present fiscal year over the like period of 1915-16 is over thirty millions, and could only have been attained through trade being more active of late than it was twelve months ago before.

In the case of the expenditures, the record is also good, aside, of course, from the outlays on the war The records for the two years show;

| | 1915-16 | 1916-17 |
|---|---|---|
| Administrative services .. .. | $46,271,622 | $49,757,711 |
| Works and railways.. .... | 16,811,845 | 11,155,531 |
| Railway subsidies.. ....... .. | 723,021 | 363,478 |
| | $63,806,488 | $61,276,720 |

With an inrcease in revenue of thirty million there was a decrease in expenditures on ordinary account of two and a half millions. The evidence of care in the administration is plain on the face of the records.

The war outlays reported in the first six months of 1915-16 were $44,427,893. Those for the current are $104,538,895. They have morq than doubled in the twelve months; and are likely to continue advancing at a rapid rate. On the face of the record so far this year $42,300,000 was provided to meet them out of the ordinary income of the country. It is just possible, and even probable, that in the second half of the year there may a falling away from this excellent record. Meantime, however, it shows that a considerable proportion of the war cost is being met out of income, that the debt increase is moderate, and that even if the war lasts another year the permanent burden represented by the interest charge will be less than a few months ago there was reason to expect.

AN ADMIRABLE ACHIEVEMENT

The remarkable response by the people of Canada to the call by the Minister of Finance for one hundred million—a response which doubled the sum asked for—has aroused the admiration and gratitude of Great Britain and the wonder of the United States. Sir Thomas White is richly deserving of the many congratulatory messages which have been sent to him from abroad, as well as of those given to him so freely at home. The conduct of Canada's finances during the war period has been as great a surprise to Canadians as it has been a source of pride. It has been as far-seeing and as skilful as it has been courageous. The Minister of Finance has not hesitated even in the face of pessimistic counsel, to go into new fields and tap new sources in providing the money necessary for carrying on the war. And in every single instance he has succeeded. And not only has he succeeded but he has accomplished results exceeding his own estimates. In the case of the war loans he has been offered two dollars for every one that he asked.

Sir Thomas White has displayed a profound confidence in the patriotism of the Canadian people, and he has not been disappointed.

The Canadian people have displayed as great a confidene in the ability of the Finance Minister to make the most of the country's war resources, and to spend wisely, and they have not been disappointed.

In making allotments Sir Thomas gave first consideration to the small subscriber. In other words it was in the truest sense, the people's loan. Fifty millions of dollars were offered by the great banking institutions of the country, but so great was the response of the smaller subscribers that none of the bonds went to the banks. Instead a new Imperial credit has been established equal to the amount which the banks offered for the loan.

It is a proud chapter in the history of the war. Great things are being done by Canada's sons on the battlefield; great things also are being done by Canadians at home.

Columbus Despatch: It is sometimes very enlightening to dig into history. While we complain of Great Britain's interference with our commerce to neutral ports, history tells us that the United States Supreme Court was the first legal authority in the world to hold such action lawful. The cargo of a British ship on a neutral voyage was confiscated, during the Civil War, against the united protest of all Europe. England excepted. Being the greatest maritime power, she saw the opportunity of future use of a rule which would permit her to seize a cargo bound from a neutral port to a neutral port, if there was suspicion that the cargo was ultimately to go to a blockaded people. An international commission composed of representatives of Belgium, Holland, Prussia, France, Russia, Italy and Austria protested that it was a violation of international law and asked that the doctrine be renounced. But the protest came in 1867, after the war, and the United States did not act. So if now the shoe pinches we must remember that it was we who shaped the last.

Complaints were recently made to the Department of Inland Revenue that manufacturers of confectionary were using solid paraffin as a stiffener for certain brands of chocolate candies. The substance to which objection was taken is declared to have no food value and to be indigestible. In many places it is condemned by the authorities. As a result of the attention drawn to the matter the laboratory of the department made an analysis of 151 samples of the candies in question collected by the inspectors. The result was justification of the complaints. The adulteration was not general. Of the total, 126 samples were found to be genuine, in the sense of being essentially cocoa material. Seven samples contained starch as foreign, and cheap, filling material. Ten showed the presence of other than cocoa fats, and were adulterated. Eight samples contained paraffin, and are condemned. Th exposure may check the wrong practice. Exposure has checked other wrongs in the way of food adulteration.

Current Comment

On the day after Thanksgiving, 1915, 140 drunks faced the Magistrate at the Police Court, Toronto, and Tuesday of this week there were 41. So much for the Ontario Temperance Act.

Mrs. Agnes M. Abbey, of Welland, has been awarded $6,000 damages and her infant son $2,000 for the death of her husband, killed in a collision between a trolley car and a G.T.R train at Port Colborne on June 19th.

"Damn the politicians," said an excited patriot at the Hawkes banquet at Montreal, and that is about all that many critics of the Governments are doing to win the war.—Toronto News.

A Toronto layman says, with regret that he does not know when he heard a sermon on eternal punishment. They are not as popular with preachers as they used to be. The people in the pews never did like them.—Saskatoon Phoenix.

His Royal Highness, the Governor-General sent a message of farewell to the people of Canada in his address to the Canadian Club of Ottawa. In few, simple, but well-chosen words he thanked them for the kindness and cordiality which they have shown him, and which have made him regard them as his friends.

Simple Way To End Dandruff

There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, common liquid arvon from any drug store (this is all you will need) apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

According to President Falconer, all the faculties of the University of Toronto will continue for the academic year of 1916-1917. The attendance at the whole university, it is anticipated, will be very much lower than last year. President Falconer states that just how much lower it will be he does not know, but that it will be considerably lower is what the university authorities expect.

The splendid response of Varsity's students to the call of patriotism has affected heavily the attendance in nearly every faculty. In the Faculty of Arts next year may see a heavier attendance of women students. In medicine, the registrar's office reports very many inquiries during the last week from prospective first-year men. The senior years in medicine are not drawn upon so heavily as the senior years in other faculties, as a doctor is of more value to the A. M. C. than a student, as a rule.

The Faculty of Applied Science is preparing to take care of as heavy a first year enrollment as last year. The other years will not be so large, as many of the students have enlisted. The Faculty of Forestry, although small, and having a class of men on its rolls very useful to the army, has made all preparations to continue as usual.

IN DAMP WEATHER.

Precautions to Be Taken by the Housewife.

A little while ago two young housewives were condoling with each other over the prolonged season of humidity and dampness.

"We can't get a single bureau drawer closed," said one. "And last night when I wanted to get out the very best table linen I own for an unexpected dinner guest, we couldn't get the linen drawer open, and instead of showing off my best, we had to use paper napkins."

"We're in a worse state," said the other. "Finally after much pulling I got a bureau drawer all the way out, and now I keep it propped up on two chairs because I can't get it in again."

Summer dampness is really hard to guard against. It is sure to come every year. The weather is too warm to permit fires which might restore the house to a comfortable dryness, and as the dampness is only temporary not very much can be done to furniture or inside fixtures. It is a temptation to have the spreading drawers and doors planed off a little, but to do so is a mistake for the return of heat and dry weather will cause them to shrink back to their normal proportions. If they are planed off now they will let in most unpleasant draughts and dust later.

Perhaps no one thing about damp weather is more distressing than the condition it inflicts on the salt cellar. If the salt cellar or shakers are emptied after each meal and thoroughly dried in a warming oven, and refilled just before the next meal, the salt will still be moist and sticky when it is used. One of the hotels at the seashore where dampness is inevitable keeps inverted water glasses over the salt dishes. Of course it is a little bit inconvenient to lift up a glass whenever you wish to get a spoonful of salt, but the results do make for dryness. Grains of uncooked rice can be mixed with salt used in shakers with rather satisfactory results.

Probably the fact that there is much greater humidity in England than in this country in part accounts for the fact that open cellars are always used there and that "salt shakers" are regarded as a decided Americanism. The obvious advantage of shakers is that in them the salt is kept free from dust and contact with the air, but in times of dampness one is tempted to use the English cellars, from which salt may be taken by means of a salt spoon so much more easily than it can be shaken out when it has absorbed a good share of moisture.

French Grateful for Gifts.

A splendid tribute to Canada's generosity is paid by the Paris Figaro, in an article which has been clipped by Mr. Gabriel Louis Jaray, of the Secours Nationale, Paris, and forwarded to Sir Glenhome Falconbridge. The Figaro reviews the numerous gifts made by Canada towards the work of aiding the French people and French wounded, and concludes: "One sees with what consistency and what generosity the whole people of Canada interest themselves in the work of succoring the soldiers of France."

DO YOU IMAGINE

that your skin trouble is incurable because ordinary treatments have failed? If so get Zam-Buk and prove, as thousands of others have, that Zam-Buk is capable of healing after everything else has failed!

Mrs. Horgan, of 182 Manning Ave., Toronto, writes: "For eight months my little son's face was simply covered with eczema. The pain and irritation were so intense that he could not sleep. He received treatment at a hospital, but it did him no good. Then I heard of Zam-Buk and commenced using it. It really worked wonders. The pain and irritation soon disappeared, and I could notice a decided improvement. I persevered with the treatment until now his face is quite free from sores and his skin is perfectly clear. I cannot be grateful enough for what Zam-Buk has done, and I shall never be without it."

Zam-Buk is equally good for ringworm, salt rheum, blood-poisoning, ulcers, old sores, piles, burns, scalds, cuts and all skin injuries. 50c. box, 3 for $1.25, all druggists or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

BELLEVILLE GENERAL HOSPITAL AND TRAINING SCHOOL FOR NURSES

Madam President:—I have the honor to present the Training School Report for the year ending September the 30th, 1916. The nursing staff as enrolled to date is as follows::

We had hoped to be able to take a larger class of probationers this fall, but owing to the lack of sleeping quarters in the nurses' home we have been unable to do so.

105 applications for admission to the school were received. We are pleased to feel that our school is attracting a good class of women.

Of seven probationers received last year, five were accepted as pupil nurses.

Last January we graduated three nurses and this fall we have a class of seven ready for graduation.

I am glad to be able to state that the health of the whole school has been particularly good this year. No illness of any serious nature has occurred. One nurse, after trial, found she was not strong enough, and returned to her home.

Seven graduates of this Hospital are doing service somewhere in the war zone, which we feel is a matter to be proud of. One of the members has received her captaincy, Miss Stacey.

I wish to thank the medical staff and other physicians for the interest they have taken in the school. Lecturing, teaching and helping us in every way possible for the improvement of the school. There are many things still needed to make the school efficient; such as a proper lecture room, a properly equipped and furnished study. We will hope that in the near future this also will be an accomplished fact.

C. H. GREENE.

APPLES, ORANGES, FIGS AND PRUNES

Are The Four Fruits Used In Making "Fruit-a-tives

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" is the only medicine in the world that is made from the juices of fresh ripe fruits. Thus, it is manifestly unfair to say, "I won't take Fruit-a-tives because I have tried other remedies and they did me no good". On the other hand, the fact that "Fruit-a-tives" is entirely different from any other preparation in the world, is just why you should give it a fair trial, in any trouble of the Stomach, Liver, Bowels, Kidneys or Skin. "Fruit-a-tives", is composed of the active principle of fruit and the greatest nerve tonic ever discovered. 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. "Were the roses real or artificial?"

"I don't know," he answered, with what I took to be a whimsical assumption of gravity. "It wouldn't matter, would it? Have you seen her?"

"Isn't your description," I said gravely, thinking to suit my humor to his own, "somewhat too general? A great many white hats trimmed with roses might come for a stroll in these woods."

"I have seen her only once before," he responded promptly, with a seriousness apparently quite genuine. "That was from my window at an inn three days ago. She drove by in an open carriage.

"A little while ago," he went on, "I was up in the branches of a tree over yonder, and I caught a glimpse of a lady in a light dress and a white hat, and I thought it might be the same. She wore a dress like that and a white hat with roses when she drove by the inn. I am very anxious to see her again."

"You seem to be!"

"And haven't you seen her? Hasn't she passed this way?"

"I think that I may have seen her," I began slowly, "but if you do not know her I should not advise"—

I was interrupted by a shout and the sound of a large body plunging in the thicket. Professor Keredec floundered out through the last row of saplings and bushes, his beard embellished with a broken twig, his big face red and perspiring. He was a fine, a mighty man, ponderous of shoulder, monumental of height, stupendous of girth. He seized the young man by the arm.

"Ha, my friend!" he exclaimed in a bass voice of astounding power and depth, "that is one way to study botany—to jump out of the middle of a high tree and to run like a crazy man!"

"I saw a lady I wished to follow," the other answered promptly.

"A lady! What lady?"

"The lady who passed the inn three days ago. I spoke of her then, you remember."

"Tonnerre de Dieu!" Keredec slapped his thigh violently. "Have I never told you that to follow strange ladies is one of the things you cannot do?"

"That other monsieur" shook his head. "No; you have never told me that. I do not understand it," he said, adding irrelevantly, "I believe this gentleman knows her. He says he thinks he has seen her."

"If you please, we must not trouble this gentleman about it," said the professor hastily.

"But I wish to ask him her name," urged the other.

"No, no!" Keredec took him by the arm. "We must go!"

"But why?" persisted the young man.

"Not now!" The professor removed his broad felt hat and hurriedly wiped his vast and steaming brow. "It is better if we do not discuss it now."

"But I might not meet him again."

"I do not know the lady," I said, with some sharpness. "I have never seen her until this afternoon."

Upon this "that other monsieur" astonished me in good earnest. Searching my eyes eagerly with his clear, inquisitive gaze, he took a step toward me and said:

"You are sure you are telling the truth?"

The professor uttered an exclamation of horror, sprang forward and clutched his friend's arm again. "Malheureux!" he cried, and then to me: "Sir, you will give him pardon if you can. He has no meaning to be rude."

"Rude!" The young man's voice showed both astonishment and pain. "Was that rude? I didn't know. I didn't mean to be rude, God knows! Ah," he said sadly, "I do nothing but make mistakes. I hope you will forgive me."

"Ha, that is better!" shouted the great man. "We shall go home now and eat a good dinner. But first"—his silver rimmed spectacles twinkled upon me, and he bent his Brobdingnagian back in a bow which, against my will, reminded me of the courtesies performed by Orloff's dancing bears—"first let me speak some word for myself. My dear sir"—he addressed himself to me with grave formality—"do not suppose I have no realization that other excuses should be made to you. Believe me, they shall be. It is now that I see it is fortunate for us that you are our fellow innsman at Les Trois Pigeons."

CHAPTER IV.

No doubt the most absurd thing I could have done after the departure of Professor Keredec and his singular friend would have been to settle myself before my canvas again with the intention of painting, and that is what I did. At least, I resumed my camp stool and went through some of the motions habitually connected with the act of painting.

In fine, I sat there brush paddling my failure like an automaton and saying over and over aloud: "What is wrong with him? What is wrong with him?"

I came out of my varicolored study with a start, caused by the discovery that I had absentmindedly squeezed upon my palette the entire contents of an expensive tube of covalt violet.

The turpentine rag at least proved effective. I scoured away the last tokens of my failure with it, wishing that life were like the canvas and that men had knowledge of the right celestial turpentine. After that I cleaned my brushes, packed and shouldered my kit and, with a final imprecation upon all sausage sandwiches, took up my way once more to Les Trois Pigeons.

Striding along at a good gait and chanting sonorously, "On Linden when the sun was low," I left the rougher boscages of the forest behind me and emerged just at sunset upon an orderly fringe of woodland where the ground was neat and unincumbered and the trimmed trees stood at polite distances, bowing slightly to one another with small, well bred rustlings.

I stood upon Quesnay ground.

Before me stretched a short, broad avenue of turf, leading to the chateau gates. A slope was terraced with strips of flower gardens and intervals of sward, and against the green of a rising lawn I marked the figure of a woman pausing to bend over some flowering bush. The lady upon the slope was Mme. d'Armand, the inspiration of Amedee's "Monsier has much to live for!"

Once more this day I indorsed that worthy man's opinion, for, though I was too far distant to see clearly, I knew that roses trimmed Mme. d'Armand's white hat and that she had passed me no long time since in the forest.

I had come far out of my way, so I retraced my steps to the intersection of the paths and thence made for the inn by my accustomed route. Not far along the road from where I came into it stood an old, brown, deep thatched cottage, a branch of brushwood over the door prettily beckoning travelers to the knowledge that cider was here for the thirsty, and as I drew near I perceived that one availed himself of the invitation. A group stood about the open door, the lamplight from within disclosing the head of the house filling a cup for the wayfarer.

The latter was a most mundane and elaborate wayfarer indeed—a small young man very lightly made, like a jockey and point device in khaki, puttees, pongee cap, white and green stock, a knapsack on his back and a bamboo stick under his arm. He spoke, though with a detestable accent, in a rough and ready, picked up dialect of Parisian slang, while Pere Baudry contributed his share of the conversation in a slow patois. As both men spoke at the same time and neither understood two consecutive words the other said, it struck me that the dialogue might prove unproductive of any highly important results this side of Michaelmas. Therefore, discovering that the very pedestrian gentleman was making some sort of inquiry concerning Les Trois Pigeons, I came to a halt and proffered aid.

"Are you looking for Mme. Brossard's?" I asked in English.

The traveler uttered an exclamation and faced about with a jump, birdlike for quickness.

"Say," he responded in a voice of unpleasant nasality, finally deciding upon speech, "you're 'Nummeric'n, ain't you?"

"Yes," I returned. "I thought I heard you inquiring for"—

"Well, m' friend, you can sting me," he interrupted, with condescending jocularity. "My style French does f'r them camels up in Paris all night. But down here I don't seem to be gud enough f'r these sheep dogs. Anyway, they bark different. I'm lukkin' fer a hotel called Les Trois Pigeons."

I pointed to the lights of the inn flickering across the fields. "Yonder—beyond the second turn of the road."

"Oh, I ain't goin' there t'night! It's too dark t' see anything now," he remarked. "Dives and the choo-choo back t' little ole Trouville f'r mine! I on'y wanted to take a luk at this pigeon house joint."

HOW TO KEEP WELL

INFANTILE PARALYSIS.

THIS IS A DISEASE of a portion of the front part of the spinal cord. It occurs chiefly in young children of from two years to fourteen years, but may occur in adults. In Ontario we have occasional cases every year, but the severe outbreak which has existed in New York and other places in the United States has made our people anxious lest a similar epidemic may occur in this Province.

Some cases are severe, giving symptoms such as high fever, vomiting, headache, and pains in the limbs succeeded by severe paralysis of groups of muscles. Others are very mild with perhaps few or no symptoms beyond loss of appetite, a little rise of temperature and perhaps some vomiting, or there may be no symptoms to attract attention until the child shows some weakness in the legs or arms accompanied by some slight soreness. It is thought that the very mild cases, often unrecognized, are the ones which spread the disease.

It is believed that the disease is carried from one patient to another through the medium of the discharges from the nose, throat, and intestines. It may be carried by flies which have ample opportunity of coming into contact with the discharges.

In order that the chances of a widespread outbreak may be minimized as much as possible, the following precautions are required by the Provincial Board:

PRECAUTIONS AGAINST THE DISEASE

(1) Every CASE must be quarantined for a period of SIX weeks.

(2) All children who have been in contact with a case must be quarantined and kept under observation for a period of TWO weeks.

(3) Adult members of the family who are wage-earners may be allowed to go about their work subject to the regulations of the Provincial Board and on the discretion of the Medical Officer of Health.

(4) Where there is an outbreak gatherings of children, such as at picnics, picture shows, and playgrounds, should be prohibited.

(5) The source of origin of each case should be carefully enquired into in order that proper quarantine may be maintained.

(6) In houses where cases appear all doors and windows should be screened, the premises kept clean, and no accumulation of garbage or waste permitted.

(7) All cases should be at once notified to the Medical Officer of Health, and by him to the Chief Officer of the Provincial Board.

(8) Mild cases, showing slight headache, rise of temperature, and vomiting persisting for a few days, with slight muscular weakness and absence of paralysis, should be quarantined. These are probably one of the chief sources of contagion.

The keystone of the prevention of infantile paralysis is to get track of the cases and carriers and to control them.

(9) As Infantile Paralysis is a most serious disease and in the present epidemic giving a high death-rate, the public is urged to second the efforts of the authorities in every way in order to prevent a severe outbreak in the Province.

(10) All materials such as cloths, etc., carrying secretions and discharges from patients should be burned, boiled, or disinfected.

For several days the course of Infantile Paralysis is that of an ordinary infectious disease. Between the first and sixth days more or less muscular weakness begins. This is generally preceded by soreness in the limbs. If the child is not under the care of a physician parents should take note of any complaint or evidence of this soreness and call their doctor's attention to it.

The muscles may be tested by having the patient draw his knees up against the resisting hand or by having him push his feet against resistance. In from one or two weeks electrical tests will show that the muscles and nerves are degenerating. This keeps up for about six months. In two or three weeks the shrinking of the muscles is apparent to the eye. Some cases show little or no degeneration of muscles. In all cases it is a gradual process.

TREATMENT OF MUSCLES

This should be begun as soon as the temperature becomes normal and the soreness in the muscles has subsided. The limb affected should be given gentle manipulation: the muscles should be lightly pinched and kneaded between the fingers, using vaseline or cocoa butter to make the fingers run smoothly. Manipulation of the paralyzed limbs must be persisted in. Don't let any quack, osteopath, or chiropractor interfere with it. There is no magic about it. Patient, persistent work will be necessary to accomplish results. It is remarkable the results that can be obtained by these simple methods of treatment.

CANADIANS MAKE DASH ON LINES OF FOE

Gain Their Objective, But Forced to Retire—Canadian Losses Heavy—Advance Seemed Like Entering a Flame of Fire

OTTAWA, Oct. 13.—Special—The Militia Department yesterday received the following communique from the Canadian War Records Office:

Early Sunday morning, October 8, the Canadian troops attacked the German positions upon a frontage of 3,500 yards and to an average depth of about 500 yards.

The enemy at this point occupied particularly strong entrenchments, some of which were so placed upon a reverse slope that close direct observation by day was impossible. For the greater portion heavy wire entanglements were known to exist, and it was afterwards found that although our artillery had successfully cut many lanes through the wire, a formidable obstacle to infantry assaults still remained. Despite the intense preliminary bombardment, a number of German machine guns continued in action.

As the long rows of our men approached through the morning gloom they were met by a sweeping machine gun and rifle fire. One wounded man afterward remarked that it was like walking through a sheet of flame. None the less each battalion pressed resolutely forward, the leading men broke through the enemy, and despite an energetic resistance, including a heavy fire of hand grenades which continued to the last moment, succeeded in reaching and entering a large part of their objectives. There, as usually the case, the survivors of the German garrison, finding themselves in close contact with our men, readily surrendered.

However, we were not uniformly successful along the whole frontage, and during the day varying fortunes attended the successful elements in efforts to consolidate and maintain the captured positions. On the right a task of special difficulty in the capture of a criss-cross formation of strong German trenches known as "The Quadrilateral," had been assigned to an Ontario battalion. This battalion, encountering heavy wire on its right flank, burst through on the left, and organizing a bombing party, steadily worked its way east until the whole of the first enemy lines were in its possession. Between 150 and 200 prisoners belonging to different German regiments, including a marine division, were captured. The trenches were found to have suffered severely from our artillery fire, and as a further consequence of the bombing and bayonet fighting they were in places literally heaped with German dead.

Not long after our occupation the enemy artillery began to range upon the trenches with increasing intensity. During the morning two attempts by local enemy forces to recover the lost ground by bombing atacks were fruitless, our men stoutly resisting. The Germans hurriedly brought up reinforcements, however, and in the early afternoon, after a half hour's concentration bombardment, launched a determined attack from three directions against the centre of the "Quadrilateral." Our men were gradually compelled to withdraw to east and west until the whole position was evacuated. Nothing daunted, they organized successful bombing counter-attacks, but were unable to re-establish themselves.

BROCKVILLE MAN DIES AT AGE OF 100 YEARS

Richard Dixie Had Been an Orangeman For Seventy Six Years

BROCKVILLE, Oct. 11—Richard Dixie, Brockville's oldest citizen, died Friday at the age of one hundred years and seven months. He was born in the parish of Ferns, County, Wexford, Ireland, and had lived at points in Leeds county and Brockville for eighty-five years. He had been an Orangeman since 1840, joining the lodge at Addison. For thirty-five years prior to his death Mr. Dixie was blind, the result of an accident. His second wife and four children survive.

APPRECIATION

Barriefield Camp, Kingston, Oct. 11.
Editor, Intelligencer.

Dear Sir and Friend:—Many thanks for the kindness of your paper during the camp season here. Many a soldier has been cheered and interested by its messages. Just a verse of appreciation from my pen, which you may insert if space provides its printing:

Life! the span of joys and sorrows,
Where we find true friends and kind.
Sharing each one's many burdens,
As the rugged steeps we climb.
Just a smile may bring the sunshine.
Just a word from one friend true.
But to know we've helped each other
Brightens life for me and you.

Sincerely yours,
REGINALD HUDSON.

Fire Destroys Houses and Church At Pontypool

Ten Thousand Dollars' Worth of Property Consumed

MILLBROOK, Oct., 12—About two o'clock yesterday afternoon fire broke out in the residence of Mr. Ira Palmer, Pontypool, and before the flames could be checked, four residences and the Methodist Church were destroyed.

The fire was first seen in the roof of Mr. Palmer's residence and was supposed to have started from the chimney.

The inhabitants of Pontypool and surrounding country turned out en masse and did all they could to extinguish the fire, their only means being water buckets. Those were put to the best possible use by a large corps of willing workers, and by strenuous efforts the flames were subdued, but not before the above damage was done.

There was a strong wind blowing at the time which made the task of fighting the fire most difficult. A call was sent to Millbrook for help and a number of the firemen and others went out in automobiles but did not arrive in time to be of much service.

The loss will be about $10,000 part of which is covered by insurance.

Star Course Is Discontinued

The very popular Star Course of concerts held in the Y.M.C.A. in the past, will be discontinued this season. Four concert engagements were offered the local management , but owing to the fact that one of these engagements come on a Saturday evening, while another was billed for Christmas eve, it was believed that the success of the course financially would not be assured. These being the best dates possible the patrons of the Star Course will readily see the necessity of discontinuing it for this season. Efforts are being made however, to secure concert companies and entertainments which will prove quite as popular no doubt.

Student From Belleville May Die of Injuries

William Rankin, of Queens University Kicked in Abdomen and Head During Freshman's Rush

(Kingston Standard)

Wm. Rankin, aged 24, a second year student at Queen's whose home is in Belleville, is expected to die as the result of injuries to his abdomen and head during the Arts rush this morning.

The young man was assisting in rushing the freshmen when, in the struggle, he was accidentally struck by an opponent's foot and rendered unconscious.

As much as possible was done to relieve the young man, but he was still unconscious late this afternoon and the doctor admits that his recovery is doubtful.

Two rushes were staged on the lower campus this morning, the Arts beginning at 9.30 and the Science at 11.45. The former lasted twenty minutes and the latter three.

The freshmen as formerly, were tied up and treated with all the disagreeable substances such as iodine, molasses and paint that the Sophs could think of. They were spared the indignity of going down street in their war paint, but the Science men substituted an egg race, the winners, which included all the eight freshmen, being presented with derby hats of various colors and models, which they have been commanded to wear for one week, on pain of being "tanked."

Because of the unfortunate accident which happened to William Rankin this morning in the Arts rush, the Med. rush scheduled for this afternoon has been postponed.

Charity Exposition And Bazaar

At Detroit, Mich., For The Benefit of The Widows and Orphans of The Soldiers of War

With the continued duration of the European War, the increased suffering and destruction of thousands of widows and orphans have impelled the various Societies and Churches of the Allied Countries in Detroit, to combine for the purpose of giving a Grand Charity Bazaar for their relief, which will be held at the NEW TABERNACLE, Grindley Field, Detroit, Mich., November 15th to 25th.

A space has been assigned to the Canadians for a booth, and all donations in cash, as well as the proceeds from merchandise donated to the Relief Committee, founded and conducted by the Canadian Government The fund will also be increased by the proportion of the general fund to which the Canadian section is entitled.

Readers of the Intelligencer are requested to forward to the Secretary at 111 East Congress St., Detroit Mich. the names and addresses of their relatives and friends , now residing in Michigan in order that they may be communicated with, with a view of interesting them in this humane undertaking.

WEDDING BELLS.

HUMPHREY—MARVIN

On Wednesday, September 27th, a very interesting event took place at the Bayside parsonage, Belleville, it being the occasion of the marriage of Percy Ray Humphrey to Eva Pearl Marvin. After the sumptuous wedding dinner at the parsonage, at about 2 P. M. the ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Marvin, uncle of the bride. After the ceremony the happy couple took the evening train for Toronto. Miss Marvin was well-known as a successful public school teacher in the County of Prince Edward, and is a daughter of John R. Marvin, one of the leading farmers of the Township of Hillier. The groom is an only son of S. S. Humphrey, a prominent farmer of the Township of Ameliasburg. After September the bride and groom will be at home to their many friends at the Humphrey homestead. We predict for them a very happy and prosperous future.—Communicated.

MONTGOMERY'S SLAYER NOT NAMED BY THE JURY

Brother of The Murdered Man Consents to be Represented by Counsel—Questions Discussed by Attorneys and Coroner Some Evidence Given—Trial Set For Tuesday Next

Walter Montgomery was murdered between the hours of 8 a.m. and 8 p.m. on October 3rd on his farm in the Township of Madoc, was the finding rendered by a jury last night before Coroner W. S. Harper. The slayer was not named in the verdict, contrary to expectations.

Joseph Montgomery, who is held in connection with the case, tonight, after a consultation with Mr.W.C. Mikel K. C. of Belleville, refused to go on stand. "I have advised the accused not to answer any questions, upon my own responsibility," said Mr. Mikel and pointed out that the Canada Act did not afford the prisoner any protection if he saw fit to give evidence at the Coroner's inquiries. He did not think that accused should be placed in that unfortunate position, and added that he did not think that the Coroner could commit Montgomery for contempt of court for refusing to go on stand.

Crown Attorney Carnew contended that while Montgomery had the right to refuse to testify at a preliminary trial, it was the duty of the prisoner to answer certain questions that would assist the jury in reaching a conclusion. He pointed out the Coroner's inquest was not that sort of judicial forum, because all questions as to the guilt or innocence of the prisoner would be eliminated.

Coroner Harper said he did propose to commit Montgomery for contempt of court. He thought sufficient evidence had been in to assist the jury in reaching a finding. "On the other hand," added the Coroner, "I think the prisoner should have been the first man to step forward in an effort to assist in clearing up the mystery surrounding the murder of his brother. The murder appears to have been premediatated, almost calculated and studied out with extreme care. The man who struck the blows made sure that the victim should not be given a chance to fight for his life."

Joseph Montgomery was taken today to the jail at Belleville pending the preliminary trial, which has been fixed for Tuesday next.

The home of the prisoner was destroyed by fire on Tuesday. His aged mother who is seriously ill, and a sister were rescued after some difficulty and taken to the home of Wm. McMullen, a brother-in law who lives a short distance away.

Maria Montgomery a sister of the prisoner, testified that Joseph had not been away from the farm on Tuesday or Wednesday of the week of the murder. Asked as to the relationship between Walter, the deceased, and Joseph the witness replied that they had been on very friendly terms for five or six years.

George Johnston said that he was present when the undertaker removed the body from the driving shed. He had noticed some blood stains on the pole of the democrat near which the remains had been discovered. While there, Joseph appeared and ordered him away. Johnston said he stepped aside for a few minutes, and Joseph walked over and attempted to obliterate some stains of blood covering a small circle in the driving shed. "I told him that he should not do it," said Johnston, and Joseph replied; "I never killed a man for his money yet."

Mr. E. C. Tufts, the undertaker who had charge of the funeral, stated that when he took possession of the body it appeared to him that life had not been extinct for more than thirty-six hours, and rigor mortis had not set in, and the remains appeared in a good state of preservation.

COMPELLED TO RETIRE

Vienna Despatch Reports Repulse of Roumanian Invasion

Canadian Press Special.

VIENNA, Oct. 13.—Thursday's official statement says Roumanian attacks near Vulcan Pass failed. In the region of Kronstadt the enemy was compelled to retire in the direction of Frontier passes. In the last two days 630 prisoners have been taken and on both sides of Upper Maros the Roumanian resistance has been broken. Our troops are pursuing the enemy.

Hun "Brutality"

The Bloated Shopkeepers of The Thames

AMSTERDAM Oct. 11—The Leipzig Neueste Nachrichten says: "It seems certain that the British anti-aircraft service is now better and therefore for us more dangerous, but our heroes will not be held back from their bold missions of destruction for this reason. Our Zeppelin crews ask no milder fate than our men on the Somme, for all are aware that peace grows nearer when the bloated shopkeepers on the Thames no longer feel safe in their own houses and when pale fear chases the blood from their faces.

"The voice of pity must be silent towards brutal England and the brutality of our revenge must equal hers. Our motto must be the iron law of the Old Testament—an eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth."

The Berlin Kreuz Zeitung, commenting on the destruction of two Zeppelins, does not believe there is any probability that the Allies will be able to copy a Zeppelin from the wreckage, but says:

"There is perhaps a graver anxiety least British anti air-craft measures may have been so developed that henceforth we must reckon with a definite increase of risk in these raids. If so, it would be regrettable that we did not exploit our air weapons earlier with complete ruthlessness."

Portion of A New Battery For Belleville

It will be gratifying to the citizens generally to know that during the coming winter there will be at least a number of soldiers quartered here. A new heavy artillery battery is being formed in this district and one half will be at Peterboro' and one half here. Some 50 horses will arrive here shortly and a number of 18 pounder guns of the quick firing calibre, will also be brought here. Recruits will be enlisted and we are informed that already a number of young men of Belleville have signified their intention of joining. The battery quarters in the Armouries' premises on Church street will be utilized for recruiting purposes, also for the use of the men. Capt. O'Leary of Petawawa, was in the city last night in connection with the new battery to be formed, and Lt. C. C. Walker, who has been recruiting artillerymen, was in company with him.

Canadian Press Special.

VIENNA, Oct., 13—Thursday's official announcement says the Italians gained ground yesterday east of Oppacchasella in their drive towards Trieste, and captured the town of Novavas.

BRITISH GUARDS MAKE ADVANCE

Canadian Press Special.

SALONIKI, Oct. 13.—British advance guards have made some advance to the east of Struma River in Greek Macedonia, says an official statement issued at the Entente allied headquarters to-day. British armored cars explored the region where the Seres-Demir Hissar railroad joins the Saloniki line and found the railroads strongly held by Bulgarians.

HUNS TAKE THE OFFENSIVE

Canadian Press Special.

PETROGRAD, Oct. 13—The War Office reports the Germans took the offensive yesterday along the Shara River in Russia, north of Pinsk marshes. They captured some trenches, but were speedily expelled with heavy losses.

NIGHT CALM ON SOMME

Canadian Press Special.

PARIS, Oct. 13—Official statement—The night was fairly calm on both flanks of the Somme. There were skirmishes and mutual bombardment, sometimes attaining to great violence in Morval, Rouchavesnes, Abalincourt and Chaulnes sectors. There was nothing to report on the rest of the front.

FREIGHT SMASH-UP AT WHITBY JUNCTION

Cars of Oats and Flour Pile into Ditch—Traffic was Delayed For Hours

WHITBY, Oct. 13.—Special—Eight freight cars, loaded with oats and flour, piled into a ten-foot ditch half a mile west of the G.T.R. station at Whitby Junction at 3 o'clock yesterday morning when a wheel on one of the cars broke. Three of the cars were smashed to match-wood.

The accident occurred about sixty feet west of a stone culvert. The cars left the rails and ploughed along the roadbed until they struck the culvert. Apparently the momentum was such that one of the cars turned a complete somersault, landing in the ditch. Two other cars behind it piled up on top. Five cars ahead were pulled off the track, and two of them lost their trucks and were badly damaged. One of the cars swung around to the north, going up the other track, demolishing the ties and rails. Fortunately neither the engine nor the caboose were derailed. Traffic was, of course, blocked.

The wrecking crew from Belleville did not arrive till about 9 o'clock, and it required three hours more to clear the way sufficiently to lay a temporary track on the north side. All passenger and freight trains were held at Whitby and Oshawa until 12 o'clock noon, mails and express being delayed. The smash will be a costly one.

LETTERS FROM OVERSEAS

FROM BERT YORKE

Dear Mother, Father and all:—Just a few lines in answer to your welcome letter, hoping you are all O. K., as it leaves me at present. I guess you are wondering if I am safe, and I am glad to say that I am fine, and pulled through, thank the good Lord. I am writing on some German paper that one of the boys found. About 6.25 a.m. in the morning our artillery opened up and we went over the trenches It did one good to see the Germans hold up their hands and cry, "Mercy, Camerade." To some of the fellows they might just as well kept quiet. We were supposed to take 1100 yards, but like all greedy Canadians, we took 500 yards more, and held the ground until we were relieved. The Germans counter-attacked in the evening, but they were not strong enough, our machine guns cutting them down fine. We lost quite a lot of our good fellows, but we avenged their death, and will keep doing so..

We have certainly got to take our hats off to our artillery and aeroplanes for without them I do not know how we should get on, and the only thing we are short of is Red Cross men, and we need them badly. Well, dear folks, I guess this is all for this time, so goodbye, with best love and wishes, from

Your loving son,
BERT.

Thirty Million Revenue Increase

Gross Debt of The Dominion Has Risen From $774,896,755 to $1,671,657,373

According to an Ottawa despatch the Dominion's financial statement to the end of September, issued today shows the thirty-million-dollar increase in revenue announced by Sir Thomas White. The total revenue was $103,589,680, as compared with $73,243,514 in the 1915 period. The expenditure is given as $49,757,711, as against $46,281,622.

The capital expenditure amounted to $116,057,905, of which $104,538,895 is on war account. In the same period of last year the total capital expenditure was $61,962,760, of which $44,427,839 was on war.

The gross debt has risen from $774,896,755 to $1,071,657,373, and the net debt from $290,055,121 to $381,928. The increase is $20,054,174, as compared with $12,432,748.

Allurement of Undue Speculation

Few days pass when farmers, young and old, are not asked to invest in financial concerns, in speculations which dangle untold riches before their longing eyes.

The agents are clever and preserving. They have a thousand strings to their tow. Town lots, mining claims, natural gas, and oil wells, patents, are all means of excitement, all the more alluring since the risk which accompanies them is hidden more or less honestly under the name of some master of finance, or by an advertisement cleverly inserted in a conspicuous place in a newspaper of wide circulation. It is a veritable scourge, a plague. One must live in the country and hear the wails of the victims, to grasp the whole situation. I do not think that I exaggerate when I declare that in one country where I live $100,000 and more have simply been thrown away by our farmers. Some of these, seized by a fatal frenzie, have not hesitated to sell their beautiful farms, the heritage received from their forefathers, in order to barter the value for a scrap of paper, which guaranteed them the ownership neither of an inch of land or a pennyweight of silver.

Can this evil not be remedied? Is it necessary to leave the farmer to learn wisdom at his own expense by becoming a prey of greedy plunderers? Is it necessary to allow him and his descendants to be deceitfully allured from their ancestral calling and brought to ruin? Mgr. Choquette at Seventh Annual Meeting of Commission of Conservation.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

FRANCIS X. BUSHMAN AT GRIFFIN'S TO-NIGHT

Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne, the crowned king and queen of the silent drama, appear at Griffin's Opera House, tonight and at the Palace Theatre Saturday matinee, in "The Wall Between" a sensational 5 part Metro wonderplay. This production is by far the most pretentious feature in which these stars have appeared in their long careers on the screen. It is a military masterpiece and affords an excellent opportunity for the staging of scores of thrilling scenes. "The Wall Between" was produced under the personal direction of John W. Noble, of the Metro staff, who is a graduate of West Point and saw seven years active service as an officer in the United States Army. A typical Metro cast will be seen in this feature and more than two thousand persons appear in the production. On the same program with the above offering, the third whirl of the "Musty Suffer" comedy series will be exhibited along with the Pathe Gazette which affords a fifteen minute review of important news items gathered from everywhere.

MARKS BROS. AT GRIFFIN'S NEXT WEEK

It is a conceded fact that the average repertoire company nowadays is vastly superior to many of the highpriced "one night stand" attractions often inflicted on the forgiving public. Probably a leader in its class through the Canadian Provinces and middle west is the Marks Bros. No 1 Company which is headed by the people's favorite actress, May Bell Marks, and which is billed to appear at Griffin's Opera House all next week, with a change of plays and vaudeville specialties nightly. The company is too well known to require an introduction and it is safe to predict that the theatre will be crowded nightly. The repertoire of plays to be offered this season is made up of standard productions selected with due regard to please. The bill announced for the opening Monday night is the supreme success of stage successes "Within the Law." The scenic accessories and costumes are said to be elaborate in the extreme as the company carries a car load of scenic and electrical effects.

This season the Marks Bros. have been augmented by a big vaudeville program of six acts and vaudeville will be introduced between the acts thus doing away with the tedious waits. The following will be presented here next week, Monday night, "Within the Law"; Tuesday night "Thorns and Orange Blossoms" Wednesday night, "Sex against Sex"; Thursday night, "Paid in Full"; Friday night, Tess of the Storm Country" Saturday matinee, "The Factory Girl" Saturday night, "Peg O My Heart".

(Montreal Star.)

Prohibition has brought about a change in habits of the people of Ontario, but many are not going "dry" despite the new measure which came into effect on September 16. It appears that a greater number have taken to drinking whisky. Beer drinking has gone out of fashion as it costs too much to pay the express charges on a dozen bottles from Montreal or some other city outside the Province of Ontario.

Every day at the C.P.R. and Grand Trunk depots may be seen huge piles of cases, each containing from a dozen to eighteen bottles of whisky, brandy or other strong liquor. The express companies are working night and day carting it from the warehouses in the city to the stations, and every train that runs out of the depot for Toronto and other large centres has two or even three extra express wagons, each seventy feet in length, filled almost to the roof with cases of liquor.

They start collecting the stuff from the warehouses early in the morning, and keep at it all day and half the night. The express companies are smiling cheerfully for they are making piles of money and their workmen are earning overtime almost equal to that earned by a munition worker. There is one company which has over a hundred double or single rigs as well as a number of motor trucks, and they cannot cope with the business they have for Ontario points. They have to hire many additional double teams to aid them in their work, and they are working often till 2 o'clock in the morning.

And the warehouse staffs are also working at high pressure while the office staffs of the different firms from Ontario that have opened up offices in the city are handling heavy mails all day long.

One dealer estimates that $25,000 worth of liquor is being shipped out of Montreal every day by freight or express, which means about two thousands cases, each containing a dozen bottles. The large wholesale houses in Montreal are also doing an enormous shipping business, many of the Ontario dealers supplying the demands of their private customers through these houses.

OUR WEEKLY SERMON

THANKSGIVING

(By Rev. A. M. Hubly)

"We give the thanks, O Lord God Almighty, which art, and wast, and art to come."—Rev. xi. 17.

This is the key note of the song of the ages.

All things, from eternity to eternity, revolve about Him! As the solar system of worlds and planets rotate around the sun.

He is ever present!

The past, the present, and the future hold Him!

"In beginning was the word, and the word was with God."

We know Him as Saviour.

"Thou shall call His name Jesus for He shall save His people from their sins."

He is the same, that is also, called—"Wonderful counsellor, mighty God, everlasting Father, Prince of Peace," who hath said: "The heaven is my throne, and the earth is my footstool."

"All things were made by Him, and without Him was not anything made that was made."

Angel and arch angel, and all the celestial host render to Him adoration and praise.

With these, and all the redeemed of earth: the family of God, part on earth and part in heaven, we are glad to mingle our tiny breathings to swell the mighty current of praise which sweeps around His throne.

We gladly join the ever increasing throng marching through the centuries of time, to the music attuned to thankful praise, that sweeps through the unfolding purposes and providences of God; sometimes soft and low, like the strains of an Arolian's harp swept by a gentle breeze; and again, loud and clear as when a well-stringed instrument is touched by the fingers of a master hand.

It is an old, old song, but, ever-freshened by new notes, from new born souls.

Loud and lofty praise broke the stillness of creation's morn; "The stars of the morning sang together, and the sons of God shouted for joy!"

The music swung to earth and swept down the avenues of time, echoing back from the heart of an Arab Schike who, along his journey from the plains of Shinar to the hill of Palestine raised altars, lit alter fires, and worshipped.

Gratitude inspired the stammering tongue of Israel's Lawgiver, and Moses' song of thanksgiving is still a literary and poetic gem.

The same immortal theme rang its changes on Mariam's timbrels.

It swept the strings of David's harp, and the sweet singer of Israel sang:

"Enter into His gates with thanks giving, and into His courts with praise, be ye thankful unto Him, and bless His name; for the Lord is good; His mercy is everlasting; and His truth endureth to all generations."

Thankfulness, thrilled the soul, and fired the lips of Isaiah the evangelist prophet, and he sang of the church; the garden of the Lord. "Joy and praise shall be found therein, thanksgiving and the voice of melody."

In articulations of angelic sweetness, thankful praise breathed over the pasture lands of Judea, and the lowly shepherds on Bethlehem plains heard and joined in the chorus, glorifying God for what they had seen and heard.

The whithered lips of the aged Simeon, and Anna revived, and they sang of salvation and redemption.

Yea, for the redeemed of the Lord there should be nothing to mar the music of praise and thanksgiving.

Flinging the clouds and the solid towers by
There's a place of central calm.
So in the midst and the roar of things,
There's a place for me
Where my spirit sings,
In the hollow of God's Palm."

In the blackness of the honor of the "Somme" conflict, or in homes, and hearts bereaved by the "hell of war," the redeemed of the Lord may sing.

Not all this, though it was a thousand times worse, can separate us from the love of God which is in Christ Jesus.

Listen! They are in the upper room. It is just before the "hour of darkness," when its powers, engaging all the forces of evil, in hell and earth, shall do their worst.

"The shepherd shall be smitten and the sheep shall be scattered." They sing a song! A song of thanksgiving!

They go out in the night, and to Gethsemane! To the High Priest's house; to Pilate's hall; then to Calvary.

"Dinna ye hear it?" Like the sigh of a broken heart:

"I thank thee O Father."

Then the glad cry:

"It is finished!"

"He that hath ears to hear, let him hear," that strong majestic thankful shout, spreading out, and on, and up, echoing in the courts of heaven, then falling back to earth, to cheer and comfort the lowly, the sad, the sufferer, the sorrowing, the bereaved, inspiring all to hope; and glad expectations.

The glory of it all, broke in vision grand upon the lonely prisoner on the seagirt Isle, amid the debris cast up by storm and tempest.

So beloved, you can trace the music, rising and falling, to meet the circumstances of the onward march of righteousness through all history.

In strains most sweet and tender,
Luminous and clear,
In tones deeper than the sea,
Then higher than the heavens;
Now sighs on minor key,
Then shouts of triumph!
Sometimes like the roar of tempest
Over storm-whipped trees,
Sometimes like angelic voices in victory or defeat, in joy or sorrow, it matters not whether we sing in the minor, or in the major key.

"In every thing we are to give God thanks."

We are all too much concerned with instead of future results; forgetting that unless the dross be purged away the present purifying processes of life, by refining fire, the fine gold will not appear.

"Now, no chastening for the present seemeth to be joyous, but grievous: nevertheless, afterward it yieldeth the peaceable fruits of righteousness unto them which are exercised thereby."

The disastrous effect of the world's greatest war has been the cause of worldwide sorrow.

Loss of life by sea and land, by fire and sword, and by many of man's inventions for human slaughter have caused dark and terrible desolation to the devastation of thousands of hearts and homes.

Were it not for this, how great might be our jubilations over an abundant harvest, and for prosperity in the realm of trade and commerce.

But, would it be in keeping with divine truth as revealed in history, both sacred and profane, to be thankful only for what is commonly understood by the words—"prosperous," "lucky" and "fortunate."

There is the danger of being thankful as the spirits of evil are as they rejoice over the harvest of souls, gathered from the fields of sin, as the result of man's pride, hardness of heart, selfishness, unrestrained pleasure, and from the institutions which are encouraged and festered by the spirit of lust and greed, even in Christian communities.

Some one has painted a picture of the outer courts of hell. "There were men, and women lost to shame.

"Some were feasting, some were dancing, they all drank from flowing cups of wine; they gave thanks; and drank and praised the giver, and reeled and fell in drunken sleep! they woke and prayed for more, and gave thanks and sang their usual songs of praise; and so the orgy went on, and on!"

I am convinced that there is a possibility of a people, even with all gospel privileges, being so drunk with the wine of prosperity, that only in their orgies of surfeiting pleasure, are they moved to what looks like thankfulness.

Better that, war, pestilence, and poverty should reign over men and women than that they should dance and laugh their way to hell.

Let us learn to thank God for whatever of prosperity may be ours, daily seeking grace to make good use of it.

Should adversity be ours, let us also, give thanks, not for the adversity, but for the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ which sustains us.

We will praise Him in the bright day of happiness, and in the black night of sorrow we shall sing, in softer notes, the same song of thanksgiving, for promise of the morning!

"All, all shall, count;
The mingled joy and sorrow,
To force of finer being rise at last;
From the crude ores
For trial's furnace smelted
The image of the perfect life is cast."

Many of us, who can thank God today for rich experience of His love and grace, would not be able to do so had we had our own way, even with the temporalities of life.

If in our imperfect sight, many things which cause sorrow, disappointment and temporal loss, are seen to be working out our good, may we not hope that in the larger vision that heaven gives, there shall be joyful thanksgiving for all that the Lord hath done with us and for us

"Then to our wondering eyes,
From which the scales are lifted,
A vision of the life that's past may come;

And we may see the rocks,
On which our souls had drifted,
If God's kind care had failed to draw us home.
Then with our souls
Uplifted in thanksgiving
To Him whose love
This earthly life has blessed,
I think that we will cry
O Father, so forgiving,
Thy love was perfect, and Thy will was best.'"

This world, though it were robed in splendour from pole to pole, and all its inhabitants prosperous, happy, and peaceful today tomorrow might be deluged with human blood and slaughter by the unsatisfied passions of men or the globe itself might be a burned out cinder floating in illimitable space! Yet, we may still sing: "The Lord reigneth; let the multitude of the Isles be glad! Rejoice in the Lord ye righteous and give thanks at the remembrance of His holiness."

"Through the ages, one increasing purpose runs, and the thoughts of men are widened with the process of the suns.

This all dominating purpose is the universal kingship of Him whose we are and whom we serve; thankful if in any way by spending and being spent, we can enlarge the scope of His redemptive power proclaimed by the gospel. This is the groundwork of our confidence, and joy on this thanksgiving day of 1916 of the Christian era: "The Lord God omnipotant reigneth."

of an unclouded sky, surrounded by a plentiful harvest gathered from the fruitful fields of Canada, or beneath a frowning heavens beclouded with the dust and smoke of battle on the blood-stained, war-scarred fields of France, surrounded by a harvest of suffering and death gathered from the sowing of sin and human passion; We can lift our heads and gaze with the eye of faith upon the throne of Him whose right it is to reign.

Yes, though standing amidst the ruins of sin, let us give thanks for the glorious hope of the church: The coming of her Lord!

Little is seen of His reigning power, and glory, because of the false glitter of the world, its pomp and pleasure.

Because of the babel sounds of earth, the music of the gospel can scarcely be heard.

Still we will rejoice in the promise of His coming;

As John, amid the debris of storm, with noise of wind and wave roaring in his ears, so let us lift our eyes and see with him, the opened heavens, and behold the coming One!

Whatever may be our lot, let us join the army of the Lord and march to the music of the Thanksgiving song.

If there are any one, among the many sad and bereaved of these war-stricken days, look to the cross, and be thankful to God for "His unspeakable gift."

"What! Shall we render thanks alone
For treasures of the dust,
For beauty blighted in the frost,
For wealth that turns to rust?

The heavens listen deeper—sing
O, heart, though faint and sad,
The gift that poverty may bring
Shall make the father glad.

Hark- Though the ages ebb and flow,
What rhythmic forces beat.
Wave after wave of growing light
Upbears us to His feet.

And when the shining hosts from far,
With many songs appear,
The praises of the saddest star
Shall hush them all to hear."

FIELD IN SOUTH AMERICA.

Canadian Products Have Favorable Prospect There.

When on a visit to Canada recently, during part of which time he was the guest of the Duke of Connaught, Dr. Lauro Severiano Muller, Minister of Foreign Affairs for Brazil, rather surprised some manufacturers by his knowledge of Canadian products, and he gave them some interesting figures as to the extent and variety of that portion of Brazil's import trade which covered products made in this country.

The Brazilian statesman, before he came to this country, was aware of the fact that Canadian bankers had, since the war began, opened an educational course in commercial and banking Spanish in preparation for the extension of Canadian business in South America, a movement which is being followed by the opening of new branches by Canadian banks in Latin-American countries.

As a result of this stimulus to interest in South American trade, more than ordinary attention is being paid to the suggestion of Acting Trade Commissioner B. S. Webb, from Buenos Aires, to the Department of Trade and Commerce that there are many possible openings for textile manufacturers in South America. Mr. Webb reports that Buenos Aires imports woollen cloth to the value of over $6,000,000 gold annually.

The European war has greatly disrupted the business, and, according to Mr. Webb, Argentine merchants are open for new connections. The United States has given the market much attention, but a favorable market is open for Canadians on many lines. He says, in part: "Flannelettes, denims, drills, and brins are imported for the winter trade, and zephyrs, prints, and fancy muslins for the summer. Unbleached (greys) are imported all the year round for cheap camp bedding, dusting cloths, etc. Bramantes are imported for sheeting. The largest demand is for colored woven fabrics and printed calicoes. The local demand is for tasty patterns; new and constantly changing lines are wanted, and it is here that the Lancashire manufacturers assert themselves.

"Woollen cloth to the value of over $6,000,000 gold is imported annually. More than one-half of this quantity has come from the United Kingdom, one-fifth from France, and one-fifth from Germany. The English cloth is generally supposed to be of the best quality, while the German article is usually an imitation of a British design. Quite good cloths have been coming from France.

"Tweeds for men's and serges for women's wear could probably be made in Canada at prices sufficiently low to allow of competition in an open market such as Buenos Aires provides. Broadcloths, Worcesters, and meltons are all coming from Yorkshire, and it is not likely that Canadian mills will be able to compete in these classes of cloth."

Wool and cotton fabrics have been imported to the value of $3,000,000, two-thirds of which have come from England and the rest mostly from Germany. The large Bradford mills throughout the whole continent once or twice a year. They sell from samples to the large importing houses, who in their turn sell to the smaller cloth merchants and the larger tailors. One well-known Bradford firm has opened an office and warehouse in Buenos Aires where stock is carried. Germany and France have secured most of the made-up woollen goods trade to the value of $1,257,000. This line is composed mostly of men's vests and drawers, which are sold seperately or in sets. The various makes of woollen underwear so well known in Europe and North America are also largely sold. Woollen socks are not much used in Argentina, the climate not being sufficiently cold, but $111,000 worth have been coming from France, England, and Germany in almost equal parts. Darning wool ($172,000) has been almost a monopoly of Germany.

A Canadian World Tour.

It comes out that when Con. Jones, the Pacific coast lacrosse magnate, visited Montreal recently, one of his reasons was to arrange, if possible, the preliminaries for a patriotic tour of the world with a series of games between a French-Canadian team and a first-class Canadian team.

He had conferences with W. J. Foran, trustee of the Minto and Stanley Cups, and in charge of the last European tour of Canadian lacrosse teams, as well as with Joe Lally and A. L. Caron, President of the National A.A.A. The later met Jones again in New York last week, when they had another long talk, and it looks now as if the plan might mature.

The plan is to play a twenty-four game series through Canada and Europe, the net profits to go entirely to the patriotic fund. This means that no salaries would be paid. Both Caron and Jones believe that they could get the very best players in Canada to give their services. If the preliminary plans properly mature, the organization of the trip will be pushed to a finish early next spring.

Will Deduct It From Pay.

It is announced that an order-in-Council has been passed providing that whenever a soldier of a unit of the overseas forces deserts or is illegally absent the deductions from his pay shall include an amount sufficient to cover the expenses incurred in apprehending, prosecuting, and returning him to duty.

PREVENTION OF FIRE

The extent to which preventive measures can be made effective in forest fire protection is indicated by the experience this season of the St. Maurice Forest Protective Association. This is an association of limit-holders, representing some 12,000 square miles of forest land on the St. Maurice river watershed, Quebec. In previous years, much loss has resulted from fires due to the carelessness of settlers in clearing land, and of river-drivers and others who had occasion to build camp fires in the woods. A vigorous campaign of education has almost eliminated these sources of fire damage within association territory. This result could not, however, have been accomplished in the case of settlers' fires, without a strict enforcement of the law which prohibits settlers from setting out clearing fires during the summer season, except on permit issued by a forest ranger. The enforcement of this provision, in combination with the vigorous campaign of education, has been so effective that the manager of the association, Mr. Henry Sorgius, reports that, this season, only one fire within association territory has been set by human agency, all the other fires reported having been caused by lightning. There has been no trouble with settlers, and it is reported that they are very generally in favour of the permit system.

In view of this admirable rcord in an important section of Quebec, is is evident the province of Ontario must consider very seriously the adoption of the permit system, if a repitition of the clay belt disaster of of 1916 is to be avoided, and if prospective settlers are to be assured that life and property will be sufficiently safeguarded to justify them in making their homes in the north country.

GERMANY'S IDEA OF WAR

It is not necessary to wait for news from Berlin to ascertain the deep-down impression of Germans in general regarding submarine and air exploits by the enemy. The latest demonstration of devilishness is that by Lieut. Capt. Hans Rose off Nantucket. All one had to do was to read the dispatches from Milwaukee, a city which, though geographically in Wiscousin, and, therefore, in the United States, can claim with great justice to be posited, so far, at least, as concerns its more articulate and demonstrative inhabitants, within the sphere of the Kaiser's influence.

Enthusiasm flamed high in Milwaukee as soon as the arrival of the U-53 at Newport was reported, and the temperature rose to incandescence when it became known that the far-wandering submarine had succeeded in sinking in quick succession ship after ship engaged in the legal carrying of passengers and freight to and from the ports of the American Republic. Milwaukee cheered and sang exultingly at that, just as any city in Germany would have been expected to do, and promptly it proceeded to adorn the glorious tale of foundering steamers and scores upon scores of hapless humans drifting about on the open sea in crowded little boats. This it did by pointing the moral that the episode would serve as a warning for the United States—known in Milwaukee doubtless as, "die Vereiningten Staaten"— to keep neutral.

One feels some compunction about saying much to pain these happy folk the world not having too many such in it just now—but really there is a possibility that Milwaukee drew a wrong conclusion from the Nantucket episode. At any rate, it did not draw the only one warranted by the facts, for the episode was not less well calculated to serve as a warning to Germany never to send any submarines across the ocean to ravage a nonneutral United States than it was to teach the lesson which Milwaukee saw. Its dear people evidently did not notice the promptness with which the scene of the submarine's achievements was reached by a large number of American warships, small, indeed, but of just the sort most effective against vessels like the one commanded by the Captain whose name is so harmonious with the sort of work in which he is engaged. Had the destroyers had another purpose than that of rescuing to which he had exposed them, his raid would have come to a very sudden ending, in either his destruction or his flight far and fast.

THE WHIRLPOOL BATH.

It Is Replacing Bandages in English Hospitals.

Of new and improved appliances and methods of treatment many wonderful examples are to be seen at the English military hospitals.

Queen Alexandra's Military Hospital is described as follows by the London Daily Mail: I saw several patients undergoing a new healing treatment. Two of these men were most severely wounded in September of last year, and for ten months had been treated in the customary way without any sign of healing. On August 2 they were brought to Millwall, the bandages were flung away, the wounds were subjected to repeated applications of a stream of ozone, being lightly covered with a loose layer of lint in the intervals, and in four days healing was in rapid progress.

This treatment is simplicity itself. Oxygen passes from a reservoir into an electrical machine which converts it into ozone; the ozone flows out through a fine metal tube. The machine is wheeled close to the patient's bed, the wound uncovered, and a stream of the microbe-killing oozne flows into the deepest recesses. No painful dragging off of bandages, no rebandaging of the limb to hurt and exhaust the patient. I saw here a soldier who had lost his right foot, with a stump covered with skin so healthy and hard that he could walk upon it, a surgical marvel.

What might be called the open-air treatment of wounds has come to stay. At the Herbert Hospital is a soldier with a bad compound fracture of the leg. The limb is not swathed in many yards of bandages as was the custom, but lies between sandbags to secure immobility and is covered only with a single layer of lint.

The lint is kept constantly wet with an antiseptic fluid (peroxide of hydrogen). Surrounding the leg is a large cage covered with a sheet of thin butter muslin, so that the wound is continually refreshed by a free current of air. Extremely rapid healing and freedom from the agony of manipulation are the great gains from this mode of treatment.

The whirlpool bath is entirely a war invention, from which excellent results in cases of stiff joints have been obtained in France. As I saw it at some of the military hospitals visited, it consists of a small oblong bath, filled with water which is kept in continuous movement by a miniature propeller revolved at a very high speed by means of an electric motor. A stiff arm or leg, hand or foot, placed in the bath and kept there for some time is much improved by the stimulus of the running water.

Marvelous examples of bone carpentry are to be seen, such as the transference of a large piece of bone from the leg to fill a gap in the arm bone or jaw.

Trench-foot is being more or less successfully treated by massage, operation, and other methods. I saw a soldier victim of this affection walking with a little difficulty, but very well pleased with himself; it was the first time he had put on boots for nine months.

Has Beaten Gas Poisoners.

I do not believe that war by chemicals or poisons will be very long lived, says Sir Hiram Maxim. It is quite true that chlorine in a gaseous form mixed with air has proved very effective recently, but this was because it was a surprise. It was something new.

Chlorine in gaseous form is two and a half times as heavy as air, but in escaping from the receptacles in which it is contained it mixes with it at least five times its volume of air, and this, of course, reduces its specific gravity correspondingly, then, as it is blown down on the English trenches, it mixes with more air, and by the time it reaches the men there is at least twenty times as much air as chlorine; but this mixture is quite strong enough to produce fatal results.

Of course, when there are twenty or thirty times as much air as chlorine, the mixture is only slightly heavier than the surrounding air, and it does not take much to dissipate it. And that is the last job I have been working on.

I have designed an apparatus that will dissipate these poisonous gases very cheaply and effectively, and it is being made at the present moment; but of course it would not do to divulge the system I employ.

As this apparatus of mine will remove all the terrors of chlorine, it is safe to say that its use will be counteracted.

KILLED IN INDIA.

Canadian Officer Gave Life to Empire on Indian Frontier.

The death of Captain Elmes P. Henderson, which occurred on the 25th June last, on the Indian frontier, marks the passing of a gallant Canadian soldier who was making a name for himself in the permanent forces of the Empire.

The late Captain Henderson was the third son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmes Henderson, of Toronto, and was born on the 27th June, 1885, and after being educated at the Toronto Church School, and the Royal Military College, Kingston, he graduated with a commission in the Indian army, and was gazetted to the Royal Sussex regiment then stationed at Umbala. After a year's training there, he was nominated by the late Lord Kitchener, then Commander-in-Chief in India, to the 106th Hazara Pioneers, with headquarters at Quetta, Baluchistan.

He studied the native languages, and passed excellent examinations in Urdu, Pushtu and Higher Persian. While still a junior officer, he was appointed adjutant of his regiment by Colonel Jacob, and filled that arduous post to the satisfaction of three successive colonels.

When the Governor of the Province of British Baluchistan made an official State journey to neighboring Indian Potentates, Captain Henderson was selected to accompany the party, and made many interesting observations of his experiences of peoples and places on that occasion.

Colonel Carter of the 106th Hazara Pioneers writes, giving the circumstances under which Captain Henderson lost his life. Owing to a series of raids into Sind from Jhalawan, the Political Agent at Kalat went with an escort of 200 men of the 106th Pioneers, two mountain guns, and a squadron of cavalry, all commanded by Colonel Carter, to restore order and effect a settlement. Captain Henderson was sent forward with an advanced guard to occupy the village of Wadh, which he did successfully, taking a number of prisoners. Then he heard of a gang of outlaws camped about six miles away, and decided to attack them at daybreak. His surprise attack was perfectly successful, and the whole band of outlaws was killed or made prisoners.

Colonel Carter says: "It was one of the best planned little shows which has taken place on this side of the frontier for years."

Captain Henderson then sent some of his men, under Captain Pargeter, to search some scrub jungle where other outlaws were supposed to be, and when his men were fired on, advanced to their support, and was himself shot and instantly killed.

Colonel Carter adds: "I deeply lament the loss of my trusted adjutant, whose plain, manly, outspoken character attracted everyone to him. Our men were devoted to him, and his death leaves a gap in our lives. He was a most capable officer, and would probably have risen to high rank in the service had his life been spared."

Spoke in Dream.

Sufficiently recovered to be able to write home, Lieut. Arthur W. Dyas, son of Mrs. T. W. Dyas, Bloor street east, Toronto, gives some interesting details of recovering his power of speech. He is in No. 2 General Hospital, England, suffering from shell shock and wounds in the head, and had not been able to speak for some little time. During a recent night, however, he had been dreaming he was back in action. In his dream he saw his men taking too many chances in climbing up on the trench parapet, and he began to order them down. He awakened himself by his talking, for the first time since he was wounded, and he says he has not stopped talking since.

HAVE YOU

tried Zam-Buk for those disfiguring pimples and blackheads? Others have used it with great success, and we are confident you will not be disappointed.

Mr. J. B. Wagner of New Canada, N.S., writes: "For a considerable time I suffered with pimples and blackheads on my face. They were very unsightly and I suffered a good deal. Someone recommended Zam-Buk and I commenced using it. To my delight the pimples and blackheads gradually began to disappear, until now my face is entirely cleared of them. I am, indeed, grateful for what Zam-Buk has done for me, and should like all others who are troubled as I was, to know of this wonderful ointment."

Zam-Buk is just as good for eczema, salt rheum, ulcers, abscesses, old wounds, blood-poisoning, boils, piles, burns, cuts, scalds, etc. 50c. box, 3 for $1.25, all druggists or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto. Send 1c. stamp for postage on free trial box.

"Do you mind my inquiring," I said, "what you expected to see at Les Trois Pigeons?"

"Why," he exclaimed as if astonished at the question, "I'm a tourist, makin' a pedestrum trip t' all the reg'ler sights," and, inspired to eloquence, he added as an afterthought, "as it were."

"But if you will pardon me," I said, "where did you get the notion that Les Trois Pigeons is one of the regular sights?"

"Ain't it in all the history books?"

"No; I don't think that it is mentioned in any of the histories or even the guidebooks."

"Look a-here," he said, taking a step nearer me, "in oinest, now, on your woid, didn' more'n half them Jeanne d'Arc tamales and William the Conker live at that hotel wunst?"

"No."

"Stung again!" He broke into a sudden loud cackle of laughter. "Why, a feller at Trouville tole me 'at this Pigeon place was all three rings when it come t' history. Yessir!"

I tarried no longer, but, bidding this good youth and the generations of Baudry good night, hastened on to my belated dinner.

"Amedee," I said when my cigar was lighted and the usual hour of consultation had arrived, "isn't that old lock on the chest where Mme. Brossard keeps her silver getting rather rusty?"

"Monsieur, we have no thieves here. We are out of the world."

"Yes, but Trouville is not so far away, and strange people go to Trouville—grand dukes, opera singers, jockeys, gamblers, tourists"—

"Truly," assented Amedee.

"It follows," I continued, "that many strange people may come from Trouville. In their excursions to the surrounding points of interest"—

"Eh, monsieur, but that is true," he interrupted. "There was a strange monsieur from Trouville here this very day."

* * *

I had sprained my ankle in a poppy field and must spend little less than a week of idleness within the confines of Les Trois Pigeons, and, reclining among cushions in a wicker long chair looking out from my pavilion upon the drowsy garden on a hot noontide, I did not much care.

A heavy step crunched the gravel, and I heard my name pronounced in a deep inquiring rumble, the voice of Professor Keredec, no less. Nor was I greatly surprised, since our meeting in the forest had led me to expect some advances on his part toward friendliness or at least in the direction of a better acquaintance.

"Here I am," I called, "in the pavilion, if you wish to see me."

"Aha, I hear you become an invalid, my dear sir." With that the professor's great bulk loomed in the doorway against the glare outside. "I have come to condole with you, if you allow it."

"To smoke with me, too, I hope," I said, not a little pleased.

"That I will do," he returned and came in slowly, walking with perceptible lameness. "The sympathy I offer is genuine. It is not only from the heart; it is from the latissimus dorsi," he continued, seating himself. "I have choosed this fine weather for rheumatism of the back."

He took from his pocket a worn leather case, which he opened, disclosing a small, browned clay bowl of the kind workmen use, and, fitting it with a red stem, he filled it with a dark and sinister tobacco from a pouch. "Always my pipe for me," he said and applied a match, inhaling the smoke as other men inhale the light smoke of cigarettes. "Ha, it is good! It is wicked for the insides, but it is good for the soul. When I am alone I am a chimney with no hebdomadary repose. I smoke forever. It is on account of my young friend I am temperate now."

"It is wicked for the insides, but it is good for the soul."

"He has never smoked, your young friend?" I asked, glancing at my visitor rather curiously, I fear.

"Mr. Saffren has no vices." Professor Keredec replaced his silver rimmed spectacles and turned them upon me with serene benevolence. "He is in good condition, all pure, like little children, and so if I smoke near him he chokes and has water at the eyes, though he does not complain. Just now I take a vacation. It is his hour for study, but I think he looks more out of the front window than at his book—yes, very much since the passing of that charming young lady some days ago."

"You say your young friend's name is Saffren?"

"Oliver Saffren." The benevolent gaze continued to rest upon me, but a shadow like a faint anxiety darkened the Homeric brow. Finally he said abruptly, "It is about him that I have come to talk to you."

"I shall be very glad."

"Ha, my dear sir," he cried, "but you are a man of feeling! It was the way you have received my poor young gentleman's excuses when he was so rude which makes me wish to talk with you on such a subject. It is why I would not have you believe Mr. Saffren and me two very suspected individuals who hide here like two bad criminals!"

"No, no!" I protested hastily. "The name of Professor Keredec"—

"The name of no man," he thundered, interrupting, "can protect his reputation when he is caught peeping from a curtain! Ha, my dear sir, I know what you think! You think: 'He is a nice, fine man, that old professor—oh, very nice, only he hides behind the curtains sometimes. Very fine man—oh, yes, only he is a spy!' Eh? Ha, ha!"

"Not at all," I laughed. "I thought you might fear that I was a spy."

"Eh?" He became serious.

"I supposed you might be writing a book which you wished to keep from the public for a time and that possibly you might imagine that I was a reporter."

"So! And that is all," he returned, with evident relief. "No, my dear sir, I was the spy; it is the truth. I confess my shame. I wish very much to know what kind of a man you are. And so I have watched you."

"Why?" I asked.

"The explanation is so simple; it was necessary."

"Because of—of Mr. Saffren?" I said slowly and with some trepidation.

"Precisely." The professor exhaled a cloud of smoke. "Because I am sensitive for him and I am his guardian, but I am not his guardian by the law."

"I had not supposed that you were," I said, "because, though I do not understand his—his case, so to speak, I have not for a moment thought him insane."

"Ha, my dear sir, you are right!" exclaimed Keredec. "He is as sane as anybody in the whole world! Ha, he is now much more sane, for his mind is not yet confused and becobwebbed with the useless things you and I put into ours. A few months more—ha, at the greatest a year from now—and he will not be different any longer. He will be like the rest of us, only"—the professor leaned forward, and his big fist came down on the arm of his chair—"he shall be better than the rest of us! But if strange people were to see him now," he continued, "it would not do. There are so many who judge quickly. If they should see him now they might think he is not just right in his brain, and then, as it could happen so easily, those same people might meet him again after awhile. 'Ha,' they would say, 'there was a time when that young man was insane. I knew him!' And so he might go through his life with those clouds over him.

"Ha! I wish you to know my young man," Keredec went on. "You will like him—no man of feeling could keep himself from liking him—and he is your fellow countryman. I hope you will be his friend. He should make friends, for he needs them. You will dine with us tonight?" he suggested.

Acquiescing cheerfully, I added, "You will join me at the table on my veranda, won't you?"

Before answering he cast a sidelong glance at the arrangement of things outside the door. The screen of honeysuckle ran partly across the front of the little porch, about half of which it concealed from the garden and consequently from the road beyond the archway. I saw that he took note of this before he pointed to that corner of the veranda most closely screened by the vines and said:

"May the table be placed yonder?"

"Certainly."

"Ha, that is good!" he exclaimed.

Suddenly we heard the rapid hoof beats of a mettled horse. He crossed our vision and the open archway—a high stepping hackney going well, driven by a lady in a light trap which was half full of wild flowers. I had not the least difficulty in recognizing her. At the same instant the startled pigeons fluttered up from the garden path, betaking themselves to flight, and "that other monsieur" came leaping across the courtyard and into the road.

"Look quickly!" he called. "Who is that lady?"

"That lady, monsieur?" he gasped, gazing after the trap. "That is Mme. d'Armand."

"Yes, monsieur," said Amadee complacently. "It is an American lady who has married a French nobleman."

CHAPTER V.

My ankle had taken its wonted time to recover. I was on my feet again and into the woods.

July came, and one afternoon I sat in the mouth of the path just where I had played the hounding harlequin for the benefit of the lovely visitor at Quesnay.

I heard the light snapping of a twig and a swish of branches from the direction in which I faced. Evidently some one was approaching the glade, though concealed from me for the moment by the winding of the path. Taking it for Saffren as a matter of course—for we had arranged to meet at that time and place—I raised my voice in what I intended for a merry yodel of greeting.

I yodeled loud, I yodeled long, and my best performance was not unsuggestive of calamity in the poultry yard. And when my mouth was at its widest in the production of these shocking ulla bootings the person approaching came round a turn in the path and within full sight of me. To my horror it was Mme. d'Armand.

I grew so furiously red that it burned me. I was plainly a lunatic, whooping the lonely peace of the woods into pandemonium. She kept straight on. Then suddenly, while I waited in sizzling shame, a clear voice rang out from a distance in an answering yodel to mine. There was a final call, clear and loud as a bugle, and she turned to the direction whence it came. Then Oliver Saffren came running lightly round the turn of the path. He stopped short.

Her hand pressed against her side.

He lifted his hat and spoke to her, and I thought she made some quick reply in a low voice, though I could not be sure.

She held that startled attitude a moment longer, then turned and crossed the glade so hurriedly that it was almost as if she ran away from him. She did not seem to see me. Her dark eyes stared widely straight ahead, her lips were parted, and she looked white and frightened.

I stepped out to meet him, indignant upon several counts, most of all upon his own.

"You spoke to that lady!" And my voice sounded unexpectedly harsh and sharp to my own ears, for I had meant to speak quietly.

Her dark eyes stared widely straight ahead.

"I know—I know. It—it was wrong," he stammered. "I knew I shouldn't—and I couldn't help it."

"You expect me to believe that?"

"It's the truth. I couldn't!"

I laughed skeptically. "I don't understand. It was all beyond me," he added huskily.

"What was it you said to her?"

"I spoke her name—'Mme. d'Armand.'"

"You said more than that!"

"I asked her if she would let me see her again."

"What else?"

"Nothing," he answered humbly. "And then she—then for a moment it seemed—for a moment she didn't seem to be able to speak"—

"I should think not!" I shouted and burst out at him with satirical laughter. He stood patiently enduring it, his lowered eyes following the aimless movements of his hands, which were twisting and untwisting his flexible straw hat.

"But she did say something to you, didn't she?" I asked finally.

"She said, 'Not now!' That was all."

"I suppose that was all she had breath for! It was just the inconsequent and meaningless thing a frightened woman would say!"

"Meaningless?" he repeated and looked up wonderingly.

"Did you take it for an appointment?" I roared.

"No, no, no! She said only that and then"—

"Then she turned and ran away from you!"

"Yes," he said, swallowing painfully.

"That pleased you," I stormed, "to frighten a woman in the woods!"

I set about packing my traps, grumbling various sarcasms, the last mutterings of a departed storm, for already I realized that I had taken out my own mortification upon him, and I was stricken with remorse.

"I wouldn't have frightened her for the world," he finally said, and his voice and his body shook with a [illegible] I haven't frightened her to please the angels in heaven!"

I stared at him helplessly, nor could I find words to answer or control the passion that my imbecile scolding had evoked.

"You think I told a lie?" he cried. "You think I lied when I said I could not help speaking to her?"

"No, no," I said earnestly. "I didn't mean"—

"Words!" He swept [illegible] away, drowned in a whirling vehemence. "And what does it matter! You can't understand. When you want to know what to do you look back into your life and it tells you, and I look back—ah!" He cried out, uttering a half choked, incoherent syllable. "I look back and it's all—blind! All these things you can do and can't do—all these infinite little things! You know, and Keredec knows, and Glouglou knows, and every mortal soul on earth knows, but I don't know! Your life has taught you, and you know, but I don't know. I haven't had my life. It's gone! All I have is words that Keredec has said to me. I would burn my hand from my arm and my arm from my body rather than trouble her or frighten her, but I couldn't help speaking to her any more than I can help wanting to see her again."

He paused, wiping from his brow a heavy dew, not of the heat, but like that on the forehead of a man in crucial pain. I made nervous haste to seize the opportunity and said gently, almost timidly:

"But if it should distress the lady?"

"Yes—then I could keep away. But I must know that."

"I think you might know it by her running away—and by her look," I said mildly. "Didn't you?"

"No!" And his eyes flashed an added emphasis.

"Well, well," I said, "let's be on our way."

"I don't believe she was distressed," he went on. "There was something, but it wasn't trouble. We looked straight at each other. I saw her eyes plainly, and it was"—he paused and sighed, a sudden brilliant smile upon his lips—"it was very—it was very strange!"

There was something so glad and different in his look that, like any other dried up old blunderer in my place, I felt an instant tendency to laugh. It was that heathenish possession, the old insanity of the risibles, which makes a man think it a humorous thing that his friend should be discovered in love.

"But if you were wrong," I said, "if it did trouble her, and if it happened that she has already had too much that was distressing in her life"—

"You know something about her!" he exclaimed. "You know"—

"I do not," I interrupted in turn. "I have only a vague guess. I may be altogether mistaken."

"What is it that you guess?" he demanded abruptly. "Who made her suffer?"

"I think it was her husband," I said, with a lack of discretion for which I was instantly sorry, fearing with reason that I had added a final blunder to the long list of the afternoon—"that is," I added, "if my guess is right."

"Is he alive?" he cried sharply.

"I don't know!" I returned emphatically. "Probably I am entirely mistaken in thinking that I know anything of her whatever. I'd rather not say any more until I do know."

"Very well," he said quickly. "Will you tell me then?"

"Yes—if you will let it go at that."

"Thank you," he said and, with an impulse which was but too plainly one of gratitude, offered me his hand. I took it, and my soul was disquieted within me, for it was no purpose of mine to set inquiries on foot in regard to the affairs of Mme. d'Armand.

It was early dusk. From the courtyard of the inn came the sounds of laughter and chattering voices. Before the entrance stood a couple of open touring cars, the chauffeurs engaged in cooling the rear tires with buckets of water brought by a personage ordinarily known as Glouglou, whose look and manner as he performed this office for the leathern dignitaries so awed me that I wondered I had ever dared address him with any presumption of intimacy.

As we turned to enter the archway we almost ran into a tall man who was coming out, evidently intending to speak to one of the drivers.

The stranger stepped back with a word of apology, and I took note of him for a fellow countryman and a worldling, buck of fashion indeed.

Give and heal!

An urgent call for help again goes forth from the Motherland's mighty life-saving agency — the British Red Cross. The Empire is called upon to give greatly, give lovingly, give quickly, that the sick, wounded and suffering on all the battle fronts may not languish and perish in their hours of deepest need.

Here is a great work in which all can share. The Joint War Committee of the British Red Cross Society and Order of St. John is the only institution which carries voluntary aid to the sick and wounded of the British forces on land and sea in every region of the war. Thousands of lives of our bravest and best are saved through this splendid work. YOUR gift may save a life. Isn't it worth doing? It is. GIVE!

The Red Cross looks after the transportation of sick and wounded—it equips thousands of hospitals, rest and convalescent homes, it supplies countless requisites for hospital work, clothing and other comforts. Over 2,000 Red Cross Motor Ambulances are at work on the various fronts, while "rest stations," hospital trains, steamers and launches, food for prisoners, books, special work for the blind, etc., etc., are a few, only, of Red Cross activities.

Give on October 19th

Ontario's princely gift in 1915 of $1,514,000 rang, a clarion mercy call, throughout the Empire. The British Red Cross were grateful beyond measure, and their appeal through Lord Lansdowne, President, now comes to us as to friends who sympathize and help. The need is greater to-day than a year ago—it is ever growing. Will Ontario do less than she did last year? No! GIVE—give a day's pay, give all you can, GIVE.

The Sick and Wounded Call For Your Help
Give on October 19th

Your gift will go entirely to the British Red Cross, where, again, through much voluntary work, the working expenses are cut down to only 2¼% of the total revenue. Thus, if you give $10, actually $9.77½ goes to the healing and saving of some stricken hero. The expenses of the Ontario Committee, advertising, printing, etc., are being met entirely by the Provincial Government.

Premier Hearst Has Seen the Work

"My visit to England and France has aroused deeper appreciation than ever of the splendid work of the Red Cross. It deserves every support, and I trust the people of Ontario will respond with their usual generosity to the British Red Cross Appeal for October 19th."

HON. W. H. HEARST,
Prime Minister of Ontario.

Mr. N. W. Rowell, K.C., Brings a Red Cross Message

"I bring a message of cheer to those who have relatives at the front and who fear they may be wounded. I believe everything human skill can do, that human care and sympathy can provide, is being done and provided each day and each night throughout the year by the Army Medical Corps and the Red Cross. It is a perfect marvel of efficiency."

MR. N. W. ROWELL, K.C.,
Leader of the Opposition.

He gives twice who gives quickly.
Your help is needed NOW!

The Motherland's only direct appeal to us for help in this great war is her great Red Cross mercy work. Ontario's response must and will be quick and generous. Give through the Treasurer of your Local Committee—or, send your subscription to the Clerk of your municipality—or, make it payable to Hon. T. W. McGarry, Treasurer British Red Cross Fund for Ontario, Parliament Buildings, Toronto.

MANY RICH FINDS.

Stefansson Party Has Made Valuable Discoveries of Copper.

The seven members of the party of Dr. Rudolph M. Anderson, commander of the southern branch of the Stefansson Canadian expedition into the far north, are preparing to make reports to the Canadian Government. They report many interesting discoveries, including findings of great quantities of copper, new species of small mammals, and perhaps new species of flowers. Stefansson, it was reported, was believed to be continuing his explorations north of Prince Patrick Island.

"We were instructed to survey the copper deposits already known and seek new ones. Every explorer from the earliest times had noted that the Esquimos east of the Mackenzie used knives, spear heads, and other weapons and utensils hammered from copper, and the Coppermine River, which empties into the Arctic, got its name from mineral discovered many years ago. We found on Coronation Gulf and Bathurst Inlet vast deposits of copper of low grade. We were not equipped to undertake mining operations, but upon the sides of cliffs we could measure the depth of successive flows of amygaloidal lava containing nuggets of copper. An Eskimo brought to us a lump of copper weighing forty pounds. There were seams in the lava that had been filled with pure copper. Geologist O'Neill took many samples of rock, which will be assayed. He also made many estimates of the area of ore in sight. This information is for the Canadian Government, and not to be published by us. The ore had many of the characteristics of the Lake Superior copper rock. It is workable from the surface, and is near navigable waters. It would be feasible to construct a railroad from the Mackenzie River, which is navigable five months of the year, to Great Bear Lake, which also is navigable much of the year. A further railroad line could be built from the lake to the copper fields, enabling the transportation of the ore to the interior of Canada by way of the Mackenzie River.

"We probably have discovered a number of new species of small mammals, and we shall find out about that when the skins and skeletons are examined at Ottawa. It would not be possible to find a new species or even a new geographical variety of the large mammals. Our botanical specimens probably contain new species of flowers, but we do not yet know for a certainty.

"The expedition we regard as having accomplished its purpose."

Orders From Italy.

It is expected that Canadian knitting mills will receive some further orders for knitted goods from the Italian Government through the Knit Goods Association of London. The mills are at present working upon a contract for 500,000 shirts for Italy. The order was placed with the Knit Goods Manufacturers' Association of Canada, and the value of the contract is something in excess of $600,000. A similar order was filled last year. The goods now being manufactured will go forward from New York.

It is expected that this order will [illegible] and supplement their regular business favorably. The results should be seen in the annual statements. At the same time the taking of these orders is likely to make it increasingly difficult for late retail orders to be filled for fall delivery. The larger merchants invariably benefited by the universal experience of the last two years and placed their fall orders early this spring, but a number of the smaller men were content to "trust to luck" or to the chance of the war closing in the early fall and bringing about a slump in the wool and yarn markets, with a downward reaction to themselves in the manufactured gods. However they did this in the face of repeated warnings both of the mills and the wholesale dealers.

Contributions to Navy.

It is expected that Canada will have contributed two thousand recruits at least for the Royal navy, by the end of the year, under the arrangement announced by Hon. J. D. Hazen lately, in Toronto. The plan agreed upon between the Canadian Government and the Admiralty provides for a maximum of five thousand men. They will be recruited in Canada and sent to England for the major part of their training. In the work of enlistment the Government will have the services of Captain, the Hon. Rupert Guinness, who came to Canada some weeks ago for the purpose of securing recruits for the navy.

One of the principal difficulties has been the inequality in the rates of pay as between the British and Canadian services, the pay of the British sailor being much below that prevailing in the Canadian naval service as well as in the land army. This difficulty is being overcome by the new scheme under which men enlisted in Canada will receive Canadian rates of pay. It is expected that the Maritime Provinces will provide many of the recruits for the navy, although the inland provinces will be expected to do their share, especially in the region of the Great Lakes.

Canadian Celluloid.

At the Canadian National Exhibition there were some exhibits new in character and indicative of an endeavor being made by domestic industries to take the place hitherto occupied by Germany, in particular, and other European countries. In one instance a manufacturer exhibited a very attractive line of celluloid manufactures consisting of photo frames, clock cases, and a variety of toys. The extent to which these were brought into Canada is considerable, and although the times are abnormal the value of manufactured celluloid goods purchased from abroad and from the United States was $55,617. Before the war the value per annum of the imported articles was $75,590. The decline is considerable. On the other hand, the imports of celluloid and kindred materials not further manufactured than moulder or pressed increased. Of course the value has advanced materially for the higher grades, and about twice the amount is being paid to-day as in 1914. Nevertheless the market for such articles is being served to a greater extent by the Canadian product than it has hitherto been.

AFRICAN DREAMS ENDED.

Germany's Plan to Overrun Black Continent is Squelched.

What will be the ultimate fate of the German colonies which have fallen into the hands of the Allies? It seems likely that they will go to the allied colonies which "march" with their borders. But, however that may be, there will be none of the Allied powers interested in colonial development—and none has so great an interest as Great Britain—that will not rejoice at the removal from Africa of the menacing and trouble-making power which, for a quarter of a century, has been sowing dissension and promoting hostility between the other nations in colonial matters. In almost every rising, and certainly in every war, which Great Britain has had on her hands in that period in South Africa, the German hand can be traced.

It was Germany which blocked the way to the fulfilment of the dearest desire and the most earnest expectation of Cecil Rhodes. German ships and German subsidies were drawing the trade of the coasts into German hands with marvelous rapidity. Into practically every department of trade in South Africa German interests were worming their way. From the military point of view, however, the East African campaign is highly instructive, inasmuch as it has shown what a small native army, organized on European lines, can do.

I was reading the other day a very interesting article by Edgar Wallace, the military expert, on German schemes and dreams about the Dark Continent. To-day we can gratefully recognise how, with the falling of the German colonies into the Allies' hands, all the dreams of a Greater Imperial Germany have evaporated. But as to how near they were at one time to becoming actualities we get a hint from Mr. Wallace.

"Eight years ago," he says, "I had the outlines of Germany's colonial plans sketched to me by the captain of a German steamer which was carrying me from port to port along the west coast. It included the raising of a native army in Africa, which should be the native counterpart of the German army in Europe. It was intended to establish a standing army of 150,000 in East Africa, with reserves and auxiliary services fashioned upon the best Prussian model. It is a fact, by the way, that the model most closely adhered to by successive commanders in East Africa was the British, and that the first native forces raised in that region were armed, equipped, and organized on the lines of our own native African battalions. A black Prussian army and a strong navy would have given the German first choice of colonies in Africa. There is a greater tragedy of frustrated ambition in the passing of German East Africa than most people realize."

Meat Supply Insufficient.

The daily rations of bread and meat all over Germany have just been increased, but some warning voices are heard in the press that the present rations cannot be continued through the winter.

The Munich Neueste Nachrichten tells the German people not to put too much faith in the present official promises in view of the indisputable fact that there are not enough cattle in the country to keep up the present ration, and says it is doubtful whether a meat ration of even one-quarter of a pound of meat weekly can be maintained. It proposes to increase the meat supply by killing off all the game on private and Imperial estates.

The Frankfort Gazette hints that the recent mismanagement of the new potato crop causes grave misgivings as to the food supplies during the winter. It seems that the farmers, attracted by the high prices offered, dug up their potatoes too early. Parochial and municipal organizations for the distribution of food were overwhelmed with supplies of unripe potatoes. Many thousands of bushels are said to have rotted on the spot or gone bad in the railroad cars while waiting to be unloaded. The glut continued until the communities reduced the maximum price when the supply gradually fell off.

The Deutsche Tages Zeitung, the staunch supporter of the farmers, lays all the blame at the door of the organizations, which, it says, were constantly urging the farmers to hurry up with their supplies so as to relieve the awkward food situation.

The Frankfurter Zeitung says: "The hopes which were pinned to the new harvest have proved illusive. The potato organization has failed and the authorities are to blame. As a consequence of these unhappy experiences people are beginning to doubt very much whether the food organization will run smoothly during the winter."

Harvest Situation in France.

The agricultural situation in France on the completion of the harvest is summed up authoritatively as follows:

The wheat yield is somewhat below that of the average year, but in the west, central, and south-eastern sections the harvest is satisfactory as a whole. The situation as to oats is quite favorable. Potatoes suffered from dryness, but good crops were raised in many sections. The beet yield was satisfactory.

The vineyards suffered from the heat, but on the whole the yield is considered a satisfactory one.

A Marvellous "Escape."

The following story is a reminder of one attributed to a certain well-known naval officer who was describing one day at dinner how a friend of his fell from the deck of a destroyer in mid-Atlantic on a dark night, with the wind blowing half a gale and the ship travelling thirty knots an hour.

"And was he drowned?" inquired a female voice from the far end of the table.

"Of course not, madam," was the reply. "He fractured his ankle."

LEWANIKA'S REFORMS

FROM A MONSTER MONARCH HE BECAME A FINE RULER.

Death Has Just Occurred of One of the Most Remarkable of African Monarchs Who Years Ago Threw Children to Crocodiles and Later Under the Influence of Christianity Reformed His Nation.

IN the heart of the sombre African jungle there died recently one of the greatest and last of the kings of the unknown, though not undiscovered, world—a ruler of one of those spaces bright to your fancy, dim on the map, black in truth, a part of "heart of darkness." The dead king was called Lewanika, head chief of the Barotse, and he was autocrat of the lives and destinies of some millions of black men dwelling in the forbidding valley of the upper Zambesi. Excepting Abyssinia, his was the greatest native empire in the barbaric continent, and the man himself perhaps the last of those picturesque and terrible monarchs whose doings and undoings took on a frightful shadow from contrast with the encroaching light of the world outside.

Lewanika, dead at 56, saw his country emerge from the wildest, murkiest savagery to a place literally within the slow sun of civilization. Beginning life as butcher, outrager, and wholesale assassin, he closed it a constructive and beneficent old barbarian, in love with the brilliant and mysterious great lands across the seas.

In his lifetime he abolished savage punishments, brutal sacrifices, and the horrors of some forms of idolatry; he built and maintained schools, wrote a fixed body of law, admitted the white man and his ideas, and even established female suffrage of a kind from which his neighbors across the big tides may wish to adopt something.

To the many of us who remember "Darkest Africa" as a phrase, with a connotation of cannibalism, the story of Lewanika must be of interest. He was born in 1860 in troublous times, far from Lialui, the capital city of the Barotse (or more properly Marotse). Of name he was Lobosi, and he was the twenty-second ruler of his line, which had been established in the seventeenth century and had reigned with innumerable interruptions, fatalities, and restorations.

When Lobosi was born his uncle Lepopo sat on the throne as chief of the tribes in a most truly Barotsean manner, it must be said. One of his chief diversions was to chase down some of the innumerable children of subject tribes and boat them to a low island in the Zambesi near Lialui, where he fed them to the crocodiles for his own and his tribe's amusement. The bloody Lepopo was deposed and assassinated after eleven years of this kind of circus and succeeded by another uncle of Lobosi, who was himself expelled after brief rule to make way for Lobosi, who ascended the throne in 1877, at the tender age of 17.

In the early part of his reign Lobosi exhibited all the interest in savagery that had graced his uncle so fatally. The patient Barotse stood for this kind of rule until 1884, when Lobosi brought himself to fall by torturing and murdering his own brother. He fled into exile, but returned with an army the following year and put the new ruler to rout. He reascended his throne after changing his soiled name to Lewanika.

On his re-entry into Lialui the victorious Lewanika found among his people a strange creature, a white man with quiet, conciliatory way, who had come to take nothing and was decidedly anxious to make friends. Lewanika long repulsed this visitor, but eventually yielded, received him, and permitted his overtures.

This man was Francois Coillard, the famous Zambesi missionary. When he went to his first meal with the king, that worthy squatted on the ground in complete nudity and devoured duck with his hands and teeth. Toward the end of his life the king had learned even an excellent taste in European foods, wines, table fittings.

Coillard, by unshakeable patience, got himself admitted to the confidence and trust of the king, who in time treated him with high honor and consulted him about the government of his tribe.

"What," he cried out one day in the face of recurring trouble, "shall I do with my people?"

"Take the secret spear from under your cloak and throw it away; renounce vengeance once for all, attach your people to yourself by making their welfare your first object; put a stop to theft; give them justice, quiet sleep, and good food to eat."

In 1902 Lewanika, attired in good European clothes and invariably equipped with a silk hat, attended the coronation of King Edward—Barotseland having before that time become a voluntary British protectorate. King Edward received him with great interest and British society took him up and lionized him.

Lewanika went home with his head unturned, but with several new notions piled into it. He worked on the problem for four years before he dared anything so revolutionary as freeing the slaves. Then, even two years after Coillard had died and his guiding hand had been removed, Lewanika abolished human serfdom in his country. Civilization had taken hold with him, a rare thing in a savage palace.

Roofed With Pearl Shells.

The towers of the Panama Cathedral are roofed with pearl shells, which reflect the sunlight so that they can be seen far out at sea.

HUN WAR MEDALS.

Big Collection is Being Established in the British Museum.

The British Museum has recently acquired, for the most part as a gift from a friend of the National Collections, a small but representative series of medals made in Germany since the outbreak of the war. Although these medals bear no signs of being issued by official authority, the impression they give is that they constitute part of the semi-official propaganda which Germany has developed to so remarkable a degree.

But whatever their origin, there can be no doubt that they provide a singularly interesting index to the state of mind of the Germans, and it is fortunate that a number of these records have been secured for the National Collections, although, as the galleries are closed, they will not be visible to the public until after the war. They are described as follows in the London Times:

There are, it would appear, many Englishmen who are reluctant to believe that a medal was actually issued to glorify the sinking of the Lusitania; but here is a specimen of this very piece. On one side is a crowd of Americans taking tickets at the Cunard office; the clerk who deals them out is a grisly skeleton. The motto is Geschaft uber Alles: "Business above everything." On the other side we see the Lusitania going down, and the inscription tells us that the liner was sunk by a German submarine on May 5, 1915 (the actual date was May 7). Above the vessel we read the motto, "No contraband," and the justification is provided by the munitions of war (including a fully-rigged aeroplane!) with which her decks are piled.

A final touch of verisimilitude is seen in her stem, which has a ram like that of a warship. This medal—which has fitly been compared with the medal issued by Gregory XIII. to commemorate the massacre of St. Bartholomew—is by a person of the name of Goetz, who appears to be by far the most prolific among the medallists who are satisfying the present demand for stuff of this kind.

The only really humorous designs are unconsciously so. Bismarck—in the pose of the famous statue—pronouncing over the waves an adaption to Britain of Cato's denunciation of Carthage, looks for all the world as if he had taken refuge in an armchair from the tide which is rising to overwhelm him. Still more amusing, in its production of an effect exactly the opposite of what was intended, is one of the "Gott Strafe England" medals of Admiral von Tirpitz. It is impossible not to feel sorry for the artist who is asked to do anything with this hero's features except in the way of caricature. But the reverse design surpasses all expectations. Neptune is seen seated on a submarine and shaking his fist at British shipping. Something in the way in which the subject is treated irresistibly suggests that he has been marooned and is venting his impotent rage at the ship that has deserted him.

Dog Survives Master.

Captain Anthony Wilding, the great tennis player, who fell in battle in France, was a keen lover of a dog, and he had an Irish terrier, Samson, sent to him when he went to the front. Samson was luckier than his owner, and although under fire several times he escaped injury. The London Field publishes a picture of Samson taken in his present home, Opawa, New Zealand, and has the following to say of him:

"Samson is on long leave—it may be permanent leave—from the front. As his collar still indicates, he was attached to 'Squadron 2, Section B. Armored Cars,' and was many times under fire in Flanders last year. Named after Commander Samson, R. N., under whom Captain Wilding served when attached to the royal naval air service, Samson has been mentioned in official memoranda. The former ordered an 'armored kennel' for his use from the transport officer, adding that he would not expect delivery 'until the bombardment of Dunkirk abates in fury.' When Captain Wilding fell, Samson was sent back to England, without troubling the quarantine officers, in an aeroplane, and subsequently took ship for Christchurch, New Zealand, his owner's native town."

August.

Although August is commonly called the slack month of the year—not this year, however—it has seen a number of stirring and important events. The Battle of Blenheim was fought in August, and so were the battles of Bosworth Field and Kandahar. The first Treaty with Japan was signed in August, 1858, and the Treaty of Prague was signed in August, eight years later.

The month is also associated with the British-American cable, the laying of which was one of the most remarkable feats ever accomplished. The first cable was worked in August, sixty-one years ago.

He Knew the Feeling.

Here is a story of Sir Ernest Shackleton, the explorer, in search of how expeditions are being fitted out in both this country and New Zealand.

"Can you imagine," he once asked a well-known Labor M.P., "what those vast snowfields of the Antarctic are like."

"I can—perfectly," was the prompt answer. "I've experienced them."

"Really?" said Sir Ernest, dubiously raising his eyebrows. "When?"

"The first time I appeared in public wearing a dress shirt," replied the Labor man with a chuckle.

When Did Kitchener Predict Peace?

Originally, Kitchener reckoned on a three-years' war, but it is reported that he subsequently altered this to two and a quarter years. In this case, the war would be over well before Christmas.

British Trenches Now Superior To Any Others

ACCORDING to an authoritative British source, tapped by the London correspondent of The New York Times, the British trenches along the Somme are models of skill, the finest trenches that have been dug since the beginning of the war. The men are in what he describes as "neat tracks" in the earth with a sharp corner every few yards. The old trenches were gaping V-shaped ditches, well calculated to collect the enemy's trench mortars. The present trenches are mere slots, and the shell that reaches them has to drop down almost perpendicularly. To have built these trenches the men must have dug as skilfully and as unweariedly as they have fought, and he says that they took almost as much pride and joy in the one occupation as in the other. The English, remarks the correspondent, only learn war in each of their wars by degrees, but now they have learned it. There is no more for the Germans to teach them; they may teach a few tricks to the Germans.

Describing what one may now expect to find in the British front-line trenches, he writes:

One little knot of men off duty are bending over a comic paper at a corner. The wary old trench-dweller always likes a corner because he can jump round it at the shortest notice and put a solid angle of earth between him and anything noxious that drops in. On the other side another group cheerfully reopens that undying theme of debate among the British soldiers—the merits and demerits of the salient of Ypres.

"How long was you at Wipers?"

"Four months."

"Well, I was there five months; so what right have you to speak?"

A general laugh greets this method of proof and disproof, and some one else cuts in. You meet officers anxious about nothing except to know what there is in the last English papers. Sentries on duty with all the crowns of their grass-green steel helmets dipped cunningly down to the parapet's level, report that nothing is stirring over the way. These helmets used to be ugly and not highly protective. The new make of helmet is more ornamental and more effective. It covers more of the neck, though not so much as the blue-steel skullcaps of the French, with their turned-down brims, and its lines are artistic. Worn at the proper angle, it makes the comely young sentry look rather like Donatello's David at Florence. With stooping heads, the sentries report "nothing doing." That means nothing visible, nothing audible.

Peering over the parapet for a moment you see only a wilderness of bare earth, pitted thickly with conical holes from three to eight feet deep. Four hundred yards away is the skeleton of a dead village. No sign of life is to be seen there except perhaps one of the larks which sing cheerfully through cannonades that would make the pheasants in faraway Sussex nervous, or else a big hawk slowly quartering ground and sending the larks into a retirement as modest as that of German airmen. And yet you know that waste is inhabited; that you need only to raise your head a foot higher to bring a bullet dipping itself with a quiet flick into the loose earth behind you; that if you crawled out on your stomach and peeped over the edge of each shell hole you reached you would come at last to one in which men in wide-skirted grey tunics with narrow red bands round their caps were crouching, some of them nursing their one good friend, a machine gun, some of them digging hard to connect hole with hole till a row of fortuitous dots was turned into a line; some of them resting tucked into little cavities scooped in the earth or near the side of a hole like sandmartens' nests on the wall of a quarry, and staring apprehensively up at bomb-laden British biplanes wheeling about in the sky overhead as the larks in the grass look up at a hawk.

You know all this, because on the way up this morning you talked with a number of Prussian and Saxon prisoners in one of the cages, the little camps where the latest captives rest for some days safe out of range of their friends heavy guns till they can be sent on by train to the base of the English. Three days ago they came down broken-nerved to the cage, their faces lined and drawn with mental overstrain, some of them still mechanically making deprecatory gestures of surrender and entreaty. As they marched to-day all the lines were smoothed out. They had been fed and had slept for whole nights and had found that the "murderers" described to them by their own sergeants inflicted nothing but offers of cigarettes. So they began to expand in the unexpected sunshine of good treatment and they told what life had been like in the shell holes, its good points and its bad. The food had been good, but sometimes it did not come because the British guns would draw a kind of fence of falling shrapnel across a piece of country, a sort of shower-bath of bullets dropping along the line, so nobody could cross the line without being hurt.

Somtimes the men in the shell hole would see British troops in the open within rifle range, but would not dare shoot lest British airmen should see where they were and send word to a British gun and bring down a high explosive shell on the old shell hole to bury them all alive by a second rearrangement of the earth. You perceive this apprehension just because you twice to-day have seen the end of a stiff black-booted leg protruding out of the wall of an old shell hole.

PETROGRAD IN EARNEST.

To All Russia the War is Considered a Crusade.

"The war," said a friend of the writer, just returned from a visit to Russia, "has wrought no such change in any capital of Europe, not even in Paris, as in Petrograd. From a city of careless pleasures it has become a city of the deepest seriousness and a grim and deadly earnestness. It is possessed of one thought only—to win the war; and on that object all its efforts are concentrated.

"It is a city, too, of profound piety, and this piety is universal. You will see the roughest cab-driver and the most high-placed officer alike remove their hats and cross themselves reverently when passing a street-shrine. Every Russian regiment has its own special ikon, which to it is a real living thing, the very body of the saint whose spirit dwells in it; and every soldier carries a cross as his most precious treasure and consoler. To all Russia the war is a crusade—a holy war waged for the little brother, Serbia.

"And for this great and holy crusade everyone is working. The very boys are always busy rolling bandages, making 'swobs,' or sewing strips of bombazine together, which the soldiers prefer to socks. At the hospital of Tsarskoe Selo the Czarina, her daughters, and Court ladies are ministering night and day to the wounded and dying, and in all the intermediate social stages everyone is equally hard at work.

"In the streets of Petrograd the war meets you everywhere. Wherever you go you encounter collectors—selling metal crosses for the Red Cross, postcards for a fund to help the Poles, or relics from the battlefield—all in the sacred name of charity.

"At a street corner you will see a patient, serious crowd gathered to listen while someone reads aloud the latest news of the fighting from the leaflets posted up on the walls. Here you pause to watch a regiment of stalwart, grim-faced soldiers march past, with the slow, rhythmic tread peculiar to the Russian fighter. A little farther on a band of students passes along singing—to your astonishment—'Tipperary,' while every onlooker removes his hat in tribute to England, the great ally who is making victory assured."—Answers.

Hamburg's Deserted Harbor.

The London Daily Mail quotes from The Berliner Tageblatt's description of Hamburg written by a recent visitor to that port. "If anyone wants to realise the picture of Hamburg as a sleeping beauty he need only take a run round the docks. The sound of sirens, the groaning of cranes, the clanking of anchor chains is heard no more. Only from the shipbuilding yards come occasional sounds of blows of hammers. Through the silence of the quays and ships everything is completely still. Before the war boats made an uninterrupted chain right to the mouth of the Elbe, but now the tenants of the villas on Blankenese tell me they rush to the window every time a ship goes by. The whole place is deserted excepting for some warehouse caretakers, a sentinel guarding the margarine depot and a few women packing salted codfish. The Imperator lay empty in the docks. Strange to say the brass porthole fittings of this ship are untouched. The ship has 2,000 portholes and the weight of brass is 75 tons, but it is too much trouble to remove it."

A Comparison.

An official report comparing British with German agriculture, published by the British Government, shows that on each hundred acres—

1. The British farmer feeds from 45 to 50 persons, the German farmer feeds from 70 to 75 persons.
2. The British farmer grows 15 tons of grain, the German farmer grows 33 tons.
3. The British farmer grows 11 tons of potatoes, the German farmer grows 55 tons.
4. The British farmer produces 4 tons of meat, the German farmer produces 4¼ tons.
5. The British farmer produces 17½ tons of milk, the German farmer produces 28 tons.
6. The British farmer produces a neglible quantity of sugar, the German farmer produces 2¾ tons.

It is further stated in the report that the soil and climatic conditions in Germany are inferior to those in England.

A Cricket Story.

Canon Lyttelton, Eton's headmaster, who is retiring in favor of the Rev. C. A. Alington, and a famous cricketer in his early days, was once addressing a fashionable audience on the subject of the unnecessary luxury of the modern boy's life.

"Even cricket," he remarked, "has become largely a society function, with elaborate luncheons and high teas"; and he went on to say that this sort of thing always reminded him of the gamekeeper who didn't know much about cricket, but who was hastily chosen into a side to supply a vacancy.

When the match was over a friend said to him:

"Well, Bill, how do you like cricket?"

"Oh," he replied, "I liked it well enough, all except the running about between meals."

"Surprises in Store."

Major Baird, replying for the Government to a debate on air policy in the House of Commons, pointed out that we had just dropped seven tons of bombs on the German lines, and we ought to allow the responsible officers to decide where they should use the explosives. If the choice lay between dropping explosives on soldiers, munition factories, and artillery in the field, on the one hand, and on peaceful towns where there were women and children, on the other hand, he would plank his faith on the former. But there might be some surprising things in store for Germany, which it would be unwise to announce beforehand.

ST. THOMAS, ONT. FATHER TELLS HOW CHILD WAS RESTORED TO HEALTH

We have always told the people of Belleville that Vinol is a wonderful body builder for ailing children. Here is more proof of the fact.

Robert J. Miller, of St. Thomas, Ontario says:—"The measles left my little daughter in a very weakened run down condition. She had a very poor appetite and was much below normal weight. On the advice of a friend I gave her Vinol and she has gained rapidly in weight and strength. I consider Vinol a valuable medicine for such conditions."

Vinol is especially efficient in building up puny, weak, ailing children, because of the beef and cod liver peptones, iron and manganese peptonates and glycerophosphates which it contains, and it is without oil or grease, children love to take it.

A DOG CASE

Tony Quattrochie, a foreigner who conducts a business in this city, was this morning before Magistrate Masson, charged with keeping a vicious dog. The canine, a few days ago, bit a citizen to such an extent that the wound had to be cauterized. The result of the investigation was that Tony agreed to pay the doctor bill, all costs in the case, and get rid of the dog.

LUNCHES FOR THE BOYS

The ladies of Belleville, who are members of the Argyle Chapter, Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire, were to-day busily engaged in preparing boxes for shipment to Kingston. The boxes contain sandwiches and fruit, which will be supplied to members of the 155th Battalion while enroute from Kingston to Halifax. This thoughtful act on the part of the ladies will no doubt be much appreciated by the soldier boys who are going overseas.

How to Make a Good Hair Tonic at Home

If you have been using hair tonics purchased readymade at the drug stores you can probably save some money and get a great deal better results by using the following recipe which has been remarkably successful in stopping loss of hair and making new hair grow on bald and thin spots. Anyone can easily make it at home. Simply mix 2oz. of Lavona De Composee with 6 oz. of pure bay rum and then add one-half drachm of menthol crystals and a little perfume if desired. The preparation should be well shaken and then allowed to stand a few hours before using. All these ingredients can be obtained from any well stocked drug store. In applying be sure to not merely wet the hair but rub the tonic right into the scalp as its ability to grow new hair depends entirely upon its nourishment being absorbed by your hair roots. This preparation has been widely used for years and is entirely harmless and will not make the hair greasy or sticky. Ladies should be careful not to apply to face or where hair is not desired. ### HE RAISED MISCHIEF

The woolly-headed Uncle Rasmus was accused of disturbing the peace. Officer Mort Rudolph explained it as follows:

"Your honor this man was running up and down the Mill River road waving his arms and yelling at the top of his voice, and otherwise raising the mischief, at 1 30 in the morning. The people of the district complained, and they had a perfect right to."

The judge frowned at Rasmus, who didn't seem to be particularly worried.

"Religiun, jedge," was the response.

"Religion. Are you a Holy Roller or something like that? I have religion, Rasmus, but I don't get up at midnight and tell everybody about it."

BOSTON CHAMPIONS

WIN OVER BROOKLYN, 4-1 SCORE

Before the greatest crowd that ever witnessed a professional ball game, the Boston Red Sox annexed their fourth World's Championship yesterday afternoon, in Braves Field, Boston.

A vast throng, numbering 42,620, wild-eyed fans saw the Sox down the Brooklyn Dodgers, four to one in the fifth game of the 1616 title tussle.

It registered the Sox fourth victory, and clinched the title for them. To Ernie Shore, the tall right-handed twirler of the Sox, went the honors of stowing away the championship. He is the only pitcher to be credited with two victories in the series.

The last game did not measure up with the crowd. At best it was only ordinary, and in some places it was weird.

The line-up:

MIXED IT WITH MYSTERY.

But the Secret of Portland Cement Was Solved by a Busybody.

Portland cement may be defined as a product made by burning limestone and clay, which have been mixed so as to form a certain composition, and grinding the resulting "clinker" to powder.

In the early days much mystery surrounded the manufacture of Portland cement when it was first discovered by a bricklayer of Leeds, England. He found that by mixing water with a compound of Thames chalk and Medway mud he could compound an artificial water cement and determined that no one should discover his secret. When employed in manufacturing his raw mixture he is said to have attired himself in a long black gown and the pointed hat of the mystic and to have recited mysterious incantations during his operations.

But a curious onlooker who determined to ascertain his ingredients and methods had a sample analyzed by a chemist, whose result showed 90 per cent phosphate of lime. Thinking that he had solved the secret, he began to calcine all the bones he could gather up in the village, much to the discomfort and objections of his neighbors, who finally induced him to desist. Following, however, the old system of cut-and-try, he finally solved the problem and eventually produced a cement equal to that of the original compounder, and the great industry began to thrive at once.

In this country the Portland cement industry had its beginnings in the Lehigh valley in Pennsylvania, chiefly in Lehigh and Northampton counties, where John W. Eckert, a chemist, discovered that there occurred a limestone composed of approximately the correct ingredients necessary for the manufacture of Portland cement.—Smithsonian Institution Bulletin.

Held Up Dugout.

A modern Atlas was rewarded recently when Second Lieutenant P. H. S. Bezuidenhout, a giant artillery officer, received the British Military Cross. His dugout was blown in by a shell which killed some men and wounded others. Bezuidenhout, although stunned himself, bore the whole weight of the roof on his shoulders for some time, and prevented it falling on the wounded before they could be removed to safety.

Antipodeans Good Shots.

The National Rifle Association has issued this year's results of the Imperial Challenge Shield competition for boys shooting with small bore rifle. There were 323 teams in all parts of the Empire competed in the senior competition for boys over fifteen years, and 197 in the junior, representing a total of fifty thousand boys. New Plymouth High school, New Zealand, won first prize in both competitions. A very large proportion of the fifty prizes in the senior competition was won by Australia, where the cadet system is in an advanced stage. The English teams were fairly prominent in the junior competition. Entries from Canada, South Africa, New Zealand show some increase over last year.

WHAT HAS BECOME OF THE ARCHDUKE?

Frederick of Austria Is Now Never Heard Of.

AN AMIABLE MEDIOCRITY

Commander-in-Chief of All the Austrian Armies Was Once a Figure of Importance in the War but Now He Has Dropped From Sight—He is a Very Rich Man.

WHAT has become of the Commander-in-Chief of all the Austrian armies, the Archduke Frederick? Nothing has been heard of him for a long time. Most people who know anything of Austria will agree with the Swiss critic who says it was a farce to put this "amiable, easy-going, somewhat lazy mediocrity" into such a position.

ARCHDUKE FREDERICK.

He is a brother of the Queen Dowager of Spain, and the richest member of the Austrian Imperial house. He is now about 60 years old, and he has a rather large family, with whom, before the war, he resided in the country—usually at Pressburg—for half the year, the other half being spent in Vienna.

REPORT OF ANNUAL MEETING OF SHAREHOLDERS OF THE C. P. R.

MONTREAL, Oct. 4.—At the annual meeting of the shareholders of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company held to-day the report of the directors was unanimously adopted.

Wilmot B. Matthews, Augustus M. Hanton, George Bury and Sir Vincent Meredith were elected directors.

Agreement respecting Toronto, Hamilton and Buffalo Railway Company referred to in annual report was approved.

Directors authorized to carry out arrangement regarding ocean services as outlined in annual report.

In moving adoption of annual report the President, Lord Shaughnessy, said:—

On behalf of the directors I have the honor to submit for your consideration and approval the thirty-fifth annual report of the company.

The information contained in the report with reference to the extent of the Company's operations during the year and the condition of its affairs generally, must be as gratifying to the shareholders as it is to the directors. While the gross income from the business of your railway was below the maximum that had been reached, the net revenue was in excess of any previous year. The statements and statistics give evidence of improved operating effectiveness and of greater financial strength and stability.

Although the amount of the taxes that the Company may be called upon to pay in Great Britain and Canada in connection with special war assessments is not as yet definitely determined, it will no doubt, be considerable, and prudence suggests preparation to meet it. Then, as you are aware, most of your ocean steamships have, during the past two years been engaged in admiralty service. Some of them were lost, although in this respect we have been singularly fortunate. Some were taken over by the Admiralty, and the character of the service that the others have been performing will make extensive rebuilding necessary whenever the steamships are released.

To make provision for these excess war profit taxes and other assessments that your company may be required to pay and for the rehabitation of your ocean fleets at the prices now current and that are likely to prevail for sometime to come, the directors decided to transfer to a fund for contingencies a very substantial sum that would in other circumstances have gone to special income. I am confident that this policy will meet with your hearty approval.

It is very comforting to know that June 20th last, the cash in hand, including the temporary investment in war loans, readily convertible, was nearly $47,000,000, or about $20,000,000 more than at the end of the previous fiscal year, although in the meantime no capital securities of any description had been disposed of, but, of course, important works requiring big expenditure, that were not immediately necessary, were postponed, until a more opportune time. In addition to the cash in the treasury, you have available for sale upwards of $40,000,000 of 4% consolidated debenture stock for additional railway mileage, built with funds advanced by the shareholders.

In the opinion of the directors, the time has arrived when the company should arrange to carry its own fire and marine insurance, or the greater portion of it, instead of buying large annual premiums at present. To that end a transfer of $291,000 was made to the fund last year, and further transfer will be made year by year until the fund is sufficient for the purpose in view.

In Western Canada the outcome of farming operations this year was generally satisfactory, but the grain crops in portions of the Western Provinces were injuriously affected by unfavorable weather conditions during the late summer, and it is thought that the total yield will be little more than half of last season's phenomenal crop. These conditions will naturally be reflected in the company's revenue returns during the next year, but general business is showing decided improvement, and, in any event, there is every reason to expect that the company's net income for the year will be quite sufficient to meet the ordinary dividend distribution without encroaching on the surplus of previous years.

The progress and prosperity of your company during the past few days tempted other railway companies to enter the field, and they received encouragement in the share of cash bonuses and guaranteed securities, the result that hundreds of millions of dollars were invested in railway lines throughout Canada; many of them in territory already served by your railway, years before they were required or could be made self-sustaining. It has been necessary for government on more than one occasion to come to the aid of these companies by advancing large amounts of money to prevent liquidation and collapse. As a consequence a situation fraught with anxiety and some apprehension has developed. Within the last few months a board of inquiry composed of expert and capable men, has been selected by the Dominion Government to study every phase of the railway problem, and to make a report incorporating suggestions and advice that may serve to guide the Government in dealing with the subject hereafter; it is to be regretted that a board of this kind was not asked to give information and advice before these large expenditures and obligations were incurred, rather than afterwards, but there is little doubt that its report and recommendations will be very useful to Parliament and the Government.

I cannot too highly commend the vice-presidents and their assistants for the splendid organization, the intelligence and energy which may be attributed to the very gratifying outcome of the year's business.

Your directors recommend that Sir Vincent Meredith, Bart., be elected a director to fill the vacancy, and his name will appear on the ballot paper to be submitted to you to-day.

Mr. Huntley Drummond, commenting upon the report and the position of the company, in most complimentary terms referred to the rumored retirement of the President, and expressed the opinion that most apprehension would be removed if the president felt at liberty to say anything reassuring on this subject. Mr. Drummond also referred to enormous assistance the Canadian Pacific organization had been in matters connected with the prosecution of the war, and to the generosity of the company, and its employees generally, in their contributions to the Patriotic Fund and other war purposes.

The President replied, briefly placing himself in the hands of the directors for so long a time as they might consider his services of value. He referred in feeling terms to his 34 years' connection with the company; 17 of them as chief executive and to the organization and espirit-de-corps through the staff and employees—a source of great pride to him. He mentioned the fact that many of his assistants and advisers on the staff had been with him from the beginning, indeed, that some of those now holding the positions of greatest responsibility, he had known as boys in very subordinate positions in the company's service, and he assured Mr. Drummond and the shareholders, that his advice and co-operation would always be at the command of these associates while he was mentally and physically capable, and in any position that might be allotted to him.

At the meeting of the Board subsequently held, Lord Shaughnessy was elected President; George Burry, Vice President; and F. W. Beatty, K.C., Vice President and General Consul of the Company, and Executive committee, appointed as follows—Richard B. Angus, E. W. Beatty, K.C., George Burry, Sir Herbert Hill, Sir Edmund E. Osler and Lord Shaughnessy.

One Man "a Savage Horde."

Investigation of the German charge that "black savages" were aiding the English in fighting on the western front disclosed that one very large, black, fierce-looking negro, a British citizen, hailing from London, was instructed to put his woolly head over the parapet twenty times a day in different places for twenty days, yelling on each occasion, "Hoola Boola!" Naturally the Germans thought they were opposing a horde of South African savages. And all the time the "horde" was scared stiff that he would get his head shot off.

Belgian King Ageing.

King Albert of Belgium has aged under the heavy cares and sorrows of the present time, and his hair is beginning to turn grey, according to the latest news from the Belgian front. His Majesty never leaves the small strip of territory over which the Belgian flag still flies, refraining from visits to places in France or to Ste. Adresse, where his Government has its seat. If the King of England or President Poincare want to meet the Belgian sovereign, they have to go to this corner by the Yser.

JOSEPH MONTGOMERY, CHARGED WITH MURDER, FOUND WITH HIS THROAT CUT

PTE. FRED MOTT

Wounded at the Front, Taken Prisoner and Now in Germany

Pte. Mott was a former Belleville boy, being the son of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. W. Mott, now of Cambellford, formerly of Belleville. He was a former pupil of Grier Street School and was in his nineteenth year. He enlisted during August, 1915, with the 33rd Battery; he was then drafted to the 8th C.M.R., crossing to England in October, 1915. He crossed to the firing line about January 28th, 1916, where he was badly wounded during the terrifiic bombardment of the positions held by the C.M.R.'s, by the German artillery, on June 2nd. He was picked up by the German Red Cross, and taken prisoner, and is now in a prison camp in Germany.

Famous Tanks To Be Improved

The Question is Discussed in The British House of Commons Who is Responsible For The Invention

LONDON, Oct. 12.—The British public has displayed unabated interest in the doings of the "tanks" at the front, and curiosity regarding their history. The subject was raised in the House of Commons last night, when the War Secretary again gave primary credit to Col. Winston Spencer Churchill, former First Lord of the Admiralty, whose energy and enthusiasm he said, was mainly responsible for bringing the idea into practical operation when he was head of the Admiralty by making the necessary experiments and appointing a committee to carry out suggestions.

Mr. Lloyd George said he hoped that with further experience the efficacy of the "tanks" would become even greater. Among the Admiralty experts and others deserving of credit, he mentioned Eustace H. W. Tennyson-d'Eyncourt, director of naval construction: Sir Maurice Hankey, secretary of the War Committee, and Colonels Swinton and Stern, who had previously been named in this connection.

Nevertheless, he said; the suggestions would never have been carried out but for Col Churchill's enthusiasm.

TOWN OF MADOC IN THROES OF EXCITEMENT

Joseph Montgomery, Detained in Lockup Preparatory to Being Transferred to County Jail in This City, Discovered This Morning With Throat Cut — Supposed to Have Secured Knife After Being Placed in Confinement — In Serious Condition

Great excitement prevailed in Madoc village this morning when it became known that Joseph Montgomery, who was being held in custody pending his preliminary trial charged with the murder of his brother, Walter, on the 3rd inst. attempted to commit suicide last night in the lock-up of that village, by cutting his throat with a small pocket knife. The constable in charge said that the accused had been thoroughly searched prior to being locked up, and he cannot account for his possessing the knife unless some one threw it in to him from the open grating over the door. The deed had evidently been done early in the night as the knife was found in the stove with the blood dried on it, also dry blood on his hands. He must have done the cutting, put the knife in the stove, and returned to the cot as he lay down in a position to permit the blood to fall to the floor. At eight o'clock this morning there were still slight signs of life but Dr. Eagleson who was called in said there was not much chance for recovery.

A bulletin received at 11 o'clock stated that Montgomery was still alive and there were little more hopes for his recovery.

Mr. W. C. Mikel, K. C., of Belleville, who has been detained to defend the accused, in conversation with a representative of The Intelligencer, said that Joseph Montgomery's act does not point to guilt, but an unbalanced mind. The learned counsel also said the accused was an eccentric man and people described him as being odd. Full attention has not yet been given to a consideration of his mental condition. He has been accustomed to an open air life and his confinement in the little cell in Madoc intended only for transient prisoners together with the excitement of the nerve racking legal proceedings, the death of his brother, the loss of his farm buildings by fire, would unbalance a stronger mind. In the earlier part of the proceedings he felt that being an innocent man he could bear the whole strain of the legal proceedings himself without legal assistance. This, no doubt, added to his troubles.

If the condition of Montgomery is such that he can be moved, he will be brought to Belleville this evening.

Liquor in Cellar Violation of Law

When Cellar is Part of Building That Includes Shop or Store Ruling of Magistrate

TORONTO, Oct. 13.—One by one Police Magistrate Denison is disposing of the doubtful points of the Ontario Temperance Act. Yesterday morning he decided that liquor in a residence which is a part of a building which includes a shop or store, is there in violation of the Act.

The case which brought about the decision was one in which Peter Tenute, who keeps a fruit store at 1202 Bloor street west, was charged with having liquor on premises not allowed by the Act.

Inspector Tipton, of the Ossington Avenue Station, stated that he found 30 bottles of beer in the cellar of the building, while on the third floor he located a case of whiskey.

The accused's explanation was that the cellar was used for the store and dwelling. On the first floor up he and his family lived with one boarder, while on the top floor three people, tenants, lived.

The Magistrate said he would make a conviction, as he held that the beer in the cellar was a violation, the cellar being a part of the shop and not the dwelling. There was one stair from the shop to the cellar. He gave a stay in making the conviction for a week in order that Mr. J. F. Coughlin, counsel for the accused, may make an appeal. He contended that the building was a private residence, and not a shop. The Magistrate said that if he did not register a conviction in the case every shop in the city would be able to break the law. This really means that people living over their shops cannot keep liquor in their residence.

The fine imposed was $20.

Mr. Ryan said that the wine sold had been prepared under the old order of affairs and was not the invalid port. During his absence one of his employes had sold the wine when invalid port was asked for.

Canadian Loss Thousand Daily

Heavy Casualties Show Terrific Nature of Recent Fighting—Foe Reinforced on Somme Line

OTTAWA, Oct. 13.—With the terrific fighting in progress along the Somme in which the Canadians are taking a leading part, the casualties in the four Canadian divisons are nearly a thousand a day.

Since September 1st when the Canadians were moved from Ypres to the Somme the casualties have totalled nearly 200000, while for the two years the Canadians have been in the fighting the total has been only 52,000. This gives some idea of the terrible nature of the present fighting.

While Ottawa has nothing official on the matter it is very apparent the Germans have recently been strongly reinfored along the Somme and are making desperate efforts to stem the advance of the Allies, which was becoming serious and endangering their whole line.

That they are having some success is evident from the story of the Canadian war records office in London yesterday which shows that the advance of the Canadians along 2,500 yards was checked with fearful loss.

Melbourne P. Sprague Returned To England

Was Prisoner in Germany, But Released and Sent to London Now in Queen Alexandra Hospital

News was received Wednesday afternoon, by Mr. E. B. Sprague, North Front Street, from Ottawa, that his son, Pte. Milburn Sprague, taken prisoner by the Germans over four months ago, is now in hospital in England.

Pte. Sprague was struck by a shell on June 2nd last, when the Mounted Rifles, to which corps he belonged, were subjected to a fierce bombardment which almost wiped them out of existence. With his right leg broken in three places, and his left leg fractured, he lay in his dugout for five days, with plenty to eat, but no water He was picked up in an exhaustive condition by the German Red Cross, who took him to their base hospital in Belgium, where his leg was amputated. After a month in Belgium he was sent to a prison hospital at Stuttgart, Germany. Remaining there for about three months, he was released, and forwarded to England; via Switzerland and France. His return to Belleville will not be for many months, on account of his injuries. Fortunately the amputation took place below the knee.

Pte. Sprague has two other brothers now at the front, while another is principal of the Technical School at Hamilton.

Splendid Red Red Cross Meeting At Plainfield

One of the most successful patriotic and Red Cross meetings ever held in this section of the country was that under the auspices of the Plainfield Women's Institute, and presided over by Mr. Alexander Moore, in the Orange Hall, Plainfield, on Thursday evening of the 12th inst.

The audience was large and appreciative, and the financial results highly saisfactory. Addresses tof more than ordinary interest, descriptive of Red Cross, Patriotic work and recruiting, were delivered by Mrs. S. D. Lazier, President of the Belleville Cheese Board Red Cross and Patriotic Assocation; Mrs. J. A. McFee, Secretary of the same organization, Venerable Archdeacon Beamish, Rector of St. Thomas Church, Belleville, Mr. John Elliot, Rev. Mr. Mitchell and Rev. A. C. Huffman, while the musical part of the entertainment was provided by Mrs. Dick, Mrs. Mitchell, Miss McKim, Miss Laurenson, Miss B. Collins and Mr. Gowe.

At the close of the meeting all those who had taken part in the program were invited to partake of delicious refreshments provided by the local ladies.

The members of the Plainfield Women's Institute are to be congratulated on the success of the event.

As usual Mr. Alexander Moore, discharged the duties of chairman to the entire satisfaction of everyone present.

RETURNED PRISONER OF WAR-ADMITTED TO HOSPITAL

REPULSE OF ENEMY IN LEMBERG REGION

Thinning Out of Forces to Bulwark The Roumanian Lines—Czar's Armies in No Wise Crippled by Move—Russians Showing Stubborn Aggressiveness

LONDON, Oct. 14.—Special—The thinning out of the Russian forces in Galicia and Volhynia to bulwark the Roumanian lines in Transylvania and the allied lines in Macedonia does not appear to have crippled the Czar's armies. At every point on the front where operations are being conducted the Russians are showing the same stubborn resistance under hostile attack and the same power in their own drives.

The Gerbans opened up an attack of great strength last night against a part of the front rarely the scene of activities on a large scale. North of the Pinsk marshes the Russian trenches lie along the western bank of the River Shara, and are strongly fortified. In this region, near the village of Goldovitvhi, the Germans swung forward under cover of darkness after heavy artillery preparation, and taking the Russians by surprise wrested a trench line along a considerable front from them. The Czar's troops rallied quickly, and in a counter-assault of great power swept the enemy back to his original position, inflicting severe losses on him.

In the region south of Eubnov Russian patrols succeeded in clearing an enemy trench and holding it against counterattacks. On the Narayuvka, south-east of Lemberg, all attempts of the Germans and Austrians to thrust back Russian advance guards were repelled. A virtual deadlock exists along the great arc that hedges in Lemberg, and it is probable that no great attempt will be made by either side to break it under the present conditions.

Canadian Press Special

BERLIN, Oct. 14.—The Teutonic advance in Transylvania is continuing, and the Roumanians have been driven from Upper Alt and Maros valleys into the frontier mountains, says to-day's War Office statement. Progress is also being made against Roumanian forces in Kronstadt region.

Greek Navy In Allied Hands

Transfer of Warships Already in Progress—Crews Are Taken From War Vessels

LONDON, Oct 12 — The Daily Chronicle's Athens correspondent in announcing that Greece has accepted the demands of the Entente powers says that the Greek Government added a protest to its notification of acceptance. A telephonic message received in Athens from Piraeus says that the handing over of the Greek navy to the allied naval authorities has already begun. The lighter craft will be handed over intact so as to enable them to be despatched to the provisional government at Saloniki. The heavier vessels will be disarmed and left where they are in the Gulf of Keratsini.

According to the Chronicle's correspondent the Greek crews have already been removed from some of the warships and are being landed from the others. French crews were placed on the small ships and all guns on the larger vessels rendered ineffective and placed under guard. Quiet is reported from Athens and KINGSTON, Oct., 13—The explosion of a coal oil stove in the home of Miss Ada Woertendyke. 165 Bagot St. shortly after two o'clock this afternoon caused considerable excitement among the occupants of the house. Miss Woertendyke, being slightly burned but no serious damage resulting to the room. A neighbor's prompt action in throwing a mat over the stove which prevented the furnishing from catching fire. It is understood that the stove was accidently upset resulting in the explosion.

KILLED BY A SHARK

Man Goes Into Fishing Net to Capture Man-eater

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Oct. 13.—The first of the tragedies from sharks along the Florida east coast which all but ruined the summer for a number of the northern bathing resorts occurred this week when J. L. Hanscom died in a hospital at Fort Pierce from injuries sustained when he was attacked by a shark at Sewell's Point, near Palm Beach, this morning.

Hanscom was assisting some fishermen hauling in a fishing-net from the ocean, when they were surprised to find a large shark entangled in the meshes of the net. Hanscom is said to have jumped into the net and attempted to grapple with the sea monster in an effort to take it captive alive. In some manner the shark seized Hanscom's right leg during the struggle, severely mangling the member. The lacerated leg was amputated, but Hanscom died a short time afterwards from loss of blood.

ACTIVITY ON THE SOMME

Germans Succeed in Occupying Trench, But are Driven Out by Counter-attack

Canadian Press Special.

PARIS, Oct., 14—Text of offensive statement—North of the Somme, we made progress on the Malassise ridge. South of the Somme, after a violent barriage fire the Germans delivered a powerful attack on our Apiaincourt positions. They succeeded in occupying a portion of the village and some trenches to the northeast, but they were completely driven out by an immediate counter attack. On the rest of the front there was nothing to report. Our aeroplanes bombarded Voazios and Ardeuil. Fog and clouds hampered operations along the whole front.

Saskatchewan M.P.P. Goes to Jail

REGINA, Oct. 13.—Edward H. Devline, a Liberal M.P.P. for Kinistino, Saskatchewan, was sentenced by Judge Hannin in the District Court Wednesday to serve three years on each of three counts of forgery; two years on each of three counts of uttering; one year on each of three counts of false pretences, and two years additional on a fourth count of false pretences, all sentences to be served in Prince Albert Penitentiary at hard labor, and to run concurrently. The judge allowed the time already spent in prison by Devline, seven months, to be deducted from the total sentence, leaving two years and five months to be served.

Devline, addressing the court, said that he had paid back to the Government not only the money he had received from the frauds, but also the money which J. P. Brown had received from frauds in which Devline participated, totalling $6,000.

The Liberal Press of Ontario is not very loud or vigorous in condemnation of this grafter. Why? He belongs to the party.

SUCCESSFUL RAIDS

MUSIC AND DRAMA

"THE WALL BETWEEN" AT GRIFFIN'S

"The Wall Between", an excellent photoplay, featuring Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne, the most popular of all screen stars, was the feature picture at Griffin's last night. The play deals with the insurmountable barrier that arises between the officers and soldiers of the army; where the soldier cannot take part in any social function at which officers are guests. The barrier is overcome in "The Wall Between", by Quarter Master Sergeant Kendall (Francis X. Bushman) who is in love with the niece of the Colonel of his regiment. The many artistic settings and movements are excellent, which all go to make the film an immense favorite with those who have witnessed it. An amusing comedy and Pathe's Gazette, were also on the programme. The entire performance will be repeated this evening.

MAY BELL MARKS AT GRIFFIN'S NEXT WEEK

Griffin's Opera House will be given over to an ideal round of all that is attractive and delightful in the realm of the stage next week. Comedy drama, farce, and even melodrama will be among the offerings. The productions will be made by the Marks Bros. No. 1 Company, with Miss May Bell Marks and a splendid supporting company. The opening play selected for Monday night, is Bayard Veiller's brilliant novel of the lower five and upper ten, "Within the Law." The week will be devoted to many of the late play successes, and the standard excellence and reputation of the organization is a guarantee that Belleville theatre-goers will not see a better company this season. The nightly and matinee change of plays will be given the very careful attention that has always been done hithertofore. The usual matinees catering to ladies and children will be given Wednesday and Saturday. The company comes highly praised by the press this season and says that Miss May Bell Marks and Marks Bros. Company have outdone themselves in the way of magnificent scenic and electrical effects. The following plays will be presented during the week. Monday night, "Within the Law"; Tuesday night, "Thorns and Orange Blossoms,; Wednesday matinee, "Lena Rivers"; Wednesday night, Sex against Sex"; Thursday night, "Paid in Full" Friday night, "Tess of the Storm Country"; Saturday matinee, "The Factory Girl"; Saturday night, "Peg O My Heart." 6 acts of vaudeville are also introduced this season this making a continuous performance and doing away with the tedious waits between acts.

BLANCHE SWEET AT PALACE MONDAY

During the engagement of the Marks Bros. Stock Company at the Griffin's Opera House next week the feature program offered there will be presented at the Palace Theatre, matinee and night, on Monday and Tuesday, matinee and night, Blanche Sweet appears in the Lasky five part production of Margaret Turnbull's brilliant story, "The Thousand Dollar Husband." In all her previous Lasky productions, Blanche Sweet, has had a husband thrust upon her. She has been pursued by hundreds of admirers and had many at her feet, but in her forthcoming production, "The Thousand Dollar Husband" she buys a husband and strange as it may seem, the purchaser does not welcome the sale. In this production Miss Sweet is first seen as a Swedish maid of all work in a college boarding house. She is madly in love with one of the students and when she suddenly becomes wealthy and the young man faces ruin, she offers to pay his debts if he will marry her. How the wealthy bride of the loveless marriage is set upon by a band of crooks, and how she is eventually saved and wins the love of her husband, goes to make one of the most unusual photodramas as ever presented. On the same program with the above offering the 4th Episode of the Selig Athletic series will be exhibited, along with the amusing Bray Komedy Kartoons.

AN APPEAL

To The Men of Belleville and Vicinity

Belleville, Oct. 13, 1916.

We scarcely need say that this letter is not intended to embarass you in any way. We do not claim any power to decide whether or not you should go to the front. Too many of our splendid Canadian boys have been subjected to unjust criticism by those busybodies who are not in a position to judge. Not a day passes but some man hears the doctor call out "unfit" and all we can do is to sympathize with him and congratulate him. If you are one of these we have no quarrel with you, and you owe no apology to anyone.

During the past two months a large number of young men from Belleville or vicinity, have joined our unit, and it is a matter of regret to us that you still do not see your way clear to take the step. We are, inclined to think that perhaps we have not been able to bring the message to you by a personal visit. Much as we would like to have a chat with you, you must know that it is impossible to see everyone. We will be at the Artillery Office on Church Street, all this week and if you will call and see us we will be glad to talk things over with you.

We are fighting for our life, for our homes and our loved ones, and "greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends." We can assure you that it is anything but pleasant for us to have to plead with a man to fight to uphold the liberties which our forefathers bought so dearly, but the British Empire to-day has no apology to offer for asking able-bodied men to fight for the principles which are at stake, it is not a favor which Canada asks of you; it is a privilege which we of this generation may never have again.

Canada today is calling for 150,000 men, and what reason or excuse will posterity take from us if we cannot send them? Can we tell them that our mothers would not let us go, or that our employers could not spare us? One thing is certain, we will have to tell them the truth.

We still need a few more to complete our unit and we would earnestly impress upon you the need of men and sincerely ask you to give the matter your most earnest consideration.

Trusting you will soon be with us, and assuring you of good companionship and a square deal to all in the Canadian Field Artillery, we are,

Yours very truly,
Recruiting Officers 74th Battery.

The School Teacher and Her Influence

Foundation For Many Needed Improvements May be Laid in Schools

To the rising generation must we look for many changes and improvements in our municipal conditions.

The children of the present, under the influence of broad-minded teachers, will absorb lessons which will later be an enormous influence for good. A recognition of this fact, and of the great dependance placed upon them should be in the mind of everyone entrusted with the upbuilding of our youth. The extent to which this power to influence children for good is recognized may be gleaned from the number of appeals made to the school teachers for assistance. Every interest working for the betterment of Canada and Canadians lays stress upon the necessity of securing the recognition and support of the children.

To this already long list has been added a call for the influence of school teachers in the keeping of streets free from litter. To a large extent the children are responsible for this. Waste paper, chewing gum and candy wrappers are thrown on streets and sidewalks regardless of untidiness they cause. This litter is carried by the wind and blowing about the streets frighten horses, causing many runaways and sometimes serious accidents. Waste paper also collects in sheltered places, falls through grates into basement window openings, or accumulates against wooden buildings or fences; a lighted match or cigar or cigarette stub carelessly thrown aside may fall upon this accumulation of litter and cause a fire. All fires are the same size at the start, and it is the apparently small and harmless fire which sometimes causes the greatest loss, both of property and lives.

The school teachers have it in their power to incalcate in their pupils a spirit of pride in the appearances of the streets, and great benefits will occur from this effort on their part.

REPORT OF THE TEACHERS' CONVENTION

Held at Queen Mary School Thursday and Friday, Many Present and Interesting Sessions What They Did

The Annual Convention of the South Hastings, Belleville and Trenton Teachers' Institute was opened in the Assembly Room of Queen Mary Public School, by Rev. Dr. Scott, Thursday, Oct. 12. After the opening exercises Mayor Ketcheson made an address of welcome to the visiting teachers, which was followed by a short address from Mr. Mallory, Chairman of the Board of Education. Miss Nurse gave an excellent report of the first part of the O.E.A.

The Superannuation Committee reported that the modified constitution now stated that

1—The teachers pay 2½%. of their salaries and the Government also contributed 2½%.

2—Contributors may retire after thirty years of service if they wish.

Mr. Jordan of Toronto, in his address on Entrance History, thought that an examination in History should follow the work of Form IV. to teach the child to better organize his knowledge, and to better prepare him for the work of the High School.

Principal Scott of Toronto, in an address on Esprit de Corps among teachers, urged them to be more loyal to their profession, and to each other, that teaching might not be looked upon as an inferior profession.

President Falconer of Toronto University, stated that the rising generation would have finer ideals, be less selfish, and have greater respect for law and discipline as a result of the present war.

Dr. Brown urged that more attention be given to school play. On the play grounds the children should be divided into groups, graded according to ability, and a natural discipline should be maintained.

Mrs. Kerr of Toronto, urged having special means of training the unusual child.

Miss Embury followed with a report of the second part of the O.E.A.

In the Rural Teachers' Conference Dr. Dandeno thought that one object of the School Garden should be the beautifying of the school and community, and making the school the social centre of the community.

Dr. Croissant of the State University of Kansas, stated that English was becoming a universal language, and for that reason it was our duty to make the spread of the language easy by making the spelling easy.

The afternoon session was opened by an address from Mr. Watson, representing the Muskoka Free Hospital. He spoke of the work of that, and other such institutions towards the eradication of consumption. Results in Canada, he said, were most encouraging. Canada was putting forth the greatest effort, and was amply repaid by finding that her death rate from this disease was reduced more than that of any other country. Teachers were urged to help maintain such a charitable institution, by encouraging the children to sell the Christmas seals which would be supplied with the approval of the Department of Education.

Mr. A. H. Whiting of Deseronto, gave some excellent plans for map drawing, by making simple geometrical figures suitable to each continent, around which the maps could be drawn.

Dr. H. T. J. Coleman, Dean of the Faculty of Education, Queen's University, gave an address on the Modern Aspects of Teaching Geography. The modern definition of Geography is the study of the earth as the home of men. The modern teaching of Geography is more humane, more scientific, more concrete than the old methods.

At 8 P.M. the teachers met again, for a social evening, "to get acquainted", at which the following programme was given:

Piano Solo—Miss E. Potter.
Reading—Miss Lena Roblin.
Vocal Solo—Miss Marion Foster.
Reading—Miss Frances White.
Piano Solo—Miss Swetman.
Address—The Teacher as a Student—Dr. Coleman.
Vocal Solo—Miss K. Swetman.
Reading—Miss Bateman.

Dr. Coleman in his address said that, to a certain extent, every teacher is a student as having completed a prescribed course, and is preparing his work from day to day. Many, however, are satisfied with their present condition, and feel that when they have finished their training course that they have accomplished all that is necessary. The present teachers must be students or they will be hopelessly behind the times.

FRIDAY MORNING

Rev. C. G. Smith, B.A., opened the morning session, after which the following officers were elected for 1917:

President—Mr. Whiting.
Vice President—Mr. Morrow.
Sec. Treas.—Mr. Thrasher.
Delegates to O.E.A.—Miss Buchanan, Miss Ross.
Alternatives—Miss Bensley, Miss Stuart.

Dean Coleman gave his address "The Literary Background of the Public School Readers." Readers are modern books. At first pupils brought such books as they had at home for reading, mainly using the Bible. The first series of readers were mere scraps of Natural History. The next series had certain literary gems, but the literary element was not uppermost. At present the literary element is dominant. Teachers now use the Reader for their literary value. The purpose of literature in schools is to develop a fondness for, and an appreciation of good literature. The series of Readers by themselves is quite inadequate, but we can overcome this difficulty by making the se-

EIGHTIETH BATTALION BAND BEFORE KING AND QUEEN

The 80th battalion band which was started in Barriefield camp last summer, is winning its way to the front in the old land. The band is being used for recruiting and charitable purposes and as the representative band of the Canadian Expeditionary Forces, and arrangements are being made to send the band to France and Belguim to give series of concerts to men along the entire British line of conflict. Three weeks ago the band under the leadership of Lieut. Stares Mus. Bach. played at Aldershot, before the King and Queen and Princess Mary

There was a big program of sports carried out for charitable purposes and the Belleville band placed in the setting of Royalty, won unstinted praise from their Majesties, as well as from press and public in general. There are several Belleville and Kingston boys in this fine band, and their friends and families will be pleased to hear of the success of the band which had its origin in Barriefield Camp.

WIVES GOING TO ENGLAND

The wives of many of the officers of the battalions in camp, are going to England shortly. Mrs. Adams, Mrs. McFee, Mrs. Dodds, Mrs. Doyle and Mrs. Geen, of the 155th battalion, have decided to spend the winter in England. These ladies have spent the summer in Barriefield and Kingston, and have made a host of new friends in camp and city.

Men who were given their last leave of absence during the later part of last week, and who have overstayed their passes, are returning in large numbers to their units in camp These men thought they would take chances on the loss of a day's pay, and remain at home as long as possible. They are not being blamed. It is only natural that any man who loves his home should be willing to lose a day's pay for an extra day with his family.

INFANTRY SCHOOL

Moves to the city on Saturday after Season at the Camp.

Lieut.-Col. Barrager commandant of the School of Infantry, has decided to have the school moved to winter quarters in the city on Saturday next and thus be at the camp as long as the departmental corps. The rooms over Gibbon's drug store and over Tove's bakery on Ontario Street are all ready for the reception of the school staff.

TRANSPORT MEN WILL BE NEEDED

him that 500 men will be needed at the earliest possible moment for mechanincal and horse transport duties overseas, and the Major is going to commence recruiting in real ernest at once.

Co. Sergt.-Major Lavin has been appointed Battalion Sergt.-Major of the 155th Battalion and Sergt. A. Morrison has been appointed to be Company Sergt. Major. B.S.M. Lavin was overseas with the first contingent and is therefore making a second trip to France.

Lieut.-Col. Barrager, has returned from a visit to his home, where he transferred the management of his farm to another, and decided to continue the military game until the war is over.

On the invitation of Brig.-General Hemming and staff, the members of the Imperial Daughters of the Empire visited the camp on Wednesday afternoon and took tea at the pavillion.

The officers of the 155th Battalion held a farewell dinner last evening for Brig-General T. D. R. Hemming and a few friends of the battalion.

SCHEDULE FOR OVERSEAS

Lt.-Col. Adams, Milton Kerr; Lt.-Col. Putman, Horace Edwin; Major Wallbridge, Charles Frederick; Major Cook, William John; Major McFee, Allan Cameron; Major Noble, Robert Egerton; Captain Gilmore, Sidney James; Captain Doyle, James Vincent; Captain Holton, George Harold; Captain Publow, Charles Albert; Captain Dobbs, Thomas; Captain Geen, Percival Wilson; Captain Wills, Phillip Henry; Captain Allen, William Preston; Captain Vermilyea, Stanley Edgar; Lieut. Ainsowrth, Densmore S.; Lieut. Hamly, Cyril Thornbill; Lieut. Kelly, Ernest Tilton Sumpter; Lieut. Turnbull, Wilbur Burn; Lieut. Davy, John Harper; Lieut. Webb, Edgar Stanley; Lieut. Raymond, Stanley Jay; Lieut. McGie, Arthur Grendley; Lieut. Harder, Richard Seay; Lieut. Cumming, Joseph Ridgeway Allan; Lieut. Scott, Wilfred Ernest; Lieut. Wilson, William John; Lieut. Pattison, Hugh McMillan; Lieut. Porter, Roger Morrow; Lieut. Cameron, Daniel Alexander; Lieut. Lynn, Garnet Wolseley; Lieut. Cooper, Charles William.

NOTES

The three bears which are now the property of the 155th Battalion, will be given to Major Allen for the use of the new base battalion.

Miss Allen, Miss McGee, Miss Walbridge, Mrs. Vermilyea, Mrs. McFee, Mrs. Cook and Miss Warne were guests at lunch with the 155th Battalion Thursday.

Cut This Out

If you know someone who is troubled with head noises, or Catarrhal Deafness, cut out this formula, and hand it to them, and you will have been the means of saving some poor sufferer perhaps from total deafness. Recent experiments have proved conclusively that Catarrhal Deafness, head noises, etc., were the direct cause of constitutional disease, and that salves, sprays, inhalers, etc., merely temporize with the complaint and seldom, if ever, effect a permanent cure. This being so, much time and money has been spent of late by a noted specialist in perfecting a pure, gentle, yet effective tonic that would quickly dispel all traces of the catarrhal poison from the system. The effective prescription which was eventually formulated, and which has aroused the belief that deafness will soon be extinct, is given below in understandable form, so that any one can treat themselves in their own home at little expense.

Secure from your druggist 1 oz. Parmint (Double Strength), about 75c. worth. Take this home and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and 4 oz. of granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day.

The first dose should begin to relieve the distressing head noises, headache, dullness, cloudy thinking, etc., while the hearing rapidly returns as the system is invigorated by the tonic action of the treatment. Loss of smell and mucus dropping in the back of the throat, are other symptoms that show the presence of cartarrhal poison, and which are often entirely overcome by this efficacious treatment. Nearly ninety per cent. of all ear troubles are directly caused by catarrh; therefore, there must be many people whose hearing can be restored by this simple home treatment.

Every person who is troubled with head noises, catarrhal deafness, or catarrh in any form, should give this prescription a trial.

Important Note: In ordering Parmint always specify that you want double strength. Your druggist has it or he can easily get it for you. If not send 75c. to the International Laboratories, 74 St. Antoine St., Montreal,

Methodists Raise $661,000 For Missions

Board Representing 1,250,000 People Meets to Consider Further Advance

The Methodist Mission Board opened its session in Toronto, at the Wesley Buildings, this week. Fifty members assembled, representing the million and a quarter Methodists of Canada, Newfoundland and Bermuda, in so far as their missionary work is concerned. The financial statement for the past year, presented by the Treasurer, Mr. H. H. Fudger, showed that the Methodists of Canada have this year raised the largest sum in their history for missionary purposes. Despite the call of many other funds, the total income last year shows an increase of $15,000 making a total of income over expenditure. The sum of $200,000 of income was spent on foreign work abroad, $100,000 was spent on foreign work at home, and the balance in home mission fields in Canada. The assessments of the Missionary Society total $1, 303,00.

There is a division of opinion as to whether the present cautious and conservative policy should be maintained. Many members of the board believe that the time has come for an advance movement, and point to the large support which the Methodist people in Canada are prepared to give missionary enterprises.

Among those present were: Judge Chesly of New Brunswick, Col. F. S. Moore, of Prince Edward Island, Mr. Arthur Mews, of Newfoundland, Mr. George Bell, M.P.P. of Victoria, B.C. the Hon. Justice J.J McLaren, L.L.D, of Toronto.

The Only Way To Cure Rheumatism

Must be Treated Through the Blood and the Poisonous Acid Driven Out

The twinges and tortures of rheumatism are not due to cold, damp weather as so many people suppose Rheumatism comes from poisonous acid in the blood. This is a medical truth that every rheumatic sufferer should realize. There is only one way to cure rheumatism—it must be treated through the blood. All the linaments and rubbing and so-called electrical treatment in the world will not cure rheumatism, and the sufferer who tries them is not only wasting money, but is allowing the trouble to become more firmly rooted in the system and harder to cure when the proper remedy is tried. Dr. Williams Pink Pills have had remarkable success in curing rheumatism because they go right to the root of the trouble in the blood, driving out the poisonous acid, releasing the stiffened joints, clearing away the torturing pains, and giving the victim renewed health and ease. Mr. Vincent Brow, Harve Boucher, N. S., says: "For two years I was almost a constant sufferer from rheumatism the trouble being so bad at times that I could scarcely get about. The trouble seemed to bring with it anaemia, and altogether. I was in a very bad condition. I used doctor's medicine for almost a year without relief. Then on the advice of a friend I decided to try Dr. Williams Pink Pills. I think I took altogether about a dozen boxes, with the result that I am again enjoying perfect health."

You can get these pills through any medicine dealer or by mail, post paid, at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

THIS IS THE 808TH DAY THE BRITISH EMPIRE HAS BEEN AT WAR WITH GERMANY.

IS THE CARRYING A FLASK ILLEGAL?

This interesting point is to be tested before a Toronto Magistrate. Forty-one persons appeared in the Police Court, charged with having been intoxicated on Thanksgiving Day. Several of them had liquor in their possession when arrested, and the court is to be asked to say whether or not the fact that they had liquor on their persons in a flask constituted an infraction of the Ontario Temperance Act. This is an important point. The law provided for the punishment of a man who has too much liquor inside of him; does it go so far as to prevent him carrying it in his pocket in a flask where it can do no harm so long as it is kept there? Doubtful, Police Magistrate Denison, however, decided that persons going on the street with whiskey in their possession violate the Ontario Temperance Act.

In the case of Joseph Seaton, a Grand Trunk employe, one of the culprits who was arrested with a grip full of whiskey, led to the decision. When asked where he got the whiskey he said at home, that he was taking it to some soldiers.

In the witness box Seaton stated that he had stolen the whiskey from a case in the Bathurst street freight shed where he was employed. The Grand Trunk detective, who was present, said no prosecution for theft was contemplated.

The contrast between the arrests in Toronto for drunkenness on Thanksgiving Day in 1915, and the present year 1916 with the prohibiting law in force is striking. In 1915 the number were, says the record, 140, and only 41 in 1916. A strong and convincing argument in favor of the law.

THE HON. MacKENZIE KING

The Hon. Mackenzie King who was Minister of Labor in the Laurier Government, has since the defeat of that Government been in the service of Rockefeller in connection with the Labor question, which service is reported to net him some $50,000 annually, announces himself a candidate for North York, hoping to secure again a seat in the Dominion Parliament, and, no doubt a port folio in the new Liberal Government, should Laurier be successful in the next tural battle.

The Toronto News says, "deduct-"ing from what he stated in an in-"terview with The Daily News, the "$50,000 job will be given the go-"by for an attempt to secure a seat "in the Canadian Parliament."

If this view of Mr. King's intentions are correct it is evident his ambition is running away with his good sense. Unless fortunately he has become sufficiently wealthy in the employment of the United States billionaire to devote his time and talent to Liberalism, whatever that may mean in Canada.

ARE THEY NOT A PAIR? WHERE IS THE DIFFERANCE?

Mr. Bourassa fears that any closer union with the rest of the Empire would endanger Canada's autonomy. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, holding the same opinion, resisted in Imperial Conferences any proposal for mutual defence.

Mr. Bourassa says that the wars of England are not our affair. Sir Wilfrid Laurier says that we must not participate in the wars of England until the sanction of Parliament is given.

Sir Wilfrid warns us against the maelstrom of militarism into which he professes to believe England is waiting to drag us. So does Mr. Bourassa.

Mr. Bourassa opposed a Canadian navy. Sir Wilfrid Laurier made plans for such a force and then failed to let the contracts, because he was frightened by the Nationalist victory in Drummond and Arthabaska.

Mr. Bourassa declares that any tightening of Imperial bonds after the war must be resisted. Sir Wilfrid holds the same opinion, and advocates them.

Mr. Bourassa opposed the sendinng of troops to South Africa. Sir Wilfrid Laurier hesitated until forced by public opinion to consent. He then surrendered, but refused to maintain the troops we did send and threw that expense on the Mother Country.

Mr. Bourassa openly expresses his hostility to England. Sir Wilfrid Laurier expresses his love for England—but follows almost exactly the hostile policy of Mr. Bourassa.

Are these two not a pair moulded on the same block? The only difference between them being that Bourassa is adhering to and advocating the principles taught him by his former leader, Si Wilfrid, while Sir Wilfrid has been forced by public opinion, not to change his view upon Canada's duty to the Empire, but to drift with the tide for political preferment, and power;

Which of the two men is the most honest?

Are they not a precious pair?

Montreal Star: The story of the courage and elan of the French-Canadian volunteers at Courcelette makes inspiring reading. Our fellow-Canadians of the French speech have all the initiative of soldiers of the New World and all the spirit and dash of soldiers of Old France. This story will re-echo through Quebec like a trumpet call, and it is impossible that these brave lads shall be left without the support which their bravery deserves. Montreal has been taking a leading place in the recruiting column of late. The patient and faithful work of the men who have been sowing the seed here is being abundantly repaid.

The reaction may have been a trifle more rapid in the West; but it is appearing now in Quebec, at the very moment when more men are sorely needed. Our public men of both parties have at least taken Bourassaism by the throat, and French-Canadian audiences heartily hiss the misguided mediaevalist who has sought to mislead them.

Montreal Gazette: Montrealers who bother themselves to think of such things have been feeling that it is not well that the municipal debt of their city should be past the hundred million dollar mark. They can have such comfort as comes to people in trouble from seeing a neighbor in like fix by noting that a recent statement of the financial position of Toronto puts that city's permanent debt at the close of 1915 at $86,146,000, with interest and other charges of $5,795,000 a year. Works under way will cost $22,762,000, and when this amount is funded the total will be $108,908,000. Then $21,059,000 is required for contemplated prejects, and if they are not postponed the $130,000,000 debt mark will be reached. Toronto has neither the population nor the commercial wealth of Montreal. Its grievance against its rulers by this showing is greater than that of Montreal against its administrators.

WELL PUT

Hamilton Herald: If Sir Wilfrid Laurier has reason to believe that the Borden government intends appealing to the country shortly, he cannot fairly be blamd for making campaign speeches attacking the government and trying to undermine public confidence in it. If there is no prospect of a general election in the near future, we think that the opposition leader might be doing more valuable public service at this time than engaging in partizan warfare. The great task before the people of Canada just now is the utilization of the national resources for the effective participation of Canada in the war. Anything which unnecessarily interferes with the performance of that task is unpatriotic. We think that diverting to partizan strife the energies which might be directed into the channels of national service is not what should be expected in a a highminded Canadian statesman.

Doctor Tells How To Strengthen Eyesight 50 per cent In One Week's Time In Many Instances

A Free Prescription You Can Have Filled and Use at Home.

Philadelphia, Pa., Do you wear glasses? Are you a victim of eye strain or other eye weaknesses? If so, you will be glad to know that according to Dr. Lewis there is real hope for you. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored through the principle of this wonderful free prescription. One man says, after trying it: "I was almost blind; could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without any glasses and my eyes do not water any more. At night they would pain dreadfully; now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for fifteen days everything seems clear. I can even read fine print without glasses." It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by following the simple rules. Here is the prescription: Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Drop one Bon-Opto tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and allow to dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes two to four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start and inflammation will quickly disappear. If your eyes are bothering you, even a little, take steps to save them now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have been saved if they had cared for their eyes in time.

Note: Another prominent Physician to whom the above article was submitted, said: "Bon-Opto is a very remarkable remedy. Its constituent ingredients are well known to eminent eye specialists and widely prescribed by them. The manufacturers guarantee it to strengthen eyesight 50 per cent. in one week's time in many instances or refund the money. It use in almost every family." It is sold in Belleville by J. S. McKeown, W. H. Lattimer, and druggists generally.

ESCAPED FROM LOCKUP

A young man named Peters, from Highland Grove, was taken in custody charged with being a deserter from the 109th Battalion. He was placed in the lock-up, and when constable Bailey made his morning call on Saturday he found the cell empty. Peters made his escape during the night. He had a number of friends in town that day attending the fair, and some of them probably gave him a little assistance from the outside. Bancroft Times.

U. S. Was Never Prepared, Nor Britain Beaten

American Army Officer Points Out How Nation Suffered in All Military Contests

(By Capt. Henry J. Reilly.)

J. C. H. writes: "Was the United States prepared for the war of the Revolution? Was the United States prepared for the war of 1812-15? In both cases they conquered England, and history shows England to have been the best prepared nation in the world at these times. Was the United States prepared for war with Mexico in 1846-47? Was the United States prepared for Civil war, 1861-65? She won both of these wars also."

Reply: The United States has never conquered Great Britain. To conquer means to thoroughly overrun by force of arms. We obtained our independence from Great Britain but only with the aid of France.

Had England been able to give us undivided attention instead of having to fight France, Spain and Holland at the same time, it probably would have beaten us.

France at that time was Great Britain's strongest rival and one who still gave Great Britain considerable trouble, both on land and at sea, in a great many parts of the world.

U. S. Beaten on Land

In 1812-15 we were thoroughly beaten on land almost without exception and our capitol was burned. This at a time when Great Britain was at war with Napoleon and was straining every resource to aid the other European nations in bringing about his downfall. Its war with us was a side issue.

The terms of peace were unsatisfactory to a large part of the American people, as they did not settle many of the questions for which we had gone to war.

When we fought Mexico it was a country of infinitely smaller resources in every way than the United States. It had been torn by revolution and had no real army nor any real leaders.

The only thing that saved either side from being promptly and disastrously defeated by the other in the first months of the Civil War, was the fact that neither side was prepared.

Had either side possessed 50,000 trained troops at Bull Run, the war would nearly have ended with that battle.

Men Always Lacking

All our leaders in all our wars have complained of lack of sufficient men; and general worthlessness of the great majority of their troops due to their being green and untrained, and mostly led by men who were not trained officers but who had been taken directly from civil life.

We have always had to muster in a great many more men than our opponents. In spite of this fact, due to our inefficient and wasteful methods, we have never been able to put on a battlefield anything more than a comparatively small proportion of the men enlisted. All of our wars have been unnecessarily prolonged and incommensurate with the results produced.

Real Contest Never Waged

The two occasions on which we have fought Great Britain, it not only was busy fighting France, but also did not make use of the principle of universal military service. In other words, it fought, not as a nation in arms, but with small professional armies. This means that its opponents had only to face relatively small numbers.

Every nation today, with the exception of the United States, has adopted the principle of universal military service. This means that almost immediately after the war is declared anyone of these nations puts into the field several millions of trained soldiers. This is what we have got to face to-day if we have war with any first class power. Not only have we never in our history faced anything at all approaching this, but also we have never faced and fought a first class power alone.

The Pinch-Back will be popular this fall. It is both dressy and serviceable.

HOW FAT FOLKS MAY BECOME THIN

By Elizabeth Thomas.

Perhaps you are suddenly becoming stout; or it may be that you have been putting on weight for years. In either case the cause is the same—lack of oxygen-carrying power of the blood. This trouble occurs in adults of both sexes and all ages, but it may be overcome very easily and without any of the privations that most people imagine necessary to reduce their weight.

Simply go to your druggist and get some oil of orilene capsules. Take one after each meal and one before going to bed. Weigh yourself so as to know just how fast you are losing weight. Wonderful results have been accomplished by this inexpensive recipe, but be sure to get the genuine oil of orilene in capsule form. It is sold only in original sealed packages. Any large druggist can supply you, or a large size box will be sent on receipt of $1. Postal note or money order, address D. J. Little Drug Co., Box 1240, Montreal, Can.

WEDDING BELLS.

MORREL—BONACCOSA

At Simcoe on Tuesday of this week a wedding occurred the groom being a well known foreigner of Belleville. It was the wedding of Miss Mary the pretty daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Bonaccosa, to Mr. Samuel Morrel, of Belleville. The ceremony was performed at St. Mary's Church. The whole party going over in autos shortly before eight o'clock. Rev. Father Nagle chanted the high nuptial mass and Mrs. W. E. Kelly, presided at the piano and sang beautifully the offertory solo. On leaving the edifice confetti was spread in profusion everywhere. The whole party sat down to a wedding breakfast at the Bonaccosa home such as Italians spread on these occasions.

The bride wore a gown of georgetta crepo silk with the time-honored veil and orange blossoms and carried a bouquet of roses and was accompanied by Mrs . Morrell, of Shelbourne, Ont., sister-in-law of the groom. Mr. Frank Dominica, cousin of the bride was in attendance of the groom.

Guests were present from Shelbourne, Port Hope, Bowmanville, Uxbridge and Alliston.

The couple are visiting points of interest in various parts of the Province.

HEALTHIEST ONE IN THE FAMILY

No Sign Of Dropsy And Kidney Trouble Since Taking "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

HATTIE WARREN

Port Robinson, Ont., July 8th, 1915.

"We have used "Fruit-a-tives" in our house for over three years and have always found them a good medicine. Our little girl, Hattie, was troubled with Kidney Disease. The Doctor said she was threatened with Dropsy. Her limbs and body were all swollen and we began to think she could not live. Finally, we decided to try "Fruit-a-tives". She began to show improvement after we had given her a few tablets. In a short time, the swelling had all gone down and her flesh began to look more natural. Now she is the healthiest one in the family and has no signs of the old ailment. We can not say too much for "Fruit-a-tives" and would never be without them".

WILLIAM WARREN.

50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. At all dealers or sent postpaid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

INJURED STUDENT BETTER

Word from Kingston is to the effect that William Rankin, the student from Belleville, who was injured in the Queen's rush, has recovered consciousness at the General Hospital, and his condition today is much better. The attending physician says that he is doing nicely and he has hopes for his recovery. His mother, sister and brother are still with him.

BELLEVILLE BOY INJURED

Among the Canadians gazetted for military medals, appears the name of F. L. Yeomans, who is connected with the artillery. This refers to Dr. Yeomans' son of Belleville, who is familiarly known as Ted. That he is deserving of the honor conferred upon him, there is not the slightest doubt, as he has certanly done his duty.

DIED IN LONDON HOSPITAL

Mr. S. Ackerman of Moira Street, this city, has received a letter from his brother, Mr. B. F. Ackerman of Peterborough, that his son, Lieutenant Arthur R. Ackerman, died in a London Hospital from wounds received at the front on September 23. He passed away October 11. His brother-in-law, Major Midd, and Dr McPherson, old time friends, were with him. It is expected the body will be brought home.

PRESENTATION TO NEWLY WEDS

A delegation of the boys representing the teachers and students of the Belleville High School, visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Clarke last evening, and presented them with a beautiful cut glass fruit service. This remembrance shows the high esteem in which Mr. Clarke, as teacher in the Belleville High School, is held by the staff and students. Mr. Clarke thanked the fellows for their kind remembrances of Mrs. Clarke and himself. From present indications other delegations will have to go out on similar errands in behalf of some other dispensers of knowledge at the B.H.S.

Major Harry A. Frost, Chaplain with the First Contingent, will be the guest of Mrs. Clarry, 44 Hillside St. during his stay in the city. He will unveil the roll of honor in Holloway St. Methodist Church, Sunday morning.

GOOD PRICES FOR MARKET PRODUCE

The Belleville market today was well attended by sellers and buyers. Good prices were realized for all farm produce offered for sale and in some cases the prices were high. Fresh dairy butter sold from 43c to 45c per pound. In a few cases basket lots were obtained at a slightly lower figure. Fresh eggs sold at 38c and 40c per dozen, the former being the ruling price.

Dressed chickens were quite plentiful and a few pairs of ducks and some geese were offered for sale. Chickens sold from $1.00 to $1.25 per pair, ducks $1.50 to $1.80 per pair and geese from $1.75 to $2.00 each.

Potatoes were rather scarce and were soon disposed of at 40cts. per peck.

Apples ranged in price from 25c to 40c per peck according to quality and variety. Garden produce such as carrots, beets, turnips, celery, cauliflower and lettuce found ready purchasers at renumerative prices.

FATHER OF SLAIN LOCAL SOLDIER WOUNDED

Mrs. James V. Ross, residing at No. 1 Emily street, in Belleville, has received the following message:

Ottawa, Oct. 13, 1916.

Mrs. Margaret Ross, Belleville.

Sincerely regret to inform you 455805, Pte. James Vincent Ross, infantry, officially reported admitted to No. 12 General Hospital, Rouen, October 4th, with gunshot wound in back. Will send further particulars when received.

Officer in charge of Record Office.

Private Ross referred to is well-known in this city, being the father of Gunner Leo Ross, who was killed in action in April, 1915. The father enlisted with the 59th Battalion of Brockville, and went overseas in March of this year. His many friends in Belleville will hope that the wounds is not of a serious nature.

Destroyer Stops British Steamer

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—The British steamship City of Madras was overhauled off Ambrose Channel Lightship last night by the United States torpedo boat destroyer Sterrett and brought back to Clifton, Staten Island, after it had ignored the war vessel's signal to stop when it left Quarantine. The City of Madras a vessel of 3,018 tons, cleared from this port Monday for Singapore, Manila and Hong Kong, but anchored above Quarantine, apparently fearful of a submarine attack if she ventured out to sea.

Trade Diamonds Lost.

A package of diamonds consigned to the Canadian Government has been lost in the mails. The stones were sent to the Trade and Commerce Department by an English firm on the order of a New York house to be delivered to a Canadian customer. They have not arrived. However they are not the sort of diamonds which generally prove an incentive to crime, being rather the industrial species of the same stone and far from the sparkling variety with which the term is generally associated. Under a British regulation such stones must be shipped to Canada in care of the Trade and Commerce Department, and in this case a parcel of them has vanished en route. Though not as valuable as they might have been were they of another sort, they are worth some thousands of dollars.

He Caught a Cold.

The Indians at Camp Borden are faithful patrons of the Y. M. C. A. canteen, and one lady who has spent several weeks helping in the canteen takes a particular interest in them, so flew to the assistance of one dusky warrior who, standing by the counter, fell into a paroxysm of coughing.

"How did you take such a cold?" she asked, as she handed him a glass of water and the cough stopped.

"I take a bath; I get a cold," he explained, with a doleful shake of the head and a strong emphasis on the "a."

"But taking a bath would never give you a cold," the lady protested

"Oh, yes, yes," the Indian insisted. "I take a bath; I get a cold. They should not make us wash."

Tireless Talker.

In the days of his youth Senator Blackburn of Kentucky was asked by a friend to second a duel. He consented, and at the next sunrise the parties met. It was Mr. Blackburn's duty to say the last word concerning the terms of the duel. One of the senator's colleagues recently said at a Washington dinner that, although Mr. Blackburn faithfully performed the duty, the duel never took place.

Held Bible and Rudder.

Some years ago Japan was neither so free nor so friendly with other nations as she is today. In those old days when a foreign ship entered the Japanese ports the captain was obliged to place his Bible and rudder in charge of the chief officer of the port and leave them there until he was ready to sail. Of course he wouldn't sail without either, and the Japs could easily keep tabs on the movements of all ships in their harbors.

Useless Speeches.

"Have you anything to say why sentence should not be passed on you?" asked the judge.

"Not a word. I made speeches the last three times I was convicted and they didn't seem to do me any good," replied the prisoner.

Hastening the Evil Day.

Willie—Pa says he wishes that you'd make haste and propose to sister. Young Man (delighted)—Then he is willing to let her marry me? Willie—'Taint that. He says you're not likely to keep comin' here after sis hands you the mitten.

Long and Narrow.

"Our friend with an eye to the main chance has a long head."

"Yes," replied Miss Cayenne, "but isn't having too long a head likely to make a man narrow minded?"

Ferdinand's Viewpoint.

King Ferdinand of Roumania, who has just celebrated his fifty-first birthday, is a near relative of King George and is married to the King's first cousin, Among his other near relatives are the King of the Belgians and the Tsar of Bulgaria, who are both first cousins. Though King Ferdinand is himself a Hohenzollern, he is not a member of the branch of that house of which the Kaiser is the head ;and, further, he has never shown any sign of partiality for things German since his accession in October, 1914.

He has visited Britain frequently, before and since his marriage to the prettiest of the four handsome daughters of the late Duke of Edinburgh. Queen Marie of Roumania is said now to be the handsomest royal personage in Europe. Their marriage was the occasion of a great royal gathering at Bucharest over 20 years ago. King Ferdinand's aunt, the Queen Dowager, is known all over the world as Carmen Sylva.

The 80th Batt. Band Scores Great Success in England

The following clipping from The Bath (England) Herald, forwarded to the Intelligencer, by Lieut. H. A. Stares, so well and favorably known in Belleville, will be of great interest to local readers.

"The 80th Battalion (Canadian Expeditionary Force) Band, from Bramshott Camp, gave two most enjoyable concerts in Bath. The visit had attracted a good deal of interest, and there were large audiences for open air concerts so late in the season, especially in the afternoon at Victoria Park. It was one of the largest military bands that have been heard in Bath for a long while, the musicians who were all in khaki, numbering about forty. They were all skilled instrumentalists, and the size of the band was reflected in a richness and depth of tone that was greatly appreciated. The clarionets were unusually strong numerically, and there was a big representation of brass; but the band was admirably balanced and obtained its effects by the excellent body of tone rather than by the vigor of its playing. Lieut. H. A. Stares, Mus. Bac., had his band under good control, and conducted with much artistic taste. The band had the marked precision and phrasing which is the delight of the true military musical organization, and a clean delicate shading of sound which was very impressive. The fine body of tone was very pleasing, and at times almost an organ effect was secured, particularly in the accompaniment of a cornet solo and one of the encores, a composition with bells which was hymn-like in character. The program was a very enjoyable one, but the inclusion of one or two items more worthy of such a band would have been welcome. One was sorry that the conductor admitted the selection from Verdi's "Aida" in order to meet the request for "Zampa"; in fact, if the audience had understood clearly what was proposed they would probably have shown a preference for the former opera. Still, all the items were much enjoyed. The most appreciated perhaps was "The Maple Leaf" which was specially asked for during the progress of the concert, and given in the words of Lieut. Stares, "Right along now." Band-Sergeant Harold Cumming gave a most artistic rendering of "O Dry those Tears" (Del Riego) as a cornet solo, for which he was deservedly encored. A selection from "The Bohemian Girl" was well played and the patrol "Wee MacGregor" (Amers) and Godfrey's "Gems of Scotland" should be especially mentioned.

THE EVENING CONCERT

The success which the Canadian instrumentalists achieved at the afternoon performance was repeated in the evening in even greater measure. The attendance considering the lateness of the season, was quite worth of the occasion, numbering according to the officials at the gate between seven and eight hundred. This slendid combination of musicians from the other side of the water rendered a regular gala night programme, and much enhanced the reputation by the brilliance and eclat of their playing The applause that greeted each item was prolonged and hearty. Eight numbers figured in the well chosen programme, which included the "William Tell" overture, Schubert's "Unfinished Symphony," a selection from Verdi's "Ernani," and the "To-night's the Night" (Reubens). A cornet slo "A Perfect Day" (Jacobs Bond) was finely given by musician Eldon Brethnor."

BUTTER MILK USES IN COOKING

With the increasing use of buttermilk by doctor's orders, there has come back, in some measure, the practice of using it in cooking. This is fortunate for the taste as well as for the health. No cakes are more delicate than those prepared with buttermilk. Use one and one half more buttermilk than the meal or flour. Mix thoroughly and when smooth add a salt spoon full of soda or more if a large quantity of cakes are being made. Cakes can be made in this way of graham or white flour, buckwheat or rye meal, and all are delicious. There are just two secrets about the use of buttermilk in making cakes. The first is, always use enameled ware for the mixing as the acid of the buttermilk easily affects the metal. The second is, be careful only to use enough soda to offset the acid.

ASHAMED OF THE PIMPLES

How embarrassing it is to have pimples and blackheads break out on the face, and particularly just when one is trying to look the best.

You will find a friend in Dr. Chase's Ointment, for it not only cures pimples and blackheads, but also makes the skin soft, smooth and attractive.

In a score of ways Dr. Chase's Ointment proves useful in every home as a treatment for eczema, salt rheum, barbers itch, ringworm and all forms of itching skin disease.

In TRAINING

Thousands of men suddenly called to undergo the hardships of winter training find the sustaining power of Oxo Cubes invaluable for supporting health and strength.

Oxo Cubes have a body-building power out of all proportion to their bulk. Many a young soldier, wet through, and physically exhausted by hours of marching or other duties, has had cause to bless the invention of Oxo Cubes.

Oxo Cubes are so convenient and handy that they can be carried on the person without adding to the weight of one's equipment. A cup of Oxo or an Oxo Cube sandwich enables one to go for long hours.

A Cube to a Cup

Tins of 4, 10, 50 and 100 Cubes.

A NEW FRUIT PUNCH

A very pretty fruit punch has for its foundation grape juice. Take a large enameled ware bowl, or even enameled milk pail, mix the grape juice with one-third water, then add a little lemon, not more than the juice of one lemon to 2 bottles of grape juice. Put into this any fruit available Put into this any fruits available. Slices of pineapple are good, whole berries look well and oddly enough thin strips of cucumber cut the long way of the vegetables are an improvement. Use sugar to taste. Set the pan away on the ice and just before serving add a couple of bottles of club soda or any plain carbonated water. The use of enameled ware is necessary here to obviate the danger of action of the fruit acid upon the metal such as other kitchen wares are made of.

REPORT OF TEACHERS' CONVENTION

lection to bring the child to the context.

Next came a discussion on Primary Work led by Misses McKey, Phelps, M. K. Steele and Lounsberry.

In the afternoon session Mr. Wilkin and Mr. Mott led in a discussion on Writing. The one dominant thought seemed to be that writing could best be taught by insisting on good writing in all seat work.

Mr. A. D. McIntosh, B.S.A., urged the teaching of Agriculture by home and school gardens in both rural and urban centres.

The following resolutions were then brought in:

I—Resolved that the Convention support the amendments of the Pension Act outlined by the Government.

II.—That a portion of the time be given to Primar Teachers for a separate session in 1917, and that a report of that session be made at the general session.

III.—That the Entrance Committee be requested to consider the holding of Part I Examination the latter part of May.

IV.—That a leteтr of condolence be sent to Mr. J. M. Bell, Frankford, on the death of his daughter.

V.—That the caretaker be given $3.00 for the extra work in connection with the Convention.

The session closed by singing "God Save The King."

If I Had Eczema

I'd simply wash it away with that soothing liquid, D. D. D. Prescription. The first drops instantly stop that awful itch.

We cannot absolutely guarantee a cure every time but we do say this. If the first bottle does not relieve you, it will not cost you a cent. Try D.D.D. Soap too. It will keep your skin healthy—J. S. McKeown, druggist, Belleville.

Accident at Graphite Mines

What might have been a very serious accident occurred at the graphite mines near Maynooth Station on Friday last. A large piece of ore, which had ben loosened by a shot was placed in a bucket and sent to the surface. This piece of ore had previously been drilled and loaded, and it was supposed that the charge had exploded, but when Frank Nieman an employee, inserted a wedge in the hole and attempted to split the block, an explosion took place and he was knocked down. A piece of rock struck him on the leg and knocked a splinter of bone off his shin, but otherwise he escaped practically uninjured. Andy Cronk, another employee, who happened along just at the time, was likewise knocked down, and his eyes were injured by the flying particles of sand and rock. It was a very narrow escape and the men have reason to congratulate themselves that there were no fatalities.

We were passing him when be uttered an ejaculation of surprise and stepped forward again, holding out his hand to my companion and exclaiming:

"Where did you come from? I'd hardly have known you."

Oliver seemed unconscious of the proffered hand. He stiffened visibly and said:

"I think there must be some mistake."

"So there is," said the other promptly. "I have been misled by a resemblance. I beg your pardon."

He lifted his cap slightly, going on, and we entered the courtyard to find a cheerful party of nine or ten men and women seated about a couple of tables.

I went almost as quickly to my pavilion and without lighting my lamp set about my preparations for dinner. The party outside, breaking up presently, could be heard moving toward the archway with increased noise and laughter. A girl's voice (a very attractive voice) called, "Oh, Cressie, aren't you coming?" and a man's replied from near my veranda, "Only stopping to light a cigar."

A flutter of skirts and a patter of feet betokened that the girl came running back to join the smoker. "Cressie," I heard her say in an eager, lowered tone, "who was that devastating creature in white flannels?"

The man chuckled. "Matinee sort of devastator—what? Monte Cristo hair, noble profile"—

"You'd better tell me," she interrupted earnestly, "if you don't want me to ask the waiter."

"But I don't know him."

"I saw you speak to him."

"I thought it was a man I met three years ago out in San Francisco, but I was mistaken. There was a slight resemblance. This fellow might have been a rather decent younger brother of the man I knew. He was the"—

My strong impression was that if the speaker had not been interrupted at this point he would have said something very unfavorable to the character of the man he had met in San Francisco.

I caught a last word from the girl as the pair moved away.

"I'll come back here with a band tomorrow night and serenade the beautiful one."

"Monsieur is served," said Amedee, looking in at my door five minutes later.

"You have passed a great hour just now, Amedee."

"It was like the old days, truly!"

"They are off for Trouville, I suppose?"

"No, monsieur; they are on their way to visit the chateau and stopped here only because the run from Paris had made the tires too hot."

"To visit Quesnay, you mean?"

"Truly. But monsieur need give himself no uneasiness. I did not mention to any one that monsieur is here. His name was not spoken. Mlle. Ward returned to the chateau today," he added. "She has been in England."

"Quesnay will be gay," I said, coming out to the table.

CHAPTER VI.

I HAD finished dressing next morning and was strapping my things together for the day's campaign when I heard a shuffling step upon the porch and the door opened gently without any previous ceremony of knocking, admitting Amedee with a breakfast tray.

"Monsieur," he said, nodding in a panic toward the courtyard, "Mlle. Ward is out there!"

"What!" But I did not shout the word.

"Probably Mlle. Ward has only come to talk with Mme. Brossard."

"I fear some of those people may have told her you were here," he ventured insinuatingly.

"What people?" I asked, drinking my coffee calmly, yet, it must be confessed, without quite the deliberation I could have wished.

"Those who stopped yesterday evening on the way to the chateau. They might have recognized"—

"Impossible. I knew none of them."

"But Mlle. Ward knows that you are here without doubt."

"Why do you say so?"

"Because she has inquired for you."

"So!" I rose at once and went toward the door. "Why didn't you tell me at once?"

He saw the menace coiling in my eye and hurriedly retreated.

"Monsieur!" he gasped, backing away from me, and as his hand, fumbling behind him, found the latch of the door, he opened it and scrambled out by a sort of spiral movement round the casing. When I followed a moment later, with my traps on my shoulder and the packet of sandwiches in my pocket, he was out of sight.

Miss Elizabeth sat beneath the arbor at the other end of the courtyard, and beside her stood the trim and glossy bay saddle horse that she had ridden from Quesnay, his head outstretched above his mistress to paddle at the vine leaves with a tremulous upper lip.

An expression in the lady's attitude and air which I instinctively construed as histrionic seemed intended to convey that she had been kept waiting, yet had waited without reproach, and, although she must have heard me coming, she did not look toward me until I was quite near and spoke her name. At that she sprang up quickly enough and stretched out her hand to me.

"Run to earth!" she cried, advancing a step to meet me.

"A pretty poor trophy of the chase," said I, "but proud that you are its killer."

To my surprise and mystification her cheeks and brow flushed rosily. She was obviously conscious of it and laughed.

"Don't be embarrassed," she said.

"I!"

"Yes, you, poor man! I suppose I couldn't have more thoroughly compromised you. Mme. Brossard will never believe in your respectability again."

"Oh, yes, she will," said I.

"What! A lodger who has ladies calling upon him at 5 o'clock in the morning! But your bundle's on your shoulder," she rattled on, laughing, "though there's many could be bolder, and perhaps you'd let me walk a bit of the way with you if you're for the road."

"Perhaps I will," said I. She caught up her riding skirt, fastening it by a clasp at her side, and we passed out through the archway and went slowly along the road bordering the forest, her horse following obediently at half rein's length.

"When did you hear that I was at Mme. Brossard's?" I asked.

"Ten minutes after I returned to Quesnay late yesterday afternoon."

"Who told you?"

"Louise."

I repeated the name questioningly. "You mean Mrs. Larrabee Harman?"

"Louise Harman," she corrected. "Didn't you know she was staying at Quesnay?"

"I guessed it, though Amedee got the name confused."

"Yes; she's been kind enough to look after the place for us while we were away. George won't be back for another ten days, and I've been overseeing an exhibition for him in London. Afterward I did a round of visits—tiresome enough, but among people it's well to keep in touch with on George's account."

"I see," I said, with a grimness which probably escaped her. "But how did Mrs. Harman know that I was at Les Trois Pigeons?"

"She met you once in the forest"—

"Twice," I interrupted.

"She mentioned only once. Of course she'd often heard both George and me speak of you."

"But how did she know it was I and where I was staying?"

"Oh, that!" Her smile changed to a laugh. "Your maitre d'hotel told Ferret, a gardener at Quesnay, that you were at the inn."

"He did!"

"Oh, but you mustn't be angry with him. He made it quite all right."

"How did he do that?" I asked, trying to speak calmly, though there was that in my mind which might have blanched the parchment cheek of a grand inquisitor.

"He told Ferret that you were very anxious not to have it known— You think Louise very lovely to look at, don't you?" she asked.

"Exquisite," I answered.

"Every one does."

"I suppose she told you"—and now I felt myself growing red—"that I behaved like a drunken acrobat when she came upon me in the path?"

"No. Did you?" cried Miss Elizabeth, with a ready credulity which I thought by no means pretty. "Louise said that she wished she could have had a better look at what you were painting."

"Heaven bless her!" I exclaimed. "Her reticence was angelic."

"Yes, she has reticence," said my companion, with enough of the same quality to make me look at her quickly. A thin line had been drawn across her forehead.

"You mean she's still reticent with George?" I ventured.

"Yes," she answered sadly. "Poor George always hopes, of course, in the silent way of his kind when they suffer from such unfortunate passions, and he waits."

"I suppose that former husband of hers recovered."

"I believe he's still alive somewhere. Locked up, I hope!" she finished crisply.

"She retained his name," I observed.

"Harman? Yes; she retained it. At all events she's rid of him."

"It's hard," I reflected aloud—"hard to understand her making that mistake, young as she was. Even in the glimpse of her I've had it was easy to see something of what she's like—a fine, rare, high type."

"But you didn't know him, did you?" Miss Elizabeth asked, with some dryness.

"No," I answered. "I saw him twice —once at the time of his accident—that was only a nightmare, his face covered with"— I shivered. "But I had caught a glimpse of him on the boulevard, and of all the dreadful"—

"Oh, but he wasn't always dreadful," she interposed quickly. "He was a fascinating sort of person, quite charming and good looking, when she ran away with him, though he was horribly dissipated even then. He always had been that. Of course she thought she'd be able to straighten him out, poor girl! She tried for three years—three years it hurts one to think of! You see, it must have been something very like a 'grand passion' to hold her through a pain three years long."

"Or tremendous pride," said I. "Women make an odd world of it for the rest of us. There was good old George, as true and straight a man as ever lived"—

"And she took the other! Yes." George's sister laughed sorrowfully.

"But George and she have both survived the mistake," I went on, with confidence. "Her tragedy must have taught her some important differences. Haven't you a notion she'll be tremendously glad to see him when he comes back from America?"

"Ah, I do hope so!" she cried. "You see, I'm fearing that he hopes so, too—to the degree of counting on it."

"You don't count on it yourself?"

She shook her head. "With any other woman I should."

"Why not with Mrs. Harman?"

"Cousin Louise has her ways," said Miss Elizabeth slowly, and, whether she could not further explain her doubts or whether she would not, that was all I got out of her on the subject at the time. I asked one or two more questions, but my companion merely shook her head again, alluding vaguely to her cousin's "ways." Then she brightened suddenly and inquired when I would have my things sent up to the chateau from the inn.

At the risk of a misunderstanding which I felt I could ill afford I resisted her kind hospitality, and the outcome of it was that there should be a kind of armistice, to begin with my dining at the chateau that evening.

"Did anybody ever tell you," was her surprising inquiry, "that you are the queerest man of these times?"

"No," I answered. "Don't you think you're a queerer woman?"

"Footle!" she cried scornfully. "Be off to your woods and your woodscaping!"

My work was accomplished after a fashion more or less desultory that day. I had many absent moments, was restless and walked more than I painted and returned to the inn earlier than usual.

While dressing I sent word to Professor Keredec that I should not be able to join him at dinner that evening.

Miss Elizabeth had the courage to take me under her wings when I arrived in acceptance of her invitation, placing me upon her left at dinner, but sprightlier calls than mine demanded and occupied her attention. At my other side sat a magnificently upholstered lady who offered a fine shoulder and the rear wall of a collar of pearls for my observation throughout the evening as she leaned forward talking eagerly with a male personage across the table. This was a prince ending in "ski." He permitted himself the slight vagary of wearing a gold bracelet, and perhaps this flavor of romance drew the lady.

The banquet was drawing to a close when Miss Elizabeth leaned toward me and spoke.

"Anne Elliott, yonder, is asking you a question," she repeated, nodding at a very pretty girl down and across the table from me. Miss Anne Elliott's attractive voice had previously enabled me to recognize her as the young woman who had threatened to serenade Les Trois Pigeons.

"Who and what is the glorious stranger?" she asked.

"I beg your pardon," I said, addressing her.

"I hear you're at Les Trois Pigeons," said Miss Elliott.

"Yes?"

"Would you mind telling us something of the mysterious Narcissus?"

"If you'll be more definite," I returned in the tone of a question.

"I mean a recklessly charming vision with a white tie and white hair and white flannels," she said.

"Oh," said I, "he's not mysterious."

"But he is," she returned. "I insist on his being mysterious, rarely, grandly, strangely mysterious! You will let me think so?" This young lady had a whimsical manner of emphasizing words unexpectedly, with a breathless intensity that approached violence, a habit dangerously contagious among nervous persons, so that I answered slowly out of a fear that I might echo it.

"He's a young American, very attractive, very simple."

"But he's mad!" she interrupted.

"Oh, no!" I said hastily.

"But he is! A person told me so in a garden this very afternoon," she went on eagerly—"a person with a rake and ever so many moles on his chin. This person told me all about him. His name is Oliver Saffren, and he's in the charge of a very large doctor and quite, quite mad!"

"Jean Ferret, the gardener," I said deliberately and with venom, "is fast acquiring notoriety in these parts as an idiot of purest ray, and he had his information from another whose continuance unhanged is every hour more miraculous."

"How ruthless of you," cried Miss Elliott, with exaggerated reproach, "when I have had such a thrilling happiness all day in believing that riotously beautiful creature mad! If he isn't, why does he have an enormous doctor with him?"

"This is romance!" I retorted. "The doctor is Professor Keredec, illustriously known in this country, but not as a physician, and they are following some form of scientific research together."

The windows had been thrown open, allowing passage to a veranda. Miss Elizabeth led the way outdoors with the prince. I caught a final glimpse of Mrs. Harman, which revealed that she was looking at me with tensity, but with the movement of intervening groups I lost her. Miss Elliott pointedly waited for me until I came round the table, then attached me definitely by taking my arm, accompanying the action with a dazzling smile.

Tables and coffee were waiting on the broad terrace below, with a big moon rising in the sky. I descended the steps in charge of this pretty cavalier, allowed her to seat me at the most remote of the tables and accepted without unwillingness other gallantries of hers in the matter of coffee and cigarettes. "And now," she said—"now that I've done so much for your dearest hopes and comfort, look up at the milky moon and tell me all."

She leaned an elbow on the marble railing that protected the terrace and, shielding her eyes from the moonlight with her hand, affected to gaze at me dramatically. "Who and what is the glorious stranger?" she asked.

Resisting an impulse to chime in with her humor, I gave her so dry and commonplace an account of my young friend at the inn that I presently found myself abandoned to solitude again.

"I don't know where to go," she complained as she rose. "These other people are most painful to a girl of my intelligence, but I cannot linger by your side. Untruth long ago lost its interest for me, and I prefer to believe Mr. Jean Ferret, if that is the gentleman's name. I'd join Miss Ward and Cressie Ingle yonder, but Cressie would be indignant. I shall soothe my hurt with sweetest airs. Adieu."

With that she made me a solemn courtesy and departed, a pretty little figure, not little in attractiveness, the strong moonlight, tinged with blue, shimmering over her blond hair and splashing brightly among the ripples of her silks and laces. A moment later some chords were sounded upon a piano, which ran on into "La Vie de Boheme" and out of that into something else. I was floated off into a reverie that was like a prelude for the person who broke it. She came so quietly that I did not hear her until she was almost beside me and spoke to me. It was the second time that had happened.

CHAPTER VII.

"MRS. HARMAN," I said as she took the chair vacated by the elfin young lady, "you remember my woodland didos, I fear?"

She smiled in a pleasant, comprehending way, but neither directly replied nor made any return speech whatever. Instead she let her forearms rest on the broad railing of the marble balustrade and, leaning forward, gazed out over the shining and mysterious slopes below.

"Mr. Cresson Ingle," I hazarded, "is he an old, new friend of your cousins? I think he was not above the horizon when I went to Capri two years ago."

"He wants Elizabeth," she returned, adding quietly, "as you've seen." And when I had verified this assumption with a monosyllable she continued, "He's an 'available,' but I should hate to have it happen. He's hard."

"He doesn't seem very hard toward her," I murmured, looking down into the garden where Mr. Ingle just then happened to be adjusting a scarf about his hostess' shoulders.

"He's led a detestable life," said Mrs. Harman, "among detestable people."

"He seems to me much of a type with these others," I said.

"Oh, they keep their surfaces about the same!"

"It made me wish I had a little more surface tonight," I laughed. "I'd have fitted better. Miss Ward is different at different times. When we are alone together she always has the air of excusing or at least explaining these people to me, but this evening I've had the disquieting thought that perhaps she also explained me to them."

"Oh, no!" said Mrs. Harman, turning to me quickly. "Didn't you see? She was making up to Mr. Ingle for this morning. It came out that she'd ridden over at daylight to see you. Anne Elliott discovered it in some way and told him."

"I suppose she finished her investigations. You told her all you could?"

"Almost."

"I suppose you wouldn't trust me with the reservation?" she asked, smiling.

"I would trust you with anything," I answered seriously.

"You didn't gratify that child?" she said, half laughing. Then, to my surprise, her tone changed suddenly, and she began again in a hurried low voice. "You didn't tell her"— and stopped there, breathless and troubled, letting me see that I had been right after all. This was what she wanted to talk about.

"I didn't tell her that young Saffren is mad—no—if that is what you mean."

"I'm glad you didn't," she said slowly.

"In the first place, I wouldn't have told here even if it were true," I returned, "and in the second it isn't true, though you have some reason to think it is," I added.

"I?" she said. "Why?"

"His speaking to you as he did, a thing on the face of it inexcusable."

"Why did he call me 'Mme. d'Armand?'" she interposed.

I explained something of the mental processes of Amedee, and she listened till I had finished, then bade me continue.

"That's all," I said blankly, but with a second thought caught her meaning. "Oh, about young Saffren, you mean?"

"Yes."

"I know him pretty well," I said, "without really knowing anything about him; but, what is stranger, I believe he doesn't really know a great deal about himself. My idea is that probably through some great illness he lost not his faculty of memory, but his memories, or at least most of them. That's all, except that there's something about the young man that draws one to him. I couldn't tell you how much I like him nor how sorry I am that he offended you."

"He didn't offend me," she murmured, almost whispered.

"He didn't mean to," I said warmly. "I am glad you understand that."

"I saw him today," she said gently. "This afternoon when I went for my walk he was waiting where the paths intersect"—

Some hasty ejaculation, I do not know what, came from me, but she lifted her hand.

"Wait," she said quietly. "As soon as he saw me he came straight toward me"—

"Oh, but this won't do at all!" I broke out. "It's too bad"—

"Wait." She leaned forward. "He said he must know if he had offended me."

"You told him"—

"I told him 'No!'" And it seemed to me that her voice, which up to this point had been low, but very steady, shook upon the monosyllable. "He walked with me a little way—perhaps it was longer"—

"Trust me that it shan't happen again!" I exclaimed. "I'll see that Keredec knows of this at once. He will"—

"No, no," she interrupted quickly. "That is just what I want you not to do. Will you promise me?"

"I'll promise anything you ask me. But didn't he frighten you?"

"He didn't frighten me—not as you mean. He was very quiet and"— She broke off unexpectedly with a little pitying cry and turned to me, lifting both hands appealingly. "And, oh, doesn't he make one sorry for him!"

That was just it. She had gone straight to the heart of his mystery; his strangeness was the strange pathos that invested him; the "singularity" of "that other monsieur" was solved for me at last.

When she had spoken she rose, advanced a step and stood looking out over the valley again, her skirts pressing the balustrade. One of the moments in my life when I have wished to be a figure painter came then as she raised her arms, the sleeves, of some filmy texture, falling back from them with the gesture, and clasped her hands lightly behind her neck, the graceful angle of her chin uplifted to the full rain of moonshine.

APPLE GROWING IN NOVA SCOTIA

THERE is no part of Canada where apple production is more successfully carried on than in the Annapolis Valley of Nova Scotia. The principal reason for this, apart from the fact that soil and climatic conditions are favourable, is that practically all of the large commercial orchards are situated in a continuous and closely connected chain. "The Valley" is approximately 80 miles in length, with an average width of 9 miles. There are about 40 shipping stations in that area, all being on the main line of the Dominion Atlantic Railway with its terminus at Halifax. Consequently the facilities for shipping and for export are perfect.

There is one other reason for the success with which fruit growing is carried on in Nova Scotia, and that is the systematic manner in which the fruit is marketed. Over one-half of the entire apple crop is packed and marketed co-operatively. Each particular section of the Annapolis Valley has its own cooperative association, and all these subsidiary companies are responsible to one main selling association, the United Fruit Companies. All of the fruit marketed by this organization is uniformly packed in accordance with specific grading rules and marketed under the brand of the central selling body. The details concerning the operating methods of the United Fruit Companies (too lengthy to be outlined here) are well worth careful study. Their headquarters are at Berwick, which is the principal apple shipping station.

By far the greater portion of Nova Scotian apples is exported to Great Britain, the principal market being London. In the year 1911, which was a record season, almost 2,000,000 barrels of apples were marketed. At that time Nova Scotian fruit was introduced in the Prairie Provinces. There is every indication that shipments to those markets will be increased, inasmuch as the Gravenstein apple, for which Nova Scotia is famous, matures at a time when apples are in great demand in the Canadian West. A growing trade is also being developed with South America and South Africa, corresponding geographically to the trade in apples between British Columbia and Australia.

It is rather interesting to note that the apple barrel used in Nova Scotia contains only 96 quarts, as compared with the 112 quart barrel of Ontario. The Canadian Government regulations call for a minimum size of 96 quarts and Nova Scotia has adopted that minimum. The difference in the size of the two barrels must therefore be always taken into consideration when comparing the prices of Ontario and Nova Scotia apples in any particular market.

It is impossible to single out any variety of apple which is most successfully grown in Nova Scotia. Several varieties succeed equally well. Undoubtedly the province is most famous for the Gravenstein, because that variety is grown more extensively in the Annapolis Valley than in any other part of Canada. About 15 per cent of the apples marketed in Nova Scotia are Gravensteins. It is a tender, early fall apple, usually harvested between September 10th and 25th, and should be consumed under ordinary conditions by the end of October. If stored in a suitable cellar it will keep in prime condition until Christmas.

The demand for the Gravenstein apple is increasing. Unfortunately very few new Gravenstein orchards are being planted to replace the old ones which are rapidly dying out. No movement could be undertaken which would be worthy of wider encouragement than the extension and development of Gravenstein orchards.

The apple crop in Nova Scotia this year will be small. Probably not more than 600,000 barrels will be marketed. The short crop is due to unfavorable weather and to a very heavy June "drop." The quality is expected to be excellent.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

EPIDEMIC CEREBRO-SPINAL MENINGITIS.

EPIDEMIC CEREBRO-SPINAL MENINGITIS

THIS is an old disease which has been brought into unusual prominence by the fact that some of the soldiers in concentration camps have suffered from it. But it has been the experience in Toronto at least, that more of the civil population have suffered from the disease than have soldiers. It is a communicable (that is "catching") disease: It is also known as a "carrier" disease; that is, some persons who do not suffer from the disease carry its germs in their noses and throats and give it to well people. Cerebro-spinal meningitis is also due to the germs of pneumonia and tuberculosis. These forms are practically always fatal. The form commonly found is due to a germ with the high-sounding name of meningo-coccus. It is most successfully treated with a serum which is injected into the spinal canal after removal of some of the spinal fluid. The disease appears to be quite contagious, probably through the medium of the nose and throat discharges.

As already remarked, it is not a new disease. It occurred during the Napoleonic wars, in the Crimean war, and in the United States Civil war, and at various times in epidemic form in Europe and the United States. It is not a war disease, but is more noticeable in war times because large numbers of men are congregated together.

The serum for its treatment requires to be most carefully prepared. It is supplied free to the people of this Province on application to the Provincial Board of Health.

* * *

There is a popular idea that dogs become mad in the hot days of summer, the dog-days. This belief has no foundation; in fact, Hydrophobia or Rabies, the proper name for this affection of dogs, may occur at any time of the year, and as a matter of fact the fewest cases are found in Ontario in the summer time.

MAD DOGS

A dog affected with rabies suffers a most complete alteration of his habits. If he has been friendly and playful he becomes quiet and morose and will snap at his best friends. He leaves home and runs the country, gets into fights with other dogs and often infects them. A dog manifesting a change of disposition should at once be chained up or kept in a safe enclosure under observation. If he has rabies he will die within ten days. He should not be killed at once, because the evidence of his affection may be destroyed. When he dies his head should be packed in ice and sawdust and expressed to the Laboratory of the Provincial Board of Health, No. 5 Queen's Park, Toronto, where an examination will be made free of charge and report made to the sender. If a dog which is proven to be rabid has bitten anyone, the person bitten should be sent for treatment to No. 5 Queen's Park, Toronto, where preventive Pasteur treatment is given free of charge. The treatment requires a period of three weeks, and does not interfere with the person going about and enjoying the sights of this great city. In the last six years hundreds of cases of persons bitten by dogs have received this treatment—the best results in every instance.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Water Works and Sewers. M. C., Tilsonburg.

Q.—In case a town council wishes to establish waterworks and sewers, what is the proper procedure?

A.—The requirements for the establishment of a waterworks or sewerage system by a municipality are plainly set out, respectively, in Sections 89 to 93, inclusive, and Sections 94 to 98, inclusive, of the Public Health Act. (Cap. 218 R.S.O. 1914.) If you read these portions of the Act carefully you will learn the proper procedure.

8.—Rabies. J.C.G., Earlscourt.

Q.—My neighbor's dog has been acting strangely, and a few days ago bit one of my children on the leg. Can I have the dog destroyed?

A.—If the dog has rabies it will die in ten days or less. You should ask your neighbor to tie the dog up for that period. If the dog seems well at the end of ten days you need have no fear that your child will develop rabies. If the dog dies within ten days have the head (packed in ice in warm weather) sent at once to the Provincial Board of Health Laboratory, No. 5 Queen's Park. A report upon the dog's affection will be sent you, and you may, if so advised, have the child sent to the Laboratory for free Pasteur preventive treatment.

Ontario Under Prohibition

FOR the first time prohibition of the sale of intoxicating liquors in Ontario came into effect on the night of September 16th. As a war measure this was adopted by the Legislature in the interest of national economy and efficiency. Prohibition will affect principally the cities and larger centres, although here and there throughout the country there have remained a few licensed bars.

Like all new measures that are radical in effect, public feeling will be more or less disturbed for awhile, but a large section of the population will receive prohibition willingly. In the Provinces where prohibition has been in operation for a short time there is a growing feeling of public confidence that it will prove a benefit to the community.

The success of all such measures depends upon a proper enforcement of the law. The record of the Conservative Government in Ontario is a guarantee to the Province that this legislation will be properly enforced. As a war measure it stands for three years; its permanency will be decided by a vote of the people. But in view of the serious crisis facing this country at the present time, a crisis not emphasized by the noise of battle, but none the less serious, the Government of Ontario has shown courage and leadership in taking this stand, and there is no doubt that the course of future events will justify the action taken.

By way of reminiscence it is of interest that the Ontario Temperance Act in superseding the Liquor License Act disposes of 1,621 licenses, according to the figures of the last annual report of the Liquor License Branch. Of this number 1,282 were tavern licenses, 216 shop, 31 wholesale, 61 club, 3 wine and beer, and the remainder casual or temporary licenses. In 1905 when the Conservative Government came into power the total number of liquor licenses in Ontario was 2,745, exclusive of clubs, which were then operating but not licensed.

Prohibition in any event will not be had without some cost. The loss in revenue will be a serious item to the treasuries of the province and the municipalities. Last year the municipalities received as their portion of the revenue from the liquor traffic $356,021.76, the Province $467,577.54, a total of $823,599.30.

It is striking that the annual number of commitments increased as the number of licensed places through the operation of local option law or Canada Temperance Act (Scott Act). In 1915 there were 7,177 commitments, about half the number of ten years ago. This is due partly to enlarged legal machinery being provided to stop illicit trading in liquor and to prevent drunkenness in "dry" territories, but it is due principally to the efficient non-partisan administration of the liquor licese law that was given by the License Branch of the Provincial Secretary's Department and latterly by the Board of License Commissioners for Ontario.

There is one other thing. With the advent of prohibition the alcoholic habituate has not been left stranded to suffer or go to worse excesses. A humane amendment was made to the Hospitals for Insane Act last session at the instance of Mr. Thos. Hook, M.P.P. for South East Toronto, whereby an alcoholic habituate may be voluntarily committed to a hospital for treatment for a period of not more than a year, or on the petition of a relative or a friend he may be so certified by two physicians and detained for this period under such treatment as will remove the habit from him. There is no publicity or disgrace attached to this legislation, and its worth has already been recognized by many states across the border.

Ellen Terry Filmed.

Ellen Terry made her debut as a screen actress recently in a pretty little village somewhere within 20 miles of London. She is appearing for the Ideal Film Company in a play in which she takes the role of a retired actress and queen of the village. All sorts of country scenes will figure in the picture, among them being the village crowd, a maypole dance, and a Punch and Judy show.

It looks as if Bernard Shaw will loom up large in one of the scenes. Dressed in knickerbocker suit and cap, he mixed with the village crowd and most likely got himself on to the film. He was delighted with the maypole scene, and afterward declared that he might write a film play himself.

It is said that Ellen Terry has stipulated that the film shall not be publicly exhibited if it does not meet with her approval.

Steel Rings in Seamen's Caps.

The Mercantile Marine Service Association are in receipt of the following notice from the Board of Trade: "It has come to the notice of the Board of Trade that steel rings are sometimes used inside officers' caps and become magnetised. Owing to their close proximity to the compass needle, when worn by an observer taking compass bearings, such rings are liable to cause considerable deviation and render the observation unreliable. The Board of Trade are of opinion that the use of steel rings for this purpose should be discontinued, and that rings made of a non-magnetic substance should be substituted. Care should also be taken that no articles of steel that may, by becoming magnetised, deflect a compass needle are worn or carried by ships' officers when taking compass bearings.

British Farm Labor Situation.

The labor situation is quite as acute on farms in the United Kingdom as it is in Canada. Nearly all the sons of British farmers, as well as skilled laborers, have been called to the war and the only sort of labor available requires a lot of supervision. Nearly all the letters from farmers published in The Farmer and Stock Breeder (Eng.) deal with the situation and the general feeling is voiced in this extract from one letter: "Let us hope for an early cessation of hostilities and a quick return to normal conditions."

Made it Hard Work.

First Maid—So you don't like to work for highbrows? Second Maid—You bet I don't. I worked for one pair of them—and never again! Him and her was fighting continually, and it kept me running back and forth between the keyhole and the dictionary all the time.—Puck.

For New Enlistments.

Further conferences have taken place between Sir Thomas Tait and the Government respecting the methods to be employed by the new director-general of national service, in raising the number of enlistments up to the half-million maximum.

Details as to these methods and as to the personnel of Sir Thomas Tait's associates will be made known probably next week. The enlistment scheme will be put into operation in such a way as not to reduce the supply of labor necessary to the production of war munitions and supplies.

HOSPITALITY IN SYRIA.

A Custom That May Have a Bearing on a Passage in Scripture.

Approaching his hoped for guest, a Syrian engages him in something like the following dialogue, characterized by a glow of feeling which the translation can only faintly reveal:

"Ennoble us by your presence."

"I would be ennobled, but I cannot accept."

"That cannot be."

"Yea, yea, it must be."

"No, I swear against you by our friendship and by the life of God. I love just to acquaint you with my bread and salt."

"I swear also that I find it impossible to accept. Your bread and salt are known to all."

"Yea, do it just for our own good. By coming to us you come to your own home. Let us repay your bounty to us."

"Astaghfero Allah (by the mercy of God) I have not bestowed any bounty upon you worth mentioning."

Here the host seizes his guest by the arm and with an emphatic, "I will not let you go," pulls at him and would drag him bodily into his house. Then the guest, happy in being vanquished "with honor," consents to the invitation.

Do you now understand fully the meaning of the passage in the fourteenth chapter of Luke's gospel? "A certain man made a great supper, and bade many, * * * and they all with one consent began to make excuse. * * * And the Lord said unto the servant, 'Go out into the highways and hedges, and compel them to come in, that my house may be filled.'"—Abraham Mitrie Rihbany in Atlantic Monthly.

Potatoes in Eastern Canada.

The early promise of an abundant crop of potatoes in Quebec and the Maritime Provinces is not going to be fulfilled. Only in Prince Edward Island is there now promise of a full crop, according to a report of the Census and Statistics Office, Ottawa. In Quebec the crop is reported poor, in New Brunswick heat has reduced the yield below the average, and in Nova Scotia injury has resulted from the same cause.

THE British Red Cross again appeals to the generous heart of Ontario for funds to carry on the splendid work of caring for our sick and wounded defenders on every front.

It is the deep concern of British subjects everywhere to aid and hearten the workers in their splendid, self-imposed duties. All can help—will YOU?

By proclamation of His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario Thursday, October 19th, "OUR DAY" is set aside as a day of giving to

The British Red Cross

Here is a call to touch Men's hearts, and Women's, too. Give generously, that the cry of your anguished defenders may not go unheeded.

The British Red Cross maintains hundreds of hospitals in Great Britain and on every battle-front. It provides and runs hundreds of motor ambulances, steamships, motor launches, rest stations and convalescent homes. In France, Flanders, Italy, Salonika, Mesopotamia, Armenia, Galicia, Russia, East Africa, Egypt, Arabia its blood-red emblem of healing is known and blessed.

Why Should You Give to the British Red Cross?

BECAUSE your gift may save some gallant life.

BECAUSE trained men are vitally necessary to the Empire's safety, and their lives must be saved.

BECAUSE your own friend, son, brother, husband may be the next to call for Red Cross aid.

BECAUSE you may not be able to fight, but you CAN heal with your gift.

BECAUSE the British Red Cross is the greatest physical agency for good in the world, and the most efficient.

BECAUSE your money does more good in the hands of the British Red Cross than spent in any other way.

BECAUSE the Motherland's only direct appeal to us Canadians is for assistance in the great mercy work.

BECAUSE Ontario's shining gift of $1,514,000 last year should be an inspiration to us now.

BECAUSE the number of sick and wounded is ever increasing as the price of victory.

BELGIUM entered this war because she would not sell her honor to an overwhelmingly powerful neighbor. Britain and Canada took up arms in defense of treaty obligations and simple justice. The Belgian motive is as noble and unselfish as our own.

Belgian troops are holding the line side by side with our own gallant lads, braving equal dangers—bearing equal hardships—strafing the common enemy.

But there the equality ends! We non-combatant Canadians are living in a land of plenty—well-fed, lacking no necessity, and indulging in many luxuries.

The Belgian mothers and children in millions are eking out a pitiable existence on the daily ration of three slices of bread and a pint of soup supplied by the Belgian Relief Commission.

Is it fair?

Are we justified, before the bar of common humanity, in callously feasting ourselves while they endure near-starvation?

What have YOU done to relieve them?

BIRDWOOD IDOL OF AUSTRALIANS

Sir Ian Hamilton Called Him the Soul of Anzac.

"SECRETARY" HIS NICKNAME

Commander of the Commonwealth's Forces Has Been in Seven Campaigns and Has Had Many Miraculous Escapes From Death—50 Years of Age and Served in India

LIEUT.-GEN. SIR W. R. BIRDWOOD, the adored commander of the Australian forces on the western front, was born in 1865. He served in South Africa, and in 1902 became military secretary to the Commander-in-Chief (Lord Kitchener) when Lord Kitchener was in India in 1905. General Sir W. R. Birdwood was again his military secretary. In the South African War he was severely wounded, and was mentioned in despatches five times. In 1908 he was chief staff officer in the Mohmand Expedition, and won the D. S. O.

In a despatch Sir Ian Hamilton wrote of Sir W. R. Birdwood as follows: "Lieut.-General Sir W. R. Birdwood has been the soul of Anzac. Not for a single day has he ever quitted his post. Cheery and full of human sympathy, he spent many hours of each twenty-four inspiring the defenders of the front trenches; and if he does not know every soldier in his force, at least every soldier in the force believes he is known to his chief."

LIEUT.-GENERAL BIRDWOOD.

The present is his seventh campaign. He has had many narrow escapes, the most miraculous, perhaps, being that in May last, when a bullet removed his hat, and ploughed a parting in his hair. Another very narrow escape was an occasion when his horse was shot from under him at Pretoria. Indeed he has come to be regarded as a man who bears a charmed life. Before war broke out, Sir William who is just fifty, was Secretary of the Army Department at Delhi, hence and from appointments above mentioned his nickname—"Secretary." In the temporary offices of the Government of India in the new capital, he had to gather together the threads of military organization, and in the process added no little lustre to the record which successive generations of Birdwoods have maintained in connection with the Indian Empire.

Seaplane Sinks U-Boat.

Anthony Jannus, an aviator and representative of an American aircraft builder, tells of an interesting engagement between a submarine and seaplane which he witnessed while on board a Russian ship during the aerial bombardment and destruction of the Turkish Black Sea port of San Godac, says an exchange. He states a Turkish submarine had crept unobserved on a Russian seaplane which was resting on the surface and launched a torpedo. The missile grazed one of the planes, but did not explode. Before the submarine could dive, however, the seaplane arose and with accurately aimed bombs destroyed the submarine.

Sir Edward Grey Honored.

Sir Edward Grey has been honored by the King with a peerage, and will probably be known by the title of Earl Grey of Fallodon. The peerage is already well-stocked with peers of this name. There is, of course, Earl Grey, formerly Governor-General of Canada, who is himself Baron Grey of Howick. Neither of these must be confused with Lord Grey of Ruthyn, nor with Lord Grey of Wilton, the eldest son of the Earl of Wilton, nor with Lord Grey of Groby, eldest son of the Earl of Stamford. And all these are quite distinct from Earl de Grey, who succeded to his father's Marquessate of Ripon in 1909.

TRADE WITH TRINIDAD.

Flour and Fish Are the Two Largest of Canada's Exports.

There is no lack of evidence showing that Canadian millers rank high amongst Canadian industrials as showing enterprise in developing foreign business. The last weekly issue of the Trade and Commerce Bulletin contains at least one report from a Canadian official, which indicates that in Trinidad, one of the West Indies which has a foreign trade of $45,000,000 annually, the Canadian miller has taken the lead away from the United States in supplying that colony with flour.

The Maritime fishermen account for the next largest item on the list of Canadian exports to Trinidad, and if the value of their exports is added to those of the millers there is little left to be accounted for, although the island imports many things that can be made in Canada at as low a cost as elsewhere. The exports to the island exceed in value those of 1914 and 1913 by £93,640 and £162,579, respectively.

The exports to Canada of some of the leading staples fell off considerably, the decrease as compared with the previous year valuing £346,496. This was owing to the fact that the bulk of the year's crop of sugar went to the United Kingdom. Regarding cocoa, the Collector of Customs remarks that "in view of the very substantial preference given to West Indian cocoa under the preferential agreement with Canada, the increase in the quantity of this commodity, taken from year to year, has been disappointing, the largest shipment made so far amounting only to 10,424,654 pounds for the year under review."

Trinidad's chief exports are cocoa and sugar. Exports of the former were valued at £1,865,266 in 1915, and the latter at £1,070,423 in the same year. As in the case of Canada, the war has had a beneficial effect upon the trade of the island.

Poet Laureate.

The office of poet laureate practically begins with Chaucer, who assumed the title about 1385. After Chaucer the office was more or less in the shadow, but from Spenser in 1599 the line of poet laureate is pretty well filled down to the present time. The office is largely honorary and has not always been held by the greatest of English poets, Dryden, Wordsworth and Tennyson being the most illustrious of its holders.—London Saturday Review.

ROMANCE OF AUSTRALIA

YOUNGEST OF NATIONS IS OLDEST OF ALL LANDS.

Isolated Continent Which Was Once Connected With Asia and After Her Volcanoes Burned Out a Wealth of Verdure and Fertility Awaited the Coming of Civilized Peoples.

ONE of the oldest of all lands, Australia, is the youngest of all nations. She is the reality of two thousand years of wise men's dreams, the vast southern continent which they thought must be there to balance the land in the northern hemisphere. No one dared seek for her, for they thought that she was separated from the rest of the world by an equator of fire and demons and all-slaying mist.

She must be there, they said, and they drew fancy outlines of her on all their maps and globes, and showed her linked up to Africa and to America, and stretching unbroken to the South Pole. But when Diaz staggered around the southern foot of Africa, and Magellan found his way through open water round the southern-most point of South America, and Drake, following, got blown away into the boundless Southern Seas beyond, and none found southern land—then they gave it up, and struck Australia from the map. There could not be a southern continent after all, they said. But Australia was there all the time, with the strangest men and the strangest animals in the world, lying, as under a spell of enchantment, asleep within her borders of pearl and coral and her girdle of salt sea foam.

For long, long years Australia had lain preparing for the coming of man. Her history is written on—her wide bosom. Once she was part of greater land masses, connected, perhaps, by land bridges with Asia. Beneath the surface this vast continent was boiling. Burning mountains were heaved up and blew their heads off, and thousands of miles of lava and ash remain to tell the tale of her great volcanoes.

But her fires died out, and more enduring mountains were formed, which, age upon age, epoch after epoch, have been attacked by heat and wind and rain, have been worn down lower and lower, their summits ground by the agencies of time into dust and powder. Their chemical properties, contained in the boiling lava from which they first solidified, were released with the slowly gathering debris, and this highly charged rubble of shattered rock and wind-lashed sand forms to-day the barren deserts of Australia. But smiling verdure clad the greater part of these, and great forests grew. They sank beneath the sea, and some changed into coal. Gold and silver, tin and copper, diamonds, and other valuable stones, formed in the rocks, and the precious metals tumbled from their beds as the mountains crumbled, forming the great nuggets that have since been found in the soil.

But where were the men? The men were not ready. They had not emerged. But the animals had. Warm-blooded animals which suckled their young had appeared upon the earth, and, roaming far, had reached Australia from other parts of the world. Then came the breakdown of the land bridges from Australia to Asia. The animals were shut up in a continent which had become an island. The kangaroos and the wallabies, the bear-like koala, the egg-laying mammals, and many kinds of reptiles were imprisoned on the continent. These, and great birds which forgot how to fly, were the lords of this vast area of the earth. The animals remained the very lowest type—animals which carry their young in pouches, which have the smallest of brains. There was no competition, no hard struggle for life as in the busier world without, no need to improve. They developed on the old lines. Some grew to be giants, as big as any elephant, and then died out. The smaller types survived, though of these smaller ones, the great kangaroo is bigger than the tallest man.

The story of the Australian animals is one of the wonders of the world. The huge continent experiences in its different ranges three climates—tropical, sub-tropical, and temperate, so that we might expect to find there animals resembling those of Africa as well as of Europe. But there is nothing of the sort. There are no lions or tigers, no wolves, bears, cats, weasels—indeed, not a single flesh-eater except a little so-called cat. There is that, and there is the wild dog, or dingo, but he is a mysterious newcomer, not a native. There are neither apes nor monkeys; neither oxen, deer, nor antelopes; no elephants, rhinoceroses, pigs, camels, horses, hares or rabbits; no tree mice, squirrels or porcupines; no hedgehogs or shrews. And yet, lacking all these creatures, Australian wild life is amazing.

A multitude of forms follow the kangaroo line of development; there are what are called kangaroo hares, kangaroo rats, kangaroo mice, simply because they suggest the forms of these originals in other lands. There were no flesh-eaters, other than the so-called cats, in Australia, before white man and the domesticated animals arrived.

The plant life of the sleeping land was wonderful, too. The great feature here is the eucalyptus tree, of which there are 150 species, many of them unknown elsewhere. Like the [illegible] and are often the tallest trees in the world, reaching from 400 to 500 feet. Their leaves stand upright, so that the sunlight passes between them and the trees yield no shade, but their properties are indispensable, and their wood is invaluable. They yield precious oils and gums, wood the white ant cannot destroy, wood that water will not rot and the deadly shipworm will not bore.

COL. CRAIG, M.P. AND FIGHTER

Irishman Is a Veteran of South African War.

"THE DIVIL IN A FIGHT"

His Brother Captain Charles Craig Has Been Wounded and Taken Prisoner on the French Front —Col. Craig Was in Belfast When South African War Broke Out

THERE is a story going the rounds in certain British political circles to the effect that during the Home Rule crisis, when Sir Edward Carson and Lieut. Col. J. Craig, member for the Eastern division of Co. Down, were prominent figures in Irish affairs, a certain Londoner said to an Irishman:

"Craig! Whose Craig, anyway? Never 'eard of 'im before. I suppose he's one of them ornamental soldiers who waves a sword when there ain't going to be any fightin'."

"Let me tell you this," he said, shaking his finger under the nose of the Londoner. "Captain Craig's the very divil when it comes to a fight—the very divil, sir."

The Irishman's tribute to his fighting qualities was well deserved. Lieut.-Colonel Craig like his brother, Captain Charles Craig, the member for South Antrim, who has just been wounded and taken prisoner in the fighting on the French front, is a fighter—"a last ditcher and a blood-and-thunder resister," as someone once described him. He is no carpet soldier. He was in business as a stock broker in Belfast when the South African war broke out. He at once volunteered for the front, accepting a commission in the North of Ireland Imperial Yeomanry, and figured in some of the hard fighting on the veldt, for which he received two medals and five clasps.

COLONEL J. CRAIG.

Lieut.-Colonel Craig is a most racy and popular raconteur, and it was during his military career that he collected a wonderful stock of stories with which he is wont to regale his personal friends.

A practical agriculturist and successful stock raiser, the member for Downs, which he has represented since 1906, has always displayed the greatest interest in politics. A strong debater, he quickly became a leader in the agitation against Home Rule, his vigorous speeches arousing the greatest enthusiasm among his supporters.

Cupid Busy in Wartime.

Munitions and war have converted London into a city of honeymoons. First it was the khaki-clad soldier, encouraged by the Government's promise to provide for the bride while he was away at war, who caused the increase in the marriage rate. Then the munition worker, as prosperous in dollars as he had been in pennies, decided to share his hitherto undreamed-of wages with a life partner.

During 1915 more than 5,800 marriages were registered in the city, and, although the rate has decreased somewhat this summer, it is believed 1916 will make a record in the number of brides.

HE OPPOSED CONSCRIPTION.

Hon. Bertrand Russell is Having a Hard Time in Britain.

The path of those who oppose conscription in Great Britain just now is not one that is strewn with roses, as the Hon. Bertrand Russell, only brother and heir-presumptive of Earl Russell, has lately been finding out. Some three months ago this aristocratic pacifist was fined $500 and costs, with the alternative of sixty-one days' imprisonment, in respect of a leaflet written by him in defence of those who object to serve in the British army. He is a prominent member of the so-called "No-conscription" Fellowship—a body which includes a number of well-known "cranks." Several members of Parliament belong to it, including Messrs. C. P. Trevelyan, Arthur Ponsonby, Philip Snowden, and Ramsay Macdonald. Naturally its tenets are not looked on with favor by a Government which has its hands full in enforcing conscription.

Mr. Russell has written a book called "Justice in War Time," in which he advocates an early peace without any serious weakening to any of the great powers involved, and the formation for the future of a central world government, "able and willing to secure obedience by force." In the course of this volume he admits that "no doubt atrocities have occurred on both sides," but seeks to discredit the authenticity of some of the cases mentioned in the report of Lord Bryce. Such views are not very acceptable to the Government, nor are they very popular in circles other than Governmental.

In fact, they are almost making a martyr of Mr. Russell. He has been stripped of his Cambridge fellowship—he had a distinguished university career. His London flat was recently, he avers, visited by Scotland Yard officers and searched from top to bottom—an indignity which he bitterly resents. He has been appointed to a professorship at Harvard University, but is not allowed to leave England to enter on his professional duties, the authorities apparently not desiring that his peculiar views both on war and peace should be disseminated in a neutral country by an Englishman.

On the first of this month he was served with the following notice: "I, Lieut.-Colonel the Hon. A. F. V. Russell, being a competent military authority under the Defence of the Realm Regulations, do hereby order that the Hon. Bertrand Russell shall not, except with permission in writing from me, or from some other competent naval or military authority, reside in any area specified as a prohibited area by virtue of any order now or hereafter made under the Aliens' Restriction Act, 1914."

About this notice there is certainly something dramatic. For the orderer and the ordered—Col. A. F. V. Russell and Mr. Bertrand Russell—happen to be cousins. Both are descended from the sixth Duke of Bedford. Mr. B. Russell is the grandson of the great statesman, Earl Russell, better known as Lord John Russell, who was twice Prime Minister.

Haig's Secretary an M.P.

Sir Philip Sassoon is private secretary to Sir Douglas Haig. It was known that Sir Philip, who is a lieutenant in the East Kent Yeomanry, was attached to the headquarters secretarial staff, but no one had any idea that his position was such an important one. The youthful member for Hythe, who was the "Baby of the House" when he entered it in 1912 at the age of 24, is one of the richest men in the army. He inherited a large fortune from his mother, who was a Rothschild, and from his father he receives $60,000 a year till he is 30, when, in addition, he will inherit another large fortune.

Bedding for Cows.

In Holland sand is plentiful and inexpensive, and is used instead of hay and straw as beds for cows. It keeps the animals perfectly clean, requiring only a slight raking in the morning to soften and freshen it.

CAPTAIN W. H. HUDSON KILLED IN ACTION . . . . . MURDER SUSPECT DIES IN LOCAL HOSPITAL

MONTGOMERY'S ATTEMPT ON HIS LIFE PROVES FATAL

The Unfortunate Man Passed Away at Belleville Hospital Sunday Morning — Inquest is Being Conducted by Coroner Dr. Yeomans

Another tragedy has been enacted in connection with the murder on the 4th inst., of Walter Montgomery of Madoc Township, and in consequence, his brother Joseph, who was suspected of the murder, lies cold in death. The affair is now more than ever clouded in mystery, and will probably never be unravelled.

On Saturday morning when Joseph Montgomery was found in the lockup at Madoc Village, with his throat cut, it was feared that he would not survive from the loss of blood and shock and such proved to be the case. The unfortunate man during the day revived somewhat, and his condition was such that he was towards evening removed to the Hospital in this city. Here everything possible was done to save his life, but it proved futile. Between the hours of six and seven o'clock on Sunday morning he passed away. When brought to the hospital Montgomery, although much weakened by the loss of blood, was able to talk. We are informed that he made no statement whatever in regard to the murder of his brother. The self-inflicted wound on the neck was a gaping gash, evidently made by the right hand. It was on the left side of the neck, and was nearly three inches in length and of a considerable depth. The jugular vein was not touched or death would have resulted in a few minutes after the committing of the act. To the left of the wound were two other distinct cuts, made by the knife, but were only skin deep. That the victim made a determined effort to end his existence, there was no doubt.

Under the circumstances an inquest was necessary, and it was opened at the hospital yesterday morning, before Coroner Dr. Yeomans. The jury selected were Messrs. B. Quincey, Wm. Fleming, J. Lafferty, Bert McCoy, R. Zufelt, T. E. Wilson, James Thompson and P. Harrison. Mr. R. Zufelt was selected as foreman. After the jury had been sworn in and the circumstances of the case outlined by the coroner, a view of the body was made by the jury. The nature of the wound made was explained to the jury by Dr. MacColl, who with Drs. Gibson and Boyce were present at the inquiry.

The only evidence submitted was that of Miss Morrison, Assistant Lady Superintendent of the Belleville Hospital, who testified as to the time Montgomery was brought to the hospital, and the time of his death. The enquiry was then adjourned until Friday evening, when witnesses from Madoc will be examined.

The body was then taken in charge by Messrs. Tickell & Sons, and conveyed to their undertaking establishment and prepared for burial.

That the suspected man had planned to do away himself is apparent from the circumstances which have transpired. Although carefully searched when placed in custody by Chief Constable St. Charles in the presence of Provincial Inspector Harry Reburn of the Ontario Police. Montgomery subsequently secured a darning needle, which he had kept concealed in the lapel of his coat. Special Constable George Johnston, who was watching him, noticed the prisoner examining the needle at midnight on Thursday. He sent for the Chief Constable, who, after a second search, located the darning needle. Montgomery put up a vigorous protest when relieved of it. He asked the police to supply him with a knife to cut tobacco but was refused.

Two theories have been advanced as to how he procured the knife with which he did the deed. One is that he got it from a soldier of the 155th Battalion who had been apprehended Madoc for desertion, and who occupied the cell next to Montgomery on Thursday evening. The other theory is that someone threw the knife to him through a small grating over the lock-up door

DISPUTE OVER INQUEST

There appears to be some dispute or misunderstanding as to the inquest being conducted here over the remains of the victim. Dr. Harper the coroner who conducted the inquest into the circumstances regarding the murder of Walter Montgomery, contends that the inquest over the suicide should be held at Madoc. Doctors Dafoe and Eagleson, who attended Montgomery express the same opinion and feel somewhat disturbed over the action of Sheriff Morrison, of Belleville in ordering Coroner Yeomans to hold the enquiry here. They feel that the Sheriff has overstepped his jurisdiction. The preliminary trial of the accused man had been set for Tuesday next at Madoc. Deceased, who was about fifty years old, lived with his aged mother and sister on a farm about two miles from the farm on which his brother was slain. His house was burned down on Wednesday of last week. Owing to the peculiar disposition of the accused slayer, together with the fact that he had ben frequently heard to mumble to himself that the extent of the seriousness of the charge of hanging over him was too much for him to attempt to survive, a special constable was appointed to watch over him in the jail.

THURLOW FAMILY HAVE A NOTABLE WAR RECORD

One Son Recently Killed in Action—A Second Fighting in The Trenches—A Third Will Soon be at The Front— A Sturdy Father is Proud of His Boys

Mr. Harry Wallace, a well known yeoman residing at Corbyville, Thurlow Township, on Friday last received from the Record Office, Ottawa, a message which conveyed the sad intelligence that his son, Private Robt. Earle Wallace, No. 41,206 had died of wounds, at a dressing station in France. His death occurred on Monday, October 2nd. He was severely wounded in the hips and abdomen. Private Wallace left Belleville with the 39th Battalion, and was a member of the battalion band. When he died he was in his 21st year, and was a fine type of a soldier, being over 6 feet in height. The young hero was a member of Plainfield Orange Lodge. Two other sons of Mr. Wallace have enlisted for service. Private Clifford Wallace is at present in the trenches in France, and Private Harry Wallace is with the 155th Battalion, which is enroute overseas. This is a record which any family has reason to be proud of. In the loss of their son Mr. and Mrs. Wallace will receive the heartfelt sympathy of relatives and friends.

ROYAL PARTY LEAVE QUIETLY

Their Departure Noted For Lack of Formality—Hand Shaking and Few Words

Canadian Press Special.

HALIFAX, Oct. 16.—The Duke and Duchess of Connaught and Princess Patricia departed from Canada with entire absence of formality. They arrived by special train, which was run into a big concrete shed at the pier. The Admiral commanding the North Atlantic squadron, and some Canadian Government officials awaited their Highnesses as they stepped from the train, and a guard of Bluejackets from the cruiser assigned to convey them to the Mother Country, was drawn up in the shed. After shaking hands, a few farewell words were spoken and the cruiser quietly backed out from the pier and proceeded down the harbor. Very few of those who noticed her realized her important mission.

PETROGRAD, Oct., 16—Heavy forces of Teutonic troops have assumed the offensive south of Dorna Watra, near the junction point of the Roumanian Transylvania and Bukowina boundry lines.Hard fighting continues in Galicia, east and south of Lemberg district without either side making advances. Further south northwest of the Dorna Watra region strong enemy attacks were repulsed, Russians taking nearly twelve hundred prisoners.

Attack Positions

Berlin Despatch Chronicles Re-Capture of Ground by Germans

Canadian Press Special.

BERLIN, Oct.,16—British troops yesterday atacked German positions northeast of Gueunecourt, three miles south of Bapaume and penetrated German first line but ground was recaptured after counter attack says official statement isued today. French troops made attack on German positions west of town of Sailly Sailles. Attackers were driven back south of the village by counter attacks.

BRITISH MOVE ON BAPAUME

General Haig's Troops Make Direct Push for Town—Heavy Bombardments

LONDON, Oct. 14—Special—With the heights overlooking Bapaume firmly in their grip, the British are making a direct push for the town. The low ridge which blocked the way to Bapaume approaches have been surmounted at several points and, although severe fighting will come before the town is won, many obstacles have been cleared.

Advancing northwest of Gueudecourt and between Gueudecourt and Les Boeufs, Haig's troops are now ready to begin the attack on Le Transloy, the sole fortification that separate the British from the Bethune road. This village is very heavily fortified, but the possession of the low heights to the west lightens the task considerably. Yesterday the British captured 150 prisoners.

A record number of trench raids—fourteen in all—have been made in the Ypres and Armentieres sectors. Advices from the front state that these enterprises, carried on constantly during the night, are demoralizing the German nerve in equal degree with the intense bombardment.

The French afternoon statement follows:

"The night was fairly calm on both banks of the Somme. There were skirmishes and mutual bombardments, sometimes attaining to great violence, in the Morval, Bouchavesnes, Ablaincourt and Chaulnes sectors."

Popular Local Captain Killed On French Front

Captain William H. Hudson Falls Upon The Battlefield—Prominent in Many Spheres of Belleville Life

Another popular young officer and resident of Belleville, has made the supreme sacrifice for King and country. The citizens of this city were on Sunday evening shocked when it became known that Capt. William H. Hudson had been killed in action. A telegram conveying the sad intelligence was received here last evening by Miss Hattie Hudson, sister of the brave hero, which came from the Record Office, Ottawa. It was the usual telegram sent out in such cases, expressing regret that Capt. Hudson had fallen in action.

Capt. Hudson, who was a deservedly popular young man, was 32 years of age. He was born at Roslin, Hastings County, being the only son of the late Mr. W. P. Hudson, who for some years was the representative from East Hastings in the Provincial Legislature. Of late years the deceased had been conducting an insurance business in the city, and was also Secretary Treasurer of the Belleville Cemetery Company.

Capt. Hudson was prominent in Masonic circles, being a Past Master of The Belleville Lodge No. 123, and Registrar of King Baldwin Preceptory No 6. In social circles he was also prominent.

For a number of years Capt. Hudson had been identified with the militia, having risen from the rank of a Private to a Captain in the 15th Battalion, Argyle Light Infantry. At the outbreak of the war he offered his services, and left Belleville with the 39th Battalion for overseas. He was transferred to the 2nd Battalion and retained his rank of Captain. A few months ago he was wounded in the shoulder, and after being in a hospital for some weeks, rejoined his brigade at the front on September 13th, 1916. He was Captain over the Belleville boys who were attached to the 2nd Battalion in the trenches, and only a few are left on the firing line, some being killed and some wounded. In the death of Capt. Hudson, Belleville has lost a brave young soldier. Surviving are two sisters, Miss Hattie of Belleville, and Miss Annie of New York. To them will be extended the heartfelt sympathy of all citizens, in this their hour of sore bereavement.

MEMORIAL SERVICES AT HOLLOWAY ST. CHURCH

Morning Services Has to Do With Honor Roll—Rev. A. R. Sanderson Preaches Strong Sermon in Memory of Milton Vandervoort—A Splendid Patriotic Spirit Pervades The Day's Exercises

At Holloway street Methodist church r this city, on Sunday morning the service was of an especial nature, and was attended by a large congregation. The preacher was Major (Rev.) Harry A Frost, a chaplain who at present is home on furlough, and who intends to return to the front within a few days to resume his duties. In connection with the service the Major unveiled the scroll of honor, which contained the names of boys who were connected with that church, and who have enlisted to fight for King and country. Some are at the front and some are enroute overseas. Of the number two have made the supreme sacrifice, having been killed in action. Pte. W. M. Rutter was killed on August 9th, 1916, and a month later, on September 9th, 1916, Pte. Milton Vandervoort was killed.

Rev. Major Frost gave an inspiring address, during which he referred to his work on the battlefield. The pastor, Rev. J. N. Clarry, assisted, and the choir rendered suitable selections. It was a most impressive service. The scroll of honor contains the following names:

Pte. Carlos O. Bunnett, Pte. Solomon C. Jones, Gunner Samuel V. Ray, Pte. Milton Vandervoort, Sergt Wilfrid Vandervoort, Sergt. Garnet Dobbs, Pte. Frank Sills, Gun layer Leslie Yerex, Corp.-Sergt. Chas. H. Vills, Pte. Floyd Plumpton, Pte. Stanley Minns, Pte. Ray Minns, Corp. Raymond Reid, Pte. Harry Elliott, Lieut. Frank Smith. Pte. A. C. Harold Cochrane, Pte. Normand A. Hinds, Pte. Arthur Gordineer, Pte. Vernon Orr, Pte. Arthur Plumpton, Pte. W M. Rutter, Sergt. John A. Dench, Pte. James B. Symons, Pte. Harold Anderson, Pte. Ewart G. Jones, Pte. Carman Adams, Pte. Roy Lewis Walters.

Sermon By Rev. A. R. Sanderson

In the evening the church was filled with members and visitors, anxious to again hear the Rev. A. R. Sanderson, a former popular pastor. A large chorus choir rendered efficient services. A solo "'Tis Only A Little Way," by Mrs. A. R. Sanderson, in beautiful voice, and a bass solo, "Thy Will Be Done," by Mr. K. O. Pimlot, were much appreciated.

Taking for his subject Deut. 32: 11 and 12, the preacher of the evening delivered a most interesting sermon on "Stirring Up The Nest," depicting the need of energy, and sometimes the necessity of one's being pushed into activity to make the most of life. The protecting care of God over His children was likened to the eagle teaching her young to fly—sweeping downward and catching the falling inexperienced one upon her wings, and bearing up until able to use its own wings. So does He care for the inexperienced one going out into the world, who must combat the evils of life. The strengthening of the weakness exhibited by Moses, the miracle of transforming him into a leader of the Children of Israel—the trip through the wilderness, its temptations, and the utter failure of true success unless one clings to and obeys God.

Mr. Sanderson's reference to the late Milton Vandervoort, killed in action, were of a most touching nature. The young man's determination to fight for his country when advised to wait for the following contingent; his refusal to leave the trenches for a safer position; the studying of his Bible, and committing of himself and comrades to the care of God, were points brought out with telling effect. Yet, said the preacher, Milton was but one of the sterling young men who have left home and friends for their King and country—many of whom have been mown down by the enemy.

"If we are willing that our friends and companions should die for their country, then we should be ready to take their place," declared Mr. Sanderson. This stirring up of the nest may mean suffering, even death, but an implicit faith in God, even though we cross the death line, will open the gates of heaven, where a welcome, a home forever shall be the reward. These are days of grief, but with God for us they may be days of glorious victory.

Stormy Scenes On Church Union By Presbyterians

Rev. Dr. W. J. Clark Cried Down When He Tried to Reply to Criticisms

MONTREAL, Oct. 14.—The proceedings of the meeting held last evening in the Y.M.C.A. expressly in the interests of anti-Church union were interspersed with stormy episodes, when Rev. Dr. W. J. Clark, who is a strong union man, was prevented by several of his brother clergymen from expressing his views. The meeting was called at the request of those opposed to church union to hear a statement upon the question by two men from Toronto, Henry E. Irwin, K.C., and C. S. McDonald.

Mr. McDonald, who in a vigorous address strongly criticized the whole scheme, attacked the unionists for underhand methods in efforts to force the measure through the Assembly. During his address Rev. Dr. Clark arose and attempted several times to speak, but was cried down. He asked if he could speak at the close of Mr. McDonald's address, but again he was refused permission.

Rev. Malcolm Campbell accused Dr. Clark of refusing to read from his pulpit the announcement that this meeting was to be held. He thought that if Dr. Cark should deny his congregation the right to attend, he should himself stay away. Accusations were also made against the unionist party in holding back from their congregations anti-union literature which had been circulated.

Dr. Clark again attempted to make himself heard, but was told to "go home." Greatly angered the reverened gentleman then grabbed up his hat and left the meeting.

Mr. Irwin remarked that if a Government were to be elected upon the lines by which the union vote was passed at the General Assembly at Winnipeg, it could never live more than six months. The whole system had been unfair and unjust, he claimed.

A resolution was unanimously passed favoring the Presbyterian Church of Canada retaining its individuality as heretofore.

Boston Heiress To Wed Prince

Daughter of Famous New England Manufacturer Wins a Foreign Title

ROME, Oct. 14.—Prince Andrea Buencompagni, whose engagement to marry Miss Margaret Draper, of Boston, was announced a week ago, won the American heiress from Prince Ludovico, a rival suitor, according to gossip in society circles here.

Prince Buencompagni comes of a very old and once wealthy Papal family. As a youngster he met Miss Draper, when her father, the late William F. Draper, was United States Ambassador to Rome. They played together as children and it is reported here that they were engaged for a long time.

Prince Ludovico fell in love with Miss Draper and wooed her desperately. When he was rejected he married the daughter of an Italian senator, the wedding taking place only recently.

Miss Draper's engagement was announced from Boston. Her fortune is estimated at $5,000,000, and she has been called the wealthiest girl in New England. Her godmother was Queen Marguerita of Italy, and she was named after the Queen. When she made her debut in Washington in 1911 scores of butterflies were liberated in a garden for the occasion.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES AT JOHN ST. CHURCH

Rev. A. H. Drumm, of Bowmanville, A Former Pastor, Delivers Splendid Discourses at Morning and Evening Services—Special Choral Music Adds Much to The Interest

Special anniversary services were held yesterday at St. John's Presbyterian Church. Rev. A. H. Drumm of Bowmanville, a former pastor of St. John's, was present and conducted the services. Special music by the choir was rendered at both services, which was greatly appreciated by the congregations present.

Rev. Mr. Drumm in opening his discourse at the evening service stated it gave him a mixed feeling of pleasure and sorrow to address the people, feeling of sorrow for the friends who are gone and a feeling of pleasure to meet the old friends who are here.

For his text, the preacher took three verses from three different books of the Bible. The first from II Timothy, 1, 12 verse:

"For the which cause I also suffer these things: nevertheless I am not ashamed; for I know whom I have believed; and am persuaded that he is able to keep that which I have committed unto him against that day."

The second from: Romans 1, 28:

"And even as they did not like to retain God in their knowledge; God gave them over to a reprobate mind, to do those things which are not convenient."

And third from: II. Corinthians 5, 1:

"Paul, an apostle of Jesus Christ by the will of the God and Timothy our brother, unto the church of God which is at Corinth with all the saints which are in all Achaia:"

The divine in his discourse said, Look at this world today. What a spectacle it is; nations engaged in the most dreadful war. With these scenes before us it comes to our mind the question: Is there a God at all; and if there is, does He really care what happens to the people of this world? Does He love mankind, and has He the power to carry good-will towards men Is it worth while to keep up our struggle against evil? Are we making real progress Is our struggle for a better life, simply folly What shall we answer This; Our Christianity.

Here the preacher narrated the fable of the yellow-paint, written by Robert L. Stevenson. This fable was Stevenson's method of ridiculing one kind of religion that is common to-day. It is believed that religion is something that is put on, externally, out of fear. People think religion is some sort of talesman to be worn about the neck or on the clothes, to save you from sin, and will give you a free ticket to Heaven, by and by. If we think this we are doomed for disappointment, and a disappointment which we richly deserve.

Paul, he was a wonderful man, he was not a perfect man, but nevertheless a wonderful man. Let us remember what this Paul passed through before he penned a word of it. How many of our worst criminals in the prisons to-day have received as much punishment as he. Paul was flogged by the Jews and the Romans, stoned and left for dead. He has suffered ship wreck; the dangers on the waters and land, the dangers of robbers and the dangers of his own people. Paul's religion held throughout the thick of the dangers of life because Paul knew Him. He says. "For I know whom I have believed and am persuaded that he is able to keep that." You couldn't shake Paul's faith in Christ. Those who love God, know all God's providences, however dark, cruel and mysterious, are working together for good, for those who love God. Paul, knows God has control of world and knows that back of this control there is the loving and tender heart of the Divine Father. Bear all the ills of life because we must. Glory in tribulations, in spite of all troubles. Glory in tribulation! Clear away the dross and purify the Gold. If Paul had to go through what he did, surely the sufferings of the present time are not worthy of complaint and the sufferings of the present will not even equal the glory that will come to us in the future. Paul knows no terrors before his enemies, death has no terrors to him, he rather welcomes it.

Christianity is all right, but it is our conception of it. It must not be like a coat of paint, that we put over us to free us from the dangers or life, the bondage of sin, and fear of death.

During the service, Rev. Mr. Drumm referred very feelingly to those who have lost their loved ones in this war, and stated it was not a sorrow but a pleasure for them to die for the cause of right and Christianity.

IN & ABOUT THE CITY

ACTING AS MAYOR

Ald. Woodley has been appointed by Mayor Ketcheson to act for a few days as Mayor of the city during His Worship's absence from the city.

DOORS INSECURE

During their rounds of inspection at an early hour Sunday morning, the police found two back doors of business places insecure.

FORGOT HIS LODGING HOUSE

A young man who gave his name as Roy G. Hancock, last evening applied to the Police Station for a night's lodging and was granted same. He claimed that he came to Belleville and engaged a room and lodging for a week and was unable to locate the place after dark. Hancock had been working in the country and was not acquainted in the city.

PROMINENT 80TH OFFICER WOUNDED

Today's casualties, in the list of wounded contains the name of Major S. W. Gilroy. Major Gilroy, was junior Major of the 80th Battalion, which spent the winter here. He was well known in this city and was a favorite among his fellow officers and men of the 80th Battalion.

ROYAL CANADIAN ENGINEERS

Lieut. Gerald M. Ponton, of the Canadian Engineers, will be glad to get into touch with any men of experience or adaptability who can give their King and Country the benefit of any special qualification, which fit them for any service with the Engineers, mining, mechanical, civil or surveying, tunnellers especially desired. Every endeavor will be made to employ the talents of each man along the line for which he is best fitted and those desirous of going overseas in the most important branch of the Army can have no better opportunity than that now offered. Telephone 152 or write Lieut. Ponton by whom full explanation will be given.

PREPARED A LUNCH

The ladies of the Argyll Chapter I. O. D. E. prepared a lunch of sandwiches and fruit for the 155th Battalion of Barriefield, who left for overseas on Saturday night. The boxes were sent down on the 5.40 train in the afternoon. It was not decided to serve the lunch until late Thursday night, and the Chapter wish to thank the bakers and tradesmen who so kindly worked over time in order to provide the refreshments for the battalion. There is rumor about town that the first train with A and B Companies on, did not receive their lunch, but such report is not true, as one of the officers who did not go over seas, was in town over Sunday, and says he put the lunch on the first train himself.

COBOURG HEAVY BATTERY, SEIGE ARTILLERY

A cable has just been received announcing the safe arrival in England of the 5th overseas draft of this Seige Battery, among them being Gunner J. W. Johnson, son of J. W. Johnson, M. P. P. who resigned his commission in order to get overseas at once

The 6th draft is now being formed and it is expected to leave about Christmas. The close proximity of Cobourg to Belleville, the intelligent service required in this branch and the select choice of men, commends this branch of the service especially to any young men of Belleville who have not yet joined the colors.

Gunner J. Roberts, formerly of the Union Bank, Belleville, has been reported slightly wounded. He was in charge of one of the big guns during the recent operations on the Somme and has returned to duty. The splendid works of the Cobourg Battery is known throughout the army.

Military Matters At Barriefield Heights

THE 93RD BATTALION

Has Ceased to Exist As a Separate Unit

That the 93rd Peterborough battalion has ceased to exist as a separate unit of the Canadian Expeditionary force is evidenced by a cablegram received from Capt. J. H. Burnham, paymaster of the 93rd. Capt. Burnham's message was to the effect that the staff of the battalion are being transferred to the 39th Reserve Battalion. It is generally known that many of the officers and a vast majority of the men of the Peterborough Battalion are now in France to take up the work for which they enlisted and now with the transferring of the staff to the 39th the 93rd Battalion has passed into history.

EXCURSION FROM BELLEVILLE

A large number of friends of members of the 155th battalion came down from Belleville and district by special C.N.R. train to say farewell to their friends The excursion was was under the auspices of the 15th regimental band, and the visitors were looked after by their friends while in the city. They were met at the station and escorted to the camp where they were shown all points of interest in the camp where the Hastings boys have spent the summer getting ready for war. Many expressions of surprise at the high state of efficiency and the splendid appointments of the camp were heard, and all where satisfied that everything has been done for the comforts of the boys while in training. Many of the visitors lunched with their relatives at the camp, and others came over to the city where they visited points of interest. Many of them stayed over to spend the last hours with their friends.

WAITING FOR THE KILTS

The 154th Will be in Camp only for a A few Days

There will be Scotch caps and doubtless arriving in the camp in a very few days for the 154th Battalion, but officers of the battalion do not expect the complete outfit, including kilts, before the unit leaves for England. The temporary stayover of the battalion, however, is to allow it to have part at least of the fighting Scottish garb.

Suffering Is Beyond Imagination

Citizen of Alost Tells of The Terrible Conditions That Exists in This Town

The situation here is simply frightful, writes a resident of the Belgian town of Alost, describing the conditions that exist in that place under German rule.

For the last three months, he continues, we have had no potatoes. The death rate is increasing alarmingly or account of the lack of nutrition and because of the suffering endured. Numerous cases of insanity and sudden death have been specially noticed. But what is more maddening is the fear that exists among the people that his neighbor, or the man next him, may be a German agent. The suffering endured and the pressure of such a state of affairs on the mind, are beyond imagination.

Industry in Alost, formerly prosperous, is at a standstill. Were it not for the aid given by the Belgian Relief Committee thousands of unemployed would be reduced to a state of famine.

The force of all the work done by the Belgian Relief Committee is brought out in this one statement made by one of the seven million Belgians who would starve to death today were it not for the activities of the committee. This is a man speaking. Think what all this must mean to the women—think of the terrible anguish of the little children, starved and suffering and not understanding why. The Belgian Relief Committee has to do more than feed these people; it has to keep up the morals of the Belgian populace in the occupied territory. This feature alone should be sufficient to prompt every one of the men, women and children of the allied nations, not doing his bit, to help.

There is a branch of the Belgian Relief Committee in your town, or near at hand. Surely you can see the necessity for help. The dollar that means little to you here, means much there. Help feed them and help keep up their splendid morals. Millions of dollars a month are needed to do this. If not to the committee in your town, then send your gift, large or small as you can afford, to the Belgian Relief Committee, 59 St. Peter Street, Montreal.

Puzzled President.

M. Poincare, the President of France, is not very well conversant with the English language, and this led to a curious little contretemps during his visit to England some few months back.

According to the story—which has only recently become current—he entered, when out walking one day, what he took to be a barber's shop.

Greatly to his surprise it proved to be empty of furniture, nor was there anyone there to attend to him. He tried a second, and then a third establishment with like results. Eventually he gave it up as a bad job.

Later, the President told a friend of his rather puzzling experiences.

"What made you think they were barbers' shops?" he was asked.

"Well," replied M. Poincare, "each had a sign 'Toilet' prominently displayed."

Considerably mystified, his friend asked the President to show him one of the establishments.

M. Poincare at once consented and piloted him to an empty house, the door of which had been left open in order that prospective tenants might look over the interior at their leisure.

In the window was a bill with the two words "To let."

Raised in Incubator.

John Gerald Lonsdale is the new name given the "war baby" adopted lately by Mrs. Richard Elkins, of Pittsburg, daughter-in-law of the late Senator Stephen B. Elkins, of West Virginia.

So far the youngster has had a remarkable career. The son of French parents, whose names have been withhheld, he weighed one and a half pounds at birth. The father was killed in the fighting in Flanders. The mother died shortly after its birth.

In a desperate effort to save the youngster's life, he was placed in an incubator at Coney Island, and later transferred to Atlantic City. Mrs. Elkins saw the child at Atlantic City and adopted it. John Gerald Lonsdale is the family name of Mrs. Elkins.

One of Them Seemed Inclined to Commit Burglary

By ETHEL HOLMES

To women flowers are irresistible. Men sometimes love flowers, but it is questionable if any man ever felt toward them as a woman may feel. To a man flowers may be beautiful; to a woman they may be companions. She may tell them what lies nearest to her heart, and she will derive sympathy from them.

Effie Tisdale was one of those girls to whom flowers thus appeal. In the spring she would watch for the first wild flowers and take long walks in the country to gather them. She would have cultivated flowers had there been any ground for the purpose about her home. Living in a city, she was obliged to go elsewhere for her favorites.

One day toward the close of the summer, when the flowers that are cultivated in the open were fast shedding their petals, Effie concluded to take one of her long walks. If she could not find flowers she might at least enjoy a beautiful view she had often looked upon several miles from the town. It was a good day for walking, the air coming out of the northwest and laden with the first crispness of autumn. She stepped out briskly, drinking in the beauties of natural scenery as only one can who has been endowed with the gift of such appreciation. When she came to the view she sought she sat on a stone and feasted her eyes upon it, her whole being refreshed with it as if she had drunk some delicious beverage. She was looking from an eminence toward a gap between two ranges of hills or, more properly, mountains. In places the foliage had begun to lose its deep summer green. Here and there a light smoke from some house curled up against the landscape. Over all the afternoon sun spread a golden glow.

When Effie had feasted her eyes for some time she arose for her return, which she chose to make by another route. At the foot of the declivity beneath her the road turned and led into another which would take her back home. She descended from her perch, her eyes lingering upon the view before her as she walked, passed around the bend and ascended another rise in the ground. On this elevation was a country place. The awnings to protect the windows and the porch from the sun were still in their places; wicker chairs and hammocks had not been taken in.

The gate was open. A gravel walk led up to the house and a conservatory beside it. Most of the plants had been removed from their beds to their glass winter home. The open gate and the gravel walk were inviting. Effie was drawn by the sight of verdure under the transparent house to go in and inhale that delicious odor so enjoyable to lovers of plants. But dare she? That was a question she alone could decide.

She looked longingly for some time into the inclosure, expecting to see some one moving about. Despite the appearance of occupancy, no one appeared. The place had surely not been closed for the coming winter or the porch furniture would have been removed. If sure the occupants had gone away, Effie thought she would venture in; if not, she would refrain.

While she was peering wistfully she heard a step, and a young man in hunting costume and with a gun on his shoulder approached. Effie wondered if he would know whether the coast was clear.

"Can you tell me," she asked, "whether the family living in that house are there now?"

"Why do you wish to know?" asked the young man.

"Because—because—well, I would like to go in and look about—the conservatory"—

"You don't mean that you are afraid to do so?" the huntsman interrupted.

"It isn't that. If the family were not there it wouldn't be so much like trespassing."

"But it would be trespassing all the same, wouldn't it?"

"I don't know. There would be no one there to be offended."

"Well, such being the case, suppose we go in and have a look."

"I will if there's no one except the caretaker."

"There isn't. The occupants went to the city yesterday, leaving the butler to close up. Come! Let's go in and make ourselves at home."

Effie shrank back. "I only wish to see the plants in the conservatory," she said. "I don't know if I would be allowed there."

"I'll be allowed there," was the reply, "and if any one attempts to put me out he'll have to fight for the privilege."

The timid girl looked with admiration and envy on this fearless man who dare invade another's premises and followed him meekly into the grounds. She felt somewhat anxious, since he had a gun, lest he might shoot some one. But when he reached the house he deposited the weapon, together with his other hunting paraphernalia, on the porch, then continued his way toward the conservatory. The door stood open and, deferentially standing aside for Effie to pass in, he followed her. She stood inside, looking around her admiringly.

"How different the air in here from outside!" she said.

"Kind of moldy—something like the inside of a tomb."

"Not at all like a tomb. It's a home for living plants. The odor is their breath."

She stepped up to some flowers that were fading and inhaled their perfume.

"I love flowers. Don't you?" she asked.

"I did once, but after attending a succession of funerals I have come to dislike them."

"What a pity! They seem like beloved friends to me. They talk to me."

"I've heard girls say that before. I wonder what it means. What do they say to you?"

"All sorts of nice things."

He led the way to a bank of chrysanthemums and said, addressing them:

"Hello, Santhy! How are you feeling today?"

After pretending to listen to the reply he asked Effie if she knew what it was.

"What was it?" she asked.

"Santhy says that I have a very nice girl with me, but I'm doing very wrong in leading her to trespass on other persons' property."

This recalled Effie to the situation, and she looked anxiously toward the door.

"Don't be frightened," said the young man, then addressing the flower: "Santhy, just you tell whoever is in charge of this place that I can throw stones even if I do live in a glass house."

He said this with a pretense of valor that made Effie wonder all the more, though she was a bit frightened at the prospect of a battle with the butler.

"Santhy's talking to me again," said the poacher. "He says: 'Take all the flowers you want and give them to the little girl with you. She's just the daintiest, prettiest creature that has ever been in this conservatory. Don't you see all the flowers bowing their heads before her? Look at that aster over there. He's dying of envy of you.'"

This sounded very pleasant to Effie, and she blushed a little.

"Which one of you flowers," continued the young man, "could put on a tint like that? The best any of you could do would be like the paint on a red wagon in comparison. All you're fit for is to decorate her."

With this he began to gather such flowers as were in bloom and turn them over to Effie.

"Oh, don't!" she cried. "You mustn't! That's robbery!"

"I love robbery. I think I would like to have been a burglar. By the bye, suppose we break into the house."

He said this so seriously that Effie was not sure but that he meant it. At any rate, she caught her breath.

When he had loaded her with flowers he said:

"Come; let's see what we can find elsewhere. If I meet any one I'll make him set up something to eat."

Urging Effie to go with him, he left the conservatory and, ascending the porch, rang the bell. The summons was answered by a middle aged serving woman.

"Is there anything left in the larder?" asked the burglar.

"Bring them out and make a pitcher of fruit punch."

Effie's mind was so imbued with the belief that her companion was a trespasser that it did not occur to her that he had any right whatever to give such an order. Her imagination helped her to hear this order given in a commanding tone. Instead of waiting for the refreshment she took to flight. Laughing, the young man ran after her.

"Hold on," he said, "and I'll explain. I live here. My mother and sisters have gone to town. I remained for some shooting. Forgive me for imposing upon you. You looked so wistfully innocent when I saw you peering in at the gate that I couldn't help it. Won't you take a bite with me on the porch? The butler's wife will wait on us."

Effie had no mind to accept such an invitation, though she consented to keep the flowers. Her entertainer offered to take her home in his car, but she declined this offer too. Bidding him good day, she set off to walk home. Presently she heard the sound of an auto behind her, and along came the trespasser. He drove the car beside her and finally convinced her that she might as well ride with a strange man as walk while he rode beside her.

When a man determines to get a woman for himself his superior dominant power is a great advantage to him. This man had impressed this girl with the fact that he possessed a daring which was foreign to herself, and, though he had admitted that he had been chaffing her, the impression did not fade. He had followed her in his auto and rendered it absurd for her to be walking while she might be riding. Besides, she would much rather ride with an agreeable young man than walk alone.

Thus far it was all resistance on her part. Now they came to a part of the road where it forked. One fork led to her home directly, the other by a roundabout way. The driver turned into the latter road. Effie made no move to induce him to take the other. Perhaps she delayed till too late. An auto is a hard vehicle to turn. It requires much backing. When they reached her home they had ridden many miles.

During the following winter a sister of Effie's entertainer called on her, and she was the recipient of flowers from the conservatory on which she had trespassed.

In And About The City

CITY COUNCIL

A regular meeting of the City Council will be held this evening. There are some matters of more or less importance to be considered.

VIOLATED MOTOR ACT

Last evening the police detected an auto which was being driven about the streets with only one marker, which is contrary to the Motor Act.

A CORRECTION

In Saturday's issue appeared an item bearing the heading Belleville boy injured. It referred to the honors to be bestowed upon F. L. Yeomans son of Dr. Yeomans, and should have read a Belleville boy honored.

KNOCKED DOWN BY AUTO

Auto No. 22742 owned and driven by Mr. C. French of Melville, on Saturday knocked down a lad named Fred C. West who was riding a wheel on Bridge Street. The boy was taken to a physician and examined but fortunately his injuries were slight.

RESIGNATION OF POLICEMAN

Police Officer Corrigan, who has been connected with the Belleville police force for some years has resigned and yesterday completed his duties. Mr. Corrigan will in the future devote his time to farming in the Township of Murray, a short distance west of Sidney Township.

EXTENDED THANKS

The ladies of St. Michael's congregation wish to thank their friends for responding so generously in making their Tea and Musicle, held in the Quinte Tea Rooms, such a decided success. The sum realized was $63.30 which will be used to procure Christmas comforts for our boys in the trenches.

Those New "Bran Foods"—a new one is born every week—a recognition of the need of food laxatives instead of drug laxatives. The problem of presenting bran to the human stomach in combination with a nutritious, easily digested food was solved twenty years ago by the invention of Shredded Wheat Biscuit, the food that supplies all the body-building material in the whole wheat grain in a digestible form, combined with bran, which is Nature's laxative. A body-building, strength-giving food. Serve with milk or cream or sliced peaches and cream or other fruits.

WANDERED AWAY

The police last evening were called to a residence in West Belleville to assist in search of an aged lady who had wandered away from home. About two hours later the woman was found in the vicinity of the second overhead bridge on the boundry line of the city, and she intimated she was enroute to Trenton to visit friends.

UNDERWENT AN OPERATION

Rev. A. S. Kerr, the popular Pastor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Belleville, was on Saturday evening taken suddenly ill and yesterday morning he was conveyed to the city hospital. Later he was operated on for appendicitis. The Rev. gentleman's many friends in the city will be pleased to learn that he withstood the operation well and his condition today is improved.

Had "Tracer" Bullets.

According to The Daily Express, the British Government, through the American Embassy, has made representations to Germany on behalf of two captured British aviators, who are to be tried by court-martial because "tracer bullets" were found in their possession. The Government explained that tracer bullets are used by all belligerents as machine-gun ammunition for the purpose of correcting the gunner's aim, and do not contravene The Hague convention.

After saying that Great Britain told Germany that tracer bullets were found on board the Zeppelin whose crew surrendered recently in England, The Express adds: "It is hoped that the Government made it clear to Germany that the crew of this Zeppelin will be treated in precisely the same manner as our airmen."

Born in India.

It is a remarkable coincidence that the two British airmen who have brought down Zeppelins should both have been born in India. The late Lieut. Warneford was connected with Kuch Behar; Lieut. Robinson was born in Coorg, and spent several years of his boyhood there. Coorg is a little province in South India at the edge of the Western Ghats, with an administration of its own.

BRITISH RED CROSS

One branch, only, of the myriad British Red Cross activities, takes care of the transportation of the sick and wounded from Field Hospital to Clearing Hospital, thence by special trains and ships, to the great Hospitals in England. Thousands of motor ambulances are in use. Thousands of volunteers help. So smooth and quick is the work that many a stricken defender is wounded to-day, to awaken next morning in the comfort and quiet of a great Red Cross Hospital in kindly England. Maybe the Red Cross train has been stopped on some siding to permit of a life-saving operation. Maybe the sufferer now needs special medical apparatus, special clothing, special treatment for blind eyes, special convalescing training—or comforts, books, food, etc.—if so, the British Red Cross is there with millon-fold, generous hands and hearts.

The generosity of Ontario is appealed to for gifts on "Our Day," Thursday, October 19th, in common with the whole British Empire. ## THE HON. ROBT. ROGERS.

Mr. Rodgers does not appear to have much respect for Judge Galt, nor fear of the result of the investigation before him into the Carter-Hates-Aidinger contract, in re the construction of the Agricultural College in Manitoba.

A telegram from Winnipeg of the 12th inst., states that Mr. Rodgers, "has been invited by the Galt Commission to have council to represent him during the argument which is to take place, on the evidence given when the question of at additional sum having been paid to the contractor over and above the contract price. Mr. Rodgers replyed in a way not to be misunderstood. Here it is:—

Montreal, Que., Oct. 11.—"To F. A. Macdonald, registrar, care Commissioner A. C. Galt, Winnipeg.

"I have your letter of the 5th to say that Commissioner Galt will bear arguments on behalf of all persons interested in his investigation. In so far as I am concerned the facts have been given clearly and fully by me, and it is only with the facts that I am concerned.

"I have no interest whatever in what the commissioner may choose to find.

"Even had I such interest, I cannot see that it would be of any value now to have counsel present who could only add to the farce with an argument in a matter that the commissioner has already, and before the evidence was heard, announced the verdict.

FALSE RUMORS

When sensational and malcontent Politicians who want place and power can find nothing else with which to besmear public men in power, they resort to the old and worn-out tactics of defamatory theorizing, that members of the cabinet are weak and incompetent. Notably these charges are being hurled at Permier Borden and Premier Hearst, two men who compare favorably with any of their predecessors.

The last shot that was fired at the Ontario Cabinet, was that dissensions prevailed among its members, and that Mr. Hearst was to retire in disgust. This charge has been exploded. An item in the Toronto World says:—

"All rumors that differnces in the party might be smoothed out by the retirement of Mr. Hearst and a cabinet reconstruction were definitely laid to rest yesterday by no less a person than the provincial premier himself. Mr. Hearst says he is going to stick, that he has no idea of resigning, that he has not been offered a judgeship, and that he has no intention of going upon the bench."

This denial will not stop the malcontents. They will continue the lie in the hope that it will stick some where.

◆

The British authorities have taken from the International News Service the right of access to the Official Press Bureau, where censors who do not know what news is mutilate the work of men who do. They have also forbidden the use of the telegraph services to the same agency. The result may surprise the Englishmen. Their country is not peculiar in having men who can make what people take for news without any communication with or from the place they choose as the scene of the events they describe. Long before the late Pope Leo ended his life enterprising papers on this continent pictured the scene at his deathbed, and even reported his dying words. When the Titanic went down reports that the people on board had been rescued and were on their way to Halifax gave brief relief, and then heavier anxiety to anxious waiters for news of friends; and at the investigation it was indicated that the reports came from Montreal. The condemned agencies will continue to spread reports of things that do not happen, and sometimes of things that do happen, in spite of the prohibition.

◆

Montreal Heald: According to calculation made by the British Export Gazette, Germany has lost $5,000,000,000 worth of trade since the beginning of the war. Put into concrete form, and taking 1913 as a standard for calculation, Germany so far has lost $975,000,000 in exports to the British Empire! $402,500,000 to France and French possessions; $480,000,000 to Russia; $270,000,000 to Belgium; $100,000,000 to Italy; and another $100,000,000 to the other ocuntries with which she is at war, or, in round figures, nearly $2,500,000,000. In return she would have received raw materials, produce and manufactures to the value of $585,000,000 from the British Empire, $330,000,000 from France and French possssions, $722,000,000 from Russia, $170,000.000 from Belgium, $11,500,000 from Italy, and $55,000,000 from other countries she is fighting—another $2,500,000,000 in round figures.

The government soon will offer the public bonds of denominations of $10 and upwards. These will be purchasable through the banks and will yield the investor approximately 5 per cent. and will be redeemable in five years. They are designed to attract the surplus funds of several hundred thousand people who have comparatively small amounts to invest, who will also be given an opportunity to buy Dominion treasury debenture stock. These investments are safe; they will always have a market, and investors will have the satisfaction of knowing that their savings are helping to win the war.

Toronto News: Charges of graft in military expenditure are perpetually made by those public men and newspaper editors whose political antipathies have overcome their judgment. The Kingston Whig, in speaking of the efforts in England to unearth the profiteer and prevent further losses to the nation, says in conclusion: "There is no screen for the plunderer, no apology for the political offender, and no way of escape from the punishment that fits the crime. Canada can learn a lesson from the Mother Country in this as in other matters." The object of that sentence is to say, by implication, that rats are in our financial granary, that graft is common, and that when discovered it is not punished. The same old slander.

Speaking at London, Mr. Fowell expressed his great concern that the Hydro-Electric service should be "kept out of politics." Mr. Rowell is not dull, nor are other people as dull as he thinks they are.—Toronto News.

The Methodist General Board of Missions has fixed the salaries of those it sends forth to gather the harvest. The rates vary from $500 to $900 a year in the easteon field and from $600 to $1,000 in the western. This is, no doubt, the best that the finances will permit.

There was advertised to be sold in New York, Saturday, the silk and gold ceiling that adorned the council chamber of the Emperor's palace in Pekin when in 1902 the allied troops of the west captured the Chinese capital, punished the Boxers, and showed the yellow men what civilization means.

The stock market is a very useful animal, but it cannot be guaranteed sound in wind and limb and free from vice. It is like one of those light chestnut horses—beautiful to look at, but all nerves. Until you see, the direction in which its ears point you cannot tell whether it is going to balk or to bolt. A mere scrap of paper being blown across the road may scare it into frenzied activity.

At the end of September, which marks half of the current fiscal year, Canadian trade totalled $791,000,000, compared with $399,000,000 for the same period a year ago. Bank deposits at the end of August aggregated $1,250,000,000, an increase of more than $250,000,000 during the year. The national revenue at the close of the fiscal year, to end in March next, will propbably exceed $200,000,000.

ANXIOUS FOR NEWS.

Germans Feel That They Have Been Kept in Ignorance of Facts.

The time is evidently approaching when the German authorities will be powerless to resist the popular demand for the modification of the censorship which, it is generally claimed, serves only to keep the German people in ignorance while it has failed to keep news from leaking through to enemy countries, says a Berlin despatch.

Even a paper like The Vossische Zeitung finds occasion to endorse this demand of the German public to know the full truth, pleasant or otherwise.

"Let us put an end to the censorship," the paper says, "for every foreign country is very accurately informed on everything that happens here, whether it has been published in the papers or kept secret."

Patriotic German journalists, discussing the usefulness of the censorship when in the hands of military officers with no newspaper experience, agree that the German Government has created a fertile soil for secret circulars and pamphlets which are passed from hand to hand, slipped into millions of private letter boxes, or pushed under the door, and these pamphlets do unspeakable harm by adding to the confusion of the public mind, and by spreading disorder and war lassitude.

"It is not exactly stimulating at this time when you need all your patriotism to bear up under the blows which our country has suffered during these last three months," one of these journalists said, "to find your morning mail practically every day consisting chiefly of typewritten manifests or scandalous appeals printed in some obscure establishment in which 'A group of patriots' or 'The united workingmen of X. . .' 'The mothers and housewives of Y. . . .' ask you to exercise your rights as a German citizen and demand peace and food, if you do not wish to make yourself an accomplice in the crime of starving German families to death."

As an example, one of these anonymous pamphlets read:

"At the front our brave soldiers no longer salute their officers. Should we show more respect towards these super-patriots who are sending our fathers, brothers, sons, and sweethearts to the slaughter house in order to grasp a few miles of ground?"

Another says:

"We have bought the assistance of those contemptible Turks, who in turn despise us. We have entered into a dreadful war for the sake of our ally, Austria, which is falling to pieces, and we shall have to pay a high price for our loyalty. Prussia is pushing the confederated states to the last extremity, and we have brought upon ourselves the hatred of the entire world to no use whatever. This is the inheritance which our children will get from us.

"We social democrats do not want any annexation of territory, we do not want foreign people brought under German rule, who in time of danger will jump at our throat with the desperate strength of the oppressed. We want to rid ourselves of the junkers, and of the military madmen who in their insatiable thirst for conquest.

"We want peace, nothing but peace! Let us not be too proud, now that all Europe is against us, to offer peace now, when we were not too proud two years ago to violate it."

Independent of Germany.

Dr. William H. Welch, the noted pathologist, who went to Europe on [illegible] tion, returned here a few days ago, firm in the conviction that the war will end in favor of the Allies, but expressing the belief that the end is not yet in sight. Dr. Welch made a careful study of the effect of shell shock on soldiers and the method of treating such cases. Speaking of matters related to science, Dr. Welch said:

"Britain will not neglect science after the war as she did before. She is no longer dependent on Germany for lenses, etc. A council has been organized as part of the Privy Council of the Kingdom and the ablest scientists of Britain are working with it. This council considers not only the industries which bear upon the war, but those which bear upon the whole good of the nation."

BARN CONSUMED WITH CONTENTS

KINGSTON, Oct. 14.—Early last evening a barn and stable in Portsmouth, belonging to Frank Burke, the well-known Brock street butcher, were totally destroyed by fire, which broke out in the hayloft of the stable. Mrs. Marks, a resident of the village, was the first to notice the flames shooting out of the roof of the stable which is situated behind the village hall, and a call was immediately sent in to the city fire department. Telephone trouble was experienced in getting the firemen, but as soon as connections could be made at 6.15 the brigade responded promptly and arrived at the scene in record time. The building was too far gone for them to render much assistance, but they soon had it under control, and by hard work prevented the spreading of the flames to adjacent houses.

The cause of the fire is unknown, but it is understood to have started in the loft. The horses and rigs below were taken out before the fire reached them. The stable burned very quickly, due to the dry condition of the framework and the large quantity of hay and straw in the loft.

Besides the building, Mr. Burke lost several tons of hay and a set of harness. Mr. Burke estimates his loss at $1,500, partly covered by insurance.

GREEK KING PLANNED TO STRIKE ALLIES

Was to Be Entrenched in Thessaly Until Arrival of Germans

LONDON, Oct. 14.—According to Athens despatches received here, the Entente allies sent their ultimatum to Greece because they had unearthed a Royalist plot to fight the Entente. It was planned the despatches add, that if the allies should seek to coerce Greece into joining the war and try to force Eliptherios Venizelos upon King Constantine, the King should retire northward along the railway, taking the troops with him, and concentrate at Trikala, in Thessaly, and lie entrenched there until the arrival of the German army, when he would strike in unison with them at the allies.

IRISH UNIONISTS WANT IRISH CONSCRIPTION

Pass Resolution in Favor of it and Express Readiness to Aid Government

LONDON, Oct. 14.—The Irish Unionist members of the House of Commons have passed a resolution declaring that the government should extend the Military Service Act to Ireland and expressing their readiness to assist the government in this and all other measures which are necessary to increase the strength of the armies in the field.

Sir Edward Carson, speaking in the House of Commons, following Premier Asquith, said that the question of man power, especially from the reserve power of Ireland must be raised and debated before long.

The Seven Churches

Evangelist Johnston Preaches The First of a Series on Most Interesting Biblical Subject

A goodly crowd, as usual, assembled at the hall on Campbell Street, two doors west of the Y.M.C.A., to hear Evangelist Johnston present his initial sermon of a series on "The Seven Churches." Taking as his text Rev. 2: 1-7, he showed first of all that these seven churches were symbolic of seven periods in the history of the Christian church, beginning with Apostolic times and closing with the final completion of earth's great drama. The first church called "Ephesus", which means desirable as a fitting appelation to apply to the early Christian church, for in harmony with the commission in Matt. 28:19,20, the Apostles went forth to preach, and the day of Pentecost, and subsequent experiences are indeed a proof of the early triumph of the Gospel. Christ walking in the midst of the Candlesticks, Rev. 2:1, is a proof of Christ's presence among His people; for the Seven Candlesticks are declared in Chap. 1:20, to be the seven churches. But the presence of Christ is promised on conditions in Matt. 28:19,20, and from this very Scripture we learn of two. First the disciples were to preach the Gospel, verse 19, and teach the commandments or the law, verse 20, and upon these conditions that the Apostles teach both, He promises in the last clause of verse 20: "Lo, I am with you always." If therefore, Christian ministers teach Gospel only, and leave out the commandments, they do not fulfil the divine commission. Mr. Johnston proved from the Bible that it was Jesus Christ, or God the son, who gave the ten precepts on Mount Sinai. Thus when the Lord told us to teach what he commanded, he meant the ten commandments, and also whatever he commanded in addition, as found in the New Testament. The Evangelist showed the relation of the law to the Gospel. First he said the law defines sin, I John 3:4, and that the Gospel saves from sin. He said that because the early church practised these truths that the presence of Christ was with them, and as long as they followed the Bible they could not tolerate anything false, as the text declares in Rev. 2:2,3. But in verse 4 the Lord said that later in their history they departed from their first love because they began to disobey. He defined what love is in 1 John 5:2,3, and showed that those who depart from the commandments of the Lord lose their love, John 14:15,21. A keen interest was manifested among the many listeners, not only in the clear-cut presentation of the theme itself, but also in the usual enthusiasm of the speaker.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

MARKS BROS. AT GRIFFIN'S TONIGHT AND ALL WEEK

It will be a pleasure for the friends and acquaintances in this city to know that May A. Bell Marks, the people's favorite actress, will be seen here at the Head of the Marks Bros, No 1 Company for the stay of one week, commencing to-night, with the usual popular ladies' and children's matinees on Wednesday and Saturday.

The name of R. W. Marks is a guarantee to everyone that they will witness plays that no other attraction can secure, for Mr. Marks is presenting this season a list of standard stage successes, for which presentation he has secured the sole Canadian rights under an agreement of large royalty to the authors, and an elaborate production will be given each play, as they are noted for their particularness for paying special and strict attention to all the details of electrical effects and mountings, and this season the company is augmented by specialties which will be presented between the acts thus doing away with the tedious waits. Special attention has been given the catchy vaudeville program, and the merit of their performances, it is said, will be a matter of town talk before the closing performance of this company here. The play selected for the opening performance tonight is Bayard Veiller's brilliant stage success "Within the Law" which will be presented here for the first time at popular prices.

THOUSAND DOLLAR HUSBAND AT PALACE TO-NIGHT

The supreme screen artist, Blanche Sweet, appears at the Palace Theatre, tonight and Tuesday, matinee and night, in a beautiful pictorial version of Margaret Turnbull's story, "The Thousand Dollar Husband." In all previous Lasky productions Miss Sweet has husbands thrust upon her. She has been pursued by many admirers and many at her feet. In this photoplay she buys a husband and strange as it may seem, the purchaser does not welcome the sale. In this production she is first seen as a Swedish maid of all work in a college boarding house. Later when she becomes suddenly wealthy she is seen in the role of a society lady. The many unique experiences she is forced to undergo, and how she eventually wins the love of her husband goes to make one of the most unusual photodramas of year. The Lasky Company has surrounded Miss Sweet with a cast of unusual excellence, including, Theodore Roberts, T. Forman, Jane Wolff, Horace B. Carpenter, Lucile LaVarney, and others. Besides the above five part offering, the third chapter of the popular Selig Athletic series will be exhibited along with a new and very amusing Bray Komedy Kartoon.

WEDDING BELLS.

COON—MILLS

A quiet but pleasing wedding took place on Wednesday, Oct 11th at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Mills, Pleasant View, when their eldest daughter Eva Blanche was united in matrimony to Wilbur L. Coon, of 4th Concession of Sidney.

The ceremony was conducted at 10.30 a.m. Rev. L. M. Sharpe, in the presence of the families and a few immediate friends of the contracting parties The young couple were unattended and the simplicity of the event throughout was quiet in keeping, as the bride is well known for her admiration of grace and beauty in simple and natural lines, while the absence of the groom's only brother among the fearful struggles of the Somme could hardly be forgotten even amidst the nuptial joys.

After very warm congratulations and the usual signing of the register the company partook of the festive luncheon, which was nicely served and much enjoyed.

The bride was dressed in white silk and her going away costume was a suite of Saxe blue with hat to match.

The presents to the bride were numerous and proved her popularity in our midst.

FOUND MISSING TOT IN REFRIGERATOR

Fireman Enright, of the upper station was a very much worried individual last evening while searching for his little daughter in the neighborhood of his Chatham Street home. The child disappeared shortly after supper and when the calls of her mother failed to bring a response a search was instituted. Ropes were procured and an old well in the yard was dragged while every nook and corner was inspected.

After a long hunt the child turned up. She had been sleeping in an old refrigerator on the rear step. Asked why she got in there, the little one said:

"Me heard daddy say, he'd make me thome in the house, so I just got in dere and went to sleep."—Kingston Standard.

THE GUEST OF QUESNAY

She stood in profile to me. There were some jasmine flowers at her breast. I could see them rise and fall with more than deep breathing.

"I haven't had my life. It's gone!" It was almost as if I heard his voice close at hand with all the passion of regret and protest that rang in the words when they broke from him in the forest. And by some miraculous conjecture within the moment I seemed not only to hear his voice, but actually to see him, a figure dressed in white, far below us and small with the distance, standing out in the moonlight in the middle of the tree bordered avenue leading to the chateau gates.

I rose and leaned over the railing. There was no doubt about the reality of the figure in white, though it was too far away to be identified with certainty, and as I rubbed my eyes for clearer sight it turned and disappeared into the shadows of the orderly grove where I had stood one day to watch Louise Harman ascend the slopes of Quesnay.

"And, oh, doesn't he make one sorry for him."

But I told myself sensibly that more than one man on the coast of Normandy might be wearing white flannels that evening and, turning to my companion, found that she had moved some steps away from me and was gazing eastward to the sea. I concluded that she had not seen the figure.

The round moon was white and at its smallest, high overhead, when at midnight I stepped out of the phaeton from which Miss Elizabeth sent me back to Mme. Brossard's.

When my lamp was extinguished I set my door ajar, moved my bed out from the wall to catch whatever breeze might stir, "composed myself for the night," as it used to be written, and lay looking out upon the quiet garden, where a thin white haze was rising. Just as I had begun to drowse the gallery steps creaked and the noble form of Keredec emerged upon my field of vision. From the absence of the sound of footsteps I supposed him to be either barefooted or in his stockings. His visible costume consisted of a sleeping jacket tucked into a pair of trousers, while his tousled hair and beard and generally tossed and rumpled look were those of a man who had been lying down temporarily.

I heard him sigh—like one sighing for sleep—as he went noiselessly across the garden and out through the archway to the road. At that I sat straight up in bed to stare, and well I might, for here was a miracle! He had lifted his arms above his head to stretch himself comfortably, and he walked upright and at ease, whereas when I had last seen him the night before he had been able to do little more than crawl, bent far over and leaning painfully upon his friend. Never man beheld a more astonishing recovery from a bad case of rheumatism.

After a long look down the road he retraced his steps, and the moonlight, striking across his great forehead as he came, revealed the furrows plowed there by an anxiety of which I guessed the cause. The creaking of the wooden stairs and gallery and the whine of an old door announced that he had returned to his vigil.

I had perhaps a quarter of an hour to consider this performance, when it was repeated; now, however, he only glanced out into the road, retreating hastily, and I saw that he was smiling, while the speed he maintained in returning to his quarters was remarkable for one so newly convalescent.

The next moment Saffren came through the archway, ascended the steps in turn—but slowly and carefully, as if fearful of waking his guardian—and I heard his door closing very gently. Long before his arrival, however, I had been certain of his identity with the figure I had seen gazing up at the terraces of Quesnay from the borders of the grove. Other questions remained to bother me: Why had Keredec not prevented this night roving and why, since he did permit it, should he conceal his knowledge of it from Oliver? And what, oh, what wondrous specific had the mighty man found for his disease?

A note lay beside my plate next morning addressed in a writing strange to me, one of dashing and vigorous character. It read:

> In the pursuit of thrilling scientific research, what with the tumult which possessed me, I forgot to mention the bond that links us. I, too, am a painter, though as yet unhonored and unhung. It must be only because I lack a gentle hand to guide me. If I might sit beside you as you paint! The hours pass on leaden wings at Quesnay. I could shriek. Do not refuse me a few words of instruction, either in the wildwood, whither I could support your shrinking steps, or from time to time as you work in your studio, which I glean from the instructive Mr. Ferrec is at Les Trois Pigeons. At any hour, at any moment, I will speed to you. I am, sir, yours, if you will but breathe a "yes,"
>
> ANNE ELLIOTT.

To this I returned a reply, as much in her own key as I could write it, putting my refusal on the ground that I was not at present painting in the studio. I added that I hoped her suit might prosper, regretting that I could not be of greater assistance to that end, and concluded with the suggestion that Mme. Brossard might entertain an offer for lessons in cooking.

The result of my attempt to echo her vivacity was discomfiting, and I was allowed to perceive that epistolary jocularity was not thought to be my line. It was Miss Elizabeth who gave me this instruction three days later, on the way to Quesnay for "second breakfast." Exercising fairly shamefaced diplomacy, I had avoided dining at the chateau again, but by arrangement she had driven over for me this morning in the phaeton.

"Why are you writing silly notes to that child?" she demanded as soon as we were away from the inn.

"Was it silly?"

"You should know. Do you think that style of humor suitable for a young girl?"

This bewildered me a little. "But there wasn't anything offensive"—

"No?" Miss Elizabeth lifted her eyebrows to a height of bland inquiry. "She mightn't think it rather—well, rough? Your suggesting that she should take cooking lessons?"

"But she suggested she might take painting lessons," was my feeble protest. "I only meant to show her I understood that she wanted to get to the inn."

"And why should she care to 'get to the inn'?"

"She seemed interested in a young man who is staying there. 'Interested' is the mildest word for it I can think of."

At the chateau, having a mind to offer some sort of apology, I looked anxiously about for the subject of our rather disquieting conversation, but she was not to be seen until the party assembled at the table, set under an awning on the terrace.

Mrs. Harman had not appeared at all, having gone to call upon some one at Dives, I was told, and, a servant informing me, on inquiry, that Miss Elliott had retired to her room, I was thrust upon my own devices indeed.

CHAPTER VIII.

I WENT home. Outside the inn I saw Miss Elizabeth's phaeton.

But it was not Miss Elizabeth who had come in the phaeton, though a lady from Quesnay did prove to be the occupant. At sight of her I halted stockstill under the archway.

There she sat, a sketchbook on a green table beside her and a board in her lap, brazenly painting, and a more blushless piece of assurance than Miss Anne Elliott thus engaged these eyes have never beheld.

She was not so hardened that she did not affect a little timidity at sight of me, looking away even more quickly than she looked up, while I walked slowly over to her and took the garden chair beside her. That gave me a view of her sketch, which was a violent little "lay-in" of shrubbery, trees and the sky line of the inn. To my prodigious surprise and, naturally enough, with a degree of pleasure I perceived that it was not very bad—not bad at all, indeed. It displayed a sense of values, of placing and even in a young and frantic way of color. Here was a young woman of more than "accomplishments!"

"You see," she said, squeezing one of the tiny tubes almost dry and continuing to paint with a fine effect of absorption, "I had to show you that I was in the most abysmal earnest. Will you take me painting with you?"

"I appreciate your seriousness," I rejoined. "Has it been rewarded?"

"How can I say? You haven't told me whether or no I may follow you to the wildwood."

"I mean, have you caught another glimpse of Mr. Saffren?"

At that she showed a prettier color in her cheeks than any in her sketchbook, but gave no other sign of shame nor even of being flustered, cheerfully replying:

"That is far from the point. Do you grant my burning plea?"

"I understood I had offended you."

"You did," she said. "Viciously?"

"I am sorry," I continued. "I wanted to ask you to forgive me"—

"What made you think I was offended?"

"Your look of reproach when you left the table"—

"I was only playing offended. I thought your note was fetching!" she said.

"Will you take me painting with you?" she added. "If it will convince you that I mean it I'll give up my hopes of seeing that sumptuous Mr. Saffren and go back to Quesnay now, before he comes home. You can't know how enervating it is up there at the chateau—all except Mrs. Harman, and even she"—

"What about Mrs. Harman?" I asked as she paused.

"I think she must be in love."

"What?"

"I do think so," said the girl. "She's like it, at least. I'm afraid she's my rival!"

"Not with"— I began.

"Yes, with your beautiful and mad young friend."

"But—oh, it's preposterous!" I cried, profoundly disturbed. "She couldn't be! If you knew a great deal about her"—

"I may know more than you think. My simplicity of appearance is deceptive," she mocked, beginning to set her sketch box in order. "You don't realize that Mrs. Harman and I are quite buried upon each other at Quesnay, being two ravishingly intelligent women entirely surrounded by large bodies of elementals. She has told me a great deal of herself since that first evening, and I know—well, I know why she did not come back from Dives this afternoon, for instance."

"Why?" I fairly shouted.

She slid her sketch into a groove in the box, which she closed, and rose to her feet before answering.

"I might tell you some day," she said indifferently, "if I gained enough confidence in you through association in daily pursuits."

"My dear young lady," I cried with real exasperation, "I am a workingman, and this is a working summer for me!"

"Do you think I'd spoil it?" she urged gently.

"But I get up with the first daylight to paint," I protested, "and I paint all day"—

Oliver Saffren had come in from the road and was crossing to the gallery steps. He lifted his hat and gave me a quick word of greeting as he passed, and at the sight of his flushed and happy face my riddle was solved for me. Amazing as the thing was, I had no doubt of the revelation.

"Ah," I said to Miss Elliott when he had gone, "I won't have to take pupils to get the answer to my question now!"

It was evening when I heard Saffren's voice calling my name.

"Here," I answered from my veranda, where I had just lighted my second cigar.

"No more work tonight! All finished!" he cried jubilantly, springing down the steps. "I'm coming to have a talk with you.

"I won't sit down," he said. "I'll walk up and down in front of the veranda if it doesn't make you nervous."

For answer I merely laughed, and he laughed, too, in genial response, continuing gayly:

"Oh, it's all so different with me! Everything is. That blind feeling I told you of—it's all gone. I must have been very babyish the other day. I don't think I could feel like that again. It used to seem to me that I lived penned up in a circle of blank stone walls. I couldn't see over the top for myself at all, though now and then Keredec would boost me up and let me get a little glimmer of the country roundabout, but never long enough to see what it was really like. But it's not so now. Ah"—he drew a long breath—"I'd like to run. I think I could run all the way to the top of a pretty fair sized mountain tonight and then"—he laughed—"jump off and ride on the clouds."

He paused in his sentry go, facing me, and said in a low voice:

"I've seen her again."

"Yes; I know."

"But that's not all," he said, his voice rising a little. "I saw her again the day after she told you"—

"You did!" I murmured.

"Oh, I tell myself that it's a dream," he cried, "that it can't be true, for it has been every day since then! That's why I haven't joined you in the woods. I have been with her, walking with her, listening to her, looking at her, always feeling that it must be unreal and that I must try not to wake up. She has been so kind—so wonderfully, beautifully kind to me!"

"She has met you?" I asked, thinking ruefully of George Ward, now on the high seas in the pleasant company of old hopes renewed.

"She has let me meet her. And today we lunched at the inn at Dives and then walked by the sea all afternoon. She gave me the whole day—the whole day. You see"—he began to pace again—"you see, I was right, and you were wrong. She wasn't offended—she was glad—that I couldn't help speaking to her. She has said so."

"Do you think," I interrupted, "that she would wish you to tell me this?"

"Ah, she likes you!" he said so heartily and appearing meanwhile so satisfied with the completeness of his reply that I was fain to take some satisfaction in it myself. "What I wanted most to say to you," he went on, "is this: You remember you promised to tell me whatever you could learn about her and about her husband."

"I remember."

"It's different now; I don't want you to," he said. "I want only to know what she tells me herself. She has told me very little, but I know when the times comes she will tell me everything. But I wouldn't hasten it. I wouldn't have anything changed from just this!"

"You mean"—

"I mean the way it is. If I could hope to see her every day, to be in the woods with her or down by the shore—oh, I don't want to know anything but that!"

Finds Health in a Simple Tonic

People in Belleville will begin to believe us when we say that our delicious Vinol is a wonderful tonic and strength creator.

Here is a case where it has proved its power to overcome weak, run-down, nervous, anaemic conditions.

"I was run-down, nervous, and could not do my work without being entirely exhausted, and would often faint without any apparent cause. The doctor said I was anaemic but failed to help me. My husband brought home a bottle of Vinol and I began to improve after taking one bottle and after taking four bottles it has built me up so as I can do all my housework without help. I recommended Vinol to a neighbor, who says her doctor approves of it and said 'Vinol is a wonderful good tonic.'" Mrs. Bessie Hering, West Philadelphia, Pa.

REGULAR SESSION OF THE BELLEVILLE CITY COUNCIL

Volume of Business Transacted Principally of a Routine Nature Several Recommendations Adopted — Flushing of Front Street Discussed—Taxes Being Well Paid

At a regular meeting of the City Council held last evening, the business transacted was purely of a routine nature, and nothing of an especial character was brought forward.

The members present were:: Aldermen Woodley, Parks, St. Charles, Deacon, Smith and Duckworth.

Owing to the absence of Mayor Ketcheson from the city, Ald. Woodley Acting-Mayor, occupied the chair.

After the reading and confirming of the minutes of the last regular meeting, and the special committees, communications, etc., were laid upon the table.

On motion the Council went into committee of the whole on reports, etc., Ald. St. Charles in the chair.

The various accounts recommended to be paid were passed, and the following recommendations were disposed of:

That Messrs. Henry and Davidson be paid $37.50 each, being the balance due on their account for the audit of 1914.—Carried.

That a cheque for the balance of the Government War Loan subscribed for, namely $30,000 by the city, be issued by the City Treasurer.—Carried.

That the work to the amount of $200 be performed on McDonald Ave., and to the amount of $400 on College Street, provided the councils of Thurlow and Hastings pay for and perform equal parts of the work on McDonald Ave., for which the county will pay the city $100. The county to perform the work on College Street, toward which the city will pay the county $200.—Carried.

FIREMEN'S CLOTHING

A recommendation from the Fire Committee that the tender of Mr. C. L. Walters for the making of overcoats and trousers for the firemen be accepted, was adopted.

COUNCIL THANKED

Col. M. K. Adams, Commanding Officer of the 155th Battalion, wrote Mayor Ketcheson, thanking the Council for the donation of $400 to the battalion. The Colonel stated the gift was most acceptable and would be used for the comfort of the men of the battalion. The many kindnesses extended to the battalion by the citizens of Belleville, were appreciated by officers and men alike.

CELLAR DRAINED

Mr. J. W. Evans, City Engineer, wrote the Council that a drain would be dug to drain Mrs. Falkiner's cellar at a house on Moira street, and the cost would be about $10. The engineer also stated he would, at the next meeting of the Council, present a report re the taking away of the surface water which comes from off Coleman's flats in the spring of the year.

BREAD INSPECTION

Mr. B. R. Quincey, inspector of bakeries and bread, presented a detailed statement of his work for a year, which showed he had made 117 inspections. Bread, as a rule, was all right in weight. Only one seizure of 60 loaves were made for underweight, and all the bread was given to the charitable institutions of the city.

Report received and filed.

WATER SERVICE WANTED

A petition for a water service on Green street, north side, was read, and referred to the manager of the Water Works to report upon.

The committee rose and reported. Report received and adopted.

ENQUIRIES

Ald. St. Charles—Has a petition been presented for a granolithic walk an west side of Grier Street?

City Clerk—I have not seen any petition.

Ald. Smith—Has the committee appointed by Council, made arrangements to canvass the city on Thursday of this week for Red Cross fund?

Ald. Woodley—No action had been taken, and the Mayor was out of the city.

Ald. St Charles—What about the petition for the fixing up of Church street from Bridge street to the C. N. R track?

City Clerk—Waiting to obtain signature of C.N.R. officials.

Ald. Duckworth—Is a report showing expenditures of the various committees up to date?

Ald. Woodley—The report is ready.

Ald. Deacon—Did the Council set aside a certain amount to be applied as a subscription to the Red Cross fund?

Ald. Woodley—In the estimates a certain sum was set aside for patriotic purposes. He could not say at present how much had been expended or how much would be available for the Red Cross fund.

In the informal discussion which ensued, it was learned that the special committee which was appointed by the Council in the matter of a campaign for the Red Cross fund, had not been called together, but that it would be, and action taken upon the return of the Mayor to the city.

Ald. Smith referred to the fact that all cities and municipalities were making a special appeal on Thursday of this week, Trafalgar Day, as estimated in the communication sent out by the Lieut.-Governor of the Province.

UNFINISHED BUSINESS

Under this head Alderman Woodley said he had heard complaints about the hackmen charging 50 cents a trip at night. This was a matter under the supervision of the Police Commissioners, and the Council was not at all to blame if there was an increase in rates.

STREET SPRINKLING

Ald. Woodley referred to the sprinkling or flushing of Front street. On Saturday morning last no less than five horses fell down on account of the condition of the street by watering. He thought it could now be watered less.

Ald. Duckworth contended that too much water was placed on the pavement, and too much money was spent. It was a useless expenditure He noticed one occasion where it had rained during the night and the street was flushed the next morning unnecessarily. What was the idea of flushing the street on Sunday mornings? It was injurious to the pavement and money wasted.

Ald. Smith—Three of four times flushing a week was not sufficient during the summer months, but it might do now.

Ald. Duckworth—Why should widows and others who are not benefitted be taxed to help pay for the flushing? They receive no benefits. When ex-Mayor Panter and ex-Alderman Wallbridge were in Council, they as taxpayers on Front street, were willing to have the expense charged up to Front street property owners.

Ald. Deacon—During June, July, August and September, it might be prudent to flush it every day, but the work might be done late at night. It costs about $18 or $20 a month for the water used. The merchants and Front street ratepayers pay the larger sum of the costs involved.

Ald. Duckworth—I have no fault to find in keeping Front street clean. The street has been flushed in the morning when it has rained during the night. This was unnecessary.

Ald. Parks—The best thing to do is to try and keep the street clean. Many a garbage can is placed on the street and is filled to overflowing, and no lid placed on some of the cans. This allows ashes and other rubbish to fly about the street. This might be remedied.

This ended the discussion and the matter was referred to the Chairman of Public Works and Ald. Woodley to look after.

TAX COLLECTION

Ald. Woodley stated that he was pleased to inform the Council that the taxes are being well paid in by the taxpayers, the amounts daily, being large.

Council adjourned.

A Wagon Load Of Good Liquor

Found in a Port Hope Cellar—Confisticated by The Authorities

PORT HOPE, Oct., 16—Resting comfortably in one of the cells at the jail is sufficient wet goods to stock a bar. There is a bar there also but the regrettable feature is that it is an iron bar and entrance to the precious goods is out of the question.

Suspicion was held that the Royal Hotel was selling something stronger than two and one-half per cent beer. This suspicion was aroused by the fact that nearly every morning the bar tender was seen to enter the hotel, with a parcel the size and shape of a bottle. This morning the parcel came as usual and Night Constable McAvoy decided to find what it contained. Resting snugly in the wrapper was a liberal supply of very fine draught whiskey. The parcel was at once impounded and a search warrant issued. At the bartender's residence a cellar full of various brands of whiskies all in kegs, many already tapped was found. A carter was called and the whole cargo was removed to the town hall, where it is now in safe keeping in one of the cells.

The case will come up next week and promises to be rather interesting. The charge will be— that the bartender had in his house and premises on Blooming Ave., liquor kept for sale or disposal contrary to the provisions of the Ontario Temperance Act.

BANCROFT BOY HAS BULLET IN HIS HEAD

James Barby Accidentally Shot While Out Hunting—Condition Dangerous

KINGSTON, Oct. 16.—James Bardy, a Bancroft boy, lies in a dangerous condition, at the General Hospital, as a result of a wound from a bullet from a 22 rifle, which struck him on the point of the chin, passed around his skull and lodged at the base of the brain. The lad was out hunting for the cows in his father's farm and in some manner the rifle which he was carrying was discharged. It is thought that he was getting through a fence at the time the wound was made. It shows the location of the bullet but no attempt has been made to recover it, as his doctors say that this is impossible. The lad is conscious and able to eat, and unless complications set in there is a possibility that he may recover.

KING GEORGE AND ROYAL FAMILY MAKE DONATIONS TO RED CROSS

(Special to The Intelligencer)

TORONTO, Ont., Oct., 16—The following cablegram from His Majesty King George, has just been received by the Provincial British Red Cross Committee. Its commendation of Red Cross work and the practical example set makes a powerful appeal for October nineteenth.

"The work of Mercy jointly carried out by the British Red Cross Society and the Order of St. John of Jerusalem, has evoked among my people the keen feeling of gratitude and pride from what I have seen at home and at the front. I fully appreciate the splendid work the society has accomplished, as it is only by a united empire that victory will be secured. So for the relief of those who suffer in its attainment we must stand equally united. I have great pleasure in giving five thousand pounds as a donation to the fund upon the resources of which there must be ever increasing demand.

Signed (George R.I.)"

Her Majesty, Queen Mary and His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales have also commended the work and contributed one thousand pounds each to the Empire-wide "Our Day" collection.

SKEFFINGTON UNJUSTLY SHOT

Committee Reports on Execution Captain's Action Scored

LONDON, Oct. 17.—Special—The Commission which was appointed to inquire into the shooting of F. Sheehy Skeffington during the rebellion in Ireland last spring has reported there was no good ground for complaints against the action of Lieutenant Morris, who caused Skeffington to be detailed and sent to the barracks. Sir John Simon is Chairman of the Commission, which describes the action of Captain Bowen-Colthurst, who took Skeffington from the barracks into the street as a hostage as "remarkable, almost meaningless."

None of the evidence offered it, the Commission reports, afforded any justification for the shooting of the boy Coade.

GRAND TRUNK EMPLOYE DIES FROM INJURIES

BROCKVILLE, Octt. 16.—Andrew Stoddard, an employee of the Grand Trunk at Brockville, was almost instantly killed on Saturday morning by being crushed by a locomotive in the yard there while attempting to get out of an ashpit by crawling between the wheels of the engine while in motion. The monster locomotive passed over his body, severing his two legs and one arm. Aid was summoned and the injured man given every possible assistance, but his injuries were too severe to allow him to recover. A jury was empanelled and an inquest will be held. Stoddard was about fifty years of age and leaves a widow and five children, all residing in Brockville.

MILITARY MATTERS AT BARRIEFIELD HEIGHTS

BARRIEFIELD APPEARS DESERTED

(Kingston Whig)

Two battalions of infantry that have been training all summer at Barriefield camp are gone and their departure has cast a spirit of sadness and quiet over what was a short time ago a lively part of the camp They went quietly, but not quietly enough to escape the send-off from thousands of people who remained to a late hour to say farewell.

The 155th and 156th battalions left Saturday night in four trains that went within half an hour of each other. The two units marched in the early evening from the camp to the city and each man was fully equipped, wearing his pack and his kit-bag full of his wearing apparel and other things. The other things amounted in many cases to a variety of eatables and little extras that were the gifts of relatives and friends who took this way of showing their appreciation. The 156th Battalion was divided into two parts and Lieut.-Col. Bedell took charge of the first train, with "A" and "B" companies. Immediately this long train pulled out, another backed in and the remainder of the battalion "C" and "D" companies took possession with Lieut.-Col. Wilkinson in charge.

The 155th battalion was at that time in the Armouries where the men were given their freedom to say goodbye. The huge floor was littered with kit-bags and equipment of all kinds. There was such a crowd and many had to go on the balconies to find standing room. Lieut.-Col. Adams was there wearing his kit-bag like the rest and with a smile that never comes off he was bidding welcome to the visitors. He was proud and he had a right to be. The visitors were numerous but did not outnumber the "boys" who only a few hours later marched to the train that was to carry them on the first lap of their trip to the front. Because of the darkness there was very little demonstration at the train, but in the well lighted armouries the whole flood of human emotions were exposed to view. There were old mothers and young girls, some well-dressed and some poorly clad, who suddenly realized just what it means to part with a boy for a year or perhaps forever. It almost struck one as if the boys did not understand the real cause of all the expressions of regret, for they seemed care-free, but probably no group of people have taken the troops so seriously as did the people in the armouries on that night.

At the appointed time, Lieut.-Col. Adams called his battalion to attention and it marched to the Hay Market to entrain. The people followed in droves and mixed there with those who were in the darkness of the square recovering from the effects of the parting from relatives and friends.

SATURDAY WAS "VISITOR'S DAY"

Hundreds of Visitors Were Present To Say Farewell to the Soldiers—Very Busy in Camp Lines

Saturday was the last day for the 155th and 156th Battalions at Barriefield Camp, and the day was a mixture of entertainment of friends and work of all descriptions in packing up for the long trip. The afternoon was decidedly pleasant and immediately after the noon-day meal the visitors began to arrive. They came in cars by the hundreds and more than equalled in numbers the boys in khaki. They wandered through the lines, locating friends and bidding a last farewell to those who are relatives or acquaintances and who will in a very short while march in to take charge of a section of trenches against the Germans.

TOOK AWAY A RIDING CROP

Lieut.-Col. M. K. Adams Recipient of Gold-Mounted Stick

On Saturday last, the members of the 155th Battalion before parting with their commanding officer, presented him with a fine gold mounted riding crop. Bandmaster Hinchey made the presentation on behalf of the members of the band, and referred to the regret felt by every member of the band in having to part with their colonel who had always been kind and generous to every man in the band since it was first organized. Col. Adams thanked the members of the band for such a token of esteem, and assured them that he felt keenly parting with every man in the band.

NOTES

Lieut.-Col. Mills, acting inspector of accounts, reported that the books of the 155th and 156th were in splendid condition

Major Allen and Captain Hyman accompanied the 155th Battalion on Saturday, but will return to camp on Thursday

Lieut. Weller, of the 155th Battalion, has been transferred temporarily to the Special Service Company.

Twenty-five men were transferred from the Special Service Company to the 155th Battalion in return for the men of the band which has been left behind for recruiting purposes.

Capt. Hyman, of the 155th Battalion, who was compelled to remain behind when the battalion left, will be the paymaster of the new base battalion. He is a hard worker, and well deserves the appointment.

Necessity knows no law and that is probably the reason that could be given for the activity around the lines lately vacated by the 155th and 156th all day Sunday. The big transports of the Army Service Corps moved load after load of tents, etc., to the city stores.

"He scowls, but he can't interfere."

Mrs. Able Says:

PEOPLE ask me why my tea tastes so good. First, I use freshly drawn water. When boiling briskly I pour it over the leaves, allowing the tea to steep, not boil, five minutes. Next, I pour the tea off the leaves into another pot. In that way you get the flavor of Red Rose Tea in all its fullness and richness. Try it. In scaled packages only.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

MARKS COMPANY OPENS WITH A POPULAR PLAY

.."Within the Law" was the initial feature of the Marks Company at Griffin's Opera House last night, a large audience being present and thoroughly enjoying the introduction. While the prices for this popular play were materially reduced, the standard of acting was maintained, particularly pleasing being the work of Miss May Bell Marks in the impersonation of Mary Turner, the factory girl who was wrongfully jailed. The play throughout, was well staged and the supporting cast all that could be asked. This evening "Thorns and Orange Blossoms," will be given, which is said to be extremely attractive.

BLANCHE SWEET TAKES WELL AT PALACE THEATRE

The reopening of the Palace Theatre last night, drew a large audience, which fully appreciated the excellent programme given. The leading production, a five real drama featuring Blanche Sweet, being particularly attractive. Her initial appearance as a Swedish servant, engaged at the washtub followed by the inheritance of great wealth, on condition that she marry before her next birthday—and her next birthday was only two weeks distant, called for quick work, but she landed her husband, if she did have to buy him up with one thousand dollars. Her endeavor to be a lady now that she possessed wealth, brought out many quaint and amusing scenes, the crook fortune tellers who enveigled her into their hands, and the final pleasing outcome was really good. Miss Sweet is truly a star actress, and well worth seeing. Other interesting films attracted pleasing attention. The entire programme will be presented this evening.

GEORGE BEBAN AT PALACE TO-MORROW

The talented dramatic star, George Beban, appears at the Palace Theatre to-morrow and Thursday, matinee and night, in an elaborate five part photoplay production of "Pasquale", a synopsis of the story is as follows:

Pasquale, a genial, honest grocer, is working hard to pay for his small business. For then, he will ask Margarita to be his wife. Margarita, the orphan that he had raised, has eyes only for Charlie Larkins, a cheap small-town sport.

Pasquale is too bashful to propose to Margarita and confides this to "Colombo," his faithful horse. The result is that on Margarita's birthday, Pasquale places his quaintly written proposal beneath her upturned dish.

A trifling incident changes the whole course of events and prevents her from finding the note until long afterwards. By then Pasquale is fighting desperately on the Austrian-Italian battlefield. Both Pasquale and Martinelli, who is also a reservist, are wounded in repulsing an attacking Zeppelin and return home.

There, most unexpected conditions await them, and in a terrible automobile smash-up that brings events to a startling climax, their future destinies are curiously interwoven.

Frank Daniels also appears on the same programme with the above offering, in a very amusing comedy entitled, "Mr. Jack's Alimony." Pathe News, with its interesting review of world wide news will also be exhibited.

Dandruff Surely Destroys the Hair

Girls—if you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.

GERMANS ANNOUNCE ALLIED BREAK-DOWN

BERLIN, Oct. 17—Attacks of the Allies yesterday near Gueudecourt on the Somme front, broke down under German fire, the war office announced. German positions on both sides of the Somme were under heavy artillery fire the whole day.

Looking for Shirkers.

The dragnet of military authorities to catch men attempting to evade military service was a few days ago extended to Marylebone Station, one of the great London terminals. As the passengers poured out from incoming trains military and civil police sorted the crowds, and passing men obviously over military age marched the suspects into a corral. When batches of thirty were collected in the corral they were marched through the streets guarded by constables to the police station. Top-hatted city men they were for the most part and many were able to satisfy the authorities at once as to their right to be at large. These were allowed to go to their offices. Others who were not carrying their papers were allowed to telephone their offices and homes, and during the morning relief parties with the necessary papers arrived at the police station. At noon there were still about fifty men detained, some in the policemen's canteen, others in the waiting-rooms, and one by one these were released as they satisfied the authorities by their names and addresses. Others were taken and the local police communicated with. If the particulars were found correct these were also released pending inquiries.

The morning trains to Marylebone bring many city men to work and many protests were raised against the delays caused. Several newspapers publish articles declaring against these methods, which The Star and Daily News liken to German Zabernism.

Pewter-Nosed Shell.

Lt. R. C. Edmunds is home from the front. He brought with him an interesting series of battle-front souvenirs, including a German steel helmet, gas respirator, and an assortment of shell parts. A significant feature of the display is the new pewter-nosed shell, which the Lieutenant says was being freely used by the Germans when he left France. It was taking the place of the steel and brass-nosed shells, and is evidently the result of necessary economy in the use of the harder and more precious metals.

Lieut. Edmunds is a Huntsville boy, who gave up a position at the Ottawa Mint to enlist as a private. His promotion was earned in the trenches. He was wounded in eight places by shrapnel, and is home on furlough. Mrs. Edmunds accompanies him.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH CRISIS

To the Editor of The Intelligencer:

Sir:—In the midst of the world struggle, for liberty, and regardless of its sorrow and pain, there has been thrust upon the Presbyterians of Canada a similar alternative, either to stand for their time-honored freedom and rights or to submit to the dictation of an usurped ecclesiastical domination and control.

The Union Committee, the head centre of that domination, has just sent out all over the Church a document informing the people that the Assembly, 'The Supreme Court of the Church' has resolved to break up their Church Home and drive them into a church merger, but stating for their comfort that though sentence has been passed, the execution will not take place for "several years." The contents of that document are quite misleading:

(1) It assumes that because a few men in the Assembly have resolved upon such a step, the question is decided. That assumption is without the slightest foundation. The Assembly cannot decide anything outside its own Constitution. The Assembly is the Supreme Court of the Church to legislate for the Church's existence, and with no power to legislate it out of existence.

Have the more than two hundred men who form the Parliament of Canada, power, in accordance with constitution, to sever Canada from the Empire and unite with the U. S. A. and Mexico in forming a new civil order on this continent? Certainly not. They take their oath to legislate for Canada. The Constitution of Canada provides for that and for no other thing. They cannot vote, as a Parliament, outside that Constitution. If they were so to vote it would be merely an expression of their own individual opinion, of no force, having no authority.

No more have the men who compose the General Assembly power to terminate the independent existence of the Presbyterian Church in Canada. The Constitution of our Church makes no provision for such a thing. They cannot vote, as an Assembly, outside that Constitution. Their vote beyond it is simply an expression of their individual opinion, of no force, having no authority.

Further the Assembly has acknowledged by its own action, that the question of leaving their Church for a new one is a question for the people. All matters within the Church, the Assembly itself decides. This question it has acknowledged to be beyond its power in referring it to the people. But not receiving from them the answer it expected, the Assembly now usurps their rights and assumes dictatorial powers to which it has not a shadow of moral or legal claim.

(2) A second statement in that document is that the action taken by the Assembly was authorized by a "substantial majority" of the people.

The Assembly, after declaring to the people—"that a union of the churches to be real and lasting, must carry the consent of the entire membership," first asked their judgment in 1911. The membership including elders and Moderators of Sessions, was then 298,916 of whom 113,000 voted "yea" and 50,733 voted "nay". The Assembly declared the opposition too great, and halted the movement until there should be, to use its own words, "the practically unanimous action" which the people had been told was necessary.

Four years later in 1915, the Assembly, again repeating its previous declarations regarding "practically unanimous action" asked once more the judgment of the people. The membership, including elders and Moderators of Sessions, had now increased by about forty thousand to 338,322, of whom 113,600 voted "yea" about the same as before, and 73,735 "nay" an increase of about twenty-three thousand.

In connection with this "majority" fiction, note.—

(a) Majorities rule within the Church but, while any who wish may withdraw, no majority can compel people from one Church to another.

(b) The so-called "majority" vote is only one-third of the entire membership. No firm can legally merge its business with another firm without the affirmative vote of at least a majority of its stock.

(c) Even that one-third vote was asked and given under the assured understanding that no further steps would be taken unless there were "practical unanimous action.". To use that vote as has been done by the Assembly is the violation of the understanding.

(d) Turn from civil law to Church law. When the Assembly remits a matter to the judgment of Presbyteries, those Presbyteries not voting are counted "nay." This is a law of the Church. By the same rule, when the Assembly remitted this question to the people, only one-third of our membership has voted "yea" and two-thirds "nay."

(3) A third fiction in that document is that this Church merger is needed for the wider expression of Christian fellowship.

There are two kinds of togetherness, that of cohesion and that of compression; on the one hand brotherhood of the spirit with outward variety and freedom; on the other hand outward uniformity under central domination in Europe today these two principles are locked in deadly struggle. And liberty will win.

In the Church there is the same conflict. Some are working for a larger uniformity under one dominant sway. Those continuing the Presbyterian Church stand for the liberty of diversity, and for unity and fellowship with all true Christians of every name. The latter have the wider expression of Christian fellowship. The thing that would be wider in the proposed change would be wider bureaucratic control and a wider kindling of division of strife.

(4) A fourth fiction in that document is its attempt to reassure the unwilling by telling them that even if they should be driven out of their Church and into a new one against their will, they would find no change. That fiction is a specially unworthy one in that it is so patent an untruth No congregation can be part of a Church without coming under its government and laws.

We would be exchanging a Church broad and liberal, yet with Standards of Scripture truth to which it is pledged, for onet which has thrown down all safe guards of Truth, by deliberately dropping out of the Basis of Union the one question which would pledge ministers to the System of Truth in that Basis. Ministers in the new Church would be pledged to no System of Truth, not even that of its own so-called Basis.

Every congregation, from least to greatest, would at once come under the control of the Settlement Committee. No matter when a congregation might become vacant, it could only call a minister at one time in the year at the Annual meeting of the Settlement Committee, and if that Call should fail, or the Settlement Committee decline to grant it, the congregation would have to wait another year, and take such supply for the year as the Settlement Committee might choose to send.

That Settlement Committee would be a combination of wire pulling and despotism, to which the liberties and rights of the people would be sacrificed. We would be exchanging one of the freest Churches in the world for a system of ecclesiastical bondage.

If Germany were to win this war and the British Empire were merged into one world dominant power, most of the people would eat and sleep, work and rest, buy and sell as before, and, according to Germany's claim, the imposition of her "kultur" would be for our good. But men and women of the British Empire, while desiring world-wide brotherhood, prefer to be Britons still, with all that the name implies.

In a like manner the men and women of the Presbyterian Church while living and working in unity and harmony with all true Christians will not surrender their Church which they love, for an ecclesiastical autocracy which is being thrust upon them, the spirit of which is even now manifest in its disregard of understandings and assurances, and in the insult which ecclesiasticism has offered to the membership of the Church, in asking for a second vote because of the "extent of the minority" in the first vote and then completely ignoring their largely increased opposition in that vote.

Establishment of Basic Industries

Developments in Mining Industry Show Concurrent Progress of Subsidiary Enterprises

The remarkable economic conditions created by the war have revealed the immensity of the unsuspected industrial opportunities in Canada. Facts, hitherto unknown or disregarded, are now being considered by the manufacturer, producer and the public with a view to securing greater scientific application, accuracy and economy in industry and the maximum return to Canadian capital and labor. While it is essential to investigate and initiate methods to eliminate waste in production, it is equally important to study the waste in industry due to purely economic conditions and to promote the more efficient utilization of our natural resources to the advantage of the notion.

On account of the comparitively small population of Canada, and the consequently limited home market for our products, basic rather than subsidiary industries should be primarily encouraged. This object having been achieved, subsidiary industries will naturally develop.

Recent developments in the mining industry, the products of which are essential to nearly all forms of manufacturing, exemplify the concurrent growth of basic and subsidiary enterprise. The progressive policy of the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co., Trail, B.C., furnishes a specific instance. For several years this company has mined and smelted lead ores, and operated the only large lead refining plant in Canada. Since the war three large Cottrell plants have been installed and are recovering valuable mineral from the smelter gasses. Owing to the demand for zinc and copper in the manufacture of munitions, the company has recently installed a zinc plant, and is also contemplating an electrolytic copper refinery plant.

As the zinc process depends upon a supply of sulphuric acid, the company has just completed a sulphuric acid plant, having a capacity of ten tons of acid per day. The sulphuric acid is made from fumes collected from the smelter. Five tons of acid will be used in the lead and zinc refineries and the remainder for commercial purposes. A portion of the sulphuric acid and refined zinc will probably be used in the manufacture of galvanized iron in British Columbia.

The foregoing developments actual and proposed, form a splendid example of how the establishment of a basic industry may lead to the growth of subsidiary undertakings.

BRIEF SUMMARY OF MARKET CONDITIONS

There is every reason to expect that the new prices to be named by Canadian canners will be 75% in advance of the opening prices of last year. It is asserted in some quarters that not more than 50% of orders for tomatoes and corn will be delivered. There will be no 3-lb. cans of tomatoes packed this year, the pack being practically all 2½-lbs. Canned pumpkin will be off the market. Peaches have been a fair crop, but will be slightly higher than last year.

Canned pork and beans will probably open somewhere near the price of last year. The Ontario crop has been a fair one, and the importation of Japanese and Indian beans has had a steadying influence on the local market. The price of cans and sugar are higher than last year and have had a tendency to increase prices.

There is a firmness in the sugar market that to some looks like another advance in Canadian refined. The big preserving season is practically over and this may have a tendency to hold down prices. Flour holds firm with small prospects in sight for lower prices in the immediate future. In fact, it is asserted by some that even higher levels will be reached.

Live hogs have declined in price. Cooked meats are down about 1c lb.

Common grades of tea are firmer and Ceylon teas have advanced 1c lb. Coffees are firm with an improved demand this year for pickling spices of all kinds. Reports from California indicate that the raisin crop has been damaged to a considerable extent by heavy rains. Some late reports state that the damage is not as heavy as was at first anticipated. In the meantime prices have been withdrawn.

There is a good demand for rice and tapioca. Prices are holding firm at present, but there will probably be cheaper tapioca in the future when new stocks arrive.

Butter, cheese and eggs are firm and prices are gradually climbing the ladder.

There is a good demand for all kinds of fish, and higher prices have been asked for some varieties this week.

Business generally is good throughout Canada, despite the high prices of foodstuffs which now prevail.—Canadian Grocer.

Attempt to Wreck Hughes Train

LOUISA, Ky., Oct., 16—The special train carrying Charles E. Hughes on his third western trip was stopped by a broken rail on the point of a curve around a steep embankment of the Big Sandy River, leaving Paintsville today. The rail was broken for a distance of several inches, the inside flange having been knocked entirely away.

Section hands discovered the break a few minutes before the special was due and flagged the train. The broken part of the rail could not be found. Train officials said that the break appeared to have been caused by a heavy blow from some instrument.

AFTER GASOLINE, WHAT?

We May In Time Learn How to Run Motorcars With Alcohol.

Must we give up motorcars altogether? Must we take back the horse? No mechanical engineer will assent to that. Motorcars we shall always have, but motorcars which will be driven by some new fuel.

What fuel? Perhaps alcohol, perhaps kerosene. Both have been the subject of experiment. If either is employed a new type of engine must be created.

Alcohol is a product of organic nature. Every blade of grass, every plant, every tree, whether dead or alive, is a source of alcohol. Not until the world has been stripped of vegetation—and that can never happen so long as there are water, sunshine and soil—will the supply of alcohol be exhausted. And when that day dawns man himself will perish.

Of alcohol we have made but little use as a source of power. Coal, oil and waterfalls have been too abundant; they need not be manufactured. But alcohol is not stored up in pockets out of which it gushes at the tap of a hammer. A mass of sawdust, a heap of potatoes—in a word, some form of vegetation—must be chemically converted into a water clear liquid in which is stored all the energy that the sun has poured upon the foliage of the earth. Alcohol is distilled sunshine.

As the oil supply of the world nears depletion, as the price of oil fuels and distillates increases, alcohol will drive more and more of our machinery. The logs that we now permit to rot in our forest, the stumpage that reckless lumbermen leave in their tracks, the dry husks of corn that farmers now burn in the fields—all these will propel the motorcar of the future, in the form of alcohol.—Waldemar Kaempffert in McClure's Magazine.

WAYS OF THE COWBIRDS.

They Think They Can Sing and Won't Build Nests For Themselves.

Just as a man is known by the company he keeps, so this bird is named for the cows which he follows all day. Why the bird prefers the company of the cows has always been a mystery. Once it was thought he ate flies which followed the cows, but recent examinations show that the bird's favorite food consists of weed seeds and grasshoppers. Yet he'll follow the animals all day, sometimes perching on their backs to steal a ride. You've guessed his name, the cowbird.

Farmers have learned to value this bird very highly. He destroys millions of harmful insects and quantities of weed seeds. But then he should be able to do a lot of good work for the farmer, because the bird has no family cares.

Mrs. Cowbird, you see, instead of building a nest of her own, lays her egg in the nest of another bird, usually picking out the nest of a bird much smaller than herself. She always depends, too, on the good naturedness of the owner of the nest to hatch the egg and rear the young bird.

Sometimes the owner of the home will push the strange egg out on the ground. The yellow warbler often goes to work and builds another nest over the intruder. Other birds hatch the strange egg, and then spend much time and energy feeding the young bird.

You'll know the cowbird by his brown head and neck and glossy black coat. He thinks he can sing and tries very hard, but you'll laugh at his efforts when you hear him. — Philadelphia North American.

His Method.

The little girl who was visiting at a neighbor's house had gone out to look at the horses.

"Here's one of them," she said, "that has watery eyes and coughs and hangs his head just the way papa's horse did last summer."

"What did your papa do for his horse?" asked the owner of the animals.

"He sold him," was the innocent answer.—Pearson's Weekly.

Prune Little and Often.

Much of the beauty of roadside trees and shrubs depends upon how skillfully they have been trained. Pruning should be done on the principle of "a little and often." From the start give them that little direction from time to time that will keep them in perfect form and not allow forked main branches. All cuts should be made with a saw and all wounds covered with a coat of paint or some other preservative.—S. T. Maynard in Tree Talk.

THIS IS THE 810TH DAY THE BRITISH EMPIRE HAS BEEN AT WAR WITH GERMANY.

..THE LAURIER OF OLD..

The tendency of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's recent speech at Montreal is to show that behind the coloring applied at the beginning of the European war there stands the Laurier of old, the man who in season and our of season during his long career as a politician and leader, has labored steadily to weaken or destroy the British connection. He has always hated it in his heart. In his earlier years he gave his hatred a freer expression than in later years he has dared to give, but he has never swerved from the course which as a young man he marked out for himself and which in those days he boldly proclaimed.

Laurier, going to the Province of Quebec to-day to plead for recruits, would be a Laurier seeking to overcome a racial antipathy to England which, if he did not create, he has nursed and cultivated for many years. The flower that is now blooming in Quebec, if it can be called a flower, has grown from the seed planted by Laurier, or by his satelites.

The Montreal speech shows conclusively that in Laurier himself there has been no change. He is not abdicating his position as the leading French-Canadian. He is today the Nationalist that he has always been.

There was nothing in the Laurier speech in Montreal calculated to stimulate recruiting in Quebec. There was nothing in the speech to indicate that such stimulation was the design of the man who made it. There was nothing in the speech that a professed Nationalist might not have said without doing the slightest violence to his prejudices.

What Sir Wilfrid Laurier sought to do in his speech to the crowds of Maisonneuve was to secure recruits for the Liberal banner, not for the Canadian expeditionary force.

He defended the greatest of all his crimes, the killing of the Borden naval bill, which kept the Dominion out of the greatest theatre of the war, the North Sea. Was that calculated or intended to stimulate recruiting?

He raised again the bogey of militarism, identified it as English, and declared his intention of fighting it after the war. Was that calculated or intended to stimulate recruiting

He made no acknowledgment of an obligation to Great Britain as a reason for military assistance. He told his hearers that if they would not fight for England or for France, they might fight for themselves. What was he preaching then? What but the very essence of the Nationalist doctrine?

He devoted a lot of time to telling his audience what the Liberal party would like to do after the war, what their policy would be, etc. In other words he made an ordinary political appeal, a bid for votes.

The speech for Quebec. It makes painful reading in eight of the nine provinces of Canada.

* * *

Montreal Gazette: When Sir Wilfrid Laurier spoke at London on Wednesday, there appeared on the platform with him Mr. Norris, the Liberal premier of Manitoba. Thus does history repeat itself. Before the Liberal victory in 1896 Sir Wilfrid Laurier was the friend of and co-operated with Mr. Greenway, then Liberal Premier of Manitoba. Mr. Greenway's government, supported by a subservient majority in the Legislature, took away from the French-speaking people of the province the privilege of having their language used in the official records, and from the Roman Catholics of the province their privilege of paying their school taxes to support schools under their own local control. Mr. Norris's government, supported by a subservient majority of the Legislature, has taken away such remnants of their privileges as were left to the language and religious minority. Mr. Greenway was conciliated and got a senatorship as a reward. Mr. Norris is evidently being conciliated, and may get his reward bye and bye.

Toronto Mail and Empire: Ontario's mines are giving a good account of themselves. In the first six months of the present year a metalic output valued at $24,206,796 was obtained from them, as compared with an output valued at $18,399,543 for the corresponding half of 1915. These figures do not include the value of the pig iron produced in Ontario furnaces, amounting to $4,424,496 for the first half of 1916, as compared with $2,856,040 for the last half of 1915. Including pig iron, the total value of the yield of the metalliferous mines and works of the province was $28,631,292 in the first half of 1915. That is to say, the value of the output of the last six months is one-third more than the value of that for the corresponding six months of 1915.

Current Comment

Premier Hearst says he is not going to resign and that he has never been offered a seat on the bench; but then it may be that he doesn't know as much about these matters as the political rumor-mongers do.

That Seaforth man who laid in a 14-year supply of whisky furnishes a record of taking Time by the forelock. But the price he paid—$2.25 per gallon—would not give much hope of his living out the time to enjoy it.—Hamilton Herald.

The German Government, having regulated beer consumption and the eating of sausages, has now taken control of the stocks of tobacco throughout the Empire, and will issue tobacco tickets. The Fatherland must seem a very cheerless country to the man yet at home.

There is common sense in the suggestion made by Justice Middleton in his address to a Toronto grand jury, that every individual driving a motor car should be required to pass an examination just the same as chauffeurs who drive cars for a living. Many of the car accidents are caused by inexperience and incompetency on the part of the drivers—Hamilton Herald.

The tales of Canadian heroism which come to us daily—with our terrible casualty list—make such a bulk just now that we hardly appreciate them. But through the long future, they will become the legends of our people and the inspiration of our epics. Great poems will embalm them—thrilling pictures will make them Immortal Canada will find her heroes in the Great War as Greece did in the wars against Troy and Persia.

The Ontario pilgrims who have been learning to know and love their fellow-Canadians of French origin, have displayed the proper patriotic spirit in taking the trouble to get personal knowledge of problems with which they must deal. If all Canadians knew each other personally, there would never arise any racial, religious or sectional issues. When we know a man, we want him to be happy in his own way.—Toronto Star.

Is the Grand Duke Nicholas to Be Moved To the Eastern Front?

If it is true that the Grand Duke Nicholas has been recalled from the Armenian theatre to command the Russo-Roumanian army in the Dobrudja, the Russian General Staff is ready for the anxiously-awaited campaign to break Bulgaria and get at Constantinople, says The Toronto Mail and Empire. A week ago in Paris such a campaign was forecast, and it was stated that Trebizond, on the Black Sea, would be the base through which a considerable part of the army operating in Armenia would be withdrawn for use in a more direct attack upon Constantinople.

If the Allies are to win the war, without themselves being bled into limpness almost as soon as the Teuton powers, the Russian army must be equipped as thoroughly as the British or French. It must have equal artillery and ammunition, equal aerial service, equal transport. That cannot be possible until the Dardanelles is opened. Archangel and Kola, on the White Sea, are open only from April to December. The Siberian railway from Vladivostock is 6,000 miles long. The remoteness of these routes holds in leash Russia's immense potential power. Moreover, the fall of Constantinople would enable Russian grain to flow to Western Europe freely. It would make financing easier for Russia and for Britain. In a military way the fall of Constantinople would be second in importance only to the taking of Budapest or Vienna. For Russia it is the main military goal of the war, for Britain and France probably the most direct method of striking at Berlin. The disposal of Germany's dream of commanding the Near East would have vast secondary effects upon Germany's power of resistance. The Grand Duke's strenuous campaign in Asia Minor last winter and spring was Russia's first blow at Turkish strength. It paved the way for strokes at Germany and Austria in the Balkans by forcing the concentration of Turkish troops in the distant mountains. But with winter approaching, the Russian troops, buried deep in those mountains also, hundreds of miles from their main bases, could not push the campaign for the Bagdad railway. The Turks have already begun withdrawal of troops for work in the Balkans. It was probably to check that, and also to apply parallel pressure on the Turks, that the Russian army west of Trebizond came suddenly to life, making sharp thrusts at the quiescent Turks.

GRAND DUKE NICHOLAS.

Like General Brussiloff, the Grand Duke is the possessor of a great driving initiative. He has a genius for aggressive tactics. If he faces von Mackensen in the Dobrudja the duel will be watched with breathless interest. When the Grand Duke was in general command of the Russian armies, and shoved them forward until they were near Cracow, and on the crests of the Carpathians, he bested in driving power both von Hindenburg and von Mackensen. That the Russians were forced back was the fault of the War Department in failing to provide artillery and rifles on the immense scale absolutely necessary. This time the Russian army will be well equipped, and with Roumanian aid, the task of crushing the Bulgars offers glorious chances.

Aid to Settlers.

Out of the funds provided to assist settlers in Northern Ontario under the advanced policy inaugurated by Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Minister of Lands, Forests, and Mines, $92,790 has already been spent in Timiskaming District alone. This is natural, because owing to the recent fires the need is more urgent in that district than in any other. Commissioner Dane states that the fire has burned so much standing timber as to give an impetus to clearing, and the settlers consequently are looking for loans to help them stock their new areas. Attention is now being paid to Kenora and Rainy River Districts. The legislation permits loans up to $500 to each settler, but in few cases has this maximum been reached, the amount required generally being around $350.

This held him for a minute or two, and then he made another overture.

"The man that lived here last year," he said, "used his back yard as a cabbahzh patch."

Cats seem to have a habit of swallowing needles. When a cat is brought to a veterinary hospital suffering with a cough the doctor always looks for a needle. LOOK!

If you were told of a new discovery for the treatment of coughs, colds and bronchitis, as certain in its action on all chest troubles as anti-toxin is on diphtheria, or vaccination on small-pox, wouldn't you feel like giving it a trial?

Peps is the discovery!

Peps are little tablets, containing certain medicinal ingredients, which, when placed upon the tongue, immediately turn into vapour, and are at once breathed down the air passages to the lungs. On their journey, they soothe the inflamed and irritated membranes of the bronchial tubes, the delicate walls of the air passages, and finally enter and carry relief and healing to the lungs.

In a word, while no liquid or solid can get to the lungs and air passages, these Peps fumes get there direct, and at once commence their work of healing.

FREE TRIAL. Cut out this article, write across it the name and date of this paper, and mail it (with 1c. stamp to pay return postage) to Peps Co., Toronto. A free trial packet will then be sent you. All druggists and stores sell Peps, 50c. box.

"Fruit-a-tives" Again Proves Its Extraordinary Powers

ROCHON, QUE., March 2nd, 1915.

"I have received the most wonderful benefit from taking "Fruit-a-tives". I suffered for years from Rheumatism and change of life, and I took every remedy obtainable without results. I tried "Fruit-a-tives" and it was the only medicine that really did me good. Now I am entirely well—the Rheumatism has disappeared, and the terrible pains in my body are all gone. I hope that others, who suffer from such distressing diseases, will try "Fruit-a-tives". MADAME ISAIE ROCHON.

German Spirit Is Breaking Says Hughes

AN interesting interview regarding the war was that given out by Major-General Sir Sam Hughes on his arrival at Halifax a few days ago.

"I am not a prophet, but I can say that the spirit of the German soldier is being broken. The British alone have captured, since the first of July, upwards of 30,000 prisoners, with much war material. One officer told me that within a very small compass—a few hundred yards of trenches—upwards of 2,000 German dead and several hundred wounded unable to escape covered the ground. Another example: One regiment of Germans which was wiped out by the Canadians the other day had been formed only two weeks previously from remnants of ten crack German regiments, and yet they disappeared.

"This war will be won by pounding, and it is a long road to Berlin. The German people, however, are becoming very restless. I believe before very many months a rebellion must break out against Kaiserism throughout the length and breadth of the German Empire.

"The urgent reforms in England, which I had planned last spring, and which were held in abeyance on my return to Canada at that time, have now been carried out. Owing to the great growth in the service, the prolongation of the war and the desire for practical systems, certain important changes have been effected, with much saving in cost.

"In addition to the reforms referred to, the chief are those relating to the securing of more rest for our troops at the front, and at the same time to effect improvements in the training.

"Also with regard to the question of training, the result has been a greater co-ordination of the various departments of the training between Canada and England, and England and the front. I have had my conferences with the War Office, the Secretary of State for War, the Right Hon. David Lloyd George, Sir William Robertson, General Whigham, and other leading War Office officials, together with the Commander-in-Chief, Sir Douglas Haig, and our own corps, divisional and brigade commanders at the front.

"Britain is stronger on sea now than at the beginning of the war. The Kaiser's submarines may reach British waters and do some slight damage, but they seldom return home. Her Zeppelins have proven to be vulnerable. I myself have seen two of them brought down. At the front we have the mastery in artillery; we have always had it in manhood. The result is that foot by foot, mile by mile, the allied bulldog pluck and doggedness have proved too much for the Imperial Guards. I have been over mile on mile of German fortifications, surpassing in strength any fortress we constructed. To-day, however, the Allies have to face breech-loading rifles, bombs, machine guns, and all classes of artillery firing high explosives, yet everything goes down before the onrush of the soldiers of Britain, of France, of Canada, of Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, and Newfoundland, in fact of all the Allies. I have seen German dugouts thirty and forty feet deep, each capable of holding hundreds of men, yet these have been taken for mile upon mile.

"Such heroism and manhood have never before been experienced. Nothing can keep our boys from the firing line. The full story of the gallant deeds and the successes of Canadians on the Somme will be made public in detail in due time; but they stand out, as the Right Hon. Lloyd George and all under him state, as second to none, and rivalled only by the historic British Guards.

"The men at the front expect much from the people of Canada. They are giving up their lives, and those at home must live up to the noble ideal set them by the gallant Canadian lads who are fighting for freedom on the soil of France. Canada must, therefore, continue to do her duty."

Havana.

Havana, or San Cristobal de la Habana, as it was originally named, was the last of seven cities founded in Cuba by the island's conqueror, the Adelantado Diego Velasquez, the date being July 25, 1515. Since that was twenty-three years after the well known Columbus date there can't be many new world cities older than Havana, assuming that most of the other six in Cuba have since disappeared.

General Smith Dorrien Heads Campaign Against London's Unclean Stage

GENERAL SMITH-DORRIEN, who lately started a crusade against what he asserts are objectionable features in London theatrical performances, read a letter which he received from a Canadian at a meeting a few days ago. "It is a simple fact," asserted the writer, "that such plays could not be shown in Canada. If shown they would be hissed off. You have at the back of you all the better feeling of Canada. A great many Canadians are going home with the idea of Britain as a hotbed of iniquity. It is practically all they have seen of it. Our boys at home would never dream of accosting women. Here, unfortunately, the followers of the camps have taught them disrespect for womanhood. I have heard ladies from Canada say if they had known the conditions here they would never have allowed a son or brother to come." It ought to be noted that many responsible people consider the worst thing against most current theatrical performances is their utter banality.

GENERAL SMITH-DORRIEN.

Priests Fight for France.

When the history of the great war is written, one of the finest chapters will be dedicated to the heroism of "France's soldier priests." Serving as private or military chaplains to the troops, they have shed fresh lustre on the glory of France.

When the war broke out, France needed men to place against the strong and numerous German forces, and as the French regular troops and reserves were not sufficient to cope with the invading Teutonic hordes, the French War Office had to call for volunteers. The Archbishop of Paris endorsed the appeal of the War Office and urged the young priests who could be spared from their clerical duties in the different parishes throughout France to join the forces.

Thousands offered their services as army chaplains, others joined the rank and file of the army, and to-day there are more than 20,000 priests on the battlefield, either fighting or giving the last rites of the Catholic Church to the dying in hosptials or on the field of honor. Many have sacrificed their lives for their country, others have been taken prisoners, and are now doing their benevolent work in the prison camps in Germany.

Many heroic deeds on the battlefields have been reported, and many a wounded French and German soldier has been carried on the back of a "soldier priest" to places of safety.

Held Up War Office.

The story is told in London of a large contractor, who, when the war began, offered to build huts for no payment beyond the cost price, but subsequently, when he was in possession of the work, and the orders given him were consequently increased, he represented to the War Office that he ought to be paid a commission, naming 5 per cent., with 1½ per cent. to cover standing charges. The awkwardness of the position was pointed out to him, and that it involved other contractors who had followed his first patriotic example, and were performing the work on payment of out-of-pocket expenses only.

It was suggested to him that, under the circumstances, he could, with greater propriety, work for some definite fee, the reasonableness of which was not disputed; but he persisted in his demand, with the result that, under the necessity in which the military authorities found themselves of avoiding the delay which would otherwise have been caused, it was decided after considerable controversy to pay him the commission stipulated on all work additional to that originally undertaken free of charge.

The total expenditure for which this contractor became responsible is stated to have been $16,000,000.

Essad Pasha Declared War.

A report on the death sentence passed by a court-martial in Constantinople on Essad Pasha, former provisional President of Albania, has been received in Amsterdam, according to a despatch to Reuter's. The commanding general at Constantinople says in the report that Essad Pasha was proved at his trial to have conspired with bands against the Turkish Empire and to have declared war on Turkey. By doing so, the report says, and by his hostile attitude he rendered service to Turkey's enemies. The sentence of death was confirmed by the Sultan.

Some nets and their catches helped that conclusion, if one or two "fish" did occasionally look through.

The Price of Victory Means Suffering!

Will you help to relieve the pain?

Victory in the great conflict is now in sight. As it draws nearer, however, so does its cost grow swiftly, and a heavy share in pain and suffering is laid upon the shoulders of our heroic defenders on the battlefield and on the sea.

"Give and Heal"

Whatever our burdens at home may be, they cannot equal the weight of anguish our sick and wounded must unavoidably undergo at the Front. There isn't a man, woman or child in Ontario but would wish to lift this weight, and there is one swift, splendid, efficient, economical way to do it, and that is to contribute on "Our Day," Thursday, October 19th, to the

BRITISH RED CROSS

WHY MONEY IS NEEDED.

Each new offensive means hundreds and thousands of new wounded, who are largely transported and cared for by the British Red Cross.

RED CROSS TRANSPORTATION.

The most of the work of transporting the British wounded in France has been taken over by the Red Cross. Over 2,000 motor ambulances and 600 other vehicles are in daily use. Not a man is ever kept waiting.

RED CROSS HOSPITAL TRAINS

Four, capable of carrying 500 men each, are running day and night—one of these in 12 months has carried over 26,000 patients and travelled 26,000 miles. Operating tables, kitchens, dispensaries and expert staffs, form part of the equipment.

SUPPLIES AND COMFORTS.

Depots have been established in France, Egypt, Malta and Saloniki, with ambulances, hospitals and rest stations. Everything a hospital or wounded man may need is stored and freely distributed at need. Our distant Allies are also helped.

RED CROSS HOSPITALS

Thirteen are maintained in France, with 2,214 beds, and more than twenty are supervised and staffed. In Egypt, ten are established, with 1,971 beds. In Great Britain nearly one thousand have been equipped and staffed, also numerous officers' and nurses' convalescent homes, etc.

FOR THE MAIMED AND BLIND.

The British Red Cross pays special attention to paralyzed and maimed soldiers, to the blind and those who have suffered severe facial injuries, and marvellous work is being done in selected hospitals.

HOSPITAL MOTOR BOATS

A special Red Cross transport service of 30 motor ambulance boats for Mesopotamia has been supplied; also a shallow-draft, paraffin-driven, 160-cot Hospital Ship, with ice-making plant. Special services of this kind are always being undertaken.

SUNDRY CEASELESS ACTIVITIES.

Six offices in France, Egypt, Malta, etc., have sent out over 61,600 items of information regarding missing soldiers. Food for prisoners is provided—EVERY prisoner being looked after. Over two million books have been sent to Hospitals, etc., for convalescents. Rest stations are provided—one fed over 30,000, and dressed the wounds of over 1,500 others in a single week.

LOW COST OF MANAGEMENT.

Owing to immense voluntary aid, the administrative cost of the British Red Cross is cut to 2¼% per cent. Practically your whole gift will go to the direct relief of the sick, wounded and shattered on all the battlefronts.

How and Where to Give

Will you not give those few cents or dollars you well can spare to so noble a work? The British Red Cross makes a direct appeal to generous and prosperous Ontario for help. Give through the Treasurer of your Local Committee, or the Clerk of your Municipality, or send it to Hon. T. W. McGarry, Treasurer British Red Cross Fund for Ontario, Parliament Buildings, Toronto.

It Was Accomplished by Modern Military Methods

By F. A. MITCHEL

There are certain persons who have the power of attracting the opposite sex indiscriminately.

Sadie Ludlow at eighteen attracted men as a candle attracts moth millers. Some said (including herself) that she did nothing whatever to draw them to her, others that there was a certain witchery in her she could exercise at will. Whichever of these propositions was true, certain it is that they all fell before her. And certain it is that she was an incorrigible flirt.

Naturally enough, this proclivity gave her mother great concern. She no sooner noticed spooning going on between her daughter and some desirable party than the swain was replaced by one who would be especially undesirable. This was succeeded by other similar transactions. In consequence the poor lady was kept in a constant state of worriment.

Finally, when Sadie became the object of attention on the part of a young lieutenant in the army with nothing but his pay, Mrs. Ludlow decided to give up her residence in town and take a place in the country. A house in the center of large grounds was secured in a decidedly rural region, and mother and daughter, with the necessary servants, removed there.

One thing about the place that rendered it especially desirable for Mrs. Ludlow's purpose was a high wall surrounding it. The gateway was imposing and was protected by a lodge. Mrs. Ludlow took with her a man who had long been a servitor in the family and placed him in the lodge with instructions to admit no young man without first calling for his card. He was given a list of names of Sadie's admirers, so far as known, and directed to inform any one of them who might call that the family were "not at home," this being a convenient form adopted by well bred and truthful persons of avoiding a deliberate lie.

Idlewild—the name of the country seat—was on a good road and at a convenient distance from the city for autos. Many a car rolled up to the pillared gateway to be stopped by the sentinel guarding the fair damsel imprisoned within. Among the callers was Lieutenant Whitehead, who was the immediate cause of the imprisonment.

Now, the lieutenant had but recently been graduated from West Point and had during the latter part of his course there spent much of his time studying the new military status demonstrated by the pan-European war. He was much impressed with the German method of holding the offensive, which is based on a military maxim, old as the hills, that there is an irresistible power in the initial force. He assumed Idlewild to be a fortification to be taken. By constant pressure by various methods to be tried successively till a way was found to effect an entrance the fortress must at last fall.

Nevertheless the reduction of Idlewild was more difficult than in the usual elimination of objective points. To surround and starve the garrison was not a part of the problem. To batter down the wal. would not result in securing the prize. On the contrary, it would render ultimate defeat certain. The conditions were more like those attending the capture of ancient cities. As the Greeks obtained admission to Troy within an immense wooden horse, so must Whitehead obtain access to Idlewild by stratagem.

On the lodgekeeper's list of persons to be refused admission to Idlewild was the name of Lieutenant Beverly Whitehead, and it was marked by a double star. James, the lodgekeeper, when callers came always referred to his list. When Whitehead drove up in an automobile the keeper held the list in his right hand while he fumbled in his vest pocket with his left for his glasses. Since he was standing by the car, the upper part of his body on a level with the visitor, the latter caught a glimpse of his name with the two stars attached.

"It seems," said the young officer to himself, "that in this army of suitors I am a major general." this facetious idea being based on the fact that the insignia of a major general's rank in the United States army is two silver stars. "However," Whitehead added. "I shall be an army unto myself, both general and private."

It was when turned away on this visit that the lieutenant resolved upon effecting an entrance to Idlewild and carrying off the fair Sadie. Turning from the gate, he drove around the place, seeking some weak spot. None appeared. The wall was continuous and rose to the same height on every side. It might be climbed or it might be burrowed. In either case if he succeeded in persuading the lady to fly with him she must be carried either over or under it. As a soldier neither of these methods seemed sufficiently heroic, and he did not believe they would appeal to Miss Ludlow. It was not a case where a girl has been won and is kept locked up from the lover she would mate with: it was a case where she must be both won and carried away by some brilliant maneuver.

One thing Whitehead had learned from his observations of the European war—that the methods of obtaining information of an objective point or an enemy's movements had been greatly developed by the aeroplane. It seemed a long process for him to apply for admission into the United States army aeroplane corps and practice flying, but the only plan of operations that appealed to him rendered this course essential, and he straightway became a military aerial cavalryman. The ancients ascended into the upper air on a winged horse for fun. Why should not Whitehead ascend in a modern aeroplane for love?

It was autumn before the young officer became an aeronaut and made his first flight over Idlewild. It was a sunny afternoon, and Sadie was walking in the grounds without head covering save her hair, on which the sun shone with a warm glow. She was plucking flowers from a chrysanthemum plant. A girl plucking a flower is at any time a thing of beauty, but a girl on a soft October afternoon, robed in corresponding colors, viewed by a man from an aerial height above her, especially if that man is a lover, is especially entrancing. Whitehead, not thinking of the distance between them and that sound rises rather than falls, coughed. Miss Ludlow, not hearing the sound, paid no attention to it and, after dawdling about among some late plants that were in bloom, went into the house.

Whitehead saw another sight, an automobile standing at the gate, the porter holding a card in one hand and a list of Mrs. Ludlow's forbidden visitors in the other. The officer sailed about till he saw the occupant of the car drive away, then turned and swooped down like a bird toward the point from which he had started.

The wooer regretted that he had not provided himself with means of communicating with the object of his love. He might fly over Idlewild a dozen times without again meeting with so favorable an opportunity. The season when a young girl would likely be strolling about in the open air was passing, and winter was not far away. Before he made his next trip over Idlewild he wrote a note to Sadie announcing his entrance into the army aviation corps and inviting her to an aerial ride with him. This note he attached to a contrivance designed to carry it to earth not too swiftly and in the direction he wished it to fall. He also provided himself with a small bomb with a time fuse that would explode before reaching the earth. This was intended to attract the young lady's attention.

He chose for his next flight over Idlewild a day after a cold storm. when the sun came out bright and warm, thinking it likely that the prisoner might go out for an airing. Nevertheless he spent a whole morning flitting over the place high in the air before seeing her. Then she came out on the porch and, reclining in a couch hammock, began to read a book. This was unfortunate, for Whitehead had hoped to find her at a distance from the house, where he might more safely communicate with her. He dared not drop her note to her where she was; but, making a virtue of necessity, he dropped it at a distance from her, but where he expected it would fall within the grounds.

Suddenly Sadie heard an explosion in the air and, looking up, saw a tiny parachute descending from the sky; but, not dreaming that it supported a letter for her, on seeing it drop at some distance from her she turned again to her book.

Whitehead's failure only spurred him on to new devices. Fearing that winter would come on before he could attract Sadie's attention from the air, he considered how he could communicate with her by mail. He was by this time familiar with the rocket camera used in war to photograph an enemy's position, and, taking one of these ingenious devices to a point near Idlewild, he sent it up. He had the satisfaction to see the camera it contained detached from it by an explosion and sail down under a parachute to a point near his feet. After developing the plate he obtained a photograph of Idlewild taken from a point several hundred yards above it. On the print he wrote in minute characters a day and hour and mailed it to Miss Sarah Ludlow, with an advertisement of a camera manufacturing firm in the same envelope.

Mrs. Ludlow received the letter and, supposing it to be merely an ad., permitted her daughter to have it. Sadie recognized in the address on the envelope the handwriting of Lieutenant Whitehead. Naturally she suspected the contents to contain a hidden meaning. Bringing a hand glass to bear on the date written on the photographic print, she knew that something would happen at that time. The print she recognized as a photograph of Idlewild from above, and this eventually gave her the key to the puzzle.

The day named proved propitious, and Sadie kept a watch above and below. Seeing an aeroplane soaring, she went out in the grounds to a point where she was screened by a clump of trees. An object dropped from the machine and unfolded into a parachute which fell at the lady's feet. She took a note from it, containing an invitation to an aerial ride and a request that she would take position in an open space suitable for landing and rising.

By this time the aeronaut was within call, and she accepted the invitation. Miss Ludlow stationed herself in a field containing half a dozen acres, and Lieutenant Whitehead descended to her. He pleaded his cause so ably that the lady took a seat beside him, and the pair were soon sailing among the clouds.

Mrs. Ludlow the next morning received a telegram announcing the marriage of the fugitives.

HALIFAX AS A PORT.

Canada's Eastern Gate Has Great Commercial Advantages.

To most people Halifax is a remote place occasionally visited by summer tourists, but frozen tight for a large part of the year and far off the beaten track of commerce. In part this notion is correct. Attractive advertising and fulfilled promises have led many vacationists to satisfy their longing for foreign travel by the comparatively short and inexpensive cruise up the New England coast to the Nova Scotian peninsula. But the latter part of the idea is all wrong. Halifax is not only further south than some of the heavily populated districts of the United States, but it has a climate much softened by the winds and currents of the Atlantic. In February it is not exactly St. Augustine, and it can be most horribly damp and foggy, but the coast of Labrador lies some considerable distance to its north.

The worst error of the three is the conception of remoteness. Get out a terrestrial globe and trace the path of the ocean liners from New York to Europe. It will be seen that the Harbor of Halifax is as close as safe sailing conditions permit to the narrow lane agreed upon by steamship interests as the track to be followed by transatlantic ships. In fact the winter North Atlantic steamship route lies only fifty miles south of the harbor entrance.

Because of this geographical location, because Halifax is the most easterly of the Canadian ports, and because, too, strangely enough, it is never closed by ice. Canada, through its Department of Railways and Canals, is now engaged there on one of the biggest port developments in the world. Although suffering with her mother country from the drain of the great war, the Dominion is proceeding with regularity on a construction determined upon before men reckoned with the present destruction of the wealth of the world. Already work to the amount of $7,000,000 has been contracted for, and a total outlay of $30,000,000 is contemplated.

The port development at Halifax is attracting the attention of engineers everywhere. There is being built an entirely new railway entrance to the city, which means a relocation of the railway station and six miles of approach track through virgin territory within the city limits. Furthermore, a radical innovation in quay-wall construction is being introduced. The work is no less interesting as a study in commercial development and national self-sufficiency, for the Port of Halifax, when completed, will be the climax of the grand Canadian transcontinental railway scheme, which has been fructifying for the past decade; the transhipment point which is intended to guarantee that Canadian goods will be carried entirely on Canadian soil; the link in the British "All Red" intercontinental transport about which England's Ministers dreamed in the days before they became munitions makers and recruiting sergeants.

It is an axiom of international trade that a nation should save for itself as much as possible of the benefits accruing to the carrying of that trade. In recognition of this axiom, Canadian Governments for years past have been developing internal transportation systems both by building railways and canals.

Rebel Shot in a Chair.

In the British House of Commons, replying to Mr. Ginnell with reference to the arrest, trial, and execution of Thos. Kent, of Fermoy, the Prime Minister stated that Kent was convicted by field general court-martial of taking part in an armed rebellion. In the interests of public safety the public were excluded from court, at which no counsel appeared for Kent. Kent was not wounded. He was given a chair at his execution owing to his nervous condition. A priest attended him before and at the execution and at the burial.

A GRAND OLD OCTOGENARIAN

Rev. William Briggs Has Just Celebrated His 80th Birthday.

On September 9 Rev. William Briggs, the veteran book steward of the Methodist Church in Canada, celebrated his eightieth birthday. He was born of Irish and Scottish parents at Bainbridge, England, and educated in Liverpool. He came to Canada as a youth, and was received as a probationer in the Methodist Church in 1857, at Durham, Quebec, and was ordained in 1863. He was for the next few years a Methodist pastor in many parts of the Province of Ontario, gaining celebrity for his preaching. He also filled many important official posts in the conferences of his church, and was first elected book steward of the Methodist Church in 1879. In the past thirty-seven years he has made the Methodist Book Room the largest publishing house in Canada, and has broadened its scope to include all branches of good literature. His preaching and other activities in connection with other departments of the religious organization in which he has played so prominent a part have also been great; and his breadth of view has won him friends among men of many diverse faiths. No living Canadian can boast of longer list of personal friends and acquaintances, both of the past and of the present.

The celebration of his eightieth birthday is the excuse for relating a little story which Dr. William Briggs, book steward of the Methodist Church, has told many times during his long life. It has to do with an incident which occurred during his pastorate in London, Ontario, back in the sixties.

One day in 1869 there arrived in the city aboard a private car the famous railroad magnate of those days, Commodore Vanderbilt. He was accompanied by quite a large party of friends and followers, and on arrival took up his quarters at the Tecumseh Hotel. Newspaper reporters, of course, hastened to interview him, surmising that some big railway deal was in hand, but they didn't get much satisfaction out of the commodore.

During the morning the manager of the hotel was surprised to be asked in a casual way whether there was such a person as a Methodist parson in London. Replying that there was, and that his name was Briggs, Mr. Vanderbilt expressed a desire to meet him, adding that he was interested in the welfare and progress of the Methodist Church. Dr. Briggs was accordingly invited to drop around and meet the great man. On presenting himself, however, the clergyman found that it was not to be a social call, but that the commodore contemplated matrimony, and wanted him to perform the ceremony.

It seems that Mr. Vanderbilt, who was a Northerner, wished to wed a Southern lady. The war between North and South was just over, and feeling was still hostile. Neither party to the match was willing to be married in the other's part of the country, and as a compromise they had crossed into neutral territory. So Dr. Briggs married them, there in the parlor of the Tecumseh Hotel, and after the ceremony was over the commodore handed him an envelope with a nice fee.

Every time Dr. Briggs has told the story of how he married Commodore Vanderbilt his hearers have inquired how big the fee was, but he always shakes his head. "No one but myself," he says, "knows that. But I can assure you it was a fee worthy of a Vanderbilt."

Their Visit.

In a recent issue of Canada mention is made of the pleasant surprise experienced by two Canadian soldiers who, on calling on the Grand Duchess George of Russia, at Marlborough House, found themselves in the presence of the King and Queen Queen Alexandra, and other members of the Royal Family.

Sergt. Charles La Kerle and Gunner G. V. McInerny, the two soldiers in question, have been thrown into close companionship by the accident of war. The former, who was in the accounting department of the C. P. R. at Winnipeg, was a stretcher bearer in the 8th Battalion ("Little Black Devils"), and the latter, who was accountant in the Royal Bank of Canada at Halifax, was in the [illegible] Battery, 2nd Brigade C. F. A. They were wounded and gassed at Ypres on the same day last year (April), were taken to the same hospital in Rouen, where they spent [illegible], were brought to England in the same boat; and were despatched together to Harrogate, where they spent eight months as patients in Grand Duchess George's home, during which time they were frequently asked to assist in recruiting meetings. They are now both in Canadian Pay Office in London.

Mother Do you know that an ointment applied to your child's skin is absorbed through the pores and enters the system just as surely as though it had been swallowed into the stomach? That is why only the very purest ointment should be used.

For purity of ingredients, Zam-Buk is without equal. This has been proved, not only by the thousands of satisfied users, but by chemical analysis. The famous English chemist, W. Lascelles Scott, having made an exhaustive analytical examination of Zam-Buk says: "I have no hesitation in certifying its purity and inestimable value for skin ailments and injuries."

There is nothing can equal Zam-Buk for skin diseases—nothing so soothing and healing, and nothing that allays inflammation and ends pain so quickly. Mothers who have once used Zam-Buk will have no other, and children who have once had Zam-Buk applied, will cry for it again because they know it ends their pain.

As a "first aid" in the home, Zam-Buk is invaluable. Being a strong antiseptic, if applied to a cut, burn or wound of any kind as soon as sustained there is no danger of festering or blood-poisoning.

Mrs. I. Wilson of Sarnia, Ont., says: "I could not do without Zam-Buk for my family. We find it so splendid for burns, sores, etc."

Mrs. J. Knox of Pine Creek, Man., writes: "My little daughter, while teething, was troubled with a rash. Applications of Zam-Buk, however, kept the skin soft, ended the inflammation and irritation, and very soon the rash had entirely disappeared. I have used Zam-Buk for other skin troubles—always with the same satisfactory result."

Mr. L. B. Andresen of 1407 E. 22nd St., Minneapolis, writes: "For seven years we have used Zam-Buk in our home and could not get along without it. Whenever any of the children, my wife, or self meets with an accident, we always use Zam-Buk, and it has never been known to fail. It has saved us many a doctor's bill."

Zam-Buk is composed exclusively of herbal essences and vegetable extracts, with none of the animal fats and poisonous mineral drugs found in ordinary ointments, and can be used with perfect safety on the most delicate skin—even the skin of a baby. If you have not yet tried this wonderful herbal ointment, we invite you to try it now at our expense, as per following coupon.

HE TEMPTS DEATH

Deadly Dangers a Nitroglycerin Maker Must Face.

NEVER IS SURE OF HIS LIFE.

Any Moment the Worker in a Nitrator May Be Blown to Atoms—A Calling That Demands Coolness, Prudence and Daring—One Man's Experience.

Nitroglycerin is made by ordinary sweet glycerin acting with a mixture of strong sulphuric and nitric acid. The glycerin is dropped by a very thin stream slowly into a mixture of three parts nitric and five parts sulphuric acid. During the process the containing vessel is kept cool by a water jacket, and the acid mixture is agitated by a stream of cool air. The temperature is maintained at about 80 degrees. After the operation the whole mixture is drawn off into a tank and is allowed to stand in this vessel, cooled by a water jacket. The glycerin, which is now nitroglycerin, immediately begins to come to the top like cream on milk. This is at once taken care of and is put through various processes to cleanse it of all remaining traces of acid.

In no department of our plant must greater care be exercised than in the nitrator, which is the name given to the building where nitroglycerin is manufactured.

Explosions are frequent, and it takes a man of iron nerve to conduct this department. It is like going into battle every day. Yet in the face of this we have one man who has successfully made nitroglycerin for twenty years, and he lives to tell you about it, only he won't. He is as reticent as the sphinx.

Like any other man of great courage, he does not boast, and John Viewberger will talk about anything except the miracle of his continued existence. I can only say that Divine Providence, a cool head and hands and a stout heart have kept him at his work.

The acid fumes that fill the building at all times when nitration is taking place have long since eaten away the very teeth in his head, but not his pluck. It is a fact that he is provided with a new set of false teeth on an average twice a year. The hair on his head has long ago disappeared, and the fumes have tanned his skin to the color of bronze until he resembles a cave man of old. And yet he has never had a day of sickness in these twenty years. He thinks, as I do, that no disease, no matter how virulent, could successfully combat the nitric fumes that he inhales. So his work has its compensations, if you are pleased to look at it that way.

While nitration of glycerin is going on Viewberger sits on a high stool, his arms stretched over the nitrating machine, one hand on a faucet that controls the flow of glycerin into the acid, the other hand on a valve regulating the cooled compressed air that is forced into the mixture and his eye glued to the thermometer that extends well down into the mixture. I have said that the glycerin undergoes nitration at a temperature of 80 degrees. The temperature is regulated by the quantity of glycerin that flows into the acid. If the temperature begins to rise above 80 degrees he closes his valve slightly, reducing the flow of glycerin, and increases the flow of cool air.

Any little foreign substance that might get into the mixture, even through the acid of glycerin or otherwise, would cause immediate trouble. The slightest leak in the water cooling coils, permitting a little water to get into the mixture, would be the signal for the thermometer to do a marathon, and in a few minutes the whole mixture would reach the degree of heat that would result in an explosion. Viewberger cannot desert his post when the temperature begins to rise rapidly. This condition frequently takes place, and most of the time it can be reduced by cutting off the flow of glycerin entirely and by turning on the air to the full pressure of fifty pounds. Sometimes, however, in spite of all, it will continue to rise, and Viewberger knows or feels that he has lost control. He must leave his mixture to its fate and "dig out."

His building, the nitrator, is located on a hill higher than its surroundings. The hill is a high sand dune. Immediately back of the stool on which he sits is a big door that is always left open when he is manufacturing. Viewberger's method of exit or getaway is to jump out of this door and roll down the hill. While he is on his way the explosion takes place. He has done this some twenty times and yet has never received an injury. He has never been struck with flying debris, although the air is filled with flying pieces of lead and iron. Does history record a greater miracle? Dug out of the sand semiconscious from the impact of an explosion, in the course of half an hour he has been quite himself again, ready to go to work if need be, his only regret being the loss of property sustained by the company.—Willard Fay in Collier's Weekly.

SOON TO JOIN NAVY.

Prince George is Thirteen, and Will Go to Naval Training School.

Fair complexioned, like his brothers, with a typically honest, open British face, Prince George, the King's fourth son, who is to go to Osborne in September, should make a splendid sailor, and is delighted that the navy has been selected as his career.

Like all the Royal children, the Prince is very young-looking for his years, and that is why everyone still speaks of him as "Little" Prince George, though he will be fourteen on the second of December next.

At Broadstairs, where he goes to the same school as that attended by his brother, Prince Henry, before the latter went to Eton, no fuss is made of him. He is on the same footing as the other lads, and enjoys himself as any ordinary, happy schoolboy should.

Some very nervous parents removed their boys from different schools on the Kentish coast when the Hun air raids began. Not so King George and Queen Mary. Very sensibly they left their little son to face whatever music in the way of Hun surprise attacks had to be faced.

When he heard how his brother Prince Henry had been helping in war work at Eton lately, Prince George was frankly envious.

"Some people have all the luck," he remarked when some one showed him a paper containing snapshots of his elder brother, and a number of fellow Etonians helping the Army Ordnance Corps by doing such jobs as pushing trolleys, hauling wagons, and loading trucks, in fact, doing all sorts of railway porter work, pro tem.

But when he is home on holidays, Prince George does his bit of war work, too. Then he spends nearly all his spare time knitting for Queen Mary's Needlework Guild. Last year he sent the guild quite a big collection of scarves which he had knitted in a pretty shade of green, and just to give them a touch of color, he decorated them with tassels of bright red!

Like all true sailors, the young Prince is a real "handyman," for he can sew on buttons and tape, and even mend stockings at a pinch. Queen Mary has always believed in bringing up her sons to help themselves in this way, and when he enters the navy this useful training will stand Prince George in good stead.

A Famous Family.

The probable Liberal candidate for Sir Edward Grey's seat in Parliament, Sir Francis Blake, is a member of the family whose famous "Blake millions" have been sought after by so many hopeful and sadly disappointed people. General Robert Dudley Blake, the original possessor of the fortune, married a beautiful but penniless Irish girl, Helen Sheridan. He left her all his wealth, but she died in London in 1876 without making a will.

Claimants to the fortune, which had dwindled to about £400,000, turned up in scores from all points of the compass; but the genuine next-of-kin could not be proved. The lawyers, however, reaped a splendid harvest, and when they had finished with the "millions" the Crown took possession of the balance, amounting to a comparatively trifling estate of £140,000.

Sir Francis Blake, being a wealthy coal-owner, did not concern himself in the least about the fabulous millions. He has been an energetic leader of Liberalism in Northumbria for many years. His wife, who died last year, was also a active politician, with great influence among the women of Berwick. She was a daughter of the Glasgow shipowner and Cunard Line director, Mr. John Cleland Burns.

GIRLS AS BANK CLERKS

The statement of Royal Bank officials that they now employ 700 women in their various offices as compared to only 250 previous to the war, serves to draw added attention to another phase of the powerful current of these, our times. Incidentally, the management state that taken as a whole these women are very satisfactory. They are largely young girls recruited from business colleges and the usual business channels, but of late a new element has crept into supply. This is in reference to the fact that girls of well-to-do families who had not previously considered working are now beginning to fill the gap created by the absence of other bread winners or else simply in answer to the more insistent demand for their services.

The importance of this news lies in the fact that it is symptomatic of a condition. Other banks are pursuing the same policy. Women are now generally employed in munition making in Canada. The Bertram plant at Dundas, Ont., and the Canadian Cement plant in Montreal are illustrations of this fact. The available supply of such labor has only been scratched and it appears to offer the greatest hope of replacing the ever-increasing shortage of labor. A resurvey of the chief conditions prevailing throughout the period of the war in England will show them to have been invariably duplicated in this country at a later date. Recruiting, munitions, a period of depression, followed by great prosperity, labor shortage in all their phases have been invariably reproduced here. And a similar result appears to be inevitable in the case of female labor.

The Folly of Taking Digestive Pills

A Warning to Dyspeptics

The habit of taking digestive pills after meals makes chronic dyspeptics of many thousands of men and women because artificial digestents, drugs and medicines have pratically no influence upon the excessively acid condition of the stomach contents which is the cause of most forms of indigestion and dyspepsia.

The after dinner pill merely lessens the sensitiveness of the stomach nerves and thus gives a false sense of freedom from pain. If those who are subject to indigestion, gas, flatulence, belching, bloating, heartburn, etc. after eating would get about an ounce of pure bisurated magnesia from their druggist and take a teaspoonful in a little water after meals, there would be no further necessity for drugs or medicines, because bisurated magnesia instantly neutralizes stomach acidity, stops food fermentation and thus insures normal, painless digestion by enabling the stomach to do its work without hindrance.

An Inducement For Hog Raising

Good Profits Made From The Industry — Two Examples of Satisfactory Returns

An item appeared in a local paper recently, which read as follows::

"Mr. D. H. Fraser, of Northport, recently sold a bunch of 13 hogs that weighed 2190 lbs. at exactly five months. The price paid was 12c. per lb. live weight, making a net return of $262.80. The grain for these hogs was all purchased at ruling market prices and cost a total of $86.90. This leaves a balance of $175.90 for the skim milk and other rough feed, including the cost of pigs and labor involved."

Mr. George W. Thompson of Tweed, states he can easily beat the above record. He sold 7 hogs, which were five and a half months old, and their weight was 1,820 pounds. The price received per cwt. was $10.75, making $195.70. The grain fed, at market price, cost $35.40, leaving a balance of $160.30.

The Need of The Red Cross

One More Appeal For Funds to Carry Out Its Splendid Work Remember Oct. 19

Once again the people of Ontario are asked to give out of the largeness of their hearts to the great work of the British Red Cross. This is an opportunity and an obligation as well. The British Red Cross is the only institution which carries voluntary aid to the sick and wounded of the British forces on land and sea in every region of the war. It is the pride of the British Red Cross that, in every crisis in the campaigns of Great Britain and her Allies, it has been able to bring prompt and efficient aid to supplement the untiring work of the official services.

Broadly speaking, the work of the British Red Cross is:

(1) The transportation of the sick and wounded.

(2) Hospitals, rest and convalescent homes.

(3) The provision of countless hospital and medical supplies, clothing and other comforts.

The war has reached its turning point. Canada was in at the start with a spontaniety that startled the world. Canada must be in at the finish with a reserve of effort that shows her spirit is undiminished. Concentration of effort and consecration to the cause will mean an earlier end to the war and the return of our sons, brothers and sweethearts in health, happiness and prosperity. The British Red Cross needs millions of dollars to continue the work next year. Out of our abundance we can spare for a cause so worthy. Ontario will do well as each individual does his and her part. Remember the collection—October 19.

Death Rate in Belgium Alarming

Frail Bodies and Wan Faces of Little Children Tell Terrible Tale of Starvation There

Reports out of the City of Brussels show that the death rate is mounting to fourteen people per thousand every month, most of these deaths being due directly or indirectly to starvation.

The starvation that the Belgian Relief Committee has been endeavoring to ward off for so many months, is coming and bringing with it its ravages. Actual deaths from starvation are not so frequent, but day after day some poor woman, some helpless child, succumbs to the lack of nourishment experienced for months past.

Here are a brave people scourged in to submission by their German conqueror, brave because their husbands, sons and brothers are away fighting for their country and ours, now forced to see their little ones taken from them by death—a death that might be averted if they were only given food.

The picture of these little tots standing in the long queues outside the feeding stations is a pitiful one. Clinging, cringing with fear, to the skirts of their frail mothers, their whole mien is one of pleading for something to eat. Starvation is written all over their faces. Their sunken eyes and thin little bodies tell the terrible tale of the suffering they have undergone. Death is the only relief if food does not come. Soon the death rate will be more than fourteen to the thousand every month.

The Belgian Relief Committee is doing its utmost for these people, doing what it can to relieve them in their plight, but the work is futile if the food is not given. Will you not send your bit to the Belgian Relief Committee, 59 St. Peter St., Montreal, or to the branch in your town.

THE SCOPE OF THE KINGDOM

(By Rev. A. M. Hubly)
Dan. vii, 13—14

The scope, or extent of the Kingdom of the "Son of Man" is repeatedly referred to as being greater than any of the kingdoms preceding it. spoken of by the prophets.

The earth is to be filled with the knowledge of the Lord.

Men, every where, are to be benefitted by the ministry of Christ, and all nations shall call Him blessed.

His kingdom shall from the rising of the sun to the going down of the same.

"He shall have dominion also from sea to sea, and from the river to the ends of the earth."

"His name shall be continued as long as the sun, and men shall be blessed in Him; and the whole earth be filled with His glory."

The scripture very fully sets forth the glorious universal reign of the Son of man; yet, we must not lose sight of another fact which it sets forth equally plain: many, by their attitude, turns the blessedness of His reign into wretchedness and woe.

Both the King and His people will have enemies.

It is written: "They that dwell in the wilderness shall bow before Him, and His enemies shall lick the dust."

This will be in consequence of His righteousness.

He will rule the enemies of His righteousness with a rod of iron.

"With righteousness shall He judge the poor, and reprove with equity for the meek of the earth; and He shall smite the earth with the rod of His mouth, and with the breath of His lips shall He slay the wicked."

So the promise reads: "He shall judge the poor of the people and save the children of the needy; for He will deliver the needy when he crieth, the poor also and him that hath no helper.

He shall save the souls of the needy, He shall redeem their soul from deceit and violence, and precious shall their blood be in His sight."

We learn by this, that in the scope of the Kingdom there will be the unregenerate to harass and prey upon the weak, the poor, and the innocent.

It is very patent, to all believers, that the Kingdom of the Son of Man is present, with all, and in all generations, where ever the gospel of the Kingdom is proclaimed, and its scope is extends coequel with the reception of its doctrins, and religious profession of faith in the same.

Within its scope, the religion of the Kingdom is universally confessed, but not universally experienced: "Hence the enemy within the gates."

The Kingdom of Great Britain embraces all British subjects, but many of those are disloyal to the interests of the Empire, and disobedient to the decrees of King George; hence, the righteous laws of England, and her colonies are a terror to them, rather than a comfort.

So, is it, amongst the subjects of Christ's Kingdom; many profess Him their Lord and King and yet, are disobedient to the laws and requirements of His reigning in their hearts.

As the Kingdom of Christ advances, and His power is more manifest, the unregenerate, the disobedient, will become more and more, the exception rather than the rule.

It is written in Isaiah, that in connection with the scope of the Kingdom: "The sinner being an hundred years old shall be accused." Thus we learn, that a righteous environment does not save, from the curse of sin, no matter how long the period, nor how great the privileges.

Judas remained a "thief," though wrapt, as it were, for three years, in the very folds of the "garments of righteousness."

There may be spectacular, external service rendered the King, while internally a spirit abides in bitter rebellion against both his commands and the restraining laws and prohibitions of his kingdom.

Such service in the Kingdom of the Son of Man, brings its equitable reward, "For He shall not judge after the sight of His eyes, neither reprove after the hearing of His ears."

"Righteousness shall be the girdle of Man, that the interpretation of girdle of His reins.' '

It is in, and through the development and scope the Kingdom given by the "ancient of days," to the Son of Man, that the interpretation of the the same will take place, and is now taking place.

The kingdoms of this world, and the great monarchies shall have disappeared as the chaff of the summer threshing floor.

This may be logically inferred by the interpretation of Aebbuchanezzar's dream, by the mouth of Daniel, recorded in the second chapter of his book.

In relation to time, the scope of the Kingdom is everlasting.

As we read in our text: "A dominion, which shall not pass away," and a "Kingdom, which shall not be destroyed."

Other kingdoms will pass away, some of them work out their own destruction.

As it is written: "O, Israel thou hast destroyed thyself, but in Me is thy salvation."

The Kingdom of our Christ "shall never be destroyed."

It sets at defiance all hostile armies, and bombarding fleets, together with elements, and material and spiritual forces.

Its battlements and fortresses stand sure.

Let this be our cheerful confidence, if ever we grow weary of waiting for the full and final extent and scope of the Kingdom: the complete triumph of our Christ and His people.

Satan, who still flings, to the four winds of heaven, his banners of evil, and continues to usurp a power and influence over men and nations, is already defeated, and God is being glorified, by the manner in which the conquering scope of the Kingdom of the Son of Man is being made manifest.

The process, by which our Jehovah is working out His purpose of love for a lost world, may seem slow.

"But beloved, be not ignorant of this one thing, that one day is with the Lord as a thousand years, and a thousand years as one day."

The Righteous one will not make haste.

With earthly kingdoms it is different.

On the alarm of war the news sweep continents, islands and seas!

Signs of conflict are flung to the breeze from every hill and headland; the beat of the drum is heard, and the bugle calls to arms, and before one hostile foot has touched the soil: hurrying from hamlets, scattered villages, lonely glens and crowded cities, shepherd's hut and peasant's cot, free men line the front to fight their country's enemy, and defend their country's flag!

In the great battle between the saints of the most high and the forces of evil there is no such haste.

There is a picture painted of a skillful wrestler: He encourages his antagonist to try his power, but, when enough, he grasps him! and with athletic strength he lifts him from the ground! He holds him aloft! Ha! that uplift, is, that he might dash him with greater fury, back to earth, that more crushing will be the fall, and more complete the victory.!

So fares it with the enemy of the kingdom of righteousness.

The Captain of the Lord's hosts permits his antagonist to scale the walls, to carry the citadel by assault, and to plant for a time his defiant standard on the battlements, but only from these proud elevations he may be hurled into a deeper Abyss. A picture of his apparent triumph and final overthrow is given in the twentieth chapter of Revelation. "He shall go out to deceive the nations which are in the four-quarters of the earth, Gog and Magog, to gather them together to battle; the number of them is as the sand of the sea.

And they went up —— and compassed the camp of the saints about, and the beloved city." this was the scope of their triumph! "Fire came down from God out of heaven and devoured them.

And the devil, that deceived them, was cast into the lake of fire and brimstone where the beast and the false prophet are and shall be tormented day and night for ever and ever."——"and death and hell were cast into the lake"——"And whosoever was not found written in the book of life was cast into the lake of fire."

It may be, that the power of evil is permitted to triumph for a season, that the salvation of believers might be more perfect, and the joy of angels, over sinners brought to repentence; increased; and for the greater discomfort of devils in the defeat of their leader, so that both friends and foes of the righteous kingdom shall be constrained to say: "Hast thou an arm like God! Canst thou thunder with a voice like His?" So shall the people of Jesus say with great gladness: "Where is there a God like unto our God?"

For this, every believer in the gospel, when providence frowns the darkest; when the footprints of Divine power are lost in the roughness of the path, and when the Almighty hand of love and protection, cannot be traced by reason of the smoke and dust of the conflict, may still place unquestionable confidence in the supremacy of God's power, wisdom and love, resting assuredly that in the scope of His kingdom all things are working for the good, and the glorious triumph of His people.

But all this is too general to satisfy the needs of the individual life.

What is the scope of the Kingdom of Victory here is not by physical, but

"No doubt you have told her," I ventured, "a good deal about yourself," and was instantly ashamed of myself. I suppose I spoke out of a sense of protest against Mrs. Harman's strange lack of conventionality.

"I've told her all I know," he said readily, and the unconscious pathos of the answer smote me. "And all that Keredec has let me know. You see I haven't"—

"But do you think," I interrupted quickly, anxious, in my remorse, to divert him from that channel—"do you think Professor Keredec would approve, if he knew?"

"I think he would," he responded slowly, pausing in his walk again. "I have a feeling that perhaps he does know, and yet I have been afraid to tell him. I think he knows everything in the world! I have felt tonight that he knows this, and—it's very strange, but I—well, what was it that made him so glad?"

"The light is still burning in his room," I said quietly.

"You're right. I'll tell him tonight." This came with sudden decision, but with less than marked what followed. "But he can't stop me now. No one on earth shall do that, except Mme. d'Armand herself—no one!"

I saw his hand groping toward me in the darkness, and, rising, I gave him mine.

"Good night," he said. "I'm glad to tell him. I'm glad to have told you. Ah, but isn't this," he cried, "a happy world!"

Turning, he ran to the gallery steps. "At last I'm glad," he called back over his shoulder—"I'm glad that I was born"—

I heard his voice indistinctly, but I thought, though I might have been mistaken, that I caught a final word and that it was "again."

* * *

It was one of those days when nature throws herself straight in your face and you are at a loss to know whether she has kissed you or slapped you, though you are conscious of the tingle—a day, in brief, more for laughing than for painting, and the truth is that I suited its mood only too well and laughed more than I painted, though I sat with my easel before me and a picture ready upon my palette to be painted.

No one could have understood better than I that this was setting a bad example to the acolyte who sat, likewise facing an easel, ten paces to my left; a very sportsmanlike figure of a painter, indeed, in her short skirt and long coat of woodland brown, the fine brown of dead oak leaves; a "devastating" selection of color that, being much the same shade as her hair, with brown for her hat, too, and the veil encircling the small crown thereof, and brown again for the stout, high, laced boots which protected her from the wet tangle underfoot. Who could have expected so dashing a young person as Anne Elliott to do any real work at painting? Yet she did, narrowing her eyes to the finest point of concentration and applying herself to the task in hand with a persistence which I found on that particular morning far beyond my own powers.

At her request I inspected her work. I stepped back several yards to see it better, though I should have had to retire about a quarter of the length of a city block to see it quite from her own point of view.

"I think ye must be in love."

She moved with me, both of us walking backward. I began:

"For a day like this, with all the color in the trees themselves and so very little in the air"—

There came an interruption, a voice of unpleasant and wiry nasality, speaking from behind us.

"Well, well!" it said. "So here we are again!"

I faced about and beheld, just emerged from a bypath, a fox faced young man whose light, well poised figure was jauntily clad in gray serge, with scarlet waistcoat and tie, white shoes upon his feet and a white hat gayly beribboned upon his head. A recollection of the dusky road and a group of people about Pere Baudry's lamplit door flickered across my mind.

"The historical tourist!" I exclaimed. "The highly pedestrian tripper from Trouville!"

"You got me right, m'deaf friend," he replied with condescension, "I rec'leck meetin' you perfect."

"And I was interested to learn," said I, carefully observing the effect of my words upon him, "that you had been to Les Trois Pigeons, after all. Perhaps I might put it, you had been through Les Trois Pigeons, for the maitre d'hotel informed me you had investigated every corner—that wasn't locked."

"Sure," he returned, with rather less embarrassment than a brazen Vishnu would have exhibited under the same circumstances. "He showed me what pitchers they was in your studio. I'll luk 'em over again fer ye one of these days. Some of 'em was right gud."

"You will be visiting near enough for me to avail myself of the opportunity?"

"Right in the Pigeon house, my friend. I've just come down t'put in a few days there," he responded coolly. "They's a young feller in this neighborhood I take a kind o' fam'ly interest in."

"Who is that?" I asked quickly.

For answer he produced the effect of a laugh by widening and lifting one side of his mouth, leaving the other meantime rigid.

"Don' lemme int'rup' the conv'sation with yer lady friend," he said winningly. "What they call 'talkin' high arts,' wasn't it? I'd like to hear some."

CHAPTER IX.

MISS ELLIOTT'S expression, when I turned to observe the effect of the intruder upon her, was found to be one of brilliant delight. With glowing eyes, her lips parted in a breathless ecstasy, she gazed upon the newcomer, evidently fearing to lose a syllable that fell from his lips. Moving closer to me, she whispered urgently:

"Keep him—oh, keep him!"

To detain him, for a time at least, was my intention, though my motive was not merely to afford her pleasure. The advent of the young man had produced a singularly disagreeable impression upon me, quite apart from any antagonism I might have felt toward him as a type. Strange suspicions leaped into my mind, formless—in the surprise of the moment—but rapidly groping toward definite outline, and following hard upon them crept a tingling apprehension.

"Now, about how much," he asked slowly, "would you expec' t' git f'r a pitcher that size?"

"It isn't mine," I informed him.

"You don't tell me it's the little lady's—what?" He bowed genially and favored Miss Elliott with a stare of warm admiration. "Pretty a thing as I ever see," he added.

"The name you'd see on 'em is Oll Polcy."

"Oh," she cried, with an ardor that choked her slightly, "thank you!"

"Oh, I meant the pitcher!" he said hastily, evidently nonplused by a gratitude so fervent.

The incorrigible damsel cast down her eyes in modesty. "And I had hoped," she breathed, "something so different!"

I could not be certain whether or not he caught the whisper. I thought he did. At all events, the surface of his easy assurance appeared somewhat disarranged, and perhaps to restore it by performing the rites of etiquette he said:

"Well, I expec' the smart thing now is to pass the cards, but mine's in my grip, an' it ain't unpacked yet. The name you'd see on 'em is Oll Policy."

"Oll Policy," echoed Miss Elliott, turning to me in genuine astonishment.

"Mr. Earl Percy," I translated.

"Oh, rapturous!" she cried, her face radiant. "And won't Mr. Percy give us his opinion of my art?"

He turned again to the easel, and as he examined the painting thereon at closer range amazement overspread his features. However, pulling himself together, he found himself able to reply and with great gallantry:

"Well, on'y t' think them little hands cud 'a' done all that rough woik!"

I saved the girl's feelings by entering into the conversation with a question, which I put quickly:

"You intend pursuing your historical researches in the neighborhood?"

"Them fairy tales I handed you about ole Jeanne d'Arc an' William the Conker," he said, "say, they must 'a' made you sore afterwoids!"

"On the contrary, I was much interested in everything pertaining to your too brief visit," I returned. "I am even more so now."

"Well, m' friend"—he shot me a sidelong, distrustful glance—"keep yer eyes open."

"That is just the point," I laughed, with intentional significance, for I meant to make Mr. Percy talk as much as I could. To this end, remembering that specimens of this kind are most indiscreet when carefully enraged, I added, stimulating his own manner:

"Eyes open and doors locked! What?"

"I guess they ain't much need o' lockin' your door," he retorted darkly; "not from what I saw when I was in your studio." He should have stopped there, for the hit was palpable and justified, but in his resentment he overdid it. "You needn't be scared of anybody's cartin' off them pitchers, young feller! Whoosh! An' I'm the luks of the clo'es I saw hangin' on the wall," he continued, growing more nettled as I smiled cheerfully upon him, "I don'-b'lieve you gut any worries comin' about them neither."

"I suppose our tastes are different," I said, letting my smile broaden. "There might be protection in that."

His stare at me was protracted to an unseemly length before the sting of this remark reached him. It penetrated finally, however.

"As I tell the little dame here," he said, pitching his voice higher and affecting the plaintiff, "I make no passes at a friend o' hers—not in front o' her, anyways. But when it comes to these here ole, ancient curiosities"—he cackled again loudly—"well, I guess them clo'es I see that day kin hand it out t' anything they got in the museums. 'Look here,' I says to the waiter, 'these must be'n left over f'm ole Jeanne d'Arc herself,' I says. 'Talk about yer relics,' I says. Woosh! I' like t' died!" He laughed violently and concluded by turning upon me with a contemptuous flourish of his stick. "You think I d'know what makes you so raw?"

The form of repartee necessary to augment his ill humor was, of course, a matter of simple mechanism for one who had not entirely forgotten his student days in the quarter, and I delivered it airily, though I shivered inwardly that Miss Elliott should hear.

"Everything will be all right if when you dine at the inn you'll sit with your back toward me."

To my shamed surprise this roustabout wit drew a nervous, silvery giggle from her, and that completed the work with Mr. Percy, whose face grew scarlet with anger.

"You're a hot one, you are!" he sneered, with shocking bitterness. "You're quite the teaser, ain't ye, s'long's yer lady friend is lukkin' on! I guess they'll be a few surprises comin' your way before long. P'raps I cudn't give ye one now 'f I had a mind to."

"Pshaw!" I laughed and, venturing at hazard, said, "I know all you know."

"Oh, you do!" he cried scornfully. "I reckon you might set up an' take a little notice, though, if you knowed 'at I know all you know!"

"Not a bit of it!"

"No? Maybe you think I don't know what makes you so raw with me; maybe you think I don't know who ye've got so thick with at this here Pigeon house; maybe you think I don't know who them people are!"

"No, you don't. You have learned," I said, trying to control my excitement, "nothing. Whoever hired you for a spy lost the money. You don't know anything."

"I don't!" And with that his voice went to a half shriek. "Maybe you think I'm down here f'r my health; maybe you think I come out f'r a pleasant walk in the woods right now; maybe you think I ain't seen no other lady friend o' yours besides this'n today, and maybe I didn't see who was with her—yes, an' maybe you think I d'know no other times he's be'n with her; maybe you think I ain't be'n layin' low over at Dives; maybe I don't know a few real names in this neighborhood! Oh, no, maybe not!"

"How about the name—Oliver Saffren?" he cried fiercely, and at that, though I had expected it, I uttered an involuntary exclamation.

"How about it?" he shouted, advancing toward me triumphantly, shaking his forefinger in my face. "Hey? That stings some, does it? Sounds kind o' like a false name, does it? Got ye where the hair is short that time, didn't I? Your side's where the trouble is. That's what's eatin' into you. An' I tell you flatfoot you're gittin' rough 'ith me and playin' Charley the Show-off in front o' yer lady friends 'll all go down in the bill. These people ye've got so chummy with—they'll pay f'r it all right, don't you shed no tears over that!"

"You couldn't by any possibility," I said deliberately, with as much satire as I could command—"you couldn't possibly mean that any sum of mere money might be a salve for the injuries my unkind words have inflicted."

He seemed upon the point of destroying me physically, but, with a slight shudder, controlled himself. Stepping close to me, he thrust his head forward and measured the emphasis of his speech by his right forefinger upon my shoulder as he by moral power. The weapons in this war are not carnal, but spiritual.

The word of God, and its glorious gospel like the spirit of judgment, and of burning, melts the penitent, and consumes the impenitent, restores the sinner to divine favor and confirms the saint.

The converting power of truth like an unquenchable fire, burns up error and superstition, and gives light where darkness was.

This is the true interpretation of the words of the Psalmist.

"The entrance of Thy Word giveth Light."

This also, is of the "Son of Man." "In Him was life, and the life was the light of men."

Add to this, Christ's own words: "It is the spirit that quickeneth; the flesh profiteth nothing; the words that I speak unto you, they are spirit and they are life."

The right, of the Lord Jesus, to universal rule is loudly, and most authoritatively proclaimed, but His royal sceptre is not submitted to by all who hear the "good news."

The more's the pity that so many precious souls for whom a Saviour-King is provided, should oppose their own eternal interest.

Of one thing, however, we can all be sure: Christ is ruling His people, and His Kingdom is progressing toward final triumph.

All things shall be put under Him!

Willingly, or by force all must submit to His reigning power.

By right of, both purchase and conquest, "the kingdoms of this world shall become the kingdom of our Christ, and He shall reign forever and ever."

In conclusion; we must remember that the scope of the Kingdom of the Son of Man, is infinite.

In our finite state we can but behold some faint reflection of its glory, and that only by the element of the supernatural.

Jesus said to Nicodemus: "Verily, verily I say unto thee, except a man be born again, he cannot see the Kingdom of God."

By this new birth, the mental powers of the natural man undergo a spiritual change, in order that he may be fitted for the appreciation of the principles, pursuits, and objects of the Kingdom; "for the natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God; for they are foolishness unto him; neither can he know them, because they are spiritually discerned."

The scope of the Kingdom, as it extends into the extramundane, furnishes an inviting theme for poetical flights of imagination, it prevents so much that is attractive to the heart, let loose from the world's sordidness.

It is the region of purity, love, peace, holiness, expanded intellect, and generous freedom.

It is the deathless, sinless, tearless, cloudless abode of the redeemed; the land of angels, principalities and powers; of patriarchs, prophets, apostles and martyrs!

The manifestation of the capital of the Kingdom, and the palace and person of the eternal King!

"There, to fulfill His sweet commands,
Our speedy feet shall move;
No sin shall clog our holy zeal,
Or cool our burning love.

Forever His dear sacred name
Shall dwell upon our tongue;
And Jesus, and salvation be
The close of every song."

WEST INDIAN HURRICANE

Gusts Reach Almost a Hundred Miles an Hour—Communication Cut off

Canadian Press Special.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—A West Indian hurricane, which has been blowing in the Caribbean Sea and the Gulf of Mexico this week, has reached the American coast. A ninety-mile gale with gusts reachingg almost a hundred miles an hour, was reported early this morning from Mobile and Fort Morgan, Alabama, since when all communication has been cut off.

DRINK-CRAZED OFFICER FATALLY SHOOTS CLERK

Tragic Affair in Basement of Government Ry. Offices at Moncton, N. B.

MONCTON, N.B., Oct. 18.—Special—Capt. John E. Merrell, whose identification card gives him as an officer in the 10th Battalion, King's Own Regiment, England, shot and killed John F. Rogers, a clerk in the Canadain Government Railway offices, in the general office building this afternoon. The tragedy took place in the basement of the building, and mystery surrounds the shooting. Merrell was drink-crazed. He was arrested, and is being held in the city lockup on the charge of murder. Rogers died within a few minutes after being shot, and, so far as known, left no statement.

DOMINION PROHIBITION IS NOW THEIR GOAL

TORONTO, Oct., 18—Special—Domion wide prohibition of the manufacture and importation of liquor was the goal set by the Committee of One Hundred which sat in conference at the Y.M.C.A. yesterday It was decided to communicate with social organizations in all the Provinces, with a view of finding a common basis of co-operaion in his campaign

The members of the commitee came from all parts of Ontario, and every one expressed satisfaction with the way in which the prohibition act had worked. It was generally regarded as already a great success, even beyond expectations.

SASKATCHEWAN PREMIER RESIGNS HIS POST

Ill Health Compels Hon. Walter Scott to Relinguish His Duties as Head of Provincial Government — Has Been in Public Life Since 1900

REGINA, Sask., Oct. 17—Hon. Walter Scott has resigned the Premiership of Saskatchewan on account of ill-health.

Following confinement to his home through his illness for several weeks Premier Scott left Regina the latter part of September for the south to get the best possible advice, and when he left it was the hope of himself and friends that the medical report would be of such a character that he could return in a short time and resume his duties. Unfortunately, the specialist has reported that it is absolutely necessary that he give up all work and responsibility for a period of at least one year if he is to regain his health. Consequently, under the circumstances, the Premier feels there is nothing else for him to do but to resign, and his resignation reached the Lieutenant-Governor yesterday. The Government is considering the matter carefully, but no announcement as to the probable successor can be looked for for a few days.

HEAVY FIGHTING IN GALICIA

Stubborn Battle and The Repulse of Teutonic Counter Attacks Reported

Canadian Press Special

PETROGRAD, Oct. 18.—Heavy engagements are continuing on the Galician battlefront, according to today's War Office report, which announces stubborn fighting still in progress and the repulse of a Teutonic counter-attack notably in the vicinity of Korytniza and Bolshortse.

Boy Knocked Unconscious and Driver Arrested

TORONTO, Oct. 18.—Special—While riding his bicycle along Humbert street near the corner of Brookfield avenue yesterday evening, James Burnett, a young boy, address unknown, was struck by a wagon driven by Geo. Kusrayk, 30 Draper street, and was rendered unconscious. The boy was rushed to the General Hospital in the police ambulance, while Krusrayk, upon reporting the matter to the police, was taken into custody and is now being held on a charge of criminal negligence. The extent of the cyclist's injuries is not yet known, but at a late hour last night he had not recovered consciousness.

Terrific Counter Attacks Repulsed

German Advance Troops Penetrate Trenches But Are Either Killed or Captured

Canadian Press Special.

PARIS, Oct. 18.—South of the Somme the Germans about five o'clock this morningg attacked one of our trenches east of Berny-en-Santere. Some enemy fractions of the first wave succeeded in penetrating our advanced elements.

In immediate counter attacks by our troops these were all killed or captured under our barrage of fire, and were compelled to fall back in disorder under, leaving a number of dead on the ground. South of the Aure our reconnaisance penetrated the enemy trenches in the Fresneres district, and brought back prisoners.

Southeast of Rheims another couple main carried out in the fort De La Pompelle sector, was perfectly successful.

BAG 74 AEROPLANES DURING SEPTEMBER

Germans Claim to Have Shot Down 53 British and 21 French Machines

BERLIN, Oct. 17.—Seventy-four hostile aeroplanes, of which 21 were French and 53 British, were shot down by the Germans during the month of September, according to an exact list compiled by the German military authorities, says a semi-official statements yesterday as follows:

"The German military authorities have compiled an exact list of all hostile aeroplanes which were shot down and fell into German hands during the month of September. They number 74, of which 21 were French, and 53 British.

"Of 23 shattered or burnt aeroplanes the names of the occupants could not be learned. The names of those in the others are given, together with full details regarding the machines, in the German list."

Schooner From Kingston Ashore

The Lizzie Metzner Storm Driven off Oswego—Saved by Guards

OSWEGO, N.Y., Oct. 17.—The schooner Lizzie Metzner, of Kingston, went ashore off Oswego this morning in a sixty mile gale. Tremendous seas were running in the lake and the crew of three, consisting of Capt. Chauncey Daryeau, of Kingston; J. R. Lobb, of South Bay, and Sanfield Willard, Amherst Island, had a very narrow escape from drowning. With great difficulty they were finally rescued byl the coast guard, by means of the breeches buoy.

Serbians Victorious

Canadian Press Special,

SALONIKI, Oct. 18.—Successful operations by Serbians on the Macedonian front east of Monastir are reported in a Serbian official announcement on Monday. Serbians attacked the Bulgarian's position at Dobropolye and Sokol. The operations were continued on Tuesday with regularity and success.

THREE ATTACKS ARE REPULSED

German Drives on The Somme Come to Naught—Allies Maintain Gains

Canadian Press Special

PARIS, Oct. 18—Official statement—North of the Somme towards the close of the day yesterday, the enemy renewed his attempts on Sailly Saillisel position. Three attacks by the enemy debouching from the north and east were successfully broken by our fire which caused him considerable loss. Our gains were maintained in entirety. During the course of the night there was no infantry action.

Impudent Youth Properly Chastised

Knocked Lady Down With Bicycle Then Struck Her—Son Licked Him

KINGSTON, Oct. 17.—Shortly after school yesterday afternoon a youth riding a bicycle collided with a lady at the corner of Ordnance and Sydenham streets, and was subjected to a tongue thrashing by the enraged lady. The unmannerly youth not relishing the conversation, struck the lady several blows, but it happened that the lady's young son was just coming from school, and perceiving the indignity offered his mother, promptly interfered and administered severe punishment to the other boy. The fight waged fiercely for a time and quite a crowd was attracted to the scene. After he had vanquished his opponent, the young lad and his mother proudly left the scene of hostilities.

EDITORS MUST FIGHT BATTLE OVER AGAIN

Crown Given Leave to Appeal Against Justice Haggart's Decision

WINNIPEG, Oct. 18.—Special. — The crown is appealing from the decision of Justice Haggart reversing the commttal to jail for alleged contempt of court of four Winnipeg newspaper men by Justice Galt, sitting as a commissioner. John Allen, deputy attorney-general, made an ex parte application before the court of appeals this morning for a rule nisi requiring Edward Beck, managing editor of The Telegram, to appear before the court to show cause why Justice Haggart's decision should not be reversed. The motion will be argued as a test case on November 6th.

GOVERNMENT TAKES OVER CANADIAN WHEAT CROP

Also Carriers — This is Report That Comes From Ottawa

An authoritative report from Ottawa states that the Government has practically completed plans for the taking over of all the Canadian wheat supply, under terms similar to those pursued in Australia. It is stated that the Government will pay the market price and will also take over all the freight carriers when the present season ends. The majority of the latter will be used in coastal trade while others will be used in the ocean going service.

Aviation School

Canadian Corps to be Taught With Machines Made in Dominion—This is But Proper

OTTAWA, Oct. 16.—In connection with the Government's action in establishing an aviation school and aeroplane factory in Canada, there is to be authorized, it is understood, a Canadian aviation corps. The factory for the manufacture of aeroplanes and motors will be built or secured in Toronto, according to the present intention of the Imperial Munitions Board, which has charge of the project. The school will probably be located in or near Toronto, and will be thoroughly equipped and manned by a competent state for the teaching of flying. These new facilities make practicable the establishment of an aviation corps. There will thus be a corps of Canadian aviators, taught in Canada, and using machines made in Canada.

DOBRUDJA SCENE OF FULL FRONT BATTLE

Report is Current That General Mackensen's Forces Have Been Pushed Backward Toward The South — General Averesco of The Roumanian Army Doing Excellent Work

LONDON, Oct. 18.—Special.—No confirmation has been received of the wireless messages that the Bulgar-German-Turk forces under Von Mackensen have been driven all the way back to Dobrie, in the southern portion of Dobrudja, but all despatches indicate that a great battle is in progress on that front, and that the enemy's lines have been penetrated by the Russo-Roumanian forces.

The commander of the Roumanian army in the Dobrudja is Gen. Averesco, said to be a soldier of extraordinary talents. Gen. Averesco passed his career in the cavalry until be entered the staff college. He was chief of the general staff during the second Balkan War, and received his baptism of fire under King Carol, then Prince Carol, at Plevna in 1877. He is 61 years of age.

Leader of Liberals Delays His Reply

Is in No Hurry to Answer Premier's Proposal of Co-operation — Requests Copy of Order

OTTAWA, Oct. 17.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier is taking his time in making up his mind whether he will be willing to co-operate with the Government in the appointment of a committee to make a Dominion-wide appeal to the manhood of Canada in the present crisis. Sir Robert Borden forwarded the resolution of the National Service directors, asking for such a committee, to the Liberal leader and it was taken for granted that in such a patriotic object he would express without hesitation his willingness to co-operate. Instead, the Liberal leader has written asking for a copy of the order-in-council under which the directors were appointed. Why he should want the order-in-council is not clear. No matter what the terms of the order it cannot affect the appointment to appeal to Canadians for greater effort.

It is presumed that the real object is a play for time until Sir Wilfrid can consult with his followers as to whether it would be wise politically to associate with the Government in the appointment of such a committee.

Would Strike Out "Obey" in Marriage Service

Protestant Episcopal Convention, However, Refers Question Back to Commission

ST LOUIS, Oct. 17.—Elimination of the word "obey" in the promise of the woman in the marriage service was recommended in a minority report of the joint commission on common prayer submitted to the House of Deputies of the Protestant Episcopal general convention here yesterday. The house of deputies referred back to the commission on prayer book all proposed changes in the marriage ceremony, in the catechism and in the instruction of clergymen.

These questions cannot come before the general convention again for three years. The minority report recommended that the words "will thou obey him and serve him," be changed to "will though love him, comfort him, honor and KEEP him, in sickness and in health, and forsaking all others, KEEP THEE ONLY UNTO HIM SO LONG AS YE SHALL LIVE."

The minority report suggested also the omission of the words "and with all my worldly goods I thee endow," in the service. An argument advanced was that the expression "endow" is a relic of old English laws, under which the dower rights of women were guaranteed, and that the question involved is a civil one, to be taken for granted.

COMMITTED FOR TRIAL

TORONTO, Oct. 18.—Special—Miss Bertha Moreau and Charles Short, both under twenty years, were committed for trial yesterday on a charge of manslaughter. The charge arose out of the killing of Mrs. Sarah Horn, an aged woman, last Thursday evening on Carlaw avenue, near Danforth, by a motor car Miss Moreau was driving, and Short, the owner of the car, was with her at the time.

Sixteenth Irish Division Plays A Noble Role

LONDON, Oct., 18—Special—Major William Redmond brother of John Redmond, has sent to the papers a most inspiring letter on the work of the 16th Irish Division in France, where it has been since December. 1915, employed during the past summer months at section of the front where fighting was hotest, and played a splendid part in the Somme battle

FISHERIES OF CANADA SHOW BIG INCREASE

Total Value Past Year is $36,000,000, A Gain of $4,500,000

OTTAWA, Oct 17.—The total value of the Canadian fisheries during the last fiscal year, according to the annual report of the Fisheries Department, was slightly less than thirty-six million dollars, an increase of four and a half millions as compared with the previous year. Salmon with a production of upwards of 11 million dollars continues to hold first place as the most valuable of Canadian fish.

General Hughes, while in England, discussed with the British Board of Trade the question of such a supply, and negotiations were begun which have resulted in an order for 1,500,000 pounds of frozen fish.

PEOPLE'S SAVINGS NEEDED TO ESTABLISH CREDIT

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 17.—As a result of the new fifty million dollar credit which Sir Thomas White arranged for the British War Office for the purchase of munitions and other war supplies in Canada, sixty million dollars worth of orders came to Canada last week. However, if these credits are to continue, it was stated today by an official of the finance department, they must come from the savings of the people. Sir Thomas White will return from Toronto tomorrow and will devote his attention to the thrift campaign before he leaves for England. In this campaign he is being assisted by the Canadian Bankers' Association.

LOVING CUP FOR LAURIER

OTTAWA. Oct., 17—Before leaving Canada their Royal Highnesses the Duke and Duchess of Connaught presented Sir Wilfrid Laurier with a loving cup of silver inscribed: "From Field Marshall H. R. H. the Duke of Connaught, and Strathearn, Governor-General of Canada, and H. R. H. the Duchess of Connaught and Strathearn, to Right Hon. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, 1916."

ATTEMPT TO SEPARATE RUSSIANS AND ROUMANIANS

Teutons in Audacious Drive to Get The Two Armies Apart — Austro-Germans Have Concentrated Heavy Forces at Southern Tip of Bukowina

PETROGRAD, Oct. 18.—Special.—The whole of Gen. Brussiloff's front, from the district of Kovel to Roumania, presents an almost continuous battle line, with large Russian and Austro-German forces constantly engaged in attacks and counter-attacks, each side successfully defending its position, but making no lasting progress against its opponent.

It has become evident that the intention of breaking through the northern sector of Gen. Brussiloff's line and recapturing Lutsk has been supplemented, since Roumania's entry into the war, but a more audacious plan—a move at the extreme southern flank by the Austro-Germans in the hope of separating the Russian armies from their new allies.

To this end the Austro-Germans have concentrated heavy forces at the southern tip of Bukowina, where the southern flank of the Russians joins the northern flank of the Roumanians, and have begun an advance south of Dorna-Watra, accompanying this with a vigorous attack slightly farther north in the region of Korosmezo and Kirilibaba and a parallel movement against the Roumanians in Transylvania.

Thus far the drive of the Teutonic allies against the Roumanians has been more successful than that against the Russians, for, while the former are retiring toward their own frontier, the Russians have not, as far as is known at present, been compelled to give way before the powerful offensive directed against them.

The Austro-German movement, however, is still in its early stages, and a tremendous struggle is expected on this part of the front. Already the Russians have begun counter-manoeuvres, as is attested by the number of prisoners taken in the Kirlbaba region.

GOOD NEWS FROM ROUMANIA TEUTONS BEING FORCED BACK

Canadian Press Special.

BUCHAREST, Oct. 18.—An official announcement issued late Tuesday night, says Roumanian troops in the Bredeal region, south of Kronstadt have resumed the offensive, and are driving back the Teutonic forces on the Transylvanian side of the border. Violent Teutonic attacks are in progress along the entire front in the Carpathians, but the Entente lines have not been penetrated.

All news from the Roumanian fronts is declared to be reassuring.

BEFORE COURT FOR ACCEPTING AN ORDER FOR LIQUOR

Authorities Claim That Transaction Was Contrary to Provision of The Temperance Act—Higher Court Will Make Decision

TORONTO, Oct., 17—The first case of receiving an order for liquor in Ontario contrary to the Prohibition Act was up in the Police Court today. Hugh McEvoy, of 300 Royce Avenue, was the accused, and Plainclothesman Chas. Bruce was the complainant.

The case was adjourned for a week so that Mr. James Haverson. K.C. may enter an appeal. The penalty is $50 or two months.

The complainant stated that he went into McEvoy's store and asked for a bottle of Scotch at 85 cents. He was asked to sign an order, which he did. He paid 90 cents, which was the cost of the liquor, a money order and a stamp. He was given a letter containing the money order and asked to post it to the Distillers, Ltd., Montreal. In a few days the liquor was delivered to him by the Express."

"You paid for the liquor?" asked Colonel Denison.

"Yes," replied the officer.

"And you got it?"—"Yes."

Mr. Haverson argued that the complainant did not order from the accused but ordered the whisky from the Montreal firm.

This brought the retort from the Colonel that this was just a little bit of technicality which he had better take to another court. He would give him time to do so. You might get a judge that will see your point. "I've seen them that see anything."

FOCH HAS GRASP ON THE VILLAGE OF SAILLY-SAILESEE

LONDON, Oct. 18.—Special—On the Western front the French have made further progress in the general direction of Sailly-Saillesel, which village is now practcially in the grasp of the attackers. Despite fierce counter-attacks by the Germans the capture of the village is now a practical certainty. When the operation is completed the French will hold the valuable hill position which acts as a lever for the British advance.

Meanwhile the British extended their offensive to the region north of the Ancre, where they seized enemy trenches west of Serre. This move is taken to pressage an attack purposing the seizure of the whole western part of the Ancre Valley west of Bapaume. Success in this would put Haig's troops in position to outflank Bapaume from the west and northwest.

The Germans made several determined efforts this morning to win back part of the ground lost to the French east of Belloy-en-Santerre, and thus save Barleux from envelopment, but nowhere could they break through.

MILITARY MATTERS AT BARRIEFIELD HEIGHTS

'THOU SHALT NOT TALK'

Latest Commandment in Catechism of Soldier— Must not spread News of Time of Departure For Others Centres.

"Thou shalt not talk," is the latest commandment that has been added to the already long list in the soldier's catechism. The talk in this case is, however, on one subject— that of departure of troops. The soldier is human to the extent of wanting to spread good news. That failing which keeps newspapers alive is brought to the surface when it becomes known as to the date of the departure of certain troops. The department is always on the on the watch less such information becomes known to those who might cause inconvenience by hostile actions. To try and make it impossible for the secret to get out orders have been issued threatening dire punishment on those who spread the information. There can be no doubt that the idea behind the order is a splendid one, but it will be difficult to impress the necessity of secretiveness on the average soldier.

OFFICERS OF THE 155TH

Barriefield Camp officers are very much interested in a controversy now being waged in Peterboro over a letter that was sent to one of the Peterboro papers, which stated that Major Davidson, chaplain, has deserted his battalion for a staff appointment. There seems to be two sides to the matter, and one is trying to convince the other that Major Davidson simply did what all chaplains do when they arrive in England, and that is to carry out work detailed for them. This has been the case with a number of chaplains who went from this district.

A request has been received for more dentists for the front, and shortly Major Wilson will be compelled to part with all the members of the C.A.D.C., in this district, except about two.

Major Allen of the 155th Battalion lost a gold wrist watch in the crowd which gathered to see the troops entrain on Saturday night. The Major will be back in Kingston on Thursday and would be glad to get his watch again.

Captain Noble of the 155th Battalion, has been promoted to the rank of Major.

CHAPLAIN DESERTED

A Controversy in Peterboro Very Interesting here.

The following officers left Barriefield camp on Saturday with the two battalions which spent the summer here in training:—

155th Battalion—Lt.-Col. M. K. Adams, commanding officer; Lt.-Col. H. E. Putman, 2nd in command; Capt. S. J. Gilmore, adjutant; Capt. J. V. Doyle, quartermaster; Capt. G. H. Holton, paymaster; Capt. Thomas Dodds, chaplain; Lieut. A. G. McGie, machine gun officer; Maj. C. M. Wallbridge; Maj. A. C. McFee; Capt. P. W. Geen; Capt. S. E. Vermilyea; Capt. P. H. Wills; Lieuts. D. S. Ainsworth, C. T. Hamly, E. T. S. Kelly, W. B. Turnbull, E. S. Webb, R. S. Harder, R. A. Cumming, W. E. Scott, W. J. Wilson, H. M. Pattison, R. M. Porter, D. A. Cameron, C. W. Cooper.

The officers who were compelled to remain behind in Quebec were unable to go because of the changed establishment of the 155th Battalion, compelling the commanding officer to reduce the number of officers. Through no fault of their own, these officers have been left in Canada to await another appointment.

Painful Swollen Veins Quickly Relieved And Reduced

Mrs. R. M. Remler of Federal, Kansas writes an interesting account of enlarged veins that should be encouraging to others similarly afflicted. She suffered with badly swollen and inflamed veins (in fact one had broken), for more than seven years before she became acquainted with Absorbine Jr., and used it. Absorbine, Jr., was faithfully applied for several weeks and, to quote from her letter. "The large knots in the veins left, it was all nicely healed, and has not bothered me since."

Absorbine, Jr., is an antiseptic liniment—healing cooling and soothing. Safe and pleasant to use. $1.00 and $2.00 at your druggist's or postpaid. Liberal trial bottle postpaid for 10c. in stamps. W. F. Young, P.D.F., 457 Lymans Bldg., Montreal, Can.

Alone But Happy

Three Little Ones Leave Belleville Shelter to Join Parents in The West

On the 2:18 C.P.R. going west, Mr. Ruston, the local agent for the Children's Aid Society, placed three little children, for sometime under the care of the Society, who through wrong doing of the parents had to be taken from them. The mother went west, and from careful investigation they found that she had made good, and was anxious to have her children with her again. So now they are bound west to New Westminster, B.C. Everything was done to make the children's journey as pleasant as possible. Mrs. Hart, the matron at the Shelter, fixed up a basket of food, and the agent arranged that they be met at Toronto, also Winnipeg, and that their lunch basket would be refilled with fresh food. What a meeting that will be next Saturday, all made possible by the benevolent work of the Society. While we are giving to the war funds let us not forget this work at home for the child. What an asset to the country, who will have to fill the gaps which are being made in the ranks of the men who so nobly have laid down their lives, that this fair country should remain ours. It is up to us to see that every one of these children be properly fed and clothed, and well educated. That is what the Children's Aid Society is doing in your midst, looking after the not-wanted and neglected child. Then let us help.

MRS. MELTON'S LETTER

To Tired Worn-out Mothers

Jackson, Miss.—"I shall feel repaid for writing this letter if I can help any tired, worn-out mother or housekeeper find health and strength as I have.

"I have a family of five, sew, cook and do my housework and I became very much run-down in health. A friend asked me to try Vinol. I did so and now I am well and strong and my old-time energy has been restored. Vinol has no superior as a tonic for worn-out, run-down, tired mothers or housekeepers." Mrs. J. N. ### STRUCK BY A TRAIN

James Reynolds, while walking along the Midland track on his way to work yesterday, was struck by the Toronto train due here at 12.50 p.m. His leg was briken, his face and arms badly cut, several ribs broken and his skull fractured. He was removed to the hospital, but there is little hope of his recovery. He has lived here only a short time, being formerly employed as a farmer in the Township of Hope.

Remember The Red Cross Boom October Nineteen

The drive is on. Thursday, the 19th is the day on which the whole Empire will be remembering the needs of the British Red Cross, but nowhere in the Empire will the enthusiasm and generosity be so great as in grand old Ontario.

The Toronto campaign is to be a "sizzler." At noon of the first day the campaign showed almost $150,000 subscribed. But the outside places are not to be behind. Cities, towns, villages and townships, from the wealthiest and most populous down to the poorest and most scattered communities in the Northern districts—are all combining by tag days, personal canvass and municipal grants to pay homage, through the British Red Cross, to the brave men who are fighting and hazarding all for Britain's cause.

In 1915 Ontario stood first in the Empire with the magnificent contribution of $1,515,000 to the British Red Cross. There is only one contribution that will go further than Ontario's gift for "Our Day", 1916.

BRANDY SAUCE BARRED FROM CHRISTMAS PUDDINGS

TORONTO, Oct. 17.—There will be no appetizing intoxicating flavors and no brandy sauce or ingredient in Ontario's plum puddings, mince pies and other foods and delicacies this coming Christmas, unless they are made at home and consumed at home.

Likewise the young folk with a sweet tooth have bidden a last farewell to "brandy balls" and other candies flavored with alcoholic stimulant.

After a careful perusal of the new Ontario temperance act, Mr. J. D. Flavelle, chairman of the Provincial Board of License Commissioners, and Mr. Eudo Saunders, K.C., counsel for the department so ruled yesterday.

Canadian Banks Choked With Gold

Have Enormous Deposits on Which They Must Keep Paying Interest

TORONTO, Oct. 17.—The merger of the Royal and Quebec Banks brings to attention the fact that there never was a period in the history of Canada when deposits in the banks totalled such an enormous amount as at the present time. The amount for the month of August was $1,250,091,962, including deposits subject to demand, and deposits subject to notice. The increase for the year on deposits on demand is 32.6 per cent., and on deposits after notice 16.4 per cent.

For about a month now the interest rate on current accounts has been reduced from 3 to 2½ per cent., state prominent bankers. This is a reflection of the great amount of deposits which the banks hold, and on which they have to pay interests. The market for use of the money, according to bankers, is not as lively as it has been before the war, and idle money is an expensive commodity for the banks to hold. The success of the Canadian war loans is no doubt due to the great amount of money in the banks on deposit. The banks offered to underwrite the first war loan, it will be remembered, and the second one of $100,000,000, which it is reported has been very much oversubscribed by the people of Canada, did not require the aid of the banks directly.

Large Boat Goes Down in Storm

Men on Shore Saw Her Sink—Was Either a Scow or Three Masted Schooner

Either a derrick scow or a three-masted schooner went to the bottom of Lake Ontario yesterday morning about four miles southwest of Port Hope. The large boat was seen being tossed to and fro in the heavy sea about 8:30 o'clock in the morning, and the fishing tug was preparing to go to its assistance, but in an instant it disappeared from sight. The lifeboat was not capable of braving the storm, and it is doubtful if the fishing tug could have stood up under the heavy sea.

Capt. Colwell is of the opinion that it was a derrick scow and probably broke away from some pier during the storm. In this case there would be no loss of life.

A three-masted schooner went up the lake yesterday afternoon about three o'clock, and some are of the opinion that this boat was probably caught in the storm and carried back. If this version is correct it will mean considerable loss of life.

Western Railroad Men Favor Strike

Conductors, Trainmen, Baggagemen, Switchmen and Yardmen of C. P. R. Said to be Unanimous

WINNIPEG, Oct., 17—By declaring practically unanimously in favor of a strike, the conductors, trainmen, baggagemen, switchmen and yardmen of the Canadian Pacific Railroad gave their leaders, assembled in Winnipeg, no other option than to carry out their wishes and force their demands for better conditions. The only open door which might lead to averting the threatened strike is the conference between the men's leaders and Grant Hall, vice-president of the C. P. R. which is expected to take place tomorrow.

All the ballots have not been counted as yet, but the result to date is such as to permit officials to declare that 98 per cent of the men are in favor of a strike. The vote among the eastern conductors, trainmen and yardmen is taking place at London, Ont.

It will be a day or two yet before all the ballots are counted, but the question as to which way the vote will go was placed beyond all doubt by the counting, which took place today.

Farm Residence and The Contents Totally Destroyed

At an early hour yesterday morning the residence of Mr. R. Pearce, situated on the Front of Sidney Township, was with its contents destroyed by fire. Mr. Pearce arose at an early hour and made a fire in a wood stove. He went to the barn to milk cows and was not only surprised but alarmed a few minutes later to discover the house on fire. Mrs. Pearce and children were removed from the burning building in their night clothes. The building constructed of frame work, was entirely destroyed with the contents. The loss sustained is only partially covered by insurance. It is thought the fire originated from the chimney.

The Rally Service on Sunday Oct. 8th was largely attended, the church being filled to its utmost capacity.

Impressive and instructive addresses were delivered by Messrs C. McFaul, C. Peterson, A. Morden, M. Huff and Corp. Adams, these were interspersed with musical selections by the school and the church choir. The programme was capably conducted by the superintendent, Mr. Herbert Zufelt.

A delightful time was spent by the ladies of Melville W.M.S. at the home of Mrs John Cross, Centre Ameliasburg, on Thursday afternoon. Every available auto was called into requisition to convey the ladies to the place of meeting. The hostess, a former and an esteemed resident of Melville and a member of the W.M.S. there, gave the visitors a sincerely hearty welcome. The meeting was conducted by the president, Mrs. J. Kinnar, and an instructive address "The Call to Service" was delivered by the Rev. H. A. Mutton. A Thanksgiving reading. "Count Your Blessings" was given by Mrs. W. H. Anderson. An instrumental solo by Miss Ella Lechlin, and a vocal duet by the Rev. and Mrs. Mutton, added brilliant variety to the programme. At the close, refreshments were served by the hostess who was remembered by a vote of thanks moved by Mrs. Anderson and seconded by Mrs. A. Carley.

YOU can save Belgian lives!

Though you cannot fight and kill Germans, you can give and save some of their helpless Belgian victims, three million of whom must be fed or starve.

So little is needed to feed a Belgian family, and so economically are contributions handled by the Belgian Relief Commission, that there are very few of us who could not provide for at least one family through this winter, or till the end of the war.

$2.50 a month—less than 10c. a day—will do it! How easily you could save that much from your little indulgences—and how much it would mean to some Belgian mother and her hungry little ones!

Wouldn't a little self-denial now be richly repaid by knowing, when the war is over, that you had done your part, and had saved precious lives for our unfortunate Allies?

If Your Hair Is Coming Out Read This

Thousands of people suffer from baldness and falling hair who, having tried nearly all advertised hair-tonic and hair-grower without results, have resigned themselves to baldness and its attendant discomfort. Yet their case is not hopeless; the following simple home prescription has made hair grow after years of baldness, and is so unequalled for restoring gray hair to its original color, stopping hair from falling out and destroying the dandruff germ. It will not make the hair greasy, and can be put up by any druggist; Bay Rum 6 ounces; Lavona de Composee, 2 ounces; Menthol Crystals, one-half drachm. If you wish it perfumed, add one drachm of your favorite perfume. This preparation is highly recommended by physicians and specialists, and is absolutely harmless, as it contains none of the poisonous wood alcohol so frequently found in hair tonics. Ladies should be careful not to apply to face or where hair is not desired.

THIS IS THE 811TH DAY THE BRITISH EMPIRE HAS BEEN AT WAR WITH GERMANY.

THE NEXT FEDERAL ELECTION

Within the past few weeks events have indicated the Liberal party leaders have decided that there shall be no further extension, by legislation, of the present, Parliamentary term, and that within at least twelve months the voters throughout Canada will be asked to express their preference of the contending parties. To be sure, the forthcoming interest will depend upon what the leaders say and do, in preparation for the day of trial. Evidently the Liberal attack will be a severe one, both from the platform and in the halls of Parliament. "The proceedings at the Liberal Club Federation of Ontario last week, which was attended by Sir Wilfrid Laurier," says The Montreal Gazette,, "is being described by admirers of what was said and done as a portent of the ringing out of an old order of graft and weakness and corruption and the ringing in of a new order worthy of Canada and its citizenship, etc. It might be said that the defenders in Ontario of the rottenness of the Ross regime might not be the best ringers in of a new era of cleanness; but that is an aside."

What is of immediate concern is that representatives of militant Liberalism are declared to be eager to give expression to their ideas in action. In the province of Quebec the recent speeches of Mr. Lafortune, M.P., and others show what responsible members of the party think of the outlook and how they are preparing for it. In every province journalistic snipers are at work, sending into the Government lines a shot wherever there seems a chance that it will do harm.

A SAFE INVESTMENT

The issue of the bonds which is now being planned by the finance department is to be highly commended, says The Monetary Times. In Great Britain, even the school children are placing their savings into war securities. A strong effort to induce Canadians to economize is needed. The American continent is extravagant. The hardships of periodical depressions have not yet taught the lesson of thrift in times of prosperity. A nation which conserves its small savings grows strong quickly.

While the government's plan to issue baby bonds is excellent, its application is a matter of considerable importance. If Canadians are not taught more about these securities than they have been about government annuities, for example, the sales of the bonds will be disappointing. Great Britain has advertised its war securities by means of posters, leaflets, through the banks, through the press, through the investment houses, in every available way. The advertising has been as attractive as the securities and the small investor in Britain has handed the government many millions of surplus savings. Baby bonds will not be bought here in quantities unless the masses know of them as they do the most popular breakfast foods.

THE BILINGUALISTS

These agitators are still at their work. The support given them by Sir Wilfrid Laurier in the House of Commons during the last session of parliament, concurred in, reluctantly, no doubt, by Ontario Liberal M. P.'s for party purposes, fearing as they did the loss of support in Quebec, gave new life to the fanatics who from the beginning of the trouble have been misrepresenting and falsifying both the action and policy of the Ontario Government.

Now we have the generalissimo of the agitation. Sam Genest, a civil servant in Ottawa giving instructions to his followers in that city not to pay their school taxes, or municipal taxes, if any portion of such taxes are to be applied for school taxes. A telegram from Ottawa says:—

While the Ontario business men are touring Quebec with the ostensible purpose of establishing an entente cordiale between the two Provinces the bi-lingualist agitators of Ottawa have broken out in a new spot.

Many of the bi-lingualists have refused to pay their taxes and they are now being notified that unless their taxes are paid by October 16 a seizure will be made of their personal effects.

The bi-lingual leaders are highly indignant over the fact that they should be asked to pay their school taxes. Sam Genest, the leader of the Ottawa agitators, is out with a statement strongly counselling every French-Canadian ratepayer against paying any municipal taxes if the school rates were to be handed over to the Ontario School Commission.

"The separate school board set the tax rate at 8½ mills," stated Mr. Genest, "while the school commission put it at 9 mills. The corporation then took upon itself to strike a rate of 9 mills. We are not getting any benefit of these taxes and I strongly advise the bi-lingual ratepayers not to pay their municipal taxes and we will fight any seizures made, in the courts."

The report further says:—

"Preparations are being made by the bi-lingualists for an adverse decision by the privy council. Should the judgment refuse the lingual rights for which they have been fighting so long and insistently they will transfer their allegiance from the separate to the public schools.

They will transfer their taxes en bloc, and will elect trustees to the public schools. In addition they will support their own parochial schools, and will not send their pupils to the public schools. This is in effect the propaganda which has been passed and which will be set in operation if an adverse decision is rendered.

"While the bi-lingualists will not admit the possibility of defeat from the highest tribunal in the land they are erecting bridges to cover their retreat. They will carry the fight into Ontario. They are satisfied that they cannot become public school supporters until 1918, according to the dictum of the city collector.

"They are satisfied that they can become at some future time supporters of the state school. They can if they wish send their children there. They can by force of numbers elect representatives to the public school board, and project into that peaceful assembly some of the discord that used to strain the harmony of the old separate school board meetings.

"It's a large order even if they dip far into the future, but the bi-lingualists have thriven largely on possibilities, and are not averse to taking a chance on this."

Being largely in a majority in many of the wards in Ottawa they have the numerical power to give not only trouble but to render the public schools comparatively useless.

There should be no tampering with these people, the law should be rigidly inforced.

If the bi-lingualists are determined to set the law at defiance, let them take the consequences that be rigidly enforced.

Toronto Globe: The enemy has long passed the stage when it is possible to oppose to the Allied armies equal resoures in men and materials of war. The terrible wastage is forcing Germany to husband her pressure of the Allied advance in all the theatres of war leaves the Central Powers without hope of success in this direction. Indeed the pressure is now so great that Germany can only avert disaster by fighting up to her maximum in men and guns. There was a period when Germany might have been more sparing in her use of her military power, but that time has passed. She is now compelled to continue her prodigal waste of men and supplies with the certainty that she is inevitably hastening the day of her downfall.

Viewed from London the Roumanian situation is much less discouraging than that which existed a week ago. The rallying of the Roumanians under such depressing conditions as they faced last week is regarded as a hopeful sign. The situation has been altered sufficiently by the counter-offensive to give Roumania's allies oportunity to rush to her aid before the actual invasion of her land has been begun. Critics by no means take as pessimistic a view of the situation as that revealed in the appeal of the Roumanian Monarch for succor. Since the Roumanians entered the conflict they have captured 15,000 prisoners. This statement is made officially.

It now appears that the Huns arranged that Bulgaria should make a treaty with Roumania that there should be no hostilities between the two countries. This led to Roumania being taken unawares when the Bulgars attacked her by order of the Huns. Another "scrap of paper."—Kingston Standard.

A Drop of Water.

Figures are sometimes impressive simply by being so stupendous that the human mind grasps them with difficulty. An instance in point is afforded by the illustration once offered to his hearers by an eminent scientist, who, in order to bring to their comprehension the idea of ultimate particles of water, stated that if he were to empty a tumbler containing half a pint of water, letting out each second a number equal to 1,000 times the population of the earth, it would require somewhere between 7,000,000 and 47,000,000 years to empty the tumbler. Lord Kelvin has assured us that if a drop of water were magnified to the size of the earth the particles would be between the size of cricket balls and footballs. If that statement is correct the drops of water in all the oceans are not many times so numerous as the particles, or molecules, in a single drop.

Story of a Dog's Jaw.

The strength of a dog's jaws and teeth were never more exemplified than in the case of a Ross-shire gamekeeper, whose collie was unfortunate enough to be caught in a steel vermin trap. The gamekeeper, gun in hand, was soon on the scene, but in the short time the dog had become quite infuriated with pain. Having nothing suitable for muzzling the animal and fearing to place his foot upon the trap spring with the dog's jaws free, the gamekeeper placed the gun barrels in the dog's mouth and held them there while easing the spring. With a vicious snap the teeth closed on the cold steel ere he regained his freedom. The barrels were holed through—an almost incredible performance—and were examined shortly after.—London Graphic.

Bermuda now ranks as the oldest of Britain's colonies, the English flag having been hoisted there in 1612 by a party of colonists from the Virginia company who stopped at the islands on the way to the mainland, went on to Virginia, found Jamestown in a state of starvation and returned. A previous explorer, Juan de Bermudez, gave the group its name.

SCOOPING UP WATER.

How a Fast Train Fills Its Locomotive Tank Without Stopping.

Mr. Cecil J. Allen, chief of the civil engineers' department, supplies in the Great Eastern Railway Magazine some interesting facts on "the picking up of water" by trains at full speed on long journeys. Locomotives, he says, are exceeding bibulous creatures. The engines of one large British railway alone consume some 12,500,000 gallons of water per annum. An express engine under normal conditions of running will consume from thirty to thirty-five gallons of water for every mile covered, taking a general average. On such a journey as that made by the "Cornish Riviera Limited Express," of the Great Western railway, from London to Plymouth, 225¾ miles—the longest daily nonstop run in the world—some four tons of coal are consumed against an average of no less than forty tons of water.

The troughs, Mr. Allen explains, have usually a length of just over a quarter of a mile and are laid perfectly level in the center of the "four foot." Water is taken from them by means of a movable shovel shaped "scoop" under the tender, which is lowered into the trough as the train passes over it at full speed. The sharp edge of this scoop cuts off, as it were, the "top layer" of the water, which is forced up into a large vertical pipe and delivered through a mushroom head or an elbow at the top of the tender into the water tank. As soon as the water gauge on the tender indicates that the tank is full the scoop is raised again. According to the speed at which the train is traveling, it is possible to lift from 2,000 to 3,000 gallons in about fifteen seconds.

Official Red Tape.

A man sent 10 cents in postage stamps to the patent office at Washington for two copies of a patent. The stamps were returned with a letter saying that currency must be sent. The man sent a dime and at the end of a week was informed that the copies of the patent were exhausted and that the treasury department would return his money. A week later the treasury department advised him that it would take three weeks to audit his account and refund his 10 cents. The man had spent 6 cents for postage and the government twice as much.

Napoleon.

Napoleon, who rose to be a general of brigade after only eight years' connection with the French army, was shortly after shorn of that honor when Robespierre fell. Yet so adroit a politician was he that by 1795 he was the head of the forces of the convention, though nominally an aid-de-camp to Barras as commander in chief and actually the most effectively powerful man in France.

FALL BLOUSE.

New Waists Are Markedly Gay Colored and Dressy.

Gayly striped silks promise to feature the new blouses. This one is a wistaria and white taffeta cut with an open front filled by a perky white organdie vestee and a cartridge fluted ruff. Tiny taffeta buttons parade down the front.

ULTRA MODEL.

NEW NETHERS.

The Kind of Stockings That Go With Fall Shoes.

Whoever said that simple footwear was coming back into fashion was much mistaken. To be sure, certain styles of "fancy" shoes were marked down last winter, but other styles quite as elaborate took their place, and, as for stockings, never before have they been so varied and so far from plain or simple.

There is some thought that cotton stockings, colored ones at that, may be worn, for the price of silk stockings is soaring by the hour. But just at the moment silk stockings are made in hundreds of patterns.

Stripes form the most prominent stocking decoration or motive. Sometimes they are up and down stripes, sometimes stripes running around; sometimes they extend the whole length of the stocking, sometimes only halfway down or halfway up.

There are checked stockings, too, and plaid ones, and there are stockings with odd and irregular designs. Then, too, regular clocking at the ankles, in colors or black on white, is a prominent feature of the summer stockings. Clocks are especially smart for wear with sport shoes, and they add to the effectiveness of low shoes worn with short skirts.

One black and white combination shows half inch stripes extending from the toe to the calf, ending there in arrowheads. Another shows a panel of stripes extending the full length of the stocking, about four inches across the front.

One of the newer sorts of evening stockings show beaded embroidery. This is in line with the vogue for beaded embroidery and sequins and spangles that is so strong for evening frocks.

Inserts of real lace, too, in fine silk stockings are used for evening. And another evening idea is a white silk stocking painted with flowers to match a painted kid slipper. This, of course, is so unusual that it may almost be considered a freak style. But it is interesting and is mentioned for what it is worth.

PUNISH TO EDUCATE.

Parents Should Never Act on Impulse of Moment.

Never punish a child on the impulse of the moment. The correcting of a little child is a very serious matter—a matter to be thought over earnestly and (if you are the kind that prays) even prayerfully. Always keep in mind that true punishment is not revenge; neither is it vindication nor retaliation—it is, or should be, nothing more or less than education. The time for punishment affords you an invaluable opportunity to teach a youngster but one of the many, many lessons of life it must learn.

Therefore it is extremely important that you do not punish a child when you are angry. In anger you will more than likely be unjust and also too severe. In anger you are in a fair way to lose your own respect and the child's.

See that the punishment fits the fault and that it has within it the power to teach the difference between right and wrong in the particular instance under consideration.

A DANISH LEGEND.

Once upon a time the daughter of one of the underground people, the Bergmen, was married to a smith who lived in Mors.

Kirstin was a good and most patient wife, although her husband, the smith, was cross and surly and sometimes even beat her when he was in an ill temper.

Kirstin did not like this at all, and one day when he had taken up a stick intending to strike her she seized a great horseshoe which was lying on the anvil and broke it in two without any difficulty.

The smith was astonished. "Are you that strong?" he asked. "Then why have you never resisted when I struck you?"

"Because I love you," said Kirstin.

"I'll strike you no more!" said the smith, and he kept his word.

The people of Mors, however, were not friendly to the Bergman's daughter and in spite of her desire to be on pleasant terms with them avoided her and would scarcely even nod to her when they met.

One day, as she and all the people were standing in the churchyard, waiting for the arrival of the minister, Kirstin said to her husband:

"Listen to me—my father is coming to see me, but he is angry."

As she thus warned her husband the Bergman appeared, and a most awe inspiring person he was! Indeed, he was so terrible to look at that the people would have liked to creep into the earth to avoid him.

"My dear daughter," said the Bergman, "I hear the people here will have naught to do with you, so I have come to remedy that!"

"Yes, father," replied Kirstin. "I'll toss them up in the air a bit," said he. "Will you pitch or catch?"

"I'll catch," said Kirstin, for she feared the Bergman would handle the people very roughly.

Then began a merry game. The Bergman stood on one side of the church, Kirstin, his daughter, on the other, and the Bergman tossed all the people in turn over the roof of the church to Kirstin, who deftly caught them.

No one was injured, but every one was badly scared. But the plan worked to a charm, for so long as Kirstin lived she was treated with the greatest respect and consideration.

Size of the Ark.

In Genesis vi, 15, we have the measure of the ark to be as follows: "The length of the ark shall be 300 cubits, the breadth of it 50 cubits and the height of it 30 cubits." We find that authorities differ somewhat as to the exact length of a cubit. It may be from eighteen inches to twenty-one inches. If we take twenty inches as the length of a cubit the ark would measure 500 feet by 83 1-3 feet by 50 feet. A slight variation, one way or the other, will make no material difference in the final measure.

An Appeal From the Motherland
TO THE # PEOPLE OF ONTARIO

To SIR JOHN HENDRIE,
Lieutenant-Governor, Province of Ontario, Toronto :

I have the honor to inform you that the British Red Cross Society, and the Order of St. John, are once more proposing to appeal throughout the Empire, by street and other collections, upon "Our Day," which has been fixed for the nineteenth of October. The money received will be devoted to our wounded soldiers and sailors from Home and Overseas, at the various seats of war.

The generous response which we received last year from all parts of the King's Dominions encourages us to hope that the constantly increasing demand for our help may be met by a corresponding increase of generosity throughout the Empire.

We shall be truly grateful to you if you will assist our work by organizing an appeal and sending the proceeds to us for our sick and wounded at the Front. I shall be greatly obliged if you will communicate the contents of this cablegram to your Ministers, and recommend the proposal to their favorable consideration. Their Majesties the King and Queen, and her Majesty, Queen Alexandra, are giving us their gracious patronage, and I trust you will also see your way to help us in the same splendid manner as you did last year.

(Signed), LANSDOWNE (Marquis of),
President British Red Cross Society.

BRITISH RED CROSS

Red Cross needs increase as the Day of Victory dawns

The following cable has just been received by his Honor the Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, from Sir Robert Hudson, Chairman Finance Committee, British Red Cross :

"The urgent need of to-day is for money to carry on the general work of the Red Cross at all the battle-fronts. OUR WORK INCREASES DAILY, BOTH IN IMPORTANCE AND IN COST. Our expenditure is now five thousand pounds a day. Earnestly hope the Province of Ontario will help us this year with the same generosity as last year. HUDSON."

The whole Empire joins in Red Cross work this week

Nothing short of a concerted effort on the part of every man, woman and child in the British Empire will give the Red Cross the financial assistance it stands in need of at this time.

That effort will undoubtedly be made, and the sympathy and generous help of Ontario will again shine forth amongst the gifts of the Empire.

Let the spirit of Thanksgiving move us all at this time, that there are those who work eagerly, untiringly and efficiently, to save those we fain would help, but cannot.

If you have a brother, husband, son or friend amongst our Defenders—and who has not in these days ?—you cannot refuse your aid to an organization that stands ready at a moment's call to assuage the pain and suffering of your loved one.

Last year we gave $1,515,000—what will we give to-day?

Dare we give less when the need is greater ? Whatever our own burdens may be, can we ignore the call of the British Red Cross, which but echoes the dire need of our defenders on all the battlefronts on land and sea ? Those few cents or dollars you well can spare will be gratefully received and splendidly accounted for.

Give through the Treasurer of your Local Committee, or the Clerk of your Municipality, or Hon. T. W. McGarry, Treasurer British Red Cross Fund for Ontario, Parliament Buildings, Toronto.

THE KHAKI VOTE.

How British Columbia Polled Hs Soldiers on Active Service.

The London (Eng.) Times, in a recent issue says:

"A correspondent, who had a unique opportuntiy of studying the recent poling of British Columbian citizens in this country, sends us the following interesting account of the process. The presiding officer was Mr. Mackarness, of Petersfield:

"British Columbia has taken the poll of those among her citizens who were last week encamped at Bramshott. The camp authorities offered every facility. A tent was erected for a polling booth, and the poll was open from 5 till 9.

"On Monday the presiding officer had the assistance of three clerks, and on the two following days two tents and six clerks were employed. Posters were exposed, showing the 39 electoral districts of the province and the names of the candidates in each. The number to be elected in different constituencies varied from a single member to six in the case of Vancouver City.

"Piles of official envelopes were provided, on the front of which were set out the name, rank, and battalion of the voter; a statement that he had resided six months in British Columbia; his place of residence and his electoral district, and a declaration that he had not voted previously in this election, that he was a male person, and a British subject. This form was duly filed by one of the clerks, signed by the voter, and taken to the presiding officer. He administered an oath to the voter that the statements of the affidavit were true and the signature was his.

"The voter then received a ballot-paper for his own district, and also two voting papers for a Referendum on the subject of Women's Suffrage and Prohibition, which was being taken at the same time. Armed with these and his envelope, he retired, to a side table and marked his voting papers. These he then placed in the envelope, which he sealed and returned to the presiding officer. On the back of the envelope was a declaration by the presiding officer that the vote was properly and legally recorded. The Agent-General's representative took possession of the envelope.

"The proceedings took place without a hitch. About 1,600 or 1,700 recorded their vote, and perhaps there were not more than 2,000 qualified electors in camp, all told. In the minds of some voters there was some doubt as to the electoral district in which their home was situated, and the political views of the respective candidates were not always well known. Some had registered before leaving home; some had not. With these, however, the wearing of the khaki was held to constitute a sufficient claim.

"But, considering the fact that the whole thing was an experiment, and that the poll had ultimately to be taken in haste, there can be no question of the success of the operation from several points of view."

Two Hohenzollern Stories.

Two stories, one concerning the Kaiser, the other the Crown Prince, just brought by members of the Swiss Red Cross party from Germany, are worth telling. On the Imperial birthday the Kaiser suddenly decided to visit the prisoners' camp at Alton-Grabou, near Berlin. In traversing the camp garden the Emperor noticed that many of the French prisoners belonged to a regiment which had taken part in some fierce fighting early in the war near Stenay, on the Meuse.

"So some of you were at Stenay," he said, stopping before a group. "My son is now there. He is having an excellent time there. A pretty town is Stenay. I believe all the girls there want you back again."

The second story refers to the interview before Verdun between the Crown Prince and Major Raynal, the heroic commander of the fort of Vaux. "My felicitations," said the Crown Prince, and seeing that the prisoner lacked a sword he took one from a German officer standing near and handed it to him.

"Your resistance has been splendid," went on the Crown Prince, "but you cannot stop us. I bet you a case of champagne I shall be in Verdun before the end of July." The bet has not yet been paid.

Antiquity of Earrings.

The very earliest mention of earrings is to be found in the book of Genesis. Jacob, it will be remembered, on reaching Bethel buried certain strange idols, among them some earrings belonging to his family. Doubtless these ornaments were regarded purely in a propitiatory light as amulets or talismans, such being still their principal office in the east today. That they are of eastern origin is certain, and among orientals, with the exception of Greeks and Hebrews, it has always been the custom for both sexes to wear them, while frequently only one ear was adorned. Among other races, however, earrings were always worn in pairs and by the women only.

The Judge's Advantage.

One of the best stories of Judge Parry, a famous English jurist, related to a feeble looking man who was rebuked for supporting a ridiculous claim made by his wife. "I tell you candidly, I don't believe a word of your wife's story," said Judge Parry.

"Yer may do as yer like," replied the man mournfully, "but I've got to."

It was once the doubtful privilege of Judge Parry to overhear the comments of two men against whom he had decided. "'E's a fool, but 'e did 'is best," was the verdict of these disappointed suitors. "One might sleep under an unkinder epitaph," was the philosophic comment of the judge.—London Graphic.

Iced Coffee.

Pour two quarts of boiling water over one-half pound of best coffee and let stand one-half hour; then strain off the clear liquor through cloth, add one quart of milk and one-quarter pound of sugar. Pour into freezer and pack well around with ice and salt. Let it stand an hour before using, then serve in small coffee cups.

Albany Opposes Bridge Over Gorge.

ALBANY, N.Y., Oct. 17.—Application to bridge the gorge of the Niagara with another railroad to connect Canada and the United States for use in shipping war materials and other goods to Europe, has been denied by the Up-State Public Service Commission. The ground of refusal is that the project, though feasible, is not yet put forth with a sufficient guarantee that it will be completed in the immediate future. The application was made by the Niagara and Eastern Railroad Company.

PORT ARTHUR'S FUTURE

PROSPECTS FOR ONTARIO CITY ALMOST UNPARALLELED.

As a Shipping Centre, as a Pulpwood Centre and as the Hub of an Enormously Wealthy Mining Area It Stands Alone in the World—Iron, Gold, Silver, and Copper Are Within a Few Miles.

COMPARED to the actual business transacted in visible and tangible wealth, the land along the front of Port Arthur is perhaps more valuable than any other land in Canada. To get an idea of the value of such land based on the handling of commodities in cash value, one might take for a parallel the amount of business transacted in the New York Stock Exchange. But the wealth that changes hands on Wall Street is often very largely in the imagination. The business done in a year along the waterfront of Port Arthur is a colossal aggregate cash value represented by hundreds of millions of dollars in the great staples of existence, wheat, oats, and barley.

Taking the length of the modern lake freighter for a gauge: in three boats' lengths of Port Arthur's waterfront all the coal imports of the Twin Ports could be handled, with storage for over 3,000,000 tons; in seven boats' lengths all the grain exported from the Twin Ports of Port Arthur and Fort William for crop year of 1915, approximately 350,000,000 bushels, could be handled, with storage space for at least 100,000,000 bushels possible; and in three boats' lengths all the package freight and all the rails imported could be handled, with a total space for at least fifty vessels, each vessel having individual dock room. Thus, what is possible on a mile and a half of lake front would take at least six miles of river frontage, just placing the vessels stem to stern.

Port Arthur has an industrial area of 1,300 acres through which pass three transcontinental railways of Canada, making possible to industrial enterprises there the direct access of these railways to their sites.

The pulp-wood areas adjacent to and tributary to Port Arthur are immense, and are computed by competent authorities to contain at least 20,000,000 cords. At present there is more than one corporation developing plans for the erection of pulp and paper mills at Port Arthur, for this city has all the requisites, besides the raw material, for the successful development of this class of industry—splendid dock sites, electric power, cheap transportation by water, excellent rail connections, and unlimited quantities of clear, uncolored and unmineralised waters.

But it is the mineral deposits that lie in close proximity to Port Arthur that give the greatest promise in their development, and which will be of the greatest benefit in developing one of the largest industrial centres in Canada at the head of the 1,200-mile stretch of her magnificent deep waterways.

In dealing with the mineral prospects of the territory adjacent to Port Arthur, it might be just as well to treat of the mineral resources of the entire district of Northern Ontario, in order to show the tremendous mining possibilities of that section of Canada of which Port Arthur is part, for in that section of Ontario there are more attractive mineral districts, rich in either gold, silver, nickel, copper, iron, iron pyrites, than in any other province or state in North America. Northern Ontario, including the district of Patricia, has an area of over 330,000 square miles, of which over 250,000 square miles are, from a geological point of view, more or less favorable for occurrence of mineral deposits.

In the mining of gold, silver, copper, nickel, and iron ore, Northern Ontario, in 1914, produced 45 per cent. of the total output of all Canada. Northern Ontario possesses at Sudbury the greatest nickel deposits in the world, which are producing in 1916 at the rate of $48,000,000 worth per year. The silver mines of Northern Ontario have paid out in dividends over $66,000,000, and this province now possesses the richest silver camp in the world.

About 120 miles east of Port Arthur, in the vicinity of Sebrieber, a range of pyrrhotite contains more or less nickel, while in the new gold district at Kow Kash, which is about 120 miles north-east of Port Arthur, very heavy deposits of pyrrhotite were discovered some years ago, and the assays obtained showed that some of the samples ran high in nickel.

Many years ago a number of gold mines were slightly developed in the various gold districts west of Port Arthur, and it is believed that some of these mines can now be operated at a profit. In the Sturgeon Lake district, about 180 miles north-west of Port Arthur, on the National Transcontinental Railway, large sums of money are being spent in thoroughly developing the St. Anthony gold mine. Last fall some 600 claims were staked out in the Kow Kash and Tashota districts. Tashota is immediately west of Kow Kash. It is said by explorers that from the Sturgeon Lake region north through Savant Lake to Lake St. Joseph in the Albany River, there are exceptionally attractive gold districts, as more or less gold can be panned out of the sand on the shores of the lakes and rivers. It is claimed that while there is not much visible gold in the quartz in these new districts, yet most of the veins appear to be consistent and strong, and that the assays of gold frequently are surprisingly high. Considerable development work will be carried on this year in the Kow Kash and Tashota districts.

Many years ago the silver mines of Port Arthur district produced millions of dollars' worth of silver, and with the present high price, cheap railway transportation, and the hydro electrical power in this district, it is probable that a number of the silver prospects would justify careful investigation. About 300 miles east of Port Arthur on the new Canadian Northern transcontinental line, a short distance east of Long Lake, a very promising silver district with geological formation similar to the Cobalt and Thunder Bay districts has been discovered.

But it is the iron resources of the district surrounding Port Arthur that will give the greatest results in developing. Competent authorities claim that the exploration work carried on in the Atikokan district, west of Port Arthur, and also in the Michipicoten and Moose Mountains districts, have proven that there are over 175,000,000 tons of iron ore in these districts, and most of the ore a short distance from the lake ports. There are promising iron ranges at Steep Rock, Loon Lake, and Nipigon, short distances east and west of Port Arthur. At Loon Lake there is said to be proven up a very large tonnage of hematite ore. Competent experts consider the iron ranges at Nipigon and Steep Rock very favorable for the location of hematite ore.

There is every reason to believe, also, that the district has non-metallic products of great commercial value. Very pure sand-stones occur in abundance, such as might be used for the manufacture of glass, silica, brick, etc. Barytes also occur in large quantities, that could be used in the manufacture of glass paints, and chemicals. Large beds of shale underlie Thunder Cape, unexcelled for the manufacture of brick; while a great part, or practically all, the clays have never been tested even for common brick. The dolomites in the vicinity of Thunder Cape and probably those at Nipigon contain a high percentage of potash, that valuable salt that is in such demand at present, and might well be used as a source of this material.

Munition Men With New Plants Are Feeling Anxious.

The British Government's aim to make as far as possible all war material within the Empire, and more particularly within the United Kingdom, is arousing some concern among Canadian munition manufacturers, especially those who are as yet very far from having made as much out of their contracts to date as to fully cover the outlay made on plant account. Results are very irregular. Some makers are of the opinion that they will come out all right, but others are not at all sanguine, and a large proportion are not seeking new orders. Many practical men are of the opinion that altogether inadequate provision has been made for wear and tear. Experimenting and adapting plants to the making of munitions have "shot to pieces the old organization," it is claimed, and, moreover, before the plants can be re-adapted for peace business there will be another big outlay of capital. To meet this emergency the provision made is not regarded as being as ample as the circumstances warrant, and in view of practical experience as gained up to the present time.

Hope still exists, however, that the Imperial Munition Board's policy will be changed so as to permit the manufacturers to fully protect themselves not only against wear and tear, but against the increasing costs of production. Labor is higher in direct cost, and is becoming harder to handle. One firm pays off every month as many as three hundred men, and gets as many as possible to replace them. The men paid off are not dismissed. So great is the demand for them that they know that they will be taken on anywhere, and hence those who take the whim to have a change take it. Starting a batch of green men, however, is a very expensive undertaking. It is some time before they can earn their money. All this expense has to come out of a margin that is not determined by a sliding scale. As a matter of fact, prices of the finished product are said to have gone down as the cost of labor has gone up. Under the circumstances it cannot be surprising if the manufacturers are showing some enthusiasm.

It is held by most of the manufacturers that Britain will still get shells from Canada so long as the business is financed from this side of the water, and it would appear by the way in which the recent loan was subscribed that there will be no difficulty in doing this for some time to come. Moreover, it is still held that the shells made in Canada are being laid down in Britain at a lower figure than they are being produced at in Britain. That being the case, there is no doubt but that business will come to Canada if the manufacturers continue to do business on the terms which by so many are regarded as being very unsatisfactory.

If, however, the shell-making is ultimately confined to Britain and Ireland there will be abundant demands for Canadian steel. There does not appear to be any prospect of producing capacity catching up to the demand for some time, and if it does the chief producing plants in Canada are well able to take care of themselves on a competitive basis.

No Need to Stay Down.

In a letter to a friend in Guelph, a former inmate of the Prison Farm, now a member of the 5th Overseas Pioneers, speaks of the number of Prison Farm men who left Valcartier Camp during the week for service overseas. The letter says: "These men less than a year ago were at the Farm for transgressing some laws, but their very presence in the uniform of the King proves that they believe in law and order to the extent of risking their lives to fight for it. Their appearance gives the lie to the belief held by some that a man once down must stay there. Dr. Gilmour would be proud to-day were he able to see these boys in line as we saw them."

NATIVE DYES.

England is Talking of Introducing Vegetable Coloring Matter.

In England there has been much talk of introducing natural Eastern dyes which heretofore have not received much attention because of the cheapness and reliability of mineral dyes. Large quantities of the lac dye, which is the basis for a fast scarlet, may be obtained from India, where it is now only a waste product of the shellac industry. Certain roots are found in quantities in India which might be used as substitutes for madder. "Cutch" is an extract from the bark of the mangrove which is used extensively in tanning. There are several varieties, gambier, Bombay, Bengal, and mangrove cutch, and all were considered valuable by dyers until replaced by the cheaper aniline dyes. The two main varieties of mangrove found in the East Indies are Bakau and Tungah. The cutch made from the Tungah variety is superior for dyeing and commands a far higher price. There is a factory in British North Borneo which now turns out about 160 tons of Tungah cutch a month and will shortly have an output of 250 tons or more. The groves in its immediate neighborhood show no indication of exhaustion.

Chinese manufacturers of vegetable dyes have also been induced to revive the manufacture of vegetable dyes which had been almost wholly suspended. The higher prices being paid for these dyes at present is said to have made possible the organization of the business on sounder economic principles. Large quantities of the dyes have already been shipped to the United Kingdom, where they are said to be giving satisfaction. There is practically no limit to the supply, provided the price paid is commensurate with the cost of production. In Japan, before the introduction of mineral dyes, there were probably more different vegetable dyes used than in any other part of the world. Few of the dyes, however, were strictly fast, and the only thoroughly dependable black was the one made in the Kyoto district and used largely in dyeing the haori, the short, jacket-like garment worn by Japanese men and women alike. The vegetable dyes were long ago supplanted by mineral ones, but existing circumstances are said by American industries to be forcing a return to the older dyes.

With the Meat.

An Englishman mourns the dropping out of fruit as a conserve or sauce for meat. He speaks of red currant jelly with roast mutton, and apple sauce with pork and duck, but he recollects finding in Bruges a sweet conserve of gooseberries with roast duck, and in Namur a puree of rhubarb with pork. "Fruit and flesh might often be eaten together with advantage." Yes, to the benefit of the stomach. Fruit acids lighten the mass of proteids. In Germany stewed fruits and conserves are served with all sorts of heavy dishes. We remember gratefully the little plums, the "mirabellen." There were two vile dishes, however, in second rate pensions that were unaccompanied by a fruit appetizer or corrective. One was lung-hash; the other was a mess of hens' feet in a thick, creamy, greasy sauce.

Here is the bill-of-fare of "a war-time dinner recommended by the National Training School of Cookery, Buckingham Palace road: Carrot top soup, stewed macaroni and onions with lentils, treacle sponge with cornflour sauce, cheese aigrettes." What is treacle sponge? Sponge cake with molasses? By the way, what became of the boys and men who used to go through the cars on the railway from New York to Springfield crying: "Sponge and jelly cake?" Then there were the pop-corn men in the trains of New England. This dinner prepared by the National Training School costs four persons 12 cents apiece.

But another meatless dinner for four persons costs 25 cents a head; for six persons it costs 20 cents. Tomato soup, nut roll, with piquante sauce, young carrots, Balmoral tartlets, hot cheese souffles. The recipe for nut roll is as follows: one and a half pound mixed potatoes, one and a half pound mixed nuts, a little milk, one egg, salt, and pepper, piquante sauce. The potatoes should be passed through a sieve and the nuts should be skinned and chopped. "Piquante sauce!" The more piquant the sauce the staler the fish.—Boston Herald.

From a long-range station on the west coast of England wireless messages are sent out by the Government every day. Sometimes three or four messages are circulated in twenty-four hours. They are sent westward — the control of direction being possible under one of the latest inventions in connection with wireless telegraphy—so that they reach practically all parts of North and South America.

The German Government paid special attention to this business of influencing neutral opinion from the moment that hostilities began. The British Government service is now coping effectively with the German publicity campaign.

The headquarters of the "English Wireless" are at Marconi House, London, and the message is sent out every evening from the long-distance station at Poldhu, Cornwall.

It consists of a summary of the official communiques and of reports received from agencies. There is an arrangement by which the Government adds whatever news it may consider desirable to circulate.

The message is, of about 700 words, and is retransmitted from Teneriffe, Las Palmas, Dakar (French Africa), and other places, so that it may reach the far corners of the world.

GONE TO HIS LONG HOME

"Darkey" the Great Dane dog belonging to Mr. C. J. Bowell, and well known about the Intelligencer Office, came to a peaceful end at his home, 161 Albert Street, Tuesday evening. "Darkey" who was a favorite with all who knew or associated with him had reached the ripe age of 15 years. Peace to his ashes.

CASE WAS DISMISSED

George Babcock, a laborer, was this morning before the Magistrate charged with obtaining by fraud $3 from Mrs. E. Garrison. After some evidence had been submitted the case was dismissed. The case arose out of a transaction of buying a dog. Mrs. Garrison gave the accused $5 to purchase a dog for her, and the alleged the canine was purchased for less money, hence the charge. The transaction occurred in August last.

PLANS FOR ANNUAL COLLECTION

Yesterday afternoon, a number of ladies met with the president and treasurer of the Belleville Branch of the Bible Society, Revs. A. M. Hubly and A. L. Geen, in James Wallace's Lunch Rooms, and over the tea cups discussed plans for making the annual collection in behalf of the Society. The city was divided into twelve districts, and a collector appointed for each. A public meeting will be held in St. Andrews Church, next Monday evening, addressed by the manager and secretary, Rev. Jesse Gibson, after which the collectors will begin canvassing the city. See add in Saturday's paper.

A GOOD SHOOT

Ten members of the Belleville Rifle Club last evening participated in a shoot at the ranges in the Armouries, and the scores made were excellent, considering it was the first shoot of the season. The scores were as follows:

| | |
|---|---|
| J. C. Wills | 99 |
| C. C. Walker | 97 |
| G. D. Gratton | 95 |
| C. J. Wills | 95 |
| W. J. Andrews | 95 |
| A. R. Symons | 91 |
| J. Douch | 90 |
| J. S. Peck | 90 |
| H. Sneyd | 86 |
| J. Woodley | 86 |

On Tuesday evening next the members will have a shoot for two pairs of wild ducks, which will be donated by members of the Club.

BIG GAME HUNTING

The "Highlands of Ontario" is an ideal region for a sportsman. In the Timagami district and the Northern Ontario territory moose are plentiful. The home of the red deer is in the district known as "Muskoka Lakes," "Lake of Bays," "Maganetawan River," "Lake Nipissing," "Kawartha Lakes," etc. Open season for moose in Northern Ontario is from November 1st. to November 30th. Open season for deer all parts of Ontario, November 1st to 15th inclusive. For full particulars apply to any Grand Trunk Agent.

KILLED IN ACTION

In the casualty list today appears the name of Private Harold Smart, of Deseronto, who has been killed in action. He left Belleville with the 39th Battalion and was known to many in the city.

MISSIONARY MEETING

A number of ladies of the Methodist Churches in the city, who are interested in Missionary work, went to Foxboro to day to attend a district missionary meeting.

A FAKE DOCTOR

Dr. Ross, a man about 60 years of age, clean shaven, dressed in a grey suit, with a smile that illuminated his features and sporting an auto, has worked Lindsay people with a quack patent medicine scheme and got away with it. His remedy was a powdery substance known as Dr. Murray's Health Restorer, guaranteed to cure all ills in ten days. With his cure-all he gave a promisory note for $20 and all he asked in return was $4.90. Several resident invested before the police got hold of it. So far he has eluded pursuit.

AMONGST THE WONDED

Lieut. W. H. Wannamaker, of Brighton, who was a machine gun officer in connection with the 80th Battalion, has been officially reported wounded. The popular Lieutenant is known to many in Belleville and vicinity.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

MAY BELL MARKS AT GRIFFIN'S

Another success was scored last night at Griffin's Opera House, by the Marks Company, when they presented the strong and powerful drama "Thorns and Orange Blossoms." Miss May Bell Marks, who has appeared on the local stage for a number of years, is at her best, and made a decided hit with the large audience that was present, in the leading role. She is ably supported by other members of the company, who are well adapted to their alloted parts. During the intermission between the acts, vaudeville turns were put on by two or three members of the company. Richard Lester greatly amused the audience with his little ditty entitled "How Three People Sat On A Tack."

This evening the company will present the comedy-drama, "Sex Against Sex."

PASQUALE AT PALACE TONIGHT

George Beban in the starring part of "Pasquale" which is announced for exhibition at the Palace Theatre, tonight and Thursday matinee and night excels any of his previous great successes. In the heart-rendering pathos of the simple trusting Italian, in his kindliness to and love for animals and their evident love for him. In the majestic awfulness of the battle in the Alps. This intensely human drama will prove of unusual interest. Besides the above five part offering Frank Daniels, the maker of a million laughs a day, appears in a new and very amusing comedy entitled, "Mr. Jack Goes into Business." Pathe News, with its interesting budget of crispy news items gathered the world over will also be exhibited.

"WHEN DREAMS COME TRUE," TUESDAY

One of the brightest and snappiest musical comedies that will be seen here this year will be presented at Griffin's Opera House next Tuesday night, when Coutts and Tennis present their universal success "When Dreams Come True."

This fascinating musical comedy of romance and youth is staged in three acts with twenty-five tuneful song hits from the pen of Silvio Hein, who is responsible for many of Marie Cahill's greatest successes.

The play tells of the adventures of a wealthy New Yorker's spry young offspring, who becomes involved with one of the dancers in a popular music hall in Paris. His allowance being cut off by his angry parents on account of this escapade, he is compelled to return home in steerage. In the first cabin there is a young woman who he falls in love with at first sight, but, of course, finds it impossible to meet her until both arrive in New York. At this point a smuggling plot makes its appearance, in which the young man and his fair charmer become immediately involved, and from which many amusing complications ensue.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES

The first Sunday afternoon meeting of the season was held last Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Rev. Dr. Scott gave a very interesting and timely address on our duty as citizens to the community in which we live. Mr. Harry MacKay sang most acceptably. This is the first of a series of monthly meetings to be held through the season.

The Business Men's Class started on Monday night and was well attended. All enjoyed a good work-out on the floor, after which a good swim was taken. This is a very popular class and from present indications is going to grow in numbers and enthusiasm.

Over forty girls are taking advantage of the privileges offered each Wednesday and Friday afternoon. This includes the High School class from four to five, and Business Ladies class from six to seven.

WORLD'S RECORD WHEAT CROP

In view of various claims of world's record wheat crops for large areas, the Crowfoot Farming Company of Crowfoot, Alberta, submit a sworn statement of their results for the year 1915, which probably surpass all properly authenticated claims from other sources. From 1,356 acres the Crowfoot Farming Company received an average yield of 51 bushels 56 1/3 pounds per acre of number one spring wheat, by actual selling weight; 400 acres averaged 59½ bushels per acre. These records were established in the Canadian Pacific Railway Irrigation Block in Southern Alberta.

Killing the Calves—All sorts of excuses are offered for the high price of beef, the most plausible being the alleged demand for veal—"the killing of calves which should be allowed to grow into regular beef." You cannot have beef if you eat it as "veal," but you can have Shredded Wheat Biscuit which contains more real nutriment than beef and costs much less. Shredded wheat biscuit is the whole wheat steam-cooked, shredded and baked. Make it your "meat" for ten days and see how much better you feel. Wholesome and strengthening for any meal with milk or cream or in combination with fruits.

THE GUEST OF QUESNAY

By Booth Tarkington

Copyright, 1908, by the McClure Company

"You paint this in yer pitchers, m'dear friend—they's jest as much law in this country as they is on the corner o' Twenty-thoid street an' Fif' avenoo! You keep out of the way of it or you'll git runned over!"

Delivering a final tap on my shoulder as a last warning he wheeled deftly upon his heel, addressed Miss Elliott briefly, "Glad t' know you, lady," and, striking into the bypath by which he had approached us, was soon lost to sight.

The girl faced me excitedly. "What is it?" she cried. "It seemed to me you insulted him deliberately."

"I did."

"You wanted to make him angry?"

"Yes."

"Oh, I thought so!" she exclaimed breathlessly. "I knew there was something serious underneath. It's about Mr. Saffren."

"It is serious indeed, I fear," I said and, turning to my own easel, began to get my traps together.

"I want you to go to see Mrs. Harman at once and tell her not to leave Quesnay for at least two days. As for myself, I must go now to look up Keredec and Oliver Saffren."

The girl started manfully upon her journey. I stared after her for a moment or more, watching the pretty brown dress flashing in and out of shadow among the ragged greeneries. Then I picked up my own pack and set out for the inn.

As I went through the woods that day, breathless with haste and curious fears, my brain became suddenly, unaccountably busy with a dream I had had two nights before. I had not recalled this dream on waking; the recollection of it came to me now for the first time. Yet I had been thinking so constantly of Mrs. Harman that there was nothing extraordinary in her worthless ex-husband being part of it. But, and yet, looking back upon that last, hurried walk of mine through the forest, I see how strange it was that I could not quit remembering how in my dream I had gone motoring up Mount Pilatus with the man I had seen so pitiably demolished on the Versailles road two years before—Larrabee Harman.

CHAPTER X.

KEREDEC was alone in his salon, extended at ease upon a long chair, an ottoman and a stool, when I burst in upon him. A portentous volume was in his lap and a prolific pipe, smoking up from his great cloud of beard, gave the final reality to the likeness he thus presented of a range of hills ending in a volcano.

"I feel that you know me at least well enough," I began rather hesitatingly, "to be sure that I would not, for the world, make any effort to intrude in your affairs or Mr. Saffren's."

"You are our friend. We know it," he answered.

"Very well," I pursued; "then I speak with no fear of offending. When you first came to the inn I couldn't help seeing that you took a great many precautions for secrecy, and when you afterward explained these precautions to me—well, I could not help seeing that your explanation did not cover all the ground."

"It is true—it did not." He ran his huge hand through the heavy white waves of his hair and shook his head vigorously. "No; I knew it, my dear sir. This much I can say to you: We came here at a risk, but I thought that with great care it might be made little."

"There is a keen faced young man who has come to spy on you."

"It was in connection with the risk you have mentioned that I came to talk," I returned, with some emphasis, for I was convinced of the reality of Mr. Earl Percy. "I think it necessary that you should know"—

But the professor was launched. I might as well have swept the rising tide with a broom. He talked with magnificent vehemence for twenty minutes, his theme being some theory of his own that the individuality of a soul is immortal and that even in perfection the soul cannot possibly merge into any Nirvana.

"And so it is with my boy," he proclaimed, coming at last to the case in hand. "The spirit of him, the real Oliver Saffren, that has never change! The outside of him, those thing that belong to him, like his memory, they have change, but not himself, for himself is eternal and unchangeable. I have taught him, yes. I have helped him get the small things we can add to our possession—a little knowledge, maybe, a little power of judgment. But, my dear sir, I tell you that such things are only possessions of a man. They are not the man! So with Oliver. He had lived a little while, twenty-six years perhaps, when—pft!—like that, he became almost as a baby again. He could remember how to talk, but not much more. He had lost his belongings. They were gone from the lobe of the brain where he had store them, but he was not gone. No part of the real himself was lacking. Then presently they send him to me to make new his belongings, to restore his possessions. Ha, what a task—to take him with nothing in the world of his own and see that he get only good possessions, good knowledge, good experience! I took him to the mountains of the Tyrol two year, and there his body became strong and splendid while his brain was taking in the stores. It was quick, for his brain had retained some habits. It was not a baby's brain, and some small part of its old stores had not been lost. But if anything useless or bad remain we empty it out—I and those mountain with their pure air. Now, I say he is all good and the work was good. I am proud! But I wish to restore all that was good in his life. Your Keredec is something of a poet. You may put it much the old fool! And for that greatest restoration of all I have brought my boy back to France."

A half light had broken upon me as he talked, pacing the floor, thundering his paean of triumph. Only one explanation, incredible, but possible, sufficed. Anything was possible, I thought, with this dreamer.

"By the wildest chance," I gasped, "you don't mean that you wanted him to fall in love"—

"Ha, my dear sir," he laughed, "you have said it! But you knew it. You told him to come to me and tell me."

"But I mean that you—that you had selected the lady whom you know as Mme. d'Armand."

"Again," he shouted, "you have said it!"

"Professor Keredec," I returned, with asperity, "I have no idea how you came to conceive such a preposterous scheme, but I agree heartily that the word for it is madness. In the first place, I must tell you that her name is not even d'Armand."

"My dear sir, I know. It was the mistake of that absurd Amedee. She is Mrs. Harman."

"You knew it?" I cried, hopelessly confused. "But Oliver still speaks of her as Mme. d'Armand."

"He does not know. She has not told him."

"In the meantime," I said sharply, "there is a keen faced young man who took a room in the inn this morning and who has come to spy upon you, I believe."

"What is it you say?"

He came to a sudden stop.

I had not meant to deliver my information quite so abruptly, but there was no help for it now, and I repeated the statement, giving him a terse account of my two encounters with the rattish youth and adding:

"He seemed to be certain that 'Oliver Saffren' is an assumed name, and he made a threatening reference to the laws of France."

The effect upon Keredec was a very distinct pallor.

"Do you think he came back to the inn? Is he here now?"

"I do not know."

"We must learn. I must know that at once!" And he went to the door.

"Let me go instead," I suggested.

I stepped out to the gallery, to discover Mme. Brossard emerging from a door on the opposite side of the courtyard.

"Mme. Brossard," said the professor, "you have a new client today."

"That monsieur who arrived this morning," I suggested.

"He was an American," said the hostess, knitting her dark brows, "but I do not think that he was exactly a monsieur."

"Is he at the inn now?"

"No, monsieur, but two friends for whom he engaged apartments have just arrived."

"Who are they?" asked Keredec quickly.

"It is a lady and a monsieur from Paris, but not married. They have taken separate apartments, and she has a domestic with her—a negress, Algerian."

"What are their names?"

"It is not ten minutes that they are installed. They have not given me their names."

"What is she?" demanded Keredec impatiently. "Is she blond? Is she brunette? Is she French, English, Spanish?"

"I think," said Mme. Brossard—"I think one would call her Spanish, but she is very fat, not young, and with a great deal too much rouge."

She stopped with an audible intake of breath, staring at my friend's white face.

"M. Saffren and I leave at once," exclaimed Keredec. "I shall meet him on the road. He will not return to the inn. We go to—to Trouville. See that no one knows that we have gone until tomorrow, if possible. I shall leave fees for the servants with you. Go now, prepare your bill and bring it to me at once. I shall write you where to send our trunks. Quick! And you, my friend," he turned to me—"my friend, will you help us? For we need it!"

"Anything in the world!"

"Go to Père Baudry. Have him put the least tired of his three horses to his lightest cart and wait in the road beyond the cottage. Stand in the road yourself while that is being done. Oliver will come that way. Detain him. I will join you there."

I strode to the door and out to the gallery. I was halfway down the steps before I saw that Oliver Saffren was already in the courtyard, coming toward me from the archway with a light and buoyant step.

He looked up, waving his hat to me, his face lighted with a happiness most remarkable and brighter even than the strong midsummer sunshine flaming over him. Dressed in white as he was and with the air of victory he wore, he might have been at that moment a figure from some marble triumph, youthful, conquering, crowned with the laurel.

She screamed that he was killing her

But entering from the road, upon the trail of Saffren and still in the shadow of the archway, I was startled to see the discordant fineries and hatchet face of the ex-pedestrian and tourist, my antagonist of the forest.

I had opened my mouth to call a warning.

"Hurry" was the word I would have said, but it stopped at "hur." The second syllable was never uttered.

There came a violent outcry, raucous and shrill as the wail of a captured hen, and out of the passage across the courtyard floundered a woman fantastically dressed in green and gold.

She was abundantly fat, double chinned, coarse, greasy, smeared with blue pencilings, carmine, enamel and rouge.

At the scream Saffren turned. She made straight at him, crying wildly:

She threw herself upon him, her arms about his neck, with a tropical ferocity that was a very paroxysm of triumph.

"Embrasse moi, Larrabi! Embrasse moi!" she cried.

Horrified, outraged, his eyes blazing, he flung her off with a violence surpassing her own and with loathing unspeakable. She screamed that he was killing her, calling him "husband," and tried to fasten herself upon him again. But he leaped backward beyond the reach of her clutching hands and, turning, plunged to the steps and staggered up them, the woman following.

From above me leaned the stricken face of Keredec. He caught Saffren under the arm and half lifted him to the gallery, while she strove to hold him by the knees.

"O God!" gasped Saffren. "Is this the woman?"

The giant swung him across the gallery and into the open door with one great sweep of the arm, strode in after him and closed and bolted the door. The woman fell in a heap at the foot of the steps, uttering a cracked simulation of the cry of a broken heart.

"Name of a name of God!" she wailed. "After all these years! And my husband strikes me!"

Then it was that what had been in my mind as a monstrous suspicion became a certainty, for I recognized the woman. She was Mariana—la bella Mariana la Murciana.

If I had ever known Larrabee Harman; if, instead of the two strange glimpses I had caught of him, I had been familiar with his gesture, walk, intonation; even perhaps if I had ever heard his voice, the truth might have come to me long ago.

Larrabee Harman!

"Oliver Saffren" was Larrabee Harman!

CHAPTER XI.

IF it were possible I would not speak of the agony of which I was a witness that night in the apartment of my friends at Mme. Brossard's. I went with reluctance, but there was no choice. Keredec had sent for me.

To be Continued.

INDICATIONS POINT TO ANOTHER YEAR OF WAR

British and French Feel End Will Come Only After a 12-Month—Enemy to Use Every Available Means of Fortification Huns Seek Extinction of Roumania

Canadian Press Special

PARIS, Oct. 19.—The Serbians have captured the village of Brod on the western end of the Macedonian front, the War Office announced today.

British front in France—The war will last another year according to the concensus of opinion among British soldiers and their leaders. It is also the opinion of the Germans, if the views of prisoners count for anything.

German prisoners taken during the summer invariably spoke of peace being certainly in the autumn. They regarded the Somme thrust as the final effort of the Allies for a decision and that after it, peace would be made.

They now recognize it as a fight to a finish, and that the ultimate decision will come from fearful attrition on the western front, which will know no intermission until the end.

The Germans are determined to make every village on the western front a fortress, which will yield only when reduced to powder by shell-fire, and every gully and crater a machine gun post to secure their defensive against a critical defeat.

With weather adverse to offensive operations elsewhere, the Germans are apparently concentrating every possible man and gun against the Roumanians.

The view of British officers is that Germans hope to crush Roumania so that when they have to face a common allied offensive in the spring they will not have to defend the immense length of the Roumanian frontier.

FRENCH ARE IN ATHENS

Demand Use of Parliament and University For Barracks

Canadian Press Special.

ATHENS, Oct. 19.—A further detachment of French marines was landed this morning. The commander demanded the use of the Parliament and university buildings as barracks.

Huns Retake Positions on Somme

Canadian Press Special.

BERLIN, Oct. 19.—Desperate fighting occurred on the Somme front, the war office announced in consequence of efforts to pierce German line on the Lesars Morval front.

Attacks were continued from daybreak until noon, and are said to have failed partially under German fire.

German positions we had there were recaptured after being lost. The French made unimportant gains in Sailly Saillis, and between Biaches and La Maisonette, and British north of Eaucourt Labbaye and Gueudecourt. These small advances were no compensation for sanguinary losses suffered by the attackers.

Submarine Sinks Norwegian Ship

Canadian Press Special

LONDON, Oct. 19.—A Reuter's Copenhagen correspondent says a German submarine has sunk the Norwegian steamship Sten without examination and set fire to Swedish bark Greta Vren.

An Amsterdam despatch quotes Cologne Volks Zeitung as saying that German submarines will in future operate in western Atlantic visiting shipping routes around Nantucket and sinking ships after giving crews opportunity of escape.

GENERAL FOCH IN COMPLETE CONTROL OF SAILLY VILLAGE

LONDON, Oct. 19.—Special—The Village of Sailly-Saillisel is completely in the hands of the French. In a furious attack yesterday afternoon General Foch's troops not only hurled the enemy out of the village, but swept on and cleared the ridges to the northwest and northeast, taking 250 prisoners in the operation. Thus the French have surmounted the last great obstacle between them and the Cambria Plain, and hold the heights dominating the Bethune road as far as Transloy.

At the same time the French made progress in their move to flank Peronne by seizing the entire first German line on the mile front between Blanches and Lamaisonette, immediately west of Peronne.

The British co-operated in the French stroke at Sailly by advancing north of Gueudecourt and west of Transloy, taking 150 prisoners. The two moves narrow the salient at this point, and if carried through successfully will place Transloy in a pocket from which it cannot escape capture.

OVER THREE HUNDRED CANADIANS IN THE ROYAL FLYING CORPS

OTTAWA, Oct. 19.—Special—Canadian enlistments in the Royal Flying Corps now number more than three hundred. About 250 Canadian aviators are now actually in command of aeroplanes in various theatres of the war. The majority of them are in France, where they are grouped together in one corps, and have been largely used in raiding operations. Some of them are with the eastern armies and in South Africa. A considerable portion of them have been specially mentioned in despatches, and the work of the Canadian flying men has attracted most enthusiastic comment from the British authorities.

The new school for aviators which is to be established in Toronto under the direction of the Imperial authorities is to be confined to training men for the military air service. Applications for enlistment are already coming in rapidly from young Canadians in all parts of the country, while a considerable number of men at the front are asking to be transferred to the more exciting if even more dangerous service.

GREECE'S DESTINY IN HANDS OF HER KING

Constantine Gathers Stones at Larissa to Supply Royalist Movement, the Latest Trick of Which is to Announce That U. S. Squadron is Rushing to King's Aid—Greece Protests to Neutral Powers

LONDON, Oct., 19—Special—The tensity of the situation in Greece has not diminished, and the danger of a flare-up at any moment is as great as ever. Whether the allies take the final step that will drive King Constantine from his throne seems to rest entirely on the King's course of action in the next few days.

Constantine has collected great quantities of munitions, guns and rifles at various spots on the road to Larissa where it seems, he laid plans for organizing a strong defence against the allies, with the assistance of the Germans.

Certainly the allies will not permit their left flank to be menaced in this fashion, but they have not yet decided to deal summarily with the Monarch, and hope was expressed in some quarter tonight that such steps could be avoided.

Greece has lodged a protest with the neutral powers against the action of the allies in seizing part of Athens and Piraeus. But the allied answer to this is that King Constantine was manoeuvering to throw over neutrality and that they only anticipated this.

"The British Minister to Greece had a long interview with King Constantine last evening," says a Reuter despatch from Athens under the date of Tuesday, "and it is understood his Majesty insisted upon the groundlessness of the suspicion that Greece contemplated an attack upon the forces of General Sarrail. As proof of his good faith the king is said to have declared his readiness to withdraw the Greek forces from Larissa."

Three hundred French Marines were transferred yesterday from the municipal theatre to the Zappeion Exposition building, with 400 yards of the King's palace. They marched through the streets with bayonets fixed and trumpets blowing, accompanied by moving-picture apparatus and an automobile with Franco-British secret police. The front of the larger palace structure is occupied by Prince Andrew and Princess Alice.

ROUMANIANS TAKE MANY PRISONERS

Canadian Press Special.

BUCHAREST, Oct., 19—Roumanian troops are pushing back invading Austro-German forces on the Transylvanian frontier. At Praedel according to a Roumanian statement issued the Roumanians drove back Teuton units beyond the border. Roumanians also claim to have gained ground in Baran file. In the Trotus Valley the statement adds the Roumanians forced the Austro-Germans to retire, and took six hundred prisoners and twelve cannon. Another detachment attacking from Galicia in the Trotus area surprised Teuton forces and took six hundred prisoners and some machine guns.

MOVE TO AROUSE PATRIOTISM IN QUEBEC

OTTAWA, Oct.,18— An educational campaign to awaken the Province of Quebec to the necessity of recruiting, to arouse the inhabitants to a sense of their responsibility and to meet the anti-British propaganda of Henri Bourassi and his followers, is being conducted by the three Conservative Quebec Cabinet Ministers Hon. T. Chas. Casgrain, Hon. Pierre Blondin, and Hon. E. L. Patenaude

The two younger ministers, Messrs Blondin and Patenaude, are particularly active, and address big gatherings in various parts of the Province every week-end. Sunday afternoons is the favorite time for Quebec meetings. Such meetings have been going on for two months and between them, Messrs Blondin and Patenaude have largely covered the Province.

The meetings have been very well attended.

BIG STEEL MERGER IS AGAIN REPORTED

MONTREAL, Oct. 18.—Trading in 5,000 shares of Dominion Steel took place here yesterday, the price closing strong at 66 3-4. A good percentage of the buying was for New York account, this fact reviving the rumor that an amalgamation of the Scotia and Dominion companies is in the air. What gives strength to this rumor is the fact that a director of the Scotia is a member of the firm which has been doing most of the New York buying since the beginning of the upward movement. It is said that a definite statement will be made touching these rumors within a few days. In the meantime it is announced that some new blood is about to take charge of the Dominion Steel Co. at Sydney.

Cunard Liner Sunk by Mine

Canadian Press Special.

NEW YORK, Oct., 19—Advices by cable to the Cunard Line here says their Steamship Alaunia was sunk in the English Channel by striking a mine. It is believed passengers have all been landed. She sailed from New York October 7. Captain and some of the crew were saved.

Russians Repulse Attacks of Enemy

Canadian Press Special

PETROGRAD, Oct. 19.—The War Office announces fierce fighting in progress in Volhynia, east of Vlandimir Volynski where Russians repulsed several attacks.

CONSOLIDATE POSITIONS

Canadian Press Special.

PARIS, Oct., 19—Official Statement—North of the Somme our troops organized during the night the village of Sailly Saillisel and consolidated the conquered positions around this place. Some German counter attacks were broken up by our curtain fire and all our gains were sustained. South of the Somme we made fresh progress before Les Maisonette and Blaches.

In Lorraine the enemy surprise attack on our trenches north east of Linville was repulsed easily.

Heavy Rain on The French Front

Canadian Press Special.

LONDON, Oct. 19.—Rain fell heavily during the night, says today's British official report from the French front. Raiding parties entered enemy trenches near Loos and south of Arras. Otherwise there is nothing to report.

MINISTERIAL CRISIS IN AUSTRIAN COUNTRY

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 19.—Special.—The correspondent of the Vossische Zeitung, of Berlin, telegraphs from Vienna, saying that a Ministerial crisis in Austria is considered unavoidable. The correspondnt says it is expected that the Foreign Minister will retire and be succeeded by a Hungarian.

BRITISH CHIEF LAUDS CANADA

General Robertson Speaks at a Dinner to The Duke of Devonshire

LONDON, Oct. 19.—Special—Sir George Perley presided at last night's dinner of the Canada Club to meet the Duke of Devonshire, who spoke of the diffidence with which he essayed to succeed the Duke of Connaught, who had added lustre and glory to the distinguished office. Speaking passingly of the war, the Duke said he was afraid we were not at the end of sacrifices we were called to make, but all were determined to spare nothing to definitely attain our object. The future of the Empire, in the opinion of a vast majority of its inhabitants, lay in mutual respect, mutual confidence and co-operation.

General Sir William Robertson, responding for the army, said that practically all the prophets before the war had proved wrong in estimating the assistance likely to come from the Dominions. Such prophets were not confined to enemy countries. There was only one reason for that, which was that we did not sufficiently understand one another. "I will not attempt to describe what the Canadian troops have done," continued General Robertson. "I do not think Canada would wish me to use words of fulsome praise regarding the matter, which I believe she considers was merely her duty. (cheers). Still it is rather remarkable to think that within two months of the declaration of war Canada has sent this country, one division."

General Roberson went on briefly to sketch the achievements of the Canadians, firstly in 'that place of awful repute known as the Ypres salient, where that abominable gas was used for the first time," and lastly around Thiepval and Courcelette, "where they have recently added to their distinguished record."

General Robertson concluded: "Our thanks are due to Canada for what she has done, largely through the energy and driving power of the Canadian Minister of Militia, but more particularly to the people of Canada themselves. That is all I think the people of Canada would wish me to say. As regards the military situation I don't know that I can say a great deal. I think the Empire ought to be more than satisfied with what the army has achieved, considering the start we had. The end, of course, is not in sight. I would ask you to remember it took two years to begin. We have got through the beginning, and the stage we are now in is what I think is the middle. I don't care much for the question what the end will be. Let us concentrate on the middle, and the end will come when the enemy is beaten. He can only be beaten one way—by hard fighting." (Cheers.)

Arthur Balfour and Bonar Law also spoke.

$25,000 Wagered On The Election

Wilson and Hughes Are Equal Favorites—More Hughes Money is Coming Forward

NEW YORK, Oct., 18—With election day less than three weeks off, President Wilson's programme for today called for the start of his third campaign trip into the Middle West. Through three speeches in Chicago tomorrow, and handshaking from his private car at more than a score of towns and cities in New York, Ohio, Illinois and Indiana, he expects to reach many thousand voters.

Between $20,000 and $25,000 was bet by Wall street curb commissioners at odds ranging from 7 to 10 to 8 to 5 that Woodrow Wilson would be re-elected. There was a little more Hughes money than has been the case recently, but his backers were unwilling to give longer odds than those quoted. Of the amount placed on Wilson, Edward McQuade bet the greater portion at 8 to 10. It was reported that some bets had been placed among stock exchange brokers at 10 to 7 on Hughes.

Odds quoted on the curb yesterday were 10 to 7 on Hughes to carry New Jersey; 1 to 4 that Wilson will carry Connecticht, and even money betwen the two candidates in Ohio. Only a short time ago bets were made at 5 to 1 that Hughes would carry the later state.

ARE DIVIDED ON TIME FOR DOMINION ELECTION

At Present There is Talk of an Early Appeal — May Be Re-organization of Cabinet—Liberals Say it is Up to The Premier to Decide Time of Going to The Polls

OTTAWA, Oct., 18—In political circles election talk is beginning again. It is stated that one of the first things the new Governor - General may have brought before him by the government will be a request that he dissolve parliament, so that a general election may be brought.

Both parties are speeding up political operations to some extent. Candidates are being nominated in various parts of the country; organizations are being tured up, here and there, the French ministers are holding meetings and talking straight politics in the Province of Quebec, halls for public meetings are being secured by the government in other provinces.

It is intimated that there may be a reorganization of the government and an appeal to the country before another session of Parliament is called.

However, it is claimed by many that Parliament will be assembled and that the government will apply to the opposition for another extension of the term of Parliament with the confident expectation that the Liberals will decline. Then an election will be brought on with the extention of Parliament and race, religion, enlistment and patriotic subscriptions as some of the issues.

A section of the government favors elections before a session, and a section wants the session commenced.

It is up to Premier Borden to decide.

Are Opposed to Church Union

Presbyterian Delegates From all Over Canada Gather at Toronto

TORONTO, Oct. 18.—Between three and four hundred delegates from all over Canada, representing those of the Presbyterian church of Canada who oppose union with the Methodists and Congregationalists, met yesterday at St. Andrew's church to commence a three-day convocation. Rev. Dr. Andrew Robertson, St. James square, Toronto, was elected president of the convocation, with Rev. J. D. Cunningham, Welland, as secretary.

Rev. Dr. McLeod, of Barrie, in his sermon repeated the contention which is the background of the convocation movement, that the church should not go forward to consummate the proposed union until and unless it were accepted with practical unanimity.

Rev. Dr. Campbell, of Montreal, in the course of an address said:

Our constitution, which has been violated by the majority of the last general assembly, is our last line of defence, and it is impregnable. Let our church beware in time and see that it become not a tool in the hands of designing men, supported by the backstairs influence of certain chambers that need not be located."

At the evening session the statement was made by the chairman, Rev. J. R. M. Glassford, after a request for names and addresses of those present, that it was impossible to get them from the churches which they said are closed to us." In one case it was known that forty-five persons in a congregation had voted against union, but when an effort was made to get their names only five could be located.

Two papers dealing with the constitution and the policy of the church were read, one prepared by Rev. J. H. Brown, of New Westminster, and the other by Rev. W. G. Hanna, of Cooksville.

W. A. MARTIN MAY SUCCEED PREM. SCOTT

OTTAWA, Oct. 18.—Ottawa rumor has it that Mr. W. A. Martin, M.P. for Regina, will succeed Hon. Walter Scott as Premier of Saskatchewan. The natural successor would be Hon. J. A. Calder, who for a number of years has been virtual Premier, and during the many absences of Mr. Scott has been acting Premier. However, Mr. Calder is not popular in the Province. He has been the manipulator of the Saskatchewan political machine, and his name has been too closely associated with the scandals recently unearthed. Mr. Calder, it is said, will enter Federal politics at the next contest.

CONSCRIPTION WILL NOT BE FORCED ON IRELAND

LONDON, Oct. 18.—An indication that the government does not intend to have recourse immediately to conscription in Ireland was given in the House of Lords to-day by Earl Derby, undersecretary for war. In reply to question, he said that pending a decision an appeal for voluntary recruiting in Ireland, to which he hoped there would be a worthy response.

Third Bremen Crossing Ocean

Two Already Captured by British Deutschland to Make Second Trip

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—The New York World this morning says:

"From English sources of information which have always proved to be reliable the World has received the following:

"The first Bremen was captured in the Straits of Dover as she was following the tactics of the Deutschland in steaming along under the wake of an English vessel to escape detection. She had been spied farther out, and the net prepared to snare her. So completely was she entangled that it required two days to get out the crew of which five were dead, the remainder in the last stages of exhaustion.

"The most important part of the capture was the package of valuable documents and mail matter, which overjoyed Britain to possess. She was taken to Chatham, but where she is now it was not stated.

"The British also captured the second Bremen, but no details are given out. No attempt was made to capture the Deutschland on returning, as it was not considered worth while to risk the boats to do so.

"A third Bremen is on her way, and sailed expecting to dock in New London. She may be expected at any moment, as she has not been captured. The U-53 when it was found she had not arrived, rushed out to sea to find and aid her. Her mission was to look up the Bremens. The Deutschland is coming out in November."

Is Warned of Coming Storm

NEW YORK, Oct., 18 — The West Indian hurricane which has been driving through the Caribbean Sea and Gulf of Mexico this week, is rapidly approaching the American Coast and is expected to move inland somewhere between New Orleans and Apatachicota, Florida.

Hurricane warnings were ordered by the weather bureau at 9 a.m. to be hoisted between these points.

Indications were that the storm had increased in intensity as it neared the coast and all marine and other interests along the Gulf were given warning

WOULD BE RID OF HIS AUSTRIAN WIFE

PARIS, Oct., 18.—The Duke of Orleans is about to apply to the court of Rome for an annulment of his marriage to the Archduchess Marie Dorothea of Austria, according to the Fiagaro.

The duke contends that the marriage was not concluded on Austrian soil in accordance with all requirements of the ecclesiastical law.

The Duchess of Orleans won a suit for separation in January 1914. It was reported that she charged the duke with neglect owing to the fact that she was childless. At the outbreak of the war, the duke, in sending back the insignia of the Golden Fleece to the Austrian Emperor, wrote that his marriage was the curse of his life.

Lindsay Soldier Deserted For The Third Time

The following communication has been received by Chief Constable Short, of Lindsay, which contains enquiry concerning Pte. McPherson, who was well-known in Lindsay.

What has happened to Pte. McPherson that causes him to desert is the puzzle. This makes his third escape from the regiment.

The Letter

Headquarters Canadians, Shorncliffe, Kent; England, Oct. 5, 1916:

No. 455618, Pte. McPherson, C. A., 39th Batt., C.E.F. The marginally named is an absentee from the Canadian expeditionary force since August 1st, 1916. His next kin is Mary Johanna McPherson (wife), Lindsay, Ont. Please endeavor to obtain some information from this source as to his whereabouts and advise these at headquarters.

H. W. Sheverly, Lieut. for staff; Capt. for A. A. and Q.M.G., Canadians.

Frankford Cheese Factory Mass of Ruins

From some unknown cause on Tuesday afternoon, a fire was discovered in the Frankford cheese factory. The blaze was apparently extinguished, but at an early hour on Wednesday morning the fire broke out again, and the building was destroyed, together with 200 boxes of cheese. The factory was one of the best and most modern in this district. It was of cement block construction and cost when erected eight years ago., $5,500. The cheese destroyed was at present prices valued at $2,000. The entire loss will exceed $8,000, with only $4,000 insurance, $3,000 on the building, and $1,000 on the contents.

If Food Disagrees Drink Hot Water

When food lies like lead in your stomach and you have that uncomfortable distended feeling, it is because of insufficient blood supply to the stomach, combined with acid and food fermentation. In such cases try the plan now followed in many hospitals and advised by many eminent physicians of taking a teaspoonful of pure bisurated magnesia in half a glass of water, as hot as you can comfortably drink it. The hot water draws the blood to the stomach and the bisurated magnesia, as any physician can tell you, instantly neutralizes the acid and stops food fermentation. Try this simple plan and you will be astonished at the immediate feeling of relief and comfort that always follows the restoration of the normal process of digestion. People who find it inconvenient at times to secure hot water and travellers who are frequently obliged to take hasty meals poorly prepared, should always take two or three five-grain tablets of Bisurated Magnesia after meals to prevent fermentation and neutralize the acid in their stomach.

The 154th Battalion will take away two chaplains with it. Lieut. W. T. Keough is a Methodist from Vankleek Hill, and Lieut. E. J. MacDonald is a Roman Catholic priest, from Alexandria.

CREWS OF SUBS FROZEN IN BOOTS

LONDON, Oct. 19.—Special.—Crews of certain Norwegian vessels torpedoed by German submarines were placed in small boats and endured dreadful sufferings before reaching land, says a Bergen despatch to the Copenhagen Politiken transmitted by the Exchange Telegraph Company. Four men were frozen to death, the report adds, and a Norwegian mate died on his arrival at Alexandrovsk, near Archangel.

KILLS CHILD AND SELF IN DETROIT HOTEL

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 18—With the body of her six-year-old son clutched to her breast, Mrs. Bessie Adams, 30 years of age, was found in a room in the Lafayette Hotel, No. 840 Lafayette boulevard, this afternoon. A revolver with three empty chambers found beside the woman gave mute evidence of what had happened.

The woman apparently shot her son through the heart and then turned the revolver on herself, firing two shots. One pierced her left lung, the other the heart.

Where she came from is a mystery, the police and coroner's office, are trying to solve. She had a transfer from the Windsor, Essex & Lake Shore railroad, found in her personal effects.

CONTINUE EMBARGO ON CANADIAN CATTLE

LONDON, Oct. 19.—Special.—In the House of Commons to-night the secretary of the Board of Agriculture said it was inadvisable as yet to relax the regulations against the importation of Canadian cattle. He much doubted if such a course would increase the supply or reduce the price of meat here.

GO ON AS YOU HAVE BEGUN, SAYS JELLICOE

INVERNESS, Scotland, Oct. 19.—Special —The message which Admiral Sir John Jellicoe gave the oversas journalists today was characteristic for brevity, decision and terseness. "It has been intimated to me," he said, "that the dominions would like a ... able. The correspondent says it is ... on as you have begun."

RADIANT HEAT.

It Is Not Real Heat, but Only a Form of Wave Motion.

When a fire is lighted it throws off what we call heat rays or waves. These waves are very much like the waves of light which come from a light or fire or the air waves which produce sounds. The rays of light and heat which come from the sun are like the rays of light and heat from a fire.

Heat is of two kinds—heat proper, which is resident in the body, and radiant heat, which is the kind which comes to us from the sun or from a fire. This radiant heat is not heat at all, but a form of wave motion thrown out by the vibrations in the ether. The heat we feel is the sensation produced upon our skins when it comes in contact with the waves created by the fire.

Heat was formerly thought to be an actual substance, but we know now that radiant heat is known to be the energy of heat transferred to the ether which fills all of space and is in all bodies also. The hot body sets the particles of ether in vibration, and this vibrating motion in the form of waves travels in all directions.

When these vibrations strike against our skin they produce a heat sensation. Striking other objects these vibrations may produce instead of a heat sensation either chemical action or luminosity. This is determined by the length of the vibratory rays in each case.

WHEN A SHIP TURNS TURTLE.

Often the Bottom of the Vessel Is Blown Out as She Goes Down.

To "turn turtle" means in nautical language that a ship rolls too heavily, fails to recover herself and after a brief period on her beam ends turns topsy turvy, so that her keel points skyward. Then, of course, she goes down.

Frequently the compressed air imprisoned in her hull blows her bottom out as she goes down, or if she is a steamer her boilers burst, with similar results.

As a rule, ships turn turtle because they are burdened with too much "top hamper" or from lack of sufficient ballast or both causes combined.

Rarely does it happen that there are any survivors, but there is one notable exception in the case of the battleship Captain, which was lost after this fashion in the bay of Biscay. In her case exactly three minutes elapsed from the time she first turned turtle until she finally sank, and forty of her crew of 500 men clambered up her side as she rolled over and on to her keel. Of these eighteen men were eventually rescued and were able to describe later on precisely what occurred.

When the "Corpse" Walked.

Sir John Henniker Heaton used to preface a favorite story of his by explaining how, at Monte Carlo, when the body of a suicide was found in the grounds attached to the Casino, the officials always put money in his pocket so that it should not be said that poverty through gambling had caused his death.

One day a man rose from the tables muttering "Ruined! Ruined!" went outside, let off a revolver, and fell to the ground.

The officials pushed banknotes into his pockets at once. Soon after the corpse got up and returned to the rooms, using the official money in a further attempt to break the bank.

Invites Tenants Out.

"If any of you go to Canada I hope you will give me a call. You will find a hearty reception awaiting you," said the Duke of Devonshire to a gathering of his tenants at Pentrich vicarage.

BEATING THE FUND.

Desperate Efforts Have Been Made by Some Men and Women.

The Canadian Patriotic Fund, like every other big institution, has had its experiences of attempts to "put something over" on it. Perhaps because it is such a big institution, handling such immense sums of money for patriotic and charitable purposes only, it has appeared the more tempting mark. To it belongs the distinction of dealing almost exclusively with ladies in this connection. Just as the woman was tempted by an apple over in the garden a few summers ago, her sisters have been tempted since by patriotic plums hanging apparently within reach on the biggest tree of its kind in the country. To the credit of the tree be it said that the plums haven't been so easily picked as the apple was, and the picking of them has invariably entailed some very disagreeable consequences to the pickers.

There was, for instance, the case of Mrs. F——. She made application to the fund in July, 1915. In August, this year, the Children's Aid Society reported that F——, her alleged husband, had a wife and three children living in England. It transpired, too, that his new Canadian "wife" had also been married before, and that she had deserted her lawful husband to go and live with F——. The latter had forged his name to the marriage certificate, which was shown to the officers of the fund, and she had been calmly living on the proceeds of their charity. When the fraud was discovered the fund secured a transference of his Government pay and separation allowance to his legitimate wife in England, and the Canadian "wife" was left to earn a substitute as best she could. A fateful Nemesis it was to her, for she was at the time expecting another child, and all visible means of support vanished.

In another case two marriage certificates figured. A woman who claimed to be the wife of a soldier named H——, had been receiving support from the fund. To prove her right to the same she had produced a marriage certificate duly authenticating her name and the place and date of the marriage. Somehow, information leaked out that she was not this man's legal wife; that he was married to another woman, whom he had deserted, and that his real wife was living in the city. One day this real wife herself came into the offices of the fund. "I don't want anything from you on my own account," she said, "but I don't want another woman to be drawing money in my name." Meanwhile the other woman and her "husband" had removed to Montreal. Discovering that fact, the fund set out to learn what had become of the checks it had been issuing to her. Four startling discoveries were made: 1, That for some time the checks had been received and cashed by the woman's former landlady in Toronto, who deducted a commission for her trouble and forwarded the balance on to Montreal, where it was applied to keep the "lord and master" of the household living in the solidest comfort of his life. 2. That the said lord and master was a deserter from his regiment. 3. That he had been previously married to a woman who had afterwards died before he met and married again. 4. That it was this dead wife's marriage certificate which the fictitious wife had presented when making her claim. The fund immediately prosecuted and got judgment for the amount of moneys paid her.

Escapes From German Prisons.

One of the three Canadian soldiers who are reported as having escaped from German war prisons is a well-known Torontonian and another son of a prominent citizen of Port Arthur. It was a happy day for Mrs. Edward Edwards of 70 Standish avenue when she heard that her husband, Lance-Corporal Edwards, had thus secured his freedom. "I cannot believe it until I hear from him," she said, "but I do hope it is true. I am glad I never told him not to go. He is a soldier to the backbone." Edwards was formerly in the Gordon Highlanders, was through the South African war and was employed by the Consumers' Gas Co.

A special despatch from Port Arthur says: Private Gerry Burke, whom the Canadian Pay and Record Office reports as having escaped from a German prison camp to Holland and then gone to England, is the son of D. F. Burke, of Port Arthur. Gerry Burke has a brother Thomas, who is also a prisoner in Germany. His mother is in England, having gone a year ago to be with her daughter, Mrs. Simons, whose husband is a civilian prisoner in Berlin. Burke was at St. Andrew's College, Toronto, in 1906 and 1907.

Beavers Restore Dam in Night.

A beaver dam, lately demolished on the farm of R. Marston in MacNab township, a few miles from Renfrew, by Game Warden Devine of Renfrew, assisted by Mr. Marston, each using an axe and a crowbar, has been rebuilt by the beavers in a single night. In tearing down the dam the game warden and farmer were occupied for two hours. On the advice of the game warden the farmer hung a lantern in a tree by the sight of the dam, but this did not have the effect of causing the beavers to leave. Now the owner of the farm is to propose to the Ontario Government through the game warden that the dam be not further disturbed, and that he be paid the sum of $20 for the trouble and inconvenience he has been put to.

Good for Newfoundland.

Newfoundland fishermen naturally look for better results from their season's fishing because of the steadily-declining output of the Norwegian waters. In 1912 the output was in the neighborhood of 100,000,000 pounds. Each year since there has been a decline. The present season's output is estimated at 51,000,000 pounds.

Still, it tends to prove that, while the Ethopian cannot change his skin, he is confined to his "spots" much as the leopard is.

400 Millions In Gold For United States

Another Ten Million Deposited Tuesday—Say it is From South Africa and Australia

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.— Another $5,000,000 consignment of British gold, via Canada, was deposited at the assay office to-day by J. P. Morgan and Company, making $10,000,000 thus far this week, and indicating a resumption of the enormous imports which began early in the year and continued until the latter part of September.

Four Hundred Millions

According to unofficial estimates, the amount of foreign gold, chiefly British, received in this country so far this year approximates $400,000,000. Of this amount about 10 per cent. came in January and February, the movement attaining its largest proportions in May, June and July.

These imports include small amounts of French, Russian and Italian gold, mostly coin, all of which was reminted at the local assay office and the Philadelphia mint.

From Australia

It is assumed that some of the metal came from Australia and South Africa, the British government, according to report, having special gold reserves in those countries.

LETTERS FROM OVERSEAS

FROM PERCY PALMER

France, Sept. 26, 1916

Dear Mother,—

I think I told you some time ago that if I ever got time I would write you a short description of our trip to France and our doings in action; I think that time has come, or at least it is about time I kept my promise. We left England under ideal conditions, on an elegant July night, with the weather just warm enough to make the atmosphere comfortable. The harvest moon shed its brilliant rays in the wake of our vessel, and followed us for miles doubtless attracted by the harmonious singing of our boys. You know there is nothing so lulling and soothing as music, and as the boys sang snatches of ragtime interspersed with an occasioned solo. Our thoughts went back to former pleasant night spent under Canadian skies. I cannot on account of the censor, tell you any of the precautions taken by the Naval department to insure our safe conveyance to France, and prevent submarines from attacking us, but when we saw the methods we felt perfectly safe, and at ease, that the whole German navy could not get at us let alone a solitary submarine. Having arrived in a French seaport, our next move was to unload the horses, guns, wagons, etc., and this was interesting, but strenuous work. The horses were loosed and were sent down a long covered slute which had only one exit; at this exit, a driver stood to catch the horse as it came down. He then lead it to its alloted place and left it till its mates came up. Meanwhile the gunners were busy coupling together the different parts of the vehicles which had been removed from the vessel by means of a derrick. At last the horses were hooked in and all was complete, and we moved off at a walk through what always has been a famous French seaport. The scenery though was not nearly so pretty as the English scenery, but everywhere we were greeted with smiles and French expressions of good-will. The small boys also made themselves noticeable by running along side our wagons asking for souverniers or pennies. It was great fun watching them scrambling for pennies which we threw them, and often ending with a little fistic encounter. We halted in this place twenty-four hours, being billeted in tents. During our stay, we were not allowed to go up town, so contented ourselves with resting. Next we loaded our horses and vehicles on small cars and in cramped coaches, proceeded toward the front. After a run of a considerable distance, we arrived at a station on the Belgian frontier and there we disembarked, journeying some distance to our billet, a Flemish farmhouse, which was erected three years prior to the war of 1812. Our journey by rail took us through some of the finest French-growing country, and every where the progressiveness of the farmers was manifest in the abundance of the crops which in many places, would not confine themselves to their bounds but clambered underneath the fences and up to the rails on which the cars ran. Our stay in billet was brief; we were taken to the front to our positions, and it was that trip that impressed me most of any. Along country roads we travel'ed through rows of elm trees, past the hop vines ladden heavily with hops, into deserted villages and out again, until finally we arrived at a deserted Belgian city so compeletly ruined that it looked like a huge building shy of scaffolding, but yet in a stage of construction nearly half done. The uncanny flare of German star shells, which the frightened Hun puts up from his trenches, sent an unnatural brilliancy over the entire ruins showing us the ghastly appearances of the homes and public buildings. This city, which is about twice as big as Belleville, was absolutely devoid of glass in any of the many windows and skylights,—there was no building but bore the jagged marks of a shell or fragments of shells. The signs on the business houses were mostly unintelligible, because some of the lettering was obliterated where shells had lodged. No civilians made in this place, the awful solitude made it possible for us to hear our own thoughts, and caused a feeling to come over us which was the next thing to fear. The rustling of multitudes of rats as they scampered about the ruins or clumsily splashed through the water in the dark cellars, did not lessen this fear. However, we finally arrived at our destination where we slept the remainder of the night in dugouts. Next day we explored our position; nearby was a moat and on the water a short distance away swam a lily white swan, and her brood of three. They were very friendly, and would accept small morsels of bread from our hand whenever we had any to offer. The old ruins by daylight, presented a scene of undescribable grandeur. Our life in the position was not so disagreeable. On one or two occasions, Fritz put over a few shells at us, but in the safety of our friendly dugouts they could not harm us. We spent most of our time exploring the old city, and swimming in an old place once used as a reservoir only coming home in time to eat or do what little work we had to perform. We had to do our own laundry work here, as the laundries for some reason, refused to take in washing. This afforded us a lot of amusement watching other fellows at this task. It was almost as good as going to the movies to see Charlie Chaplin. After weeks in action, we went back to the wagon lines for a rest and slept in an old barn filled with rusty straw, and arose about the same time as our neighbor's pigs and chickens did, which was about six o'clock. Rain hampered our comfort somewhat. But now we are in action again on another part of the line where our heaviest work is going to the nearby hedges and picking blackberries which are in great abundance. In the fields ahead the farmers are gathering in their grain, all unsuspecting as it were of any danger while our shells hurtle noisily over their heads. To our rear, the leaves on the trees of a small woods are turning that glorious color which denotes the coming of autumn. To our right a large hill rises sentinel like and looks very pretty in the sunlight. Our position here is ideal in every respect. You will note that I have hardly mentioned the war, this is because it is hard to realize that there is such a thing. We are reminded occasionally, that there is, by the distant clap of the shell bursting in the distance. At night the rattling of the machine guns, which sounds like the tappings of a steam trip hammer, is plainly audible. The flare light too make everything bright temporarily, while the zing of stray bullets, as they whistle merrily over our heads or lodge in the path at our feet, keeps us on the lookout, but we are gradually getting used to such slight occurrences as this. The aeroplanes too, skim through the air like immense birds—the noise of the motor and the whirr of the propellers are wafted to us sounding like the chug, chug of some of our motor boats at home. It is interesting to watch these machines as they are being shelled; the coolness of the operators almost sends a feeling of chillness down to us as he steers his way through puffs of smoke which indicate where shrapnel shells have recently burst. In this respect our aviators have vastly the advantage their resourcefulness depicting more realistic than anything I have ever seen. The unbounded pluck of the British bull dog. They just seem to travel through the thickest of the shelling contemptuously ignoring the shrapnel which must burst in their vicinity and then go serenly on their way as if they were making an exhibition flight at one of our fall fairs. Well, mother I guess I have come to the end of my story, and as it is nearly twelve o'clock and time I was in bed, I will close, wishing you and sisters the best of health.

I remain,

Your loving son,
P. Palmer.

Kaiser Has Eyes On Near East

Forces Concentrated on Oriental Empire Project — Would Relinquish Gains in The West

LONDON, Oct. 17.—Dr. E. J. Dillon, in a despatch from Florence to The Daily Telegraph, says:

"It now becomes clear to the dullest apprehension that, for the time being, at any rate, the principal war theatre has shifted to the Near East, where the Allies are confronted not merely with Bulgars and Turks, but with the troops of the Central Empires commanded by the four best Generals—Falkenhayn, Hindenburg, Mackensen and Von Artz.

"So important for Germany is the maintenance of communications between Berlin and the Near East that she is ready, as I know, to make peace to-day on the basis of the evacuation of France and Belgium, but on condition that she and her confederates be permitted to deal with Russia and the Balkan States. For if the upshot of the war left her the makings of an Oriental Empire reaching from Hamburg to the Persian Gulf she would consider this result worth the sacrifice made."

Sure Way To Get Rid of Dandruff

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred tmes better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and four ounces is all you will need This simple remedy has never been known to fail.

ONTARIO HORSES BEING IMPROVED

The fact that over seventy-four per cent. of the stallions under license in the Province of Ontario are thoroughbreds is evidence that the present Conservative Government of Ontario are practical in their dealings with subjects that most effect the interests and welfare of the people. The fact that seventy-five per cent of so useful an animal as the horse is a striking fact as recorded in the annual report of the Stallion Enrolment Board to Hon. James Duff, and represents the degree of success that has attended the operation of the drastic legislation passed three years ago aiming to gradually eliminate all "grade" animals.

In 1913 when the Act went into force there were 993 grades out of 2,760, or 36 per cent. To-day there are approximately only 726 grades out of 2,630 or about 26 per cent. The big cut was made on August 1st, when by the operation of the Act all grade animals with defects were put on the prohibited list.

This eliminated about 100 stallions. The remaining grades will be tolerated for two seasons yet, but in 1918 they must go and thereafter only pure bred stock will be licensed in the province.

Camels.

Unless camels have been especially rained to abstinence they cannot go as ong as is commonly supposed without vater. When marching near rivers hey drink twice a day. They feed argely on the tough, scrubby verdure nown locally as camel thorn, which rows throughout Mesopotamia, exept on the extreme desert wastes. Their habits are peculiar. Unlike orses, they seem to feel no fondness or their human associates, though hey will seldom wander far from the aravan tents even if left untied over-

SLAV CHURCH CONSECRATED.

First Russian Orthodox Congregation in Ontario Opened.

Within the frame and roughcast walls of a church that once housed worshippers of another creed—a modest little building with nothing about it to suggest the majesty of the Great Slavic Church—a Russian bishop recently consecrated in Toronto the first Eastern Orthodox church in Ontario. The new worshipping place of Toronto's Russians at the corner of Edwin and Royce avenues will accommodate only a hundred or more people, but the consecration, in it impressiveness, its intense religious feeling, and its ceremonial display might have been that of a church with thousands of adherents. The bishop's service continued for nearly three hours, and during the whole time the adherents of the church—all but a few of them men—stood reverent and intent. There are no comfortable seats in this little house of worship, and though the door swung open, not a man turned away; and at the end of the service when the attendant priests announced that the bishop would confer the apostolic blessing practically every one, men, women, and even little children, pressed forward to kiss the ikon, the cross, and the hand of the Church head and to receive his blessing.

The service started at 10 o'clock. A few minutes before the hour Bishop Alexander and the lesser church dignitaries left the home of the rector, Rev. Michael Kaimakan and walked to the church, the choir preceding them singing and carrying banners, ornamented with religious pictures, and the congregation following. At the entrance to the church yard the president of the congregation waited, offering the bread and salt of welcome. Inside the church the bishop stopped some distance away from the altar and while the choir and congregation chanted the responses to the reading of the preliminary service, he allowed the attendant priests to clothe him in the magnificent vestments of his office, a robe of gold and red, richly ornamented. Then followed the presentation of a new candidate for the ministry, Djakon Jakov, who received from the bishop's hands the yellow robe that denotes his first step toward full priesthood.

The consecration service itself was wonderfully impressive. It bears some resemblance to the Anglican service, but the many colored vestments of the priests, the waving of incense, the sense of mystery, are Oriental in their appeal. There are no musical instruments in the Orthodox Church, but vocal music occupies a prominent part in the service, the chanting of the choir flowing on almost continuously with a repetition that in time has something approaching a hypnotic influence. This part of the service is chanted in Old Slavic, the language of all the Eastern Orthodox churches, be they Russian, Serbian, Roumanian, or Bulgarian. The brief sermons were spoken in Russian, the language of most of the adherents of the new church, though a few belong to other Slav nationalities. That the Orthodox church is the Mother Church of all Slavs was strikingly shown by the fact that of the attendant priests other than the Russians, one was a Bulgarian and the other a Serbian from Bosnia-Herzgovina. Bishop Alexander delivered an eloquent exhortation to the congregation in which he took occasion to refer to the unity in war between the Russian and British peoples and to express the hope that the new understanding between them would grow until with understanding of each other they came to respect and love. Rev. Kaimakan spoke in Russian and in English, using the latter language to express his appreciation of the help given him by Toronto people other than Russian in organizing the church and getting a building equipped.

Meteors.

Meteors had an unusual influence on the Greeks and Romans, who in a way worshiped the falling bodies of luminosity. It is declared that the Palladium of Troy and the image of Diana at Ephesus were erected to meteors. At times the fall of these mysterious strangers has been accompanied by disastrous results, for it is on record in China that ten persons have been struck and killed by them. The Smithsonian institution has among its meteoric collections one which weighs in the neighborhood of 500 pounds, whose composition is nearly pure nickel. There have been discovered by chemical analysis twenty-nine elements in meteors, all of which are found on and in the earth.

THIS IS THE 812TH DAY THE BRITISH EMPIRE HAS BEEN AT WAR WITH GERMANY.

PREMIER SCOTT RESIGNS

Premier Scott, who has been at the head of the Saskatchewan Government, since that part of the Nor' West territory became a Province, has resigned, on the ground, it is stated, of ill health, which no doubt is the primary cause of his retirement. Premier Scott, has not been a well man for years. His health has compelled him to absent himself from the province for long periods, leaving the work of administration to his colleagues. He has not, however, at any time attempted to disclaim responsibility as Premier for the policy of the Administration as carried out by his colleagues during his periodical absences, no matter of what character they were.

There can, however, be no doubt that the serious charges brought against the Scott Government, and proved, had something to do with his retirement.

"The serious charges brought against the Scott Government in recent years have had to do with alleged manipulation of the franchise, it will be recalled, was widened by provincial legislation for the purpose of securing the votes of foreign settlers. It was in this connection that the charge was made that a British subject had no status as such in Saskatchewan, as that portion of the battle which the voter had to take, that he was a British subject, was removed from the affidavit.

Recent investigations in regard to misconduct in the highways branch of the Provincial Government, and in regard to the alleged deal between the Government and the liquor interests have told the story of the later troubles with which the Scott Government has been confronted. The investigation which was granted by the Government at the last session of the Legislature, on the demand of a Conservative, following the inauguration of Government control of the liquor traffic, was much narrower than that which the Opposition had asked for. It resulted, however, in implicating to a serious extent members of the Legislature and supporters of the Government and one of the Ministers. The result unquestionably weakened the prestige of the Administration. Hon. Walter Scott surrenders a sceptre which has in recent years become far too heavy for a man in his indifferent health."

Who may be his successor, has not yet transpired.

"THE GLOBE'S CRITICISM"

Under the above heading the Ottawa Free Press administers a well-merited rebuke to the Toronto Globe, and to Liberal journals which indulge in comments upon questions of which they have not sufficient knowledge to justify such adverse comments. The Free Press has in the past, treated the present war difficulties in a spirit free from partizanship, which it would be well in the interest of the Liberal party, were they to follow it.

"Upon the cabled story from the Canadian War Records Office in London of the fierce fighting in which the Canadians were engaged north of Courcelette on Sunday," says the Free Press, "The Toronto Globe makes serious charges of blundering against commanders of the Canadian forces.

"Long-distance criticism upon what must necessarily be very incomplete information is to be deplored.

"In the first place, accounts of fighting—particularly the aims and objects and exact conditions of particular battles—which the newspapers can be permitted to publish are obviously shorn of many facts that are essential to a correct judgment on the orders given for, and the results of, the fighting.

"In the second place, even with the full facts at their disposal, it is doubtful whether the Toronto Globe or any other Canadian newspaper has at its disposal military men competent through experience in this war—for other wars count for little—to pass judgment on the work of commanders who are on the ground.

"Canadian newspapers have been generally complaining of the incompleteness and inefficiency of the "Eyewitness" stories from the front. That fact in itself should induce them to go slow in using "Eyewitness" reports of battles as basis for criticism of such a sweeping character as that indulged in by the Toronto Globe.

"As a civilian interpretation (or rather attempted interpretation because the editor has never claimed more than that) of the day's war news the Toronto Globe's daily summary with comment on the cables has been excellent; but there need be no surprise if its readers question the ability of the Globe's writers to apportion blame to the military commanders."

Dealing with this subject the London Times pertinently says that "Above all, the soldier must not be pesterd with unnecessary changes or unnecessary inquiries in the middle of a great war. We utter this warning because there is a common tendency, which is likely to be accentuated, to look upon all soldiers as incompetent organizers, and because of the real dangers of ill-informed interference. In the opinion of those who have looked into matters thoroughly for themselves, our Army in France is now a masterpiece of organization, while much of the soldier's work in England is unchallenged and bears excellent fruit. It would be the extreme of unwisdom to interfere with either as the result of a hasty decision. As our shrewd Allies say, "le mieux est l'ennemi du dien." We have the good and the very good. Common-sense tells us to let it alone."

Hamilton Herald: Henry Ford denies with emphasis that the present material prosperity in the United States is due to war conditions. He proves his contention by citing his own case. His business is prosperous, but he has not had a single war contract. Such is this man's logic. Even Ford would not deny that in the work of munition making thousands of Americans have waxed wealthy and hundreds of thousands of American workmen have been kept busy at abnormally high wages. The vast profits and the high wages have stimulated the demand for luxuries, Ford cars among them. That is why Ford's business is so prosperous even though he has never filled a war contract.

Toronto News: According to Mr. Harold Begbie, Lord Haldane, after his visit to Berlin in 1912, "awakened the Imperial Cabinet to the reality of the German peril." No such accusation can be made against Sir Wilfrid Laurier. It was during 1912 that the Canadian Haldane used the subservient Senate to prevent additions to the British navy. He was an eager competitor with Lord Haldane in his devotion to the Kaiser.

Montreal Gazette: In New York, where there is much discussion as to the advancing food prices, the Herald contrasts some prices as paid in the old city with those prevailing in Brooklyn. For example, in New York City, mackerel the other day was 30 cents a pound, while in Brooklyn it was 18 to 20; scallops, per quart, were $1.50 and 75 cents respectively; halibut, 25c and 25c; weakfish, 22c and 15c; 30c and 15c, etc. The same condition, it has often been noted, prevails in other cities. The neighborhood sometimes enhances the price of a pound of beefsteak or a peck of potatoes.

NOISES OF THE NIGHT.

Weird Sounds That Startle Travelers in the Desert of Gobi.

In Ceylon the devil bird is a constant source of alarm. No one knows what species of bird it is, but throughout the whole night its cries are horrible and bloodcurdling. The natives regard the cry of this mysterious bird as a sure presage of death.

In the desert of Gobi, which divides the mountainous snow clad plateau of Tibet from the milder regions of Asia, travelers assert that at night they have heard sounds high up in the sky, as of the clashing of arms and sounds of martial music. If travelers fall to the rear or get separated from the caravan they hear themselves called by name. If they go after the voice they get lost in the desert. Sometimes they hear the tramping of horses, and, taking it for their caravans, are drawn away, and, wandering from the right course are hopelessly lost. The people believe that these sounds are produced by the spirits that haunt the desert.

The Irish banshee may be traced to the owls, as the description of the cry is so similar to that of the owl, which completes the identification. Most of the weird sounds that are heard in the air at night seem to have superstitious terrors and are often magnified and altered by those who hear them.

WHIMS OF A BOXER.

Corbett's Nerves Jangled When He Was About to Meet Jeffries.

Jim Corbett was all nerves when preparing for a bout. Jimmy Coffroth, who promoted the bout between Corbett and Jeffries at San Francisco, told this one on Jim:

"Corbett was an easy man to get along with save that he was finicky about small matters. For instance, he came to me before the Jeffries fight and wanted to know who would be a likely referee. When I told him the man he sought him out and put him through a third degree on boxing.

"There never was a question of ring form that he didn't bring up. A few days before the fight he came to me and asked to be shown the door in Mechanics' pavilion through which he would enter on his arrival. I showed him the big front door, and he said, 'No, too much jostling there; show me another door.'

"I took him to every entrance in the building, but none would suit, and I wound up by having a carpenter cut a special door in the side of the building for him. That was the queerest whim I ever ran across dealing with boxers."

BLOOD DROPS OF HEROES

By Wilfred Campbell

When the woods at Kilmorie are scarlet and gold,
And the vines are like blood on the wall;
I dream of the faces, all pallid and cold,
Of our brave ones who answered the call;
Like the bright autumn leaves,
Or the rich, garnered sheaves,
Our truest, our greatest, our all;
For my heart beats in Belgium, or far France's wold,
When the woods at Kilmorie are scarlet and gold.

When the woods at Kilmorie are scarlet and gold,
I see but the beauty of God,
Not the small ways of men, and the mean faiths they hold,
Like the blind worm under the clod;
But the brave and the true,
Who knew but to do,
Like those glorious banners of God,
Arrayed on His hills, or at rest on His mold,
When the woods at Kilmorie are scarlet and gold,

When the woods at Kilmorie are scarlet and gold,
There's another dread harvest afar;
Where our greatest, our truest ones struggle to hold Back the modern world's Juggernaut car;
And my heart only sees
In the pageant trees
That horrible pageant of war,
Where God's men, for righteousness, strive, as of old—
When the woods at Kilmorie are scarlet and gold,

When the woods at Kilmorie are scarlet and gold,
And the vines are like blood on the wall;
I hear on the winds o'er the wood and the wold,
A bitter, insistent call.
'Tis the cry of our slain,
Appealing in vain,
For help where the brave hearts fall;
And its tragic demand doth the whole world ho'd,
When the woods at Kilmorie are scarlet and gold.

How Gold Plate Is Made.

There is practically no solid gold plate. The so called gold plate services are silver gilt, and only a few pieces of pure gold are owned by the English crown or any other crown. It may interest our readers to learn how this fire, mercurial or water gilding—for it is known by all of these three names—is done. Pure gold and mercury are mixed into a paste. The silver article to be gilded has been chemically cleaned, is rubbed all over with this paste, which has been placed in a silk bag, just as the blue used in washing is put in a bag. When the piece of plate has been rubbed over it is perfectly white. It is then put into an oven, and gradually the mercury goes off in fumes, leaving on the article a deposit of pure gold, which has practically become one with the piece of silver and will last for centuries.

He Got Valuable Information.

The story is told of the times of Aretas Blood and the old Manchester locomotive works that a student came to Mr. Blood once and wanted to study the business of locomotive building in his vacation days. The student came well recommended, and Mr. Blood, who never had much use for these "tech" people, sent him down to the boiler shop and placed him in charge of the old foreman. The old man took the "tech" man around, and in the course of the inspection of the shop they came across one boiler on the inside of which was a man at work.

"Oh," said the venerable pilot, "he doesn't get out. We always count upon losing at least one man in building a boiler."—Manchester Guardian.

Surface Heat of the Sun.

We think the sun is pretty hot in summer when the thermometer goes up to 90 degrees in the shade or out. We begin to get sunburned a long time before it reaches that high. But right on the sun's surface it is between 10,000 and 15,000 degrees hot. That is, of course, a degree of heat which we cannot conceive. How much hotter still it is on the inside of the sun we do not as yet know.

Fashionable Calls.

"Who rang the doorbell just now, Katie?"

"A woman who found you out, ma'am."

"But I'm not out, Katie."

"I know, ma'am, but the woman looked as if that was what she wanted to know."

Pretty Careful.

"Bill is one of those careful, saving fellows, isn't he?"

"Yes; he puts the cork in the ink bottle between pen dips."

TRINIDAD'S PUZZLE

Mystery of the Island's Curious Lake of Pitch.

HOLES FILL UP OVERNIGHT.

And Great Trenches More Than Three Feet Deep Will Be Obliterated In a Week—The Great Mass Is Solid, Yet In Constant but Slow Motion.

Though disappointing at first sight to people who have the crater of an active volcano in mind, yet the famous "pitch lake" of Trinidad is remarkable enough to satisfy most thoroughly long ere the visit has come to an end.

The lake is a level plain about a hundred acres or so in extent, surrounded by low hills and dotted here and there with bushes and trees. The surface is not a shimmering black, as might be supposed, but a dull, grayish blue color, intersected with pools of shining water. Altogether it is a very prosaic looking place, giving no hint of its real interest.

One can walk where one pleases on the surface of the asphalt without any fear of sinking in, for it is quite solid enough to bear one's weight. If you stand in one place for a little while it feels hot to the feet, just like an asphalted street on a very hot day.

Much of the time a fresh breeze blows, and one remembers with amusement the stories of the imaginative writers who talked about stifling heat and oppressive atmosphere.

The digging of the asphalt is a simple operation. A mattock is the only tool required, and under its blows the pitch breaks readily. The negroes employed are very skilled in the work and break out lumps a couple of feet across, far too heavy for an ordinary man to carry.

Only a very small amount of the material gets broken into little pieces, so that scarcely any baskets are needed to carry the asphalt to the cars. A laborer simply lifts one or two lumps, puts them on his head, walks a few yards and drops them into the car.

The crude asphalt, as broken out, is somewhat brownish or earthy in color. It is usually quite wet and filled with many holes, like bubbles, measuring up to an inch or more in diameter.

The gang of barefooted workmen in one place may number thirty men, of whom half a dozen do the digging. They work on a space perhaps sixty feet long and forty feet wide, and in the course of a day they will dig down to a depth of three feet, or more in some places.

Go to that same spot next morning, and you will find it a little rough, but approximately level with the rest of the lake. The hole has been mysteriously filled up during the night, and in the course of a week all traces of the digging will be obliterated.

This does not mean necessarily that fresh asphalt has come into the lake from underground sources. On the contrary, the excavations are filled by a very slow settling or leveling of the surface asphalt. There is no such thing as "new" asphalt, by the way, for the transition from liquid petroleum to solid asphalt by nature's process involves a period of time that must be calculated in centuries.

The digging done in past years has caused the general level of the lake to sink several feet, so that it is not absolutely inexhaustible, as some people imagine. It is believed that fresh asphalt very slowly pushes itself upward into the lake from the subterranean depths, but how large a quantity is thus added annually has not been calculated.

Near the middle of the lake the material is less hard than elsewhere, and in a few places soft asphalt may be seen in small, irregular patches oozing up from below. This fresh asphalt is of about the consistency of putty and can be kneaded and pulled in the hands without soiling them greatly. In the main, however, the lake is solid asphalt.

No one knows the depths of this mysterious lake, the only information on the subject being the fact that long ago a boring was made to a depth of 135 feet without reaching the bottom. The "cores" of this and other borings show that in consistency the asphalt remains the same to a very considerable depth.

Curious as it may seem, there are many evidences that the entire mass comprising the lake is in constant but very slow motion. The surface is a series of great folds, and in the creases between these the rain water gathers. One writer has aptly compared the surface of the asphalt to the skin of a great elephant, the creases being the folds in his hide. Along the edges of the pools of water grass, bushes and small trees take root, forming green "islands" of greater or less extent.—Victor Pitt-Kethley in Wide World Magazine.

YOU CAN AFFORD

the price of a few boxes of Zam-Buk better than you can afford to pay a doctor's bill. The Rev. A. D. McLeod, of Harcourt, N.B., says: "I am confident, if Zam-Buk were kept in every home, it would save many a doctor's bill." He continues:

"I know of nothing that can compare with Zam-Buk. Having charge of an extensive mission, I meet with many sick and afflicted people, and I have been amazed at the good Zam-Buk is doing daily. For bad ulcers, old wounds, eczema and skin diseases of all kinds, the healing powers of Zam-Buk are simply marvellous! It is also excellent for piles."

If you are suffering from any of the above ailments, why not get Zam-Buk now and save yourself unnecessary expense? All druggists or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, 50c. box, 3 for $1.25.

An Aid to Canned Music.

In the Woman's Home Companion a writer makes the following suggestions: "Into a blank book I copy the words of songs and operas that I buy for my phonograph and hand this book to my friends as I play the records. Understanding the words perfectly adds much to their pleasure."

His Interest.

Mrs. Quizzer—Didn't I hear that you were interested in the steel construction business? Mr. Doolittle—Oh, yes; I'm deeply interested in it. Whenever I run across a gang of structural workers I stand around and watch them by the hour.

Do not be too credulous, yet if a sign says "Wet Paint" believe it.—Youth's Companion.

Movies Hit Saloons.

The proprietor of a small Hamilton saloon complained, two years ago, that if the moving picture shows continued to attract he would be forced to close up shop. Since that time the saloon has been torn down and a clean little grocery store has taken its place. The unfortunate individual who may be out of work, weakly developed both mentally and physically, and who is forced to live in a cheerless back room of a cheap lodging house, must certainly spend his time somewhere. Hitherto practically the only open door was that of the saloon, where he was welcome so long as his few poor coins lasted, and then kicked out with probably an upset digestive apparatus, as well as having moved a notch further down in his moral condition. And then the movies came along with five-cent shows, clean, warm theatres with permission to remain as long as one wished, and no suggestion to buy another drink or get out. The arrival of the movies was a blessing to all branches of the lower and middle classes, and this, with certain other modern innovations, seemed to ring the death knell to that old autocratic fallacy that the working classes had no right to anything but their natural condition.

Steel Scarce in Canada.

There is still in Canada as great a scarcity of steel as at any previous time. Not only is the steel wanted for munitions of war, but it is needed for other purposes, and it is hard to get. One house which needed rails to complete a short railway operated by a Canadian city could not get delivery from a plant which accepted the order, and in response to very persistent and unceasing requests to deliver was finally faced by a copy of a letter from the Chairman of the Munitions Board intimating that it was expected that the resources of Canadian plants ought to be placed as fully as possible at the disposal of the firms who were handling munitions. This was interpreted to mean that if the Canadian plants did not do their utmost to meet the demands for war purposes the Government would step in and take them into its own hands.

Died Same Date, Not Same Day.

While it is true that Cervantes and Shakespeare died on the same date, they did not die on the same day. Shakespeare died Tuesday, April 23, 1616; Cervantes died Saturday, April 23, 1616. The explanation lies in the difference between the calendars in use at that time in England and Spain. As a matter of fact, Shakespeare outlived Cervantes by about ten days.—London Observer.

The Word Vaudeville.

The word "vaudeville" sprang from Vaux de Vire, the name of a hamlet in the picturesque town of Vire, in Switzerland. In the fifteenth century this town was the home of Oliver Basselin, the author of witty drinking songs. One of the best known of these songs was a merry dissertation on the author's red nose.

Insatiable.

Clarence had wearied his mother with a lot of questions. Finally, she exclaimed: "Clarence Briggs, if you ask one more question you march right off to bed."

Clarence pondered. Then he said: "When pa asks where I is will him be sent to bed, too?"—Exchange.

SOME GOLF TERMS.

Taken From the Dictionary of a Disgruntled Player.

Bunker—A protuberance on the face of nature rising up out of the side of a sandy depression, designed to ruin the pleasure of golf, to test the patience of the player and to serve as an inspiration for philologists, amateur and professional, in the making of new and original contributions to the world's stores of profane speech.

Luck—The good play of your competitor and the bad play of yourself.

Driver—A contrivance consisting of a long, flexible shaft, at the end of which is affixed a wooden head of the thickness of that of a rural detective, designed to propel a golf ball into the nearest difficulty within reach at a single stroke, whereby the irritation of the player and the risibilities of the spectators may be materially enhanced.

Tee—An elevated bit of earth upon which golfers are expected to stand and make an exhibition of themselves for the delectation of passersby.

Ball—A small white object, sometimes spherical in shape, manufactured and sold in large quantities at a high price, for the purpose of being lost in long grass or on side bets at so much per hole, according to the sporting proclivities of the bettors.—Life.

ZULU ELEPHANTS ALL GONE.

Not One Left in the Land That Used to Be Their Paradise.

There is not a single elephant left in the whole of Zululand, a country that was once a veritable paradise for the ponderous animals. The last of them, once a mighty creature, was found dead some time ago on a farm on the banks of the Unfolozi river, where he had lived since the early part of the reign of the great Chief Cetewayo.

An immense herd once roamed the Dugugugu forest and along the Unfolozi, but it was diminished by incessant hunting until Cetewayo one day finally drove it away forever. The chief used to make medicine of certain portions of their bodies.

On the occasion referred to he organized a mighty drive in which two elephants were killed and many wounded. One of the latter turned and trampled one of his pursuers to a pulp. It was this animal, which was captured then, whose death marked the vanishing of the animals from the country. The remainder of the herd broke away, and thereafter none of them was seen again in Zululand.—New York Times.

Genuine Sardines.

Genuine sardines are the young of the pilchard. Their name comes from the fact that they are most numerous off the coast of Sardinia. They swim in the spring in shoals containing millions—fish shaped shoals ten miles long and a half mile wide. The sardines are netted and taken at once to the shore. There they are washed, scraped and sprinkled with salt. The salt is soon removed, the heads and gills cut off and there is another washing. Then, on beds of green brush, the fish are dried in the sun. Next they are boiled in olive oil till cooked thoroughly. The packers—women always—take them now and pack them in the tin boxes we all know, filling up each box with boiling oil, fitting on the lid and making the box air tight by soldering the joints together with a jet of hot steam.

THIS FISH IS A BUTCHER.

And He Carries His Saw In His Ugly Mouth at All Times.

Moral of this fish story is: The value of anything depends on how it is used. A safety match used to light a beacon lamp and another match used to set fire to a city have widely separated ranks in the realm of utility. On the same principle of values the sawfish belongs near the bottom rank in the ocean kingdom.

His saw, the presence of which you may have guessed already, consists of a long, beaklike mouth decorated with many sharp, firm spines. It varies in length with the size of the fish, some monsters twenty feet long carrying saws six feet long and a foot wide.

A saw, like a match, varies in value according to the way it is used. That's where the sawfish makes a fizzle of life. Think how much good he could accomplish by using his saw on harbors choked up with weeds, channels blocked with logs and lagoons crowded with trees and undergrowth.

Instead of a carpenter, a road builder, a farmer, the sawfish becomes a butcher. He swishes his saw this way and that quite recklessly and cuts up smaller fish into steaks and sausage; then he eats the pieces.

War and the Worker

TORONTO'S most important industry is the making of factory-made clothing for women, says Britton B. Cooke in The Canadian Courier. The materials alone for whitewear, dresses, and waists made in Toronto factories total over six million dollars a year. The wages amount to over four million dollars a year. What the labor situation is in that trade may be judged from this. A lad of eighteen walked into a garment factory office asking for a job. Experience? None. What wage would he expect to start at? Fourteen dollars a week! And he got it. Lads who had been three and four years with that firm were drawing less than that when they left to join the army. They commenced in the boom years of 1911-12-13 at nine dollars a week! But, even so, did the lad at fourteen a week remain? He worked two hours and then quit.

The "garment trade" has a special difficulty to meet. As everybody knows, the Hebrew is the world's neatest tailor. In Montreal and Toronto, five years ago, practically all the "operators" in the clothing factories were Jews. To-day the ratio stands about 80 per cent. Hebrew to 20 per cent. Gentile, and among "finishers" and "examiners" the proportion is "fifty-fifty." War frightens the gentle Jew. I do not think this should be taken as a reflection on his courage, for the Jewish race has often shown courage of a kind hard to find among Gentiles. But the Jew in America is a man without a country. His nation is his race, and though other races, such as the British, may fight as a single state, the Jew in Canada feels no call to interfere. Let him make "leddies suits" or uniforms for soldiers, let him sit crossed legged all day long in a foul workshop and he will be happy. But mention conscription! Or national registration! And the Jew scuttles across the border to New York. Thus the Canadian garment trade has been losing operators in considerable numbers.

Prohibition is another queer factor in the situation. A certain type of workman—not the best type—takes advantage of the scarcity of his kind, to register a protest against the abatement of his "rights." He enters the office of the employment agent—this type of labor is handled almost exclusively by agencies—and with great condescension intimates that he might be tempted to work if the agent has any dainty trifles like cutting cord-wood at a charcoal works, or lumbering at say three-fifty to four or five dollars a day.

The agent looks over his list.

"How about Muskoka?" he hints, delicately.

"Muskoka? Dahn't like Muskoka. Raw-t'n. Anythink doin' in Mawntreal?"

"Y-es. I can place you in Montreal, but——"

"Wages the syme?"

"Yes, but——"

"Gimme Montreal. Blawed if I'll work in a damned pro-bition country. Gimme Montreal."

Prohibition is chasing the booze artist out of the dry provinces. It may be a little hard on the employers, but in the end——? At all events, between enlistment and prohibition the lower grades of labor grow continually more coy of a job. Last year a good husky sawyer was glad to take 95 cents a cord for sawing wood at the chemical works (for charcoal). Bushmen were once made happy with $30 a month and board. Now they refuse $40 in a dry district. When immigration was heavy a farm hand expected from $20 to $25 a month on a six months' contract. With the falling off in immigration the price rose to $30 and $35. During this last season it touched fifty dollars. Competent carpenters who were once worth 30 cents an hour refuse to take less than 45 cents on contracts in their own home towns. On the train leaving London for Windsor recently I met a party of seventy-eight men—all carpenters—going down on a Windsor contract at fifty cents per hour. It sounded like old boomday talk in Vancouver.

Two things result from this temporary shortage of labor. One is the general slowing up of production. The other is the mad striving of the underdogs to get out from under, to get up—up—up! When you learn the facts and come to picture the situation in your own mind it is pathetic and yet heroic. For example, take Terence McGee, who was a teamster before the war broke out. Will Terence handle ribbons any more, or cluck to his sleek chestnut team as they plod through the mud outside the freight sheds? Terence will not. He is striving for an indoor job, an office job, a desk job if he can get it. And he does get them only to lose them again because Heaven didn't see fit to make him any brighter than a good teamster should be. So in the general turmoil of the labor market you will find these underdogs striving to raise themselves. Desperate, insistent, sometimes defiant. They want to get in out of the rain and wet. They hate splinters in the palms of the hands, and late hours and the smell of the horses sweating in the stables. They want—but most of all their wives who push them into it—to be gentlefolk. Lord save their honest, stupid faces. Their wives read the Ladies' Home Journal and crave the washed-out talcum-powdered elegance of "genteel" living. When there was no war the under-dogs didn't care. They didn't dare care. But now they struggle and struggle and most of them lose what promotions they do win, by reaching still too far till they try a job too big and fall down. It is a good sign and a bad sign all in one. It is good to see men and women ambitious. It is bad to be always discontented.

M. S. WILDER PURCHASES REMINGTON PAPER CO

Proposed Sale To New York World Falls Through—Price $1,500,000

WATERTOWN, N. Y., Oct. 17.—Mark S. Wilder, of this city, purchased the Remington Paper and Power Company, of which he has been the president, and the negotiations which have been in progress between company and officials of the Press Publishing Company, of New York, were brought to an end. Ralph Pulitzer, head of the Press Company, who, with his associates, has been in the city for the last two days expecting to buy the plants here left for New York. It had been reported two days ago the New York publishers had bought out the company.

It is believed Mr. Wilder will be practically sole owner of the Remington Company and its properties, the newsprint mills at Norwood, Norfolk and Raymondville. The price at which he will secure it is $1,500,000. The Press Publishing Company was prepared to pay approximately $1,200,000 for the week.

GIANT FLYING BOAT

Enormous Airship at Hammondsport Carries 12 People

BUFFALO, N.Y., Oct. 17.—An enormous flying boat, built after the lines of the America, rose from Lake Keuka at the flying field at Hammondsport this afternoon, with eleven passengers seated in the cabin. The pilot made the twelfth member of the party.

At five hundred feet the machine soared on the currents over the lake. The return trip was made with ease and the landing was remarkable for its accuracy.

The new flying boat, the largest that has ever been built, has a greater spread of wing than the America. It is not the tractor type. Pusher propellers are used. There are two propellers, each operated by an eight-cylinder motor of 200 horsepower.

THE PROHIBITION LAW

WHAT IS IT?

MAY CARRY BOOZE

According to an interpretation of a section of the new Ontario Temperance Act given by Crown Attorney Ritchie of Ottawa, in police court, there is nothing in the act which prevents a person carrying a quantity of liquor from a place where it is lawfully kept outside the province of Ontario to a place where it can lawfully be kept in Ontario. The only stipulation is that in transit the packages or vessels in which the liquor is sealed should not be broken or opened. Should they be opened in transit the person in whose possession they are found is liable to a fine of not less than $200.

This interpretation of the act was given during the trial of Robert Mouck who was arraigned on a charge of having liquor in his possession in the City of Ottawa in a place other than in a private dwelling. He was arrested on Somerset street in an intoxicated condition with a suitcase containing five bottles of liquor in his possession.

In court he said he got the liquor in Hull and was taking it to his home at Lavant, Ont. His wife, he said, used it as a medicine.

In dismissing the charge Magistrate Askwith stated that it is evident that under the act the accused was not guilty of any offence.

He was, however, fined $10 and $2 costs for being drunk on the street.

STORING LIQUOR

An important legal point in connection with the Ontario Temperance Act was brought up in the Police Court, Ottawa, when defending counsel in the case of the Russell Hotel, charged with having illegally stored a quantity of liquor on its premises, pleaded guilty to the charge, but denied the right of the presiding magistrate to issue an order for the confiscation of the liquor, on the grounds that there was no provision in the Act in this regard.

Defending counsel took the ground that only under the Section 68, of the Act,, where a conviction had been registered "for storing liquor on premises for sale" could an order for confiscation be granted.

These views were concurred in by counsel for the prosecution, who stated as far as he could see the premises of the defendants were correct. Magistrate Askwith reserved his decision.

Should the contention of defendants be upheld, $10,000 worth of liquor seized at the Russell House will be returned, and the Chateau Laurier, another hotel in Ottawa, will benefit to the extent of $5,000.

CASES OF VIOLATION OF THE LAW

WINDSOR, Oct. 17.—A fine of $200 and costs or three months in jail was the sentence imposed by Magistrate Legatt in the Police Court to-day on Ernest Thompson, a negro, caught with an unsealed bottle half filled with whiskey in his possession. He heard the sentence with empty pockets and much surprise.

William Ryan, trading as the Turner Company, of Toronto, was fined $20 and costs with the alternative of 10 days in jail in the Police Court on a charge of selling invalid port wine not sufficiently medicated.

Forty-two "drunks" were arraigned in the Police Court, Toronto, on the 16th inst., and the fines imposed upon them under the Ontario Temperance Act aggregated $546. Several of the intoxicated ones who were placed under arrest Sunday, had $5 added to their fines by Magistrate Denison, who declared that he was going to educate the toper to respect the Sabbath. Most of the prisoners stated that they had obtained the liquor from their own private supplies or those of a very good friend.

Since September 16, the day Ontario went dry, there have been 86 drunks dealt with in the Ottawa Police Court. The month previous to prohibition, dating from August 16 to September 16, there were 113 drunks dealt with

Although during the month since prohibition went into effect there were 27 drunks less in court than there was the month before, it is not assumed by the police that the number of drunks in this province is decreasing. The month before prohibition, was an exceptionally heavy month, as a good many "booze fighters" hit the pace pretty hard for a few weeks before September 16.

Prior to prohibition it was common for the number of drunks per month to run as low as 60 and 70.

When the auctioneer in Toronto, announced at the sale of unclaimed goods at the Customs yesterday, "Two cases of hard stuff," the crowd became extraordinarily interested. It immediately lapsed into apathy when the cases were found to contain barbed wire, and not liquor. In anticipation that unclaimed "hard stuff" was to be disposed of, there was a very large crowd on hand.

That at present is a difficult question to answer. The judges will have to put an interpretation upon many of its clauses, as cases are continually being brought before police and other magistrates for decision as to the extent to which liquor can be bought, sold or used. A few of the points raised and the results so far as magistrate decision goes, are of importance. A reproduction of many of them will be of interest to the general public, hence a few of them follows—

INVALID WINES

The Ontario License Board proposes to place upon the shoulders of druggists the responsibility of determining whether "invalid wines," sold as medicines, are really that or simply disguised beverages. Enquiries have come to the board as to whether particular brands are approved or not, but the commissioners have decided that they cannot lay down any set rule since the determination of the character of any invalid wine is not necessarily a matter of analysis, but is chiefly dependent upon the use made of it.

"Whether a particular brand contains sufficient medication to prevent its use as a beverage is a matter that to the ordinary officer or observer might be one of evidence."

NO BRANDY FOR PLUM PUDDING

After a careful perusal of the new Ontario temperance act, Mr. J. D. Flavelle, Chairman of the Provincial Board of License Commissioners, and Mr. Eudo Saunders, K. C., counsel for the department, have so ruled.

This phase of the working of the new act had not hitherto been called to the attention of those in charge of its administration. A prominent city baker of Toronto, waited on the board, and quite formally asked permission and authority to move certain stocks of brandy to his bakeshops for the purpose of continuing to flavor his pies, puddings, cakes and other special autumn and Christmas output. The baker had, he explained quite frankly, maintained his stock of brandies and wines hitherto used, but had been told by a friend that he would be well advised to secure a "permit" from the board. He anticipated that this would be granted as a matter of form.

Investigation followed. The act was reviewed. Decision was given that it prohibited anything of the kind.

Hotels and eating houses—even boarding houses—cannot serve pies, puddings or other delicacies flavored with brandy or other alcoholic extracts, nor can households follow a hitherto prevalent custom of having the bakeries prepare such eatables for the home table. In order to assure stimulating flavorings for the Christmas dinner table, the puddings and pies and sauces must all be prepared at home, cooked at home and eaten at home—and there must be no paying guests in the house or at the table.

Moreover candy shops and vendors of iced sweetmeats, chocolates and creams who have been wont to sell flavored bonbons of various kinds, are now up against a heavy fine if they dispose of any with alcoholic flavoring. The board has determined to strictly enforce the law in its evident interpretation.

ORDERING LIQUOR

The first case of receiving an order for liquor in Ontario contrary to the Prohibition Act was up in the Toronto Police Court.

The complainant stated that he went into McEvoy's store and asked for a bottle of Scotch at 85 cents. He was asked to sign an order, which he did. He paid 90 cents, which was the cost of the liquor, a money order and a stamp. He was given a letter containing a money order and asked to post it to the Distillers, Ltd., Montreal. In a few days the liquor was delivered to him by the Express.

"You paid for the liquor?" asked Colonel Denison.

"Yes," replied the officer,

"And you got it?"—"Yes."

Mr. Haverson argued that the complainant did not order from the accused but ordered the whiskey from the Montreal firm.

This brought the retort from the Colonel that this was just a little bit of a technicality which he had better take to another court. He would give him time to do so. You might get a judge that will see your point. I've seen them that'll see anything."

New Home Treatment for Banishing Hairs

(Beauty Topics)

With the aid of a delatone paste, it is an easy matter for any woman to remove every trace of hair or fuzz from face, neck and arms. Enough of the powdered delatone and water is mixed into a thick paste and spread on the hairy surface for about 2 minutes, then rubbed off and the skin washed. This completely removes the hair, but to avoid disappointment, get the delatone in an original package.

100 YEARS

and more, people with chest and throat troubles have tried to cure them by pouring cough syrups, lung tonics and the like into their stomachs. All a mistake! The Peps way is different.

Peps are tablets made up of Pine extracts and medicinal essences, which when put into the mouth turn into healing vapors. These are breathed down direct to the lungs, throat and bronchial tubes—not swallowed down to the stomach, which is nauseating. Try a 50c. box of Peps for your cold, your cough, bronchitis or asthma. All druggists and stores or Peps Co., Toronto, will supply

HER HUSBAND'S OFFICE

A Story For Wives Who Just Drop in During Business Hours.

"Will you please," asks a secret sufferer, "write something about wives who make unexpected calls at their husbands' offices? I am not guilty of anything, but I think that even the most innocent of men suffers acutely when his wife visits him at his office. There is no way for me to make my wife understand this unless I appear boorish and brutal. Can't you say something about it? Many wives read your column."

Yes, friend, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer. We will put it in the form of general propositions, hoping thereby to step on no individual toes. We hold these facts to be proved:

That no husband ever wants his wife to call on him at his office during business hours, except upon his invitation.

That no wife can know how she upsets his routine, disorders the mental processes that go on during those hours and subjects herself to the gossip of his office mates.

That there is no easy way to make a wife see this.

We proceed from these truisms to a few observations.

A lovely creature breezes into her husband's office just because she happens to be passing. She says:

"Now, don't let me disturb you a minute—I know you are busy. Dearie, what good does that desk light do you at that angle? Don't you know you will ruin your eyes? What a mess your desk is in! Look at Mr. Officemate's—how neat it is! Well, just let me stick this little package in your lower drawer and you bring it home with you when you come.

"Well, I must run along, for you're busy. Come out to the elevator with me, dear. I want to speak to you. Who is that disreputable looking man who is waiting in the outer office to see you? Why, it's a perfect disgrace to have such callers!

"You have an appointment with him? How can you make an appointment with such a creature? Well, goodby, dear. Get your shoes shined before you come home—you look awfully sloppy."

And if husband protests against that call her eyes fill with innocent tears and she says:

"Why, I wasn't there five minutes, and you weren't working at anything when I came in! And men call on you and stay half an hour! Of course I'll never come again. Are you ashamed of your wife?"

The Bethlehem Music Festival.

The Bach festival at Bethlehem is one of the most interesting events in musical production in this country. "Musically Bethlehem, Pa., is the most remarkable town or settlement in the United States." In 1780 Bethlehem had an orchestra, probably the first in the United States. In 1901 the Bethlehem music festival was marked by the first performance in America of Bach's complete Christmas oratorio. Bethlehem has been called "the American Oberammergau" and "the American Baireuth." The music festival is held each year.

Trebizond and Polo.

Polo probably came to us indirectly from Trebizond, where the Kabakmeidan, or Pumpkin square, was the site of a medieval polo ground. The game found great favor with the nobles of Trebizond and was played on horseback, much in the same way as modern polo. It produced intense excitement among the spectators, rivaling that of the hippodrome, possibly because it was dangerous as well as fashionable. Polo caused the death of one emperor of Trebizond—John I., who was killed by a fall from his horse.—Westminster Gazette.

The Result of a Drink.

Such a slight circumstance as a glass of wine changed the history of France for nearly twenty years. Louis Philippe, king of the French, had a son, the Duke of Orleans and heir to the throne, who always drank only a certain number of glasses of wine, because even one more made him tipsy. On a memorable morning he forgot to count the number of his glasses and took one more than usual. When entering his carriage he stumbled, frightening the horses and causing them to run. In attempting to leap from the carriage his head struck the pavement, and he soon died. That glass of wine overthrew the Orleans rule, confiscated their property of $100,000,000 and sent the whole family into exile.

TRAIL OF ANOTHER PLOT

Secret Explosive Storehouse Found in Maine

EAST MACHIAS, Maine, Oct. 17.—An explosion that shook this village about 4 a.m. Saturday, and was heavy enough to be heard for a distance of ten miles, revealed the fact that a building at the head of Navin, on the Machias River, had been used secretly as a storehouse for some powerful explosive. Efforts to ascertain the ownership of the explosive were unsuccessful. Reports that boats had been heard passing up the river during the heavy storm of Friday night and Saturday morning could not be confirmed.

The demolished building was owned by Carroll Deninson, of this village, and was used as a fish stand for a short time each year. The owner said he had not visited the place for several months, and that he had no knowledge that anything was stored there.

CAR STOLEN

Chief of Police Newton of Belleville, has received a communication from the Chief of Police, Toronto, asking the local police to be on the lookout for a Ford car, which was stolen in Toronto on Tuesday.

INFORMATION WANTED

Mary Perry, of Hamilton, has written Chief of Police Newton for information regarding her brother, Private Wm. Perry who enlisted with the 39th Battalion at Belleville and who has been reported killed. The information desired could be obtained from the Record Office at Ottawa.

OFFICERS OMITTED

In the report of the list of officers attached to the 155th battalion which was published in The Intelligencer yesterday these names were inadvertently omitted. They were Major W. J. Cook, Major R. Noble, and Capt. W. P. Allen. Major C. M. Wallbridge in the list should have read Major Fred Wallbridge. We regret that these names were omitted from Wednesday's list.

IN JAIL FOR THREATENING

A man named McConnell, whose home is in the Township of Carlow and Mayo, was yesterday brought to the county jail at Belleville. He had been by Police Magistrate Jarman at Bancroft, sentenced to serve three months in jail, for using insulting language and threatennig to do bodily harm to a Mr. Bronson of Mayo Township. He was also bound over to keep the peace in $400 securities, namely $200 in himself and one bondsman for $200.

BAKERS ORGANIZE

A meeting of the bakers in this district from Pickering to Napanee and Lindsay in the north was held at Port Hope on Tuesday afternoon and an organization was formed to be known as the Bay of Quinte Bread & Cake Manufacturers Association. The principal object of the meeting was for the bakers in this district to become better acquainted and have a friendly feeling towards each other. About the only business transacted was an agreement whereby merchants receiving bread from outside points must not offer it for sale at a lower price than is being asked by the local bakers. In other words, the outside baker wished to protect the local bakers. Another meeting is to be held later when reports will be received from the executive committee.

Formerly of Belleville

The following letter, which was received this morning, may prove of interest to our readers in and about Belleville:

221 Church Street,
Fredericton, Oct. 16.

Editor Intelligencer,
Belleville, Ont.

Dear Sir:—I am sending you word, which I would like you to publish in your paper. Major W. J. Osborne, of Fredericton, recently reported wounded, concussion, shell, not serious.

Major W. J. Osborne went overseas a year ago with the 55th Battalion, C.E.F. About three months ago he joined the 5th Canadian Mounted Rifles in France, located on the Somme.

Major Osborne is reported safe in an English Hospital. For several years he was an officer with the 15th Battalion, Belleville, before he removed to Fredericton, where he was prominent with the 71st Battalion. His son, Captain Hubert P. Osborne, is overseas with the 104th Battalion, C. E. F.

Signed,
Evelyn B. Osborne.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

"SEX AGAINST SEX" BEFORE BIG CROWD

This popular play was pleasingly presented before another large audience at Griffin's Opera House last night. Particuarly creditable among the cast shone Miss May A. Bell Marks, as Hazle Randolph; Frances Searth as Kittie Randolph; Nina Bruns as Elizabeth Jones; Lorne Elwin as Eugene Moore; Peter Craig as Lawrence Randolph; George Marks in the character of Sandy Mackey; Arthur Matthews as Edward Manchester; Richard Lester as Dr. Harry Bexter; E. S. Willard as Col. Howard Randolph; Mazie Marks in a quaint representation of Nora Randolph; the servant, portrayed by Ina Reddell, and Master Robert Marks as "Ned." The make-up in general was good, and the audience well pleased.

GEORGE BEBAN IN "PASQUALE" AT PALACE

No photoplay starring this popular actor has done higher credit to a brillian talent than last night's production, portraying as it did the patience and enduring friendship of his race. Disappointed in love, called to his country's needs, returning crippled, only to find those he had trusted untrue, were pathetic incidents. Even his friend of friends, to whom he told his sorrows, the white horse "Colombo", had been turned into a wreck. But Providence turned his way, and his deeds of love were not forgotten. Love returns, prosperity comes back, and that which he had most desired earlier in life was brought to his heart. Frank Daniels, in joining the army to avoid "alimony", was amusing to the last letter, there seemingly being no limit to his humorous situations. The entire programme will be reproduced this evening.

WHAT WILL PEOPLE SAY? AT PALACE TOMORROW

"What will People Say," was one of the most popular novels ever written by the brilliant author, Rupert Hughes, and the sale of it exceeded two million copies within the first four months after it was published. This popular book won fame because of the daring way it dealt with unusual and delicate subjects, and the role of Persis Cobat. The beautiful heroine was a striking one even when portrayed on the written page. Metro purchased the rights of picturization and the result has been a five-reel film of tremendous interest, starring the wonderful beautiful Mme. Petrova "The Sarah Bernhardt of Russia." "What will People Say?" in unquestionably as fine a film as the renowned "Vampire Star" has ever made. On the same program with the above offering the 4th whirl of the "Musty Suffer" comedy series will be exhibited along with the Pathe Gazette, which offers an interesting review of the important English and European events.

"WHEN DREAMS COME TRUE" AT GRIFFIN'S TUESDAY

"When Dreams Come True," a new musical comedy by Phillip Bartholomae, will come to Griffin's Opera House, next Tuesday night. Roy Pruette is at the head of the cast, enlisting the services of some of the best known names in musical comedy: Lorraine Lester, Connie Mac, Carman Ercelle, Anna Little, F. C. Palmer, Roy E. Butler, Harlan Briggs, Jill Woodward, Arthur Williams and others will be in the line up of principles, and a dainty demure chorus of dancing darlings will help to while away the evening for the "tired business man." The dancing numbers, of which there are nearly a score will be a feature of the entertainment.

"When Dreams Come True," has for its theme the adventures of a young man who has been living a gay life in Paris, forced to forsake the French capital, he starts home and falls in love with a young American girl on the voyage ashore, romance progresses running now and then into melodrama and farce, but ultimately culminating in the happy climax. The musical numbers are all composed by Silvio Hein, who has gained much fame as a composer of light opera. The gowning of the feminine contingent with "When Dreams Come True" is a feature that will be especially pleasing to the ladies.

THE GUEST OF QUESNAY

By Booth Tarkington

Copyright, 1908, by the McClure Company
Copyright, 1907, 1908, by the Ridgway Company

Keredec had told his tragic ward too little. The latter had understood but vaguely the nature of the catastrophe which overhung his return to France, and now that it was indeed concrete and definite the guardian was forced into fuller disclosures, every word making the anguish of the listener more intolerable. To him it seemed that he was being forced to suffer for the sins of another man.

"Do you think that you can make me believe I did this," he cried—"that I made life unbearable for her, drove her from me and took this hideous, painted old woman in her place? It's a lie! You can't make me believe such a monstrous lie as that! You can't! You can't!"

He threw himself violently upon the couch, face downward, shuddering from head to foot.

"My poor boy, it is the truth," said Keredec, kneeling beside him and putting a great arm across his shoulders. "It is what a thousand men are doing this night. Nothing is more common or more unexplainable—or more simple. In all the nations it is the same, wherever life has become artificial and the poor foolish young men have too much money and nothing to do. You do not understand it, but our friend here, and I, we understand because we remember what we have been seeing all our lives. You say it is not you who did such crazy, horrible things, and you are right. When this poor woman who is so painted and greasy first caught you, when you began to give your money and your time and your life to her, when she got you into this horrible marriage with her, you were blind—you went staggering in a bad dream. Your soul hid away, far down inside you, with its hands over its face. If it could have once stood straight, if the eyes of your body could have once been clean for it to look through, if you could have once been as you are today or as you were when you were a little child, you would have cry out with horror both of her and of yourself, as you do now, and you would have run away from her and from everything you had put in your life. But in your suffering you must rejoice. The triumph is that your mind hates that old life as greatly as your soul hates it. You are as good as if you had never been the wild fellow—yes, the wicked fellow—that you were. For a man who shakes off his sin is clean. He stands as pure as if he had never sinned."

The desperate young man on the couch answered only with the sobbing of a broken hearted child.

I came back to my pavilion after midnight, but I did not sleep, though I lay upon my bed until dawn. Then I went for a long, hard walk, breakfasted at Dives and begged a ride back to Mme. Brossard's in a peasant's cart which was going that way.

I found George Ward waiting for me on the little veranda of the pavilion, looking handsomer and more prosperously distinguished and distinguishedly prosperous and generally well conditioned than ever, as I told him.

"I have some news for you," he said after the hearty greeting—"an announcement, in fact. Elizabeth's going to marry Cresson Ingle."

"That is the news—the announcement—you spoke of?"

"Yes, that is it."

To save my life I could not have told at that moment what else I had expected or feared that he might say, but I certainly took a deep breath of relief. "I am very glad," I said. "It should be a happy alliance."

"On the whole, I think it will be," he returned thoughtfully. "Ingle's done his share of hard living, and I once had a notion"—he glanced smilingly at me—"well, I dare say you know my notion. But it is a good match for Elizabeth and not without advantages on many counts. You see, it's time I married, myself. She feels that very strongly, and I think her decision to accept Ingle is partly due to her wish to make all clear for a new mistress of my household."

He laughed again, but I did not, and, noting my silence, he turned upon me a more scrutinizing look than he had yet given me and said:

"You look quite haggard. You haven't been ill?"

"No; I've had a bad night. That's all."

"Oh, I heard something of a riotous scene taking place over here," he said. "One of the gardeners was talking about it to Elizabeth."

"What was it you heard?" I asked quickly.

"He said that there was great excitement at Mme. Brossard's because a strange woman had turned up and claimed an insane young man for her husband."

"Damnation!" I started from my chair. "Did Mrs. Harman hear this story?"

"Not last night, I'm certain. But what difference could it possibly make whether she heard it or not? She doesn't know these people surely?"

"She knows the man."

"This insane"—

"He is not insane," I interrupted. "He has lost the memory of his earlier life—lost it through an accident. You and I saw the accident."

"That's impossible," said George, frowning. "I never saw but one acci-

"That was the one. The man is Larrabee Harman."

George had struck a match to light a cigar, but the operation remained incomplete. He dropped the match upon the floor and set his foot upon it. "Well, tell me about it," he said.

"You haven't heard anything about him since the accident?"

"Only that he did eventually recover and was taken away from the hospital. I heard that his mind was impaired. Does Louise"—he began, stopped and cleared his throat. "Has Mrs. Harman heard that he is here?"

"Yes; she has seen him."

"Do you mean the scoundrel has been bothering her? Elizabeth didn't tell me of this."

"Your sister doesn't know," I said. "I think you ought to understand the whole case."

"Go ahead," he bade me.

"He's not at all what you think," I said. "There's an enormous difference, almost impossible to explain to you, but something you'd understand at once if you saw him."

"What is the change?" asked Ward, and his voice showed that he was greatly disquieted. "What is he like?"

"As well as I can tell you, he's like an odd but very engaging boy, with something pathetic about him quite splendidly handsome"—

"Oh, he had good looks to spare when I first knew him," George said bitterly.

"No. When he came here he did not know of her existence except in the vaguest way. But, to go back to that, I'd better tell you first that the woman we saw with him one day on the boulevard and who was in the accident with him"—

"La Mursiana, the dancer; I know."

"She had got him to go through a marriage with her."

"What?" Ward's eyes flashed as he shouted the word.

"It seems inexplicable; but, as I understand it, he was never quite sober at that time. He had begun to use drugs and was often in a half stupefied condition. As a matter of fact, the woman did what she pleased with him. There's no doubt about the validity of the marriage."

George asked suddenly, "Did this marriage take place in France?"

"Yes; you'd better hear me through," I remonstrated. "When he was taken from the hospital he was placed in charge of a Professor Keredec, a madman of whom you've probably heard."

"Madman? Why, no; he's a member of the institute, a psychologist or metaphysician, isn't he? At any rate, of considerable celebrity."

"Nevertheless," I insisted grimly, "as misty a vaporer as I ever saw; a poetic, self contradicting and inconsistent orator. Harman's aunt put him in Keredec's charge, and he was taken up into the Tyrol and virtually hidden for two years, the idea being literally to give him something like an education. Keredec's phrase is, 'restore mind to his soul!' It was as vital to get him out of his horrible wife's clutches. But she picked up that rat in the garden out yonder—he'd been some sort of stable manager for Harman once—and set him on the track."

"She wants money, of course."

"Yes; more money. A fair allowance has always been sent to her. Keredec has interviewed her notary, and she wants a settlement, naming a sum actually larger than the whole estate amounts to. She refuses to budge until this impossible settlement is made. In the meantime Keredec's ward is in so dreadful a state of horror and grief I am afraid it is possible that his mind may really give way."

"When was it that Louise saw him?"

"Ah, that," I said, "is where Keredec has been a poet and a dreamer indeed. It was his plan that they should meet."

"You mean he brought this wreck of Harman, these husks and shreds of a man, down here for Louise to see?" Ward cried incredulously. "Oh, monstrous!"

"There is something behind all this that you don't know," he said slowly. "When did Keredec make you his confidant?"

"Last night. Most of what I learned was as much a revelation to his victim as it was to me. Harman did not know till then that the lady he had been meeting has been his wife or that he had ever seen her before he came here. He had mistaken her name, and she did not enlighten him."

"Meeting?" said Ward harshly.

"They have been meeting every day, George."

"I won't believe it."

"It's true. He spoke to her in the woods one day; I was there and saw it. I know now that she knew him at once, and she ran away, but not in anger. They've been together every day since then, and I'm afraid—miserably afraid, Ward—that her old feeling for him has been revived."

I have heard Ward use an oath only two or three times in my life, and this was one of them.

"Oh, by ——!" he cried, starting to his feet. "I should like to meet Professor Keredec."

"I am at your service, my dear sir," said a deep voice from the veranda. And, opening the door, the professor walked into the room.

CHAPTER XII.

I SAID cavalierly: "This is Mr. Ward, Professor Keredec. He is Mrs. Harman's cousin and close friend. We were speaking of your reasons for bringing Mr. Harman to this place. Frankly, we were questioning your motives."

"My motives? I have wished to restore to two young people the paradise which they had lost."

Ward uttered an exclamation none the less violent because it was half suppressed.

"We should be glad of an explanation," he said, resting his arms on my table and leaning across it toward Keredec.

"It is simple," began the professor. "I learned my poor boy's history well from those who could tell me, from his papers—yes, and from the bundles of old time letters which were given me. From all these I learned what a beautiful soul was that lady who loved him so much that she ran away from her home for his sake. Helas! He was already the slave of what was bad and foolish; he had gone too far from himself, was overlaid with the habit of evil, and she could not save him then. The spirit was dying in him, although it was there, and it was good"—

"The inconceivable selfishness, the devilish brutality of it!" Ward's face was scarlet. "You didn't care how you sacrificed her!"—

"Sacrificed!" The professor suddenly released the huge volume of his voice. "Sacrificed!" he thundered. "If I could give him back to her as he is now it would be restoring to her all that she had loved in him, the real self of him! It would be the greatest gift in her life."

"Then, my dear Keredec," I answered, "either you are really insane or I am! You knew that this poor, unfortunate devil of a Harman was tied to that hyenic prowler yonder who means to fatten on him and will never release him; you knew that. Then why did you bring him down here to fall in love with a woman he can never have?"

"My dear fellow," interposed George quickly, "you underrate Professor Keredec's shrewdness. He knows that my cousin Louise never obtained a divorce from her husband."

"What?" I said, amazed.

"I say Mrs. Harman never obtained a divorce."

"I saw notices of it at the time," I gasped.

"No. What you saw was that she had made an application for divorce. Her family got her that far and then she revolted. The suit was dropped."

"It is true, indeed," said Keredec. "The poor boy was on the other side of the world, and he thought it was granted."

I turned upon him sharply. "You knew it?"

"It is a year that I have known it."

"Do you not understand," George interposed, "that what Professor Keredec risked for his 'poor boy' in returning to France was a trial on the charge of bigamy?"

The professor recoiled from the definite brutality.

"I conceive it very likely to happen," said George, "unless you get him out of the country before the lady now installed here as his wife discovers the truth."

"But she must not!" Keredec lifted both hands toward Ward appealingly. They trembled. "She cannot! There is nothing that could make her suspect it!"

"One particular thing would be my telling her," said Ward quietly.

"Never!" cried the professor. "You would not do that?"

"I will, unless you get him out of the country, and quickly."

"George!" I exclaimed, coming forward between them. "This won't do at all! You can't"—

"That's enough," he said, waving me back, and I saw that his hand was shaking, too, like Keredec's. His face had grown very white. "I know what you think," he went on, addressing me, "but you're wrong. It isn't for myself. When I sailed for New York I thought there was a chance that she would carry out the action she began four years ago and rid herself of him definitely—that is, I thought until today there was some hope for me. If she's seen him again and he's been anything except literally unbearable it's all over with me. From the first I never had a chance against him. He was a hard rival, even when he'd become only a cruel memory." His voice rose. "Heaven knows why it is. It isn't because of anything he's done or has—it's just because it's him, I suppose—but I know my chance is gone for good. That leaves me free to act for her. No one can accuse me of doing it for myself. And I swear she shan't go through that slough of despond again while I have breath in my body!"

"George, for pity's sake!" I shouted, throwing my arm about his shoulders, for his voice had risen to a pitch of excitement and fury that I feared must bring the whole place upon us. Some one was already knocking for admission.

I crossed the room and opened the door. Miss Elizabeth stood there, red faced and flustered, and behind her stood Mr. Cresson Ingle, who looked dubiously amused.

Miss Elizabeth cut short a rather embarrassed handshake which her betrothed and I exchanged.

"This morning I learned the true situation over here, and I'm afraid Louise has heard. At least she's not at Quesnay. I got into a panic for fear she had come here; but, thank heaven, she does not seem to— Good gracious! What's that?"

It was the discordant voice of Mariana la Mursiana. My door was still open. I turned to look and saw her, hot faced, tousle haired, insufficiently wrapped, striving to ascend the gallery steps, but valiantly opposed by Mme. Brossard.

Other Units of The Battalion Will Arrive Later—Will Remain in This City During The Winter—A Soldierly Lot of Men Rev. W. G. Clark is Chaplain

Nos. 1 and 2 Companies of the 235th Battalion which battalion will be quartered in Belleville this winter arrived at 1.30 this afternoon. The regimental band, the bugle band and the staff accompanied the men. In all about 350 came to the city and other companies which are doing recruiting work in this district will later on arrive here. The men are soldierly in appearance and marched well. They arrived here by a G. T. R. special and were conveyed down the city per the Grand Junction Railway and detrained at the market square. A number of citizens were present and the appearance of the men was favorably commented upon. Headed by the regimental band the men paraded to the barracks on Pinnacle Street, where they will be quartered. The officers in command of the battalion are as follows:

Lt.-Col. Schobell. commanding officer.

Major Dunlop, second in command.

NOTES

No. 3 Company is at present in Campbellford but will join those here in a few days.

The regimental band and the bugle bands are well filled up and discoursed good music.

Members of the battalion have two pets namely a fox and a very pretty pup.

Chaplain Rev. W. G Clarke was a former Pastor at the Tabernacle Methodist Church, Belleville

GALLANT CANADIAN WINS BACK RANK OF LIEUT.

Another Case Of a Man Who Came Back — Won The D. C. M.— Official Story Also Tells of The Heroic Self-sacrifice of a Private Soldier in The Battle of Courcelette

OTTAWA, Oct. 20.—Special.—An official despatch from Canadian Headquarters to Sir Sam Hughes contains the following:

The whole Canadian army has learned with sympathy and delight of the reinstatement of Lieut. O. B. Jones to his commissioned rank. Deprived by court-martial of his commission because of an act of intemperance while on duty, Lieut. Jones immediately enlisted as a private in a well-known Montreal battalion. He showed not only strict devotion to duty, but conspicuous gallantry upon several occasions. He became a Corporal, then won his Sergeant's stripes. He was awarded a D.C.M. for his reckless courage and again a bar for his medal. On September 15 he was in the thick of the fighting. It was said of him he was perpetually out killing Germans. His conduct was such as to recommend him for further reward. Later he was so severely wounded that it is improbable he will be again able to serve his country as a soldier, but he is now reinstated as an officer, and he has won back his honor.

No more beautiful act of heroic self-sacrifice can be mentioned than that of Private Camille Shoule of a Nova Scotia battalion. During the great advance on Courcelette of September 15, he was a stretcher-bearer, and while binding the wounded after the capture of the positions was himself severely wounded in the shoulder. His wounds were dressed, but he refused to be bivouacked, and continued his work of administering help to the wounded for the remainder of the day and during the night. In the morning he was again wounded, this time through the leg, but he still refused to leave. Finally about noon, while he was actually dressing the wounds of another man, this gallant, gentle soldier was shot through the heart and killed. His General has said of him: "Greater devotion to duty I have never seen."

Greek King Friend of Foe

"All Doubt is at an End," Says the Petit Parisien—Delegation Seeks Aid of States

PARIS, Oct. 18.—The French press is deeply impressed by King Constantine's order of the day to the crews of the Greek battleships taken over by the Allies. The Matin says: "King Constantine in a public speech affirms his antipathy to the Entente. . . . .... We must look the fact in the face and not allow ourselves to be deceived. Constantine is the friend of the enemy."

The Petit Parisien says: "All doubt is at an end. The King of Greece is against the Entente. The order of the day which the King caused to be read in his presence to officers and men of the Hellenic navy, expresses his intimate thoughts, his hostility to our cause and the tenacity of his sympathies for our adversaries."

The Greek Government yesterday gave out the following communication: "The chief of the Allied naval forces has advised the Government that for reasons of security (Entente) Allied troops have been obliged to proceed with measures for the control of all the police of the State for which detachments have been disembarked at Athens and at Pireaus for control of the police and as a protective measure."

The Greek Government further states that there is no evidence at present of any wider extension of the landing of Entente Allied troops.

SHELLING BY THE ENEMY

Allies Make Raids During The Night in Neighborhood of Loos

Canadian Press Special.

FRENCH FORCES TAKE FULL CONTROL OF CITY OF ATHENS

Canadian Press Special.

LONDON, Oct. 20.—Latest despatch from Athens concerning the situation there, is dated Wednesday night, and says: "Tonight it is evident the reservists are out of hand, for despite the fact that strong cavalry forces are escorting French and Greek marines, and soldiers spread about everywhere. the reservists assembled in groups have taken the law into their own hand and the Greek forces for the maintainance of order do not dispose them. The Chief of the French police control has informed the editors of the anti Venizelos press that beginning tomorrow the French will excercise newspaper censorship, and that newspapers printing anti-Entente articles run the risk of suspension.

Presbyterians In Organization of Anti-Disunionists

Opponents of Union Pledge Themselves to Maintain Presbyterian Church

TORONTO, Oct. 20.—Special—Having by resolution declared "our present duty is to maintain and continue the Presyterian Church in Canada," the members of that denomination who have been in conference for the past three days at St. Andrew's Church, King and Simcoe Streets, yesterday solemnly pledged themselves to perform that duty. By a standing vote they affirmed their intention to fight together against the proposal to join in organic union the Presbyterian, Methodist and Congregational Churches of the Dominion, and before they dispersed to their widely-separated homes affixed their signatures to a formal statement of their position. This statement or "solemn league and covenant," as it was called, will be circulated among the members of the Presbyterian Church throughout Canada. Having thus taken their stand, the members of the convocation proceeded to organize for the struggle that is before them. They formed themselves into "The Presbyterian Church Association, for the Continuance of the Presbyterian Church in Canada," which is to be composed of a central body with a subsidiary association in each of the nine provinces of the Dominion. They elected officers, provided a plan for financing the operations of the new organization, and took steps to secure subscriptions for the stock of the weekly paper which is to be established as the organ of those who are opposed to the merging of the Presbyterian Church in the proposed United Church of Canada. In the evening at a public meeting they installed the president of the Presbyterian Church Association, Rev. Principal Fraser, of the Montreal Theological College, in the chair. That gentleman proclaimed that he and his fellows in the fight about to be waged were to be considered not "anti-unionists," but "anti-disunionists."

Amsterdam Despatch Confirms Report That Undersea Merchantman is Lost

Canadian Press Special.

LONDON, Oct. 20.—An exchange telegraph from Amsterdam, says a telegram from Brema confirms the report that the commercial submarine Bremen is regarded as lost. Its expected difficulty will be experienced in obtaining crews for other commercial submarines. Sailing of Deutchland on another voyage across the Atlantic has been cancelled.

Wheat Famine Is Prophesied

Chicago Bakers Say Millers Shutting Down—Wants Embargo on Flour Export

CHICAGO,. Oct. 19.—The public is confronted with another increase in the price of bread, if wheat continues to advance, according to predictions to-day of leading bakers.

The 10 cent jump in the price of wheat in the last two days sent flour up 75 cents a barrel, which caused the big bakers to announce that in addition to the recent increases in the price of bread, they would have to make further advances unless something unforeseen lowers the price of flour. Bakers paid $9.50 a barrel wholesale for flour yesterday, the highest price in Chicago in twenty years.

"Unless an embargo on the exportation of flour and wheat is enforced," "there will be a wheat famine before spring. Even as the situation is now, small millers are shutting down their plants and filling their orders by buying from the Minneapolis mills."

Refused Equal Rights to Women

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 19.—Women were denied equal rights with men in two actions taken yesterday by the House of Bishops of the Protestant Episcopal general convention in session here. A proposal to permit women to sit as delegates in the general convention was rejected, while a request from the Rt. Rev. Logan H. Roots, Bishop of Hankow, to be allowed to permit women membership in his advisory council was denied. The House suggested to the Bishop of Hankow, it was stated, that he might create an auxiliary council of women.

The proposal to give women equal rights with men in the convention was sponsored by Robert H. Gardiner of Gardiner, Maine.

A similar resolution is now on the calendar of the House of Deputies and it was pointed out yesterday's action in the Upper House does not preclude it being discussed in the Lower body. Since concurrence of the two Houses is necessary in the event the House of Deputies should approve the proposal, it will go to the House of Bishops for reconsideration.

FOUND DEAD IN STORE

Discouraged by Falling Business Man Shoots Himself

TORONTO, Oct. 19.—Discouraged over the falling off in his cigar business, Charles Rogerson, aged 50, of 232 Adelaide street west, fatally shot himself last evening. He was found dead on the floor of his store by a customer, Mr. H. A. Brooks, 68 Arthur street. A revolver which lay beside him and a bullet hole in his temple told the tale of what had been enacted.

"The world is too hard for me," read a note which he left telling that he had shot himself.

FOREVER EXCLUDED

LONDON, Oct. 20—Special—The House of Commons this evening passed the second reading of the Rhodes estate bill, which would exclude Germans henceforth from enjoying scholarships at Oxford University under the Cecil Rhodes trust fund.

HUNS RETAKE FROM BRITISH

Trenches Recently Captured Reoccupied by The Enemy

Canadian Press Special.

BERLIN, Oct. 20.—By wireless—A greater part of the trenches on the road between Eaucourt Labbaye and Le Harque, which were captured by the British on Wednesday, were retaken yesterday by German troops, according to an official statement issued to-day at German Army Headquarters.

Russians Push Ahead in Caucasus

Steady Advance Along Coast West of Tribizond

LONDON, Oct. 20.—Special.—A review of the Russian operations in the Caucasus shows that since September 9th the Russians have pushed steadily forward along the coast west of Trebizond. A succession of Russian attacks forced the Turks to yield one position after another and to retire toward the seaport of Tireboli. The first step of the Russian advance carried them west of Elevu, and after a week's halt this attack was followed by another, which, with the assistance of the fleet, captured the enemy's positions on the River Karabansu. In this region a three-days' battle occurred, ending in the Turkish loss of the fortification, Petrakolai. On October 9 the Russians followed up their successes, driving the Turks from a mountain range west of Petrakolai. According to the latest information Russian artillery is successfully bombarding Petrakolai.

SPEAKER RESIGNS SEAT

REGINA, Sask., Oct. 20—Special—Honorable J. A. Sheppard, Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, has resigned his seat in the Legislature as a member for Moose Jaw County as a result of the findings of the Brown-Elwood Royal Commission on two of the charges made against him. In resigning his seat Mr. Sheppard calls on the Government to make provision for holding a by-election in Moose Jaw County in order that he may. by contesting an election, ascertain from his former constituents whether or not it is their opinion that he should retire from public life.

CANADIAN AUTHOR PASSES SUDDENLY AWAY

BUFFALO, Oct., 20 — Special—Norman Duncan, the well-known author and educator, who was born July 2, 1871, in Brantford, Ont., and was graduated from the University of Toronto, died suddenly late on Wednesday while playing golf with several friends at the Willow-Brook Country Club, Fredonia, N. Y. He dropped on the links and died shortly after being carried inside the club house.

Two months ago he came to Fredonia from his home in Willoughby. Ohio, to visit a brother, Dr. Ernest Duncan.

WILL ASK FOR PEACE BEFORE THE ALLIES QUIT

No Geographical Objective as Yet in View—Pressure on Enemy The Main Point—Gratifying Evidence of German Defeat is Redistributing of Troops Along Somme River

LONDON, Oct. 20.—Special—The terrific strain to which German resources are being put on the Somme is the chief aim of the allied drive, says General F. B. Maurice, Director of Military Operations:

"We have no particular geographical objective," declared Gen. Maurice. "It matters little whether we take a place like Peronne, which is now nothing more than a geographical term Our object is to sustain an unremitting pressure upon them. If they dare to take the risk of transferring men from the west to other fronts, then we are likely to break through, an outcome for which we are entirely prepared. We hope for this, but we scarcely expect the Germans to lessen up here, knowing the importance they attach to the west.

"Even if merely the present state of affairs continues, we know we are wearing the Germans out, merely from the way they are having to chop and change their divisions on the front line. The best example of this is the moral collapse of the troops opposing us in the great assault of September 26. Several times previously these men had put up a great fight, but this time they caved in.

"Moreover, the diminution in the vigor of the German counter-attacks during the last two months is exceedingly remarkable. Furthermore, the Somme fighting undoubtedly is holding up the German attack on Roumania. If the Roumanians are properly led we see no reason to doubt that they will repel all enemy attacks.

War Quickening French Citizens

PARIS, Oct. 19.—The remoulding of French political methods after the war, resulting in a concentration of government, is predicted by Premier Briand, according to a conversation the Premier has had with friends, which is recapitulated in The Figaro by Alfred Capus, the dramatist and member of the French Academy. M. Capus quotes the Premier as saying:

"I do not pretend to do more than sketch the main outline. As the result of lessons which it cannot escape I believe our country will resume instinctively the notion of direct counsel and authority. There will be this difference, that, while under past regimes this authority was imposed upon it historically and by custom, today it is the country itself which demands it from its elected representatives, as well as a more firm and concentrated direction of its business.

"You understand I am not speaking for myself. I am thinking of the next group of politicians who will be in power. They are bound to come on the scene with a fresh outlook, and, unless bound by opinions and doctrine, will submit themselves more easily to experiment. Our present political methods are not at all damaged by the war. They simply require to be revised, remoulded and readapted. I am convinced, for example, that the spirit born of the war is about to clash with the spirit of parochialism, and that it will break it. There will be substituted the notion of public welfare, which has been lost in what one might call the pulverization of efforts. What will be wanted will be the concentration of efforts in the general interest.

In my opinion the need of to-morrow is to concentrate instead of disperse, and you cannot imagine with what good-will universal suffrage will accept these principles. I believe it is ready to do so now. The war has put it in a state of receptivity, and it remains only to speak to it clearly and frankly and to awaken it to a realization of its own condition."

Speaking of the actual situation Premier Briand said:

I simply ask you to consider what has already been gained, and what no hazard of war can take from us. Compare what France and Paris were in July, 1914, with what they are in October, 1916. The truth is that we were not decadent, but that a new generation had sprung up, more sensible, perhaps, to reminders of defeat, more nervous, more impatient, than those who had preceded it. German insolence had contributed a great deal to this state of mind. And as one, nevertheless, dared not to think of war, there resulted a continual conflict between exalted imaginations and humdrum routine politics. It was a kind of moral confusion which manifested itself by an acute need for distraction, by a violent desire for the new, the unexpected.

"No, again, it was not decadence, it was rather anger driven inward—the old insult revived bluntly in the mind by incessant provocation. And then we felt that the world did not appreciate us at our just valuation, and that irritated and hurt us.

"A nation seen from without has a general aspect to which all its citizens contribute. It is that aspect which a foreigner sees and upon which he forms his opinion. Well, our aspect was not in our favor, and that was because it was not truly ours. It was distorted by an old defeat, and the truth is that the day that defeat was wiped out, when France showed by unheard-of heroism that she meant to throw off the obsession, on that day suddenly all peoples by common agreement recognized their error as regards us, and the prestige of France has become again extraordinary—greater than it has ever been at any epoch.

"In regaining our individuality as a nation we have reconquered at a blow all our influence, all our attraction. That is what we have gained, and nothing can affect it. That is the moral work accomplished in these two years, not to speak of the rest. The consequences? Incalculable. They will affect all of us, our advantages as citizens as much as our individual prosperity. They will affect labor, commerce, the arts of luxury.

Belleville Lady on Board Ill Fated Steamer

Mrs S. J. Faulkner and Two Small Children Among The Passengers—All Saved

Mrs. S. J. Faulkiner and two children, who are known to a number of Bellevillians, were upon the Cunard steamer Alaunia, which was sunk in the English Channel yesterday morning as the result of striking a mine. Mrs. Faulkiner was the wife of Sergt.-Major Faulkiner, who is at present at the front, and who for some time was physical instructor at the Belleville Y.M.C.A. He relinquished his duties some months ago and enlisted with a battery. He took a course to qualify as an officer. Mrs. Faulkiner and children were enroute to take up their residence in England. A despatch today states that only two lives were lost by the sinking of the vessel. The survivors were all safely landed at Falmouth, England.

WILLIAM M. MARTIN, M. P., NOW HEAD OF SASKATCHEWAN GOVT.

REGINA, Sask., Oct. 20.—Special—William Melville Martin, M.P. for Regina, upon invitation of Lieut. Governor Lake, yesterday morning accepted the responsibility of forming the new Government for Saskatchewan. In the afternoon Mr. Martin again saw the Governor and submitted his Cabinet slate, which was duly approved as follows:

Premier and Minister of Education—Hon. W. M. Martin.

President of Council and Minister of Railways—Hon. J. A. Calder.

Minister of Agriculture—Hon. W. R. Motherwell.

Attorney-General and Provincial Secretary—Hon. W. F. A. Turgeon.

Minister of Public Works—Hon. A. P. McNab.

Ministers of Telephones—Hon. G. A. Bell.

Minister of Municipal Affairs—Hon. Geo. Langley.

Provincial Treasurer—Hon. Charles A. Dunning.

The members of the new Government were sworn in to-day.

Answered His Last Summons

Private William James Rawlingson Called by Death — Wounded and Gassed at Langemarck

Private William James Rawlingson, of Belleville, who answered his country's call in the time of trouble, has answered the final summons. He passed away this morning at 2 o'clock at his late residence Front Street, after being ill for some time. Deceased was well and favorably known in this city. While only 37 years of age he had seen considerably active warfare and was ever ready to do his duty. He was born at South Brackley, England, and when a young man enlisted in the British army. He was on active service for some time in the north west Provinces of Bengal, serving under the late lamented Lord Kitchener. Private Rawlingson was one of the first to respond when the call came to Canada from the Motherland. He enlisted as a member of the 15th Battalion, A.L.I. and left here on August 14th 1914 with the 2nd Battalion, and was under command of Capt E. D. O' Flynn. In the terrible battle of Langemarck he was not only wounded but gassed. He received a severe scalp wound from a bullet. After being in the hospital for some time he was invalided back to Belleville where he has since resided. Deceased was married here and his widow but no family survive. His mother, four brothers and one sister are living. Two brothers are at present in the trenches, one is at the Dardanelles, and the fourth is in the General Post Office, in London, England. The mother and unmarried sister reside in England. Private Rawlingson bore the scar of a wound he received whilst on duty in India. He certainly did his bit and the reward of the faithful will be his.

Authorized The Transfer of Military Band

155th Organization Thirty Players Strong, Go to Peterborough—Brig. Gen. Hemming Impressed With Possibilities

(Peterborough Review)

Brigadier-Gen. Hemming must have been very favorably impressed with the possibilities for recruiting the 247th Battalion, and he is doing everything in his power to get the young men of the county interested. Lieut.-Col. Johnston received word from headquarters that the band of the 155th Battalion, about 30 strong, would be transferred to the local unit and that they would arrive in Peterborough on the 8.55 train to-night.

Yesterday five recruits were added to the strength of the 247th, and more were awiting to pass the medical examination and be attested.

There seems to be a more confident air around the armories since the visit of the District officers.

Lieut.-Col. Johnston got back from Ottawa last night, where he was interviewing the Department.

On To Apsley

Apsley will be the objective point of a number of recruiters next Wednesday evening. A meeting will be held in the town hall, at which Capt. Cleghorn, Mr. D. O'Connell and others will deliver addresses. Capt. Cleghorn will remain north for a month.

Recruiting stations for the 247th have been established in Bancroft, Madoc, Marmora, Coe Hill and Havelock.

The Commanding Officer will be glad to receive the names of any one who desires to billet soldiers.

Five Recruits

The following are the men who enlisted yesterday and have been attested:

Pte. Jas. A. Faulkner, Coboconk Pte. S. A. Boyd, Peterborough; Pte. W. L. Blackwell, Peterborough; Pte. Chas. Deline, Peterborough; Pte. G. L. Spencer, Hall's Glen.

NOTES FROM BANCROFT

(From The Times)

Three bears were seen on the Eagle's Nest on Sunday last.

Messr. Jas. Hurst and Sandy Burrows of Belleville, were in town this week.

Mr. J. H. Foley has received word that a third son has been seriously wounded in France.

While playing with some companions on Sunday last, a young son of Mr. John Boomhour of Cardiff, fell and broke his leg. Dr. Embury reduced the fracture.

Frank Lavalley took some fish from Baptiste Lake in a manner not prescribed by law, and it cost him something over $29 in the police court last week. The net was confiscated. This should serve as a warning to others who are in the same boat as Lavalley, but have so far managed to escape the vigilant eye of the fishery overseer.

said a well educated man the other day when he was asked this question:—"Why, when you have a cold, a cough or bronchitis (troubles, you will note, of throat and chest) do you persist in pouring cough syrups, lung tonics and the like into your stomach, which is perfectly sound?"

Ever think of it? The stomach and the lungs are not connected, otherwise food swallowed would choke you. Lung and throat troubles were never yet cured by dosing the stomach. To cure coughs, colds and bronchitis, you must breathe the cure. Peps provide the rational treatment for these ailments. Peps are tablets made up of pine extracts and medicinal essences, which when put into the mouth turn into healing vapors. These are breathed down direct to the lungs, throat and bronchial tubes—not swallowed down to the stomach, which is not ailing. Try a 50c. box of Peps for your cold, your cough, bronchitis or asthma. All druggists and stores or Peps Co., Toronto, will supply

MADAME PETROVA AT PALACE THEATRE TONIGHT

The feature offering at The Palace Theatre to-night and Saturday matinee and night, will be Mme. Petrova, the popular stage and screen star, in "What Will People Say?" a five part Metro feature, produced by Popular Play and Players. The story on which the picture is based, was written by Rupert Hughes, one of America's foremost playwrights and novelists, and is especially fitted for the gifted emotional actress who is starred. Mme. Petrova is surrounded by a strong supporting cast in "What Will People Say?" including Frank De Lint, Fannie Fraunholz, Charles Dungan, Jean Thomas, Elemore Sutter and other prominent artists. The production is mounted on an elaborate scale, in keeping with the standard of Metro photoplays. On the same programme with the above offering the 4th whirl of the "Musty Suffer" comedy series will be exhibited along with the Pathe Gazette, which offers a 15 minute review of important English and European events.

MARKS CO. PRESENTS "PAID IN FULL"

Griffin's Opera House was well-filled last evening. The Marks Co. presented "Paid In Full," which was a success, and pleasing to the audience that was present. May A. Bell Marks played the role of Emma Brooks, wife of Joe Brooks (Richard Lester), the defaulting clerk, employed by Captain Williams (Arthur Matthews) and the role of Jimsie Smith, another employee of Williams', was ably personated by Lorne Elwin, to whom goes the credit of fun-maker throughout the play. Mrs. Harris and Beth Harris, mother and sister of Emma Brooks, were admirably taken by Miss Nina Bruns and Francis Scarth, respectively. On the whole the play was a clever adaptation from the book of the same name, the principal lines being brought out strongly by May A. Bell Marks.

This evening the company will present "Tess of the Storm Country."

"WHEN DREAMS COME TRUE" COMES TO GRIFFIN'S OPERA HOUSE, BELLEVILLE NEXT TUESDAY.

"When Dreams Come True" which will be seen at Griffin's opera house, Belleville, next Tuesday night is heralded as a dainty musical comedy of youth.

Philip Barthalomae, who is responsible for the book and lyrics, is the apostle of youth on the American stage; and his success has confirmed him in the belief that he is wise, in this he has found many who agree with him, because the characteristics of youth are pleasing

"When Dreams Come True" is built around a tangible plot, but it is not a plot so aggressively brought forward that it interrupts one's pleasure in the many songs and dances, and the fun that surrounds it. It seems hardly necessary to describe the plot here, more than to say that it is sufficient for the purpose, and carries one through a series of entanglements and solutions flimsy enough to satisfy the tiredest man. In the course of its working out, much melodious music is heard, heard, while the principals and chorus are engaged in agreeable dancing numbers as well.

The music is by Silvio Hein, and is melodious and pleasing. Among the many hits that should linger in the memory are "Dear World," "When Dreams Come True," "Love is Such a Funny Little Feeling," "The Town That Grows Where the Hudson Flows" and many others.

The company is perfect in every particular, while there is no particular star to feature; the scenery is adequate in every way, and the costuming equisite.

Two Germans Were Defrauders

Posed as Rev. Billie Sunday and Pastor Russal—Told Plans to Toronto Detective

(Toronto World, Oct. 19)

"Business man wanted. Apply the Rev. Billie Sunday, St. Patrick street."

The foregoing advertisement which appeared in a local evening paper yesterday, induced Detectives Nursey and Taylor to pay a visit to a house on St. Patrick St. last night in the guise of business men out of jobs. The detectives got the jobs, also two men styling themselves, respectively as "Pastor Russell" who prays for the sick of the Millenium Dawn Church." and the "Rev. Billie Sunday, the famous Evangilist," on a charge of vagrancy.

Schletter has a slight resemblance to Pastor Russell, of Millenium Dawn fame, while Schrader is a speaking likeness of the late Oom Paul Kruger, one time president of Transvaal.

Representing himself as an applicant for the position offered, Detective Nursey visited the house on St. Patrick Street, and was ushered into the presence of the "pastor" and his colleague both of whom were clad in long flowing gowns, something like bathrobes and decorated with large crosses.

"Welcome, Brother Nursey!" was the greeting extended to the detective, after which business was broached.

The scheme outlined to Detective Nursey was to the effect that he should arrange for hall accommodation in which to hold "faith" meetings, and at which the "healers" should exhibit their skill in this respect. Further, Mr. Nursey would be required to finance the undertaking out of the funds collected at the meetings, after which two-thirds of the profits would go to him, the remaining third to the "rev." gentlemen.

When the business was concluded, "Pastor Russell" handed the detective a bundle of cards bearing the following names:

PASTOR RUSSAL
who Prays for the Sick
of the
Millenum Dawn Church
Rev. BILLIE SUNDAY
The Famous Evangelist

These cards were printed in the city and were to be spread broad cast by the business manager of the concern.

In two grips carried by the men the detective found a bundle of literature dealing with their operations as "faith healers" in the United States. These were in the form of testimonials to their skill, and were extracted from a paper edited and printed by themselves. In Schrader's baggage was found a revolver and a box of cartridges and a number of bottles of quack medicines. In Schletter's grip was a lump of rock containing iron pyrites, which the men stated was a sample of buried treasure taken from a mine in South America. The manager of the mine had the plan, Schletter said, and was at present in Montreal. Contained in the bags were also a number of letters written in German which have been submitted to the proper authorities for translation. Schletter also stated to "Business Manager" Nursey that they expected to leave Canada in about a month for England, France Germany and other belligerent countries, there to take up the work of healing the sick and the wounded by faith.

When arrested Schletter and Schrader were most indignant, and declared they were the real "Pastor Russell" and "Billy Sunday." They claimed that they had over 8,000 converts in the United States.

ANAEMIC PEOPLE

Need More Iron in the Blood

If you are anaemic, you need more iron in your blood, and the tell-tale symptoms are a pale face—colorless lips, ashen finger nails, poor circulation and short breath, and more serious diseases are easily contracted when in this condition

M. L. Trotter, of Toronto, Ont., says: "For nearly three years I suffered from anaemia, and doctored most of that time, but did not gain as I would like to. I had no ambition for anything and was afraid to go out alone as I had such dizzy spells and would almost fall on the street. My mother wanted me to try Vinol and three bottles built me so I felt like a new creature, and I am gladly recommending Vinol to others because of the good it has done me."

The bad effects of poor, devitalized blood cannot be overestimated, and it is the beef and cod liver peptones, iron and manganese peptonates and glycerophosphates contained in Vinol that enriches the blood, improves the circulation and in this manner builds up health and strength. ## A GOOD WAY TO PREVENT BALDNESS

Says This Recipe Will Often Grow New Hair in Two Weeks' Time

Most men take baldness as something inevitable though why it passes understanding. There is no more reason why hair should cease to grow on the top of the head than on the sides of the face—and most men have to shave to the end of their days or wear a beard.

If your hair is growing gray or getting thin in patches and you find great quantities of it in your brush and comb, the following recipe for a good home made hair tonic can be strongly recommended. Get from any druggist 2 oz. of Lavona de Composee and 6 oz. of pure Bay-rum. Mix together, adding one-half drachm of Menthol Crystals and a little perfume if you desire it. This mixture should be allowed to stand over night, when it is ready for use.

This preparation will in almost every instance stop falling hair within two or three days and numerous instances have been reported in which it has been the cause of new hair growth after years of partial baldness. It is quite important in using the prescription to apply the tonic directly on the scalp, rubbing briskly into the pores with the finger tips so that the hair roots can absorb its full nourishment. While the preparation contains no coloring matter and will not make the hair greasy or sticky, it often will restore hair to its natural color by its revitalizing action on the hair roots.

A TAX CASE

The City of Ottawa is to test its right to tax the income of Railway Commissioners. Mr. Davey Scott, one of the Dominion Railway Commissioners, refused to pay the income tax upon the salary paid to him for services as such Commissioner. This contention was sustained by the Court of Revision, and is to be appealed by the city. The report says:—

> Mr. Scott was the only member of the Railway Commission to appeal to the court against the assessment, and the ruling of the court was that he was a civil servant, and, therefore, exempt under the agreement between the city and the government which exempts civil servants.
>
> The city solicitor argued that railways commissioners were not civil servants, and when the assessment department asked the board of control today to rule as to whether or not the city should attempt to collect income taxes from other railway commissioners and cabinet ministers, the solicitor advised that an appeal be taken before the county judge.
>
> Mayor Porter was the only member of the board of control to object to the solicitor's advice. He remarked significantly that the assessment department would likely abide by the ruling of the board. However, the board agreed to let the city solicitor prosecute an appeal.
>
> An interesting point in the case is that county judges are assessed on income for the first time this year, and County Judge Gunn has appealed against his assessment. Cabinet ministers, railway commissioners and judges, the city solicitor claims, are not civil servants. Thus, the county judge who hears the appeal will be sitting on a case that may affect his own taxation.

Most people will ask the question, why should Judges and Civil Servants, who are well paid for the services rendered, be exempt from paying income taxes while the hard working man and woman, who has but a small income, be subject to taxation. If the Judges decide that Davey Scott's income is not taxable, the sooner the law is amended in this particular the better. Judges and other officials, who are now exempt, receive the same protection and priviledges as other citizens, and should assist as other less favored ones do in the Government of cities, towns etc.

LAURIER TO SUPPORT THE OUTLAW SCHOOLS

How do Liberals Like It?

On the 15 inst, at a public meeting in Ottawa, he endorsed the action of the bi-lingual agitators, who are defying the law of the Ontario Government in appointing a commission to govern the Ottawa separate schools.

A concert was held in the Centre Theatre to raise funds to pay the caretakers in the outlaw schools. Sir Wilfrid Laurier presided, and introduced Abbe Grouix, of Montreal, who lectured on the subject of "Education and Patriotism."

The speaker expressed his entire sympathy with the aims of the meeting, which he stated was to help in supplying coal and wood which was needed for the bi-lingual schools. He referred to the distressing fight which was being waged in connection with the bi-lingual schools in the Province of Ontario and expressed the belief that bi-lingual schools where the coming generation could be versed in both the English and French languages, were of vital interest to the progress of the country. He stated that while all French-Canadians were willing and glad to speak the English language they demanded the right, granted to them by constitution, to have their children educated in their maternal tongue.

YOU CAN'T

cure skin troubles by applying ointment to the surface skin. You must reach the underlying tissues where the disease has its roots. Ordinary ointments cannot do this, and that is why the relief they give is only temporary.

Zam-Buk, on the contrary, has such power of penetration, combined with unusual germ-destroying properties, that it reaches and destroys all germs in the underlying tissues. Then the healing essences promote the growth of new flesh, which gradually develops until the diseased patch is entirely replaced by new, healthy tissue, and a complete and permanent cure is effected.

Zam-Buk is best for eczema, and all skin troubles, ringworm, ulcers, abscesses, salt rheum, chronic sores, blood-poisoning, boils, piles, cuts, burns, scalds and all skin injuries. All druggists, or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, 50c. box, 3 for $1.25.

ZAM-BUK

Sir Wilfrid expressed the opinion that the bi-lingual cause would triumph because it was based on justice, and said that if it did it would work no harm to other people. The Liberal Leader was of the opinion that no judgment of the Privy Council would be favorable to the French-Canadians, but if it were, very probably constitutional amendments would be sought to overcome its effects.

The ignorant, who know no better, would, on reading the utterances of Father Grouix, and Sir Wilfrid, come to the conclusion, that in Ontario, the French language is tabooded and not permitted to be taught. No one knows better than Sir Wilfrid that is not correct, but he hesitates not to convey the impression that it is. The whole bi-lingual agitation is based upon falsehood, and Sir Wilfrid knows it.

NO ELECTION

The opposition cry about an election in December next is father to the wish of those who are out office, and fancy the present moment is the time to secure it.

From all that can be learned in Ottawa, and from interviews with Ministers of the Crown, there does not appear to be the slightest thought on the part of the Government to precipate an election. The life of the present Parliament having been extended for a year, owing to the war, it would be an act of folly to dissolve Parliament at the present time. Whether a further extension of the life of Parliament will be asked, is doubtful, That question, nor the holding of an early election, has not, says Ministers, been considered.

An interview with the Hon. Robt. Rodgers by a Globe Reporter the other day, sets the question of an early election at rest. The Reporter says:—

> That the date for opening the next session of the Federal aPrliament has been fixed for some time in January, and that in the meantime a general election or a coalition Government is not and will not be considered by the authorities at the capital, was the statement made to The Globe last night by the Hon. Robert Rogers, Minister of Public Works, when interviewed at the King Edward Hotel.

A GROUP OF NATIONALISTS

At a meeting of the electors, held lately in the County of Beaubarnois, Quebec, the Hon. E. L. Patenaude, Minister of Inland Revenue, dwelt at considerable length on the pretensions of the Nationalist group in the Province. The sincerity and ability of the Minister of Inland Revenue is evident in his vigorous comment upon the policy of non-intervention by Canada in the present war.

"There is a group of Nationalists in this Province," he said, "who contend that we in Quebec have no right to take part in the war." Mr. Patenaude proceeded to quote from Mr. Henri Bourassa's pamplet, "Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow," these words. "Here in Canada there is being forged around our necks a militarism unparalleled in any civilized country, a depraved and undisciplined soldiery, an armed rowdyism, without faith or law, and as refractory to the influence of individual honor as to their officers of parade and patronage."

"I am ashamed," continued the minister, "and we all should be ashamed that any French-Canadian should write such an insulting attack upon the 400,000 men composing the glorious Canadian army, fighting for the liberty of the world and laying down their lives for native land and Empire. These men will return covered with glory, and they will take the first place in the confidence and the affection of this Dominion, while the man who penned these insults will sink to that level which he so richly merits. It would be unworthy to let such a base insult go unchallenged while these heroes are giving their best blood for their country and for the British flag." Such are Laurier's friends and supporters.

Current Comment

The trouble with W. F. Maclean, who wants a new party, is that the lone recruit he has enlisted is likely to quarrel with him over the question of leadership.

Bishop O'Brien, in announcing in St. Peter's Cathedral recently that five priests of Ontario dioceses were wanted for chaplain service overseas, said that though priests for home parochial work were badly needed, priests would be sent to the front even if some churches would have to be closed.

Sir Robert Borden may undertake a brief tour of Ontario in the near future. No arrangements have been made as much depends whether the Prime Minister's administrative duties in Ottawa in connection with the war, will permit him to make the trip. The visit, if made, will, of course, be non-political.

It is stated on good authority that the Alberta Legislature will be dissolved and a general election held before Christmas. The last election was held in 1912. According to the advices received here there is no reason to doubt that the Sifton Government will be returned again probably with a considerably increased majority.

The Winnipeg Tribune in a leading editorial, suggests in the strongest terms that Col. George H. Ham, of Montreal, be included in the next King's birthday honors for knighthood. The paper says that if the newspapers of Canada back up the suggestion he will soon be "Sir George."

Saskatchewan is facing a coal famine, according to official advices from Canada to Washington. Because o fa shortage of labor some mines are running only half time, consular reports say, while others have been forced to suspend entirely. As anthracite coal and dust may enter Canada free of duty, it is considered by officials that there is an opportunity in Saskatchewan for American shippers to do a big business.

Mr. William Burt, of Brampton, has just been celebrating his one hundredthe birthday. Mr. Burt was born in England, but has resided for many years in Brampton. He is an old Imperial Army veteran, and since he took up residence in Brampton has been a steady attendant at worship in Christ Church (Anglican) in that town. He is a strong Orangeman and until two years ago never failed to walk on July 12th. He has several sons and one of his grandsons, Sergt. Arthur Burt, in the war.

For the first time in the history of the Philippine Islands the non-Christian tribes will be represented in the legislative branch of the Philippine Government, Gov. Gen. Harrison, having confirmed the appointments to the senate of Hadji Butu, representing the Moro Province, and Joaquin D. Lunt, a Christian Filipino and ex-assemblyman, representing the Mountain Province. The Governor-General also has confirmed the appointment of one Igorot, one Ifugao, two Moros and five Christian Filipinos to the House of Representatives.

WOMAN AND THE ARTS.

Why She Excels In Writing and Not In Music and Painting.

The average woman possesses a greater variety of character, as of wardrobe, than does the man. She can more readily lay aside or suppress some important part of her and bring some contrasting feature into view. She carries in herself a ready wealth that is more applicable to the story than to painting or to music. Thus it is, writes George M. Stratton in the Atlantic Monthly, that in painting and in music she is to be passed by man with ease, but in the story, if at all, with greatest effort.

In the minor art of dancing and in the nobler work of reproducing the music of the great composers, as in acting the characters of the great dramatists, there are women of high and even of highest rank. But, to leave these more interpretive or reproductive arts, only in fiction does she approach the mark of men, for here she must be counted with the great of the craft. And, even should some crabbed soul must that the rare company in which are George Eliot, Jane Austen, George Sand, Mme. de Stael and the Queen of Navarre does not include the one who is greatest in the guild, yet there is no discomfort felt in naming these women along with Scott and Dickens, Cervantes, Hugo and Boccaccio. But speak of the other creative arts and we feel at once the chill. Chaminade looks ill at ease in the presence of Beethoven, Joanna Baillie with Shakespeare, Angelika Kauffmann with Michelangelo.

JAPANESE STAGE CUSTOMS.

Actors and the Flower Path From the Green Room Entrance.

The profession of an actor in Japan is not considered a high one, says Mr. M. C. Marcus, the author of a work on the Japanese stage, and on the average they are not well paid. Still, there are exceptions. "When a play is staged it runs at least for twenty-three consecutive days. For such a term a first class man would earn about $1,200, and his annual income may be estimated at $7,500. But it must not be forgotten that out of this sum he must provide his own costumes, which are very expensive.

"The curtain does not rise, but is pulled sideways, and one can easily see the attendants who are intrusted with this work. The orchestra is hidden behind the scenery, while in a sort of proscenium box the reciter sits concealed behind a curtain of thin bamboo. There is no applause by clapping hands, as in our theaters, but the public stimulates the actors by exclamations in a way that may be compared to the encouraging and cheering of the dancers in Spain.

"From the greenroom a bridge leads to the platform. This bridge is called Flowerpath. The greenroom is closed by a drapery, which the actors of small parts must lift for themselves. When the performers have some importance and reputation they have an attendant for the purpose of lifting this drapery. But the first actors, as well of nogu (drama) as of kyogen (comedy), have the title taiya, which confers the right to two assistants to hold up the curtain of the greenroom for their entries and exits."

SUBMARINE OIL LINES.

How the Wells of Vera Cruz Are Tapped For Tank Steamers.

Many of the most productive oil wells in the state of Vera Cruz, Mexico, are situated near the port of Tuxpam. For some distance from the shore there the water is so shallow that few of the large oil steamers can get into port. The oil companies hit upon the idea of laying submarine pipe lines to points where the largest oil tankers can be conveniently moored for loading in any state of the tide and weather.

There are now five of these great iron pipes in duplicate. They are from six to eight inches in diameter, and four of them are nearly a mile long. They terminate in forty-three feet of water, where it is so deep that the waves have no effect on them. When they were laid divers fastened to the end of each 120 feet of flexible hose. When not in use the free end of the hose is closed and allowed to lie on the bottom of the sea, where its position is marked by a small buoy attached to the hose by a stout chain.

When the tank steamers arrive they moor themselves to the permanent buoys near by, lift the marked buoy with a derrick, raise the flexible hose to the deck of the ship and attach it to the tank openings. By means of a signal code the captains of the ships notify the pumping station on shore, in which are the valves that control the flow of oil through the pipe line. Generally speaking, it takes about twenty-four hours to load one of the large 15,000 ton tankers, which means that the pipes deliver 4,375 barrels of oil an hour.—Youth's Companion.

WHERE MEN WEAR COMBS.

In Ceylon They Mark the Native Male's Social Standing.

Ceylon is perhaps the only country in the world where men wear combs. It is the delight of the native males of the low country to wear their hair twisted into a roll at the back of the head, with a horseshoe shaped tortoise shell comb at the top. The women, curiously enough, do not affect this ornament.

It appears that one of the great ambitions of the Cingalese man of humble position is to possess and wear a huge comb of the finest luster and most perfect manufacture, and many indicate their higher social status by means of an additional comb rising to a considerable height above their glossy coil.

The artist in tortoise shell who makes these combs obtains his raw materials from the hawk bill turtle. The turtle is killed and its carcass immediately immersed in boiling water. The plates when separated from the bony part of the animal are very irregular in form. Being brittle, they require careful manipulation, especially as a high temperature, which would soften them, tends to darken and cloud the shell. They are therefore treated at as low a heat as is possible for the work.

Thickness is obtained by softening several plates and then applying pressure, when a union of the surfaces takes place. Under heat the shell also is molded into various artificial forms. —Exchange

Waterspouts.

A waterspout is a miniature tornado originating in a strong upward draft of air which occurs above the surface of a body of comparatively warm water. Its effect first becomes visible in a circular motion at the point of the cloud to which it ascends. This becomes a whirl, which condenses the vapor at its center, causing the portion of the cloud there to drop downward in the shape of a gigantic jelly bag. At the same time the continuing upward draft increases the rapidity of its original swirl and the condensed vapor caught within it until the ascending and descending masses join to form the waterspout. Necessarily by this process the air beneath the spout is rarefied, and thus where the phenomenon occurs at sea the water always seems to be sucked up into it, although this is not really the case to any considerable extent.

Secret of Harmony

Pull together. This is the real secret of harmony. There is a story told of a man who had committed the care of one of his teams to a faithful servant for years. At last one of the horses sickened and died. While the servant was burying the faithful animal the other horse came across the field and stood by, watching the work as a silent mourner.

The master said, "I believe Dick loved Billy."

Instantly the servant replied: "In cose he did, massa. Why, they pulled together nigh twenty years."

An Old Massachusetts Law.

The general court of Massachusetts Bay Colony, following the example of the English parliament, in 1659 enacted a law that "anybody who is found observing by abstinence from labor, feasting or any other way any such day as Christmas day shall pay for every such offense 5 shillings." This law was repealed in 1681.

Fatigue Injures Temper.

More than half of the ill temper and irritability displayed by women are due to fatigue, not only of the body, but of the nerves. Every woman should learn how advisable it is to rest daily and to rest in the proper way. After a tiring day, whether it be housework, looking after the children, shopping or paying calls, half an hour's rest will work wonders.

Take off your shoes, put on soft slippers and slip into a loose gown. Pull down the blind; then either lie down or sit in a comfortable easy chair, say, for twenty minutes. Even if you don't sleep you will rest. After bathing, rearranging the hair and getting into fresh clothes you will feel like a totally different woman and equal to any work that may be necessary.

GIBRALTAR FOR FLORIDA.

England Once Offered Spain the Great Rock In a Trade.

You know that for everlasting stability and stubborn resistance there is nothing in the world like Gibraltar. Did you ever hear of a curious little bargain, which was never consummated, but in which that great rock at the mouth of the Mediterranean figured as part of the price? It had to do with an important part of our own country, and yet it is seldom mentioned in any of our histories.

The impregnable fortress was fought over by the Spaniards and the Moors for two centuries, and it came in for the keen interest of Oliver Cromwell, who thundered at the British the fact that if they ever hoped to become the dominating sea power of the world they must control the Mediterranean from Gibraltar. This great necessity was never lost sight of, but a suitable pretext did not arise until the war of the Spanish succession, when England and France were at each other's throat for the mastery of Europe.

Under Admiral Sir George Brooke the British fleet made an unexpected attack on the Spanish defenses and captured Gibraltar in 1704. Presently the English sickened of their bargain. That was long before the digging of the Suez canal by the French and the Egyptians, and the cost of maintaining the rocky fortress appeared to be out of all proportion to its worth. When Spain was approached by Napoleon for the purchase of Florida as a blow at England from the western theater of the Anglo-French war, England offered Spain to trade Gibraltar for Florida. Had the trade taken place England would not now be undisputed mistress of the sea.

Getting Into Society.

"Guess I'll have to rig up a middle name," declared Flubdub. "I never really had one, but I gotta have one now."

"Why so?"

"My wife insists upon one to print on her visiting cards."

The Better Way.

Let it be said once for all that it is better for both body and soul to be obliged to go hungry sometimes than to be full always; it is wholesomer to be weary frequently from hard work than to keep on a dead level of comfort or to know weariness only from the spinning dance and the daily pleasure; it is cleaner to be dusty and bathed in the blood and sweat of battle than to be so sheltered as not to know the meaning of a hand to hand conflict with a real problem or fierce temptation; it is grander to break the shackles of exclusiveness and walk free in the dingy city of social unpopularity than to be the idol of men and women who do not count for, but rather against, the progress of the race.—From "The Inspiration of Responsibility," by Bishop Charles H. Brent.

STYLE TIPS.

One Is Rows of Silk Stitching Used as Trimming.

Just one whisper today about the new modes for fall. Paris openings are over, and the autumn styles are pretty well settled—the Paris styles, that is. American women do not always abide by these styles.

They look over the new modes and select those that appeal to them most, discarding others, and presently the selected modes appear with miraculous swiftness in the shops for everybody to buy. But there are two or three salient features in the Paris styles that cannot be disregarded, even thus early, for their repetition by one couturier after another foretells their sure importance as winter style features.

One of these is silk stitching used as a trimming. The Paris frocks and coats are fitted by many seams and darts, all stitched conspicuously in more or less fanciful effect. Pocket flaps, cuffs, revers—they are all garnished with silk stitching, and skirts and tunics have often a score or more of rows of this stitchery, done on the machine in effective chain stitch.

Alpaca is a surprise for the coming season. Both alpaca and mohair are being used by some of the couturiers in tailored frocks for day wear. Some of these models are appealingly chic, as, for instance, a sample frock of black twilled alpaca with a full overskirt pressed into little box plaits and falling almost to the edge of a plain foundation skirt. This frock has a button in back bodice with long, close sleeves and one of the enormous Japanese collars that are to be the rage without doubt. The bodice is loose, flat at back and front and plaited into the waist at the sides. It is attached with a stitched seam to the box plaited overskirt, little tabs in the bodice extending down over the plaits to emphasize the long waisted effect. Under this moyen age bodice is a foundation fitted to the waist line and stiffened to insure trimness, though the outer button in back bodice is loose rather than close fitting.

Silks for formal frocks and evening frocks, of course, and Paris whispers that satins and satin surfaced silks will be most in favor. Of these a new silk called soiree is exquisitely beautiful in its lights and shades of color, a most enchanting silk for evening gowns of distinction. Worth and Jenny have brought out stunning gowns in velvet, the Jenny model a slip over the head affair distinctly novel, with bands of Belgian hare for trimming. Very distinguished is an afternoon gown by Premet made of navy blue charmeuse, with a good deal of black chantilly lace draped airily in the bodice and a big Japanese collar of navy blue mousseline draped around throat and shoulders. The combination of navy satin and black lace is particularly elegant [illegible] and this gown of Premet is sure to make a decided hit with women of conservative taste. As brilliant as the Premet gown is, quiet and elegant is a Klein dance frock of gold colored silk voile and cream lace, with an underslip of flesh pink silk. The skirt is yards and yards wide, and at the back an odd sash forms a pannier bustle and then trails to the floor, the frock itself being short enough to reveal the feet and ankles.

FLORAL ARISTOCRATS.

Orchids Are Not Parasites, and It Is Difficult to Raise Them.

Aristocrats of the flower kingdom—and probably the least understood. You hear them called parasites, which is only one of the common mistakes made about the orchid. You see a hundred different shapes and a dozen different colors grouped together, each shape perhaps a distinct family and each with a separate name.

In the first place, orchids are not parasites. A parasitical plant is one which gets nourishment from another plant. Certain orchids live on trees, but they get their food and drink from the air by means of aerial roots. We call them epiphytes. Other orchids get their nourishment directly from the ground. They're called terrestrial orchids.

People don't understand, either, why orchids cost so much. They fail to see why a tiny plant is sold for, say, $1,000. If they realized that rare orchids may have cost a long trip into a tropical jungle to obtain and that it takes from eight to ten years to raise a plant from the seed, with patient care and treatment, they could see why these flowers remain in the aristocratic class.

Only the orchid grower can understand all the details of his art, but the flower lover can easily learn to distinguish the various types.

Super Zeppelins?

In a speech delivered at Bury St. Edmunds, recently, Baron Montagu of Beaulieu, former vice-chairman of the joint naval and military board, told of new monster super-zeppelins which Germany is building.

"We have obtained some details of the super-zeppelins which Germany is now building," said Baron Montagu. "The principle features of the craft are a capacity of 2,000,000 cubic feet, a length of 780 feet, a beam of 80 feet, a maximum speed of 80 melts an hour, a cruising of 80 miles an hour, a cruising radius of action of 3,000 miles. The engines, six or seven of them, have a total of 15,000 horsepower.

"The airships can carry a load of bombs of five tons. They are able to ascend 17,000 feet. They are armed with machine guns at bow and stern, and on top of envelop. They carry a crew of 35 men.

"These particulars show how largely the Germans are relying on zeppelins as a means for harassing us. Two of these new craft have already been completed and four will be available in October."

MUSIC FESTIVALS.

They Really Began With the Great Handel's Works In London.

The real "era of musical festivals" begins with the great Handel commemoration, with its festival performances, held in London first from 1784 to 1787 and then again in 1791. Before this there had been music festivals in England, but they were virtually unknown on the continent. It was the efficiency of the English choirs that induced Handel to take up the writing of works for large musical bodies in his oratorios.

The annual production of "The Messiah" in London at Christmas time, with a great chorus and orchestra, naturally aroused the national pride of the Germans, who felt that the great master belonged by birth to them. Berlin first and then other German cities began to give Handel festivals on the London plan, and soon the works of other composers were added to the festival lists.

So that at the beginning of the nineteenth century "several organizations devoting their energies to the production of any great work, whether choral or purely instrumental, sprang into existence in Germany." Among the oldest of these and among the most famous to this day are the Vienna Gesellschaft der Musikfreunde and the Niederrheinische Musikfeste, which take place each year in some city on the lower Rhine.

The United States has followed the example set first by the English and then by the Germans in their musical festivals, and in several of the larger cities there are yearly festivals of this kind.

LEGEND OF WILLIAM TELL.

The Story Was Old In Denmark Before the Swiss Borrowed It.

Do you know who shot the apple on the head of the little boy? Why, William Tell, of course! Everybody knows how Tell delivered Switzerland from the tyranny of Austria. At least everybody used to know. Unfortunately for pure romance, the historian and the investigator have been unduly active in the past quarter of a century, and the result has left us few heroes with enough clothing of romance to cover their skeletons.

We have read Schiller's beautiful and inspiring play, either in our college German course or in translation, and we cling to William Tell with all the ardor of youthful enthusiasm. And along comes the historian and tells us that it is all a myth, that the dates fixed by the Swiss chronicles on the subject do not coincide with the dates of the historic events that were supposed to be taking place in Austria at the same time and that earlier records of Switzerland make no mention of the archer's master shot.

The selfsame story is told in the Danish legends, two centuries before it crops out in the Swiss narrative, and further investigation shows that it was borrowed by the Danes, the original apple having been shot from the original child's head by a German bowman named Eigil, when King Nidung sought to test the man's skill and nerve. In that remote story it is related that Eigil concealed another arrow in his bosom with which to kill the king if he injured his child. John Fiske, the American historian, was largely responsible for robbing us of William Tell.

Military Matters at Barriefield Heights

NONE TO SAY GOOD BYE

Officers in camp, and those leaving for overseas have complained bitterly to The Standard, and with good cause, against the indifference of city officials when troops are leaving the city for overseas. The 155th and 156th battalions were permitted to leave camp and city on Saturday night, without a single city official being present to say good-bye. Not even a clergy man except Rev. Father Hanly, to shake the hand of the soldier who have been in camp and city for five months which time they have spent hundreds or thousands of dollars among the business men of the city. An officer said to the Standard yesterday: "Such indifference is cruel, and makes military men feel that Kingston does not deserve any consideration from the military authorities. In other cities officials are active from the day troops come in to the day they go out. Belleville's mayor came to Kingston on Saturday and brought an excursion party along, and he followed the Belleville battalion as far as the train will carry the troops. If Kingston wants us to be active in getting troops here, she must be a little more active in giving them a handshake when they come and go." This paper has been importuned to bring this matter to public attention, once more, in the hope in the future will bring a change and warm official blood to the point at least a little demonstration when troops are leaving after spending months in the city.

PRESENTATION OF COLORS

The colors of the 146th battalion will be presented on Tuesday afternoon next in the city armories. at 2.30 and the public are invited to witness the ceremony. If the weather permits, however, the cermony may be conducted in the cricket field. After the colors have been consecrated and presented to the representatives of the 146th they will be taken to St. Andrew's Church, and the ceremony of knocking at the door and asking in the name of the 146th battalion that the colors be admitted and preserved until called for by the battalion, will be carried out. The band of the 155th battalion, and the band of the R. C. H. A. if in the city will take part, together with all troops now stationed in camp and city. Captain McManus, garrison adjutant is arranging the details of the presentation.

ACCOMMODATING ARTILLERY

At the end of the month, the R. C. H. A. will return from Petawawa to Kingston, and the artillery brigade will also return to the city. The strength of the artillery batteries has been increased by the military authorities from 190 to 300, which will make an artillery brigade with ammunition column nearly 1,000 strong when recruited to strength. The artillery will be quartered in Dry Dock barracks, but this place will not be able to accommodate the whole of the brigade, and some other places should be secured at once. Unless there is accommodation in sight within a few days. Gananoque and Napanee will be offered a battery each. These places could accommodate a battery without difficulty, just as they accommodated a full company of the 80th and 59th battalions last winter.

"I WANT THAT 156TH GOAT"

A Little Brockville Correspondent Writes Appeal—Has a brother in the 156th.

(Kingston Whig)

For the benefit of readers who still have dreams of becoming the proud possessor of the goat. formerly mascot of the 156th battalion, it might be said that the animal is now in possession of the camp caretaker, who is an expert watchman especially of goats. Therefore even Master T. V. Mallette, 99 [illegible] street, Brockville, is to be disappointed, much as we would like to have him presented to this young correspondent. He writes to the Whig as follows:

"Was reading in your paper about the mascot of the 156th Battalion wanting a home. If he has not got one by this time you could send him to me as my brother was in the 156th, and has gone overseas. I would like to get him for a keepsake. If you send it I will pay ot this end of the line."

By replies that have been received "Billy" can rest assured Whig Readers will never leave him homeless.

DEATH NOTICES.

The funeral from his late residence 334 Front Street. Saturday afternoon, Oct., 21st at 3 p.m. Services at the house 2.30 Interment in the Belleville cemetery

CITY HALL DECORATIONS ARE NOW COMPLETED

Messrs. Cavell Atkins and Charles Cochrane, painters and decorators of Belleville, who were awarded the contract of painting and decorating the interior of the City Hall, have completed their work, and it is certainly a most creditable piece of work. When the hall has been cleaned up and provided with chairs, it will present an attractive appearance.

There are 15 panels in the ceiling, and these have been painted in an ivory blend with gold leaf on the border of the panels. The beams and cornices are painted in old ivory. Five feet of the top side walls are painted a biscuit color and the bottom side walls to a depth of twelve feet are painted in green. The sencil work on the walls is artistic, and green in color. The woodwork at the base of the walls is painted and grained in golden oak. The two iron columns are painted in harmony with the other parts of the hall, as is also the wood-work of the stage or platform. The radiators are painted an oaken color. The contractors spared no pains to make the job satisfactory in every respect.

Alleged Infraction of Prohibition Act

Mr. John Arthurs, proprietor of the Globe Hotel, Picton, will tomorrow have a trial in that town before the magistrate on a charge of infraction of the Prohibition Law. It is alleged that the accussed had quantities of liquor stored in a place other than his residence. License Inspector Arnott, Act jurisdiction in Prince Edward County, made a search under a warrant and found in a room over a store a quantity of claret, champagne, and beer, which it is stated belongs to Arthurs. The latter claims that where the liquor was found was his living apartments. While there is a stove in the room but no bed, and but a few articles of furniture. The case has excited considerable interest in the town of Picton.

BOY ACCIDENTALLY SHOT

A son of Mr. Elijah Vardy of Dungannon Township met with a serious accident on Friday afternoon last. He went after cows and took a 22 calibre rifle along with him. He was round shortly afterwards with a bullet hole just under his chin, but could give no explanation of just how the accident occurred. It is supposed that in crawling through the fence he pulled the rifle after him, and it exploded in this way. Dr. Embury was called, but failed to locate the bullet, and he ordered the boy to be removed to Kingston Hospital which was done on Saturday morning. Bancroft Times.

SPIRIT OF BRITISH IS NOT CHANGED

(Ottawa Fress Press)

Dr. James W. Robertson, president of the Ottawa Red Cross Society, has returned home after a trip to England, in which he had ample opportunities of noting conditions in the countries in the western theatre of the war. He was a representative of the Canadian Government on the invitation of the British committee for the agricultural relief of the allies.

The object of the association is to gain the nature of the needs of the farmers in the districts laid waste by the invading armies. Representatives of Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and Canada met in a conference, at which preliminary steps for the relief of these farmers were taken. The delegates visited the battle front in France.

Heroic French

Dr. Robertson paid a great tribute to the efficient work of the British Navy. The heroism of the French army, he said, was an inspiration. While the people of France, have been greatly impoverished by the war, there has come over them a spiritual regeneration. Evidences of German ravages are to be seen on every hand. The French army he said was well equipped. They are taller than the British troops on the average. The overseas troops stand out conspicuously.

The Canadians are particularly noted for their spic and span appearance.

Expression of good will among the Belgian, French and English troops were heard on every hand. England, while at war, gives every evidence that war has not changed the spirit of the people.

Result of Organization

It was particularly of the work of the Canadian Army Service and the Red Cross Association that Dr. Robertson spoke. The order, sanitary arrangements, cleanliness and health of the men are not there, he states as the result of accident. It is the result of a thorough organization.

"The hospitals of from 800 to 1,200 beds each are models of order and neatness. One morning when I visited near there had just arrived 500 patients from the Somme. The doctors and nurses are the outstanding factors. The hospital ships also have a complete hospital equipment. The Red Cross Society is the handmaid of the military medical profession at every turn. It supplements what the military authorties provide and do," stated Dr. Robertson.

Needs are Great

There is still a great need for Red Cross service. Outside of their own work the Canadian Red Cross gives 5,000 cases of hospital supplies every month.

IN & ABOUT THE CITY

DOORS INSECURE

The only record upon the police blotter this morning was a brief report that two business places were last night found insecure.

SCHOOL BOARD

A regular monthly meeting of the Board of Education will be held this evening. The business to be transacted is purely of a routine nature.

TRAINS DELAYED

Owing to a run off on the line of the G.T.R. last night trains from the west were delayed for some time. The passenger train due to arrive here at 9.15 P.M. was over three hours late.

A PROLIFIC PIG

A pig the property of Mr. John Fraser, of Dungannon Township, recently gave birth to 20 pigs. Eighteen of the young porkers are still alive and likely to develop into fine porkers.

INQUEST TO BE RESUMED

The coroner's inquest to enquire into the circumstances regarding the death of Joseph Montgomery who died from self inflicted wounds, will be continued at the police court room, Belleville, this evening. A number of witnesses from the city and Madoc have been summoned to give evidence.

SNAPSHOTS FROM HOME FOR SOLDIERS OVERSEAS

The Military Service Department of the Y.M.C.A. of Canada, is arranging for photographs of the wife and children or other relatives of men serving at the front, and forwarding these overseas. In one case a soldier had a snapshot sent to him, his first view of his baby born seven months before.—From Canadian Manhood.

BELLEVILLE MAN WOUNDED

Mrs. Wm. Symons, of 28 Bettes St., this city has received notification that Pte. James Varley, a former resident of Belleville, has been severely wounded in the arm and back. He is recovering from his injuries however, and expects soon to be sent to England. Pte. Varley enlisted in the 21st Battalion, which left Canada over a year ago.

SINGING, PLAYING OR HAMMERING A BALL

A letter from the front gives some idea of the variety of services performed by the Y.M.C.A. man with the soldiers. Of Capt. Eddie Smith, it was said: "One night he is singing a baritone solo, the next you will find him with a violin, or it might be hammering a ball for a home run in one of the baseball games."—or conducting a religious meeting for the men, or providing magazines, or paper, pen and ink to write letters home.—From Canadian Manhood.

OPEN SEASON FOR BEAVER

As a result of damage by beaver an open season will be allowed between November 1 and March 31, for both beaver and otter. This is the first time that Ontario laws have permitted the killing of these animals in nearly 20 years. The only people allowed to take the animals, however, are resident licensed trappers and farmers who obtain a permit from the Department to trap upon their own land. Either is allowed to buy ten fifty-cent royalty coupons in one year, the limitation being placed to avoid abuse of the open season. It is also provided that trappers can sell only to licensed dealers.

This "old natural balance" is simply Nature's perfect arrangement and proportioning of food elements in our food supply for perfect building of body, brain and nerves. Modern commercialism destroys this "balance," when, in milling flour it casts out (to make it white) most of the mineral elements so essential to health.

"Sacrificed!" he thundered.

"But ah, madame," insisted Mme. Brossard. "You cannot ascend. There is nothing on the upper floor except the apartment of Professor Keredec."

"Name of a dog!" shrilled the other. "It is my husband's apartment, I tell you. Il y a une femme avec lui!"

"It is Mme. Harman who is there," said Keredec hoarsely in my ear. "I came away and left them together."

"Come," I said, and, letting the others think what they would, sprang across the veranda, the professor beside me, and ran toward the two women, who were beginning to struggle with more than their tongues. I leaped by them and up the steps, but Keredec thrust himself between our hostess and her opponent, planting his great bulk on the lowest step. Glancing hurriedly over my shoulder, I saw the Spanish woman strike him furiously upon the breast with both hands, but I knew she would never pass him.

I entered the salon of the "grande suite" and closed the door quickly behind me.

Louise Harman was standing at the other end of the room. Her husband was kneeling beside her. He held one of her hands in both of his. Her other rested upon his head, and something in their attitudes made me know I had come in upon their leave taking. But from the face he lifted toward her all trace of his tragedy had passed. The wonder and worship written there left no room for anything else.

"He shall pay bitterly!"

"Mrs. Harman," I began.

"Yes?" she said. "I am coming."

"But I don't want you to. I've come for fear you would, and you—you must not," I stammered. "You must wait. There is a scene"—

"I know," she said quietly. "That must be, of course."

Harman rose, and she took both his hands, holding them against her breast. "My dear," she said gently, "my dearest, you must stay. Will you promise not to pass that door even until you have word from me again?"

"Yes," he answered huskily, "if you'll promise it shall come—some day."

"It shall. Be sure of it."

She stepped out upon the gallery. I followed. Mme. Brossard and Keredec still held the foot of the steps, but la Mursiana had abandoned the siege and, accompanied by Mr. Percy and Rameau, the black bearded notary, who had joined her, was crossing the garden toward her own apartment. She glanced over her shoulder, sent forth a scream and, whirling about, ran viciously for the steps, where she was again blocked by the indomitable Keredec.

"Ah, you foolish woman, I know who you are!" she cried. "You want to get yourself into trouble! That man in the room up there has been my husband these two years and more."

"No, madame," said Louise Harman, "you are mistaken; he is my husband."

"But you divorced him," vociferated the other wildly. "You divorced him in America!"

"No; you are mistaken," the quiet voice replied. "The suit was withdrawn. He is still my husband."

I heard the professor's groan of despair, but it was drowned in the wild shriek of Mariana. "What? You tell me that? Ah, the miserable! If what you say is true he shall pay bitterly! He shall wish that he had died by fire! What? You think he can marry me, break my leg so that I cannot dance again, ruin my career and then go away with a pretty woman like you and be happy? Aha, there are prisons in France for people who marry two like that! He shall pay for it in suffering"—her voice rose to an incredible and unbearable shriek—"and you, you shall pay too! You can't come stealing honest women's husbands like that. You shall pay!"

CHAPTER XIII.

It is impossible to say what Mariana would have done had there been no interference, for she had worked herself into one of those furies which women of her type can attain when they feel the occasion demands it. But Rameau threw his arms about her, Mr. Percy came to his assistance, and Ward and I sprang in between her and the too fearless lady she strove to reach. Even at that the finger nails of Mariana's right hand touched the pretty white hat, but only touched it and no more.

Rameau and the little spy managed to get their vociferating burden across the courtyard and into her own door.

"Professor Keredec"— Mrs. Harman began, resisting and turning to the professor appealingly.

"Oh, let him come, too!" said Miss Elizabeth desperately. "Nothing could be worse than this!"

She led the way back to the pavilion. "Not a soul at Quesnay," sobbed the mortified chatelaine—"not one but will know this before dinner! They'll hear the whole thing within two hours."

"There is nothing they shouldn't know," said Mrs. Harman.

George turned to her with a smile so bravely managed that I was proud of him. "Oh, yes, there is," he said. "We're going to get you out of all this."

"All this!" she repeated.

"All this mire!" he answered. "We're going to get you out of it. I don't know whether your revelation to the Spanish woman will make that easier or harder, but I do know that it makes the mire deeper."

Her anxious eyes grew wider. "How have I made it deeper for him? Wasn't it necessary that the poor woman should be told the truth?"

She turned to Keredec with a frightened gesture and an unintelligible word of appeal.

"It was because," he repeated, running a nervous hand through his beard—"because the knowledge would put us so utterly in this people's power. Already they demand more than we could give them; now they can do still more."

George intervened, and he spoke without sarcasm. "To put it roughly, these people have been asking more than the Harman estate is worth—that was on the strength of the woman's claim as a wife—but now they know she is not one her position is immensely strengthened, for she has only to go before the nearest commissaire de police."

"Oh, no!" Mrs. Harman cried passionately. "I haven't done that!"

"Never!" he answered. "There could not be a greater lie than to say you have done it. The responsibility is with the wretched and vicious boy who brought the catastrophe upon himself. But don't you see that you've got to keep out of it, that we've got to take you out of it?"

"You can't! I'm part of it. Better or worse, it's as much mine as his. My separation from my husband is over. I shall be with him now for"—

"I won't listen to you!" Miss Elizabeth lifted her wet face from George's shoulder, and there was a note of deep anger in her voice. "You haven't the faintest idea of what a hideous situation that creature has made for himself. Don't you know that that awful woman was right? You talk of being with him! Do you imagine they encourage family housekeeping in French prisons?"

"You're going much too far," Cresson Ingle said, touching his betrothed upon the arm. "My dear Elizabeth, there is no use exaggerating. The case is unpleasant enough just as it is."

"In what have I exaggerated?" she demanded.

"Why, I knew Larrabee Harman," he returned. "I knew him fairly well. I went as far as Honolulu with him, and I remember that papers were served on him in San Francisco. He was traveling continually, and I don't think he knew much of what was going on, even right around him, most of the time. He began with cognac and absinth in the morning, you know. For myself, I always supposed the suit had been carried through. So did people generally, I think. He'll probably have to stand trial, and of course he's technically guilty, but I don't believe he'd be convicted, though I must say [illegible] have been a most devilish good thing for him if he could have been got out of France before la Mursiana heard the truth."

"Nothing is changed," Louise Harman said finally, her eyes still fixed gravely on Miss Elizabeth's.

At that the other's face flamed up, and she uttered a half choked exclamation. "Oh," she cried, "you've fallen in love with playing the martyr! It's self love! No one on earth could make me believe you're in love with this degraded imbecile. It's because you want to make a shining example of yourself. You want to get down on your knees and wash off the vileness from this befouled creature. You want"—

"Madame," Keredec interrupted tremulously, "you speak out of no knowledge! There is no vileness. No one who is clean remains befouled because of the things that are gone."

"They do not?" She laughed hysterically.

"The soul that stands clean and pure today is clean and pure," insisted the professor.

"But a soul with evil tendencies," Ward began impatiently.

"Ha, my dear sir, those evil tendencies would be in the soiling memories, and my boy is free from them."

"Surely you can't pretend he may not take that direction again?"

"That," returned the professor quickly, "is his to choose. If this lady can be with him now he will choose right."

"So!" cried Miss Elizabeth. "First she is to be his companion through a trial for bigamy and if he is acquitted his nurse, teacher and moral preceptor." She turned swiftly to her cousin. "That's your conception of a woman's mission?"

"I haven't any mission," Mrs. Harman answered quietly. "I only know I belong to him; that's all I ever thought about it. I don't pretend to explain it. And when I met him again here it was—it was—it was proved to me."

"Will you tell us?"

It was I who asked the question. I spoke involuntarily.

"Oh, when I first met him," she said tremulously, "I was frightened, but it was not he who frightened me. It was the rush of my own feeling. I did not know what I felt, but I thought I might die, and he was so like himself as I had first known him, but so changed too. There was something so wonderful about him, something that must make any stranger feel sorry for him, and yet it is beautiful." She stopped for a moment and wiped her eyes, then went on bravely: "And the next day he came and waited for me—I should have come here for him if he hadn't—and I fell in with the mistake he had made about my name. You see, he'd heard I was called Mme. d'Armand, and I wanted him to keep on thinking that, for I thought if he knew I was Mrs. Harman he might find out"— She paused, her lip beginning to tremble. "Oh, don't you see why I didn't want him to know? I didn't want him to suffer as he would—as he does now, poor child—but most of all I wanted—I wanted to see if he would fall in love with me again! I kept him from knowing because if he thought I was a stranger and the same thing happened again—his caring for me, I mean"— She had begun to weep now, freely and openly, but not from grief. "Oh," she cried, "don't you see how it's all proved to me?"

Later I went into the garden to think over the perplexing situation of the Harmans.

I sank down again in a wicker chair and contemplated the stars. But the short reverie into which I then fell was interrupted by Mr. Percy, who, sauntering leisurely about the garden, paused to address me.

"You folks thinks you was all to the gud gittin' them trunks off, what?"

"You speak in mysterious numbers," I returned, having no comprehension of his meaning.

"I suppose you don' know nothin' about it," he laughed satirically. "You didn' go over to Lisieux 's aft'noon to ship 'em? Oh, no, not you!"

"I went for a long walk this afternoon, Mr. Percy. Naturally I couldn't have walked so far as Lisieux and back."

"Luk here, m' friend," he said sharply; "do you think you got any chanst t' git that feller off t' Paris?"

"Do you think it will rain tonight?" I inquired.

In simple dignity he turned his back upon me and strolled to the other end of the courtyard.

I observed him in the act of saluting, with a gracious nod, some one who was approaching from the road. Immediately after—and altogether with the air of a person merely "happening in"—a slight figure clad in a long coat, a short skirt and a broad brimmed, veil bound brown hat came into full view in the light of the reflector.

I sprang to my feet and started toward her, uttering an exclamation.

"Good evening, Mr. Percy," she said cheerily. "It's the most exuberant night. You're quite hearty, I hope?"

"Takin' a walk, I see, little lady," he observed with genial patronage.

My visitor paused upon my veranda, humming "Quand l'Amour Meurt," while I went within and lit a lamp. "Shall I bring the light out there?" I asked, but, turning, found that she was already in the room.

"You weren't afraid to come through the woods alone?" I asked, uncomfortably conscious that her gayety met a dull response from me.

"No."

"But if Miss Ward finds that you're not at the chateau"—

"She won't. She thinks I'm asleep. She brought me up a sleeping powder herself."

"She thinks you took it?"

"She knows I did," said Miss Elliott. "I'm full of it! And that will be the reason—if you notice that I'm particularly nervous or excited."

"You seem all of that," I said, looking at her eyes, which were very wide and very brilliant. "However, I believe you always do."

HALF MILLION FROM TORONTO FOR RED CROSS

TORONTO, Oct. 20—Special—For the last day of the whirlwind campaign for the British Red Cross it will be a pull altogether. Up to 10 o'clock last night the city had raised $431,200 in three days, so that the half million mark should easily be passed A great meeting in Massey Hall last night heard the returns, figures from many points in the province were also read.

Yesterday's campaign was in the women, and despite the incessant rain, they showed a wartime spirit of grit and persistence in keeping up their calls and work for the cause that is so dear to them.

Decreasing westerly winds partly fair and coler.
Sunday fresh westerly winds mostly air and cooler.

INQUEST COMPLETED IN MONTGOMERY CASE

Death Caused by Self-Inflicted Wounds — Much Evidence Considered — Deceased Protested Innocence to Spiritual Adviser—Mystery as to How He Secured The Knife

That Joseph Montgomery came to his death at the Belleville hospital on Sunday, October 15th as the result of a self-inflicted wound in the neck.

We are of opinion that the physicians in attendance upon the deceased, at Madoc, did all in their power for him after the committal of the act.

In our opinion, deceased should have been removed to the Belleville jail, and not allowed to remain in the Madoc lock-up unless under proper guard.

From the evidence, we are unable to say how the deceased obtained the knife with which he committed the act.

Such was the verdict rendered last night by the Coroner's Jury empanelled to find out, how, when, where and by what means Joseph Montgomery came to his death. Dr. Yeomans, corner, presided over the investigation, and Mr. Wm. Carnew, County Attorney, examined the witnesses.

It will be remembered the deceased cut his throat while in the lockup at Madoc some time Friday night or Saturday morning the 13th or 14th inst., and was brought to Belleville hospital where he died on Sunday 15th inst.

Police Officer Harman testified as to summoning the jurors, all of whom were qualified to act.

Mr. R. R. Casement testified he was a Justice of the Peace at Madoc. The deceased, Joseph Montgomery, was placed under arrest on Saturday, October 7th. He was arranged before the witness on the 9th, and the accused was remanded for a week. An inquest was held over the remains of Walter Montgomery. The deceased, Joseph Montgomery, was kept at Madoc at the request of Provincial Inspector Reburn. Personally he knew nothing of how Joseph Montgomery came to his death only by hearsay. The deceased Joseph Montgomery, requested to be allowed to remain in the Madoc jail. This request was made on the 13th of Ooctober, and he signed a paper to that effect.

Charles St. Charles, testified that he was a County Constable residing at Madoc. He had charge of the deceased Joseph Montgomery. A warrant was issued for his arrest on October 7th. He was locked up at Madoc, and every attention was given him. He was made as comfortably as he could be made. Deceased asked to be left in the jail at Madoc, and witness allowed him to stay after consulting the proper authorities. Witness placed Montgomery in the lockup on the evening of the 12th inst., after the coroner's inquest. Montgomery appeared to be all right. On Saturday morning, 14th inst., about 7.20, witness found the deceased in the cell with his throat cut. Witness went out for help, and Mr. Johnson and another man. Witness had no suspicion that deceased would commit the act he did. Witness produced a small pen knife with which Montgomery committed the act. How he obtained the knife witness was unable to tell. Deceased was thoroughly searched when placed in the lockup. Witness had known Joseph Montgomery for years, and he was rather of a nervous disposition.

To a juryman.—No guard was placed over Montgomery on Friday night. On the way to the city, Montgomery made no statement whatever. George Johnson testified that he lived at Madoc, and assisted Constable St. Charles at times. Witness last saw Joseph Montgomery on Friday night, the night previous to his attempt on his life. Witness saw deceased on Saturday morning when Mr. St. Charles asked him to go to the jail, he St. Charles, stating that Joseph had done it. Deceased was found lying on a cot. Witness found the knife in a box stove, which had evidently been used to commit the act. On Sunday after Montgomery was arrested, witness searched the cells thoroughly, and took everything away, even a piece of board in which some nails were in. A soldier was in an adjoining cell, one night, when Montgomery was in the lockup. On one occasion, witness saw Montgomery had in his possession a large darning needle, and he, witness, tried to get it away from him, but could not. Later detective Reburn secured it. Never saw any person about the lockup acting suspiciously.

Dr. Gibson, of Belleville, testified that he assisted in a post mortem on Joseph Montgomery's remains, and he described minutely the wound made upon the neck. The witness stated that the body was that of a well nourished man, and the organs were all normal. The brain was not examined. A detailed statement of the post mortem was put in evidence.

To a juryman.—The removal of the deceased to Belleville did not, in the opinion of Dr. Gibson, hasten death.

Dr. Gibson testified he attended Joseph Montgomery on Saturday afternoon, upon his arrival at the hospital. Witness changed the dressing. Deceased was very restless, throwing himself about in the bed. His temperature was 103, and he was very ill. He was given stimulants to assist in filling up the blood vessels. At times he was extremely restless. Witness did all he could for the deceased. The brain was not examined. General shock and loss of blood caused death.

Dr. Eaggleton testified that he was a practioner at Madoc. On Saturday morning, Oct. 14th, witness was called to see the deceased, whom he found lying in a cell with his throat cut. Witness examined the wound, which was dry. From appearance, the wound had been made 3 or 4 hours previous. The deceased was very pale and weak. Witness gave deceased a saline injection and some stimulants. Deceased made no statement except that he was innocent, and did not know why all the trouble had been placed upon him. Witness was surprised when he heard that deceased was dead. In the afternoon of Saturday, deceased was much improved. Shock following the loss of blood caused death.

Dr. Harper testified he was of Madoc, and a coroner. Joseph Montgomery was present at the inquest held upon his brother, Walter Montgomery, but on advice of counsel refused to testify. On Friday the 13th inst., witness saw deceased, and on Saturday the 15th, he saw him again. This was in the afternoon, after he had inflicted the wounds upon himself. Under the circumstances the removal of the deceased to the Belleville hospital, was proper. Deceased did not make any statement. Everything possible was done for the man's comfort.

Sheriff Morrison testified that he received the deceased, informally as a prisoner at the County jail in front of the Court house. Deceased was in an ambulance, and looked practically dead. Witness arranged for his removal to the hospital, where he was very restless. Two constables were placed in charge of him. Witness visited the man at the hospital and had everything done for his comfort. It had been reported in the press that, he, Sheriff Morrison, had exceeded his duty, or was at fault in having the inquest before Dr. Yeomans, coroner. It was his duty to do what he had done.

Dr. Eaggleson and Dr. Harper both emphatically denied that they were in any way responsible for what appeared in the press. Dr. Harper stated he never made such statements as were attributed to him.

Rev. W. B. Tucker testified that he was the Methodist Minister at Madoc. Never saw Joseph Montgomery until the evening of Wednesday, October 10th. Montgomery sent for witness although he was a Presbyterian in religion. During a conversation witness had with deceased, some one was near by. Detective Reburn would not consent to allow witness to have a private interview with him. Witness went to see the deceased as a minister of the gospel. Deceased was very reticent in his manner, and would not say very much, only protest his innocense. Witness gave deceased counsel which he could apply to himself whether he was innocent or guilty. Deceased never intimated to witness that he would destroy himself. Had a lengthy talk with deceased on Friday last. He had refused counsel at first, but he afterwards relented and finally

Waxing Fat On The War

Men at Home Like Great Spiders in Their Webs

TORONTO, Oct. 20.—"While our sons are sacrificing their lives in a sacred cause, are we to permit men at home to sit like great spiders in their webs, waxing fat upon a situation charged with the greatest opportunities for great and noble service?" asked Prof. Robert Law of Knox College, in moving a vote of thanks to the Hon. W. H. Hearst at the conclusion of the Premier's eloquent address to the Empire Club.

"Surely Canadian indignation, with the strength of righteousness, will rise in its might," he continued. "How are we at home to prove worthy of the sacrifice of our sons? t is Ia difficult task for us older men to rise to their moral level.

"We pray that this war, in God's providence, will make us sick of war; not alone of war of arms, but of class war, commercial war, industrial war. Surely, as we stand within the shadow of the spectacle presented by the sacrifice of our sons we must realize how paltry, how artificial, how unreal are many of the things with which we have been concerning ourselves."

EX-PREMIER BOWSER HAS BEEN ELECTED

B. C. Conservatives Have Gained Two Seats by Soldiers' Votes

VICTORIA, B.C. Oct., 20 While the whole of the soldier vote cast in Canada counted, with the exception of South Vancouver and Richmond, the Conservatives have gained two seats which the civilian vote gave the liberals. Premier Bowser has wiped out the adverse majority of 215 in Vancouver, which put P. Donnnelly in sixth place, on the Liberal ticket, and Mackenzie in Delta, now has a majority of 33 over his Liberal opponent, elected by six on the civilian vote.

After President With a Knife

PITTSBURG, Oct., 20—When President Wilson and party, including Wm. J. Bryan, were on a drive around the city today, the President lost his hat and his automobile was stopped while a secret service man recovered it. A man apparently a workman with a bag of tools, jumped on the running board of the automobile, but was knocked off by a secret service man. The man chased the president's conveyance for about a block before he was arrested by local detectives.

The prisoner gave the name of Richard Cullon, aged 22 a machinist of this city. On his way to the police station he told the police that he was not at all satisfied with President Wilson's conduct of the European War.

In the bag he carried was a knife with a blade five inches long, and a bottle of liquid the police are trying to analyze. Also in the bag were several wood chisels. The prisoner is held by the police for observation

Was Killing off Game Wholesale

PEMBROKE, Oct. 20.—Herman Yoster, a German resident of Wylie township, near here, was fined $310 and costs or three months in jail for wantonly slaughtering deer and moose in the district where he lives. He is in jail now, but says the fine will be paid shortly.

Chief Carroll and County Constable Dixon went up for him, and made a search of the surroundings. They found 23 deerskins and four moosehides, while the carcases of the slaughtered animals were lying around in the woods.

The skins and guns were confiscated, and the former sold to a dealer, while the guns will be disposed of.

To Discuss With Cabinet Committee The High Cost of Living

OTTAWA, Oct., 20—The sub-committee of Cabinet council named to consider the question of the high cost of living are listening to representatives of municipal labor, and other bodies interested in the situation. It is expected that the delegation to wait upon the Minister will be a large one. Many people are expected from Ontario towns and cities also representatives from Montreal. The Government purposes taking action at an early date and is anxious to secure the views of as many representative people as possible.

Traveller Dead in Hotel Blaze at Sutton, Que.

SUTTON, Que., Oct. 20.—A fire which destroyed the dwelling-house of Adelard Lacroix, near this place, caused the death of David Knowlton.

The deceased, who travelled for fire extinguishers, put up at the Lacroix house for the night, and early this morning the inmates were awakened by smoke.

The family escaped in their night attire, but Knowlton became confused in an endeavor to escape, and his body was found in the pantry.

FLOUR NEARS TEN DOLLARS

OTTAWA, Oct. 20.—Flour shows signs of fulfilling the predictions made earlier in the season that it would reach ten dollars a barrel before the winter is here. The quotation given out this morning was $9.60 a barrel, and $9.90 with the wood. This is a twenty cents a barrel increase over the last price of $9.40 and $9.60 respectively, which went into effect on Oct. 4.

Though flour will likely touch ten dollars before it settles, it is unlikely that there will be an increase in the price of bread.

The last raise imposed by the baker evoked such a holler from the suffering householders that another one will likely be deferred for some time.

EVANGELINE BOOTH ILL

Head of Salvation Army Cancels Lecture Trip

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Evangeline Booth, head of the Salvation Army in this country, has been stricken with a severe attack of neuritis, and is under a physicians care at White Plains, N.Y., it was announced here by the organization. Her lecture trips have been cancelled, but it was hoped she might recover sufficiently to preside at the National Congress of the Salvation Army at Philadelphia, commencing November 17.

Allies Make Material Progress During The Night—Intermittent Shelling a Feature

Canadian Press Special.

LONDON, Oct. 21.—Official announcement. During the night further progress was made in the neighborhood of Butte-de-Warlencourt. There was intermittent shelling by the enemy on our front, north and south of Ancre. We succesfully raied enemy trenches south of Neuve Chapelle.

Canadian Bonds Rank Foremost

War Loan Taken at Top Price by United States Buyers

NEW YORK, Oct., 21—Special The new War Loan first attained its high point today—99 1-8—after the close of the market on Thursday afternoon, when dealers in the bonds were surprised to receive buying orders at that level. Brokers called the performance of the stock in selling above 99, "crossing the Alps," and they were encouraged to think that the depletion of the supply and the spirited bidding here and on the other side would soon carry the advance to 99 1-2. Not much more can be expected of the new bond however, as they are now coming into competition not only with the Dominion of Canada Exchequer bonds. but with offerings of the new six per cent. securities of the British Government. The bonds changed hands in $100,000 lots yesterday.

Most of the larger bond houses in New York in their week-end letters mention the Canadian War Loan bonds and in practically every review of the bond market Canadian securities take first place. Paul Clay, in October Moody's Magazine, writes:—

"Canada in spite of her youth, is now a more desirable creditor than European Governments, because her debts are smaller in proportion to her wealth and earning power, and because her fields and factories are so far removed from the seat of war that there is no danger of military interference with her industries."

SEVEN FLIERS SENT DOWN

Numerous Air Combats Result Disastrously to Enemy — Some Fell in Allied Lines

Canadian Press Special.

PARIS, Oct., 21—Official Statement. There was nothing important during the night to report.

Yesterday our chasing aeroplanes had numerous combats in the course of which seven fell, three of them within our lines. These fell between others dropped in the region of Moislains and Prie.

ATTACKS ON THE RUSSO-ROUMANIANS IN DOBRUDJA

Canadian Press Special.

PETROGRAD, Oct. 21—An attack on Russo-Roumanian lines in Dobrudja, by Field Marshal Von Mackenzen's forces yesterday, resulted in loss to the defenders of the Village of Kokardja, the war office announced to-day. Later attacks on the Entente lines in the same region, were repulsed.

SIR WILLIAM B. BOWERING PASSES AWAY

GEN. VON FALKENHAYN IS SERIOUSLY WOUNDED

ROME, Oct. 20.—Special—Field Marshal von Falkenhayn, former Chief of the General Staff of the German army, has been wounded in the leg and compelled to relinquish command of the Austro-General armies in Transylvania, said a Zurich despatch to The Corriere d'Italia yesterday.

REGULAR MEETING OF THE SCHOOL BOARD

Sale of Old School House Properties Discussed — Other Business of More or Less Importance Taken Up

A meeting of the members of the School Board was held last evening in the Council Chambers, in the City Hall. The following were present. Messrs. Mallory, Diamond, McGie, Deacon, Woodley, Wims, Reid, Ives, Sneyd, Elliott, O'Flynn, and Ketcheson. The business transacted was mainly of a routine nature.

Mr. Reid took the chair, until the arrival of Mr. Mallory, Chairman of the Board.

After the minutes of the last regular meeting were read and confirmed, the Board went into committee of the whole on communications, reports etc. Mr. Reid in the chair. The following recommendations were made:

That the laboratory affairs in Queen Victoria School, regarding the separate closets for the primary pupils, be referred to committee of affairs with power to act.

That the sum of $50, for the Cadet competition, donated by the Lord Strathcona fund, be paid over to the High School.—Carried.

That the leak in the roof of the building adjoining the High School, be referred to the committee of buildings and repairs.—Carried.

That the usual grant of $25 be paid to the High School Athletic Association.—Carried.

That the sum of $1.00 be paid to Mr. Carleton, as a refund.—Carried

That a letter of recommendation be sent to Miss Guest, a former teacher here. The letter to be written by the Chairman of School Management and Committee.

The committee rose and reported. Report received and adopted.

MOTIONS

A notice was given, that the motion, dealing with pupils residing in Thurlow; attending Belleville schools would be brought up at the next meeting of the Board.

It was moved by Mr. McGie, seconded by Mr. Woodley, that the old school properties throughout the city be disposed of.

This motion led to some discussion. Mr. O'Flynn was not in favor of the motion. Belleville is growing and will need these properties. They should be converted in breathing spaces for our children. We would not get the price they were worth.

Mr. McGie—None of these spots are suitable for a park or playground for the children.

Mr. Woodley—The people in the west city would not care to have a park on the property there. We have the grounds of the school, we could sell the unused properties, and use the money to improve the conditions in the new school grounds.

Mr. O'Flynn moved an amendment than the previous motion be rescinded, and no property be sold without consent of the Board.

Mr. Reid moved that the matter lay over for consideration by the members of the Board, who were not present. Mr. O'Flynn seconded. The motion was lost.

Moved by Mr. McGie, seconded by Mr. Woodley, that all restrictions on the sale of school property be rescinded.—Carried.

It was moved by Mr. O'Flynn, seconded by Mr. McGie, that the age regulation regarding Government General's medal competition at Entrance Examinations, be changed to read that the age of pupils must be under 13 years of age at the commencement of school year. All other rules and regulations to stand.—Carried.

Board adjourned.

VON FALKENHAYN'S OFFENSIVE MAY BE LAST CARD OF GERMANY

Canadian Press Special.

LONDON, Oct 21.—A Times correspondent in Bucharest, wires that the Von Falkenhayn's offensive against the Roumanians in Transylvania, is believed to be Germany's last card. After being checked on all other fronts they are repulsed; here their whole game can be considered lost. It cannot be assumed the crises are permanently passed, although the Roumanians now hold the passes strongly. Germans and Austrians now have twelve to fourteen divisions on the Transylvanian front, and probably will continue sending reinforcements as long as the weather permits of operations.

HEAVY SNOW FALL HAMPERS CAMPAIGN IN CARPATHIAN REGION

Canadian Press Special.

PETROGRAD, Oct. 21.—To-day's war office statement regarding operations on the Eastern and Caucasus fronts, says:—Enemy atacks from the Barney farm near the Narayuvka (Galicia southeast of Lemberg) about a mile and a quarter south of the Village of Svistelniki, was repelled by our fire.

In the wooded Carpathains snow is falling and has reached in the ravines a depth of four feet, eight inches.

South of Dorna Watra, near the Roumanian border, the enemy attacked one of our advanced posts. Supported by one hundred Cossacks the post repelled the attack and put the enemy to flight, capturing one machine gun, a trench cannon, and a number of prisoners.

Caucasus front.—No events of importance have occurred.

Ship Founders In Lake Erie

Marshall Butters From Midland—Three Saved — Another Ship Ashore

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Oct. 21—Special—The steamer Marshall Butters, laden with lumber, foundered in Lake Erie this afternoon, during a heavy gale off Southeast Shoals, near the mouth of the Detroit River. Three members of the crew were rescued by the steamer Billings and brought here. The other twelve members of the crew are believed to have been rescued by the steamer Hartwell, which is bound for Ashtabula. but it is not confirmed yet. The men saved are Joseph Sobelfinger, Henry Ratz, and Neil Harrington.

It is the habit of the unthinking to follow a voice rather than a mind.

SERBIANS MAKING SUBSTANTIAL HEADWAY

Canadian Press Special.

PARIS, Oct. 21.—An official account of operations on the Macedonian front says the Serbian forces, which crossed the Cerna River, thrusting back the Bulgarians and capturing several villages, are continuing the offensive movement, and have made further progress.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

"TESS OF THE STORM COUNTRY"

A capacity house at Griffin's Opera House last night, greeted this pleasing drama, which was well presented, May A. Bell Marks as Tessabell, the untutored girl, covering herself with glory, Her many pranks, outbursts of joys, tempests and sorrows, being more than balanced with a loving heart, even to covering the sins of others by taking the blame herself. The play throughout was well supported, and the audience more than pleased. To-night "Peg O' My Heart" will occupy the stage.

MAE MURRAY AT GRIFFIN'S MONDAY

Following her recent triumph as star in the Jesse L. Lasky production of "To Have and to Hold" Miss Mae Murray, one of the most beautiful actresses on the stage and screen in America, has been selected for the title role in the Lasky-Belasco production of "Sweet Kitty Bellairs," which is announced for exhibition at Griffin's Opera House on Monday night only.

This photoplay is founded on the comedy of the same name produced with extraordinary success some years ago by David Belasco, and the Lasky company has given the screen production a vesture of great beauty and has given the star a support of exceptionally qualified players.

The story of "Sweet Kitty Bellairs" concerns the famous beauty of that name who ruled the social and court life of England in the middle of the eighteenth century. There is plenty of action, stirring situations and exciting episodes which stamp it one of the finest feature productions ever presented.

In addition to Miss Murray the cast includes Tom Forman, James Neill and other Lasky stars.

On the same program with the above five part offering. the fifth chapter of the popular athletic series will be exhibited along with a new and amusing Bray Komedy Kartoon.

"WHEN DREAMS COME TRUE"

At Griffin's, Tuesday

The announcement is made that "When Dreams Come True," one of the newest musical comedies, which had a great vogue in New York and Chicago during last season, will be presented at Griffin's Opera House next Tuesday night.

The action of the play opens on board the immigration deck of a steamship on its way to New York. The plot begins to unfold early and the music theme begins when Roy Proette as "Kean Hedges," the son of a multi-millionaire who, on account of having become infatuated with a French dancer in Paris, is called to America by his father. Being short of funds, he has had to take his passage home in the steerage of the ship, and it is while he is lonely, he seas, as he thinks, in a vision, his dream girl. When the ship reaches the dock, the girl of the dream becomes a reality, and romance runs merrily till the end.

A number of tuneful songs are introduced, chief among them being "Come Along To The Movies," "Love Is Such A Funny Little Feeling," "You, Dear, You," "Who's The Little Girl" and "When Dreams Come True."

The scenic apointments are elaborate, and the costuming of the various members shows a number of new and elaborate creations.

The company numbers forty people with a large singing and dancing contingent, selected for their youth, grace and ability.

"When Dreams Come True," it is promised, will be one of the most enjoyable theatrical entertainments of our local season.

INQUEST COMPLETED IN MONTGOMERY CASE

decided to have Mr. Mikel to defend him. It was on adivec of witness that deceased did this. Deceased said tha authorities were after him, and he had stated that he was home all day on Wednesday the 4th inst. During his conversation, deceased seemed to be agitated and while somewhat troubled always persistently protesting his innocence. Witness was surprised when he heard deceased had made the attempt to end his life, as he was very cheerful on Friday. On Saturday, witness saw deceased in the town hall, where they had carried him from the cells below, and he asked him several questions, such as why he had done what he did, and where he obtained the knife. Montgomery said at last he found the knife on the floor by the stove. He denied positively that any person gave it to him or that he had concealed it any where in the lockup. Deceased said he found the knife the night before he used it upon himself. Deceased was a man clean in appearance, and was an intelligent man, in fact a keen man. Witness said to Montgomery, why did you do this to yourself, and he replied that a person would do almost anything when they were innocent and were charged with an offence such as he was accused of. Everybody including Constable St. Charles and daughter were very kind to deceased, and the latter made no complaint whatever.

Mr. A. M. Chapman testified as High County Constable, he was at the Court House when the prisoner, Joseph Montgomery was brought there in the ambulance. He was taken to the hospital where he died on Sunday morning. By order of Sheriff Morrison, deceased was placed in a separate room, and County Constable Soule was placed over him. Deceased was given every attention.

L. Soule testified that he was a County Constable, and as such, was by Sheriff Morrison, placed in charge of the deceased, Joseph Montgomery. He accompanied deceased from the G. T. R. station to the hospital. Deceased was nearly all the time very restless and another man had to be procured to assist in looking after him. Witness was with deceased until he died. About 4 on Sunday morning, deceased said we had "better get the po'es up." He complained of his left shoulder being sore. He died on Sunday morning. Witness made a diagram of the lockup at Madoc, and the cell where Montgomery was confined. It was a cell 8 x 9 feet, and had a stove in it.

Mr. John Orr testified that he was retained with Mr. Soules to look after the deceased, Joseph' Montgomery. Deceased was made as comfortable as it was possible to make him after his arrival at the hospital. Deceased made a comp'aint that his left shoulder pained him. Deceased was perfectly conscious whilst being conveyed from the station to the hospital. Deceased addressed Sheriff Morrison as Archie, and then said is that you McMullen. He was given every treatment at the hospital.

Mr. A. E. Campbell testified that he is a brother-in-law of the deceased Joseph Montgomery. Never before saw the knife produced. Witness could throw no light on the enquiry. Could give no reason why the deceased should have committed the act he did upon himself.

Constab'e St. Charles, being recalled, said he had no idea as to how the knife came in the cell. Deceased told witness that he found the knife in the cell. Witness had cleaned up the cell while Montgomery was there.

To a juryman.—Witness and Inspector Reburn searched his clothing thoroughly; the pockets even being turned inside out.

This completed the evidence, and Dr. Yeomans carefu'ly and pointedly reviewed the evidence submitted.

The jury then retired and were not long in reaching the verdict they recorded.

LETTERS FROM OVERSEAS

PTE. ERNEST B. HUDSON

....Somewhere in France, Sept., 25
Dear mother,—

It is quite a while since I wrote to you, and I won't promise much of a letter now.

I am keeping perfectly well, but I am just tired, we have to put in long hard days, and we don't have any Sundays, so I don't have the chance to write as much as I used to.

I have not heard from Raymond for over a week, but likely he is a lot busier than I am and working harder, and can't get time to write. I know you will be disappointed when you learn that I missed seeing Ray. We have been travelling a little lately, and one night last week we were in a French city, another fellow and I(the other fellow was French) went into a private house for supper, and a little lad (he could speak some English) tried to tell me that he was sure I had been there before, but I guessed some and showed him Ray's picture he grabbed it, and said, "that's hem, that's hem." and I found out that Raymond was there about a month ago with a sergeant for supper.

I guess I am headed for the same part of France where Ray is now and I hope to meet him yet. I don't think Ray's short letters are account of restriction, but just because he is "fed up" with this life, that is to say that his time and mind are so full of army life that he can't think of or do anything else. I am finding it awful hard myself, and don't think of any thing else but "shop" I've got beyond being homesick or lonesome and I seldom think of the past or the future, the present is about all I can look after.

You speak of Otis and his mouth organ, I guess it must be the one I dreamed of giving him last night, I thought I threw it to him as I was marching along as it made my pack too heavy. I guess you would not write at all if you had half of the noise that I sometimes have to write under and it isn't always voices, but at present there are just about 100 men in this room (a barn) and everyone talking of different things, some din.

I haven't written much but it is all that I can manage for now.

I want you to know that I am well and plugging on. Hope to get time for a good letter soon. I owe everyone letters, guess I will be home before I get a chance to answer them all. Be home! When? oh about Christmas I guess.

No! Your letters are not long enough, if you write any shorter I will not answer them, well no, not as bad as that, but your letters can not be too long. Must say bye bye for now, cheer up mother, everything will come out fine and soon.

Your loving son

ERNEST

TIRING DAYS

OXO—Ready in a moment

The fatiguing duties which ladies in every class of society are performing now-a-days have emphasised in a wonderful degree the recuperative power of Oxo Cubes.

It is remarkable how quickly a cup of Oxo will revive and strengthen you after the fatigue of a long day. Hardly less remarkable is its convenience in the form of Oxo Cubes. A touch of the bell, and in almost less time than it takes to remove your gloves, a cup of Oxo is ready.

Many ladies make a point of having a cup of Oxo before they leave home. It fortifies them against the cold and is wonderfully sustaining.

MANY careful people have found that Red Rose Tea is very economical—that it yields more cups to the pound. That is because it consists largely of Assam-Indian teas, which are famous for their full-bodied richness and strength. They make Red Rose Tea go farther.

Held District Convention at Foxboro, Ont.

The 26th annual convention of the Woman's Missionary Society was held in the Methodist church, Foxboro, on Wednesday, October 18, and proved to be one of the most successful ever held.

It was an ideal autumn day, and the ladies showed their interest by coming out in goodly number, until the church was well filled.

Belleville was well represented by members of the three auxiliaries.

The ladies of Foxboro received the delegates and their friends in their usual hospitable manner, and at the noon hour served a most delicious and appetizing luncheon, for which they are famed far and wide. The church was tastefully decorated with the patriotic colors and scripture texts, all reminding one of our loyalty to our country and to our Heavenly King.

Mrs. Gay, the District Organizer, presided, and was ably supported by the District Secretary, Mrs. Moat. The devotional exercises were conducted by Mesdames Young and Denyes at the morning session, and a praise service was led by Mesdames Thompsen and Reddick in the afternoon.

Mrs. Massey (a former beloved organizer) could not be present on account of illness, much to the regret of the delegates, but very thoughtfully sent a beautiful letter of encouragement and inspiration to be read at the convention. Rev. Jones, in a neat speech, welcomed the ladies to their village and their church, considering it an honor to have entertained so many women interested in missions. A resolution was passed that letters of sympathy be sent to Mrs. Massey and Mrs. A. G. Vermilyea, who have been devoted and active workers in the W.M.S., but are now laid aside by illness.

Reports were read from 25 auxiliaries, 2 circles and 9 bands. These reports were encouraging and showed that our women were recognizing the value of the work.

Mrs. (Rev.) Wilson of Canifton, addressed the convention on Circle and Band work, and emphasized the importance of training in youth and childhood, and while we were in a measure successful in finances and members, it was a regrettable fact that there was a falling off in the number of missionaries sent out. Two excellent papers were given by Mrs. R. B. Wiseman and Mrs. E. Sills, the subjects being respectively, "Do They Understand?" and "Consecration of Ability."

Mrs. (Dr.) Scott was responsible for the question drawer, and performed her duties in a very efficient manner, showing that she is no novice in auxiliary problems.

Mrs. Gay, who has been organizer for two years, was obliged to resign, owing to ill-health, and Mrs. MacFarlane of Foxboro, was chosen in her place. A vote of thanks and appreciation was heartily given Mrs. Gay who has done faithful service.

The sessions were enlivened by musical numbers, contributed by the Misses Wootten, Wright, White and a young lady from Albert College, while Mrs. Jones and Mrs. Clarry presided at the organ. By a canvass of the audience three new members were obtained.

The proceeds of the day amounted to $82.00, which sum goes to augment the finances of the local auxiliary.

The presence of so many of our ministers and laymen to the sessions, gave pleasure to the delegates, as it was evidence of their recognition of their efforts along missionary lines.

A very profitable and enjoyable convention was brought to a close by singing the National Anthem, followed by the Benediction.

Music And Expression Recital at Albert College

A recital of much interest was given by members of the Faculty of Music and Expression last evening at the college, and notwithstanding the inclement weather, was well attended, and a substantial sum was realized for the Red Cross fund. Mrs. Outerbridge, the new teacher of singing at the college, contributed to the programme by some beautiful songs, which she sang in charming manner. "The Merry, Merry Lark" by Nevin, was rendered with great expression. The Berceuse from "Jocelyn" was also a favorite number, to which Mrs. MacColl played the violin obligato. Mrs. Outerbridge posesses a carefully trained soprano voice, and sings with taste and expression. Miss Jessie Tuite in two readings, was as usual, well received, her interpretation of "Laddie" by Ian McLaren, being most pathetic. Prof. Staples sang "Oh, Moon of my Delight," from Iza Lehman's "In a Persian Garden," and Mrs. McColl gave as a piano solo the Love Valse by Moszkowski. Prof. Hunt played a Polonaise in E. Minor by Edward MacDowell, and acted as accompanist for all the vocal numbers.

A SPLENDID WAY TO REDUCE ONE'S WEIGHT

There is, perhaps, no one thing that shows the passing of our youth so much as the horrible tendency of some of us to put on too much weight after we have reached the age of 25 or 30. However young our face may appear, our figures "give us away."

The cause of this over-stoutness is that our stomachs convert the food we eat into fat because there is not enough oxygen in the blood to produce a proper combustion to destroy the fatty tissue. To reduce your weight go to a good druggist and get oil of orilene in capsule form, and take one after each meal. It is sold only in original sealed packages. Oil of orilene taken at meal-times gives you all the benefit of the food you eat, and at the same time dissolves the fatty tissue from any part of the body where there is excessive fat. In this way many have reduced their weight at the rate of about a lb. a day, and no flabbiness is left.

Any druggist can supply you or a large size box will be sent on receipt of $1.00. Postal note or money order. Address D. J. Little, Drug Co., Box 1240, Montreal, Can.

Britains Able To Bear Strain

Chancellor of Exchequer Confident That Needed Supplies Will be Granted—The Rate of Interest

LONDON, Oct. 20.—Reginald McKenna, Chancellor of the Exchequer, replying in the House of Commons yesterday to criticisms of the high rate of interest payable on the new treasury bonds, and the objection raised that this would lead to their being largely held abroad, said:

That is the very thing we desire. It must be remembered that we had to pay a very considerable amount day by day in the United States. At present we have to find £2,000,000 a day for every working day. That means a prodigious amount to find every six days."

Mr. McKenna prefaced his statement regarding the large amounts being spent in America by a defence of his action in paying a high rate of interest upon treasury bonds.

"It is not possible," he said, "to apply pre-war standards and to say that 5 per cent. is enough."

Mr. McKenna proceeded to explain that unless Great Britain was able to raise the needed money in the United States she would have to go short of supplies from there, which were absolutely essential to the purpose of the Allies.

Defining of the issue 6 per cent. bonds, the Chancellor mentioned the fact that within a fortnight these treasury bonds had been sold to the extent of £36,000,000. He added that the present moment of competition for money was unfavorable to the issue of a long term loan, but the Government intended to resort to such a loan when the Treasury consider it advisable, and the Government would not shrink from the fulfilment of its promise in regard to the conversion of previous loans.

The Chancellor declared he did not doubt the ability of the Empire to bear the strain of the war. Its share was not diminishing, he stated, there being an advance under the two heads of munitions and advances to Great Britain's allies, but in both of these directions he was confident the country would not grudge the needful supplies.

High Morals of Canada

Earl Grey Eulogizes Work of Empire Loyalists

LONDON, Oct., 20—The Canada Club dinner attracted widespead attention on account of the unexpected presence of Rt. Hon. A. Balfour, Sir William Robertson and Rt. Hon. Bonar Law. The most representative an influential attendance since the war began appreciated their presence as an official recognition of the Dominion's efforts and its future importance. Earl Grey made the striking illusion to the work of the United Empire Loyalists and their descendants and its effect on the North American continent, and Canada especially, as gaining moral supremacy thereby.

Mr. Balfour emphasized the fact that all the Empire's military efforts would be futile without naval supremacy. The maritime bond of union meant the enduring results of the ideals of the community of Empire.

Sir William Robertson in a soldierly speech, said that the war had made the Empire understand itself, and he eulogized the work of the Canadian soldiers in the early stages of the war and the first gas attacks. The Marquis of Lansdowne, who was absent through illness, wrote expressing his unalterable affection for Canada, and the Duke of Devonshire, in the phlegmatic, reserved style reminiscent of his uncle, Lord Hartington, said that Canada, though like Britain unorganized for war had accomplished marvels in supplying munitions as well as giving quality as well quantity. Alluding to Sir George Perley's remark that he would in Canada see a nation in the making, the Duke said rather it was a nation already made, which had amply justified its existence.

Mr. Law dwelt upon the great tact, good feeling and common sense needed to prevent friction within the Empire, the present relation of which could not continue.

The Montrealers present included Mr. Hugh Allan, Mr. Orr Lewis, Mr. Abner Kigman and Sir Montagu Allan.

Newbro's Herpicide

Aids Nature and Keeps the Scalp Clean From Dandruff

Reasonable care and effort are all that are required to enable almost any woman to have good hair. When the hair falls out and is stringy, uneven, dry, brittle and generally unsightly, the condition is nearly always due to dandruff.

Before the hair will grow naturally and luxuriantly, the scale-like accumulation must be removed and the dandruff eradicated. That is what Newbro's Herpicide does. It is an aid to nature. Herpicide keeps the scalp clean, adds a softness and luster to the hair which indicates health. It not only prevents the hair from falling out but causes it to become one of woman's greatest charms.

Beautiful hair and lots of it may be the reward of every woman willing to devote a little personal effort to the use of the First and Original Germ-Remedy for Dandruff. Herpicide stops itching of the scalp. It has an exquisite odor.

You can obtain a trial size bottle and booklet telling all about the hair by sending ten cents in postage or silver to The Herpicide Co., Dept. S, Detroit, Mich.

Your dealer sells Herpicide in two sizes, 50 cents and $1.00, and guarantees satisfactory results or money refunded. Insist upon having genuine Herpicide and not some "off brand" said to be "just as good" preparation. The substitute costs you just as much as the real article. Why take chances?

THIS IS THE 814TH DAY THE BRITISH EMPIRE HAS BEEN AT WAR WITH GERMANY.

A DOUBLE ALLEGIANCE

The writer, in conversation with a Massachusetts German of prominence, last summer, asked whether his declaring allegiance to the United States affected his standing as a German subject. The reply was that even though he became an American citizen, he was subject to the call of his home country for ten years, at the end of which period, only, was he free from subjection to the German Government.

The Hamilton Herald, in taking up this phase of German loyalty, coincides with the above version, stating editorially that "a German who becomes a naturalized citizen of another country is thus bound by a double allegiance. Though a citizen of his adopted country he is still a subject of the Kaiser and is expected in an emergency to be loyal to his Fatherland. The experience of the last two years has shown that in very many cases where this divided allegiance exists the Germans conceive their first duty to be to the land of their birth. As they were German subjects first in order of time, so they are German subjects first in order of preference. This explains the extreme, bullheaded pro-Germanism of the American hyphenates. Multitudes of German-American citizens are not American citizens in name only; in spirit, as well as in fact, they are still German subjects."

Such naturalized citizens cannot safely be trusted. And any class of aliens that cannot be trusted with all the privileges and powers of citizenship ought not to be citizens at all. In the words of Vivien's song, they should be "trusted not at all or all in all."

THE SEPTEMBER LOAN

The October Commercial Letter issued by The Canadian Bank of Commerce aptly remarks that "of far greater significance than the mere amount of the subscriptions to the September loan of $100,000,000 is the evidence thus furnished of the national determination to supply money as well as men to carry on the war until a satisfactory peace is assured. Although the aggregate of the subscriptions has not yet been officially announced, it is known to be in excess of twice the amount called for. This gratifying result, to which all classes freely contributed, cannot fail to lend encouragement to the cause of the Allies.

"With the proceeds of the loan the Minister of Finance will be able to provide for the requirements of the country, and for Treasury notes amounting to $32,000,000 which mature November 1st and December 1st, as well as to lend to the Imperial Government for munitions purchased in Canada, $25,000,000 in November and $25,000,000 in December. As this latter operation will necessitate further borrowing later on, the banks have arranged to advance to the Dominion Government $25,000,000 in January and a further $25,000,000 in February against four months' Treasury Bills. During September approximately $112,000,000 of the amount advanced by the Imperial authorities for war purposes was funded and forms part of the collateral for the recent loan obtained in New York."

The chief factors in placing the affairs of the nation in a favorable position at so critical a time are the continued expansion of our foreign trade and higher prics for our chief products. The ability of the country to keep on financing its own requirements and at the same time to lend money to the Imperial Munitions Board depends upon the continuance of munition orders, and upon the exercise of the strictest economy in every direction by the people as a whole.

BOURASSA AND LAURIER ## IS THERE AN ALLIANCE?

It is the general opinion in the country, particularly in Ontario, that there is a political game of deception being played by the Liberal-Nationalist forces in the Province of Quebec, and that in due time the truth will be forthcoming, that a secret alliance exists between Bourassa and the Liberal party leaders to secure the return of Sir Wilfrid Laurier to office and the restoration of Quebec Nationalist influence in Ottawa.

In order to make this alliance as effective as possible, and at the same time conceal its existence and aim from public view, it is believed that there is being practiced a clever and trickey game, which takes the form of attacks on Sir Wilfrid Laurier by Henri Bourassa in the Province of Quebec, with the object of assisting Sir Wilfrid Laurier in the Province of Ontario. If so, is it not evidence that there is a Bourassa-Laurier alliance? Mr. Bourassa has pledged himself to render the most effective indirect aid within his power to return Sir Wilfrid to office.

Let us ask a few questions:

Where is Sir Wilfrid Laurier most in need of aid?

How can Bourassa best assist Laurier in Ontario?

By make-believe abuse of Laurier in Quebec as an Imperialist and a friend of England.

Every time Bourassa thus attacks Laurier as an Imperialist in Quebec, does not the Toronto Globe cite the "attack" as a reason why Laurier should be supportd in Ontario?

Is it not the old, old Michaevellian game, played by Laurier for forty years, resurrected in a new and more unsuspecting role?

For example, Bourassa "attacked" Laurier as being too English and too imperialistic. The next day the Globe contains a column long editorial calling upon Ontario to support Laurier because Bourassa assailed him.

As evidence of this, on the very day that Bourassa was making his attack on Laurier, Bourassa's chief lieutenant, Armand Lavergne, was speaking in support of and from the same platform with Roch Lanctot, one of the leading Quebec Liberals in Parliament, a particular friend and confidant of Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

Let the reader not forget that Lanctot is the Quebec Liberal that spoke against the War Credit vote in Parliament last session, and that he is the man who inspired the bi-lingual resolution which Sir Wilfrid farthered, and voted in favor of. His close association with Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Mr. Armand Lavergne at one and the same time and his recent anti-British utterances, would indicate a surrender of Quebec Liberals to the Nationalist leaders as the price of Bourassa's effective and cleverly concealed support.

In the recent Quebec Provincial elections did not the Nationalists appear on every Liberal platform? Was not the alliance of the two parties publicly announced? Is this not evidence enough of the Nationalist support of the Liberals in that election, and of Liberal support of the bi-lingual resolution at Ottawa?

The people of Canada, and especially the people of Ontario, need to guard against this sinister combination. No "attack" that can ever be conceived by Henri Bourassa can efface the anti-British record of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his compatriot Bourassa.

Sir Wilfrid was not an Imperialist when he opposed Confederation.

He was not an Imperialist when he endorsed and condoned the rebellion of Louis Riel.

He was not an Imperialist when he stood for commercial union with the United States and its peril of becoming an "adjunct" of the United States, as foretold by President Taft.

He was not an Imperialist when in Boston, in 1891, he foretold and advocated separation from Britain, which he unblushingly repeated in the House of Commons.

He was not an Imperialist when he attempted to block and delay Canada's assistance to the Empire in the South African war.

He was not an Imperialist when he opposed Canadian naval aid to the Empire in 1902 and 1907.

He was not an Imperialist when he sought to sacrifice Canadian independence in 1911.

He was not an Imperialist when in the House of Commons a few months before the war he eulogized the Kaiser as a bulwark of peace and a great moral force.

He was not an imperialist when he fought and instructed his majority in the Senate to kill the Naval Aid Bill in 1913, which encouraged Germany to precipitate the present terrible conflict.

We know, that the great majority of the Liberal party are as devoted to Canada and as loyal to the Empire as are the rest of Canadians. We know that there are thousands of Liberals in uniform, and that the war has brought mourning to thousands of Liberal homes.

The time has arrived for plain speaking; overpowering events in the recent months have amply shown that the separatists, the anti-Imperialists, the little Canadians, the racialists and Canadian sectionalists are behind Sir Wilfrid Laurier. Is not the Liberal party today grossly misrepresented by its leaders? Is it not completely in the power and under the influence of the Nationalist of Quebec? In office would not Sir Wilfrid be the Laurier of old? Closely allied as he is with the Nationalists would he not govern Canada according to their whims and at their dictation?

When the next election comes, Canadians must remember:—A vote for Laurier is also a vote for Bourassa, and his policy.

If Sir Wilfrid is not an Imperialist? And he has repeatedly stated that he is not.

What is he?

A Separationist! That he has often declared himself to be.

Logically, do not those who vote for him, affirm his separation principles?

Think of it.

Current Comment

James Murdock, of Winnipeg, Vice-President of the Brotherhood of Trainmen, has announced that there will be no strike of C.P.R. employees, as the dispute is being satisfactorily settled with Grant Hall at the conference now in progress.

The situation in Greece constitutes the champion puzzle of the war. It is quite probable that the Greek leaders themselves do not know how they stand. Certainly they are not in a position to foretell the future of their country.

A correspondent in London of a Dutch newspaper writes that when he heard the first gun fired in a recent Zeppelin raid he got out of bed, but retired immediately on perceiving that the attack was in another part of the city, several miles away. Soon he was lulled to sleep by the boom of the guns. "That I can go to sleep whilst the anti-aircraft guns announce a Zeppelin raid is no other than that which every Londoner can do. The fact is we are used to it." he concludes.—Montreal Gazette.

One of the measures of defence against Germany which her allied enemies have agreed to adopt is the revision of their naturalization laws. France is taking the lead. The French government has introduced in the senate chamber of deputies a measure providing that no letters of naturalization shall be granted to an alien who by the laws of his native country retains his original citizenship after having acquired a new one. This measure applies to Germany only.—Hamilton Herald.

Cats as Bird Destroyers

In an address on the protection of bird life, delivered recently before the Commission of Conservation, attention was directed to the fact that the domestic cat is one of the most destructive enemies of wild birds. This contention is supported by the following quotation from a report by the Massachusetts State Board of Agriculture.

"Most people do not realize how destructive cats are to bird life because their attention has never been called to the facts and because most feline depredations occur at night. In my investigations much evidence has been secured which is convincing. In the year 1903, at the instance of the secretary of the State Board of Agriculture, an inquiry was undertaken regarding the decrease of birds in Massachusetts. As a part of this investigation a questionaire was sent out to some 400 correspondents, which was filled out and returned by more than 200. In response to a question regarding the effect produced on birds by their natural enemies, 82 correspondents reported cats as very destructive to birds. This was a much larger number than those reporting any other natural enemy as destructive. Nearly all who reported on the natural enemies of birds placed the cat first among destructive animals."

THEQUESTION OF A JOB

As Widow Watt bent industriously over her wash-tub she was treated to polite conversation by a male friend, who presently turned the conversation to matrimony, winding up with a proposal of marriage.

"Are ye sure ye love me?" sighed the buxom widow, as she paused in her wringing.

The man vowed he did.

For a few minutes there was silence as the widow continued her labor. Thensuddenly she raised her head and asked:

"You ain't lost yer job, 'ave yer?"

"In my opinion, no other medicine in the world is so curative for Constipation and Indigestion as "Fruit-a-tives". I was a sufferer from these complaints for five years, and my sedentary occupation, Music, brought about a kind of Intestinal Paralysis—with nasty Headaches, belching gas, drowsiness after eating, and Pain in the Back. I tried pills and medicines of physicians, but nothing helped me. Then I was induced to try "Fruit-a-tives", and now for six months I have been entirely well.

I advise any one who suffers from that horrible trouble—Chronic Constipation with the resultant indigestion, to try "Fruit-a-tives", and you will be agreeably surprised at the great benefit you will receive". A. ROSENBURG.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

SEASONABLE COOKERY

Pepper Relish.—Cut 6 red and 6 green peppers (the large kind) in halves lengthwise and remove seeds and stem ends. Add 6 peeled onions and put all through a meat chopper. Put in a saucepan, cover with boiling water and let stand 5 minutes. Drain and add 1 cup sugar, 2 tablespoons salt, 1½ cups vinegar. Bring to boiling point and simmer 20 minutes. Store in glass jars.

Baked Rarebit.—Cut 1 lb. soft, mild cheese in thin slices. Add 2 tablespoons melted butter to 2½ cups stale breadcrumbs, and season with salt, and pepper or paprika. Sprinkle a layer of the crumbs in a buttered bakingdish, then cover with one-third of the cheese, then put on more crumbs and continue with alternate layers until the dish is full, crumbs on top. Beat 3 eggs slightly and add 1½ cups milk and pour over mixture. Bake in a moderate oven 25 minutes and serve at once.

Columbia Pork Chops.—Take rather thick pork chops and removing some of the fat. Skewer the tenderloins on to the chops. Place in a shallow pan, season with salt and pepper, and sprinkle the top with dried breadcrumbs. Pour in boiling water to half depth of chops, 1½ hours. Remove the cover, put buttered crumbs on top of each chop and bake brown. Serve on a hot dish, garnished with parsley, and with or without tomato sauce.

Cocoanut Rice Pudding.—Wash the rice and put it in water, using 1½ cups to ½ cup rice. Stir in ½ teaspoon salt and place, closely covered, over the fire. Boil until most of the water is absorbed. Add a little more water, 2 tablespoons butter and one or more tablespoons dry cocoanut. Mix well with a fork. Cover closely and set on the back of the stove where it can steam but not boil. When the liquid is all absorbed turn the rice into the pudding dish, add sufficient milk, a beaten egg, and sugar to taste. Stir and bake in a moderate oven until the custard is set. Serve very hot. This is good either for dessert or a hot supper dish.

Graham Pudding.—One cup sweet milk, 1 cup stoned raisins, 2 teaspoons soda dissolved in 1 tablespoon water, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, ¼ teaspoon cloves, 2 cups Graham flour. Steam 3 hours. All the measurements are level.

Beasurements in Cooking.—Nowadays in practically all recipes level measurements are required. For instance, if a cupful of flour is called for it should be levelled over the top with a knife; a teaspoonful of soda or baking powder calls for the same. In old recipes a rounded teaspoonful of baking powder was usually understood, that is rounding as much above the spoon as the spoon rounds underneath or equivalent to 2 level teaspoons. The following directions may be useful:—One tablespoonful equals 3 level teaspoonfuls; 1 cup equals 10 level tablespoonfuls; 1 standard cupful equals 1 half pint; 1 pint equals 2 cupfuls; 4 cupfuls equals 1 quart.

VEGETABLES IN WINTER

Be sure that winter vegetables are kept in a cool, dry place. They should be dried before storing. Carrots, beets and turnips will keep very nicely packed in dry earth or sand. Often vegetables shrink because they have not been perfectly ripe when gathered. If quite ripe the skin, on either fruit or vegetables, forms a comparatively impervious covering, through which but little moisture can escape. If not well ripened the moisture passes through and the crispness is gone.

The following very useful hints have been taken from Mrs. Abel's bulletin on "Care of Food in the Home," issued by the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture:

Keep potatoes in a cool, dry, dark place. Do not allow sprouts to grow in the spring.

Pumpkins and squash, to keep well, must be thoroughly ripe. Keep them on a shelf in a dry cellar, well separated from each other, and from time to time dry them off with a cloth.

Cabbages may be placed in barrels, roots uppermost.

Celery should be neither trimmed nor washed, but packed, heads up, in long, deep boxes filled with dry earth. (Do not let the earth get into the hearts.)

Tomatoes may be kept until January if wiped dry and placed on straw-covered racks in the cellar. They should be firm and full grown, not yet beginning to turn. As they ripen take out and use. If any should become soft or decayed remove them at once. (Decaying fruit or vegetables will infect those in contact with them.

Keep choice apples or pears wrapped separately in soft paper.

Cranberries, after careful looking over to remove soft ones, are packed in a crock and covered with water. A plate or round board placed on top and weighted, keeps the berries under. The water should be changed once a month.

The Man Responsible

(Farmer's Advocate)

We occasionally hear a man grumble that his land is poor and therefore he cannot make a success of his farming operations. From extensive observation we are inclined to believe that in the majority of cases small crops and poor returns are not the fault of the farm, but of the farmer. We have seen abandoned blow-sand farms so poor that they would scarcely grow twitch grass, mulleins, or milk-weeds converted from barren plains to fertile fields. The man who cropped them to death and was responsible for their disintegration into the blow-sand condition, finally decided that he had a poor farm, so poor in fact that it crowded him off. The other man saw possibilities in the alnd for, when he dug into it, he noticed that it contained moisture even in the driest summer season. He knew also that his predecessor had cropped and cropped, taking away year after year and returning nothing. He started with rye as about the only thing that would grow on the sand and he plowed in the crop; he put what manure he could scrape together on the land, but relied chiefly on green manuring. In a season or two the land responded with a fine catch of red clover, and to-day thriving orchards blossom and bear on the former barren waste, and it is all due to the farmer not the farm.

We have seen a wet farm crowd its owner off and he complained that it was the fault of the farm. Another man came along, saw possibilities in the land which he picked up at a small price, bought it, and spent a few dollars per acre in tile drains. Now the farm is one of the best in the neighborhood. It always was, but it needed a farmer, who understood it and was willing to lay out a little money to make more mony. Too often men are short-sighted, saving a dollar to put in the bank at three per cent. which properly invested in something to build up the farm might in a few years make them three dollars to bank instead of one. When you hear a man grumbling that it is the farm's fault because he has not made a success, or when you yourself are inclined to blame things on the land, remember that there are several chances in the farm's favor and that the man is likely most to blame.

St. Vitus Dance Can Be Easily Cured

A TONIC FOR THE BLOOD AND NERVES ALL THAT IS NEEDED

Many a child has been called awkward, has been punished in school for not keeping still or for dropping things, when the trouble was really St. Vitus Dance. This trouble may appear at any age but it is most often met between the ages of six and fourteen. The most frequent cause of the disease is poor blood, aggravated by indoor confinement, or mental strain at school. Under these conditions the blood fails to carry nourishment to the nerves and the child begins to show listlessness and jerking of the limbs and body follow. A remedy that cures St Vitus dance and cures it so thoroughly that no trace of the disease remains is Dr. Williams Pink Pills which renew the blood thus feeding and strengthening the starved nerves. This is the only way to cure the trouble and parents should lose no time in giving this treatment if their child seems nervous or irritable. Mrs. Wm. A. Squires, Cannington, Ont., says: "My only daughter, now fourteen years of age was troubled for several years with St Vitus dance. She was so bad that at times she would lose control of her limbs and her face and eyes would be contorted. We had medical advice and medicine, but it did not help her In fact we thought the trouble growing worse, and finally we had to take her from school. About a year ago we began giving her Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and by the time she had taken five boxes she was completely cured, and is now a fine, healthy girl. I firmly believe we owe this to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and are very grateful for her restoration to perfect health."

You can get these pills from any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville. Ont.

FARM AND GARDEN

PAINTING OF FARM IMPLEMENTS

The painting of farm implements for their protection and preservation has apparently received very little consideration by Canadian farmers, if one may judge by the information secured by the Commission of Conservation in the survey conducted on 100 farms in each of four counties in Ontario. In Waterloo, not one farmer who painted his implements, was found among the hundred, in Carleton only one, in Northumberland three, and in Dundas eleven.

The use of paint on both the wooden and metal parts of machinery gives a protecting cover against deterioration by use and weather, apart altogether from the general improvement in appearance. The cost of prepared paint for the purpose is very small, and experience in the work is unnecessary.

The initial cost of farm implements means to the farmers a large outlay. This investment should be protected. Depreciation from rot and rust is rapid, when once these conditions are established. For the actual money saving as well as for the more prosperous appearance it gives to the farm and farmer, the regular overhauling and painting of the farm implements should be a recognized part of the year's work.

PAPER PRICES AND FOREST FIRES

Independent of other causes operating to increase the price of paper to Canadian publishers, the constant destruction of spruce and balsam forests by preventable fires has played a serious role. Without question, there is abundance of woods to meet all demands of paper mills, but abundance and accessibility are frequently two very different things. Transportation distances between the woods and the mills is a factor of first importance, as not a few unsuccessful Canadian and American paper mills have been forced to realize. Every additional mile the paper mill is obliged to travel for logs, the costs of the paper product will reflect an advance.

E. H. Backus, President of the Minnesota and Ontario Paper Co. at Fort Frances, Ont., stated recently that the increasing inaccessibility of pulp limits from the mills is making paper dearer. Unlike small saw mills the permanently located pulp mill cannot pack up its equipment and follow the retreating forests. Forest engineers are agreed however, that with care in operating limits and thorough protection against fire, pulp wood forest can be perpetuated indefinitely; accessibility of supplies need be lessened very little

Up to the present stage in Canada the lack of modern fire protection for which the Governments, as trustees of the timber resources, are chiefly responsible has reduced the near-at-hand bodies of pulp wood for more than the actual cut of logs. The Northern Ontario fires last summer are an illustration of this fact. In the 1,200 miles devasted were substantial quantities of paper making materials. In the same fire an Ontario paper company lost 400,000 cords of wood. ready piled in the mill yard. Quebec's 1916 fires also cleared out large quantities of spruce and balsam as well as white pine. The forest fire record in Ontario and Quebec during the past ten years account for vastly more forest wealth than has passed into lumber and pulp.

In the pulp areas at the mill door are allowed to disappear in flames, the longer drive or rail haul automatically increases the cost of manufacture Without doubt, other causes than unheeded fires are at the root of the paper price advances in war time, but it remains true that since the first paper factory in Canada begun to operate, the fire fiend has been laying his tax on the paper consumer.

A WOMAN'S WAY

"She's like all other women."

"In what way?"

"She imagines all a man has to do to get his salary raised is to ask for it."

"Well?"

"And I can't convince her that the boss won't give me more money unless I earn it. She insists on blaming me because we're poor."

Too Much Work

Farmers are too often little more than day laborers. They work so hard for long hours each day that they have little time or inclination to plan a system of management for their farms. They do too much work and not enough thinking. True it is that labor is scarce, and work must be done but it is possible on most places to lighten the labor considerably by planning it better. The majority of Ontario farms, particularly since the war began, are one-man farms, and the farmer must keep "slugging" away from early morning till late at night in order to keep the place running, the chores done, crops harvested, and to manage any preparation for next season's crop. It takes considerable country spirit and pride in the ownership of land, with good stock, to live down the lure of the town or city with its shorter hours and more leisure. It will take much talk on the part of the city folks to convince the farmers that under present conditions, there is too much work on the farm Farming properly carried on is a business, and it requires ability and energy to make it the success which every ambitious farmer desires to make it. No manager of a city enterprise is called upon to work with his hands all the time. The man at the helm of a big business does his most valuable work with his head. In no uncertain measure the same should be true of the farmer. We do not mean by this that the farmer should do no work with his hands, because under conditions as they will obtain in Canada for some time, it will be necessary that the farmer work as well as think. But he should have enough leisure time to lay and carry out plans. There should not be so much work, work, work in the business of plowing and operating a farm to tie the owner up for fifteen or sixteen hours every day in the year except Sundays, and four, five or six hours on each of these. The most successful farmers are not always those who slave and serve all their lives, but are very often found among those who exercise a certain amount of the trading instinct, buying here and selling there to advantage, and using a certain amount of leisure time in planning the farm work, believing it good policy to pay some one else a liberal wage to do a great deal of this work, releasing the owner and manager to carry on the straight business of the farm. No one can blame the farmer and his wife, growing older on the farm, if they both yearn for a less strenuous life, retired in the near-by town, and yet we have seen so many leave the farm and move to town and ever after be dissatisfied, wishing themselves back on the land. After all there is for the man who has lived his many years on the farm, a certain something in farming which gives him greater pleasure than he can find elsewhere, although it may be that it is necessary for him to try the city or town in order to be convinced. Yes, the average farmer has altogether too much work to do himself to be the man which his business calls upon him to be, but there seems to be no remedy other than for him to work his head at the same time as he does his hands and in so far as possible lighten the actual labor of the farm. And the same is true of the farmer's wife.—Farmer's Advocate.

TO CURE CATARRHAL DEAFNESS AND HEAD NOISES

Persons suffering from catarrhal deafness and head noises will be glad to know that this distressing affliction can be successfully treated at home by an internal remedy that in many instances has effected a complete cure after all else has failed. Sufferers who could scarcely hear a watch tick have had their hearing restored to such an extent that the tick of a watch was plainly audible seven or eight inches away from either ear.

Therefore, if you know someone who is troubled with head noises of catarrh, or catarrhal deafness, cut out this formula and hand to them, and you will have been the means of saving some poor sufferer perhaps from total deafness. The prescription can be prepared at home, and is made as follows:

Secure from your druggist 1 oz. Parmint (Double Strength), about 75c. worth. Take this home, and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and 4 oz. of granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day.

The first dose should begin to relieve the distressing head noises, headache, dullness, cloudy thinking, etc., while the hearing rapidly returns as the system is invigorated by the tonic action of the treatment. Loss of smell and mucus dropping in the back of the throat, are other symptoms that show the presence of catarrhal poison, and which are often entirely overcome by this efficacious treatment. Nearly ninety per cent. of all ear troubles are said to be directly caused by catarrh, therefore, there must be many people whose hearing can be restored by this simple home treatment.

Every person who is troubled with head noises, catarrhal deafness or catarrh in any form, should give this prescription a trial.

Important Note: In ordering Parmint always specify that you want double strength. Your druggist has it or he can easily get it for you. If not send 75c. to the International Laboratories 74 St. Antoine St., Montreal, Que., Can., and they will supply you. Send Postal Note or Money Order.

THE SPIRIT OF WAR

The special correspondent of the London Times at British Headquarters writes:—It was full morning when we left our post at the side of the ridge, and since then the time has been one blurred impression of all the wonderful scenes of victorious warfare—the immense spectacle of the movement behind the lines of the British Army in time of battle, the clamour of guns, the prisoners, in twos and threes or in large batches of hundreds, our wounded coming painfully down on foot or stretchers, and in ambulances; and all is suffused with the hue of victory.

I have seen—alas!—many and have talked with some two score of wounded, and I have not met one whose voice did not ring true and whose eyes, even in his pain were not alight with the fire of triumph. There have been thick-set men getting on to middle age, hard and weather beaten and tanned by exposure and battle; and there have been slim youths with downy cheeks and wistful eyes, and soft hair fit for a mother's stroking; and they were fighting men all. Not one of them but laughed as he told the incoherent story of his own litle gallant bit in the great fight; not one who did not show in his bearing the consciousness that he had borne himself well with his comrades.

It is a wonder that never fails but is always new; the spirit of which these men of ours possess, from no matter what corner of the Empire they may have come. One wonders where the grumblers, the cowards, the mean people whom one thought one met in ordinary life have gone. They are not here. Or, if they are, they are uplifted and transfigured. They doubtless, many of them, could not explain or express it, but some wind has blown upon them, the inspiration of a great cause has come into them, some sense of comradeship and brotherhood inspires them, something has made true soldiers and gallant men of them all.

German Baptist At Convention

Ontario's Germans are With Allies Though Race Sympathy is Inerasable—Christianity at Stake

HAMILTON, Oct. 20.—Baptists are nothing if not radical, whether in theology or politics and the twenty-eighth annual Baptist convention of Ontario and Quebec went immediately to the rook ot things at the opening session Wednesday afternoon in James Street Baptist Church.

Rev. James Strachan, of Galt, in a vigorous paper on the work of the church in the light of the present world crisis, took a very pessimistic view of the present and past state of down to the very root of Christianity and starting afresh at the beginning. He would set aside the teachings of St. Paul for the sake of finding a better interpretation of the teaching of Jesus. This rather gloomy view of things received some support from Rev. W. Wiesle, a German Baptist minister, of New Hamburg, who, while holding that he was an ally of Great Britain, thought that the war was a condemnation of militarism throughout the world, and must come to an end if Christianity is to survive. Other speakers protested strongly against the view that Christianity was at stake. They contended for the preaching of the old evangelists as the only means of re-constructing the shattered scheme of things.

The president of the convention is Rev. Dr. I. G. Brown, of Toronto, who took as his subject, "War's Challenge to Faith."

Rev. W. Wiesie, in leading the discussion, said he admired the courage of the convention in asking one who was a German to lead the discussion. He wanted to assure the convention that the German people in th German Baptist Church were not pro-German. "We are heart and soul with you ,although we have deep down a little German sympathy, which we cannot erase."

CHALLENGE TO CHURCH

"They tell us that Christianity has failed. If this be so, then education and every constructive agency in the world has failed. Christianity has not failed. This war is a challenge to the Church, as was slavery. For years the Church and slavery lived side by side until one day it was decided that Christianity and slavery were incompatible. Today we are awakened to the fact that Christianity and was are incompatible. War must be abolished. This can only be done by the reconstruction of the social order throughout the whole world. We We have had our dogmas about God, but have we had God? We can afford to forget these petty things that are sep separating Christians in order to find God. We must make the state of things that brought about this war impossible."

"Is the war a lapse into barbarism, or is it the birth-pang of a new epoch in the world's history?" asked Rev. James Strachan, of Galt, in a paper on "The Work of the Churches in the Light of the Present World Crisis." Today the Christian Church of Germany supports loyally ehe Government of the Central Empires. We are in danger of emphasizing this world's material needs at the expense of spiritual needs. The work of the Church is to re-state the religion of God. We must go back to Jesus Christ, freed from all the traditions, back to the real Jesus. We must ascertain the mind of Christ on present problems and apply his method of dealing with the present crisis.

"We must have an interpretation of Christ other than Jewish. The interpretation of St. Paul is not what the world wants. To frighten a man into accepting Christ is to make him selfcentred. In consequence the church is filled with mean and petty people who must be pampered, and are too ready to take offense."

KINGSTON

Oct. 20—St. Lukes Church News Association was reorganized last night in the Parish House. Officers elected for the ensuing year were: Rev. Canon Former. Hon. Pres., Rev. J. W. Foster, Hon. vice-Pres., E. P. Parkins Pres., J. W. Watts vice-Pres., G. Comton, Sec.-Treas., Refreshments Com. A. J. Murray, A. J. Shannon, J. Berry, H. Jennings.

The organist of St. Lukes Church having resigned her position the Rector and wardens have at last decided to change the present unworkable dual control of choir leader and organist and select an orgonist capable of training the church choir. This course of action received the hearty approval of all those present at the meeting. Kind works were said about the choir leader.

THE EIGHT HOUR DAY

Across the border there has been of late, considerable agitation re an eight-hour day, and railway men have succeeded in getting legislation to that effect so far as they are concerned, and now there is talk of a universal eight-hour day in that country. It is interesting to note that through the past decades the tendency, particularly in the cities has been toward shorter hours. Even the farmer does not work from daylight till dark in harvest time as he once did, although his hours are still long when chores and odds and ends are considered. The ten-hour day is practically universal on the farms in this country at the present time; but it would take considerable persuasive power to make the farmer believe that he would get more work done and greater efficiency from an eight-hour day that he would from the present ten-hour system. A universal eight-hour day seems a long way off and for the sake of the man on the land we hope that it is. We would like to see him get as short hours as possible, but in the rush of the seeding, haying, harvesting, and fall work, the eight-hour day with the available labor supply, would be an impossibility.

FIRST CANADIAN TO FALL FOR EMPIRE

Presentation of Portrait of Gordon Betts to St. George's Church Montreal

MONTREAL, Oct. 20.—A unique ceremony took place in St. George's Church parish rooms last night when the officers and scouts of the 12th troop (St George's Canadian Boy Scouts) presented to the rector a portrait of a former scout, Gordon Betts, who was the first Canadian to fall in the great war.

The inscription reads:—"Scout Gordon Betts, of the 12th Montreal Troop, St. George's, who as Private Betts of the 5th Royal Highlanders, was the first Canadian to give his life for King and Country in the Great War. Accidentally shot while on sentry duty at Soulanger Canal, August 27th, 1916."

The rector received the photo on behalf of the church. Mrs. Betts, who also has given her husband in the same cause was present with her daughter.

Death came suddenly last evening to Mrs. Henry Gavin an aged lady who resides in the village of Canifton. Between the hours of 5 and 6 o'clock she left her home and went to a grocery store where she made a purchase. She left the store and that was the last she was seen alive. At about 6.30 her lifeless body was found between the gate and the house where she resided. Heart disease was the cause of death. Deceased was 78 years of age and had lived all her life in this country. An aged husband and a daughter,, Miss Kitty at home, survives.

TODAY'S MARKET

The attendance upon the Belleville market this morning was large especially in the inside. Prices obtained for all produce were good. Fresh dairy butter was rather scarce and sold readily at from 42 to 45 cents per pound, the former price was paid for basket lots. Strictly fresh eggs sold at 38 and 40 cents per dozen, in a few cases basket lots were obtained at a slightly lower figure. Dressed chickens and ducks were offered for sale in considerable quantities, the former varied in prices according to the size and quality, the ruling price was $1.00 per pair and as high as $1.25 per pair was secured for exceptionally large fowl. Ducks sold at $1.25 to $1.60 per pair according to quality. Potatoes were rather scarce and sold at 40 cents per peck, and $2.25 per bag, other vegetables were more reasonable in price. Garden produce such as beets, parsnips, cabbage, cauliflower and lettuce found ready purchasers at remunerative prices. Apples sold at from 25 to 40 cents per peck according to quality.

On Lookout For Recruits

Lieut. W. G. Williams, arrived in Belleville on Thursday night from Barriefield camp to take charge of the Army Service Corps work in connection with the 235th battalion.

Lt. Williams wishes to secure recruits for immediate Overseas duty in Horse and Mechanical Transport.

These fascinating branches of the service should appeal to many who are used to handling horses or driving cars.

Recruits for the Motor Transport will receive much valuable practical instruction in the great repair shops of England and France as well as the driving end.

Anyone wishing information about the above should apply to Lt. Williams at the Army Service Corps office on Church street next to the county offices.

Sailly-Saillise l Was Taken in Fifteen Minutes

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY NEAR COMBLES, via Chantilly, Oct. 20.—From a staff correspondent of the Associated Press.—Fifteen minutes of infantry fighting proved sufficient for the French army to capture the strong position of Sailly-Saillisel from the Germans and to give the Allies command of five miles of the Bapaume road.

The Allies' air mastery deprived the Germans of their eyes; consequently the German artillery fire was ineffective, both in an endeavor to destroy the opposing batteries and in an effort to prevent reinforcements and supplies from reaching the attacking force through a curtain of fire.

The Associated Press correspondent watched the fight from beginning to end from a hillock near Combles. The fire from the British and French guns had continued for a long time. The infantry officers had synchronized their watches and were ordered to deliver the attack exactly at 11.45 o'clock.

The moment arrived; the range of the artillery, which had been battering Sailly-Saillisel, was increased a few hundred yards; the infantrymen's heads appeared over the parapets, then, in dashes, the men covered the short open spaces, throwing grenades, and within a quarter of an hour rockets sent up showed the airmen observing from the clouds that the position had been won. The airmen flew rapidly to the field commandants' headquarters to take back the news

What is Transpiring Among the Soldier Boys Now in Belleville

All articles and notes under this head are passed by the commanding officer of the 235th Regiment and authentic in every particular.

The 235th Battalion, which arrived in Belleville yesterday for winter quarters, is 400 strong, and there are about 40 more recruits to come in from outlying stations.

Lt.-Col. Scobell, the commanding officer of the 235th Batt., holds the record for M. D. No. 3, for every month since inspection of the battalion for recruiting.

The battalion this afternoon attended the funeral of the late Private William J. Rawlingson of Belleville, a returned soldier from the front.

A recruiting meeting will be held this evening on the corner of Bridge and Front streets for the 235th Battalion. The speakers will be Rev. W. G. Clarke, Chaplain; Lt. Col. Scobell. Capt. E. H. McLean and Mrs. Parsons, a most talented lady, who has four sons at the front. The regimental band will be in attendance.

At the Griffin Opera House on Sunday evening a recruiting meeting will take place. The 235th regimental band will be in attendance, and prominent speakers will be present to give addresses.

The 235th Battalion has just completed a three months' trek in Northumberland and Durham Counties. The men have been under canvas seven weeks and marched over 900 miles. During the trek 125 recruits were enlisted. The battalion has permission to recruit in Hastings County.

A drumhead service for the 235th Battalion will be held in the Armouries, Bridge street, to-morrow, (Sunday) P.M., at 9.25 o'clock, conducted by the Chaplain, Captain the Rev. W. G. Clarke. Citizens of Belleville are welcome. The battalion band will furnish music.

The members of the battalion feel keenly the loss of their last recruit. At Garden Hill a fine speciment of a red fox was secured from a farmer, and it died while enroute to the city. The animal was named Private Guy Fox, No. 1,027,675. It had become a great pet with the members of the battalion.

Capt. McLean, the popular and genial paymaster of the battalion is well and favorably known in Belleville, being a son of Mrs. E. B. McLean, residing on Hillcrest Avenue, in this city. Two sisters of the officer live here.

The members of the battalion, although hvaing been in the city for a day, are beginning to feel at home, and their presence here are welcomed by all citizens..

Doctor Tells How To Strengthen Eyesight 50 per cent In One Week's Time In Many Instances

A Free Prescription You Can Have Filled and Use at Home.

Philadelphia, Pa., Do you wear glasses? Are you a victim of eye strain or other eye weaknesses? If so, you will be glad to know that according to Dr. Lewis there is real hope for you. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored through the principle of this wonderful free prescription. One man says, after trying it: "I was almost blind; could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without any glasses and my eyes do not water any more. At night they would pain dreadfully; now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for fifteen days everything seems clear. I can even read fine print without glasses." It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by following the simple rules. Here is the prescription: Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Drop one Bon-Opto tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and allow to dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes two to four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start and inflammation will quickly disappear. If your eyes are bothering you, even a little, take steps to save them now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have been saved if they had cared for their eyes in time.

Note: Another prominent Physician to whom the above article was submitted, said: "Bon-Opto is a very remarkable remedy. Its constituent ingredients are well known to eminent eye specialists and widely prescribed by them. The manufacturers guarantee it to strengthen eyesight 50 per cent. in one week's time in many instances or refund the money. It use in almost every family." It is sold in Belleville by J. S. McKeown, W. H. Lattimer, and druggists generally.

PARALYSIS LAID TO DOGS

Prize Winners From New York Blamed in Montreal

MONTREAL, Oct. 20—Prize-winning dogs from New York, which were exhibited at a dog show about three weeks ago, are supposed to be the medium through which infantile paralysis was introduced, and medical authorities here are deeply interested in this theory.

Two cases have developd in families that had dogs at the show. On these reports the Westmount officials are acting, and yesterday orders were issued in that municipality that every cat and dog belonging to any family that has been afflicted with infantile paralysis, must be destroyed forthwith.

Dr. S. Boucher, medical health officer, of Montreal, will issue a circular advising all school commissions in Greater Montreal, Protestant and Catholic, not to allow anybody from Westmount to visit the schools, nor permit any Westmount children to attend. The Provincial Board of Health advises calmness on the part of the people, as precautions are being taken to prevent a spread of the disease.

MAPLE LEAVES IN CITY OF LONDON

LONDON, Oct. 20—Among other wounded soldiers selling flags to aid the British Red Cross in London today, Canadians are offering a realistic imitation of maple leaves in Canadian autumn shades.

The morning papers carry a long letter from Lady Drumond relative to the question of the segregation of Canadian wounded.

I hear a story to the effect that Australian military authorities have stated that on account of the policy of sending Australians to all hospitals they have absolutely lost track of a large number of men, the whereabouts of some being unknown for months. They had a recent general rounding up and located a large number hitherto missing.

It is stated that a representative of the Auditor-General's Department Ottawa, is coming here to adjust accounts between the Canadian army and British hospitals.

HAD A GOOD DOCTOR

"What's the matter?" asked the young doctor of a patient who seemed extremely pessimistic regarding his chances.

"Oh, I don't know, doctor; but I feel that I shall never pull through here."

"Nonsense, my boy—nonsense! why your case is absolutely the same as I had a year ago. Yet, look at me—strong and hearty as ever!"

"Yes," replied the patient, "but then I expect you had a good doctor."

"You have been accused of being a prevaricator."

TENDERS FOR Pulpwood and Pine Limit

Tenders will be received by the undersigned up to and including the 1st day of February, 1917, for the right to cut pulpwood and pine timber on a certain area situated on the Black Sturgeon River and other territory adjacent thereto, in the District of Thunder Bay.

Tenders shall state the amount per cord on pulpwood, and per thousand feet board measure, on pine, that they are prepared to pay as a bonus in addition to dues of 40 cents per cord for spruce, and 20 cents per cord for other pulpwoods, and $2.00 per thousand feet, board measure, for pine, or such other rates as may from time to time be fixed by the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council, for the right to operate a pulp mill and a paper mill on or near the area referred to.

Such tenderers shall be required to erect a mill or mills on or near the territory and to manufacture the wood into pulp and paper in the Province of Ontario.

Parties making tender will be required to deposit with their tender a marked cheque, payable to the Honourable the Treasurer of the Province of Ontario, for ten thousand dollars ($10,000), which amount will be forfeited in the event of their not entering into agreement to carry out conditions, etc. The said $10,000 will be applied on account of bonus dues as they accrue, but the regulation dues, as mentioned above, will require to be paid in the usual manner as returns of cutting of wood and timber are received.

The highest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

For particulars as to description of territory, capital to be invested, etc., apply to the undersigned.

G. H. FERGUSON,
Minister of Lands, Forests and Mines.

Big Tomato Order Placed in United States

NEW YORK Oct. 20.—The upward movement of prices of canned goods has halted for the time being, but the trade is not disposed to regard the top as having been reached.

There is still considerable difference of opinion as to the tomato situation, there being a feeling in some quarters that some surplus will be discovered in due time.

One important development in the situation was the appearance in the market yesterday of Canadian order for 25,000 cases of tomatoes. It could not be learned whether the entire lot was secured, but it was stated definitely that part of the order has been secured on the basis of $1.25 factory for standard No. 3's.

This inquiry from Canada is regarded as significant in that it reveals a shortage of supplies on the other side of the border and confirms the reports from all over the country as to an abnormal demand.

"[illegible]," she smiled, "I knew you thought me atrocious from the first. You find myriads of objections to me, don't you?"

I had forgotten to look away from her eyes, and I kept on forgetting.

She gave a low cry of triumph.

"Dazzling" is a good old fashioned word for eyes like hers. At least it might define their effect on me.

"If I did manage to object to you," I said slowly, "it would be a good thing for me, wouldn't it?"

"Oh, I've won!" she cried.

"Won?" I echoed.

"Yes. I laid a wager with myself that I'd have a pretty speech from you before I went out of your life"—she checked a laugh and concluded thrillingly—"forever. I leave Quesnay tomorrow."

"Your father has returned from America?"

"Oh, dear, no," she murmured. "I'll be quite at the world's mercy. I must go up to Paris and retire from public life until he does come. I shall take the vows in some obscure but respectable pension."

She gazed at me thoughtfully and seriously for several moments. "I suppose you can imagine," she said in a tone that threatened to become tremulous, "what sort of an afternoon we've been having up there."

"Has it been"— I began.

"Oh, heartbreaking! Louise came to my room as soon as they got back from here this morning and told me the whole pitiful story. But they didn't let her stay there long, poor woman!"

"They?" I asked.

"Oh, Elizabeth and her brother. They've been at her all afternoon, off and on."

"To do what?"

"To 'save herself,' so they call it. They're insisting that she must not see her poor husband again. They're determined she shan't."

"But George wouldn't worry her."

"Oh, wouldn't he?" The girl laughed sadly. "I don't suppose he could help it, he's in such a state himself, but between him and Elizabeth it's hard to see how poor Mrs. Harman lived through the day."

"Well," I said slowly, "I don't see that they're not right. She ought to be kept out of all this as much as possible, especially if her husband has to go through a trial."

"Are you"— the girl began, then stopped for a moment, looking at me steadily. "Aren't you a little in love with Louise Harman?"

"Yes," I answered honestly. "Aren't you?"

"That's what I wanted to know," she said, and as she turned a page in the sketchbook for the benefit of Mr. Percy I saw that her hand had begun to tremble.

"Why?" I asked, leaning toward her across the table.

"Because if she were involved in some undertaking—something that, if it went wrong, would endanger her happiness and, I think, even her life, for it might actually kill her if she failed and brought on a worse catastrophe"—

"Yes?" I said anxiously as she paused again.

"You'd help her?" she said.

"I would, indeed," I assented earnestly. "I told her once I'd do anything in the world for her."

"Even if it involved something that George Ward might never forgive you for?"

"I said 'anything in the world,'" I returned, perhaps a little huskily.

She gave a low cry of triumph, but immediately checked it. Then she leaned far over the table. "I wasn't afraid to come through the woods alone," she said in a very low voice, "because I wasn't alone. Louise came with me."

"What?" I gasped. "Where is she?"

"At the Baudry cottage down the road. They won't miss her at the chateau until morning. I locked her door on the outside, and if they go to bother her again—though I don't think they will—they'll believe she's fastened it on the inside and is asleep. She managed to get a note to Keredec late this afternoon. It explained everything, and he had some trunks carried out the rear gate of the inn and carted over to Lisieux to be shipped to Paris from there. It is to be supposed—or hoped at least—that this woman and her people will believe that means Professor Keredec and Mr. Harman will try to get to Paris in the same way."

"So," I said, "that's what Percy meant about the trunks. I didn't understand."

"He's on watch, you see," she continued. "Mr. Percy!" She laughed nervously. "That's why it's almost necessary for us to have you."

"If you have me for what?" I asked.

"I'll help you"—and as she looked up her eyes, now very close to mine, were dazzling indeed—"I'll adore you forever and ever! Oh, much longer than you'd like me to!"

"You mean she's going to"—

"I mean that she's going to run away with him again," she whispered.

CHAPTER XIV.

At midnight there was no mistaking the palpable uneasiness with which Mr. Percy, faithful sentry, regarded the behavior of Miss Elliott and myself as we sat conversing upon the veranda of the pavilion. The lights of the inn were all set. The Spanish woman and M. Rameau had made their appearance for a moment, half an hour earlier, to exchange a word with their fellow vigilant, and soon after the extinguishing of the lamps in their respective apartments denoted their retirement for the night. In the "grande suite" all had been dark and silent for an hour.

I kept going over and over the details of Louise Harman's plan as the girl beside me had outlined it, bending above the smudgy sketchbook. "To make them think the flight is for Paris," she had urged—"to Paris by way of Lisieux. To make that man yonder believe that it is toward Lisieux while they turn at the crossroads and drive across the country to Trouville for the morning boat to Havre."

It was simple. That was its great virtue. If they were well started they were safe, and well started meant only that Larrabee Harman should leave the inn without an alarm. With two hours' start and the pursuit spending most of its energy in the wrong direction—that is, toward Lisieux and Paris—they would be on the deck of the French-Canadian liner tomorrow noon, sailing out of the harbor of Le Havre with nothing but the Atlantic ocean between them and the St. Lawrence.

Suddenly I saw a light shine from Keredec's window.

I remarked, "Now, if you will permit me, I'll offer you my escort back to Quesnay," I said to Miss Elliott.

I went into my room, put on my cap, lit a lantern and returned with it to the veranda. We crossed the garden as far as the steps. Mr. Percy signified his approval. "Gunna see the little lady home, are you?" he said graciously. "I was thinkin' it was about time m'self."

The salon door of the "grande suite" opened above me, and at the sound the youth started, springing back to see what it portended, but I ran quickly up the steps. Keredec stood in the doorway bareheaded and in his shirt sleeves. In one hand he held a traveling bag, which he immediately gave me.

He went back into the room, closing the door, and I descended the steps as rapidly as I had run up them. Without pausing I started for the rear of the courtyard, Miss Elliott accompanying me.

The sentry had watched these proceedings open mouthed, more mystified than alarmed. "Luk here," he said, "I want t' know what this means."

"Anything you choose to think it means," I laughed, beginning to walk a little more rapidly. He glanced up at the windows of the "grande suite," which were again dark, and began to follow us slowly. "Whut you got in that grip?" he asked.

"You don't think we're carrying off Mr. Harman?"

"I reckon he's in his room all right," said the youth grimly, "unless he's flew out."

We emerged at the foot of a lane behind the inn. It was long and narrow, bordered by stone walls and at the other end debouched upon a road which passed the rear of the Baudry cottage.

"You long legged devil!" he yelled.

Miss Elliott took my arm, and we entered the lane.

Mr. Percy paused undecidedly. "I want t' know whut you think y're doin'," he repeated angrily, calling after us.

"It's very simple," I called in turn. "I think you may as well go back. We're not going far enough to need a guard."

Mr. Percy allowed an oath to escape him, and we heard him muttering to himself. Then his footsteps sounded behind us.

"He's coming!" Miss Elliott whispered, with nervous exultation, looking over her shoulder. "He's going to follow."

We trudged briskly on, followed at some fifty paces by the perturbed watchman. We were embarked upon a singular adventure, not unattended by a certain danger. We were tingling with a hundred apprehensions, occupied with the vital necessity of drawing the little spy after us—and that was a strange moment for a man (and an elderly painter man of no mark at that) to hear himself called what I was called then in a tremulous whisper close to my ear. Of course she has denied it since. Nevertheless she said it—twice, for I pretended not to hear her the first time. I made no answer, for something in the word she called me and in her seeming to mean it made me choke up so that I could not even whisper. But I made up my mind that after that if this girl saw Mr. Earl Percy on his way back to the inn before she wished him to go it would be because he had killed me.

We were near the end of the lane when the neigh of a horse sounded sonorously from the road beyond.

Mr. Percy came running up swiftly and darted by us.

"Who's that?" he called loudly. "Who's that in the cart yonder?"

I set my lantern down close to the wall, and a horse and cart drew up on the road. It was Pere Baudry's best horse, a stout gray, that would easily make Trouville by daylight. A woman's figure and a man's (the latter that of Pere Baudry himself) could be made out dimly on the cart seat.

"Who is it, I say?" shouted our excited friend. "What kind of a game d'ye think y're puttin' up on me here?" A glance at the occupants satisfied him. "Mrs. Harman!" he yelled. "Mrs. Harman! I knowed I was a fool to come away without wakin' up Rameau. But you haven't beat us yet."

He drove back into the lane, but just inside its entrance I met him.

"Where are you going?" I asked.

"Back to the Pigeon house in a hurry. There's devilment here. I want Rameau!"

"You're not going back," said I.

"The h— I ain't!" said Mr. Percy. "I give ye two seconds t' git out o' my—Take yer hands offa me!"

I made sure of my grip, not upon the refulgent overcoat, for I feared he might slip out of that, but upon the collars of his coat and waistcoat.

"You long legged devil!" he yelled, and I instantly received a series of concussions upon the face and head which put me in supreme doubt of my surroundings, for I seemed to have plunged eyes foremost into the Milky Way. I was conscious of some one screaming, and it seemed a consoling part of my delirium that the cheek of Miss Anne Elliott should be jammed tight against mine through one phase of the explosion. I hung to him, as Pere Baudry testifies, for a minute and a half, which seems no inconsiderable lapse of time to a person undergoing such experiences as were then afflicting me.

It appeared to me that we were revolving in enormous circles in the ether and I had long since given my last gasp when there came a great roaring wind in my ears and a range of mountains toppled upon us both. We went to earth beneath it.

"Ha! You must create violence, then!" roared the avalanche.

The voice was the voice of Keredec.

Some one pulled me from underneath my struggling antagonist, and, the power of sight in a hazy, zigzagging fashion coming back to me, I perceived the figure of Miss Anne Elliott recumbent beside me, her arms about Mr. Percy's prostrate body. The extraordinary girl had fastened upon him, too, though I had not known it, and she had gone to ground with us, but it is to be said for Mr. Earl Percy that no blow of his touched her, and she was not hurt. Even in the final extremities of temper he had carefully discriminated in my favor.

Mrs. Harman was bending over her and as the girl sprang up lightly threw her arms about her. For my part, I rose more slowly, section by section, wondering why I did not fall apart, lips, nose and cheeks bleeding, and I had a fear that I should need to be led like a blind man through my eyelids swelling shut. That was something I earnestly desired should not happen; but, whether it did or did not or if the heavens fell, I meant to walk back to Quesnay with Anne Elliott that night, and, mangled, broken or half dead, presenting whatever appearance of the prize ring or the abattoir that I might, I intended to take the same train for Paris on the morrow that she did.

For our days together were not at an end, nor was it hers nor my desire that they should be.

It was Oliver Saffren—as I like to think of him—who helped me to my feet and wiped my face with his handkerchief and when that one was ruined brought others from his bag and stanched the wounds gladly received in the service of his wife.

"I will remember"— he said, and his voice broke. "These are the memories which Keredec says make a man good. I pray they will help to redeem me." And for the last time I heard the child in him speaking: "I ought to be redeemed. I must be, don't you think, for her sake?"

"Lose no time!" shouted Keredec. "You must be gone if you will reach that certain town for the 5 o'clock train of the morning." This was for the spy's benefit. It indicated Lisieux and the train to Paris. Mr. Percy struggled. The professor knelt over him, pinioning his wrists in one great hand and holding him easily to earth.

"Ha, my friend"—he addressed his captive—"you shall not have cause to say we do you any harm. There shall be no law, for you are not hurt, and you are not going to be. But here you shall stay quiet for a little while—till I say you can go." As he spoke he bound the other's wrists with a short rope which he took from his pocket, performing the same office immediately afterward for Mr. Percy's ankles.

"I take the count!" was the sole remark of that philosopher. "I can't go up against no herd of elephants."

The two women were crying in each other's arms. "Goodby!" sobbed Anne Elliott.

Mrs. Harman turned to Keredec. "Goodby for a little while!"

He kissed her hand. "Dear lady, I shall come within the year."

She came to me, and I took her hand, meaning to kiss it as Keredec had done, but suddenly she was closer, and I felt her lips upon my battered cheek. I remember it now.

I wrung her husband's hand, and then he took her in his arms, lifted her to the footboard of the cart and sprang up beside her.

"God bless you, and goodby!" we called.

And their voices came back to us, "God bless you, and goodby!"

THE END.

The Prince of a Hundred Years

A Love Story

By AGNES G. BROGAN

A very young girl stood before a mirror putting the last touches to her toilet. A card bearing a man's name lay on the dresser before her. She was preparing to go down to see him, but the preparation was rather for delay than for her adornment.

She knew very well for what he had come. He had been to see her often before for the same purpose. He had offered her his love. She had neither declined nor accepted him. She had not declined him because she was not sure but that she would regret having done so if she did, and she had not accepted him because it did not seem to her that she felt a change which she considered would come over her once she had been stricken by the little god.

When she could think of nothing more to add to her toilet, when she had for the last time adjusted the rose in her hair, smoothed away a crease here and there in her costume, she placed her hand upon the doorknob and stood irresolute.

"What shall I say to him?"

She could not decide. Turning, she looked through the window and saw a peaceful garden. And there, too, in the garden was a woman.

The very young girl burst tempestuously into the peaceful garden, and her eyes were bright with tears.

"I came for a sight of you, Felice," she said, "to calm my troubled spirit. It is Billie again, of course, and he will have his answer. Now, how is a girl to be [illegible] of her heart who has not seen the world? One might say yes today and be filled with regret tomorrow.

"Oh, for a sign by which we women might know our own true prince when he comes! You remember the olden fairy tales, and your gift for making different stories of each to satisfy my demand for 'just one more?' Always I found you here among your flowers, Felice, understanding of each rebellious, childish mood.

"Well, I'm a rebellious child again today, and I will rest my wayward head upon your dear shoulder while you weave for me a new version of—shall it be 'The Sleeping Princess and the Prince Who Awakened Her After a Hundred Years?'"

Musingly the woman smiled; then low she told the story:

"The princess sat high on the garden wall while her golden tresses streamed out in the breeze like a shimmering fan. Upon her gleaming crown was perched saucily a soldier's cap, and from beneath its brim she glanced half shyly, half daringly, at the young prince beside her.

"'An you wear my cap," he warned, 'I shall surely steal a kiss!'

"With a soft mirthful laugh the girl sprang to the ground.

"'Never in all your life,' she mocked, 'shall you kiss me.'

"For a moment their eyes met steadily, his gravely pleading, hers bright, yet fearful; then the girl ran swiftly down the path.

"Charmed, intent, the prince gazed after her departing figure; then from its case came his violin, while the unspoken longings which he himself had hardly known breathed forth in music.

"From her hiding place the girl watched him, gloried in the sweet seriousness of his eyes, the firm cut of his youthful chin, delighted in the straight forelock which her theft of his cap left uncovered.

"When as the music quivered to a minor key, slowly the girl crept back to sit at his side. Hand in hand they lingered, while the young, pale moon rose in the sky.

"'Tomorrow you will come again?' pleaded the prince at parting.

"Overcome by a new and inexplicable shyness the princess shook her head. 'Tomorrow I shall have duties,' she told him.

"So while the roses bloomed and the bees droned in the garden, there the young prince waited his lady's pleasure, glad for a smile that she gave him, silent before her tauntings, speaking his love in music.

"And, as in teasing mood, the princess danced from him one day down the winding path toward the river, she came upon another youth, one who bowed low before her, as a subject salutes his princess, one whose eyes were filled with a worshipful adoration, which the prince's eyes, in all their tenderness, had never shown.

"The princess motioned to the youth to rise from his place at her feet, and her heart was filled with the spirit of adventure.

"'Come,' she said, 'you shall teach me to row your boat on the river and shall gather for me lilies out far, where I cannot reach them.'

"And as the youth bent eagerly to his oars she was gay and friendly and kind as she had never been in the presence of the prince.

"'Your eyes,' the youth reverently told her, 'are blue as the sky at early evening; your hair is like a cloth of gold; your lips have stolen their crimson from the berries.'

"And the princess smiled and was pleased, for the prince had never told her any of these things.

"'I love you,' said the youth, 'and you love me, and we must speedily be married.'

"'Are you quite sure,' she asked him, 'that I do love you?'

"'Quite sure,' he answered firmly.

"And as he went all joyfully up the path from the river he saw the prince there in the sleepy garden, his violin locked silent in its case.

"'I am to marry the princess,' the youth cried jubilantly, 'for though I am but a humble subject she loves me royally.'

"'She—loves—you?' the prince repeated, and his words were like a sighing breath.

"Then dumbly he sat down to wait, and later, when the princess found him there, a great hunger came over her to go and sit at his side, to fold her little fingers up in the clasp of his strong hand, to hear again the message of his music. Yet when he asked abruptly, 'You are to marry the youth?' she remembered that the prince had never really spoken love, had never praised the beauty of her eyes. And in that strange and sudden perversity which his nearness seemed to provoke the princess tossed her head.

"'Yes, I am to marry the youth,' she taunted. 'I am to marry the youth.'

"She watched him pass through the little gate in the hedge wondering how soon, how very soon, he must come back.

"But the prince did not come. The summer moon turned into a round, red harvest moon; the rides upon the river grew tiresome; the water lilies were all gone. Pettishly the princess turned one day from regarding the youth.

"'I am so tired of it all,' she said, 'and I'm vastly tired of you.'

"To the heart of the wildwood then she wandered that the youth might not seek her there, and here half buried by the brown leaves on the ground reclined the figure of another man.

"He was studiously intent, she noticed, upon a book spread out before him, and even the rustling of her draperies failed to attract his attention. Interested, the princess came nearer, peering over his shoulder; still the man remained absorbed. Willfully she broke a branch above his head, awaiting his startled glance.

"Absently the man looked up into her face; then with a frown of annoyance resumed his study. In anger the princess stamped her foot.

"'You are my subject,' she cried, 'and ignore my presence. You pay no homage to my power.'

"As though reluctant the man closed his book.

"'I serve as a student, madam,' he replied, 'and must therefore devote every moment to study.'

"Suddenly the princess leaned toward him with an alluring smile. 'You must also,' she said, 'serve me.' So piqued by his indifference, she came each day to charm the student from his purpose. And as they strolled together through the shaded paths he unfolded to her the secret of each leaf and flower.

"'When I have finished my course,' said the student, 'you shall love me forever and ever.'

"But now in the moment of her triumph the princess turned coldly aside. With thoughtful brows she walked back through the wood. To those who appeared now and then and here and there and would have walked at her side she gravely shook her head.

"'For,' she said, 'I would rather go my way alone.'

"Just as the afternoon was drawing to a close and the sun was going down gloriously beyond the old wall she slipped through the little gate into her own home garden.

"A scarlet drooping vine, a haunting sound of melody, seemed to recall some vaguely pleasant recollection. But the princess was now too tired to remember; so, being quite alone and among the nodding flowers"—

The voice of the speaker trailed off dreamily. "Yes," prompted the girl.

"The princess fell asleep," the woman went on—she smiled wistfully—"asleep, I think, for a hundred years."

"When the prince returned to awaken her heart," the girl added.

The woman smiled and sighed.

"True, princes do not always come back," she said.

Laughing, the girl jumped to her feet. "You are in league with Billie!" she accused.

Slowly the gate in the hedge swung inward to admit a man's tall, soldierly figure. With hat held well out from his straight white forelock, he advanced toward Miss Felice.

"You have forgotten me perhaps?" he asked slowly. "But I should have known you among all the world. Time with you, as with the old garden, seems to have stood still, yet many years have passed, years with me absorbed in music, its study and its triumph. When I thought of you it was always—as the wife of another man. Last night only upon returning to my own land I knew." He paused abruptly to put forth supplicating hands. "Felice," he breathed. Still the woman stood motionless, unmoved, as one in a dream.

With a little cry the girl rushed forward. "I thought I knew your face, professor," she said. "Last night I was there, at your wonderful concert. Oh, won't you play for us now?"

A moment the musician hesitated, looking into the unresponsive eyes of the woman, then his fingers caressed the old violin; a melody filled the air.

The girl, lingering beside the hedge, watched breathlessly. She saw the face of her friend upraised in radiant, glowing wonder, the other bent so tenderly above it. Then the very young girl stepped out of the garden, softly closing the gate behind her. "The Prince of a Hundred Years," she said.

Mural Decorations In C.P.R. Station

At Vancouver

The walls of the noble and spacious waiting hall of the C. P. R. station at Vancouver have recently been beautified by a series of mural decorations representing the principal mountains seen from the line between Calgary and the coast. They are the work of Mrs. Adelaide Langford, whose training has well qualified her for this species of work, which is in a class by itself. Mrs. Langford studied in the Slade School of London, England, one of the most celebrated institutions for artistic training, and she also is a graduate of the Art Institute of Chicago. Among her teachers in former years were Professor Tonks, whose name is well known in art circles; Prof. Freer, whose abilities as a watercolorist are known in two hemispheres, and Mr. H. Vanderpoel, whose book on the "Human Figure" is one of the best ever published on figure-drawing. Mrs. Langford was also a member of the international jury on art works at the St. Louis Exposition, and holds several medals.

It is perhaps to be regretted that architectural exigencies led to the placing of the panels to be decorated so high that they are liable to escape the notice of the ordinary observer, though this is but following the example of many edifices of the kind, both on this continent and in Europe. Still to people of average powers of vision, this series of fine mural decorations need present no difficulty. They will find that the laws of mural decoration have been adhered to. The general tone of the interior they ornament has been borne in mind by the artist, who has subdued her colors so that they harmonize with and seem part and parcel of their surroundings. They are broadly and simply executed, and will bear examination by the aid of a field glass, so as to bring them within the range of the convention which decrees that the proper distance at which to look at a picture is three times its greatest dimension.

Following the frieze around from the northwest corner, westward, the following list will help to make the series more intelligible. The first picture is:

Mount Stephen and Kicking Horse River, as seen from Field. This is the gateway to the famous Yoho valley, and a favorite stopping place for tourists. The winding waters of the river are particularly well shown.

Lake Louise, Laggan, as seen from the chateau. Those who have visited this place do not forget its quiet peace and grandeur. Here we get sight of the splendid glacier, which, as it thaws, produces the beautiful green water of river and lake.

The Falls at Banff are depicted with much vigor of handling, and the mountain background melting into the distance is excellently treated.

Mount Temple, as seen from the main line of the C. P. R., near Lake Louise, is an arresting object in the landscape, but this decoration is scarcely so arresting as the one which follows, viz.:

Banff, as seen by the light of evening. There is much rich color in this picture, which also shows the reflection of Mount Rundle and the giant pines that tower aloft. The river shown runs between Rundle and Tunnel mountain

Mount Agnes and the Lake in the Clouds. This spot is reached by bridle trail from the Chateau Louise, and the lake nestling among the peaks is an interesting object.

The Creek leading to Lake Moraine, in the Valley of the Ten Peaks. In the distance may be seen part of the glacier from the wonderful stretch of the ice-fields of the Rockies.

The Beehive. The queer formation of this mountain has been well set forth by the artist in this decoration. It is shown as seen from the trail from Laggan. In the distance is the Valley of the Ten Peaks.

The Gap. The traveller who is familiar with the C. P. R. line will remember this spot, where after travelling some miles side by side with Bow river he enters the noble region of mountain where sublimity reigns.

The Three Sisters forms the first important group meeting the eye of the traveller from the plains, and they never fail to arouse the enthusiasm of the lover of natural beauty and grandeur.

Mount Wapta. This decoration is one of the best of the series, the composition of the picture being especially admirable. Mount Wapta is one of the finest peaks in the Rockies. This view also gives a glimpse of Summit Lake.

Castle Mountain. The peculiar formation of this mountain is well shown. Its series of what are apparently round towers, its pinnacles and "donjon keeps" give appropriateness to its name.

The Crow's Nest. Here likewise we see the appropriateness of a name. This is almost the chief mountain on the Crow's Nest branch of the C. P. R.

Cathedral Mountain. One of the most beautiful of the whole range of our Western Switzerland. Its snowy recesses look as if they might be the home of roaming polar bears.

Mount Regis, as seen from the main line.

Additional interest is given to Mrs. Langford's work from the fact that she has been a hard working organizer in the way of art. She was the manager of the artistic educational work of the normal and model schools of the Manitoba Government at Winnipeg. And it was she who with others helped in the starting of the Vancouver Studio Club, out of which grew the B. C. Society of Fine Arts.

England's Coldest Days.

In his diary for March, 1658, John Evelyn records that the weather had been "the severest that any man alive had known in England. The crows' feet were frozen to their prey. Islands of ice inclosed both fish and fowl frozen, and some persons in their boats." For March 1667, he chronicles, "Great frosts, prodigious at the vernal equinox."—London Chronicle.

His Lucky Catch.

"H'lo, Jones! Hear you been fishing."

"Yep."

"When'd you go?"

"Four-thirty a. m. train out."

"Any luck?"

"Yep; great."

"What'd you catch?"

"Six-thirty p. m. train in."—Exchange.

No Change of Plan.

"And after they had married in haste I suppose they repented at leisure."

"No; they were perfectly consistent. They repented in haste also."

Quackery and Corns

Hundreds of treatments have been offered for corns.

Some were sedatives to quiet pain. Some were acids, harsh and risky. Some mere quackery.

But one man—a famous chemist—studied corns for 25 years. And finally discovered Blue-jay.

That is now the standard treatment, gentle, certain, scientific. It is used on a million corns monthly.

It has stopped the corn pain instantly, 70 million times. It has ended the corns completely within 48 hours, in 91 per cent of the cases. The others take a little longer.

Stop paring corns. Stop treating them in wrong ways. Use Blue-jay, and that ends them in a gentle, easy way. Prove that tonight.

CASEIN.

Canada Could Make Money Out of the Ivorette Products of Skim Milk.

"With a hundred thousand capital and a supply of casein I could turn out, at a figure that would hold the Canadian market, about half a million worth of buttons and other goods that are being brought in annually from Europe," said an industrial investigator a few days ago. He says the scarcity of the element casein, which is derived from skim milk and curds, separated from the water and dried, and used extensively in paper-making, has led to inquiries for supplies being made in countries where dairying is carried on extensively. Moscow dairymen have been approached with a view to their supplying casein to the United States market, where there is a large outlet for that commodity, and in answer to inquiries made, they state that formerly a considerable quantity was produced in the Siberian dairy districts, but interest in its production died out because of low prices. It is estimated by Canadian investigators who have been studying the question that it takes one hundred pounds of skimmed milk to produce four pounds of casein, which means that, in Canada, if the farmers or the creameries gave attention to the production of casein they would get approximately 25 cents for the product of one hundred pounds of skimmed milk. A Kitchener inventor explained that casein was valuable as the chief raw material in the production of ivorette, an element that resembles ivory and which is used extensively in the making of brush backs, fancy buttons, and other articles, as well as for decorative purposes in other industries. Ivorette also, if it can be produced at a sufficiently low figure, can be used in the making of electric fixtures, as it is one of the best non-conductors.

It is estimated that the value of goods imported into Canada that are made very largely of ivorette, or, as the French call it, "gallilith," is about $1,000,000 a year. The process of producing ivorette is known in Canada, and the practicability of utilising it depends upon the quantity of casein that can be procured. The inventor from Kitchener to whom reference has been made is of the opinion that a campaign amongst the farmers not in a position to ship their fresh milk for distribution in large urban communities would result in a very large quantity of skimmed milk being obtained for the purpose of casein production. It, however, appears to be an undertaking that would require considerable capital as well as organization. Casein is valuable for other purposes than that of paper-making, as exemplified by its very extensive use as one of the fundamentals in many industries that hitherto have been regarded as impossible elsewhere than in European countries. It is claimed that in Canadian districts where pasture is luxuriant and where it is impracticable to ship fresh milk casein production would be profitable if an adequate supply could be relied upon by industries that would make use of it. The merit of ivorette, a casein product, over celluloid is that it is not inflammable. As to treatment for the production of pleasing and artistic effects, the advantage is with the casein product. In the case of both opportunities for development are being studied by several who have already some acquaintance with their nature and their use in industry. The paper-makers in Canada are as much interested in procuring casein as those in the United States.

The value of the casein brought into Canada last year was $25,000, as compared with $4,656 in the year previous and $14,993 in 1914.—Toronto Globe.

Millers Doing Well.

During the twelve months ending with August, their financial year, the milling companies, says the September commercial letter of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, have done an abnormal business, from which satisfactory profits have been derived. The output was thirty per cent. greater than in the previous year, and the greater part was exported. For the twelve mobths ending May last, the latest period for which trade returns are available, exports of flour amounted to 6,764,583 barrels valued at $37,352,859. The excellent quality of last year's crop made the surplus wheat readily marketable, with the result that the amount carried over is not more than 30,000,000 bushels. In addition, an unusually large proportion of the crop was ground into flour at home, with resulting benefit to home industries, and the additional quantity of subsidiary products was readily absorbed by the home market. There has been a yearly increase in the volume of foreign business transacted by the Canadian mills, in spite of variations in the amount of the crop and of the wheat exported. This progress has been hampered somewhat by the lower freight rates on wheat than on flour, but, despite this disadvantage, the annual gains are substantial.

Team Work Lacking.

Preachers who choose striking titles for their sermons should not fail to consult their choirmasters as to the solos or anthems which are to be rendered, otherwise the juxtaposition of titles is apt sometimes to produce amusing results. An issue of The Cobalt Nugget in the earlier days of the camp contained the following paragraph one Monday afternoon: "'Samson Kicked Himself' was the title of the sermon preached in Halleybury Methodist church last night by Rev. A. G. Hudson. A very appropriate solo, 'One Sweetly Solemn Thought,' was rendered by Miss Donaldson."

A Patriotic Gift.

Sir Thomas White has received a cheque from the Toronto firm of Messrs. R. H. Howard and Company, as a donation toward the general war expenditures of the Dominion. The amount is not stated, but it is understood to be a substantial one.

Hunger Stalks Through Belgium NOW!

While we in Canada are bringing in the harvests, filling our store-rooms and stocking our pantries with an abundance of good food—our Allies in overrun Belgium are facing another winter of near-starvation.

Women and children there by millions have gone for two years on short rations, for the Belgian Relief Fund has never been sufficient to provide full fare. Consequently they are in no condition to stand the still greater privations threatened on account of the growing number dependent on the Fund. Anything less than the present meagre allowance of bread and soup would, in thousands of cases, fail to hold bodies and souls together.

Shall we—can we—go on eating our three square meals a day—living well if not luxuriously—while Belgian children, pinched and cold, sobbingly beg their mothers for bread enough to stop the gnawing hunger?

$2.50 a month in the hands of the Belgian Relief Commission, will feed a Belgian family. A cigar less a day—a night missed from the theatre—simpler refreshments after an evening's cards—the price of any one of a dozen such habitual luxuries would provide the food that means life for a Belgian mother and her children till the end of the war.

Won't your own meals taste better when you know some little Belgians also are enjoying the food which you provide? Whatever you feel that you can spare, send your subscription weekly, monthly or in one lump sum to Local or Provincial Committees, or send Cheques payable to Treasurer

DANGER IS PAST,

But Russia Was in a Tight Fix a Few Months Ago.

The military correspondent of the London Times writes as follows in a recent issue of that paper:

The review of the Russian operations during the past year published in Petrograd on September 5 is a moving and all to brief record of a period which will remain indelibly stamped upon the memories of us all.

A year ago his Imperial Majesty the Czar of all the Russias assumed in person the command of his forces operating by sea and land, and placed at the disposal of his great country the weight of his immense authority. That we admired and respected the Grand Duke Nicholas and regretted his departure no one can deny, for he had been a great figure, had fought the war boldly and with skill, and had not feared to take grave and thankless decisions when the terrible situation of the Russian armies imperatively demanded a retreat. But we cannot say now, looking back over the past year, that the Czar was ill-advised in assuming command, for his determination to lead his people, and to fight the war to a finish, set the seal upon the resolution of the Russian people. Napoleon was beaten because he miscalculated the character of a Russian Czar and the devotion of his [illegible] and the [illegible] miscalculation has vitiated all the plans of the German General Staff.

It was a dark hour when the Czar assumed the command-in-chief. How dark many of us knew. We knew that the Russians were fighting with one rifle against three, and one shell against ten, and that by no possibility could Russia become adequately armed, even for active defence, before the following spring. Many thought that the operations round Vilna would see the hastily-gathered Russian levies in the north cut off by the German thrust at Sventsiany from their friends, and other good judges supposed that Germany would resume her advance when the ground and the rivers and the snow froze hard, and take Petrograd in a winter campaign, with all the munition factories at the capital and the ice-bound fleet. We knew well enough that the Russian patient would recover if he could survive the winter, but the winter seemed likely to be inclement, and the patient's pulse was very weak. It was a period, we must all admit, of most horrible anxiety, and those best informed feared the most.

The Czar and his trusted General Alexeieff, who has just been the fortunate recipient of an affectionate and cordial message from his Sovereign, pulled out the Russian armies, Heaven knows how, from the Vilna trap, and re-established their line. The Russian troops, and the infantry particularly, fought back with all their old glorious obstinacy, with rifles when they could get them, and if not, with sticks and stones. As the Germans advanced through the gloomy forests, the swamps, and the wastes they found the villages in flames, the population in flight, and all resources destroyed, while communications lengthened as the days shortened, and the northern autumn began to cover Russia as with a shield.

Sing a Song of Sixpence.

The London Globe's explanation of the rime "Sing a Song of Sixpence" is: "The four and twenty blackbirds represent the four and twenty hours. The bottom of the pie is the world. The top crust represents the sky. The opening of the pie is the dawn of the day, when the birds begin to sing, and surely such a sight is fit for a king. The king in his counting house counting out his money is the sun. The money the king is counting represents the golden sunshine. The queen, who sits in the parlor, is the moon. The honey she is eating is the moonlight. The industrious maid who is working in the garden before the sun has risen is the day dawn, and the clothes she hangs out are clouds. The bird that so tragically ends the song by nipping off her nose is the hour of sunset."

TENDERS FOR PULPWOOD AND PINE LIMIT

Tenders will be received by the undersigned up to and including the 1st day of December next for the right to cut pulpwood and pine timber on a certain area situated on the Pic River and other territory adjacent thereto, in the District of Thunder Bay.

Tenderers shall state the amount per cord on pulpwood, and per thousand feet, board measure, on pine, that they are prepared to pay as a bonus in addition to dues of 40 cents per cord for spruce, and 20 cents per cord for other pulpwoods, and $2.00 per thousand feet, board measure for pine, or such other rates as may from time to time be fixed by the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council, for the right to operate a pulp mill and a paper mill on or near the area referred to.

Such tenderers shall be required to erect a mill or mills or on near the territory and to manufacture the wood into pulp and paper in the Province of Ontario—the paper mill to be erected when directed by the Minister of Lands, Forests and Mines.

Parties making tender will be required to deposit with their tender a marked cheque, payable to the Honorable the Treasurer of the Province of Ontario, for twenty-five thousand dollars ($25,000), which amount will be forfeited in the event of their not entering into agreement to carry out conditions, etc. The said $25,000 will be applied on account of bonus dues as they accrue, but the regulation dues, as mentioned above, will require to be paid in the usual manner as returns of cutting of wood and timber are received.

The highest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

For particulars as to description of territory, capital to be invested, etc., apply to the undersigned.

G. H. FERGUSON,
Minister of Lands, Forests and Mines.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

BY JOHN W. S. McCULLOUGH, M.D., D.P.H., CHIEF OFFICER OF THE PROVINCIAL BOARD OF HEALTH.

THE FOOD WE EAT.

THE AMOUNT OF FOOD one eats is determined by one's weight, the amount of work one does, the season of the year and, to some extent, by one's digestion. A great part of the food we eat goes to make heat, consequently the fuel value of the food eaten in cold winter weather should be twice as great as that of the summer when the heat ranges from 90 to 100 Deg. F.

Food value is generally indicated by the term calorie. A calorie is the amount of heat required to raise one kilogram of water one degree centigrade. A man doing active manual labor requires 4,000 calories of food daily, as compared with 2,000 calories required by the man lying quietly in bed. In a general way the amount of food a person needs varies with the weight, but the unit of food per pound of weight is highest in the first year of life and lessens year by year as one becomes older. The baby grows very rapidly in his first year and besides he takes a great deal of exercise. He works harder than an older person.

Foods are classed as Proteins, Fats, and Carbohydrates or Sugars. The proteins are the substances necessary for the growth and repair of the body tissues. The fats keep us warm and the carbohydrates supply energy. Eggs, milk, cheese and meat give the largest amount of protein; milk and butter the largest supply of fats, while sugar, jam, bread, milk, and cereals largely supply the carbohydrate. The following tables indicate the quantities of food and food values for the diet of—

FOOD THAT FEEDS

Why Do We Eat, Anyway, In Summer Time?

WHAT IS A GOOD MENU?

Most Housewives Don't Know Food Values to the Extent of Giving a Family, Especially Growing Children, the Proper Proportions of Protein.

One of the most important things that every housewife should know about food is its value as nourishment for the body. We must in fact have foods that feed. There are several kinds of values that all human bodies need in the food they eat and without which they cannot be healthy and well nourished. These are:

Material to build the body and repair waste.

Material to give heat and strength.

Material to enrich and cleanse the blood.

Material to form bone.

Let us take them in order.

It may be said of the body building material that, in a sense, it is the most important of all, because we cannot live without it, while we might go on living for some time without most of the others (though we could not long remain healthy). Cheese, lentils, haricot beans, split peas, meat, fish, oatmeal, eggs, nuts and, to a somewhat less extent, good bread, all have much body building material.

Fats of all kinds, such as butter, cream, suet, dripping, margarine and nut butter, give warmth and energy, strength and power to work. Sugar, molasses and golden sirup are also heat giving, and so are starchy foods, such as potatoes, rice and cornstarch. These foods, however, contain very little body building material.

Vegetables and fruit (other than peas, beans and lentils) contain scarcely any of the body building materials, but they give the body what no other foods give—that is, certain juices which purify and enrich the blood and without which no one can be healthy. It is these precious juices which are thrown away when vegetables are boiled in water and the water poured down the sink. If these juices were taken by people every day in properly cooked vegetables there would not be nearly so much money spent at the drug store, as they are the best possible form of natural medicine.

The bone forming materials are to be found principally in milk and cheese, good bread, oatmeal and in onions and many green vegetables. They are absolutely necessary for growing children. The result of children not getting enough of them is only too often to be seen in bad teeth and stunted growth.

Grape Juice Pudding.

One cupful of grape juice, one cupful of water, one cupful of sugar, one-fourth cupful of tapioca, the juice of one lemon, a pinch of salt and stiffly beaten whites of three eggs. Soak the tapioca for fifteen minutes in a cup of water; place in saucepan, add the sugar; when hot add the grape juice. Cook until the tapioca is transparent, then add the lemon juice and salt. Lastly fold in the beaten whites of the eggs.

WHAT'S COMING.

Fine Feathers Make Fine Birds This Fall, You See.

Feather trimmings promise to take the place of beads, which are going on to handbags. This snug little shape of black velvet with its chic brim is made more dashing by two tall, bright green birds that perch on the crown and turn tail to breezes.

QUITE ADVANCED.

Oysters are reported scarce this year, and while we don't know anything about it we presume that the war in some way or other is to blame.

THANKSGIVING AND ANNIVERSARY SERVICES

HollowayStreet Church Commemorates Two Events—Able and Appropriate Sermons by Rev. C. W. Watch of Midland, A Former Pastor

Thanksgiving and anniversary services combined were held Sunday at the Holloway Street Methodist church, Belleville, and the preacher for the day was the Rev. C. W. Watch, of Midland, who 18 years ago was the beloved pastor of the church.

Large congregations were present at both services, and the discourses by the divine were instructive and helpful. The congregation responded liberally to the thank offering. At the morning service, after the usual devotional exercises had been conducted the Rev. Mr. Watch preached. As the basis of his sermon he selected two Scripture texts, namely: Habakuk 1st chapter, 15th and 16th verses, and 1st Samuel, 6th chapter, 13th verse:

◆ ◆ ◆ ◆ ◆ ◆ ◆ ◆ ◆ ◆ ◆ ◆ ◆

> They take up all of them with the angel, they catch them in their net, and gather them in their drag; therefore they rejoice and are glad. Therefore they sacrifice unto their net and burn incense unto their drag, because by them their portion is fat, and their meat plenteous.
>
> And they of Beth-shemesh were reaping their wheat harvest in the valley, and they lifted up their eyes, and saw the ark, and rejoiced to see it.

◆ ◆ ◆ ◆ ◆ ◆ ◆ ◆ ◆ ◆ ◆ ◆ ◆

In his opening remarks the divine referred to the mode of harvestings in the olden times, and the mode in vogue at the present time. Nebuchadnezzar, the King of Babylon, was a ruler over that empire for many years. He was a prosperous monarch and a brilliant statesman, but he had one great fault, the greatest of his life. He forgot God in his prosperity. He thought all his successes were of himself and the prosperity he enjoyed was all of his own making. His soul in this respect was at ease. We likewise are a prosperous people, but are we not to some extent forgetting God. Remember the text in Samuel. The ark was the evidence of God's presence. They had not seen His presence for some days, and had missed the ark. The ark was to them the sacrament of great realities. It was an evidence that God was the giver of all good, and the source of their supplies. This is the lesson we must learn. We need to learn that God is still in the world, and not take our prosperity or our successes as our own. We need today to see that God is in our midst. To see God will illuminate our joy and give some little meaning to our calamities. Search God and we will see Him under all circumstances in which we are surrounded. We marvel at everything, but if we look up we will see God in the exultation of nations, and in their overthrow. God has something to do in the humiliation of national pride. We want to see God everywhere; even in the cottage to cheer and comfort in these days of sore tribulation. He is about everywhere, in the midst of joy and sorrow. His presence will make a nation great. We can see results of our prosperity, and we can see the methods by which we obtain our food, but we do not look for God, and that is where the trouble is. It was the God who made our forefathers the children of progress. They were conscious of the divine one; they believed God made the grain, and provided them with life's necessaries. They may have been simple minded men, but they realized the handwork of God, and they felt the touch of God upon them, and He came in and touched their work. It was the God that was with them, and turned the wilderness into a garden. The trouble to-day is that we do not see God as consciously as they did. Man is the child of God. They saw and they believed. There are some things we do not see. It has been given man to see God, and when they see Him and realize Him, there is no danger of indifference. The prayers of the saints go up to Him. What do we see to-day? We see anguish of soul, and we see sacrifices made, many of which are never recorded. How many Victoria Crosses are won and are never seen or worn? What agony there is in Belgium and what destruction has been wrought by the undersea boat and the overhead ship. We are grateful to the soldiers and sailors, and are even proud of the men who are making the shells of destruction. This would be an awful calamity if this is all we see. Without God there will be no victory, and without the consciousness of God there will be no triumph. To-day men are often scourged up to the heights, and forced to the presence of God through trials and tribulations. They are coming to cry out and for God. We want more of God in the church and in the homes. The church of God never had a larger work or a greater mission that it has to-day. We want more of His presence and a revival, so that out of the darkness we may be brought nearer to His throne. When we see God aright we will be conscious of His Presence and power. Progress in this world is often made through a calamity, and it is the harbinger of a new day. God has often come down and revealed Himself in such a manner that it was but the dawn of a new and brighter day. God in the past has manifested Himself to the people, and His work has been manifested. God moves in and out among us, and out of tribulation and sorrow a new dawn will appear. As God moved in and about men in days gone by, when the world was in chaos, and caused things to be changed to a newer birth, so will it be to-day. To see God, and lift our eyes and see Him on His throne, that is the hope of the soul and the hope of the world. Our help cometh from the God who made the heavens and the earth.

Uniting of Churches Will Not Be Lost

The Presbyterian Compares Union to Merging of Great Rivers—Vital Forces Persist

TORONTO, Oct. 21.—The Presbyterian devotes a lengthy article under the heading: "Who Are The Presbyterians?" to the Convocation which was held in Toronto on Tuesday. This church paper came in for some very severe criticism at the hands of the delegates gathered together in St. Andrew's church. It was condemned as being no true exponent of Presbyterianism. Mr. James Ferrier, of Mimico, alone had some words to say in its defence.

This is what The Presbyterian has to say about it all: "The Presbyterian Church in Canada is going into the union. It will continue to exist as part of the united body. The real Presbyterians are those who go with the Church. It is the dissentients who are untrue to the principles of Presbyterianism and who have forfeited their right to the historic name."

Like United Rivers

And again: "A few miles above Montreal the River Ottawa enters the St. Lawrence. For some distance beyond the meeting point the clear water of the St. Lawrence can be distinguished from the brown water of the northern river. Gradually they blend, until, at last, the distinction is no longer visible. But neither river is lost. Each contributes its force and volume to the might stream which flows on to the ocean. For a while after the union there will be lines of demarcation. Gradually these will fade away and the Church will be truly one. But none of the uniting churches will be lost. The vital forces of Presbyterianism, of Methodism, of Congregationalism will persist, and will make themselves felt in the onward sweep of the glorious River of Life."

The proportion of men who can and men who can't closely approximates that between men who will and men who won't.

Gurkha Hero Joins The 235th Battalion

Sergt. Dose Held Trench Alone for Three Days in Dardanelles After Father and Machine Gun Section Were Slain by Turks

Sergeant S. Dose, D.C.M., formerly of the 4th Infantry (Gurkas) now a member of the 235th, is in Belleville during the battalion's stay here, and called on The Intelligencer. He has already played a noble part in the conflict in which he has signed up to fight again and has the Distinguished Conduct Medal for bravery.

When the war broke out Sergt. Dose joined the Gurkas regiment in which his father, an Englishman was a captain. They were sent from India to the Suez Canal and later to the Dardanelles and it was here they saw action. While in the trenches Sergt. Dose, with a party of fifteen others composing a machine gun section and outposts became engaged with the Turks. A severe battle followed, and soon Sergt. Dose was the only one who remained, the rest along with his father, being killed. Dose continued to employ his machine gun and for three days and three nights he, single handed, held the Turks at bay. During that time he had nothing to eat and only a bottle of water to drink. At five o'clock on the third day he was wounded in the stomach and in the head and at 4 o'clock the next morning British troops succeeded in relieving him. For this he was awarded the Distinguished Conduct Medal He was removed to England and while in the hospital there he was visited twice weekly by King George. On his recovery Sergt. Dose came out to Canada to visit his sister, a nurse in a Montreal Hospital, and a brother also in that city. Sergt. Dose says that he would far rather fight with his Gurka's knife than with a rifle. He is a fine looking clean cut man of copper complexion, 21 years of age, with a fair command of the English tongue and a most winning smile.

The Khaki Club Reopened

Informal Reception Given Saturday Evening — Preparations for a Mid-Week Entertainment

The Belleville Khaki Club which has been closed during the summer, waiting for the arrival of a new battalion, was hastily prepared for an informal opening on Saturday night. Music and refreshments were provided by the Ladies of the Khaki Club and a very pleasant evening was spent. The formal opening will take place during the week and all men in khaki made welcome.

KHAKI NOTES

Magazines, cards and games are urgently required, also a piano, the latter being especially needful for the entertainment of the attendants.

Famous Fighter Shovels Coal

NEW YORK, Oct., 21—Joe Walcott, the negro pugilist, who once claimed the title of welterweight champion of the world, and who defeated Joe Choynski in 1900. has returned to New York, after an absence of many years as a stoker on board the steamship Aros Castle, from Australia. Walcott, who once earned big money in the prize ring, shoveled coal all the way from Australia. His last recorded appearance as a fighter was in 1908. Soon afterwards he disappeared and it was rumored among boxing enthusiasts that he was dead. He is a native of Barbadoes, British West Indies, and was known as the "Barbadoes Demon."

AUSTRO-GERMAN OFFENSIVE CUT SHORT BY RUSSIAN FORCES

Canadian Press Special

PETROGRAD, Oct. 23.—A powerful Austro-German offensive launched a week ago in the region south of Dorna Watra with the intention of driving a wedge between the Russian and Roumanian forces, preventing further assistance to the Roumanians, and also regaining Bukowina has apparently broken down before the Russian counter manoeuvres. The Russian command anticipating the German move, threw a large body of troops into this portion of the front, causing the Austro-Germans to fall back to original positions. The Russky Invallide says the enemy is now convinced of the futility of further efforts in Galicia, and is now preparing for winter quarters under present con-

Canadian Press Special.

British Forces in Paris, Oct. 23.—Official statement.—North of the Somme toward the end of the day yesterday, we carried out a minor operation, which was entirely successful. After brief artillery preparation our troops carried in a superb rush the whole of ridge 128 to the west of Sailly Saillisel, on which we gained a footing, October 8th. South of the Somme, despite violent bombardment of the wooded region north of Chaulnes, the enemy did not renew his attempts against our new positions during the night.

Further south an enemy coup de main against one of our trenches in the neighborhood of the railway line failed. Total number of prisoners taken by us since Saturday in Chaulnes sector, is now 450, including 16 officers.

RECRUITING MEETING A GREAT SUCCESS

Citizens of Belleville Crowd Griffins Opera House — Inspiring Addresses by Fluent Orators—Battalion Band Discourses Suitable Selections

A recruiting meeting was held at Griffin's Opera House last evening by the 235th Battalion, which is stationed in Belleville. There was a large attendance, and much interest was manifested in the addresses given, and the selections rendered by the band, under the capable leadership of Bandmaster Murchison, were of a fine order. The speakers were amongst the best that have ever been heard in this city, on the theme of recruiting.

Capt. McLean, paymaster of the battalion, was chairman, and in opening the meeting said it was a pleasure to be in Belleville. The battalion upon arrival in this city was hospitably received, and the many acts of kindnesses by the citizens were much appreciated, and he desired to thank Bellevillians on behalf of the battalion. They would be in the city during the winter and similar meetings would be held.

Capt. Dickson, who relinquished a remunerative position at Cornell Universtiy, N.Y., to enlist, upon being called upon to speak, was most cordially received. He said that Belleville had sent many to the front, and one was present who had done his duty. We cannot, however, live on the reputation of what others had done. It was necessary to have recruits for the 235 Batalion. We are members of the greatest Empire the world has ever n, and we hope it will continue to be the Empire of the world. As citizens of this Empire, we enjoy many rights we are proud of, and we will protect those rights. We are compelled by the Government of this country to obey the laws of the land. There is a duty that is not compulsory, because we are a free people. The highest duty that any man can do is to give his service to King and country We have to assist in this war, as our Empire is at stake. The point to-day is us or our opponents. We belong to the Empire, and we must assist that Empire. The tide of victory looks our way after two years of war, but it has not yet been reached. For forty years Germany was preparing for this war. This war is only half over, and if we hope to win we must get more men. Why does not every man who is physically fit enlist to assist in securing the victory we are so desirous of. This is our war. We must realize that Germany every year with its millions of population, can place yearly one million in the field. Germany wants to crush Great Brtiain on land and sea, and she wants Canada for her overplus population. We are fighting for the Dominion of Canada as much as we are fighting for any other country. (Applause.)

Lt. Scobel thanked the citizens of Belleville for the kind welcome extended to the battalion. We came as strangers to the city, and you took us in. The ladies of the city had kindly thrown open the Khaki Club and the men appreciate the same. While we are in ease at it were, a terrible war is raging, and the greatest number of livs are daily being hurled into eternity, as never before. Germany knew when she commenced this war that the Allies were not prepared. Belgium was recognized as a neutral country, and when Germany invaded that country is caused Great Britain to enter the war. The Kaiser said it was only a scrap of paper, but it was a sacred compact and Great Britain was behind it. Belgium might have allowed Germany to have gone through their country to France to attack that nation, but she stuck to her guns, and gave their lives for their country. We have much to thank Belgium for what she did. The British went over and held the lines when Germany tried to overrule France. We are protected by that great line of grey hounds that patrol the seas. The Colonel related some of the atrocities which had been committed by the Germans in Belgium, which were heartrendering. He (the speaker) was going over to assist in protecting the defenceless women who have been cruelly outraged. The call has gone out for 500,000 men in Canada, and the boys are beckoning for us to come and liberate those who are in German prison. In conclusion the Colonel made an earnest appeal cared for. His closing words were "boys clothe yourselves in khaki."

Lieut. Thompson sing in fine form a solo entitled "The Deathless Army."

Mrs. Parson, whose home is in Northern Ontario, was the next speaker, and she is certainly a clever woman and well versed. As the chairman stated in introducing her, she has three sons at the front. In her opening remarks the speaker referred to the importune time Germany chose to launch the presnt war. Great Britain was unprepared except for her navy, and there was trouble in Ireland, but that was obliterated and Protestanst and Catholics were to-day fighting side by side. All parts of the British Empire were doing their duty, even to India. Germany sent out reports that Canada did not want to fight, but in this, as in other matters, she was mistaken. Canada to-day realizes she is at war, and Canada will do her duty. Every man is expected to do his duty, and there are places which must be filled. We do not want to lose the young men, but we think and know they must go. The men cannot hide behind the women as many are doing. The call comes to young men and this is not the day to get behind your mother. The only way to show your love for womankind is to go out and fight for them.. If the boys want to win laurels to-day, let them get in khaki. The man in khaki is the man that is admired and respected. You cannot afford to stay back any longer. There are gaps in the lines to-night, and some are Belleville boys that are gone. Will you fill those gaps. Canada's heroic sons have done their duty, but there are many who yet can go. Canadian boys have dropped hockey sticks for rifles, and baseballs for bullets. Obey the call of duty and take the place of those who have fallen. Canada has made a big record the past two years, but the call to-day is great for boys. Our Canadian boys are fighting for us. Your country is calling you, and you should rise in your might and say her am I. (Loud applause.)

Captain Lane, a barrister from Texas, who came to Canada and enlisted, was next called upon, and received a hearty welcome. In his opening remarks he referred to the fact that he was born in Belleville, but left here when an infant. He was proud to return as a British subject, for he had never forswore his allegiance to the British crown. (Applause.) It was a wonderful thing to be called a Britisher. When coming to Canada he expected to find the country crippled, on account of the war, but he was agreeably surprised to find the reverse. The country was prosperous and manufacturing concerns were working overtime. Business is exceptionally brisk. Canada as a country had as yet made no great sacrifice nationally. Individually, families had made great sacrifices. The speaker said the Canadian women were as usual engaged in their homes with household duties, while in England and other countries many women were compelled to take the place of men who were fighting. We must furnish in Canada the 500,000 men required. This war was the greatest in history since the flood, and young men must be up and doing. How will a young man, who refuses to enlist face those who come back from the trenches. It will be most embarassing for him to answer why he did not enlist. The long list of casualties we see daily is because there are not enough reinforcements. If all will think this question over seriously, we will procure the recruits necessary. The march on to Berlin will come, and what a glorious march that will be. This is the greatest patriotic opportunity young men have ever had in their lives to take part in the biggest thing the world has ever seen. Get in the game. (Applause.)

This concluded the speech-making and the meeting was closed.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

FLORENCE REID AT PALACE

One of the very attractive plays by the late Clyde Fitch is 'Her Own Way' which he wrote especially for Maxine Elliot, and which she played on both sides of the Atlantic. This drama has been a popular medium for every stock star actress in the country and it has been acted throughout the United States with every success. Of all of Mr. Fitch's plays "Her Own Way" was selected by the Popular Plays and and Players as the best medium for the use of the emotional star, Florence Reid, who is featured in the role of Georgiana Carley, originally created by Maxine Elliot. "Her Own Way," a feature of the Metro programme, will be shown at the Paloce Theatre. Tonight and Tuesday, matinee and night.

In addition to the above five part offering the following photoplays will be exhibited: A Hazard of Helen, Railroad Story, Selig Tribune, offering a review of news events, Freddy Fools the Floaters. a very amusing comedy, and Vernon Howe's Sketch Book of Arizona.

SWEET KITTY BELLAIRS
AT GRIFFIN'S TONIHT

Mae Murray one of the most beautiful actresses on the stage and screen makes her local photoplay debut at Griffin's Opera House tonight only in the Lasky production of the delightful comedy, "Sweet Kitty Bellairs." "Sweet Kitty Bellairs." concerns the famous beauty of that name who ruled the social and court life of England in the middle of the eighteenth century. There is plenty of action, stirring situations and exciting episodes which stamp it as one of the really fine feature filmplay productions of the season.

On the same program with the above five part offering, the fifth chapter of the popular athletic series will be exhibited along with a new and amusing Bray Komedy Kartoon.

"WHEN DREAMS COME TRUE" AT GRIFFIN'S TOMORROW

The very latest musical comedy offering, "When Dreams Come True," with book and lyrics by Philip Bartholomae and music by Silvio Hein, is announced as the attraction at Griffin's Opera House, tomorrow night.

"When Dreams Come True" was produced originally in Cleveland, Ohio, and then taken to Chicago where it played for more than six months at the Garrich Theatre. At the conclusion of the Chicago engagement the company went down to New York and opened at the Lyric Theatre where they stayed three months. Then they transferred to the 44th Street Theatre and after ten weeks at that house, engagements at Philadelphia and Boston followed.

"When Dreams Come True" is a musical comedy with a blend of melodrama. The story is consistent throughout, in which it differs materially from most of our musical shows, although the musical comedy features have not been sacrificed on account of the dramatic interest, but they have been so deftly blended that the play is a marvel of dramatic construction.

HEADACHE.

HEADACHE IS A SYMPTOM, and not a disease. If you have a headache it is in most cases due to some bad habit. You eat too much, drink too much, sleep too little, strain the eyes too much, or work too continuously in bad air at some trying occupation. True there are headaches due to Bright's Disease or other organic diseases, but these are infrequent compared to those coming from causes which are remediable. Let us consider some of the common causes of headaches and see how this discomfort may be prevented.

(1) From over indulgence in beer, whiskey, or wine. The remedy is to cut them out, or so lessen the quantity to give your kidneys and skin a fair chance to eliminate the poison. If you have indulged, better get rid of the booze as quickly as possible. This may be done by a combination of two cathartic pills, a hot bath, hot cloths applied to the head, hot broth, and rest in bed.

(2) From biliousness or over indulgence in food. Nothing is better than a good dose of ordinary Epsom Salts and rest in a quiet, darkened room.

HEADACHE A SYMPTOM

(3) Want of outdoor exercise. The city man (or woman) at a desk in a close room or the editor at work under constant strain from 5 p.m. to 1 a.m. with hurried meals is often the subject of headaches. All these people need more outdoor air and exercise. Golf, bowling or tennis, especially golf, with one-fifth the quantity of fresh meat, potatoes, and bread and the difference in fruit, vegetables and water will do more for sick people than all the headache cures in the world.

(4) Eye strain, due either to defective eyesight or to trying eye work, causes lots of headaches. Headaches of this kind usually come on in the evening, (sometimes in the morning) after a trying day. They are usually in the forehead or temples. A simple way to test eye strain is for one to hang up a test-card in a well-lighted room, stand twenty feet by measure away from the card and see if you can read the line marked 20, first with each eye separately and then with both eyes, and if the letters are not clear-cut, distinct, and separate one's eyesight is faulty and glasses are required. Go to a first-class oculist and get the eyes properly fitted.

(5) Fatigue headache. Some people get headache from fatigue. These headaches develop towards the close of the day. The only cure is to avoid over-exciting oneself.

(6) Too light a breakfast. Many people, especially women, eat nothing for breakfast but tea and toast. This is insufficient to carry one along for four or five hours. After the long fast overnight one needs a good breakfast. It ought to be one of the best meals of the day. A good type of breakfast is—

Oranges or Grapefruit.
Cereals, with Milk and Cream.
Eggs; soft boiled, poached, or in omelette.
Toast and Butter.
A cupful of Hot Water, flavored with Cream and Sugar.

(7) Neurasthenia headache. A headache of this character is often described as a band about the head. There may be a feeling as though the top of the head is coming off, or it may be such as to make a man feel he is going insane. The way to prevent a headache of this character is to improve the general physical condition by good food, outdoor life, relief from excessive nervous strain and worry—especially from worry.

(8) Migraine. Boys and girls from eight to fifteen years of age frequently have headaches of a particular character. The subjects of these headaches waken in the morning with a heavy foggy feeling. There may be a disturbance of the eyes, such as flashes of light first in one eye then in the other. These symptoms are succeeded by headache, nausea, and sometimes vomiting. These headaches come on periodically without any apparent cause. They are often called sick headaches. They run in families. Some women have them well into the prime of life and are in bed in a darkened room with them for a day or two every month. This form of headache is called migraine. It is often confined to one side of the head, hence the name hemicrania. The best treatment is to use hot and cold applications to the back of the neck and cold to the forehead and top of the head. If the face is pale use hot applications; if flushed use cold.

The person addicted to migraine should lead a simple outdoor life with plenty of exercise and fresh air. He should eat lightly and simply, keep the bowels regular, and avoid any excesses. By these means the tendency to haedache will probably disappear.

None of the remedies proposed, as will be seen, include headache medicines, for the reason that all headache medicine which have as their basis in one of the coal-tar products are injurious. Some are positively dangerous. Numerous people have been killed by their use, and the best course is to avoid their use entirely.

Canada to Have Military Agent In Old Country

OTTAWA, Oct. 20.—Closer supervision of Canadian military affairs in England by a member of the Government is in prospect. It is not unlikely that, temporarily at least, Sir George Perley will take over the work, though another member may later be assigned to it.

For almost the first two years of the war, when the troops were being organized and despatched from Canada, the heavy end of the work was in this country. Conditions now differ greatly. The large proportion of the men are overseas. This winter not more than 50,000 will remain in Canada.

In consequence the Canadian military organization in England is very large and growing steadily. The expenditures are enormous and for some time it has been suggested that a member of the Government residing in England during the war, with the possible assistance of a council, should take direct charge of the administration both from a military and financial point of view.

Heretofore this work has been in the hands of representatives of the Minister of Militia. It is now so extensive as to justify a member of the Government assuming the direct administrative responsibility.

New Zealand School Children's Gift

Sent Twenty-Seven Thousand Dollars to The Lord Mayor of London For Belgian Children

There is nothing more gratifying than the manner in which the school children of the world have responded to the appeal of their little brothers and sisters in Belgium—those countless hundreds of wan little creatures, wavering between the cheery nature of the child and the listlessness that comes of starvation.

The school children of New Zealand recently sent over $27,000 to the Lord Mayor of London to be turned over to the Belgian Relief fund for the benefit of their youthful Belgian comrades.

School children in other parts of the earth are responding in a similar way to the end that many a starving Belgian tot has been saved from death through the sacrifice of some delicacy by the children elsewhere.

Canadian school children have given here and there, and the money has been turned into the Belgian Relief Committee, 59 St. Peter Street, Montreal, although there has been no concerted movement to give like that in New Zealand. The schools of Canada are hereby notified that there are branches of the Belgian Committee in almost every community, and that $2.50 from them means the saving of the lives of a Belgian family for at least a month.

MOTOR TOGS.

SUMMER "IFS."

Interesting Ways to Beat Nuisances of the Season.

If there is a hole in a rubber hot water bag, a hole which cannot be mended, fill the bag with salt or sand heated in the oven. The result will be as satisfactory as if the bag were filled with water.

If you would have your summer supply of white silk stockings remain white, always see to it that they are dried in the shade and washed in lukewarm water, as heat turns them yellow.

If small ants, which sometimes get into houses, prove a pest with you, place a sponge soaked in water in which sugar is dissolved in the path of the ants. They will swarm into the sponge, which can then be plunged into hot water.

If you are leaving the house closed for a short time, rub the smoothing irons with lard to keep them from rusting. On your return dip them in hot water, dry them thoroughly and then heat them.

If you wish to make a satisfactory polish for hardwood floors, shave an ounce of beeswax into a quart of turpentine. Rub this well on the floor with a flannel cloth and then rub to a polish with a dry cloth.

If a white straw hat is streaked and soiled, try cleaning it with lemon juice and salt or salts of lemon and water. If it remains streaked, color it with one of the liquid hat colorings to be found in the shops.

If a casserole or other cooking dish becomes brown and discolored on the inside, let it stand for three days filled with buttermilk, which will, by its acid, remove all the stain.

If a rubber glove becomes torn or cut, place a strip of sticking plaster, sticky side next the rubber, on the inside of the glove.

If you wish to keep cheese from molding, cover it securely with a cloth wrung from vinegar.

If the brass polish gives out, do not worry, but instead go to work at the brass with lemon juice.

If anybody's finger is burned, dust the burn with powdered charcoal to keep it from smarting.

To Keep Goldfish Healthy.

Goldfish may be kept healthy by giving them a salt bath about every two weeks. Do it in this way: Put a teaspoonful of salt in a quart of clear water and place the fish in it for fifteen minutes—no longer. When changing the water in the aquarium, a small wire strainer will be found a great convenience. Pour all the water from the goldfish bowl, with the fish, into a basin. Rinse the bowl, dry it, fill with fresh water and with the wire strainer pick up the goldfish and drop them back into the bowl. Aquariums should be kept in a cool place and not exposed to the direct rays of the sun. Feed the fish every other morning, allowing six or eight fish one-fourth of a sheet of food cut in small pieces. Sick fish have often become strong and healthy after a few salt baths.

Egg Sauce.

Make a white sauce from a cupful of rich milk thickened smoothly with a tablespoonful of butter and flour. Season with paprika and salt and add a hard boiled egg chopped fine. This is especially good with boiled codfish.

AUTUMN'S TASK.

What All Good Housekeepers Should Know.

ABOUT FALL CANNING ARTS.

The Value of Accuracy Instead of Guesswork—Preserving Really Means Sterilization and Hermetic Sealing. Suggestions About Vegetables.

First.—Fresh fruits and vegetables are first choice, if available. If not, canned goods, homemade or commercial, are a veritable godsend—wholesome, convenient and economical.

Second.—Canning means sterilization (killing bacteria and spore by heat, and hermetically sealing so that no invaders can enter the can). Nobody needs a canning powder. They are always dangerous and useless.

Third.—There is little if any more danger of illness from canned goods than from fresh. Sterilization is a highly perfected process, and nearly all spoilage makes itself known to sight and taste and smell. The most care must be exercised with milk and meat and fish.

Fourth.—Throw away a can that is "swelled" or leaky. This may mean insufficient sterilization or gas formation, and no chances should be taken, though sometimes it means only overfilling.

Fifth.—Use a thermometer. Don't guess. Womanly intuition and the rule of thumb would never produce efficiency in a cannery, and they won't do it in the home kitchen.

Sixth.—Sulphites and saccharine in canned corn, copper sulphate for greening peas, boracic and salicylic acids for easier and surer preserving are all evils of a dead and buried past. The only canned goods chemically preserved to be found nowadays are those put up on the farms and in small towns, where the peddler of the "preserving powders" misleads the unsuspecting home canner into using his anonymous wares.

Seventh.—A can of corn twenty-seven years old recently was critically examined by a food commissioner and pronounced to be "good eating." A product that was inferior before going into the can may at one year of age be a poorer product than its elder brother. However, age is not to be desired in canned foods, and they should not be carried over several seasons. The amount of tin dissolved increases on standing, condensed milks "lump" and excesses of heat or cold injure quality.

FOR THE SEWING ROOM.

Hints For Women Who Do Their Own Family Sewing.

A chiffonier or bureau in the sewing room will be found indispensable. One drawer is used for the stock room, and the small wares are kept therein; one is for patterns, one for pieces to use for patching and mending and one for clothing to be mended or fixed over.

An old iron incased in a two pound sugar bag is just the thing to hold your work while sewing. It takes the place of the old fashioned bird that is seen sometimes.

If the pins are kept in a deep saucer one can pick them up or throw them down easily when fitting a dress.

Take a board of the desired length and width and drive a number of nails through two inches apart. These will hold the spools of thread. The numbers can be quickly seen, and there will be no tangling with the scissors.

Cream jars are excellent for buttons, as they can be classified and easily distinguished therein.

An old sheet spread on the floor will catch all threads and can be easily shaken, leaving the room tidy with no exertion.

..THIS .IS THE 816TH DAY THE BRITISH EMPIRE HAS BEEN AT WAR WITH GERMANY.

A TOTAL ABSENCE OF "HORRORS"

" I have been all over the camp, and I have seen the troops at all different branches of training, and I was pleased with all I saw."

The above words coming from High Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught do not sound like what we have read in Liberal papers concerning the condition of much criticised Military quarters—and Camp Borden in particular.

The Duke referred to Camp Borden! he inspected every corner of it—studied it with the eye of an expert, "and saw that it was good."

Where were the "horrors" that we have read about? Where were all those awful conditions of which the Globe and the rest of the Grit press have been telling the country? Nothing so terrible as these papers have described could have been rolled up and hidden, or swept into a corner in half a day for the benefit of the Governor-General. If these journals have told the truth, the Duke visited a camp that is full of frightfulness, saw it all, and was pleased with all he saw.

Nonsense, of course. There is not and was not any "horror" at Camp Borden, beyond such as were created in the clouded minds of journalistic cutthroats. To serve a party purposes the Laurier press seized upon and magnified the temporary discomforts incident to the opening of what was planned to be and is today one of the finest military training grounds in the British Empire.

The Duke of Connaught did not go to Camp Borden to serve a party purpose, to help the Minister of Militia. He went as Governor-General to see the camp, just as he went to the other military training camps in eastern and western Canada, and he spoke of the conditions as he found them. Moreover, he went armed with a thorough understanding of what an up-to-date and properly equipped military training camp ought to be. He is a soldier and has been all his life a soldier. He has visited and has lived in camps in many part of the world. He knows his subject and is as disinterested as any man could possibly be. Hence the great gulf which marks the difference between his testimony and that of the Laurier newspapers, which speak from an ignorance of their subject and a desire to cripple and disorganize this important branch of the work which the Borden Government is carrying on against the Huns.

Liberal newspapers throughout Canada have yelped in concert over the alleged indifference shown to the private soldier at Camp Borden. Here is what that "indifference" looked like to a soldier who knows all about soldiering, and has held the highest command in the British army.—"I have now seen every camp in Canada, and have been very much struck with the excellent up-to-date instruction which is given to all ranks. What has given me the greatest pleasure has been the very great interest shown by all officers in instructing their men to the best of their ability, their sympathy with the men and their desire to help them to get on in their military work."

And now permit us to put a query: Will the Liberal papers accept even the Duke's version of Camp Borden's condition.

THE LAST HOPE.

If the attitude of Germany and Austria toward peace is really that of which The Associated Press was informed in Vienna, and if they have no intention of changing that attitude, then peace is as far away as ever, and the German feelers in that direction appear in the light of ghastly jokes, says the New York Times. If it is simply the kind of bargaining in which impossibilities are asked for at the outset with a view to subsequent recessions, the time for it, in view of the situation, is somewhat infelicitous. The attitude is that, since the British have not chased the Germans out of France, the fear of Kitchener's millions has subsided; that Roumania is no longer feared, and that these two things being true, there is no change in the situation from that which existed when the Teutonic Empires made their original decision to accept no peace save a conquered one. They are "ready for a "peace which would leave Europe "very much as before the war," except that Belgium and Serbia must disappear and Russia must surrender Poland. If these are the demands they are "ready for" after a stalemate, what would they have exacted in case of a victory? They are willing not to dismember France; that seems to be the extent of the concession. If these demands are not granted, we are informed, they will continue the war until the Allies are worn out, and they can keep on fighting as long as the enemy can.

If this haughty answer had been returned to feelers thrown out by the Allies, it could be understood and would be weighty. But the Allies have thrown out no feelers. It is Germany's answer to Germany's own feelers for peace. Germany has been doing all the talking. She has been talking about peace; she has waited for an answer and got none; after listening awhile she again breaks the silence, and says, rather boyishly: "Very well, "then, if you won't answer me, go on fighting and you'll be sorry." To this, also, no anwer will be returned.

The purpose back of all this is the same to which Germany has clung for more than a year—to intimidate one of the Allies into breaking from the others. A year and a half ago, in the German mind, the separate peace with Russia had been all but negotiated; all that remained was another battle or two, and Russia would be making advances for it. The Germans were even impatient and scornful of neutrals who presumed to doubt it. The German propaganda in this country was full of winks and nods and whispers of great events about to come. When Russia, instead of suing for a separate peace, rebuilt her resistance and turned it into an offensive, the German hope turned to France; Verdun was to do the trick. Verdun did not do the trick, and now the German hope, fainter but still living, turns to Russia again. It is fainter, but it must live, for it is the last of the German hopes, and when one gives up his last hope there is only despair. These desperate trial balloons, alternating between peace feelers and threats, indicate nothing but the state of the German mind; from the solid wall around them there comes not even a whisper of reply.

Russia Born Again Out of the War

LAST summer when Russia "came back" after the disasters of 1915 and shattered to its foundations the Austrian military machine the world was astonished. It was suggested by some that the "come back" has been made possible through Japanese and American ammunition supplies. The brilliant successes accomplished by the Russian soldiers have also been ascribed to the genius of Gen. Brussiloff. Few suspected that between the summers of 1915 and 1916 the old Russian military organization had made its final exit from the arena of the great Slavic nation's life and that a new Russia took over the management of all military affairs and in the opinion of Isaac Don Levine, who discusses the matter in The New York Times, it is this latter Russia that has scored so magnificently against the Teutons and is now fighting in the ranks of the Allies. This new Russia is the social Russia, the Russia of the great social organizations supporting and co-operating with the Government in the prosecution of the war.

The vastness of the achievements of these social organizations is revealed in the latest Moscow and Petrograd newspapers to reach this country. Popular Russia celebrated about the middle of August the second anniversaries of the two largest social bodies that grew up in Russia as a consequence of the war, the All-Russian Zemstvo Union and the Union of Municipalities. While the statistics relative to their activities deal mostly with totals comprising the two years of the war, it should be borne in mind that in the first year of the conflict they engaged almost exclusively in relief work. It was only when the Government's War Department collapsed at the Teutonic invasion of Poland and Lithuania, with the consequent dismissal and arrest of Gen. Sukhomlinoff, the Minister of War, that the social organizations rallied to the support of the army and, backed by the entire nation, succeeded in reorganizing it on new and lasting bases.

The All-Russian Zemstvo Union, the largest of all social organizations in Russia, if not in the entire world, had handled through its offices the enormous sum of 2,500,000,000 roubles in the two years of its existence. The Central Committee of the union alone had had in the same period passed through its treasury the sum of 1,300,000,000 roubles. The union maintains 317 institutions on the northern front, 1,043 on the western, 1,631 on the south-western, and 288 on the Caucasus front. These institutions include hospitals, ambulance stations, sanitary trains, medical and feeding units, medical and feeding stations on the various supply routes, tea rooms, field dentists and dental and X-ray stations, laboratories, disinfection stations, baths, laundries, motor, motor-cycle and horse supply communications, veterinary stations, boats, shops, factories, etc.

On July 16, 1916, the material on hand in all the central warehouses of the Zemstvo Union was insured for the amount of 22,790,000 rubles. Among other items found in these warehouses were 1,500,000 pieces of linen. In the two years of its activities the union supplied the War Ministry with 78,000,000 pieces of linen, while it issued to its own institutions at the front 50,000,000 more pieces of linen. In addition to this the union had an order to supply the army with 4,000,000 tent awnings and 3,000,000 sandbags. Altogether, the union had filled orders for 131,000,000 linen articles of all descriptions. The union's order department is to supply the Government in 1916 with 5,000,000 pairs of winter boots, 4,000,000 winter coats, 5,000,000 pairs of gloves, and 10,000,000 pairs of socks, all for the sum of 75,000,000 rubles. It is evident from this order that another winter campaign had been expected and provided for by the Allies some months ago. On Jan. 1, 1916, the union had furnished to the War Ministry about 3,000,000 articles for winter use. From August 3, 1915, to August 10, 1916, the branch institutions of the union had distributed articles to the value or 36,000,000 rubles.

The Automobile Department of the Central Committee had purchased 1,261 automobiles, 261 motorcycles, 60 motorboats, and plans to spend in the next three months 10,000,000 rubles on various items. The special factory maintained by the Sanitary-Technical Department had turned out articles to the amount of 1,450,000 rubles. Up to January 1, 1916, this department had expended 7,000,000 rubles on medicine. During the whole of 1915 the department distributed medicines to the value of 1,200,000 rubles; in the first four months of the present year, to the amount of 1,031,000 rubles. On July 14, 1916, the department had on hand various medical supplies valued at 2,800,000 rubles. The above figures are only some of the statistics telling eloquently the story of a great nation aroused as never before. A little more than two years ago no one, even in Russia, dreamed that such an organization could ever exist and labor in Russia. Much has been said and written about the marvelous achievements of England in the last two years. But history will marvel more at the wonderful results accomplished by backward and isolated Russia after receiving a staggering blow that was considered fatal by almost the entire world. The blow may have been fatal to the old Russia, but quite unexpectedly to von Hinderburg and von Mackensen it had the effect of reviving and regenerating the slumbering collosus of the Russian people.

The New Palestine.

Should the kingdom of Jerusalem be revived, the new monarch will find a capital which has been modernized in many ways. Two years ago the municipality of Jerusalem granted concessions for the electric lighting of the city and for the construction of four electric tramways including one from Jaffa gate to Bethlehem and another along the Damascus road to the head of the Valley of Jehosaphat. Steps have also been taken to construct water works, although when the Baroness Burdett-Coutts offered to spend £25,000 on this much needed improvement, provided the municipality voted the money for their up-keep, her offer was declined.—London Chronicle.

governing desertion which was passed last January being cited as authority.

It is stated at the Militia Department that such is not the case, and that a soldier who absents himself for a sufficient period without leave is a deserter whether his battalion is overseas or at home.

Mr. F. B. McCurdy, Parliamentary Under-Secretary of the department, stated that the police court case in Ottawa referred to was decided solely in the absence of proof called for by the order-in-Council of last January. Clause 3 of this order is to the following effect:

"Every man of the active militia of Canada and every soldier of the Canadian overseas forces who absents himself from the corps or unit to which he belongs without the leave of the commanding officer, is guilty of an offence and liable upon summary conviction under the provisions of part 15 of the Criminal Code to imprisonment with or without hard labor for a term not exceeding two years."

Some misunderstanding also appears to have arisen as regards the power of commanding officers of units to sentence men to jail for being absent without leave. This has been done in Ottawa military district and other places as well. According to the Militia Department, however, no commanding officer has such power. He may give a soldier 28 days detention for being absent without leave, but cannot imprison him. A magistrate must pass the sentence. Since war broke out special permission has been given magistrates to try cases of absence without leave.

It was also stated at the Militia Department that parents of boys who have enlisted in the expeditionary forces, who appear at the last moment, and claim their offspring will not be allowed to do so in the future. The matter has been gone into and Judge Advocate-General Smith has given his decision that a boy, if regularly enlisted and in receipt of pay, cannot be withdrawn from the ranks by request of his parents or other persons. A number of cases of the kind have occurred since the war.

Must Eat Crumbs.

The Paris Journal says the following is extracted from a circular intended for distribution among the German troops and found in the possession of a captain taken prisoner on the Somme:

"England and France are making implacable efforts to stop our revictualling from overseas countries and to starve us out. The duty of every military man, officer or soldier, is consequently to economize and husband the food and forage. Thus we will counter the enemy's efforts.

"Satisfy your hunger, but no more than the natural needs. Eat up all the crumbs it is possible to use. You have a right to a geerous portion of rations, but you are not obliged to eat it all. Therefore, claim all that you are entitled to, and if you receive other food from home use it to vary your meals. But do not eat for the sake of eating.

"Remember that your country is deprived of a large quantity of raw material, and it is your urgent duty to gather and hand in all leavings and apparently useless articles, such as tins, leaden tubes, old cloth, wornout bags, old clothes, and odd pieces of leather, rubber, and metal of all sorts."

To Record Babe's Identity.

There will be no more changelings or Slingsby baby cases if a new system of recording a child's identity is generally adopted. The finger-print system is now employed by the police in all countries. A convict whose thumb-print has once been taken can always be identified.

There are obvious difficulties about taking a baby's finger-print — the hands are always curling and clutching—but its feet present no such obstacle. What applies to finger-prints applies to foot-prints. The impression of a baby's foot once taken forms a life record.

The foot-print system is already employed in one great foreign maternity hospital with most satisfactory results. All that is necessary is to cover the sole of the child's foot with printer's ink by means of a roller, and then transfer the impression to a sheet of paper. The ink can be cleaned off the foot with alcohol. Care must be taken not to disturb the impressions before they are dry. It is claimed that there will then exist for all time a record of the baby's identity which would carry weight in any court of law in after years. No matter how much the feet grow, the lines will have grown with them, and their pattern will not be changed.

What Is Good Water?

Good water is colorless, clear, free from suspended matter, of brilliant luster and free from smell or taste. Bad water may sometimes meet all these specifications and yet be full of germs. Rainwater is good; so is water from clear ice or from springs, lakes, large rivers and streams in uninhabited districts. Rainwater from polluted surfaces is bad; so is the water from snow ice, small ponds, streams and wells in inhabited places. Marsh water is bad, and streams below towns are almost certainly full of germs and sewage.—Outing.

Memorial Service To Belleville Hero

Professor Watson and Col. Lazier Make Feeling Reference to Late Captain W. H. Hudson, in St. Andrews Church

Rev. Professor Watson, of Kingston preached both morning and evening to large congregations in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Sunday. Following the evening service a short memorial service was held to the memory of the late Captain William H. Hudson, to whom the professor made feeling reference, and Col. Lazier in a brief address spoke of the loss sustained by St Andrew's Church lately, so many from the congregation having made the supreme sacrifice for their Country and King.

Speakng of Captain Hudson, Col. Lazier said, that young and popular, and with much to make life desirable, yet when the call came he did not hesitate to take his place among those who voluntarily came forward to defend their King and Empire.

He felt sure the sympathy of the congregation would be extended to the bereaved sisters. The memorial service closed with the "Dead March in Saul" most beautifully rendered by the organist.

Held Sunday School Anniversary

In the Anniversary Services of the Holloway Street Methodist Church held yesterday the Sunday School played a magnificent part. The attendance was much above the average and the giving far exceeded that of other years. It was a splendid sight and a real inspiration to see the little children, and older folks all march round and deposit their envelope containing their offering held by two little girls. $93.06 was realized from the Sunday School in this way. The Rev. C. W. Watch who conducted the services of the day gave a most helpful address reminiscent of his former pastorship in Holloway Church

Mr. G. T. Woodley, Superintendent of the Sunday School by his enthusiasm and earnestness and with the splendid staff of officers and teachers assisting is doing a wonderful work in the Holloway Street Sunday School.

GAMEL CORPS DETACHMENT SWEEP IN 175 PRISONERS

Canadian Press Special

LONDON, Oct. 23.—In Egypt, on the western front a Gamel corps detachment using motor cars, swept the Dakhla Oasis, taking 175 prisoners. The Gamel corps also repulsed fifty prisoners at the Baharia Oasis.

Both operations took place Sunday and were unaccompanied by casualties to the British forces.

SEVERAL SHIPS SUNK

WELL RECEIVED AT PETERBORO'

According to communications received in the city, from members of the 155th Band, they are being royally received by the people of Peterboro' and are well pleased with the city in general. A parade was held Saturday morning, which consisted of the band, and the 247th Battalion, which has been recently formed.

VICTIM OF AN ACCIDENT

Mr. Harry White, who is employed at the Crystal Hotel in this city was this morning the victim of an accident. He was at an early hour driving down Pinnacle Street when he was taken with a fainting spell and fell from the buggy to the ground. In falling White was cut about the head, and bruised about the body. Fortunately his injuries are not of a serious nature. When found upon the street the victim was partially unconscious.

UPPER CANADA COLLEGE

At the annual presentation of prizes on Friday. Col. W. N. Ponton, K. C. one of the Board of Governors, represented the Old Boys' Association of this old historic College in presenting the Senior Prizes in Mathematics, Classics and English. A. Kelso Roberts of this city carried off the honors in Mathematics. On the walls of U.C.C. are the names of Wallbridge, Hutton, Bell, Biggar, Northrup, Bogert, Ponton, and many others. 747 Old Boys are serving at the front—a splendid record.

ENEMY SAMPLES

Police Magistrate Masson of Belleville has been called to Cape Vincent, N. Y. owing to the illness of a brother who resides there.

THIS "WALKING DRESS"

For Fall Trotteurs Is Especially Smart, You Know.

The smartest American designer is putting out this model set up in navy gaberdine with an interesting coat top belted low. Cording and much stitching are both signs of autumn's note, so the long coat skirt has a corded hem. The collar and cuffs are organdie.

THE LATEST ONE.

HOMEMADE CARAMELS.

No Reason Why One Should Not Be Successful With Them.

To make chocolate caramels take a quarter pound of grated chocolate, three ounces of butter, three-fourths pound of sugar, one gill of milk, two good dessert spoonfuls of syrup, a small dessert spoonful of glucose, half a teaspoonful of vanilla essence. Put everything except the vanilla into a pan, and dissolve over a slow fire. Boil to 246 or 248 degrees, take off the fire and add the vanilla essence, and turn into a well greased tin. Mark with a knife when set and cut into squares and wrap each in wax paper.

The tin should be greased with oil or clarified butter—i. e., butter that has been put into a pan and heated and the scum taken off as it rises.

Molasses candy (caramel) is made of three-fourths of a pound of sugar, a quarter of a pound of butter, one and a half pints of milk, two tablespoonfuls of molasses. Melt the butter and sugar in a saucepan, then add the sirup and milk, and boil, stirring till it leaves the sides of the pan clear. Pour on to a buttered plate and when nearly cold cut into squares and wrap each in wax paper. If a thermometer is used it should boil to 252 degrees. Ten to fifteen drops of vanilla can be added, if liked, before turning it on to the buttered plate.

Galatea For Frocks.

It is astonishing to note that galatea is being used in dresses for grownups. Hitherto it was confined to dresses for the schoolgirl and little tot, but at the present time it is also adapted for mother. It is shown in plain colors, such as blue, green, rose and white, and often trimmed with pique or a combining fabric. Other models are shown in striped effects, the foundation being white and the stripe in color. One particularly attractive dress was seen recently, the colors being blue and white. The arrangement of the stripes affords a novel detail. The odd flat collar with flat satin tie and deep cuffs are of white pique. The broad brimmed hat and high button boots are details of interest. A gown of this type is especially useful for morning and informal wear. Galatea is an excellent fabric for use in middy blouses and sports skirts, because it has sufficient body to avoid getting crumpled. It is also very suitable for simple sports suits, where the skirt is a two pieced model and the coat a box cut, which is belted at the waist line. With appropriate hat and shoes a suit of this type proves an ideal and practical summer outfit. As a "tub" frock, that is so indispensable during the summer months, there is nothing to equal the shirt waist dress of galatea in plain or striped effect.

Homemade Motor Veils.

Just a length of chiffon or similar weight veiling, twenty-seven inches or more in width and about one and one-half yards in length. Both ends are finished with a tiny hem. Insert a nine inch length of round elastic and attach at each end of the elastic a narrow ribbon string. The veil is adjusted by placing the elastic edge well down over the hat in front and holding the veil in place over the hat by tying the ribbon strings at the nape of the neck. Many of the bordered motor veils frequently sold so reasonably are long enough to make two of these handy requisites.

War Makes Ghost Walk.

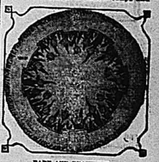
Princess Catherine Radziwill narrates in the Occult Review the legend of the small page in fourteenth century costume, all green, who walks about playing a lute in the royal castle at Turin, and is believed to be the good genius of the French house of Savoy, says The London Globe.

It is that in 1363 Amadee VI., Count of Savoy, befriended a poor boy whose family had been maltreated by the soldiery and made him his favorite, being inconsolable when the boy was murdered by jealous rivals. Since then the ghost of the green page has always appeared on the eve of any dangerous enterprise which will turn out well for the house of Savoy. Thus he has been duly seen since the declaration of war against Austria.

The Department of Agriculture, under the direction of the Acting Minister, Hon. Arthur Meighen, has declared war on the rust. It is estimated that the crop depreciation this year through rust will amount to no less than $150,000,000. It is believed that a recurrence of this loss can be, in large measure, averted, this belief being the outcome of an exhausted study of the blight, its causes and preventives, carried on [illegible] department's experts.

A report of the work done in this direction and of the results obtained is in the hands of the Minister, and will be published by the department. Various means of combating the blight are recommended by the chief plant pathologist, who has recommended the establishment by the Government of special laboratories in which the various systems may be developed. It is announced today that this suggestion is to be acted upon immediately and a laboratory established at Indian Head, with a branch station at Brandon.

On a piece of finest linen circularly cut, figured and featherstitched are embroidered a hedge of yellow tulips and then spiky greenery. The shading is true to nature and the design as rare as it is beautiful.



RARE AND BEAUTIFUL.

"Beans Is Beans"—and the cost is soaring skyward with pork, beef, eggs and other foods until the cost of living represents an increase of from 30 to 50 per cent. While meats and vegetables are beyond the reach of many millions of families, Shredded Wheat Biscuit continues to sell at the same old price and retains the same high nutritive quality. Shredded wheat biscuit contains all the rich body-building nutriment in the whole wheat grain, including the bran coat, which is so useful in keeping the bowels healthy and active. Eat it for any meal with milk or cream or in combination with fruits.

Believes She Was Saved From Stroke of Paralysis

All One Side Was Cold and Powerless When She Began Using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

A dead nerve cell can never be replaced. In this way it is different to other cells in the human body. But feeble, wasted nerve cells can be restored, and herein lies hope.

In this fact is also a warning to take note of such symptoms as sleeplessness and loss of energy and ambition, and restore the vitality to the nervous system before some form of helplessness results.

Nervous prostration, locomotor ataxia and paralysis are the natural results of neglecting to keep the nerves in healthy condition. The use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food when you suspect there is something wrong will soon restore vitality to the nervous system, and thereby prevent serious developements.

Mrs. Merritt Nichols, R. R. No. 3 Dundalk, Ont., writes: "I take pleasure in writing to tell you the great benefit I have derived from the use of Dr Chase's Nerve Food. I was so nervous I could not sleep, and found it hard to get my work done at all but, having no help at the time, had to do the best I could. Finally my left arm became powerless and cold and this continued to get worse until my whole side was affected, head and all. I decided to try Dr. Chase'sNerve Food, and the first box helped me so much that I used several, and believe that this treatment saved me from having a paralytic stroke. It has built me up wonderfully, and I can recommend it most heartily, believing that if more Nerve Fod were used there would be much less sickness."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food cures in nature's way by nourishing the feeble, wasted nerves back to health and vigor. Fifty cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co. Limited, Toronto.

What is Transpiring Among the Soldier Boys Now in Belleville

Recruiting for the 235th Battalion, in the city is being carried on strenuously. Many of the young men around the streets are being sought after, and interviewed by the recruiting sergeants of the battalion. So far, the result has been fairly successful, a number of recruits have already been secured while several more are in sight.

The meeting in Griffin's Opera House last evening served as a great stimulus to recruiting. The speakers were straight to the point in their statements.

A number of local citizens attended the 235th Battalion Church parade in the Armouries yesterday morning. Captain the Rev. W. G. Clarke, conducted the services, while the splendid 235th Band, furnished the music.

Bovril keeps the Food Bills down Make all your soups and stews more nourishing with Bovril. It takes a joint of beef to make a bottle of Bovril. The body-building power of Bovril is from ten to twenty times the amount taken. Bovril means more strength—less cost.

HER FALL TAILLEUR.

What Autumn Is Already Promising For Style.

A PROUD MOMENT.

Autumn suits are clinging to fullness indeed. This one takes such a skirt and emphasizes it in the coat skirt as well. The fabric is a dark brick gabardine, the underarm fullness being strapped down in a belt effect. Self buttons close it, and a seal cape collar matches the black velvet brim of the smart sailor.

FOR HOUSEHOLD PACKING.

Autumn Brings Its Bugbear of Pulling Up Stakes.

When one must move, begin with the small, out of sight tasks that will not render the house untidy and uncomfortable long before leaving it. A little thought and a look around the house will disclose many of the belongings that are not in general use—for instance, stuff in the pantry, in the storeroom, superabundant grocery supplies, temporarily discarded clothing, superfluous ornaments, company porcelain and glassware, books, music and a thousand other things, all of which can be dislodged without destroying the appearance of the house while those abiding in the same will not be the wiser for it.

Dispose of unnecessary possessions that some one else may be glad to make use of; then pack clothing not in use into boxes and mark the contents on each box. Books, pictures and ornaments are best packed in rather small boxes that are easy to handle. Have carpets, rugs and matting cleaned, rolled and tied.

For packing kitchen utensils, jars of fruit, etc., tubs are best, for they have handles. A pot or kettle in the bottom might have several jars placed in it with bits of paper, hay or smaller articles, like knives and forks, to hold them steady, but be careful not to have anything to extend higher than the sides of the tub.

Barrels are best for the fine china and glass ware. When packing breakables, remember that every article must be prepared so that none of its surface is left exposed to pressure without support. Stuff all hollow articles as full as possible, surround all handles, stems, etc., by padding so thick that the article becomes, as nearly as possible, a solid ball. Cups and glasses should not be slipped inside each other unless well covered with padding. Plates and saucers may be made in a pile with stuffing between and the whole made solid by bands of muslin wound round them. Excelsior, hay and newspapers are all good packing material, but often kitchen towels, holders, underwear, etc., may be used to steady things and get themselves transported at the same time.

The Farsighted Woman.

You are, let us say, a capable stenographer or a teacher. If through any untoward circumstances you should be bereft of one of the faculties necessary to your vocation, what would you do? Such things do happen, you know, and wise is the woman who cultivates a hobby or a vocation that employs other faculties than the ones she uses daily. If you know nothing else but teaching and should suddenly lose your hearing you would be stranded on the island of the helpless. If your daily work is of the manual sort, cultivate a hobby for something that requires mental effort. If your mental faculties are in use daily, give them a rest by doing some sort of manual work. Not only will you feel fresher in doing your own work, but you will have taken the first step in preparing yourself for any contingency that the future may hold.

Redmond Quain's Death.

OTTAWA, Oct. 10. — Redmond Quain, a director of the Ottawa Electric Railway Company and the Ottawa Car Company, died here suddenly Thursday afternoon. He was in his fifty-seventh year.

CANADA'S LADY.

The Duchess of Devonshire Back In Old Scenes.

A FRIEND OF QUEEN MARY.

The Daughter of a Former Governor General, Lord Lansdowne, Returns to Ottawa, This Time With Her Husband, the Duke of Devonshire.

The Duke and Duchess of Devonshire are likely to prove a great success in Canada when the duke takes the place of the Duke of Connaught as governor general. As for the duchess, she will be welcomed to Ottawa by hundreds of friends and acquaintances who recall the years of her girlhood, which she spent there as Lady Evelyn Fitzmaurice during the governor generalship of her father, the Marquis of Lansdowne. The duke, although head of one of the most historic houses of England—that of Cavendish, thus occupying a position in the very front rank of his sovereign's peers as owner of a dukedom dating from the seventeenth century—and a Knight of the Garter, is the most simple and unaffected of men.

DUCHESS OF DEVONSHIRE.

Enormously rich, his wealth being derived from ancestral estates that extend over some 200,000 acres and from big mines in the counties of Lancaster and Derby, he is a very clever and sound business man and can boast that he has never had an idle moment in his life. He has been chairman until now of a great shipbuilding company and of a number of other big industrial and mining concerns, mostly connected more or less directly with his. He owns almost the whole of the prosperous and important seaside town of Eastbourne, which he and his duchess have done much to develop.

The Duke of Devonshire is perhaps the most intimate personal friend of King George, while the duchess is the mistress of the robes and dominant member of the household of Queen Mary, their close relations with one another dating back to their early girlhood.

USES FOR MINT.

Be Ingenious if You Would Wring All Its Flavor.

There are innumerable ways in which the ever present spearmint bed ought to be utilized besides for the regular mint jelly, ice or punch.

First.—Boil a sprig with new potatoes, beans or peas.

Second.—In spicing young beets add a sprig to the heated vinegar and spices, or in canning the same simply lay a few leaves in the top of the can before sealing.

Third.—Chop finely and sprinkle, just before serving, over an iced fruit compote or over a sweet fruit salad.

Fourth.—Used in the same way over a chicken or veal salad it gives a decidedly piquant flavor.

Fifth.—Add, chopped fine, as you would parsley, to deviled eggs or ham.

Sixth.—Chop coarsely and add three heaping tablespoonfuls to one-half cup weak vinegar with brown sugar to taste, to serve with roast lamb.

Seventh.—Last, there is no greater delicacy than candied mint leaves if one has the patience to make them successfully.

As Others See Us.

The last but by no means the least important thing to attend to in dressing is to see that everything is neatly arranged in the back. This is not so difficult as is generally supposed. A long mirror is almost a necessity, and many startling views would not be disclosed if a cheval glass were included in the toilet set. The hanging of a skirt, the placing of fancy pins, the finest detail of the arrangement of the hair, the adjusting of collar and waist from the back are all such little things, but can ruin the effect of the whole costume if not properly arranged.

Uncooked Ketchup.

Chop together half a peck of ripe tomatoes, three red and three green peppers without the seeds, four celery stalks and two onions to make uncooked catsup. Add a cupful of tarragon vinegar, half a cupful of black and white mustard seed, a cupful of brown sugar, a teaspoonful of black pepper, a teaspoonful of cinnamon, half a cupful of salt and a pint of vinegar. Mix well and put into jars.

Growing Up.

Perry Poodles—Congratulate me. I'm engaged to Molly Multirox. Ain't I the lucky dog? Polly Pickles—You certainly must be. But how time does fly! It seems but yesterday I heard her father speak of you as a puppy.

JUVENILE STYLES.

How Young Girls Are Being Garbed a la Mode.

Long coats, which reach almost or to the dress hems, are the fashion for little girls. Made of faille silk in dull light blues, pinks, corn color or royal blue, they are just the right weight to wear over the lingerie dresses of batiste or georgette crape.

The older girl's coat is made more like the adult styles. Trecot serge, wool jersey or bolivia—a new weave that resembles somewhat chinchilla cloth—are used to make long coats that often have a pelerine cape addition that reaches to or below the elbows.

Middy blouse lines are idealized now for the betwixt and between girl. Combined with plaited or gored skirts, they make very trig looking frocks, suited for autumn school wear as well as for summer. Pongee, tussore, linen, la jerz and other fabrics are used for the summer dresses and wool jersey, serge and gaberdine for the autumn school frock.

These dresses are sometimes made sleeveless so that a washable guimpe may be easily adjusted and removed. Plaited collar and cuff frills are seen on these guimpes more often than lace, the edges finished with picot or hemstitching. Challie, a material which always seems to stay in style for young girls' frocks, seems to need a touch of black velvet ribbon for a dainty finish.

Russian and middy blouses, seen in the shops, are generally accompanied by a plaited or fulled matching skirt. In middy blouse types one of polka dotted raspberry lawn has a full gathered skirt. The blouse is fashioned with a round plaited collar of white organdie, picot edged, with cuffs to match. An organdie belt is the original note of this dress. It shows only at the sides, passing through slashes in the dress in front and back.

This belt fastens at one side with two flat pearl buttons. One Russian blouse dress of pink voile is bordered and belted with matching bands of linen. The skirt is gathered and has a deep hem band of the linen.

Another dull pink Russian dress of pink linen is belted and bordered with a cream rough linen band, the blouse fastens down the front with buttons placed opposite and linked together.

Very pretty bright colored felt hats are also seen in the shops for little and big girls. They match in color the bright tones of their dresses. Small poke bonnet forms, rather jockey shaped, with a single feather or plume ornament in front, are also new. High Russian caps, covered with gathered silk, are finished with silk pompons on top and little clusters of silk roses posed at the sides.

Dresses for young girls remain very short. In extreme fashion they hardly come to the knee, while the more popular styles stop just below. Their ampleness makes them fly out prettily. The revived fashion of petticoats, which show with the swish of skirts, gives them a fluffy look.

FOR EARLY FALL.

A Chic Tam on Autumn Lines For Juveniles.

Among advanced millinery styles for the autumn are several combinations of straw and wintry looking materials, a sort of compromise between seasons. Such a hat is this toque, which has a straw rim of black milan and a tam of black pressed beaver, banded with black grosgrain ribbon and a perky bow. This is the kind of slip-on hat so serviceable till you see exactly what you want for genuine fall weather.

GOOD LINES.

Tatting Medallion.

With shuttle make a ring of 10 p separated by 2 s, fasten (using ball and shuttle). With shuttle make a ring of 3 p separated by 3 s, fastening the middle p to one of the ring of 10 just made. With ball make 8 s. With shuttle make ring of 3 p separated by 3 s. Close to this make another ring of 4 s fastened to last p of ring just made 3 s 5 p separated by 2 s 3 s 1 p 4 s close. Close to this ring make another ring of 3 p separated by 3 s fastening the first p to the last p of previous ring and points fastening each one to one p points, fastening each one to one p of the ring of 10.

Separate Skirts.

Striped skirts still have a strong vogue and are shown in various widths, the blazer and awning stripes having by far the strongest call. Novelty striped worsteds and a few checks are included in some of the latest models.

Laborers Forbidden to Land.

OTTAWA, Oct. 10.—The embargo against the landing of skilled and unskilled laborers in British Columbia has been further extended by order-in-Council for six months from October 1st.

They Are Natural Foes of Many of the Farmers' Worst Pests.

Among the best although least appreciated friends of the farmer are the harmless snakes, such as the milk snake, the "chicken" snake, the garter snake, the bull snake, the blotched king snake, the blue snake, the black snake and some others. All of them are the natural enemies of rats, mice, weasels and similar animals that infest farms and village homes, especially where there is poultry or other small live stock.

In an article in the Scientific American Dr. Robert W. Shufeldt says that it would well repay every farmer in the country to keep half a dozen harmless vermin destroying snakes on every acre of his place.

Although most farmers believe that the common "chicken" snake haunts their outbuildings in order to feed on their young ducks and chickens, the snake does nothing of the kind, but it does destroy great numbers of young mice and other pests. Man's dread and hatred of snakes, says Dr. Shufeldt, have been from the earliest time a matter of erroneous teaching. Harmless snakes are the easiest animals in the world to tame, and it is high time that the false ideas about them should be corrected.

More than that, it should be taught that, like birds, they are among the best friends that the farmer has. If we destroy them we pave the way for the destruction of our forests, our staple farm products and a good deal else that now and always has been protected by snakes and birds.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST LAND REGULATIONS.

The sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at any Dominion Lands Agency (but not Sub-Agency) on certain conditions.

Duties—Six months residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required, except where residence is performed in the vicinity.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Six months residence in each of three years after earning homestead patent; also 50 acres extra cultivation. Pre-emption patent may be obtained as soon as homestead patent, on certain conditions.

A settler who has exhausted his homestead right may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.

The area of cultivation is subject to reduction in case of rough, scrubby or stony land. Live stock may be substituted for cultivation under certain conditions.

Secretary—H. B. Stock.

Treasurer—R. W. Adams.

Management Committee—J. A. Borbridge, F. D. Diamond, Dr. J. M. Clarke and O. H. Scott.

Ice Committee—J. D. Clarke, W. G. Huffman, F. Quick and F. S. Wallbridge.

Entertainment Committee—A. R. Symons, Dr. M. Day, E. Dickens, and J. A. McFee.

Auditors—J. G. Galloway, and M. Wright.

Representatives to the Ontario Curling Association—F. E. O'Flynn and Judge Wills.

Representatives to the Central Ontario Curling League—J. A. Kerr and H. B. Stock.

The retiring President, Mr. Galloway, thanked the members for the honor of electing him as President for the past year, and also thanked them for the loyal support given him. He spoke eulogistically of the Secretary, Mr. H. B. Stock, who was untiring in his efforts for the Club's welfare.

President elect Mr. T. E. Ketcheson, thanked the members for electing him to the position, which he had not looked for. The past year had been a successful one, and with the hearty co-operation of the members the ensuing year would be equally, if not more successful. A number of the members of the Club had enlisted and gone to the front to the field of battle. He hoped new blood would be enfused in to the Club. All could assist in making it a successful year.

It was decided by vote to ask the members to contribute $1 extra in addition to the membership fee to pay for entertaining visiting club's rinks and drawing of stones to and from the railway station.

On motion that portion of the Club's By-laws regarding the appointing of skips at the annual meeting, was suspended and the appointing of skips was left with the Management Committee.

Departed Heroes

A motion was unanimously adopted that the President and Secretary draft on behalf of the Culb, letters of sympathy to the Misses Hudson, in the death of their brother, Capt. W. H. Hudson, who was killed in action; also to the parents of Lieut. B. K. Allen, who fell on the battlefield.

It was also decided to have all names of members of the Club who enlisted, placed upon an honor roll.

A vote of thanks was passed to the retiring officers for their work during the past year, which has been much appreciated.

The meeting then adjourned.

Fierce Battle Against Storm

Victor Sudds and Sons Had Thrilling Experience on Lake—Lost Two Boats

KINGSTON, Oct., 21—Victor Sudds and his two sons of Simcoe Island had a thrilling experience last night while crossing the lake. They were caught in the teeth of the rain and wind storm about half past six and besides suffering much from exposure. Mr. Sudds also lost a white motor boat and a yawl, which are still missing having been swept away from their tow by the wind.

Mr. Sudds and his sons had brought some oats to the city and were returning when the storm broke. The wind was terrific and the rain blinding. Their motor boat which was towing another motor boat and yawl, plunged and tossed like a cork. The waves rolled over the motor boat and the pumps failed to discharge the water which necessitated the pulling up of the floor and the pumps being used. The trio made a gallant fight to get ashore but when a mile off the island the tow ropes broke and the motor boat and yawl disappeared.

The tow motor boat was turned towards Kingston in an effort to rescue the lost boats, but with no result. The engines in the tow boat then gave out and Mr. Sudds and his two sons were forced to use oars to get back here as the wind was so strong that it was impossible to head toward the island.

They arrived here after a hard struggle, thoroughly exhausted, chilled to the bone and drenched by the heavy rain. When the storm passed over they were taken to Simcoe Island by a local boat owner.

Former Guelph Boy Fortunate In Wheat Pit

Arthur Butten Said to Have Made Millions in Operations—Price Up in Winnipeg

WINNIPEG, Oct., 22—Arthur Cutten, who is reported today to have made millions on the Chicago grain exchange, selling an immense quantity of wheat at an advance of 60 cents a bushel, formerly lived in Guelph, Ont. He is a son of W. H. Cutten, once a prominent Guelph lawyer. Young Cutten was born and educated in that city. He has been many years in Chicago and is recognized as one of the clearest and quickest thinkers in the United States grain Market.

October wheat jumped to $1.80 here this morning and some sales were made at this figure, which is the record for many years.

A heavy snow storm over the west, following the week of winter weather, has stopped threshing operations. The snow is 4 to 6 inches deep and still is falling.

155th Band Now Attached to 247th Battalion

Has Thirty-Three Musicians—Was Considered The Best Band at Barriefield

Lieut.-Col. Johnston, of Peterboro, and the officers of the 247th Battalion are exceedingly happy owing to the fact that they have a band to assist in recruiting work, and the band is none other than that the 155th Battalion which was recruited in Hastings and Prince Edward Counties and which recently left for overseas. The band 33 strong arrived at Peterboro on Friday last and were met at the station by the local officers who accompanied them to the armouries and later to their billets in the ciy. Everyone in Peterboro had words of praise for the musicians. They were thoug hto be the best band in Kingston and it was with deep regret that the 155th left for overseas without them.

Sergt. Hinchey is the bandmaster. During the winter months they will help wonderfully in attracting attention to the 247th. There is nothing like good music to instill the fighing spirit into a young man who feels that "We'll never let the old flag fall."

The Band

The composition of the band is as follows:—

Sergt. E. R. Hinchey; G. E. Dobbs; Pte. A. Ayling, B. L. Bell, H. H. Berkeley, J. Brooks, D. Brown, R. W. Burke, F. J. Burke, J C. Cordes, J. Cookson, M. S. Fraser, S. Houghton, G. McGuire, E. C. Moynes, W. J. Mitts, M. W. Parks, W. L. Ross, A. W. Rowland, J. T. Shunk, F. W. Sills, H. Stanley, D. Sword, H. A. Thompson, H. C. Wallace, A. Warren, W. O. Weymark; Corp. W. A Weymark; Ptes. F. W. Wilkinson, W. G. Wamacott, T. Swartz, R. J. Beatty, E. Rounds.

Lieut. Hetherington Back From Front

Received Promotion For Bravery Enlisted in Belleville, Going Overseas With First Contingent

Lieut. Thomas J. Hetherington, son of Reeve, Wm. Hetherington, of Verulam Township, arrived at his home yesterday from the front.

Lieut. Hetherington previous to signing up was engaged as an operator with the G. T. R. and stationed for the greater part of his time in Belleville. It was at the latter place that he enlisted in the 2nd battalion, going overseas with the first contingent in August of 1914, when 33,000 Canadian troops sailed.

After arriving in England he was next ordered to France with his battalion going in the trenches about January 1915 where he remained for eight months in the midst of the heaviest fire.

During this time Lieut. Hetherington was only a private, but on being called to England in November 1915, he received the title of Lieutenant in appreciation of his bravery and valuable service while on the battle field. He remained in England until July 1916, as signal instructor, when he once more was asked to go to the front. Remaining in the trenches until he was severely wounded on Sept. 9th 1916. The extent of his wounds which injured him to such an extent that he was taken to a French hospital and afterwards moved to the General hospital in England. It was from there he received permission to sail for Canada for a period of recuperation.

Lieut. Hetherington served at Langemarck, where for five days the Allies fought the Huns and drove them back and never getting a moment's relief during the time, as well as in many other engagements.

Hughes Stoutly Denies Charges

Republican Candidate Says He Has Made no Private Agreements Entered no Intrigues

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—Charles E. Hughes, Republican candidate for President, last night gave emphatic denial to the charge of the Democratic National Committee that he had entered into a secret agreement with the so-called American Independent Conference, an organization in which J. A. O'Leary is said to be a central figure.

O'Leary is the pro-German Irish-American whom President Wilson recently rebuked with the statement that he did not want O'Leary or any one like him to vote for him.

Mr. Hughes' denial was in reply to a statement issued from Democratic headquarters in this city, to the effect that he, at a conference with O'Leary and an Irish-German committee, said to have been held in Chicago, had repudiated the "pro-British and Anti-American utterances of Theodore Roosevelt," and had promised that his (Hughes') future conduct in the speech-making line would be "entirely satisfactory to the interests of the O'Leary committee."

Mr. Hughes' statement of last night concludes: "I have said nothing in private that I have not said in public I have declared over and over again that I have made no private agreements and have engaged in no intrigues, and I repeat that statement."

PIONEER MAKER OF BILLIARD TABLES DEAD

Samuel May Passes Away at Toronto After Successful Manufacturing Career

TORONTO, Oct. 23.—Mr. Samuel May, pioneer manufacturer of billiard tables and accessories in British America and for 55 years a resident of Toronto, died yesterday at the residence of his son-in-law, Dr. L. E. Rice, 34 Maynard avenue. He was 79 years old. For the past seven years he had been an invalid.

In 1860, Mr. May started business in Toronto as the representative of an American maker of billiard tables. In 1864, he started manufacturing in a small factory on King street west. Later the factory was moved to Adelaide street west.

In 1876, he exhibited at the Centennial Exposition held in Philadelphia. At the request of the Canadian Government the exhibit was sent to Australia for the World's Exhibition held there in 1877. He also exhibited in England and in Paris, winning many awards.

Mr. May was one of the oldest living members of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association and of the Royal Canadian Yacht Club. He was also a member of the National and Granite Clubs.

THE BELLEVILLE BIBLE SOCIETY

Large and Interested Gathering at St. Andrews Church—Illustrated Address by Rev. Jesse Gibson of Toronto

The meeting which took place in St. Andrews' Church last evening proved most successful both in interest and in point of numbers attending. The President, Rev. A .M. Hubly, presided. Rev. A. L. Geen read the scripture P.S. xix.; Rev. E. C. Currie led in prayer.

Rev. Jesse Gibson, of Toronto, manager and secretary of the Upper Canada Bible Society, was introduced by Mr. Hubly, and gave a very interesting and instructive address, illustrated with beautiful limelight views of Korea and its people, contrasting conditions morally, religiously, and socially, before and after the presentation of the scriptures and the Christian religion among that benighted and superstitious people.

By request a second series of pictures representing our Canadian soldiers in camp at Valcartier, the distribution of the scriptures among them, and groups reading the same.

Pictures of the embarkation of the soldiers, and the ships on the Ocean convoyed by battle ships of the British navy.

Scenes at the front and in the trenches were presented and the destruction of the beautiful historic buildings in France.

This series closed with magnificent portraits of our King and Queen, when the King was shown the audience rose and sang a verse of the National Anthem.

It was announced that the collectors "will proceed with their labors of love," and an appeal for a hearty, and cheerful response to their solicitations, was made to the audience and citizens at large. It was also announced that the annual meeting of the society would be held December 6th, in the Baptist Church. The Rev. Bishop Browing to be the speaker. Votes of thanks were presented to Rev. Mr. Gibson for his masterly presentation of the matter in hand, and to the pastor and elders of St. Andrews' Church for the use of building and lanterns.

In order to break through at any price the British and French continued attacks in which strong forces were employed. In spite of their use of masses of troops north of the Somme they suffered heavy sanguinary defeats.

Attacks prepared by French south of the Somme and on Verdun front were prevented by German artillery fire from developing.

Tremendous Increase in Canada's Trade

The Past Fiscal Year Shows Increase of Seven Hundred Million — Figures Doubled in Some Cases

OTTAWA, Oct. 23—The detailed statement for the twelve months ending July, was issued by the Department of Trade and Commerce on Saturday. The figures show that Canada's trade is growing at almost unbelievable rate. The total trade for the twelve months ending July was $1,819,706,590 an increase of nearly seven hundred million dollars, over period of 1915, which was itself a Canadian record, being $11,142,847,270. The total increase this year is as great as the aggregate commerce of less than a decade ago. Included in the figures are nearly two hundred millions worth of coin and bullion, but even with these figures subtracted the total is extraordinary. The total imports for the twelve months ending July were $622,886,350, and exports were $965,047,457, a trade balance of some three hundred million dollars.

The size of the business in munitions is shown by the British exports which total $605,975,315. Our American business showed a large increase of imports for the twelve months $464,305,185, and exports $244,110,882.

ACCUSED OF BURGLARY

Police Constable Donovan, of Belleville this morning placed under arrest a boy named Isaac Seelyeh, aged 17 years whose home is in this city. The charge preferred against him is the theft of sweater coats, shirts, overalls, boots, gloves, toques, tobacco, cigars and other articles from the general store of Mr. Fitzgerald of Malone, Hastings County. The store was burglarized on Friday night last, and Seelyeh with a companion was suspected. The whereabouts of the latter is now known and he will also be placed under arrest. When apprehended Seelyeh was wearing a pair of boots and a shirt which is alleged was amongst the articles stolen. A considerable number of the articles stolen are missing but will probably be recovered County Constable Barnes, of Marmora, came to the city today and returned to that village with the accused lad.

AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENTS

Scarcely a day passed that the people of Toronto, particularly, are not startled with accounts of injury done to pedestrains resulting from reckless driving or incompetency of the chauffeur.

A case has just occurred in Toronto resulting in the commitment of the owner of the car, and a Miss Moreau who was in charge of the steering of the Auto for manslaughter.

The coroner's jury in rendering the verdict, "strongly recommended" that the law governing careless or incompetent motor drivers be stringently enforced, and on conviction that their licenses be cancelled for a period of at least six months." Mrs Horne came to her death, as the result of shock and hemorrhage following being struck by an automobile in charge of Carl Short, and driven by Miss Bertha Moreau, a minor. The fatility occurred on the night of October 16. Quite a number of witnesses were heard, and from their story the deceased was struck by the car when it was on the wrong side of the street, if not on the sidewalk. Short and Miss Moreau were committed on a manslaughter charge.

This ought to be a lesson for careless drivers.

Recruiting squads of the 235th Battalion have left the city for all sections in the County of Hastings. The squads are in charge of Capt. Rev. W. G. Clarke, Chaplain of the battalion.

A large crowd was attracted by the 235th Battalion Band at Bridge and Front streets last evening. The band rendered several selections, and an appeal for recruits was made with successful results.

Lieut. Armstrong of the 235th Battalion, is personally pushing local recruiting, while details are on the alert to induce stray eligibles to enlist. It is evident that a snappy campaign is on—a house-to-house canvass being inaugurated.

STOMACH MEDICINES ARE DANGEROUS

DOCTORS NOW ADVISE MAGNESIA

Just how dangerous it is to indiscriminately dose the stomach with drugs and medicines is often not realized until too late. It seems so simple to swallow a dose of some special mixture or take tablets of soda, pepsin, bismuth, etc., after meals, and the folly of this drugging is not apparent until, perhaps years afterward, when it is found that gastric ulcers have almost eaten their way through the stomach walls. Regrets are then unavailing; it is in the early stages when indigestion, dyspepsia, heartburn, flatulence, etc. indicates excessive acidity of the stomach and fermentation of food contents that precaution should be taken. Drugs and medicines are unsuitable and often dangerous—they have little or no influence upon the harmful acid, and that is why doctors are discarding them and advising sufferers from indigestion and stomach trouble to get rid of the dangerous acid and keep the food contents bland and sweet by taking a little pure bisurated magnesia instead. Bisurated Magnesia is an absolutely pure anti-acid which can be readily obtained from any drug store. It is absolutely harmless, is practically tasteless and a teaspoonful taken in a little warm or cold water after meals, will usually be found quite sufficient to instantly neutralize excessive acidity of the stomach and prevent all possibility of the food fermenting.

THE ENCHANTED SHELL.

Myra wandered along the beach, wishing very much that she might see a mermaid, or a merman, or at the very least a sea serpent. She was lonely and wanted something exciting to happen.

"If only the days of fairy tales were not over!" she sighed as she sat down in the hollow of the rocks and rested her curly head against some lovely seaweed dried by the sun. As she looked dreamily out to sea she was startled to hear some one singing close to her ear:

"Oh, don't you know the way
To the land of elf and fay,
To that fair strand of golden sand
Where it is always day?
Then follow, follow me
To my cave beneath the sea."

Myra delightedly raised her head to find that the song seemed to come from the mouth of a large conch shell lying close to her. As she gazed the shell grew larger and yet larger until it opened invitingly to her.

"Oh, this is too lovely!" cried the little girl, tripping into the shell without much hesitation.

As she tripped down the mysterious passage of the seashell the light grew more and more rosy, the music more beautiful. It was indeed like a song from fairyland which still led her on.

Suddenly the hall widened into a marvelous green chamber, in which grew wonderful sea flowers. On a throne made of pearl sat a very lovely lady, with long golden hair, pink cheeks, smiling eyes, robed in green with trimming of fluffy white, like the crest of a wave.

"You are right welcome, my child," she said to Myra, who stood abashed before such beauty. "I am the spirit of the seashell, and it is my voice which sings to little children whenever they bend their heads to listen. They who hear my song are never lonely again. They realize that the world of fairy lies very close to them."

As she spoke soft music sounded, and Myra seemed to be lifted up, up, up, until she found herself lying on the rocks just as she was when she first heard the song of the shell. As she sat up she caught sight of the shell and, snatching it up, carried it home with her, remembering the words of the fairy, "Those who hear my song will never be lonely again."

Duke's Example.

The Duke of Marlborough's name stands at the head of those who are appealing to English landowners to relax farming covenants so that tenants can put in cereal crops on the largest possible scale. He may claim to speak with some authority, for it was he who, a year or two back, proceeded to break up a part of the great park at Blenheim for sowing wheat.

DEATH OF FORMER BELLEVILLE RESIDENT

Word has been received in Belleville announcing the death of Mr. Kenneth Taylor, Manager of the Merchants' Bank at Walkerton, which sad event occurred on Sunday night. The cause of death was acute indigestion, and deceased was ill but a few days. The late Mr. Taylor was well known in Belleville, and while a resident here was deservedly popular. For some years he was accountant in the Belleville branch of the Merchants' Bank, and was transferred from here as manager of a bank at Creemore, and subsequently transferred to Walkerton, where he had been for a few years. Deceased was 34 years of age, and his home was at Perth. Mr. Taylor married Miss Gwendolyn Hamilton, youngest daughter of the late Mr. William Hamilton, who was for years manager of the Belleville Merchants' Bank. A widow and four children survive. Mr. Taylor took great interest in municipal and patriotic affairs, and was secretary-treasurer of the Walkerton branch of the Red Cross Society. He was also a great sportsman, being an active member of the Curling, Bowling, Hockey and Fishing Clubs. To the bereaved widow will be extended the heartfelt sympathy of many Belleville citizens.

The most common and widely used of all spices is pepper. It is a native of the East Indies, but is now cultivated in various parts of the tropical belt of this hemisphere. The plant is a climber and has a smooth stem sometimes twelve feet long. The fruit is about the size of a pea and when ripe is of a bright red color. In cultivation the plant is supported by poles. In some localities small trees are used instead of poles, for the best pepper is grown in a certain degree of shade.

Will Deduct It From Pay.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

"WHEN DREAMS COME TRUE" AT GRIFFIN'S TONIGHT

"When Dreams Come True" the first musical comedy ever written by Phillip Bartholomae, author of "Little Miss Brown," "Very Good, Eddie," and "Over Night" will be produced at Griffin's Opera House, tonight, for one night only, Silvio Hein, who wrote the score will be remembered as the composer of some of the most pronounced light opera successes.

The three acts of "When Dreams Come True" are entirely different in outline, the first carrying some dramatic touches as well as a number of comic situations; the second is farcial and the third has musical and dancing features. The play contains no fewer than seventeen dancing numbers most of them invented and directed by Roy Pruette, the leading member of the cast. In the company in addition to Mr. Pruette will be found Lorraine Lester, Carmen Ercelle, Connie Mac, Anna Little, Jill Woodward, Roy E. Butler, Arthur Williams and F. C. Palmer among many others. A chorus of exceptionally shapely and handsome young women will act as a background for the principals.

SATAN SANDERSON AT PALACE TOMORROW

Some of the most novel situations in the Metro Pictures Corporation's production of Hallie Erminie River's great book and play, "Satan Sanderson" which is now a motion picture, in which the prominent stage star, Orrin Johnson, plays the title role, are the double exposures for which, in the making, the film was run through the camera in many instances, ten and twelve times. Double exposures are the hardest accomplishments of the motion picture director, but in "Satan Sanderson" where Orrin Johnson plays the dual role, director Jack Noble has turned out some very exceptional double and triple effects. Thursday, matinee and night, along with four other selected comedies and dramas.

HENRY ARTHUR JONES' GREAT PLAY "SAINTS AND SINNERS"

Miss Peggy Hyland, the favorite of the English stage, who has lately arrived from England to appear in Famous Players' productions, and who makes her premier American appearance in this entrancing photoplay. went to Florida, where the exteriors of this drama were filmed under the direction of Jas. Kirkwood. This well-known masterpiece, embossed by beautiful scenery and superb acting, will appear at Griffin's Opera House to-morrow and Thursday night.

The role of Letty is visualized by Miss Hyland, who by her unusual beauty and talent portrays the little country girl with wonderful charm. George Kingsmill, a young farmer, in love with Letty, the only child of Rev. Fletcher, is refused her hand because of her love for Captain Fanshawe. The Minister, aware of the Captain's reputation, forbids her to see him again. She complies with her father's wishes until the day of the annual church picnic, when Fanshawe summons her to bid farewell as he is going to leave the little town of Steepleford forever. He persuades her to accept his invitation for a short row on the river. It finally becomes too late for her to go home unaccompanied; Fanshawe offers to take her home by train. The crafty Captain purchases tickets for New York and not for Steepleford.

Among the passengers on the train is a certain Mr. Samuel Hoggard who is angered at the Rev. Fletcher because of his refusal to meet his (Hoggard's) unjust desires.

Hoggard forms his own version of Letty's departure with Fanshawe. Poor Letty does not know her situation until long past Steepleford. The episodes which await her in the city are of vital interest to this unhappy girl and those concerned in her welfare.

On the same programme with the above offering, Frank Daniels, the scream of the screen, appears in another amusing adventure entitled, "Kernell Nutt and Prince Tango." Pathe News will also be exhibited.

Love Better Than Hate

THE CASE WELL PUT!

Ottawa is the headquarters of an anti-Ontario slander mill.

The Ottawa slander mill runs night and day throughout the week, and Ontario's traducers have not the decency to suspend operations even on Sunday.

Laurierism in the House of Commons and in the Senate has helped to establish slander against Ontario and the misrepresentation of this Province as the chief political industry of the clericalized, corporationized and apostate Liberalism of Canada.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier lent the majesty of his presence and the eloquence of his oratory to the Sunday night operations of Ottawa's anti-Ontario slander mill.

Ontario is giving up her sons not only to defend liberty and the shores of Canada, but to fight shoulder to shoulder with the people whose religous faith is the faith of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and who speak the tongue that Sir Wilfrid Laurier learned at his mother's knee.

Why did not Sir Wilfrid Laurier address his Ottawa compatriots with a few of the copy-book headlines that Sir Wilfrid utilized in his London speech? Sir Wilfrid smote the lyre of the late Mr. Pecksniff and tickled the ears of the London groundlings with the melody of irrelevant platitudes that reached a climax in the not entirely original discovery that

"LOVE IS BETTER THAN HATE," and if Laurierism specialized in patriotism rather than in partyism Sir Wilfrid Laurier would go to the roots of this bilingual controversy in Ontario and proclaim the results of his researches in words like these:

"The Conservative Government of Ontario passed the regulations which you condemned, not as a surrender of the French language to the demands of its Orange supporters, but as a means of protecting the French language against the unconstitutional rigor of these demands. Ontario does not seek to exclude the teaching of French from bilingual schools. Ontario merely seeks to establish regulations that will prevent the Ontario school system from being used as an agency to exclude the teaching of English from the education that is given to the children in the schools of this Province."

Ottawa bilingualists have no just cause of controversy with the Ontario Government if these people are bilingualists. The trouble is that these Ottawa extremists are not bilingualists, but uni-lingualists. Ontario has been slandered, traduced and misrepresented in a miserable process of grovelling for votes in the gutters of race and creed bigotry. The patriot leader, the public servant who is in receipt of a minister's salary per annum, plus a $2,500 sessional indemnity, does not study the facts that would guide Sir Wilfrid Laurier to a true conclusion. Even the superficial study of these facts would show Sir Wilfrid Laurier that the Government of Ontario has adopted regulations that do not seek the EXCLUSION OF FRENCH, but do seek the INCLUSION OF ENGLISH in the curriculum of Ontario bilingual schools.—Telegram.

Wilson Justifies Lusitania Sinking

The New York Sun gives unusual prominence to a Washington story under the scare head "Wilson calls actual Lusitania attack justifiable and accepts Germany's refusal to disavow sinking." The Sun quotes a "source close to the State Department" as authority for the statement that President Wilson has accepted the view that "the sinking of the Lusitania was justified" and had capitulated presumably in the interests of German-American amity, on the proposition advanced by the American Government "that while the sinking of the Lusitania was justified, the taking of American life was not justified." Germany, it is said, was willing to express regret for the taking of American lives, but was not willing to concede that the sinking of the giant liner was illegal, in view of Great Britain's illegal blockade."

In lieu of an admission that the attack on the steamer was illegal, Germany was willing to compensate the relatives of those who lost their lives in the submarine attack on the British liner. This proposition, contained in a note addressed to "Mr. Secretary of State" and simply signed "J. Bernstorff" has apparently been accepted "in final settlement of the Lusitania incident!"

According to the Sun, which continues—"The terms of the Lusitania settlement may formerly be announced any day by Secretary Lansing. The German ambassador's note is on his desk and practically all he has to do is to make it public to close the case. Mr. Lansing has stated that he has agreed to the terms as contained in the note."

The Sun concludes—"German official circles," it is explained, "regard the Lusitania case as definitely disposed of. As soon as the ambassador's note is published here the Imperial Foreign Office will confirm and the terms of settlement will be published simultaneously in Germany and the United States."

All Wrong!

SUBSCRIPTIONS FROM THE CONTRACTORS

A press despatch from Winnipeg speaks of "the payment of $50,000 by W. H. Carter to D. E. Sprague for the Conservative Federal Campaign Fund." A Liberal contemporary at Montreal has discovered that "millions were filched" from the Agricultural College by Conservative politicians. This is a very bold exaggeration. At the worst $7,500 was contributed by contractors for the Agricultural College to the Federal fund of the Conservative party. It is not desirable that contractors should make political contributions. All wrong. Such subscribers should be heavily fined and their contracts cancelled by law. Literally millions of dollars were taken from contractors during the Laurier regime at Ottawa. Liberals may deny, but they know that what we say is true, and they know that evidence could be found in connection with almost every public work carried on in the country, during the Laurier reign, from 1896 to 1911. In face of these facts why pretend that Conservatives of Winnipeg are sinners above all people that ever had to do with politics in Canada? Wrongdoing by Liberals does not justify wrongdoing by Conservatives, but no one has any respect for hypocrites.

PROPOSED CHANGE IN ARTS COURSE

KINGSTON, Oct. 20—A committee appointed by the Senate of Queens University, is at present at work upon a proposed change in the Arts course which leads to the degree of M.A. and to the obtaining of a specialist's certificate and the degree of M. A. to a term of five years for students entering with junior matriculation standing and a term of four years to honor matriculants. This step has been thought necessary because Toronto and other Canadian universities have already extended their course in this way.

The Senate has always recommended an attendance of five years from junior matriculants in these courses and it has generally been the practice of students to comply with this advice, but the action taken by sister universities has made it advisable for Queen's University to follow suit and make five year's attendance in these courses compulsory.

THIS IS THE 817TH DAY THE BRITISH EMPIRE HAS BEEN AT WAR WITH GERMANY.

SIR WILFRID DECLINES.

As was anticipated by those who have kept in touch with Sir Wilfrid's action and policy since the war became of a serious character, and the part Canada was playing in the conflict, they will not be surprised to learn that he has declined the offer made him by Sir Robt. Borden to assist in "the formation "of a Parliamentary National Ser"vice Committee, and the issue of "calls to the Manhood of Canada." Sir Wilfrid's reply declining to assist in the organization of such "Parliamentary National Service Committee is weak, puerile in the extreme. He expresses the opinion that his services, if he accepted the position "would not be untrammel"led, and consequently as effective "as if he continued to serve it ac"cording to his own ways as here"tofore." Subterfuge of the most transparent type. His real reason, if honestly expressed would be, that to form one of a Commission such as Sir Robert suggests would be to closely identify himself with recruiting, which he knows is unpopular in the Province of Quebec, that is among his fellow countrymen, led and influenced as they are by the Bourassa type of politicians who preach no aid to the Allies until Canada is invaded. Sir Wilfrid realizes this fact, and fearing a loss of prestige power and influence in his native Province, he declines the patriotic offer made him by Premier Borden. Sir Wilfrid's allleged reasons for not accepting are too transparent to humbug or deceive any one, who has watched and followed him, and noted his policy since the war began.

The case will be better understood by reading carefully the correspondence between Sir Robt. Borden and Sir Wilfrid Laurier. It is as follows, less the Order-in-Council creating the Parliamentary Committee:—

SIR ROBERT'S INVITATION

"Ottawa, Oct. 14th, 1916.

"My dear Sir Wilfrid Laurier: I beg to enclose herewith copy of a letter which I have received from Sir Thomas Tait as Director-General of National Service. With the letter he transmits a recommendation unanimously made by the Directors of National Service in conference at Ottawa as to the formation of a Parliamentary National Service Committee, and the issue of calls to the manhood of Canada as set forth in his letter and in the resolution.

"You may remember that during the last session of Parliament I suggested to you the formation of a Parliamentary Committee along somewhat similar lines.

"I am quite prepared to accept the proposal of the conference and to undertake the formation of such a committee, and I trust that you will be good enough to co-operate. Of course Parliament itself is the final authority for the appointment of a aPrliamentary committee in the ordinary sense, but it seems to me that a committee composed of members of Parliament for the purpose set forth in the resolution might be formed in the meantime. I would suggest a committee of twelve, and I would ask you to name five members, of whom I hope you will be one. If you should think a larger number desirable I shall willingly acquiesce."

SIR WILFRID'S REPLY

"Ottawa, Ont., Oct., 19, 1916.

"Dear Sir Robert Borden: On receiving Monday last, the 16th instant, your letter of the previous Saturday transmitting to me the resolution of the Directors of National Service for the formation of a aPrliamentary National Service Committee to assist in the work entrusted to them, you ask me to co-operate with you in the formation of such a committee, and you add that during last session you made me a suggestion on similar lines.

"As to the latter observation, I must say at once that your suggestion must have been a very casual one, in the course of conversation on other matters, for I have no recollection whatever of it.

"As to your present proposal, it seemed to me indispensable that I should acquaint myself of the exact powers and duties assigned to the Directors of National Service, as defined in the order in Council creating the Service, and I at once caused a search to be made for it in the file of The Canada Gazette.

"The search satisfied me that it had not been published, and on Tuesday I asked you for a copy, which I received the same day."

A copy of the Order-in-Council was sent to him which he incorporated in his reply, simply points out what the members of said Committee were expected to do. Sir Wilfrid then proceeds to give his reasons for declining, basing them upon the duties detailed in the Order, which are simply of a loyal desire to more effectively aid in securing victory for the Allies. He says:—

"It is obvious that under the above instructions the duty of the Directors of National Service is to find out the number of men who can be removed from the various industries (agriculture, manufacturing, mining, lumbering, fishing and others) which are carried out in any locality within each district,' and to provide that no person be allowed to enlist 'whose services would be of more value to the State in the employment in which he is now engaged.'

"In that view it seemed to me that the first thing to be done would have been at once to enter into communication with employers of labor, agricultural and industrial, in every locality, as the persons best qualified to supply the desired information, and I would have deemed it my duty to communicate at once with Sir Thomas Tait and discuss with him this aspect of the subject in connection with the resolution of the Directors of National Service for a Parliamentary Committee.

"Unfortunately Sir Thomas Tait has resigned from the position of Director-General of. National Service, and his resignation, and especially the reasons for his resignation, put a new complexion upon your proposal.

"Sir Thomas Tait resigned not only on account of "what occurred in the case of Mr. G. M. Murray, who had been offered the position of Secretary of National Service,' but chiefly, as I understand it, on account of that 'incident as indicative of what may be anticipated in connection with the future organization and work of National Service.'

"I feel that, under the circumstances, in acceding to your suggestion my assistance to the cause which I have endeavored to serve from the untrammelled, and consequently as effective as if I continue to serve it according to my own ways as heretofore."

Sir Robert Borden's Reply:

"Ottawa, Oct. 20, 1916.

"Dear Sir Wilfrid Laurier: I beg to acknowledge your letter of yesterday, which has just reached me; and I observe that you decline to co-operate with me in the formation of a committee of members of Parliament for the purpose set forth in the resolution of the Directors of National Service, which is as follows:

"'That a Parliamentary National Service Committee, to be composed of representatives of all the political parties in Parliament, be formed at the earliest possible date.

"'That such committee as soon as possible after its formation issue, by proclamation and through the public press and in any other expedient way.

"'(a) A strong and explicit call to the manhood of Canada of military age and fitness to enlist for overseas military and naval service.

"'(b) A similar call to the men and women of Canada, individually and through their various organizations, to serve the nation in such capacities as their services may be of most value.

"'(c) A similar call to all employers to effect such industrial reorganization as is necessary to meet emergencies arising out of the war.'

"A united appeal for this great national purpose seemed to me especially desirable, and it is with the deepest regret that I learn of your refusal to join in such an appeal.

"Without presuming to question a decision which must rest upon your own judgment, you will permit me to confess my inability to realize in what way your future action would be tramelled by naming five members on your side of the House to serve upon such a committee.

"The conversation to which I alluded took place when, among other things, I discussed with you the proposals of the Government with regard to railway legislation, and I have a perfect recollection of the answer which you made.

"Believe me,
"Yours faithfully,
"(Signed) R. L. Borden."

The loyal people of Canada will be able to judge from this correspondence what Sir Wilfrid's objects are in declining to assist in the strengthing of the Allied armies. Power politically.

The Poets' Corner

WRITTEN BY Pte. W. J. SAVAGE

155th Battalion C. E. F. Just Before Leaving Halifax for Overseas, Oct. 17th 1916.

Good bye to dear old Canada,
We leave you with regret,
The land of lakes and maple trees,
We never shall forget.

We leave our friends and those we love
With sad and heavy hearts,
But Duty calls and we must go
To take a soldier's part.

We know not if we'll meet again,
To shake each other's hands,
For dangerous is the road that we Shall tread in far off lands.

May God watch over those we love,
While far away we roam,
And I am sure you'll pray to Him,
To bring us safely home.

Dear wife and children, fare you well
Dear Canada, good bye.
We leave with the hope that we Shall meet you bye and bye.

Gen. Joffre Is a Strong Unselfish Man, Declares Man Who Interviews Him

MANY photographs, many lively cinema films had familiarized me with the direct gaze, the white moustache, the brooding smile of General Joffre, says Paul Scott Mowrer in a recent article. They had given me an impression of a full-cheeked energetic man not over medium height and inclining to stoutness. How would the original compare with the pictures?

Our automobiles came to a halt. We followed our soldier guide, straightening our neckties and nervously brushing the dust from our clothes as we walked. Presently, in the gravel pathway, we met General Pelle, Joffre's special chief of staff, a trim slender man with a small grey moustache. He had the jaunty figure of a boy, but his eyes looked old—old and tired.

"This is the fellow who really does the work!" one of my colleagues whispered admiringly.

The implication was that Joffre is merely a puppet, so to speak, in the hands of General Pelle. I have heard several such legends since the war began. Some journalists have a peculiar way of complicating things. The plain fact is not sufficient. They must give you the "inside story," and where there is none, somebody's invention quickly supplies the deficiency. Doubtless Gen. Pelle is a very able officer, but I do not believe General Joffre is his or anybody's puppet.

GENERALS JOFFRE AND CASTELNAU IN CONFERENCE.

Second to the generalissimo in command is General Castelnau, chief of staff. This famous leader received us in his chart-papered headquarters. Small, stern, well-built, with piercing black eyes, and a grey tuft, French style, on his under lip, he seemed the embodiment of decisive energy.

The building where the commander-in-chief of the French armies stays when he is not touring the front is at once elegant and simple, calm and dignified. It is marked by an absolute lack of military nonsense.

No splendidly mounted cavalry mount guard at the door, no soldiers present arms along the corridors. Doubtless the general is well guarded, but he is certainly guarded unobtrusively. We filed through a dining-room where a table was laid for eight or ten people. The menu card lying face up on the snowy cloth bespoke plain and moderate fare. Then, almost before we knew it, we were in the great presence. At first I thought this unostentatious room must be that of the Russian military attache, for the walls were covered with Russian staff maps. But in my turn I found myself shaking a cordial hand and looking into a pair of blue eyes which I recognized.

We ranged ourselves in a semicircle, facing Joffre. He stood in front of his flat topped desk, shifting his weight from one gaitered leg to the other. He was dressed in the uniform of an artillery officer—black jacket and red riding breeches, with wide black stripes. He wore no weapon, no medal. Only the three small silver stars on his coat sleeve denoted his rank. Was this, after all, the man I had seen so often at the cinema? He seemed the same, and yet not. Instead of a medium-sized rather stout an, I saw a man tall and powerfully built.

In comparison with the latter's swift decisiveness, Joffre seemed slow and meditative. His gaze, as he talked, wandered across our faces, then fell thoughtfully to the floor, then rose again. Only occasionally did I catch a flash of the clear blue eyes. He accompanied his words with a slight movement of his heavy shoulders, as if to give them additional weight. His voice was low, reflective, matter of fact, almost hesitating.

The measured confidence of Joffre is impressive. For him the victory of the Allies is as certain as his own mathematics. The movements of the planets are not more inevitable than the defeat of Germany—such, at least, is the certitude which emanates from this deep, taciturn, powerful personality.

Auto Fatally Hurts Boy.

MONTREAL, Oct. 10.—Jean Macabee, nine years of age, was fatally injured by District Fire Chief Favereau's automobile, driven by Chauffeur Ganin, at the corner of Craig and Beaudry streets. The boy died in Notre Dame Hospital. Lumina Lortie, an eight-year-old girl, who was playing with the boy, was also struck by the machine, but escaped serious injury.

PILES

Nothing known to science is better for this painful ailment than Zam-Buk. It reduces inflammation, stops bleeding, ends the agony. Easily applied and cleanly. Why go on suffering? Why not try it? Read the following cures.

Mrs. C. Hanson, Poplar, B.C., says: "I suffered for years with bleeding piles. The pain was often so bad I could hardly walk. I tried remedy after remedy, and finally underwent an operation, but only got temporary relief. At last I tried Zam-Buk. Perseverance with this remedy completely cured me, and there has been no return of the trouble."

Mr. W. J. Donovan, of New Edinburgh, Ont., writes: "For two years I suffered with bleeding piles. The pain was most intense. I tried one after another of the so-called remedies, but without effect. At last I decided to try Zam-Buk. This gave quick relief from the dull, gnawing pain, and perseverance with Zam-Buk cured me. The cure has been permanent."

ZAM-BUK ALSO CURES ECZEMA, BLOOD POISON, ULCERS, COLD SORES, CHAPPED HANDS, SCALP SORES, CUTS, BURNS, BRUISES, SCALDS and all SKIN INJURIES and DISEASES. All druggists and stores, or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, post free for price. Refuse harmful substitutes and preparations advanced as "just as good."

MARK TWAIN AS A LECTURER.

The Story of His First Appearance Upon the Platform.

The story of Mark Twain's first great public lecture is told in Albert Bigelow Paine's "Boy's Life" of the humorist in St. Nicholas. It had been suggested that he should lecture on the Sandwich Islands, where he had been spending some weeks as a newspaper correspondent, and one of his San Francisco friends urged him to hire the largest hall in the city and charge a dollar a ticket.

"Without waiting until his fright came back," writes Mr. Paine, "Mark Twain hurried to the manager of the Academy of Music and engaged it for a lecture to be given Oct. 2, 1866, and sat down and wrote his announcement. He began by stating what he would speak upon and ended with a few absurdities such as:

A SPLENDID ORCHESTRA
Is In Town, but Has Not Been Engaged.
Also
A DEN OF FEROCIOUS WILD BEASTS
Will Be on Exhibition In the Next Block.
A GRAND TORCHLIGHT PROCESSION
May Be Expected; In Fact, the Public
Are Privileged to Expect Whatever
They Please.
Doors open at 7 o' clock.
The trouble to begin at 8 o'clock.

"Mark Twain was well known in San Francisco and was pretty sure to have a good house. But he did not realize this, and as the evening approached his dread of failure increased. Arriving at the theater, he entered by the stage door, half expecting to find the place empty. Then suddenly he became more frightened than ever. Peering from the wings, he saw that the house was jammed—packed from the footlights to the walls. Terrified, his knees shaking, his tongue dry, he managed to emerge and was greeted with a roar, a crash of applause that nearly finished him. Only for an instant—reaction followed. These people were his friends, and he was talking to them. He forgot to be afraid, and as the applause came in great billows that rose ever higher he felt himself borne with it as on a tide of happiness and success. His evening from beginning to end was a complete triumph. Friends declared that for descriptive eloquence, humor and real entertainment nothing like his address had ever been delivered."

Congregational Reunion at West Side Church

Rev. C. W. Watch Delivered Address on Life at Camp Borden Excellent Work by Methodist Mission

A congregational reunion was held last night at Holloway Street Methodist Church, at which a goodly number were present. The proceedings were opened by Mr. Pimlock who offered up a prayer. This was followed by a short vocal and instrumental programme, which consisted of as follows:—Solo, —Mr. Pimlock; Solo,—Mr. Ralls; Miss R. Farrell,—recitation; solo—Mr. Haines; Vocal Duet—Misses Wootten; Piano duet—Mrs. Clarry and Miss Lobb. Rev. Dr. Scott, Pastor of Bridge Street Methodist Church was introduced to the audience and gave a short address, congratulating the people of Holloway Street Church on their good work at the Sunday Services, and dwelt on the meaning of Methodism and its works.

Mr. A. E. Bailey presented a report of the offerings donated by the people at Sunday's Anniversary Services, which amounted to $524.96; since that time the sum had swelled to $554.46 He, Mr Bailey, urged the people to make an effort to reach the $600 mark. The people will do it, as they have always done since the speaker was connected with the church for the past 12 years. He wished to thank all the people and children who responded to the call for the money. These people are to-day, noble hearted and grand, and will support to the last dollar that is needed.

At the close of this gratifying report, Rev. Mr. Clarry, Pastor of the church, proposed the singing of the Doxology which was sung with a will.

Rev. C. W. Watch, was then called upon to deliver his address on "Life at Camp Borden." In opening, Rev. Mr. Watch, declared there are some things that could be said about Camp Borden in admiration of the place as well as the work carried out there, and there are other things that could be said in criticism of the camp. There has come upon the manhood of the land, the manhood of the Empire and the manhood of the whole world a feeling, a passion caused by the conditions and necessities they have to meet today. It is the sense of that feeling or passion in the hearts of men that has made Camp Borden what it is today. Men, always had a great attraction to me, and when it came to the gathering of men in the training camps, I made myself somewhat familiar with the conditions under which they serve. It was the attraction of the men that attracted me to Camp Borden. I was approached by the Headquarters Staff who asked whether our church was going to take up any work at the camp. This appeal was made to me, because Camp Borden was in the bounds of Barrie district. It was thought I was a little slow in moving, but it was a very difficult problem to handle. I visited the camp many times and knew many of the commanding officers at the camp, therefore, I felt I had some interest in Camp Borden.

When I began the work, we hadn't a dollar, we hadn't a hymn-book, a chair or anything. That Sunday we held an open air service in the evening. There were many soldiers present and it proved a most helpful service. Later we purchased a tent, 40 x 60, and put it up in the little village of Angus. In this little hamlet the people are of a splendid type of Christians, but there came into it a sort of low, mean things, to take money from the soldiers. Some of these people wondered what was going on in our big tent, and made inquiries as to what we were going to show in it. I don't know of one place in Angus where a boy could sit down and rest, without paying in some way or other.

We completed our work of erecting the tent, and portioned off part of it for a reading room, which was fitted up with comfortable chairs, and was well supplied with choice and well selected magazines. Not stale and worn-out looking things but everyone of them up to date. The soldiers were allowed to take these to their tents to read. There was also a writing section in the tent, where the men could come and be comfortable, and write letters home, many men were persuaded to write home who had never sent a line before. Mr. Hunter, who carried on the work for six weeks, every day and night, could fill many volumes with the stories of the scenes he had witnessed in this tent.

Night after night the number of vmen increased, they came down and stayed all evening, and we had the greatest difficulty in getting the men back to their tents in time. We had rarely ever had to beg men to go back go on half an houretao taoi aoiaoinao like we had these soldiers. I could go on half an hour telling story after story of the scenes. Two weeks ago I went down to the camp to close the work and store away the tent, close the accounts etc. We had the greatest difficulty in closing the last meeting, the men wanted to stay and talk and be talked to about the Love of Christ and sing the hymns. Man after man came to us after the meeting to shake hands, while we were begging them to return to camp. When all the men had departed we picked up from the table a sheet of paper addressed to the people of Angus, thanking them for their kindness and interest in the boys. It was, signed "One of the boys." This letter will likely be reproduced in the Guardian.

I was met by one of the Headquarters Staff, who said, "Mr. Watch, you will never know what your work has accomplished in influencing the men of Borden Camp." The H. Q. S. was just about to place Angus out of bounds, but refrained from doing so because we put up our tent there

Regarding the financing of the work, we didn't spend as much money as we thought we would. It cost $600 for the equipment, which is paid for. More money is needed to carry on this work, and it will be forthcoming, would our church think of the possibilities of the spiritual work around Camp Borden.

The gathering closed after the Benediction, conducted by the Rev. Mr. Watch.

Ontario's Latest Gift.

Ontario has again come to the front in a practical way. The Government has announced that it will give $1,000,000 out of the amount collected from the war tax this year to the Canadian Patriotic Fund, to assist that organization in providing assistance for the dependents of men who have left their work and their homes here in order to fight the Empire's battles against the menace of German aggression. To maintain payments to dependents of soldiers for the coming year the people of Ontario will be asked to contribute $6,000,000. Representations were made to the Government by the officers of the Ontario Branch of the Canadian Patriotic Fund, with the result that a grant of $1,000,000 will be made, to be used in the Province for assisting the wives, children, and other dependents of soldiers who have gone to the front. In taking this action the Government is in a most satisfactory way rendering to the people some tangible service from the war tax.

Commission From Australia.

According to a report received by the Department of Trade and Commerce from Canadian Trade Commissioner Ross at Melbourne, the Commonwealth Government has appointed a commission to visit Canada and the United States to investigate and report upon methods of manufacture and production and the conditions of employment on this continent. The commission will consist of six representative manufacturers of Australia, together with six representatives of the workers. It will spend about four months in Canada and the United States, and the industries to be specially investigated are iron, engineering, and allied trades, timber, building materials, leather, textiles, paper, and trades in the preparation of foodstuffs.

PLEADS FOR BLIND

Calls Upon American Women to Help War Victims.

PLANS TO TEACH TRADES.

With Her Unceasing Zest For Good Deeds, Mrs. Whitney Makes a Special Plea to Help Alleviate Suffering in European Countries.

One of the latest steps taken by the sympathizers of the allies is an appeal issued by the B. F. B. (British, French, Belgian) Permanent Blind Relief fund, with headquarters in New York, over the names of Lady Arthur Paget of the fund's executive committee and Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, one of the honorary secretaries, calling upon the women of America for aid. The appeal says in part:

"Unless you act these thousands of women will be condemned for the rest of their lives to an existence of hopeless drudgery and hardship.

"For humanity's sake help these European women. They are your sisters, even though you have never seen them.

"Six months' training will educate the blind men dependent on them in trades not requiring sight. Even your single donation alone will go far toward enabling one of these [illegible] men to support himself and partly support his family for the rest of his life.

MRS. HARRY PAYNE WHITNEY.

"These women stretch appealing hands to you from across the ocean. Make at least one of them permanently happy and her husband, father or son particularly useful by sending us a contribution.

"The sooner you act the sooner one brave, good, faithful woman will be rescued from an existence of despair and crushing slavery and the sooner the man who is tragically anxious to support her will be saved from a life of uselessness and hopelessness."

Mrs. Whitney is also a sculptor of rare achievement, and frequently her beautiful studio becomes the setting of some charity benefit. She lately voiced one of her own art axioms in these words:

"Beauty without intelligence is the beauty of an unlighted lamp. There must be brain to direct the expression of beauty."

DOMESTIC TRAGEDIES.

France Has a Multitude of "Enoch Arden" Stories.

There is a notable multiplication of domestic dramas of the type familiar through Tennyson's "Enoch Arden" and Balzac's "Colonel Chabert,' who, lost on a Napoleonic battlefield, returned home to find his wife remarried to a nobleman of the Restoration.

Thus, a Madame D—— of Arras was informed at the beginning of the war that her husband had been killed. Removing to Paris she waited some months, and then married her brother-in-law. The first husband is now on his way back from Germany, where he was a prisoner.

Charles le Goffic cites other cases in La Liberte. He says: "In a small commune near the Channel two soldiers' wives remarried in this way. The death of their first husbands was registered, and all the papers were in order. But these husbands reappeared one fine morning, both of them with amputated limbs."

"More curious is the tale of the Breton soldier, whose arm, cut off by a shell, was found on the battlefield, while the rest of him had disappeared. As the arm carried the identification plate its owner was reported dead. The wife received a certificate to this effect, and was permitted to remarry. The first husband, however, proves to be alive, and inclined to insist on his rights."

The most unfortunate of these tragic misadventures was found in Switzerland recently in one of the parties of seriously wounded soldiers returned from Germany. A French visitor stopped before a man whose face was so disfigured as to seem no longer human. He asked if he could do anything for the sufferer, if he could seek his family and tell them

"Useless,' was the reply. "He is dead."

The soldier had risen to the heroic delicacy of deciding that, rather than horrify those he loved, he would leave them to believe him dead.

There is a ray of light in this case, for the surgeons hold out hope of a great improvement, and if this is accomplished their patient will give up his name and come to life again. "But perhaps," adds M. le Goffic, "it may then be too late."

It is said there are 70,000 French prisoners in Germany who have not been able to communicate with their families. The French law requires ten months of widowhood before remarriage. The question is being asked whether this delay should not be extended, and Henri Robert, the eminent pleader, is one of those who think that soldiers' wives should not remarry before the end of the war.

WORST CRIME OF ALL.

Are Germans Inoculating French Prisoners With Tuberculosis.

There have recently come into my possession copies of certain documents which have for their title 'Indisputable Proof of Germany's Greatest Crime," says a French correspondent in a letter in The Toronto Globe.

As the man who handed them to me said: "In their ugliness—with their blistering terror and truth—the neutral world may finally recognize how great a lie is every Berlin promise and how Germany has willfully added to final infamy to her list greater than all her others."

The French Government has accepted the verity of these documents, which are prefaced with the following statement:

"This new crime is not like that directed against the women of Belgium. It differs from the murder of the Lusitania children. It is generated from the criminal idea that if Germany falls she will try to drag the world down with her. For this crime is not only against Frenchmen, Russians, and Britons, but against every living man. It is perpetrated against the world.

"This crime is that Germany is deliberately infecting her prisoners with tuberculosis. When the white scourge has sufficiently gripped them she casts them from her borders back to their own people or to neutral nations to breed contagion and to die. It is a gigantic manufactory, with living material. [illegible] Germany has 50,000 Frenchmen well inoculated, besides thousands or hundreds of thousands of men of other nations.

"Tuberculosis manufacture is carried on in other camps, secret camps —hundreds of them— known as labor camps, tucked away in every corner of her Empire.

"In one of these secret camps a German doctor, after mixing tuberculars with convalescents from other diseases so that these, too, might become tubercular, voiced the manufacturers' idea: Thus do I wage war in my own fashion.

"There are now 13,000 French and a thousand British consumptives in Switzerland, recently dumped out of Germany in such an advanced stage of the disease that they no longer were useful as prisoners. Thousands of other tuberculars ejected in a dying condition are already dead. Others are at Lyons, where the French Government has transformed an old convent into a special hospital. A small percentage of the worst cases have been taken to their homes to die among their families.

"From Switzerland and Lyons, and in a few instances from Swiss doctors who have had access to Germany, we have made the discovery of the secret camps. A majority of them are in salt, coal, and iron mines and in drainage and marsh reclamation areas. The stories of hundreds of tuberculars and doctors have all been checked one against another, and all have been found to be true."

CANDIDATE'S WIFE

Some Interesting Facts About the Life of Mrs. Charles E. Hughes.

PREFERS HOME TO SOCIETY.

She Is No Clubwoman and Is Also Said to Be Anti-suffrage—She Delights In the Fine Arts of Homemaking.

Women all over the United States are asking about Mrs. Hughes, wanting to know something about this quiet little woman whose husband is the Republican candidate for president.

Washington has discovered that Mrs. Hughes is about the only person in its official "Who's Who" who has successfully managed to keep out of the limelight of official and social publicity.

Mrs. Hughes is not a clubwoman. She has always preferred to capitalize home. To her nothing else has ever mattered quite so much. Society, except where it was necessary as a part of her husband's official life, has never interested her.

MRS. CHARLES E. HUGHES.

It is rumored that Mrs. Hughes is an antisuffragist. She has been so close to her own family and her home that she has not seen the urgent need of suffrage for women as women more in public affairs see it. Always Mrs. Hughes has spent much more time in study, charity and church work than in any other pursuits.

Mrs. Hughes is an ardent advocate of all kinds of athletics. She has personally superintended the education of her three daughters, Catherine, Helen and Elizabeth. Helen graduated two years ago from Vassar, and next fall Catherine will be a student of Wellesley.

Perhaps the charity that has been of first importance to Mrs. Hughes during the past few years is the woman's evening clinic in Washington, which gives medical advice to working women for a nominal fee.

The friends of Mrs. Hughes, who know her best, speak of her as a splendid representative of American woman, a woman whose home and family have always come first even when her duties as wife of a member of the supreme court were the heaviest. With Mrs. Hughes the fine arts of homemaking are the best. She is proud of her reputation of being an excellent cook.

Mrs. Hughes sews, because to her it is a much more fascinating occupation than bridge, and it has been said that this clear thinking woman, with her steady, quiet eyes, believes that the modestly dressed woman is always sure of being herself, because she is bigger than the dictates and vagaries of every passing fashion.

What are Peps

Peps are the new treatment for coughs, colds and lung troubles. They are little tablets made up from Pine extracts and medicinal essences. When put into the mouth these medicinal ingredients turn into healing vapors, which are breathed down direct to the lungs, throat and bronchial tubes. The Peps treatment is direct. Swallowing cough mixtures into the stomach, to cure ailments and disorders in throat and lungs, is indirect. Peps are revolutionizing the treatment of colds, as their price is within the reach of all. 50c. box all druggists, or Peps Co., Toronto.

Severe Headaches and Pains in the Back

Resulted From Deranged Kidneys and Constipation of the Bowels

It is in vain to try to regulate and restore the healthy action of the kidneys until the liver and bowels are set right.

And just here is where so many kidney medicines fail. Kidney derangements almost invariably begin with constipation and torpidity of the liver. The whole work of filtering the blood is thrown on the kidneys, and in time they fail to stand the strain. The poison in the system gives rise to severe headaches, pains in the back, and tired, depressed feelings.

Because they act directly on the liver and bowels, as well as on the kidneys, Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are eminently successful in the treatment of kidney derangements.

Mr. William Loney, Marysville, N.B., writes:—"I am glad to recommend Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to anybody who is suffering from kidney trouble or constipation. I suffered for a long time from kidney disease and pains in the back, but have found that by using one pill a week the kidneys and bowels are kept in good order, and I do not have any more pains in the head or back like I used to have. I was also a great sufferer from piles, and could get no relief until I used Dr. Chase's Ointment. This ailment is entirely cured now, and we always keep both the pills and the ointment in the house for use when they are needed."

This statement is endorsed by Mr. F. Saunders, Town Marshal, who writes that Mr. Loney's letter is true and correct.

Maple Leaf Tire Company Receives Orders For Canadian Made Rubber Sheets and Mackintoshes to the Extent of Nearly One Million Dollars—New Zealand Order in View

A representative of the British Government was in this city last week with a view to placing an order with The Maple Leaf Tire Company, Limited, resulting in a visit by President Long of the Company, to the purchasing commission at Ottawa, who returned last evening with orders for Canadian made rubber blankets.

The work called for is of a very delicate nature, the success of the production resting principally with the finishing process. Until the Maple Leaf process came into vogue, no Canadian company has been able to turn out blankets equal to those required by the Britsih Government, the nearest being produced under the supervision of the man who will have charge of the Maple Leaf Tire Company's productions, and who is at present in this country.

Until the local plant is completed and in running order, these blankets will be made outside the present factory, but the work of placing the Belleville establishment in commission will be pushed with the greatest speed.

The War Dept. has on hand requisition for many thousand sheets, 200,000 Canadian, 200,000 French and 500,000 Russian, which it is understood must be completed by March 1st.

Mr. Long had a telegram to-day regarding an order for New Zealand also, of approximately 160,000 sheets. The Company has been promised an order from Montreal, sufficient to keep their machines busy for 18 months on Mackintosh garments alone.

Mr. Long, interviewed this morning by an Intelligencer representative, said the outlook for the Maple Leaf Tire Company, Limited, was of the brightest nature, and there was no question of its conduction with a capacity complement of workmen.

When in full running order it will be an industry of which Belleville may have every reason to feel proud.

Mr. Long goes to Ottawa Thursday, to complete arrangements for the orders.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

SYMPATHY WITH THE ALLIES

Dear Sir.—I found everywhere I went that the sympathy of the people is with the Allies.

A ship laden with munitions for the Allies went down the Hudson, and the ships she passed, manned their yards, and cheered her. The presence upon the American Coast of the submarine which had recently sunk ten ships, caused marine insurance to go up five hundred per cent., and a loss upon Stock Exchange by the slump of five hundred millions. There is wide spread alarm everywhere across the border. Our American friends never dreamed that a submarine would cross the ocean, and in affect, cause a blockade of their coals. The Allies share in the alarm; because it means a withdrawal of war ships from the North Sea in sufficient numbers to protect Allied ships, when they are making for American parts. Supposing German submarines should now at any moment, appear at Victoria and Vancouver, and shell those cities. What protection could be afforded them?

I saw the two American destroyers which rescued people who had been upon the boats torpedoed. They are under steam night and day, not knowing when their services may be required. I saw the Mayor of the city, reviewing twenty-five hundred policemen, clad in khaki, carrying rifles and bayonets. The force also had four machine guns in motors They certainly formed a fine body of men.

There is an automatic restaurant, which seems popular. A large room has its walls divided into little cells with glass doors. In each of these cells is placed an article of food; a piece of pie, or cake, eggs, coffee, tea or milk. You see something you want; drop a nickle in a slot, turn a little handle, the door flies open; you take out the dish, devour the food, and leave. You see no servants or waters, or pay clerks. Another restaurant has from morn to night in its windows, roasts, chickens and cuts of meat. There is a hot coal fire, in front of which are iron skewers, loaded with chickens, twenty-four in number, turning slowly, basted frequently, and diffusing a delicious aroma. Then there is, of course, the Corpentarea, where from a large table laden with fruit and excellents, you choose what you want, take it to your chair, with its broad leaves, upon which you place it. You return the empties, and pay. With the advent of thousands each day, the N.Y.C. Terminal provides a mode by which no one can possibly get on the wrong train. You cannot enter a train without exhibiting your ticket. If you go to the wrong entrance, you are at once pointed to the right one. Simple as the plan is, it saves a great deal of trouble. Subways now traverse the city from end to end. You descend into the depths of the south, and in a few minutes you are whisked from the Battery to the end of Manhattan Island, fifteen and a half miles. That is not the extent of the city, because it crosses Sputen Deyvil Creek and travels two and a half miles further north, You pass under the river to Brooklyn. The Bronte Park in the north, is much larger than Central Park, and contains a zoological garden, botanical garden and many attractions. There are some fine specimens of apes, claimed by some scientists to be our ancestors, and in the museum you see, side by side, the skeletons of the gorilla and man There does not seem any difference between them. The museum and Prospect Park in Brooklyn, are very attractive. There are six rooms in the museum filled with paintings by James J. Tissott. Each of these pictures illustrates a Biblical subject. The paintings number three hundred and twenty. There are also some wonderful pictures by the Russian artist, Verschagin. One very large canvas represents prisoners on their march to Siberia. The poor men are sitting in the snow, and a terrible storm is raging. Their despair and helplessness is wonderfully depicted. Another canvas represents the rout of Napoleon's defeated army: dead men lying in the snow, and vultures—sitting gorged with their feast.

As regards the war, Symons, the war correspondent of The Tribune, claims that the Allies must win by attention. That is they can, by wastage, overcome the Central Powers, because they have more men and supplies. He says the Allies are pursuing Grant's plan during the Civil War, wearing the enemy down. Mackensen astride of the main railway, having captured Czernozava, lends to the view that the only bridge across the Danube will be taken by the Teutons, and Roumania served as Serbia, Montenegro, and Belgium were served. Only a miracle can save her from destruction.

Yours,
J. J. B. FLINT.

Latest Advices From Winnipeg Concerning C. P. R. Conditions Still Negotiating

Canadian Press Special

OTTAWA, Oct. 25.—There will be no C.P.R. strike, according to advices received by the Labor Department this afternoon. The two sides have come to agreement which is promised to be concluded in a few hours. This, of course, will avert a strike which was timed for four o'clock this afternoon. The Labor Department has received no particulars of the settlement.

A Belleville Patriotic Chorus

Representative Gathering of Organists, Choir Leaders and Church Members—Object Purely Patriotic

At the Y.M.C.A. last evening a meeting was held comprising organists, choir leaders and leaderesses of the various choirs of the churches in the city. The meeting was fairly representative. Its object was to consider the advisability of forming a union of the choirs of the city for the purpose of taking part and giving entertainments for purely patriotic purposes.

On motion, Mr. J. J. B. Flint was voted to the chair, and he called upon Prof. Hunt, who explained the object of the meeting, which was to have a union of choirs to render patriotic music at entertainments, the proceeds of which would be entirely devoted to patriotic objects. In Edmonton there was such an organization, and it was composed of over 200 musicians. He (the speaker) would like to see such an organization in Belleville. The organization could even assist in raising a memorial for the brave boys who have given their lives for us. The leaders of the various choirs could take hold of the matter and discuss it among the members of the choir. Details could be worked out at a subsequent gathering.

In an informal discussion which ensued, the suggestions of Prof. Hunt were heartily endorsed. Mrs. Col. Campbell, Mrs. A. P. Allen, Mrs. A. Ray, Mrs. (Dr.) MacColl, Miss LaVoie and others spoke in favor of the scheme, and pledged their support to same. A motion prevailed that such an organization be formed in the city, and it was decided to call it the Belleville Patriotic chorus. The officers elected were as follows:

President—Mr. J. J. B. Flint.
Secretary—Mr. H. Clarke.
Treasurer—Mrs. A. Ray.

Executive Committee — Organists, leaders of choirs in various churches, Mrs. (Dr.) MacColl, Mrs. Duff, Miss Milburn, Mrs. Wilmot and Miss Edna Wallace. The committee have power to add to their members.

Municipal Committee—Prof. Wheatley, Prof. Hunt and Mrs. (Dr.) MacColl.

Conductor—Prof. Hunt.
Accompanist—Prof. Wheatley.

In accepting the position of conductor, Prof. Hunt said that while he did not seek the office he would do all in his power to make the chorus a success, and make it a great factor in the city. The musical committee would have to procure music as soon as possible. This would not be an expensive item.

A motion was carried that no entrance fee be charged, and that music be furnished to members at half price.

After some informal discussion as to practices, etc., it was decided that no entertainment would be put on until after the holiday season.

The meeting then adjourned.

MONTREAL STUDENTS FINED FOR DISORDERLY CONDUCT

Canadian Press Special

MONTREAL, Oct. 25.—Emile Tasse and Arthur Grenier, Laval students, arrested during a riot October 4th when recruiting paraphernalia was destroyed in Phillips square, were this morning found guilty of disorderly conduct and ordered to pay half the costs of prosecution or go to jail for ten days.

Albert Brossard, a student arrested at the same time, was released on suspended sentence. Romeo Laporte, another student charged with throwing stones at police during a fight on the steps of St. James Cathedral, subsequent to the Phillips square fracas was fined twenty-five dollars or two months in jail.

CALLED BY DEATH.

THOMAS PEACOCK

At an early hour this morning Mr. Thomas Peacock, a well known and much respected yeoman of Thurlow Township, passed away. Deceased, who was 88 years of age, was born in Scotland, but for over half a century had lived in Hastings County, the greater portion of which was spent in the northern part of the county. He had been in failing health for about a year. Mr. Peacock in religion was a Presbyterian. Mrs. Peacock preceded him to the tomb some years ago. Three sons and two daughters survive. The sons are Thomas, Robert and Frank, all of Thurlow, and the daughters are Mrs. Bronson of Madoc, and Mrs. Glennie of Tudor Township. The remains will be taken to Millbridge for interment.

MRS. MARY WATERS

On Thursday last Mrs. Mary Waters relict of the late Capt. Richard Waters, was the victim of a stroke which proved fatal. Yesterday she passed away peacefully at the residence of her daughter Mrs. Charles Cook, Bridge Street, West. Deceased was an elderly lady, who was highly esteemed by all who knew her. For the past 40 years she had been a resident of Belleville. Mrs. Waters was a member of John Street Presbyterian Church. Her husband preceeded her to the tomb 8 years ago. Mrs. Charles Cook, of this city is the only surviving member of the family. A brother and three sisters reside at Herrington, Kansas, and two sisters Mrs. Richardson and Mrs. Nash live in Toronto.

OBSEQUIES.

MRS. O. C. GREENLEAF

From the family residence, Park street, yesterday afternoon the funeral of the late Mrs. O. C. Greenleaf took place, and many were present to pay the last tributes of respect to the departed. Services at the house were conducted by Rev S. C. Moore and Rev. Mr. Horton. Interment took place at Belleville cemetery. The floral tributes were many and beautiful in design. The bearers were Messrs. J. Pringle, C. Elvins, D. Bleecker, G. A. Bennett, James Dyer and J. W. Pearce.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

Mr. Charles Delisle who has been in the hospital for some time is able to be out again

Mr. and Mrs. George Crampton, of Whitlow, Ireland, are guests at Hotel Quinte, this city.

Miss Grace Boyle, daughter of Mr. Rufus Boyle, residing on Charles St., is seriously ill.

Miss R. G. Pepper, of Niagara Falls, N. Y. has returned to her home after visiting her mother, Mrs. John Pepper.

Mrs. Baker, Mrs. Outerbridge, and Miss Alford of Albert College, will receive on Thursday, Nov. 2 afterwards on the fourth Thursday of each month.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE POLLYANNNA CLUB

On Friday evening the Pollyanna Club were entertained to supper by Mrs. E. J. Graham, at the Quinte, after which their annual meeting took place. The following officers were elected for the coming year:

Honorary President—Mrs. R. J Graham.
President—Clara Yeomans.
1st Vice President—Grace Graham.
2nd Vice President—Helen Springer.
Secretary—Audrey Mikel.
Treasurer—Nellie Milne.

Red Cross work for the coming winter was discussed, and it was decided to raise funds for this purpose by accepting Mr. Lattimer's kind offer of his tea-room, which the Pollyannas will open almost immediately. This club of young girls, formed before the war began, has proved itself of sterling worth the last two years, under their Honorary President and chaperon, Mrs. Graham, and they deserve the patronage of the public in this enterprise they are undertaking.

WEDDING BELLS.

O'HARA—WADDELL

A pretty wedding took place at 7.30 o'clock in St. Michael's church this morning, when Miss Mable Waddell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Waddell, 168 James street, was united in marriage by the Rev. Father Killeen, to Mr. James O'Hara, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh O'Hara, this city. Miss Mina Hunter assisted as bridesmaid, while Mr. James Waddell, brother of the bride, did honors for the groom. The bride was the recipient of many beautiful presents. After a honeymoon trip, which will be spent in Toronto and Niagara, Mr. and Mrs. O'Hara will be at home to their friends at 316 Coleman street, Belleville.

HYDRO ELECTRIC WILL PAY TAXES

A large deputation representing many Ontario Municipalities, of which Mayor Ketcheson of Belleville was one of the number yesterday interviewed Sir Adam Beck and members of the provincial Government. The object of the deputations visit was in regard to the question of taxes on property acquired by the Ontario Government in the present year when the Seymour Power and Electric Company with other similar companies were taken over by the Hydro Electric Commission. After hearing the argument Sir Adam Beck and the Government promised favorable consideration of the matter. It was represented to the Government that if the companies could afford to pay taxes the Government could more afford to do so. The result will mean that Belleville will receive a revenue of $1,400 per annum for taxes on property assumed by the Government. When a readjustment of rates etc., would be considered it would then be time enough to consider the exemption or lessening the taxes.

HIS SECOND OFFENCE

Isaac Seelyeh, the young man who was arrested here on a charge of burglarizing Mr. Fitzgerald's general store at Malone, was taken to Marmora for a preliminary hearing. The young culprit has only just completed a sentence of nine months in the Provincial Reformatory for conviction of robbery from the same store about a year ago.

ANOTHER LIFE SACRIFICED

A message was last evening received in this city from the Record Office, Ottawa, conveying the sad intelligence that Private J. E. Storms, of Belleville had on October 15th died of wounds. Deceased enlisted and went overseas with the 80th Battalion. Mrs. Storms is at present staying at Prince Edward County where the message was sent to her this morning.

BOOMER IS MISSING

There is at present gloom among not only the G. T. R. employes at Belleville, but all along the line, owing to the fact that a pet Fox Terrier dog, answering the name of Boomer, is missing from this city. This dog has a reputation of travelling all over the G.T.R. system and usually boarded the train when it was in motion. A few days ago it left Belleville in this manner and at Cobourg boarded the car ferry for a trip across Lake Ontario. This was the last seen or heard of the pet.

ST. JOHNS AMBULANCE CERTIFICATES GRANTED

Ladies of East Belleville Institute Gather at Queen Alexandria School—Patriotic Address by Mrs, Parsons—Dr. Yeomans Presents Certificates

Under the auspices of the East Belleville Women's Institute a meeting was held yesterday afternoon in the assembly room of Queen Alexandria School, Ann Street. There was a large attendance and much interest was manifested in the proceedings. The primarily object of the gathering was to present certificates of St. John's Ambulance Association to those who had passed their examination in "First Aid to the Injured," and no less than fifty were recipients of same.

Mrs. R. J. Graham, President of the Institute, occupied the chair, and in a few well chosen remarks stated the object of the gathering.

Mrs. Parson, who has done admirable work in connection with recruiting for the 235th Battalion, was present, and gave an address, which was much appreciated In her opening remarks she referred to the noble sacrifices the women of Northern Ontario were making at the present time, despite the fact of the adversities they were laboring under, owing to the ravages of fire some time ago. The needs of the Red Cross were great, and women must work even though the sacrifices in some cases were great. The great sacrifice to-day is the giving up of men, but the country is pleading for more. The greatest sacrifice that can come is the sacrifice of honor, of honor in the discharge of duties nobly and willingly performed. It is no small thing to ask the women to give up husbands and sons, but we must give them up. Every man that goes to the front belongs to some woman. Any woman that is keeping her boy back is doing a great injustice. A boy can only die once. We gave them life, and we must give them up in death if necessary. She would rather have her boys die in khaki than living in Belleville or any other place as a slacker. Nobility of soul comes into a man when they come to the point of sacrifice. This is man's day and man's opportunity. A man's place to-day is on the firing line, and a woman's place is at home keeping the home-fires burning. She would urge the women to strain every nerve at the present time. The more we work the better we can bear sacrifices that are to come. Canada calls upon the women to aid the country at the present critical time.

The presentation of certificates was made by Dr. Yeomans, who explained why they were given. The doctor spoke eulogistically of the work the women were doing, and the sacrifices they were making.

Those receiving certificates were: Miss Fanny L. Reilly, Miss Nina A. Yeomans, Mrs. May F. Lazier, Miss Nellie D. Knight, Mrs. Miriam Lazier, Miss Gertrude Price, Miss M. Eleanor Herrington, Mrs. Edith M. Wills, Miss Lena Coeuret, Miss Minnie Adams, Mrs. Emma Ketcheson, Mrs. Mary Chapman, Miss Ida M. Thompson, Mrs. Susan Taylor, Mrs. Emma A. Reid, Miss Mabel Woodley, Miss Isabell Lewis, Miss Minnie Young, Miss Edith McLean, Miss Ida Ruttan, Miss Evelyn Lewis, Miss Annie Duckworth, Mrs. E. F. Farrow, Miss Jessie McLean, Miss Ethel V. Lingham, Miss Alice Stapley, Mrs. Catharine Fitzgerald, Miss Helen Farrow, Miss Inez Palmer, Mrs. Stella Walters, Miss Reta Archibald, Miss Helen McCuaig, Mrs. Edith Farrow, Miss Caroline Stratton, Miss Nellie Alford, Mrs. Margaret Flagler, Miss W. Bulpit, Mrs. Carrie Wickman, Miss Eva Brockhurst, Miss Minnie Leper, Mrs. A. Bird, Mrs. Geo Anderson, Mrs. Alice Bonisteel, Miss Florence Davis, Miss Mary L. Brooks, Mrs. Inez Taylor, Miss Edna Barlow and Miss Amelia Lazier.

THE QUINTE PRODUCE CO. LTD. ABOUT READY TO START OPERATIONS

The shareholders of the Quinte Produce Co., Ltd., held a general meeting of Shareholders at the City Hall, Belleville, Saturday, Oct. 21st, 1916, at the hour of two P.M. This is the last meeting to be held for organization purposes, as the Company is now ready for business, and connections for the different lines to be handled are rapidly being established, and it is only a matter of about a week now when this business will be running full blast.

The charter of this Company covers a wide scope, and the powers contained therein are as follows:

To Manufacture, Buy, Sell and Deal in goods, wares, merchandise of all descriptions, without in any way restricting the generality of the foregoing to buy, manufacture and to sell grain, flour, meal, milk and all dairy produce, agricultural produce of every description, fish, live stock, poultry, dressed meats of every description. To manufacture boxes, barrels, cases or other containers required for the purpose of the foregoing, and to carry on the business of a miller, butcher, shipper, forwarder and warehouseman.

Among other things passed at the meeting was the ratification of the Company's By-Laws, Nos. 1-2-3-4-5-6 and 7. These By-laws are open for inspection, as prescribed by the Company's Act at the Head Office of the Company, 302 Front St., Belleville, Ont., and were drawn up by Mr. Carnew, solicitor for the Company.

The former Directors, F. Knight, T. Haslip, Ira Windover, H. R. Hunt, C A. Palmer, D. Callaghan and T. E. Elliott, were confirmed in office for the balance of the year.

The Company has upwards of three hundred Stockholders, ranging in subscription from ten dollars to five hundred dollars, the majority being farmers with subscriptions of ten dollars each, as this amount entitles a farmer to full benefits of the company in both buying and selling, and from reports from other agencies of the same nature, these benefits should amount to a considerable amount on a year's business for the farmer, with his goods handled this way. Another matter which came up at this meeting was a motion put by Alex. Moore seconded by T. E. Elliott, that the Board of Directors of the Company at next regular meeting appoint a committee to wait upon the Mayor and Council and ask for the opening by the city, of a central public rest room and public lavatory for the farmers' convenience, owing to the reduced hotel accommodation and the conjestion on Saturdays at the remaining hotels.

The Directors on Monday, Oct. 23rd, appointed Mr. Alex. Moore, Mr. C. A. Palmer and T. Haslip, to act as this Committee for to interview the Mayor and Council. Mr. J. Hart, Manager, and Mr. T. E. Elliott, Asst. Mgr., were given practically a free hand at Monday's meeting of the Board of Directors, to go ahead and install a system and open up the business as soon as the details in connection with the opening could be adjusted, which should only mean a matter of about a week now.

This Company seems to be starting with bright prospects and the possibilities to what it may develop are unlimited. The main object of the Company being to stand between the farmer and the retailer on the one hand, and the manufacturer and producer on the other, through the means of a sales office to be opened in Toronto. The cost of incorporation and organization ranges around twenty-five per cent. and this seems to be a fair figure owing to the large canvass which has been made, and the taking of subscriptions, the majority in Ten Dollar amounts. Co-operation by its Shareholders should spell for this Company "Success."

THE QUINTE PRODUCE CO. Limited

offering Shares par value One Dollar each. A limited number yet to be sold. Ten Dollars entitles a Shareholder to full privileges of the Company. Everything in this Company is, as it has always been guaranteed and Company is opening up next week for business at their Premises, 302 Front St., Belleville. Subscriptions taken in amounts of Ten Dollars and upwards.

Efficient Management is all that is needed and this Company should pay fair dividends. The Company has the management required.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

ORRIN JOHNSON AT PALACE TONIGHT

Hallie Erminie Rives' great book and play, "Satan Sanderson" has been picturized by the Metro Company, and is announced as the feature photoplay offering at the Palace Theatre tonight and Thursday matinee and night. Orrin Johnson the popular stage and screen star, portrays the leading character role, and he is ably supported by a sterling cast of prominent Metro Players. In addition to the above five part offering, Rose Melville, famous on the stage through her unique and amusing portrayal of "Sis Hopkins" appears in the same character in a very amusing Salem comedy entitled, "The Physic Phenomenon Two other selected filmplays are also announced for exhibition.

SOME BABY HERE NEXT TUESDAY

Next Tuesday night at the Griffin's Opera House "Some Baby," the clever farcial comedy will be here. It is a three act play conceived for the purpose of rising the risibilities and when you see into what a perfect maze of complications an aged professor of chemistry, his daughter aged twenty, his sister on the other side of forty, the youthful suitor for the daughter's hand, a retired general of sixty, and a number of minor characters can be involved in, you will understand the reason for the laugh producing qualities atributed to it. The Elixir of Youth does it all—or rather the old professor's firm belief that he has discovered this long sought magic—that starts the action and keeps the audience on the qui vive up to the final curtain. Grace Merritt heads an excellent acting company including Carolyn Friend, Gertrude Johnson, Celeste Leslie, Dorothy Gray, Don MacMillian, Sterling Chiseldine, Homer Hunt, Sam Black and William Moore.

PEGGY HYLAND AT GRIFFIN'S TONIGHT

The picturization of Henry Arthur Jones' world famous drama, "Saints and Sinners" produced by the Famous Players Film Company, and announced as the feature offering at Griffin's Opera House, Tonight and Thursday night, will undoubtedly be considered a notable screen achievement. The great distinction and success that this powerful play has attained on the stage of every English speaking country of the globe, added to its unusual pictorial possibilities, makes this subject a unique photoplay offering. But besides these details of more than ordinary interest, added importance attaches to the production because the noted British star, Peggy Hyland, appears on the screen in the role of Letty, the central character, about whom the absorbing and thrilling plot revolves. In addition to the above five part offering, Frank Daniels appears in another amusing comedy entitled, "Kernel Nutt and Prince Tango," Pathe News will also be exhibited.

"WHEN DREAMS COME TRUE"

"When Dreams Come True" made a hit here last evening before a full house in the Griffin's Opera House. The production consists of three acts, and eighteen musical numbers, everyone of which were up to the minute. The scenery and beautiful costumes were all that could be desired for a high class attraction. The principals all work hard, and the chorus is in keeping with the rest of the show, the girls being pretty and all possessing good voices. Wm. Pruette, Jr. takes the role of Kean Hedges, the wayward son, to perfection. Beth, his dream girl is admirably taken by Miss Lorraine Lester, whose singing "Dear World" brought forth great applause from the audience. The fun-maker of the evening was Mr. Harlan Briggs, who as Hercules Strong, the great detective is exceedingly clever. He is ably assisted by Miss Connie Mac, who makes a great hit in the role of Matilda, country cousin of Kean Hedges, and has it black on white.

Miss Carmen Ercelle, made a gerat hit with her novelty violin act, and was very warmly applauded. During the third act special dancing numbers were staged by various members of the company, which were also greeted with enthusiasm.

Taken all through the company is an up-to-date one, being clean and devoid of anything in word or action that is disagreeable.

"The White Flour Pinch"—have you felt it? With the advancing price of wheat "the seven-cent loaf is doomed," say the bakers. In its place we have the eight-cent loaf—in many cities only the sixteen-cent loaf. A loaf of white flour bread is not a complete ration. However wholesome and pure, it does not supply all the proteids the human body needs. In Shredded Wheat Biscuit you have all the body-building nutriment in the whole wheat grain prepared in a digestible form. It is always the same price, always the same high quality. Eat it for breakfast with milk or cream or with fruits.

How to Make a Good Hair Tonic at Home

If you have been using hair tonics purchased readymade at the drug stores you can probably save some money and get a great deal better results by using the following recipe which has been remarkably successful in stopping loss of hair and making new hair grow on bald and thin spots. Anyone can easily make it at home. Simply mix 2oz. of Lavona De Composee with 6 oz. of pure bay rum and then add one-half drachm of menthol crystals and a little perfume if desired. The preparation should be well shaken and then allowed to stand a few hours before using. All these ingredients can be obtained from any well stocked drug store. In applying be sure to not merely wet the hair but rub the tonic right into the scalp as its ability to grow new hair depends entirely upon its nourishment being absorbed by your hair roots. This preparation has been widely used for years and is entirely harmless and will not make the hair greasy or sticky. Ladies should be careful not to apply to face or where hair is not desired. # Cut This Out

OLD ENGLISH RECIPE FOR CATARRHAL DEAFNESS AND HEAD NOISES

If you know someone who is troubled with head noises, or Catarrhal Deafness, cut out this formula, and hand it to them, and you will have been the means of saving some poor sufferer perhaps from total deafness. Recent experiments have proved conclusively that Catarrhal Deafness, head noises, etc., were the direct cause of constitutional disease, and that salves, sprays, inhalers, etc., merely temporize with the complaint and seldom, if ever, effect a permanent cure. This being so, much time and money has been spent of late by a noted specialist in perfecting a pure, gentle, yet effective tonic that would quickly dispel all traces of the catarrhal poison from the system. The effective prescription which was eventually formulated, and which has aroused the belief that deafness will soon be extinct, is given below in understandable form, so that any one can treat themselves in their own home at little expense.

Secure from your druggist 1 oz. Parmint (Double Strength), about 75c. worth. Take this home and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and 4 oz. of granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day.

The first dose should begin to relieve the distressing head noises, headache, dullness, cloudy thinking, etc., while the hearing rapidly returns as the system is invigorated by the tonic action of the treatment. Loss of smell and mucus dropping in the back of the throat, are other symptoms that show the presence of cartarrhal poison, and which are often entirely overcome by this efficacious treatment. Nearly ninety per cent. of all ear troubles are directly caused by catarrh; therefore, there must be many people whose hearing can be restored by this simple home treatment.

Every person who is troubled with head noises, catarrhal deafness, or catarrh in any form, should give this prescription a trial.

Important Note: In ordering Parmint always specify that you want double strength. Your druggist has it or he can easily get it for you. If not send 75c. to the International Laboratories, 74 St. Antoine St., Montreal, Que., Can., and they will supply you. In sending money use postal note or money order.

Mr. Will Bonisteel is on the sick list and his many friends hope to see him about soon.

Mr. Albert Finkle is able to move about after his severe fall.

Anniversary services were conducted at Aiken's Church on Sunday. The Rev. Mr. Knox had charge.

Memorial services for the late David Parks, who was killed Somewhere in France, on October 11th, will be held under the auspices of the Orange Lodge, at White Church, Bayside, on Sunday afternoon Oct. 29th. The Rev. Clarke, Chaplain of the 235th Battalion wil conduct the services.

A very pleasant evening was spent at the home of Mr. Russell Lott, when about 50 of the friends and neighbors gathered to spend a social hour with the family before they leave for their new home in Hamilton. Mr. John Hess, was elected chairman and short addresses were made by Messrs. Geo. Heagle, Jas. Donaldson, Jas. Harry, Geo. Saylor, Dr. Marvin, and others, after which an address was read by Mrs. J. Kelly, and Miss Annie Lott was presented with a gold friendship bracelet, to Buleuhall, a gold necklace and locket, to Burton a gold tie pin, and cuff links and to Mr. Lott a gold watch fob. They were greatly taken by surprise, and Mr. Lott and Miss Annie, in a touching manner thanked their many, friends for the pretty gifts and were sorry to leave so kind a people.

...THIS IS THE 818TH DAY THE BRITISH EMPIRE HAS BEEN AT WAR WITH GERMANY.

ACHBISHOP BELIVEAU ON THE WAR PATH.

A telegram of the 20th inst., from Montreal informs the public that

"It now looks as if this Province will take up the Manitoba school question, which at least ought to be good for a couple of years' agitation. This theory is advanced after a speech delivered at Quebec by Mgr. Beliveau, Archbishop of St. Boniface, who said he did not want to sound a sad note, but the fact remained that a whirlwind had passed over his province, sweeping away everything that was dear to them. 'Our faith,' he said, 'is not probab'y threatened immediately, although it is practically. It will be our duty to defend it, for we cannot be traitors to our faith. We will defend our rights to the end and to death if necessary."

The Archbishop may rest in peace, Sir Wilfrid will not raise the war cry in defence of the Archbishop's fear of "his faith" being attacked, so long as the Manitoba Government is in the hands of and controlled by the Liberal party. If the Archbishop wants the support and assistance of Sir Wilfrid and his Quebec friends, he had better assist in turning out of office the Noris Government, for just so long as Noris rules, Sir Wilfrid will be dumb. His action on the School question as it effected his grace's people, in Manitoba, ought to have taught him this fact.

The Greenway Liberal Government abolished the French language, and repealed the Separate School privileges his people enjoyed, under the constitution, and by the Norquay Government. True Sir Wilfrid took Greenway to his bossom, and patched up a school system infinitely more objectionable to all parties than Separate Schools pure and simple. The Roblin Government enacted some amendments, making the law less objectionable to the French and other Separate Scholists, and more workable. The Liberals came into power in that Province, and placed upon the statute book a law repealing all rights and priviledges enjoyed by the French so far as their language was concerned, and whatever rights were enjoyed by the Archbishop's flock.

What next? The other day was to be seen at a Liberal organization meeting held in London, Ontario, for the purpose of preparing for the supposed near approach of a Dominion election, Sir Wilfrid Laurier and the Premier of the Liberal Government of Manitoba, who was the father of that which the Archbishop declared was an attack upon "His Faith" "which "should be fought to the end, and "to death if necessary" upon the same platform, politically, in loving embrace. Not a word fell from the lips of Sir Wilfrid about Manitoba or abolishing bi-lingual schools in the Province of which his friend and supporter, Mr. Noris is Premier. While in the Province of Quebec, when addressing his compatriots, he grew eloquent in condemnation of the Ontario Government for an assumed wrong done to the French race. Why? Ontario has a Conservative Government and Manitoba a Liberal Government.

It were well for the Archbishop to ask himself, whether disingenuous political chalatanism could be carried further by any leader of a political party.

LIBERALISM IN SASKATCHEWAN

An upheaval in impure politics in the West, has caused a remodeling of the Saskatchewan Government. True the late Premier, the Hon. Walter Scott, has been compelled to retire on account of failing health. There can be no doubt that the stealings which have been practiced by Government contractors and levying of contributions upon liquor men to and in certain legislations upon the prohibition question from the speaker of the Legislature down to the less important members of Parliament, had not a little to do with the retirement of the premier, who, with failing health, rendered it impossible for him to cope with the political dangers that beset him. From what transpired and was proved in court, during the investigations instituted by a Conservative member of the Legislature, it is somewhat of a stretch of imagination to suppose he, the Premier, had not at least some knowledge of what was going on in his camp. Whether or not he is now out of the fray, the future of the Saskatchewan Liberal party. and Government has fallen into the hands of others.

The general opinion was that the Hon Mr. J. A. Calder, who held the post of minister of railways, and highways in the Scott Government, and frequently acted as premier, would be advanced. It was in his department, however, that some of the lately exposed frauds were perpetrated, and it was probably considered that a new man would have a better chance of pulling the party through the difficulties into which it has fallen, which difficulties are somewhat numerous and very awkward.

On looking at the records of court of investigation, it will be found that one member of the Legislature who supported the Scott Government, is in prison sentenced to twenty years for frauds by which the Province was robbed, and several under a cloud of suspicion caused by an investigation by a royal commission. A number of public officers have been found guilty of fraud. The speaker of the Legislature has resigned because he was accused of soliciting and improperly securing money for election funds. It is long since a party in power has received such a battering.

Under this state of affairs, it was thought unadvisable to set Mr. Calder aside and seek a leader from some other quarter. And the choice fell upon Mr. Martin, who had had eight years' experience in the House of Commons, and has a fair reputation for ability and honesty in public affairs. His task will not be a light one. In the election of a new Legislature, which must soon take place, his chances of success, if the electors of Saskatchewan are honest, and desire to punish public thieving, as did Manitoba, should be nil.

Sir Henry Dalziel has been asking questions in the British House of Commons about the quantity of Newfoundland iron ore shipped to Germany and Holland before the war. He would add to the spread of knowledge on the matter involved if he would also ask questions in the same place about the quantities of coal, copper, cotton and other materials now used in war shipped from the United Kingdom to Germany and Holland during the time the iron ore was going over the sea.

Municipal Government in Montreal show that in 1915 and 1916, there were deficits between income and outgo for administrative work, etc. In 1915 it was some $400,000. For 1916 it is $2,000,000. Money had to be borrowed to make good the deficiencies, and a special tax imposed to meet the interest, and sinking fund charge. There is nothing like free institutions.

The loss by the fires in Northern Ontario during the past summer is put by the Provincial Fire Marshal at $2,134,000. The insurance was some $1,045,000. It takes many men working many years to accumulate the values that were wiped out.

Hon. Mr. Crothers says the cost of living in Canada has gone up only seventeen per cent. That's poor comfort for the frugal housewife who has been worrying a good deal more than seventeen per cent.

In Oklahoma, U.S., bandits held up a train, murdering two of the crew. It is not long since desperadoes committed a similar act in the eastern section of the country.

AVIATION COURTESIES

Canadian Writer Describes Amenities of Warfare in the Air.

A well-known Canadian journalist describes a remarkable air duel which he witnessed between a British and a German flying man, in which the former was the victor. "Our aviator came to earth immediately after bringing down the German, he says, "and instantly ran over to the latter's wrecked machine, whose pilot was stone-dead. He was a giant of a man, and was evidently someone of means, for he wore a really beautiful fur coat, and on his hands were diamond and other rings which must have been of great value.

"A little to my surprise, the British airman proceeded to strip the dead man of his coat, and then to remove his rings and other jewellery, which he packed into a sort of tin canister. Just as he had finished, an officer of the corps came up and inquired: 'Got everything?' 'Yes,' replied the flyer. And the officer said, 'Right-o! Off with you.' Then, to my further surprise," adds the Canadian, "our aviator put the tin canister on his machine, and, hardly pausing a minute, flew straight over the German lines, keeping so low that he would have been an easy target even for a rifle, but waving his handkerchief as he went. When he was over the Huns he dropped the canister, then wheeled and flew slowly back, while a German party ran out to pick up the utensil. I'm told that a courtesy of this kind nearly always follows the bringing down of a pilot on either side, and that the airman who conveys back his opponent's property flies in a certain fashion that reveals the nature of his errand."

Few Troops This Winter.

At the rate at which battalions are now being sent overseas there will not be more than about sixty thousand Canadian troops left in Canada at the beginning of winter, although this number will, of course, be considerably augmented as recruiting goes on. Last winter more than 100,000 troops were quartered in November and December in the various centres throughout the Dominion. By the beginning of November there will be considerably more than this number in training in England, where climatic conditions are considered better for effective battalion and brigade training during the winter months. In addition to this reason for sending the troops overseas this fall, there is the further reason that they will then be immediately available in the spring for movement to the front for what it is hoped will be the final big offensive.

It is probable that a number of the towns throughout the Dominion which benefited from having military units quartered there during last winter will this year be without troops, as the billeting and small unit system has been abandoned. Most of the troops will be concentrated in a few large centres.

At Toronto the troops will be again quartered at the Exhibition grounds, and work is now being begun towards getting the buildings ready for them. The proposal to keep battalions at Camp Borden during the winter in specially constructed huts has been abandoned, as being unwise in view of recruiting conditions.

The Pribilof Herd.

The Pribilof South Sea Seal Herd at the end of the breeding season of 1915 contained about a third of a million animals of both sexes and all ages, or about 40,000 more than last year. The pups born this year numbered 103,526. The rapid increase in this herd is due to the international agreement, which has suspended the killing of seals in the Pribilof Islands, except a small number of males killed annually for food by the natives.

Cookery Curiosities.

Old English cookery was astonishingly lavish. Yorkshire cooks, for instance, seemed to fling about dozens of eggs and pints of cream. A favorite pie to send to one's friends at Christmas was made like this: Take a turkey and bone it; take a goose and bone it, and so on with a chicken, a pheasant, a partridge, a pigeon, and a lark; then put the lark in the pigeon, the pigeon in the partridge, the partridge in the pheasant, the pheasant in the chicken, the chicken in the goose, and the goose in the turkey. The turkey should then be placed in a dish with a couple of hares to fill up the crevices, and six pounds of fresh butter, covered and cooked. The recipe said this was "an agreeable pie to eat cold."

Tuberculosis Rapidly Increasing Among Children of Belgium and Northern France.

More Food Urgently Needed to Keep up Their Strength

An interview with Mr. W. L. Honnold, American Director of the Belgian Relief Commission, brings to light a new danger threatening the population of the territory occupied by Germany.

Mr. Honnold reports that about 5,000,000 wholly or partially destitute people, who have been dependent on the Commission, generally show diminished vitality. The effects are most apparent among the older children, particularly those in the adolescent stage. Among these there is an alarming increase of tuberculosis, due to the lower power of resistance consequent on an inadequate diet.

To overcome this serious danger, the Commission appeals for extra contributions so that a special meal can be served every day in the schools. Efforts are also being made to provide as far as possible for children outside the schools.

This can only be done—Belgium's children can only be saved—if every one of us who can possibly do so will give something toward the Fund. Whatever you can afford, send your subscription weekly, monthly or in one lump sum to Local or Provincial Committees, or

THE SCOPE OF THE KINGDOM

(By Rev. A. M. Hubly.)

"And great multitudes came unto Him, having with them those that were lame, blind, dumb, maimed, and many others, and cast them down at Jesus' feet; and He healed them."—Matt. xv.; 30.

At the feet of the World's Redeemer, there is a penacea for all human ills, and a cure for every malady.

Our text presents a picture of a scene which appeals most forcibly to our better nature.

Who is there that would not like to be a helper in the good work, presented by this sacred historic record?

What could bring a feeling of satisfaction to one, like bringing fellow beings, suffering from various disabilities, to a place, and means of healing and restoration?

P. B. Power has said: "These lame, blind and maimed, and many others, cast down at Jesus' feet, and lying there remind us, that our Lord is a well defined centre, of an undefined circumference."

These words suggest to us the unique idea of Christ as Sun of Righteousness risen with healing in His wings.

As the shining ruler of the day, is the centre of the solar system, without which a nature would return to chaotic darkness, desolation and death; So Christ is the centre and source of all spiritual light and life.

"In Him was life, and the life was the light of men."

The Christian religion is a system of life, of which Jesus Christ is the author and finisher.

It is a divinely ordered system of religion, and its purpose is, the redemption of mankind from all unholiness, and therefore all unhappiness; and where effectual, it gives, by thought, word, and deed, the expression of a redeemed life.

This is manifested to those who profit by appropriating its spiritual blessing and expending the soul energy it supplies, as its doctrines direct.

The mission of the Christian religion, is to centre about Christ, and in the reflection of His light, point sinners to Him, and cry: "Behold the Lamb of God which taketh away the sin of the world"; and also to bring to Him all who are too impotent to bring themselves.

Every ray of spiritual light streams from, and converge to Him.

Did you ever walk along the shore of some placid bay, or lake, as the light of a well-rounded moon streamed from above the hills on the farther side?

If so, you have likely observed, that wherever your feet pressed the margin of the water, they formed one extremity of a line of light, the other extremity being the moon itself.

So it is with all who meet the conditions of the Christian religion: their path is the way of light streaming from the face of Him who leads them beside the still waters.

"Thy word," says the Psalmist, "is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path."

Yea! of all true religion, Christ is the centre, the sun and the substence.

All soul-light comes from Him and leads back to Him, as the rays of the moon stream hither and back across the waters.

He is still in the midst of those who gather in His name!

Such gathering, wherever it may be, and by whatever name, it may be called, constitutes His Church.

With Him in the centre there are beams of light, and fountains of life.

Where He is not, darkness and death reigns.

If from erroneous preconceptions, indulged ignorance, or wilful perversity, men refuse to hear and heed the voice of truth, by the witnesses which God hath appointed, it is obivous that the light may shine, in darkness unperceived, and death triumph, where life stands ready to deliver.

"If the light," said Jesus, "that is in thee be darkness, how great is that darkness!"

But, let us return to our text.

"Great multitudes came unto Him."

Those that came, let us hope, came thankful that they were able to embrace so great a privilege.

They came to Him, no doubt, because of what they had heard and seen of Him.

Many of them mayehave personally felt His power, and so came in the experience of a living active faith.

They could say to their unbelieving neighbors still in the "gall of bitterness and the bonds of iniquity."—"O taste and see that the Lord is good."

It is possible to bear the name of Christian, and by the deceptiveness of an unregenerate heart, say "peace, peace, where there is no peace."

To be blind, and deaf, and dumb, concerning the glory of a Christological environment, is to be, also, lame and maimed, and so, unfit for service in the higher life.

Those, who knew the great healer and teacher, not only came to Him themselves as opportunity was given them, but they brought others also.

The "Lame, blind, dumb, maimed," could not come of themselves.

They needed the help of their friends, who could walk, and see, and speak, and hear.

How mutually blessed were both parties! the saved! and the unsaved! when both alike are found "at the feet of Jesus: "The only place of safety, when sin, disease and death stocks abroad.

"Great multitudes."

The number is indefinite.

We are glad not to know how many constituted the great multitudes; that we may more strongly believe that the whole world may find blessings at the feet of our adorable Master.

Here is the place for helpless misery! Yours, and mine, and all that we can have the privilege of bringing.

"He healed them."

"He is the same, yesterday today and forever."

"O, that sin-cursed, war-scourged Europe, with its gaping, bleeding wounds could be brought to the feet of "The World's Redeemer!"

Our ears can almost hear His pleading in the sobs and sighing of the wounded, the dying and the broken hearted bereaved ones in our Canadian homes—"Why should ye be stricken any more? Ye will reovlt more and more the whole head is sick; and the whole heart faint.

From the sole of the foot even unto the head there is no soundness in it; but wounds, and bruises and putrifying sores; they have not been closed, neither bound up, neither mollified with ointment.

Your country is desolate, your cities are burned with fire; your land, strangers devour it in your presence, and it is desolate as overthrown by strangers."

The whole world still lies in sin, evil exists to an extent which none, but God in His omniscence, can fully comprehend.

Unrighteousness holds away, defiling the heart, and darkening the understandings of men.

It trails its loathsome spawn, along the footprints of passing generations for the further defilement of generations following.

Sin has taken up its abode in all places, and seems to have stampt its odious character upon everything. Its intensity, and virulence, producing epidemics of evil are beyond description.

Its bateful effects upon the race, are but feebly spoken, in sighes of breaking hearts, and by "Lamentations' mourning, and woe!"

It has polluted the waters of life, politic, commercial, industrial, military, civil, social and religions.

Men of all classes, and in every department of life have drunk of its poison.

Come! Let us draw near to the Great Healer, and in the reflected "light of life," with open eyes, look out over the writhing sea of humanity, and behold the awful effects of the serpent's bite!

So shall we test the purity of our own blood, and the health of our own soul by our desire to bring the suffering world to the "Feet of Jesus," for His cleansing word and healing touch.

In the light of holiness, we shall see, as it can be seen in no other light, "wickedness in high places."

There, may be seen, "sin and uncleanness," reveling in triumph of plots worthy of the master of all iniquity.

There, men, in places of trust, will be seen and known in their true character.

In the light of the Master's countenance we shall see the difference between the men who serve in "Lowliness of mind" for the good of all, and men "vainly puffed up by their fleshly minds," prostituting the light which is in them, to works of darkness: selfishness and cunning crime.

As we gather about the feet of Jesus, we shall see the Christian religion in its true light; we shall see it as the most glorious thing upon earth.

But we shall also see, that the greatest crimes known among men have been perpetrated in its name, not to its disparagement, but as witnessing to the subtile, ingenius power of sin to usurp and prostitute.

The divinest idea of the brotherhood of love, is that of the Christian Church; but the most diabolical, and repulsive exhibitions of human depravity, with graphic illustrations of the wickedness, to which men will resort, in the name of religion, when deceived, by the old serpent, into thinking they have been given the divine right to pass judgment upon, condemn, and execute their fellows, have made the church, so called, a conglomeration of good and evil.

This, deceiving, usurping spirit, has put "darkness for light, and light for darkness."

It has resorted to hatred and murder, between the temple and the altar; it has mingled the cup of fornication with the cup of cleansing, and has prostituted the nominal representations of the Holy One!

And so, what men have called "the Church," has been the "habitation of devils and the hold of every foul spirit."

Darkness has brooded over God-sent evangelism, where the light of truth should have radiated heart and minds.

In view of all this we wonder why, that reason does not lead greater multitudes to seek the cleansing, healing, quickening power of soul life at the feet of the world's Redeemer.

That it does not do so, only proves the prevelence of that moral pollution, which is the cause of spiritual blindness, deafness, dumbness, lameness and other soul infirmities, from which deliverance is impossible, away from Him, whose hand heals the leper, and whose word quickens the dead.

The mission of those who are "quickened together with Christ," which constitutes His Church, against which the gates of hell shall not prevail, is to make His ministrations of grace meet the spiritual needs of the largest number possible.

We must not be in doubt as to the body of the Church of which Christ is the Head.

It consists of all who have been brought into living union with Him, and who breathe the life breath of Heaven, which is love and prayer.

They may be found in every branch of the visible Church; but wherever they are found, and by whatever name they are called among men, they have the spirit of their Master and Lord. "For if ye have not the spirit of Christ, ye are none of His."

This, is the spirit then, for both minister and people: "Even the Son of Man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give His life a ransome for many."

The members of Christ's invisible Holy Churen, are exercised, in the spirit of love, to keep each other in close fellowship with Him, and in living communion with God the Father, through Him.

Their mission on earth, is to extend His kingdom, disseminate His word, and to bring the spiritually impotent to Him, that He may heal their infirmaties, quicken their spiritual sensibilities and restore them to the soul-strengthening fatness of "The Father's House."

Two Cases of Eczema and How They Were Cured

Further Proof that Dr. Chase's Ointment is a Positive Cure for Chronic Eczema

If you read these letters you will find that Dr. Chase's Ointment in not to be classed among ordinary salves and ointments.

By actually curing itching, stinging eczema in many thousands of cases it has stood the most severe test to which any ointment can be put.

Mr. J. Brice, Temperance road, Parry Sound, Ont., writes: "Just a line to praise Dr. Chase's Ointment for what it has done for my wife. She had been suffering from eczema in her head for two years, and has spent no end of money with doctors and for ointments, which did her no good. She had about given up hope of ever being cured, when someone told her to try Dr. Chase's Ointment. By the use of this ointment the trouble has left her entirely, so we have unbounded faith in it. I have told several people about the Ointment."

Mrs. W. G. Dowden, Greenspond, Bonavista Bay, Nfld., writes: "I suffered with eczema on my hands, and for eighteen months was so bad that I could not use a needle to sew or do anything. I could scarcely dress myself. Though I had lots of salves from doctors, I could never get much benefit from them. Then I sent for a sample of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and found it very different in action. It was not long before my hands began to heal, and four 60c boxes made them well. I cannot praise Dr. Chase's Ointment too highly, and frequently give some to the others and get them using it, for I know that it will cure."

In the home Dr. Chase's Ointment is of almost daily usefulness, for by relieving chafing and irritation of the skin it prevents eczema and similar itching skin diseases. Applied to all cuts and wounds, it prevents blood poisoning and heals the skin. Dr. Chase's Ointment 60 cents a box, all dealers or Edmanson, Bates and Co., Ltd., Toronto.

CANADIANS SOLVE THE HIDDEN MYSTERY OF REGINA TRENCH

Eyewitness Tells of Successful Action on Saturday Last—Tragic Death of Canon Scotts Son—Avenged by His Men

OTTAWA, Oct. 26.—Special. — Lieut.-General Sir Sam Hughes has received the following report from the Canadian War Records Office:

"Canadian Corps Headquarters in France, Oct. 22 (via London, Oct. 25). —The mystery of the Regina trench is solved. The resistance of the Germans at this point has been finally broken, and the British are now in possession of a line to which the enemy attached considerable tactical importance. Three times the Canadians had attacked this position. Each time they had successfully broken into the trenches and had inflicted heavy losses upon the enemy, but each time strong hostile counter-attacks had driven them out again.

In the big advance of October 21, which carried the British line forward on a frontage of 5,000 yards and to an average depth of 500 yards, the Canadians, with other troops, advanced to the attack of Regina trench. They were successful.

In the general assault the task of the Canadians was a minor but a very important one. Their actual objective was only a length of 600 yards of the Regina trench immediately to the north of the village of Courcelette. But this formed the right flank of the attack, and the Canadian troops were obliged not only to secure their proper objective, but also to connect the right of the captured position with their original line in such a manner as to make a defensive flank to the east.

For this purpose troops from western Canada and Montreal were employed. An Ontario battalion was also to advance in close support.

During the night of October 20-21 the assaulting troops took up their position.

Shortly before noon the enemy, suspecting perhaps the imminence of an attack, began a heavy artillery fire upon our front lines. About noon our own guns opened with the full fury of their massed batteries. The concentration was terrific, and the hail of heavy shells and shrapnel descended with deadly force and accuracy.

The infantry advance began. The men clambered out of their trenches, and in long lines dashed forward close under the barrage, advancing as rapidly as the state of the ground would permit. In ten minutes the 500 yards of open ground had been crossed and Regina trench was ours.

On the right a tragic incident for a moment threatened the success of the assault. Lieut. Scott, son of Canon Scott of Quebec, was advancing at the head of his men and was directing their progress in accordance with the artillery barrage. As the men threw themselves down to await the momentary lift of the guns Lieut. Scott was shot and instantly killed. Then with a fierce, impetuous rush which nothing could arrest they dashed for the German trench, eager to avenge the death of their gallant young officer.

Hospital Burned Many Fatalities

St. Elizabeth Hospital at Farnham Que., Gutted by Fire—Children Among Injured

Canadian Press Special.

FARNHAM, Que., Oct. 26.—St. Elizabeth Hospital, with its laundry, was destroyed by fire last evening. Five people are known to have perished in the flames; fifteen others are not accounted for, and twenty-five children were badly injured by jumping to the stone pavement from the third storey windows.

The majority of three hundred and fifty odd inmates were in the sleeping quarters on the third floor, when the fire, which was caused by a defective chimney, was discovered. The fire escapes proved defective and nearly all those saved escaped by jumping from windows.

Several adjacent buildings were badly damaged by smoke and water.

LATER

FARNHAM, Que., Oct. 26.—It is now stated that at least six adults and five children perished in the fire which destroyed St. Elizabeth Hospital last night. Ruins are still blazing, and it is impossible to begin a search for those missing, numbering from fifteen to twenty-five. The institution, which is managed by Grey nuns, is a combined hospital and school for children.

New Industry For Trenton

United States Concern Will Establish Factory in the Town

TRENTON, Oct. 24.—A moving picture studio company, known as the Canadian National Features, Limited, have made arrangements to erect a large three storey building in one of Trenton's parks, which will be the first of its kind in Canada. Mr. Joseph Shea, of Toronto, is connected with the enterprise.

The Board of Education have decided to erect a new High School in east Trenton to cost $3,600.

The Benedict Company, manufacturers of silver plated ware of Syracuse, N.Y., are fitting up the factory lately occupied by Lloyd and Sons, and will manufacture here for their Canadian trade.

Writ Against Kingston City

Children's Aid Society Suing For $541—Claim This Amount For Caring For Wards of City

KINGSTON, Oct. 25.—The Children's Aid Society has had issued a writ against the corporation of Kingston, claiming $541 for the care of fifteen wards of the city by the Orphans' and Infants' Homes. The action is laid under the Children's Protection Act for the payment of the above amount due, it is claimed, for the maintenance and support of certain children committed to the Society's care, as guardians, under orders made by the judge in pursuance of the said act, whereby the defendants were ordered to pay the sum of $2 per week for the maintenance of each of such children.

The plaintiffs also ask for a mandatory order requiring that the defendants do proceed forthwith and complete, without delay, the erection of a shelter for the wards of the plaintiffs, pursuant to the statute in that behalf.

INFANTILE PARALYSIS GERM IS DISCOVERED

It is Believed to Enter Body Through Tonsils and Throat

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—Three pathologists working in the laboratories of the Mayo Foundation and the New York Hospital apparently have solved the mystery of the origin of infantile paralysis and the means by which the infection enters the human organism. They believe that it is caused by a germ of sufficient size to be visible under the microscope and to be accorded a classification among the different families of bacteria. It enters the body through the tonsils and throat.

PETROGRAD, Oct. 27.—The War Office announces the Russian troops in the wooded Carpathians are successfully withstanding Teutonic assaults. On the Transylvanian front the Roumanians have stopped the progress of superior Teutonic forces.

ADDRESSES GOVERNNENT

Mr. J. W. Johnson, M. P. P., Before Hydro Commission in Behalf of Municipal Taxes

Along with the municipal delegates who waited upon the Government on Tuesday last, with reference to the threatened loss of revenue by the municipalities, which the taking over by the Hydro-Electric commission of the Seymour Power Company's plants would likely involve, were a number of members of the Legislature from the districts affected, West Hastings being represented by its member, Mr. J. W. Johnson, who was requested by the chairman of the association of municipalities, to address the Government, which was represented by the Prime Minister, Hon. W. H. Hearst, Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Minister of Lands, Forest and Mines, Hon. T. H. McGarry, Provincial Treasurer, Hon. I. B. Lucas, Attorney General, and Hon. Dr. Pyne, Minister of Education. Following is a summary of Mr. Johnson's speech:

He said when the Government became the owners of the Seymour Power Company's plants, the purchase did not involve a mere acquisition of lands for tenements; it was the purchase of a great manufacturing business, which had obligations as well as assets to be assumed by the purchaser. Among these obligation were the taxes that the municipalities had been receiving yearly from the Company on their numerous plants. These obligations constituted a prescriptive right through reciprocal advantages of long standing with the municipalities. Not only was there the prescriptive right, but an equity existed, clear and well defined. For these reasons he asked the Government to do justice to the municipalities by granting the reasonable request now presented to them.

He desired to express the feeling of satisfaction that exists throughout the eastern portion of Ontario in the assurance that very soon it will be as well served in the matter of electric power, heat and light as is the western portion; following which there will occur here as fine a development and extension of manufacturing industries as the western parts have witnessed. We have as great sources from which to draw the electric power as the west has in the Niagara river; we possess the Ottawa river, the Long Sault rapids of the River St. Lawrence and the splendid dams on on the River Trent as well as the possibilities in many minor streams. The people in the East are as keen in purpose, as capable and as enterprising, as our fellow citizens in the West. Given like conditions, we will, in friendly rivalry, equal, if not surpass, their fine achievements. Mr. Johnson heartily thanked the Government for their manifestation of good will and their evident sympathy with the claims presented.

The Prime Minister promised that the matter would receive the prompt attention of the Government, and it was quite manifest to the delegates that their mission would prove successful.

PLOTTERS USE THE TORCH

Attempt to Burn Military Riding School in Kingston

KINGSTON, Oct. 25.—What is believed to have been a plot to burn down the riding school in Wellington street, was discovered by Sergt.-Major Bramah. A pile of shavings was placed against the rear of the building and lighted, but went out after burning through four feet of the wall.

During the summer the building suffered much damage, windows being broken, and bottles of medicine in the dispensary of Lt.-Col. William Morgan, and scores of electric light globes were smashed.

Why Sub Crossed From Fatherland To United States

To Perfect a Working Agreement as to The Scope Permitted to U-Boat Activities

NEW YORK, Oct. 25—The Providence Journal says:

"The Providence Journal has information, secured direct from German Embassy sources, which conclusively settles the controversy as to real reasons why the German submarine U-53 crossed the Atlantic and entered Newport harbor.

"The entire scheme was originated and supervised by Captain Karl Boy-Ed, late naval attache to the United States, where he has directed every move that has been made, by German submarines off the coast of the United States.

"The first and most important reason for the coming of the U-53 was to establish practically working agreement with the United States government as to the scope permitted to submarine activities in our waters and the extent to which the present Administration was prepared to recognize without protest the right of U-boats to sink merchant ships within a short radius of our coast.

"The rumor that the U-53 was accompanied to American waters by other submarines is true. The journal is able to state positively that her consorts were the U.49, commanded by Captain L. Michaelis, and the U-61 in charge of Lieut.-commander G. Griefen. The journal's information is that all these three submarines are still in territory adjacent to the American coast, and that the belief that they have returned to Germany is erroneous."

Annual Passes on Grand Trunk

To Employes as Reward For Meritorious or Long Service

MONTREAL, Oct. 25—In accordance with the policy of the Grand Trunk Railway to reward faithful services rendered by the employees, beginning January, "meritorious or long service annual passes" will be issued to the workers of the company.

To employees who have been continuously in the service for a period of not less than fifteen years the company will issue annual passes for themselves, and if marked, to include their wives, good over the Eastern, Ontario or Western lines according to respective territory on which they are employed. Employees who have been in the service for twenty years will receive passes for themselves and wives good over the entire system.

Head office employees continuously in the service of the company for fifteen years will receive these annual passes good over the whole system for themselves, and, if married, to include their wives. Employees on the pension or superanuation funds will be considered, as regards length of service, the same as employees and will be accorded the same privileges. Female employees will be treated the same as male employees, except that passes will be good for themselves only.

Stefansson Works on Artic Survey

Telegram From Explorer is Picked up by Whaling Vessel—Names Cape After Murray

The first direct word from V. Stefansson, the Canadian explorer, since he left to explore the new land he has discovered in the Beaufort Sea, has been received by the Government at Ottawa.

Steffanson, on May 5, the date of the telegram received by the Naval Service Department, was at Cape Murray, latitude 78, longitude 116. This is the location of the land reported by Stefansson and on all known maps is not marked. Cape Murray, it is supposed, is a promintory on this new Canadian territory. It is thought that Steffansson has named the cape from Murray, a Scotch scientist, who perished in the wreck of the ill-fater Karluk, his first vessel.

At that date all the party were well except Stefansson himself who was laid up with a badly strained ankle. He was optimistic over the prospects of his expedition, and reported he had already started a survey of the new land.

The telegrams were sent from San Francisco, having been brought down from the far north by the steamer Herman, a trading and whaling vessel owned by Liebes & Co., of San Francisco. The steamer in the course of its whaling expedition called at Kellet on Bank's Land, Stefansson's base, where they found despatches and letters the explorer had sent south with the hope they would be picked up by some ship.

TO PLACE A TABLET IN THE COURT HOUSE

In Memory of The Late Major Mowat—Kingston Bar Passes Resolution

KINGSTON, Oct., 25—A meeting of the members of the Kingston Bar was held at the Master's Office to pass a resolution of sympathy to the family of Major John McDonald Mowat, lately killed in France.

A resolution of sympathy was adopted, and the secretary asked to send a copy of the same to the members of the family of the deceased.

It was decided to place a tablet in the Court House to his memory.

ASK PRINT PAPER INQUIRY

Milwaukee Master Printers Call For a Federal Investigation

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct.25—Three Milwaukee Associations of printers, through Congressmen Cary and Stafford, will urge a Federal investigation of the price for print paper.

"An investigation made by a committee from the North Side Master Printers' Association into the conditions of the paper manufacturing industry in Wisconsin revealed that the prevailing prices were entirely out of proportion of the cost of production," said F. R. Wallke, Vice-President, "and conditions warrant a thorough investigation."

At the meeting of master printers a committee was appointed to confer with the Congressmen relative to relieving the situation, possibly by national legislation.

The Milwaukee Typoheac will hold a special meeting in a week to take similar action.

JOFFRE'S FORCES HOLD ALL GAINS ON VERDUN TAKE 4,500 PRISONERS

Germans Make Five Counter Attacks, But are Repulsed With Heavy Loss—New Thrust Affects Plans of Teuton Leaders in The East

LONDON, Oct. 26—Special.—In the face of five desperate counter-blows the French have maintained all the ground won in yesterday's smashing drive north of Verdun. The last three of these assaults followed one another in rapid succession. They were carried out by forces greatly strengthened by reinforcements from other fronts, but, like the less powerful blows preceding them, they failed utterly before the sturdy defence of the French troops. The number of prisoners taken by the French now exceeds 4,500.

There is no doubt that the master stroke by which Nivelle, Petain and Mangin set at naught in one day the costly efforts of the Crown Prince during two months has greatly complicated Hindenburg's plans. The Verdun and Roumanian fronts, though widely separated, are interdependent from a military standpoint. The German forces on the Meuse were weakened to meet the threat on the Somme; the lines on the Somme were stripped to give Falkenhayn a powerful army in Transylvania. Neither the latest allied successes on the Somme nor the French stroke at Verdun would have been possible had not the Roumanian offensive made demands upon the forces in the west.

It is not too much to expect, critics here say, that the allied armies on the Somme and at Verdun will continue to advance, while the forces of the Central powers in the Balkans will add to their successes against Roumania.

Within The Military Circle

What is Transpiring Among the Soldier Boys Now in Belleville

All articles and notes under thishead are passed by the commanding officer of the 235th Regiment and authentic in every particular.

Twelve riding horses for the 235th Battalion arrived in the city from Kingston yesterday.

Col. Scobell and officers of the 235th Battalion, have taken up their new mess quarters on Queen Street.

Capt. W. L. McDonald, appeared in battalion orders to day as musketry instructor of the 235th

Sergt. S. Dose, D. C. M. the Gurkha hero of the 235th Battalion is confined to the local hospital on account of illness

Two men from this vicinity have signed up with the 235th Battalion, They were examined and attested today.

A route march, in which they will visit all the towns and villages within a radius of fifteen miles, is to be carried out by the 235th Battalion in the near future.

Judging by the preliminary work of the recruiting officers of the 235th Battalion, there should be little difficulty in raising at least one company of men from this city and vicinity.

Mrs. Parsons a member of the recruiting staff of the 235th Battalion was the chief speaker at a recruiting meeting held in Trenton last evening. The results of the meeting were very favorable.

The 235th Battalion will in a short while make a thorough registration of the male population of the city, of all eligible and ineligible men. The city will be divided into sections, each section being in charge of an officer. No recruiting will be undertaken during the campaign, which is really to be a census of every man in the city; the recruiting will be carried out later. The census comes under the registration system recently adopted by the Military Headquarters at Ottawa.

Official Opening of Khaki Club

A Large Number Present, and Fine Entertainment Provided by Ladies—Address by The Mayor

Despite the weather a large number were present at the official opening of the Khaki Club, at the corner of Pinnacle and Dundas streets, last evening. The opening was brief and to the point, after which a charming programme was given by Mrs. Wilmot.

Mayor Ketcheson, in a few wellchosen words, warmly welcomed the 235th Overseas Battalion to the city, and the Khaki Club, which he explained was always open for their use and comfort.

In reply to the Mayor's speech, Col. Scobell, O.C., the 235th Battalion, accepted the club, on behalf of his men, and thanked both Mayor Ketcheson and the officers and members of the Khaki Club, for their interest in providing rest and comfort for the boys. During the evening Capt. Eddie O'Flynn gave a short but most intersting talk to the men, on his experiences at the front. The programme and those taking part were as follows:

Miss Price—Song—"Up From Somerset," "Mother Machree" and "Come Sing to me."

Pte. O'Callaghan—Song—"My Irish Jaunting Car."

Pte. Collins—Song—"Mary of Argyle."

Sergt. Donnelly—Song —"Sunshine of Your Smile."

Corp. Windsor— Song—"Selected".

Pte. Armington—Song—"Let Me Like a Soldier Fall."

Mrs. Wilmot—Song—"The Gardenland of England."

Miss Wilmot—Song—"Where My Caravan has Rested."

Miss Spafford—Recitation.

Pte. Knight—Song—"Selected."

"God Save The King."

At the close, refreshments were served in the canteen to the large crowd of men, after which the entire house stood at attention while the National Anthem was sung.

The following are the officers of the Belleville Khaki Club:

Miss M. B. Falkiner—President.

Miss M. M. Campbell—Secretary-Treasurer.

Executive—Mrs. Spence Clarke, Mrs. A. R. Symons and Miss Eva Fanter.

Best Nerve Specialist In England Was Consulted

But Nervous System Failed To Respond to Treatment Prescribed

Nervous disorders frequently result from injury to the nerves in accidents or because of the shock to the system.

The writer of this letter was injured in a mix-up with some colts, remained unconscious for three weeks, and in spite of continued treatment in hospital could not obtain restoration of the internal nerves which control the action of the digestive and other vital organs. He travelled to Europe and consulted England's greatest nerve specialist. Relief was only temporary, in spite of many treatments used.

His letter gives the facts briefly and tells how he was finally cured by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. Can you imagine any more severe test of this great nerve restorative?

Mr. Henry F. Venn, Cefu Ranch Malakwa, B. C. writes: Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has restored my nervous system and given me new health. Having met with a severe accident seven years ago, from which I was unconscious and which left my nerves in a very sore plight, I was treated by doctors galore and consulted one of the greatest nerve specialists in England, but nothing seemed to do me much good. Hypophosphites and, in fact, all and every kind of nerve mixture in almost every form was used but never with more than temporary benefit.

"But Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has acted very differently, for it has built up my nervous system until I feel like my old self again. If this medicine will do for others what it has done for me, I shall not regret having written this letter. I have recommended the Nerve Food personally to many, and shall always esteem its great restorative value."

Death of a Bright Girl

Yesterday afternoon after a few days' illness, Grace Boyle, aged 14 years, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Boyle, 157 Charles Street, Belleville, passed away. On Thursday last she was taken seriously ill and soon laspe into unconsciousness from which she seldom rallied. In June of this year, Grace completed her public school work at Queen Alexander School in a most satisfactory manner, always proving by her cheerful manner that she was willing to do her best. Since September deceased had been attending the Belleville High School. Not only did she manifest a keen interest in her own work but she showed a very unselfish spirit by laboring for the welfare of others. When a circle was organized in Q. A. S. among the girls of that school last year, the members of which worked faithfully for "The Boys in the Trenches" Grace proved to be one of the most active members and spent much of her spare time in knitting for their benefit. Grace will be much missed in her class room and by her class mates, as she was possessed of a lovable nature and was a general favorite. In addition to her parents a brother Allan and a sister Dorothy survive. To the bereaved will be extended the heartfelt sympathy of relatives and friends.

We think of one who in her youthful beauty died,
The fair meek blossom that grew up and faded by our side.
In the cold moist earth we laid her,
when the forest cast the leaf,
And we wept that one so lovely,
should have so brief a life.
Yet not unmet, it was that one like this young friend of ours
So gentle and so faithful should perish with the flowers.

GUNNER FRANK BOWELL HOUSTON IS SHOT

The Toronto Star of a late date contains the following item among its list of casualties:

Gunner Frank Bowell Houston of Toronto, son of J. W. Houston, 90 Sorauren ave., and a nephew of Sir Mackenzie Bowell, left his arts course at the University at the conclusion of his freshman year, and enlisted with the first Varsity battery to be raised here. Today he is reported as having been admitted to Colchester Military Hospital with a wound in the left arm. For the greater part of his year on the firing line, Gunner Houston has been an observer of the battery staff, and his relatives in Belleville consider that it was probably while engaged in this dangerous work that he met his casualty.

Another Bright Life Sacrificed

A message from the Record Office, Ottawa, was this morning received in this city, in consequence of which there is gloom in another household. It conveyed the sad information that Lieut. Horace Carroll was killed at the front, on October 21st inst. Deceased was a young man who was well known in this city and highly esteemed. He was 26 years of age and was the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Carroll. Lieut. Carroll was born here and was a graduate of a Public and High School. He chose banking as his profession, and was for some time accountant in a branch office of the Montreal Bank at Montreal and Ottawa. He enlisted with the 77th Battalion at Ottawa, and after qualifying as a Lieutenant went overseas with that battalion. The hero was unmarried. Mrs. Carroll, his mother, is a daughter of the late Mr. Horace S. Yeomans of this city, and the deceased was a nephew of Dr. Yeomans, Mr. L. Yeomans and the Misses Yeomans, all of this city. To the heart-stricken parents and relatives the sincere sympathies of all citizens will be extended.

Arrested For Stealing Auto

Two women Put Up Job on Collingwood Man and Skip With His Car

Nancy Wilson, alias Nancy McArthur, and Alice Watt, alias Mrs. Jackson, rooming at 193 Jarvis Street, Toronto, were arrested Tuesday by the Cobourg police on a charge of stealing a motor car from Pearce Walker, a monument agent, of Collingwood, Ont. Detective Montgomery brought the women back to Toronto yesterday morning.

According to the police, Walker, about a week ago, went to Toronto on business, and went to a room at 193 Jarvis Street. As he was preparing to run downtown in his car one day, the two women asked him to give them a lift. He did so. Then they persuaded him to allow them the use of the car on a visit to an aunt in the west end, promising to return it by the time he had finished his business. The women motored to Cobourg.

The pair were in Port Hope on Saturday night and Sunday morning with their car and collided with a hydrant on Cavin Street.—Port Hope Guide.

GIRLS TO WORK ON FARMS

Ontario Will Permit Them to Get Academic Standing

Girls can work as farmers next year, as boys did this year, and still get their academic standing, according to regulations issued by the Department of Education at Toronto. These regulations make it clear this year that this work must be done on Ontario farms. During 1916 some boys made the mistake of going to harvest on the plains.

The department has for the school year 1916-17 made some amendment to the regulations of January and March, 1916, which provided for the enlistment of young men who were attending the high and continuation schools and the collegiate institutes in preparation for the examining by the following June for admission to the normal schools and the faculties of education, and who desired to enlist for overseas service in the present war.

One important factor is the definite requirement of an examination prior to Easter, 1917. On certain conditions the ministers will, after next Easter, grant candidates exemption from examinations of June, 1917, with the certificates concerned.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

AN ENEMY TO SOCIETY AT GRIFFIN'S TO-MORROW

Hamilton Revelle, the eminent English actor, will make his bow to local audiences from the screen at Griffin's Opera House to-morrow night and Saturday matinee and night, in "An Enemy To Society," the latest release on the Metro programme from the studios of the Columbia Pictures Corporation. Dividing stellar honors with Mr. Revelle will be the charming Lois Meredith, once the daintiest of stage prima donnas, who has latterly been winning many laurels in Metro pictures.

"An Enemy to Society" portrays the life of a modern Robin Hood, who has been brought up from childhood to believe that it is right to rob from the rich in order to give to the poor. How the enemy to society ultimately finds his regeneration through love of a beautiful woman, incidentally discovering that all his education for roguery was part of a plot of revenge upon his wealthy father, whom he had never known, makes a thrillingly romantic story. The picture is based on George Bronson Howard's famous story of the same name, which will be recalled with keen satisfaction by many who now have the opportunity to see it for the first time in photodramatic form. Three other selected filmplays will also be exhibited.

A SUPER-ABUNDANCE OF MERRIMENT AT GRIFFIN'S TUESDAY

"Some Baby" is the title of the three act farcical comedy billed for presentation at Griffin's Opera House next Tuesday night.

The title of this merry conceit fails to convey to the reader the abundance, we might almost say super abundance, of merriment invoked by its complications, which are many, and at all times amusing. No need to attempt a detailed description of the story on which the farce is built—a nonsensical idea beyond a doubt—the use of a newly discovered tonic to halt the ravages of age and turn back life to any period of existence desired, a magic concoction that totally destroys the idea of growing old.

In the company to be seen are a number of clever players, headed by Grace Merritt, whose earnest, forceful stage work has won for her an enviable place in her chosen profession "Some Baby" was written just for fun, and is played for the same alaudable purpose; and there is no claim that it "points a moral to adorn a tale." It is just laughable, amusing enjoyable. What more can be desired by those who seek for relaxation in the theatre?

BERTHA KALICH AT PALACE TOMORROW

Bertha Kalich, one of the greatest of actresses and the only dramatic artist in the world who can seriously be called a successor to Sarah Bernhardt, appears at the Palace Theatre, tomorrow and Saturday, matinee and night in the Fox Feature, "Slander."

This dramatic celebrity, whose own personal story is as compelling and vitally interesting as the greatest role she has ever portrayed on the stage has entered whole-heartedly into a work, which, if predictions may be indulged in, will even increase the reputation and fame which are hers as the result of many important achievements of her past stage career. Three other quality pictures will also be exhibited in addition to the above five part offering.

NO PLACE FOR NEUTRALS

Allies Will Determine the Conditions of Peace — Germany The Aggresser

LONDON, Oct. 24.—Special—Another important contribution to the discussions on peace was made by Viscount Grey, Secretary for Foreign Affairs, at a lunch given yesterday by the Foreign Press Association, at which the diplomatic representatives of all the allied countries were present.

The Foreign Secretary made it plain that the Allies were not prepared to discuss peace terms, and gave no indication of what their terms might be but welcomed any efforts by neutral countries for a combination to prevent future wars. Some of the most important passages of the Secretary's speech followed:

"I would like to talk, not indeed about actual conditions of peace, which can only be stated and formulated by the Allies together, and not by any one of them separately, but about the general objects which the Allies must secure in this war. And to do that I would ask you to recall that we must never forget how the war came about. If we are to approach peace in a proper spirit it can only be by recollecting and recalling, and never for a minute forgetting what was the real cause of the war.

"Some people say: 'Oh, we need not go back over that old ground now; everybody knows it.'

"You cannot go back to it too often; it affects the conditions of peace. Germany talks of peace; her statesmen talk of peace to-day. They say:

" 'Germany must have guarantees against being attacked again.'

"If this war had been forced upon Germany that would be a logical statement. It is precisely because it was not forced upon Germany, but was forced upon Europe, that it is the Allies who must have guarantees for future peace."

If Stomach Hurts Drink Hot Water

A Physician's Advice

If dyspeptics, sufferers from gas, wind or flatulence, stomach acidity or sourness, gastric catarrh, heartburn, etc., would take a teaspoonful of pure bisurated magnesia in half a glass of hot water immediately after eating, they would soon forget they were ever afflicted with stomach trouble, and doctors would have to look elsewhere for patients." In explanation of these words a well known New York physician stated that most forms of stomach trouble are due to stomach acidity and fermentation of the food contents of the stomach combined with an insufficient blood supply to the stomach. Hot water increases the blood supply and bisurated magnesia instantly neutralizes the excessive stomach acid and stops food fermentation, the combination of the two, therefore, being marvelously successful and decidedly preferable to the use of artificial digestents, stimulants or medicines for indigestion.

When He Was Beaten.

Dr. Macnamara, M.P., of the British House of Commons, is a skilled debater and rarely at a loss for a retort. Once he was addressing a meeting of laborers, when one of his hearers expressed a wish to ask a question. Dr. Macnamara suggested that he should wait till the end of the speech, but he persisted until another member of the audience politely remarked: "Sit down, you ass!"

There was some disorder, and a third man shouted: "Sit down; you're both asses!"

This was Dr. Macnamara's chance, he thought, and he cut in with: "There seems plenty of asses about to-night, but for heaven's sake let us hear one at a time."

"Well," said the original interrupter, pointing to the doctor, "you go on then."

For once the doctor, as he does not hesitate to admit, was beaten.

Not for Twice as Much.

He was an idle Irish boy, but he had the Irishman's ready wit. He had shipped on board a man-of-war, where he annoyed the boatswain by his laziness. Seeing him on the maintop one morning, gazing idly out to sea, the boatswain called to him:

"Come down out of that, ye rashcal! Come down out of that, an' Oi'll give yez a dozen whacks wid me rope!"

"Faith, sorr," replied the boy. "Oi wouldn't come if ye offered me two dozen!"

Fresh From the Mint.

A returned vacationist tells of being in a country store when a little girl entered with an egg in her hand.

"Give me an egg's worth of tea, please," she said to the storekeeper. "An' ma says you might weigh out an egg's worth of sugar, too, 'cause the black hen is cluckin' an' I'll be up again in a minute."

SOLDIERS ARE NEEDING

more Zam-Buk. They are asking for it in their letters home. They say that nothing takes the place of Zam-Buk for cuts, burns, blisters, sores, etc.

Pte. J. R. Smith of the "Princess Pats." writes: "Tell my friends, if they want to help me, to send some Zam-Buk. We find it very useful indeed, and we can't get too much of it."

Pte. Johnson, writing home, says: "Mrs. —— has offered to send me a rug. Ask her to send some Zam-Buk instead. It will be of more use here than all the rugs in creation."

Nothing ends pain and heals so quickly as Zam-Buk, and being germicidal, if applied to a wound as soon as sustained, prevents all danger of blood-poisoning. The soldier who carries a box of Zam-Buk in his pocket will be saved much needless suffering. Don't let your friends go without.

Rifle Shooting

The members of the Belleville Rifle Association held a competition under handicap conditions at the Armories last night for prizes kindly given by Messrs H Day and W. J. Andrews, ducks.

Some very good shooting resulted, 3 of the members making 99 out of a possible 100 thus having to shoot off to decide which should have the game. The other members followed up closely with good scores, and great interest was shown in the competition. Full scores and results. Highest possible score 100.

THIS IS THE 819TH DAY THE BRITISH EMPIRE HAS BEEN AT WAR WITH GERMANY.

A LIBERAL JOURNAL'S OPINION OF SIR WILFRID

The Free Press, the leading Liberal Journal in Ottawa, is not now, nor has it been in full accord with its party upon the attitude it has taken regarding the duty of Canada in the present war contest. It now dissents from the attitude taken by Sir Wilfrid Laurier upon the offer made him by Premier Borden to become one of a Parliamentary Committee to consider the best and most effective means of aiding the Allies in their present contest with Germany

In a leading editorial of its issue of the 21st inst, among other things it says:—

"The Free Press feels impelled to say very frankly, though with regret, that it is extremely disappointed with Sir Wilfrid Laurier's reply to the Prime Minister's letter.

"That reply will be interpreted as a direct refusal on the part of Sir Wilfrid Laurier to permit the Parliamentary party, of which he is the leader, to participate in an official and earnest call from Parliament to the manhood and womanhood of Canada to "serve the nation in such capacities as their services may be of most value.'

"The fact that such an official and earnest call has been delayed for two years only makes the need for the call now the more urgent.

"We have only too much reason to fear that Sir Wilfrid's refusal on behalf of the Liberal party will be hailed as support for the attitude of certain misguided men whose arguments and conduct in the war crisis have disgusted the vast majority of the Canadian people from coast to coast.

"No one knows better than The Free Press that such a judgment on Sir Wilfrid Laurier wil ldo him the rankest injustice. He has put himself in a wrong light. He has hurt the strong patriotic feelings of a large number of men and women who have hitherto given him their warmest regard and their sincerest support. It will be a lucky thing, indeed, if Sir Wilfrid has not handicapped the National Service Commission in its very difficult task—a task which Sir Wilfrid and the Liberal party of Canada would wish from the bottom of their hearts to be the most pronounced success.

"The government for permitting itself to be influenced by a triviality and Sir Thomas Tait for having jumped like a peevish child to hasty conclusions, are both censurable for the unfortunate incident that marked the opening operations of the National Service Commission; but that these initial errors should be regarded as sufficient cause for the letter from Sir Wilfrid Laurier published to-day is matter for the deepest regret."

It is to be regretted that other Liberal exponents of the opinian of the vast majority of their party, are not as frank and outspoken in expressing the opinion known to exist in its rank and file.

London Times: The Prime Ministers of all of the Dominions should be members of the innermost War Council of the Empire, the War Committee which sits in London. Their membership should be a matter of right and they should be welcome whenever they can attend it. That is a natural and proper development of the present system. The Imperial Government neglected a golden opportunity when they failed to adopt it at the outset. It must in any case be done before there is any question of peace.

Official Germany, it appears, now admits that the undersea boat, the Bremen, has sunk, or been sunk, for good and all. At the time the Deutschland made her pioneer trip to America it was announced from Berlin that she would start the return journey on the Bremen's arrival. The latter failed to come, and there are many persons who do not believe that she ever left port. Some say she never existed. The most recent admission will not remove their doubts.

German newspapers are continually engaged in denouncing the British, but of late they have been giving some space to denunciation of the United States. The journals in question are going on the assumption that every land not actively supporting Germany is to be hated like poison.

Last week the British losses in battle were 5,685 killed and 24,994 wounded and missing. And there is no hope that the casualties will grow less in number in the future fighting. The figures explain the need of men from every part of the Empire to fill the gaps that are inevitably made, day after day.

WINNIPEG GRAIN MARKET.

Winnipeg, Oct. 23.—Wheat closed 2⅝c higher for October, 3c higher for November, 4c better for December, and 3¼c higher for May. Oats were up 1½c for October, ⅝c for December and 2c for May. Barley was 1c up in October and 4c in December. Flax gained 3c in October and 1½c in November and 3c in December.

The amount of the trade was fair, but nothing to indicate an active market. The biggest cause of the advance was sentiment. The news from the Argentine was very bullish, but there was no reason for wheat jumping 6c. There is little wheat on offer. All selling is realizing profits.

Cash market very dull. Premiums disappeared, and later most of the wheat went thru the clearing house. Oats were little changed.

Building Many Submarines.

BERLIN, Oct. 24, via London.—Prince von Buelow, former German imperial chancellor, recently informed a neutral newspaperman that since the beginning of the war Germany had constructed 225 submarines, says a despatch from Constance. The German naval authorities, the prince is reported to have added, are paying more attention to submarines than to battleships and Austria-Hungary is doing likewise.

WHO IS BRUSSILOFF.

He Is the Subject of Much Conjecture These Days.

An achievement so brilliant as that of General Brusiloff, like a sudden splendor of dawn from the midst of darkness, inevitably arouses an eager desire to know something of him; and, in the absence of knowledge, gives birth to all kinds of fancies and imaginings. One of the best newspapers in New York printed a day or two after the beginning of his great offensive, a charming and whimsical article, alleging that about the unknown personality of the Russian general were already gathering all the stories of military prowess that had served for Alexander, for Caesar, for Napoleon; he was fast becoming a Solar Myto, says Charles Johnston in The Atlantic.

And we have had since then a curiously detailed story that Brusiloff is only a nom de guerre; that the victor on the eastern battle line is really the ill-starred Sir Hector Macdonald redivivus, come back to repeat the triumph of Omdurman. And, in passing, one may note that this legend of a miraculous return wreathes itself about every dominant personality, not only the spiritual heroes like Guatama and Zoroaster, but the men of war, like Friedrich Barbarossa, asleep in the Kyffhauser, Shivaji of the Mahratta hills, and now, for the second time, about the fine soldier who forfeited the renown won in the Sudan. So insistent is the sense of immortality aroused by genius and power.

On one of the country roads just outside Lublin, a little chap, a genuine little Pole, came trotting along the road on an old nag. The boy's knees were pulled up almost to his chin, General Brusiloff, standing in the middle of the road, cried "Halt!" as though the boy had been a squadron of dragoons. The terrified youngster pulled up short. Then the corps commander stepped to the side of the old horse and lengthened first one stirrup-leather and then the other, and put the boy's feet back into the stirrups. Then, starting him once more on his way, he commented whimsically: "They would quote that as an instance of the Russian oppression of the Poles!" It was, by the way, one of his griefs that all his efforts had won almost no cordial response from the Poles of Lublin; they remained icily aloof, in spite of his kindliest overtures.

Poorest Are Hit Worst.

How the scarcity of food in Germany and the Government direction of food distribution are working out is described by a prominent man who recently returned from there. He said the burden is falling on about 25,000,000 of the German people. The soldiers at the front, the munition factory workers, people with means and persons on farms are getting enough to eat. About 25,000,000 of the poorer class, without money or influence, are the sufferers. They are getting an average food supply which, measured in calories, is below normal. It is found practically impossible to keep persons who raise food products—that is the agricultural part of the population—down to a prescribed food supply. Much of the unrest in Germany is among the 25,000,000 who are getting scant food supplies.

Leads in Backwardness.

Honduras excels any other republic of the continent in one respect—backwardness. Every little while a revolution tears down any slight prosperity that may have been built. Parents train their sons to become professional revolutionists as we train ours to become lawyers or doctors. A debt of a hundred millions burdens the country. Polygamy is common. Many a man has four wives to support him, he doing nothing, unless a wife, especially needing help, wishes to hire him at a good wage. Perhaps standards would be higher if life were harder. But where breadfruit weighs down the trees and a grain of corn planted on Monday will sprout four inches high by Friday, there is not much incentive to labor.—World's Outlook.

Big Price Offered for Spy.

The Italian Government issued a proclamation recently offering a reward of 20,000 lire ($20,000) for information which will result in the conviction of the German or Austrian spy who caused an explosion on board the battleship Leonardo da Vinci. The Dreadnought was sent to the bottom by an explosion while at anchor in Taranto harbor on September 12 last. The commission appointed to enquire into the disaster has reported that the explosion was undoubtedly the result of design, and was caused by a spy on board the vessel. Three hundred lives were lost on the battleship.

He got within fifty feet of the lines or in the immediate vicinity successes.

Canadians at Salonica.

Prof. J. J. Mackenzie, B.A., M.B., of the University of Toronto, who spent some time at Salonica, attached to the University Hospital there, entertained the members of the Canadian Club lately with an interesting historical sketch of that ancient city, as a background for the work the Canadian doctors and nurses were doing in caring for the sick and wounded of the British expeditionary forces in Greece.

Prof. Mackenzie pointed out that besides the University of Toronto Hospital there were two others, the British Columbia Hospital and the First Canadian Stationary Hospital. These hospitals were filling a definite Imperial mission in that they are all Canadian and are serving only Imperial troops.

The speaker told of the stormy history of Salonica from the time it was founded in 315 B.C. The great road built through the city shortly after it was founded is still in existence and beside it the University Hospital is located. In turn the Greeks, the Bulgars, the Serbians, and the Turks fought for it. At one or two periods in its history it was captured and looted by mercenaries. The Turks held the longest tenure of the city, ruling it from 1,431 until in the Balkan War of 1912, it was taken by the Greeks and held.

Russian Weddings.

Two Greek orthodox church weddings were solemnized in Toronto recently. The Russian marriage ceremony is a lengthy one, and an hour was used in getting the young couples firmly tied in matrimony. The choir takes a leading part in the ceremony. Among the customs observed is the placing of rings upon fingers of both bride and bridegroom and the tieing of their arms, one to the other by a silken scarf by which the officiating priest leads them about the centre of the church several times. The only mishap was the ignition of the voluminous veil of one of the brides, a lighted candle in the hands of one of her attendants causing the trouble. The fire was quickly extinguished, but the "bad luck" of the incident brought the bride to tears.

Returning From Tour.

Miss Catherine Welland Merritt, honorary secretary of the Queen Mary's Needlework Guild in Canada, has returned to Toronto from a tour through Western Canada, where she has been successful in establishing a number of branches and disposing of nearly 12,000 guild badges to new members.

Immune.

"Blacksmiths seem to have a reputation for honesty."

"Deservedly so, but due partly, perhaps, to the nature of the business. Nobody encumbers a blacksmith with trust funds. There is nothing to adulterate in his line. Compared with some of us, a blacksmith has few temptations to resist."

Your Child's Cough

Is it nothing? Is it to be neglected until it leads to that terrible scourge consumption? Peps stand between winter coughs and colds, and serious consequences. Peps are tablets made up of Pine extracts and medicinal essences, which when put into the mouth turn into healing vapors. These are breathed down direct to the lungs, throat and bronchial tubes —not swallowed down to the stomach, which is not ailing.

Try a 50c. box of Peps for your cold, your cough, bronchitis or asthma. All druggists and stores or Peps Co., Toronto, will supply

Peps

Archangel has many links with Great Britain. The account of a Norse trading expedition there in the ninth century was described, or translated, by no less a personage than Alfred the Great, and the modern town dates from the visit of an English voyager, William Chancellor, in the middle of the sixteenth century. Soon after that visit an English factory was established, a fort was built, and around this the town grew up.

Water Powder.

British soldiers at the front are provided with a powder which, thrown into water, instantly sterilizes the microbes in it and also gives it a pleasant flavor. The men carry this powder in a pocket medicine case, which contains as well cubes for turtle cup, remedies in the form of gelatine squares, and other necessaries for those who have to "fend" for themselves for days together.

THE CONNAUGHT TUNNEL

One of the greatest of the achievements of the Canadian Pacific Railway is the Connaught Tunnel. This great work—through the lofty Mount MacDonald—amongst the Selkirk Mountains, is nearly six miles long and double tracked. The excavation has been made at a cost of over $12,000,000 to the great transportation company. But the C.P.R., which has spent from $25,000,000 to $35,000,000 per annum on the development of the West previous to the war, does not even in times of a conflict affecting the greater part of the world, spare expense where the public convenience makes an urgent demand. The opening of the tunnel will greatly facilitate traffic, will open a new route, and will do away with many miles of snow sheds.

The Connaught Tunnel will give the Canadian Pacific the lowest grade of any transcontinental railway running through the Selkirk Mountains. It was bored in less than three years under the supervision of Mr. J. G. Sullivan, Chief Engineer of Western lines, and it is claimed that no undertaking of similar dimensions was ever completed in such a short time. In the excavation of the tunnel many engineering difficulties had to be overcome. But mighty rocks gave way and the roots of a gigantic mountain crumbled before the advance of human skill. At various points along the pass there is an eighteen inch concrete wall lining.

During his recent trip to Western Canada, Lord Shaughnessy, accompanied by Chief Engineer Sullivan, took a tour through the tunnel. Lord Shaughnessy was well pleased with what he saw. The construction work is now rapidly approaching completion. Two miles of steel rails have yet to be laid on one side of the track. It is expected that the formal opening will take place during the first days of December. Since its inception the C.P.R., it is reckoned, has spent over $200,000,000 in the development of the West. The latest expenditure is as popular as any that had previously been made.

When His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught and party took a trip through the tunnel on July 17th, the Duke expressed in eloquent words the gratification it gave him to be associated with the pioneer work of the Canadian Pacific, and he complimented the company on the splendid strides it was making in the development of the country. Then His Royal Highness, baptising the new work, christened it the Selkirk Tunnel. Some weeks later, at the request of Lord Shaughnessy, His Royal Highness consented to have the tunnel called after him. Henceforth it is to be named the "Connaught Tunnel," a fitting compliment to the excellent services which the Duke of Connaught gave to the Dominion during his term as Governor-General.

THE TONIC THAT BRINGS HEALTH

"Fruit-a-tives" Builds Up The Whole System

Those who take "Fruit-a-tives" for the first time, are often astonished at the way it builds them up and makes them feel better all over. They may be taking "Fruit-a-tives" for some specific disease, as Constipation, Indigestion, Chronic Headaches or Neuralgia, Kidney or Bladder Trouble, Rheumatism or Pain in the Back. And they find when "Fruit-a-tives" has cured the disease, that they feel better and stronger in every way. This is due to the wonderful tonic properties of these famous tablets, made from fruit juices

50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. At all dealers or sent postpaid by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

In And About The City

CIVIC COMMITTEES

A regular meeting of the various Civic Committees of the City Council will be held this evening.

FORGOT BOARD BILL

The police this morning answered a call to a boarding house in this city, it being alleged that one of the boarders had suddenly left without paying his board.

A CORRECTION

In yesterday's issue of The Intelligencer, in the list of casualties, appeared the name of G. Lecker of Belleville, among the wounded. It should have been G. Secker.

EXCEEDED SPEED LIMIT

Recently signs were placed at both ends of the upper and lower bridges in Belleville, regulating the speed autos should proceed over them, namely at the rate of five miles an hour. There having been complaints that the regulation was not being adhered to, yesterday a member of the local police force was for some time stationed on the bridges and with a stop watch took the time occupied by many autos going over the structure. By actual measurements it would require 34¼ seconds to pass over the lower bridge and 28 1-10 seconds to proceed over the upper bridge, at the rate of five miles per hour. The longest time occupied in crossing was 22¼ seconds. In consequence the parties who broke the law will no doubt be summoned to appear before the Police Magistrate.

Address to School Children

Mrs. Parsons Talks With Interest to Senior Pupils

The older pupils of Queen Alexandria School enjoyed a great privilege Tuesday morning when Mrs. Parsons addressed them on their place and work in the Empire.

She showed them how everything mattered, particularly their thoughts, which made their lives and were revealed in their faces. She also touched on the Boy Scout Movement and its great influence for good. Then related an incident in Northern Ontario life where a few poor children in a log house "did their bit" the boys earning money to buy material which the girls made into comforts for the soldiers. When this country was fire swept last July many of these children were burned.

In closing Mrs. Parsons urged the girls to be willing to do without unnecessarily pretty things and the boys not to grumble if they could not have the accustomed luxuries in this time of war and sacrifice.

In the afternoon Mrs. Parsons spoke to the junior pupils and the little tots enjoyed a rare treat.

After telling them to be kind, thoughtful and loving to every bird, animal and every living creature, she led them with wonderful aptitude from the pet dog of her childhood to the British bull dog that guards our flag.

The fact that all her illustrations were taken from real life made her talk most interesting.

At the close of her remarks the speaker was very much pleased to hear the little ones sing so ernestly "God save the King" and "God save our Splendid Men."

◆

As both sides are now fighting for peace in the world's war, the pacifists will just have to continue as before to choose "whichever vanity they like the flavor of best best." In other words neutral disturbers will kindly-not butt in and disturb the peace.

◆

Even those of us who never expect to use it will not object to having ample jail accommodation.

Now is the season to do your Christmas advertising early.

Changeling in Duke's Family?

A very interesting story of the Devonshire family was told recently by "Ex-Attache" in the Pittsburg Sunday Dispatch. It appears that there were doubts as to whether the sixth Duke—the present Duke is the ninth—was really entitled to succeed at all. When his mother gave birth to a child, her friend and cousin, Lady Elizabeth Foster, wife of a Colonel Foster, gave birth to a child also on the same day and under the same roof. One was a boy and the other a girl. And there was more than a little suspicion that the Duchess' child was the girl and that her cousin and she changed babies. When in due course the sixth Duke succeeded, he entered into an agreement with his cousin, the next heir, to the effect that he should be left in possession of his title and estates on the condition that he did not marry. Thus at his death these passed to the cousin in question, so that no doubt exists as to the right of the present holder of the title who is descended from the cousin.

General Sir Sam Hughes, Canadian Minister of Militia, has received a letter from Sir Douglas Haig, of which the following is an extract: "I desire to express my sincere appreciation of the generous terms in which you refer to the achievements of the army in France. It must be a source of pride and gratification to you to know that the gallant officers and men who come from Canada to fight for the King and the common cause of our Empire invariably do their duty in a way that reflects the greatest possible credit on themselves and their Dominion."

An Infernal Engine.

An English battalion was recently warned to keep a careful watch for any contrivances which the Germans might use with the object of producing poisonous gases. Shortly afterwards on taking over some trenches an old bagpipe was found. At once the colonel, who possessed a rare sense of humor, sent the following message to brigade headquarters:

"A weird instrument has just been discovered in my trenches; it is believed to have been used for producing asphyxiating [illegible]."

Lord Curzon on Canada

And Canada's Part in The Great European War

Lord Curzon, speaking at the Etonians' luncheon to our new Governor-General, the Duke of Devonshire, employed the following strong words regarding Canada's participation in the Great War:

"If there were any among the Dominions that had established for itself a right to rank among the great nations of the earth, it was Canada. If there were any part of the British Empire that was assured of dazzling and almost illimitable expansion in the future, it was Canada. If in this war there were any of our fellow-subjects, who, in a superlative degree, might be said to have shown loyalty of the loyal and bravery of the brave, those were our fellow-subjects from the Dominion."

These are strong words, and it is a tax upon our national modesty to comment upon them without a measure of deprecation which might, after all, be hardly fair to our brave lads who have earned for us these enconiums. They will serve, however, as an unsolicited testimony of the impressions which our sacrifices and our efforts have made upon the most restrained and conservative of Britain's public men.

There can be no doubt—and there is no shame in mentioning the fact in these tragic days when our casualties come in by the thousands—that the part of which Canada has played in this war has won for her a new place in the esteem and effection of the Empire and in the more measured judgement of the world. When we consider that the British Government talked of sending to the Continent, in case of just such a war as this no more than an expeditionary force running variously from 80,000 to 120,000 men, and that Canada has enlisted more than three thousand men already—that her casualties total more than 50,000—we see how formidably we must bulk against the sky-line as the people who will have to be reckoned with hereafter in any question of world politics.—Montreal Star.

FUNNY LOVE-LETTERS.

"Is love insanity?" asked the candid critic; and as a reason for his question he points to the amusing letters made public through the medium of the breach of promise and divorce courts. "These 'Tootsie Wootsie' epistles," he says, "are nauseating in their sickly sentiment."

Certainly it is difficult to imagine a sober and practical-minded business man beginning a letter "My darling Poodle," and ending with "Oo doating Puppy." Yet this was revealed in the courts on one occasion, when "My darling Poodle" made "Puppy" pay some £3,000 for the privilege of making love to her in such extravagant terms without being sincere in his attentions.

"You little, yellow-haired ducky; you've waddled straight into my heart," another victim of love-madness wrote, and ended, "No bread and cheese for us, Angel Face. But there'll be kisses by the bushel. Yours to the crust." One sad but wiser Romeo writhed in court not long ago when confronted with this poetic outburst of his soul:

The glove on Mary's hand,
I wish I could be for one day,
Protecting my Mary's soft fingers
from the cold
And getting rubbed up against her cheek;
And even getting left at home,
To sit and think in the top dresserdrawer
And wish I was with Mary.

A great deal more poetic in its style was the following effusion: "O, you Venus, you perfect woman. I would offer you two willing hands, and pray that more might grow so that I might better serve you. I would not be your hands alone. I would be your shoulders, that I might shoulder everything for you. This not being possible, dear one, write to me with thine hands, list with thy shell-like ears to my burning words, that, leaving me thus, seem cold and hard in comparison with the fires that consume me e'en in thoughts of thee. Yours till I am eternally consumed."

Girls are quite as hopeless as men when Cupid has finished with them. "I am sitting alone thinking of you, you darling curly-haired lambkin," runs one girlish epistle. "And I'm mad at you just the same—you naughty sweetheart — because in your last letter you only put one page of crosses. Just think, only one page of crosses, when I sent you two."

He Lost His Case.

Lord Reading—better known to fame as Sir Rufus Isaacs—recently told the story of his first brief.

He had been retained to defend a man, a street trader, who had been summoned for selling bad figs.

Mr. Isaacs, as he then was, expatiated at length on the splendid quality of the fruit, and in this he was, as was only natural, backed up by his client.

Presently the magistrate intervened. Had either of them tasted the fruit? he asked.

They both confessed that they had not. Whereupon the magistrate suggested that either the defendant or his counsel should eat some in court.

Mr. Isaacs turned to his client: "Go on," he whispered, "eat one or two."

"What will happen if I don't?" whispered the other in reply.

"You'll lose the case."

"All right," answered the defendant resignedly, "then lose it I'll have to."

ENEMY FLAGS SOLD ON RELIEF DAY at TORONTO

Surprise and Disgust When Emblem is Discovered Mixed With Shipment of Belgian Colors

TORONTO, Oct. 27.—Special—Astonishment and disgust were registered on the faces of a number of Toronto citizens yesterday morning, when in return for their donations to the Belgian Relief Fund, they were rewarded with miniature flags bearing the German colors and the inscription, "Red Cross German Relief." The girls collecting the money in each case, stared in blank amazement when the mistake was pointed out, and while they hastily made amends by giving the Belgian emblem, they were entirely at a loss to explain the presence of the German flags.

Telegraphic information received late last night in response to a dispatch forwarded, seeking an explanation from T. P. Tansey, the Montreal manufacturer with whom the order was placed, indicated that a miserable attempt on the part of Germans of German sympathizers in the States to cause friction, had been made. Owing to pressure of business, Mr. Tansey states that he was forced to place a sub-order with a reputable firm, by name The Erhman Manufacturing Co., and in view of the fact that he emphatically declares no German flags are made in his factory, it seems clear that the enemy badges were placed in the consignment from that American concern.

An explanation has been demanded of the general manager of this firm, who is of a well-known family.

Extensive Fire At Aylmer, Ont.

Heart of Business District Swept Incendiarism is Suspected—Loss $50,000

LONDON, Ont., Oct. 26—Fanned by a forty-mile gale, fire broke out early today and swept away $50,000 worth of buildings on Talbot Street, west, in the heart of the business district at Alymer. The blaze started in Howse's big implement warehouse and spread both ways. Help was asked from St. Thomas and the motor apparatus was rushed over fifteen miles and did great work.

Incendarism is suspected as there have been four serious fires lately and including one once before in Howse's shop.

A full investigation will be made. The loss is partially covered by insurance.

A Gift Which Proved Costly

Port Hope Bartender Fined $200 and Costs For Having Liquor in Home

PORT HOPE, Ont., Oct. 26.—Magistrate White fined John Shuter Day, bartender of the Royal Hotel, $200 and $5 costs or three months in jail, on a charge of selling intoxicating liquor on October 14th. He paid the fine. Considerable comment is heard in regard to the severity of the fine. The evidence did not prove a sale, nor any attempt at a sale by Day. The testimony of two constables, the only witnesses for the prosecution, was that Day was detected on Mill street, near the hotel, carrying four bottles of brandy. On searching Day's house a quantity of liquor was found in the cellar. Day's story was that John Heard, proprietor of the hotel, had made him a present of the liquor after September 16th.

OPTIMISTIC FOR CANADA

Baron Shaughnessy Foresees Great Future

NEW YORK, Oct. 26—Baron Shaughnessy, in an interview granted a representative of the Canadian Press as he was about to board the steamer Kroonland yesterday en route to Europe, predicted a greater Canada, industrially and politically, when peace is declared. "Though bleeding with sacrifices and bending with an effort in behalf of the Great Empire of which she is an integral part," he said. "Canada's biggest role in the play of nations is not now, but in the future "The history of the Dominion he said, showed that what mistakes have had to be rectified have been due to short vision, and that the deeds most criticised have been of over-anticipation. As between those two Canada would after the war steer a middle course of steady development, "Canada is an Empire in itself," continued Baron Shaughnessy. "Its population is not a fraction of what it should be, of what it is capable of becoming, or what it will be after the war. We are now taking steps to prepare for the future, and are anticipating an immigration that should be unprecedented in Canadian history."

Welland Canal Building Burns

ST CATHERINES, Ont. Oct. 26—Fire toady totally destroyed a frame Fire today totally destroyed a frame structure 225 by 50 feet on section 2 Welland ship canal, erected and owned by Baldry, Yerburgh and Hutchinson, contractors, and used as an engine house, machine shop, blacksmith shop and storehouse.

The fire was caused by the upsetting of an oil lamp All the contents were destroyed except the locomotives which were moved out.

The loss is about $40,000, only partly covered by insurance.

ELEVEN HUNDRED SOLDIERS AT KINGSTON

Most of The Headquarters Staff at Barriefield Waiting Until The Camp is Cleared Up

KINGSTON, Oct. 26.—There will be just about 1,100 soldiers in the City of Kingston, when all will be here to make a start on the winter's work. The Depot Artillery Brigade is already here from Petawawa and the R. C H. A. Depot is expected on Wednesday next. The numbers for all ranks are as follows:

| | |
|---|---|
| Headquarters Staff | 26 |
| Sub-Staff | 42 |
| Sub-Staff Details | 39 |
| Special Service | 219 |
| R. C. Engineers | 9 |

| Signalling School | 31 |
| Infantry School | 47 |
| Depot Brigade | 160 |
| R.C H A. | 250 |
| Queen's Ambulance. | 70 |

The figures, of course, vary every day, with transfers, discharges, etc., but the total is given to answer a common question put on the street.

The Camp Pay Staff is now settled in the Armouries, but the remainder of the headquarters staff, including Brig.-Gen. T. D. R. Hemming, G.O.C., is not expected until the camp is made ready for the winter. At present the Special Service Company under Lieut. Weller is doing the work of cleaning up, while the Engineers are boarding in the windows of the various buildings.

TO LEVY HALF A MILL

Marmora and Lake Will Give $600 to Red Cross Societies

MARMORA, Oct., 25—At a special meeting of the Patriotic Association of the municipality of Marmora and Lake, it was unanimously decided to ask the Municipal Council to grant to the British and Canadian Red Cross Societies $600, to be raised by a direct levy of one-half mill on the dollar. It was decided not to appeal to the citizens personally for subscriptions at present. The following officers were re-elected for the coming year:

Chairman, T. E. Laycock; Secretary W. D. Nichter; Treasurer, Chas. Wells; Committee, Robert Lough, Robert Jones, Chas. Jones, Hugh Maloney, Robert Bonter, Jesse Williams and Bert Crawford.

VICTORIA CROSS IS AWARDED TWO CANADIANS

Acting Corporal Leo Clarke, Winnipeg, Routed Twenty Germans Single-handed, and Pte. Kerr, Nova Scotian, Captured Sixty of Enemy

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 27—The Victoria Cross has been awarded to 73132 Pte., Acting Corporal, Leo Clarke, Canadian infantry, for most conspicious bravery in the field. He was detailed with his section of bombers to clear the continuation of a newly-captured trench, and to cover the construction of a block after most of his party had become casualties. He was building a block when about twenty of the enemy with two officers counter-attacked. He advanced against them and emptied his revolver into them and afterwards took two enemy rifles which he picked up in a trench. One of the officers attacked him with a bayonet, wounding him in the leg, but he shot him dead. The enemy then ran away, pursued by Acting Corporal Clarke, who shot four more and captured a fifth later.

The Victoria Cross was also awarded to Private John Chipman Kerr, Canadian infantry, for most conspicuous bravery during the bombing attack. He was acting as bayonet man and knowing that the bombs were running short he ran along the parados under heavy shell fire until he was in close contact with the enemy, when he opened fire on them point-blank range and inflicted heavy loss.

THREE OF ONE FIRM DEAD

Members of Winnipeg Law Firm Give Lives For Country

WINNIPEG, Oct. 26.—Capt. George W. Jameson of Winnipeg, is listed "presumed to have died." Capt. Jameson was reported missing in April, 1915, during the same action in which Capt. Gillies was killed. Capt. Gillies, Capt. Jameson and the late Col. R. M. Thompson, were all members of the same legal firm.

SUCCESSES IN TRANSYLVANIA

Russians and Roumanians Engaged Along Frontier—Teutons Lose Heavily

Canadian Press Special.

BUCHAREST, Oct. 27—Russia-Roumanian troops are engaged in successful fighting along the Roumanian Transylvanian frontier, according to to-day's war office announcement. Austro-German attacks in the Tolyges and Bicaz and in Trotus Valley were repulsed, while in Uzul Valley the Roumanian advance is continuing. Heavy losses were sustained by the Teutonic troops, which vainly attacked in the region of Dragoslavel. Fighting in Predeal continues.

Quebec Act A Trouble Maker

OTTAWA, Oct. 26—Dealing with the history of Canada during the period between the time of the conquest of Quebec and the formation of the constitutional Act in 1791, in a lecture at the University Club last night, Dr. Adam Shortt, expressed the belief that the present bilingual trouble might be attributed to the Quebec Act of 1774 and incidently to the activities of Governor Carleton, who was then the crown's representative in Canada.

He stated that Carleton foresaw the American revolution and advised the British Government to pass the French all their religion and other rights.

The Quebec Act was drawn up with the intention of discouraging English settlers in the New England colonies from settling in Quebec. The English settlers, Governor Carleton saw, were largely responsible for the American rebellion, and he feared that if the New Englanders settled in Quebec, they might be the cause of a rebellion there. The fact that the French would get back all their rights by the passing of that act was calculated to have the effect of keeping the English out of Quebec.

Predicts $15 Per Barrel For Flour

CHICAGO, Oct., 26—Jim Patton now in New York says wheat will sell 50 to 75 cents higher, and declares it the cheapest of all cereals. He says flour is selling at $10.25 a barrel and likely to sell at $15. An upward trend of prices is apparent in everything and the law of supply and demand which has been the dominant factor, will continue to advance prices, but he can see no evidence of economy in consumption either at home or abroad.

Foreigners will not eat corn. There will be no pressure from Russian wheat and Argentine likely have little left to sell after the carry-over of twenty to thirty millions from last crop is gone.

MURDERER IS DENIED A CHANCE AT FRONT

ST. JOHNS, Que., Oct. 26—Found guilty by the jury of the murder of Albert Wing, Paul Renaud, alias Lepine, asked Judge Monet to send him to the front. Judge Monet told the convicted man that it was too late, and then sentenced him to be hanged on the 24th of November.

VON FALKENHAYN FORCED FROM ADVANCE POSITIONS

Suffered Heavy Losses—Roumania Again in Control of All Carpathian Passes—One Menace Remains—The Thrust Southward Through The Transylvanian Alps

LONDON, Oct. 27.—Special—On a large part of the Transylvanian frontier the Austro-German armies of General Falkenhayn have been driven back across the border and have suffered heavy losses. The Northern Roumanian province of Moldavia is now practically clear of the Teuton invaders.

This means that the Russo-Roumanian troops are again in control of the four Carpathian passes—Oituz, Gyimes, Tolyges and Bicaz The menace of invasion is now confined to the passes of the Transylvanian Alps, where the Germans are thrusting at Bucharest via Kimpolung and Predeal, and at Buzeu and the Czernowitz railway via Bodza pass. Even here, Petrograd announces, the pressure of the Teuton forces have been arrested. The Roumanians have won Mount Kereharas, south of Bicaz, and some 25 miles south-east of the junction point of the Roumanian, Transylvanian and Bukowinian frontiers. This indicates an advance of several miles into Transylvanian territory.

"Sooner or Later" Says Pres. Wilson

This is The Last World War That U. S. Can Keep Out of

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Oct. 27.—Special.—Discussing the relation of the United States to the European war, President Wilson to-day declared that "this is the last war that involves the world that the United States can keep out of." He gave as his reason his belief that "the business of neutrality is over," and that "war now has such a scale that the position of neutrals sooner or later becomes intolerable." He added that the nations of the world must get together and say. "Nobody can hereafter be neutral as regards the disturbance of the world's peace for an object which the world's opinion cannot sanction."

DESTROYERS WERE SUNK

Attempt by Enemy Craft to Get at Allied Transport Service Futile

Canadian Press Special

LONDON, Oct. 27.—Official statement.—During last night, the enemy attempted a raid with ten destroyers on our cross channel transport service. This attempt failed. One empty transport that the Queen, was sunk The whole of her crew was saved. Two enemy destroyers were sunk and the rest driven off.

RIDEAU CAPTAIN DEAD

Death Was Hastened by a Fall From an Apple Tree

BROCKVILLE, Oct. 27.—Special—The death is reported from Westport, of Capt. Thos. Lynch, a well-known mariner of the Rideau and St. Lawrence waterways. Though in ill-health from an affection of the heart, the end was hastened by a fall from an apple tree, resulting in the fracture of two ribs. For years he owned and commanded the steamer Freemason, which ran between Bay of Quinte points to Montreal, thence up the Ottawa to the Rideau and Westport and Kingston. His last command was the steamer Rideau King, which he relinquished four years ago, when he retired. Capt. Lynch was in his 69th year, and a native of the Township of North Crosby.

ONE SOLDIER TAKES 102 GERMANS

LONDON, Oct. 27.—Special.—One of fifteen Victoria Crosses, the award of which are made in today's London Gazette, is to Pte. Thomas Jones, who, according to the official account, after killing three snipers who were shooting at him, entered the German trenches, and, single-handed, disarmed one hundred and two Germans, including three or four officers, and marched them back to the British lines through a heavy barrage fire.

RAIDED HUN POSITIONS

British Active in Northern France Says an Official Despatch

Canadian Press Special

LONDON, Oct. 28.—British troops last night raided German trenches in the sector south of the River Ancre, in Northern France, says an official statement issued today. On the rest of the front a heavy rain fell during the night.

WINDSOR, Oct. 27.—Special—Kicked by a cow three weeks ago while at work on his farm at Sandwich West township, Eugene Canti, a well-known gardener, died today from internal hemorrhages. He was seventy-five years old, and had lived in Essex county for nearly thirty years.

LIQUOR REVENUE GROWS

Receipts Increase in Face of Prohibition's Spread

OTTAWA, Oct. 26.—Despite the spread of the prohibition movement in Canada, there seems to be as much spirits as ever consumed in the Dominion. The Inland Revenue statement for September, shows a total revenue of $2,123,812, as against $1,954,109 for the same month of a year ago.

$50,000 BRIDGE TURNED INTO SCRAP IRON

SAULT STE. MARIE,, Ont., Oct. 26.—During the gale which blew all day yesterday, the big coal unloading bridge at New Ontario dock, valued at $50,000, was blown over in the gale and reduced to a heap of scrap iron. This bridge was built about four years ago after a similar fate had befallen the first bridge erected on the same ground.

PROVINCIAL ELECTION IN ALBERTA IS OFF

EDMONTON, Alta., Oct. 27.—Special.—The Edmonton Journal yesterday said:

"The Provincial election, like the Canadian Pacific strike, is off. A Cabinet meeting was held in the Parliament Buildings yesterday afternoon and the whole question from both sides was discussed at length, with the result that a decision was reached not to bring on a contest this Fall."

Berlin claims the capture of Constanza. Sounds like the Greek king's name, anyhow.

BRISKNESS ON BRITISH FRONT HUNS FAIL TO REGAIN TRENCHES

LONDON, Oct. 27.—Special.—With an improvement in the weather the battle of the Somme livened up today, and the Germans went forth to attack the British established in the Stuff trench, north of the Stuff redoubt, and the French in Bobs L'Abbaye farm, north of the Somme and south of Bouchavesnes.

These attacks were speedily repulsed. The attempt against the British was made in the morning, and the Germans did not stay long in the open when the British artillery opened a withering fire. Forty-one prisoners remained in British hands after the fighting.

The German artillery continued active on the whole British front south of the Ancre, and on the French front in the region of Sailly-Saillisel. South of the Somme it was also lively in the region of Vermandovillers-Chaulnes.

RUSSIANS AND ROUMANIANS ARE RETIRING NORTH OF HIRSOVA

What is Transpiring Among the Soldier Boys Now in Belleville

All articles and notes under this head are passed by the commanding officer of the 235th Regiment and authentic in every particular.

Six recruits were obtained by the 235th Battalion yesterday.

Recruiting meetings are being held in all the villages throughout Hastings County, by the 235th Battalion. These meetings are being conducted under the personal direction of Capt. Rev. W. G. Clarke, chaplain of the battalion.

Mrs. Parsons addressed a large and intensely interesting body of spectators at the corner of Bridge and Front streets last evening. One recruit was secured from the crowd, for the 235th.

Mrs. Parsons will again make an appeal for recruits on Front street tonight. To-morrow night she will speak at Picton.

Capt. James, Quartermaster of the 235th Battalion, has returned from Bowmanville, where he was engaged in making the necessary arrangements for the removal of the Quartermaster's stores to Belleville.

A march out of the entire 235th Battalion will be held to-morrow morning. The brass and bugle bands will accompany the battalion.

Local Jews Contribute to Relief Fund

This month the local Jewish congregation, consisting of about twelve families, celebrated their Atonement Day, and according to custom, they made offerings to charity, and this year, on the recommendation of Mr. M. Tobe, President, Mr. J. Diamond, Vice-President, Mr. N. Dime, Secretary, and Mr. D. Phillips, Treasurer, the congregation are giving the entire amount to the Jewish War Relief Fund of Russia, and so a cheque for $43.70 (the amount contributed) will be sent to the Toronto Conference Committee to be forwarded to Russia for the relief of the Jews there. There is also a recent society formed by the Belleville Jewish ladies for the purpose of collecting and contributing to Jewish War Relief charities. Mrs. J. Safe and Mrs. D. Dine, the collectors for this month, have to date collected the sum of $33.80, of which amount $5.00 will be paid into the Merchants' Bank for the Patriotic Fund; $7.00 to the Colorado Jewish Consumptive Relief Fund, and the balance, $21.80, will be contributed to the Ladies' Jewish aPtriotic Fund of Russia. A part of this fund was given by some of the local gentiles, and the Ladies wish to thank them kindly for same.

COUGHED CONTINUALLY

Day and night—Man says nothing Helped but Vinol

That statement does not surprise us. We have told the people of Belleville many times during the last ten years that Vinol is the greatest remedy for chronic coughs and colds that we ever sold. Mr. Dunning says:

"I took a heavy cold which settled into a chronic cough. It seemed as though I coughed continually day and night, so I could not sleep. I was all run-down and so weak I could hardly keep about. I tried different cough medicines but seemed to get worse instead of better. I went to the drug store and got a bottle of Vinol. Before it was half gone I was better and its continued use cured my cough built me up and I am feeling fine." Benj. Dunning, 208 Tenth Ave. Scranton, Pa.

Vinol is not a palliative like cough syrups, but it is a constitutional remedy for coughs, colds and bronchitis, which removes the cause and stops the cough, and the recovery of Mr. Dunning was due to the beef and cod liver peptones, iron and manganese peptones and glycerophosphates which are contained in Vinol. ## BELLEVILLE BOY WOUNDED AT FRONT

Mrs. Edward Clarke, residing at 103 Cedar Street, Belleville, has received the following telegram::

Sincerely regret to inform you 412093, Pte. William Edward Clarke, Infantry, officially reported wounded, Sept. 26th, 1916. Will send further particulars when received.

Officers in charge of Records.

PTE DINGMAN KILLED AT THE FRONT

Mrs. S. H. Dingman, residing on 175 Bridge Street, east, Belleville, yesterday received the following sad message:

OTTAWA, Oct. 26th 1916
Mrs. S. H. Dingman,
Belleville, Ont.

Deeply regret to inform you that 8,200, Private William Andrew Dingman officially reported killed in action on October 6th 1916.

Officer in charge
Record Office

Private Dingman referred to was well known in Belleville, and was much respected by a large circle of friends. He was 28 years of age and unmarried. He enlisted in Belleville when the war first broke out and left with the first contingent. He was under command of Capt. E. D. O'Flynn and but few of his comrades of that battalion are surviving. Private Dingman at one time owned a garage on Campbell Street in this city. In addition to the mother, one brother, Harry, of Detroit, and two sisters Mrs. M. S. Hogle, of Belleville and Mrs. Snellgrove survive. To the bereaved will be extended the heartfelt sympathy of relatives and friends.

In and About The City

QUIET IN POLICE CIRCLES

Everything was fast night and today exceptionally quiet in Police Circles. There were no arrests and no calls to answer.

WILL OPERATE ALL WINTER

The Canada Cement Company, Plant No. 5, at Point Ann, has decided to keep the plant in operation all winter. This will be welcome news to the residents of the Point and district.

LIEUT HOAG WOUNDED

In today's casualty list appears the name of Lieut. E. S. Hoag, Trenton, reported wounded. Lieut. Hoag is well known in Belleville having been in command of platoon No. 13 of D. Company, 80th Battalion, and went overseas with that Battalion His many friends will hope his wounds are of a slight nature.

WAGGON OVERTURNED

Last night a man was driving a team attached to a waggon, upon which was a rack which had been used for conveying hogs, when on the Kingston road he drove too close to a ditch, with the result the waggon was overturned. Fortunately the man was not injured, and no serious damage resulted.

ACCIDENTALLY KILLED

Word has been received in the city that Private Thomas Hillier, who was known to many in Belleville, had been accidentally killed at the front. Deceased was an Englishman, unmarried, who lived in this city for some time. Pte. Hillier was musically inclined, and was an excellent clarionet player. For some time he was connected with the 15th Battalion band. He left this city for the West, where he enlisted. What Battalion he enlisted with is not known. As to how he met his death was not explained in a letter which was received here from a Belleville boy, who is doing his bit at the front.

Plead Guilty To Robbing Store

Three Men Implicated In The Act—Arrested and Brought to County Jail in This City

County Counstables L. Soule, of Belleville and Barnes of Marmora village at an early hour yesterday morning had quite an experience but were successful in their object. It will be remembered that about a week ago Mr. Fitzgerald's store was during the night broken into and a considerable quantity of merchandise was stolen. A young man named Isaac Seelyeh, of Belleville, was arrested here charged with the offence and a shirt and a pair of boots stolen from the store, he was wearing at the time. Two other parties were implicated and it was learned that they were hiding in the woods in the vicinity of Marmora. Constable Barnes asked for assistance in securing the parties and County Constable Soules was sent out. At 5 o'clock yesterday morning the two constables visited the woods and after tramping about some time came across a shack and there the accused were found. They were Isaac Wright, a married man (who it is said is a deserter from the 155th Battalion) and Thomas Smith aged 16 years. The parties were taken to Marmora and locked up. Later in the day the three accused were brought up before the magistrate of that village and they pleaded guilty to burglarizing Fitzgerald's store. As the magistrate had not jurisdiction to try the case they were committed to the County Jail at Belleville for trial and were brought here last evening and locked up. The general impression is that Smith is in appearances, but a mere boy only a tool in the hands of Selyh and Wright. After the arrest of the two latter, Constabels Soule and Barnes made a search with the result that near a lake a considerable quantity of the booty stolen was found hidden away.

A MISSING DESTROYER

Canadian Press Special

LONDON, Oct. 27.—One British torpedo boat destroyer, the Flirt, is missing, a British statement says, and another destroyer, the Nubian, was disabled by a torpedo and ran aground. Nine members of the crew of the Flirt were saved.

RICH WITHOUT GOLD.

People Who Have Refused to Accept Profitable Notoriety.

Many recipients of the coveted V. C. have in the past had tempting offers from music-hall managers to go on the stage and tell their tale and "fight their battles o'er again." A few have succumbed, but the rule has been refusal.

The famous Jack Binns of wireless fame, who kept the S.O.S. signal going when the liner was sinking might have made a fortune many times over if he would have consented to exploit his bravery. But he wouldn't. He said: "I'm a wireless operator, not a music-hall artiste. I'll stick to my job." And, to his lasting honor, he did.

At one of the big exhibitions in America the enthusiastic Scots built a replica of the birthplace of Robbie Burns, the national poet. Then they sent a request to a certain old lady in Scotland, who claims descent from the poet, to come over and sit in the house as a bit of "real local color."

Needless to say, the golden bait was a fine one, especially to an old woman who had never been overburdened with "this world's gear." But she said "Na, na. I'm no gawn tae be stared at by a lot o' silly gowks wha tak' me for a new kin' o' wild beast. I reckon I'll stay in Auld Scotland." And that is what she did.

At the other end of the social scale Royalties who have seen trouble have often been importuned by publishers to pen their experiences. Sometimes the bait has been taken, with a consequent loss of caste.

Some years ago the present King of Spain's mother, Queen Christina, was offered a "king's ransom" by a Yankee editor if she would only consent to allow her son, then under age, to sign an article which would be written for him. She refused, of course.

The Old Man and the Young Witness

The case, as a mater of fact, was of quite a trivial nature; but, for all that, the lawyer, who happened to be a young man, and ambitious, determined to get at any rate some kudos out of it for himself.

So when a diminutive, ragged little urchin took his stand in the witness-box, he decided to make the most of an opportunity and establish a reputation for brilliance at that small boy's expense.

"You say you are fifteen years old?" he scornfully inquired. "Have you got an occupation of any sort?"

"You just loaf about—stand at street corners, and so forth?"

"That's about it, mister."

"No," replied the youth, with lazy indifference.

"Hum! And what does your father do?"

"The old man? Oh, 'e don't do much." And the boy smiled as he drawled out the words.

"You mean," said the lawyer, "that your father is like you—a lazy, worthless, good-for-nothing idler; one of those men who——"

"Maybe 'e is—maybe 'e ain't," interrupted the witness. "Anyway, you can ask 'im yourself. 'E's sittin' there on the jury!"

WESTERN CANADA FARMERS WERE NEVER SO PROSPEROUS

Traffic Manager Hinton of G.T.P. Looks For Large Influx of Settlers From U.S.A. After War

MONTREAL, Oct. 26.—"All indications show that the volume of immigration into Canada from the United States at the close of war will be remarkably large," said Mr. W. P. Hinton, Traffic Manager of the Grand Trunk Railway, who arrived here recently.

Mr. Hinton reports a very gratifying movement of settlers into Western Canada during the past summer. These settlers have been possessed of considerable means and good equipment. They were doubtless attracted by the lower prices of farm lands. which generally prevailed, and by the certainty that even if one crop can be secured, equal to the general yield of last year, the entire purchase price of the land will be regained.

"Western Canada", said Mr. Hinton, "is on the eve of tremendous development and prosperity. Splendid prices have been obtained for the grain. The crop movement was deferred by fully a month, but October weather has been extremely favorable for threshing and shipping, and the grain is now moving freely, and this will further stimulate trade."

"The country districts, at no time within the past year, have been able to secure their full supplies, as it seems quite impossible for Eastern manufacturers to keep the demand supplied promptly. Farmers are exceedingly prosperous; their purchasing power was never so great, and perhaps a striking illustration of this fact is that approximately $2,000,000 more than any other year has been expended by the rural population in the purchase of automobiles. In fact the automobile seems to have become a farm necessity, and even if we are disposed to consider it an extravagance it certainly adds to the joy of living in the agricultural districts of Canada.

"If we had our 150,000 men we have sent to the front with us again, it would take some speeding up of Eastern manufacturers to furnish even the necessities of life in the West."

PROUD TO DO DUTY

Pte. R. Sero, son of Mr. and Mrs. Israel Sero of Tyendinaga Township, was one of the boys from this section to go overseas with the 155th Battalion. Pte. Sero is only a little over 18 years of age, but is proud of the fact that he can aid his country.

APPLES RATHER SCARCE

The apple crop throughout Prince Edward is the poorest for many years. Many farmers are compelled to buy for their own use, and the export trade is very small. At this date last year about 10,000 barrels had gone out of Picton by rail, while only a few hundred barrels have been shipped as yet this year.

DISPUTED RIGHT OF WAY

While returning home in his auto on Monday evening, Mr. Jack Fitzgerald of Maynooth encountered a bear in the road. Bruin disputed the right of way, and refused to move until the machine was brought to a standstill. Even then he was in no hurry to make a getaway. It was after night, and the headlights probably fascinated him.

PROPOSED COUNTY ROAD

With the object of arriving at some definite decision as to the best route to follow in establishing a county road between Bancroft and Belleville the Reeves of the municipalities north of and including Tudor and Cashel, spent Monday and Tuesday travelling over the proposed roads between Bancroft and Millbridge. Three autos were used to convey the party, and the information which they gathered will furnish them plenty of material for argument when the matter comes up for discussion at the December session of the County Council.

OBSEQUIES.

THOMAS PEACOCK

Yesterday the remains of the late Mr. Thomas Peacock, who died in Thurlow Township, were interred in Stoney Settlement cemetery, Tudor Township. At deceased's late residence, Mr. George Perry of the Brethren, conducted a brief service, and Rev. T. Wallace of Eldorado, conducted the burial services at the grave. The bearers were Messrs. W. Holmes, C Imback, E. Norman, C. Sheffield, R. Badgley and L. Bacon.

MRS. MARY WATERS

The funeral of the late Mrs. Mary Waters took place yesterday afternoon from the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Charles Cook, West Bridge street. A number of relatives and friends were present. Rev. E. C. Currie, pastor of John Street Presbyterian church, officiated at the house, also at the interment at Belleville cemetery. Upon the casket were placed a number of floral designs. The bearers were Messrs. S. Vandervoort, N. A. Peterson, W. Riggs, Wm. Carter, A. Tisdale and R. Stevenson.

JEAN PETRIE

Services over the remains of the late Miss Jean C. Petrie were held yesterday afternoon at St. Andrew's church, conducted by Rev. E. C. Currie. Many friends were in attendance, and a number of floral tributes were placed upon the casket. Interment took place at Belleville cemetery. The bearers were Col. Lazier, Col. Stewart, ex-Mayor F. S. Wallbridge, A. Gillen, James A. Roy and A. McGie.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

Mme. KALISH HAS ACTED IN SEVEN LANGUAGES AT PALACE TONIGHT

Critics and other students of the theatre who are not called upon to write their view, discuss frequently the meagre equipment, both as to training and intellectual capacity, of many of our American and English stars. Their criticisms, are in the main, exceedingly well founded. Accident or beauty or both, have been responsible for the creation of a vast number of overnight favorites in the American theatre.

The completeness and severity of the training given foreign-born stars, or those who ultimately become stars, is well exemplified in the case of Bertha Kalich, the famous tragedienne who has just acted for William Fox in what he announces as one of the greatest pictures he has ever produced, the five part photodrama "Slander," which is announced for exhibition at the Palace Theatre, tonight and Saturday, matinee and night. Mme. Kalich has appeared in the spoken drama in seven languages. This wonderful Galician woman, born in Lemberg, appeared when a mere slip of a girl in Bucharest and there, in the Roumanian tongue worked her way to the position of star. Her first American appearance was at the famous Yiddish Theatre on the New York east side, all her American tours have been under the direction of the Shuberts. Three other selected filmplays will also be exhibited in addition to the above special offering.

CELEBRATED ENGLISH ACTOR AT GRIFFIN'S TONIGHT

Hamilton Revelle, the celebrated English actor and Lois Meredith, the dainty stage prima donna, who is now starring in Metro Pictures, divide the stellar honors in "An Enemy to Society" just produced for the screen from the famous story of the same name by George Bronson Howard and which is announced for exhibition at Griffin's Opera House tonight and Saturday, matinee and night. The story of "An Enemy to Society" deals with a modern Robin Hood who has been brought up to think that right and justice are best served by robbing from the rich to give to the poor. His regeneration and ultimate discovery that he has been made the tool for revenge upon his wealthy father, from whom he has been kidnapped as a childs, forms an absorbing romance brimful of the elements of love, mystery and intrigue. In addition to the above five part offering the fifth whirl of the "Musty Suffer" comedy series will be exhibited along with the Pathe English News Gazette.

A MERITORIOUS COMPANY INTERPRET'S "SOME BABY" AT GRIFFIN'S TUESDAY

When the eccentric old professor in the farce comedy "Some Baby" which is to be seen here at Griffin's Opera House next Tuesday night, shouts, "Eureka! I've got it! I've found it!" in the first act and when interrogated with "What!" he answers, "The secret of a lifetime —the invention of the ages. MB work the marvel of the times!" Right at that moment complications begin and a whole lot of them are involved, for the old professor is proclaiming that he has discovered the Elixir of youth—the moving cause of all the mirth of line and situations of this play of such hilarious tendencies. It is a good, clean, wholesome laugh-getter, and its several characters will be interpreted by clever actors, headed by the clever actress Grace Merritt, who will be seen as the daughter of the aged discoverer of old age, assisted by Carolyn Friend, Gertrude Johnson, Celeste Leslie, Dorothy Gray, Don MacMillian, Sterling Chiseldine, Homer Hunt, Sam Black and William Moore among others.

THREE SISTERS ARE VISITED BY STORK

PITTSBURG, Oct., 26—Mrs. Tillie Berkowitz's supply of grandchilren rose from thirty to thirty-three yesterday. Each of her three daughters, Mrs. Dora Berger, Mrs. Ray Bruff and Mrs. Elizabeth Abrams, received a visit from the stork between 7 o'clock in the morning and noon. They're all boys.

THIS IS THE 820TH DAY THE BRITISH EMPIRE HAS BEEN AT WAR WITH GERMANY.

DRAWING THE LINES

Opinion in London is tending toward the view that because the Belgians are being forced to work for the Germans the entente allies should cease Belgian relief efforts. The argument advanced is that the British people should not supply the Belgians with the food without which they would not be capable of working for the country's enemies.

It has a great deal of force, but the remedy proposed is unnecessarily harsh. It would make the Belgians pay the penalty of the German crime, which consists of a violation of The Hague convention which prohibits a victorious army from forcing conquered civilians to work.

A more satisfactory remedy lies at the hand of the American commission which controls the distribution of supplies to the Belgians. It consists of refusing to donate food to any Belgians employed on forced work by the enemy. To secure the benefit of the work of such men Germany must then feed them. The commission has power to enforce such a rule. Powers of a similar nature are being exercised by the commission daily.

Germany's determination to force Belgians to work is an indication of Germany's need for labor to release more men for the field and, back of the London view that supplies to Belgium should be cut off, is the feeling that if the entente allies refused to allow relief work to continue Germany would be compelled to relinquish the forced labor plan. But Germany would do nothing of the kind. It would let the majority of Belgians starve and feed only those from whom it obtained work.

The only real solution of the problem is to pound the Germans out of Belgium. In the meantime the question is one of employing expedients which will do Belgium most good and Germany least good.

.. A FAMOUS ISLAND

The island of Crete, which has become the headquarters of the revolutionary movement in Greece, has had a checkered historical career. For more than 4000 years it has played a leading part in the world's events. Homer speakers of Crete's 100 flourishing cities, with which the Greeks, Phoenicians and Egyptians traded. The Cretans were the allies of Mithradates the Great in that Parthian's negotiations with Rome and a few years later the islanders espoused the cause of the Sicilian pirates, as result of which the Roman general Metellus brought them under the yoke of the Eternal City in 66 B.C.

When the Roman empire was divided Crete was apportioned to the eastern empire and it remained under the Byzantines until 823, when it was captured by piratical Saracens from Andalusia. They held it for 140 years. Then it was redeemed by the Byzantines. During the fourth crusade the island was given to Boniface de Montferrat. He sold it to the Venetians in 1904, who ruled it for more than four centuries.

One of the most prolonged blockades in history was that conducted by the Turks against Crete from 1645 to 1669, when the last port of the island surrendered to Ottoman arms, I was under Turkish and Egyptian domination from that time until Oct. 14, 1912, when it was annexed to Greece.

50¢ FOR A PINE FOREST

People with bronchitis, asthma, and lung troubles benefit very much by living amongst Pine trees. Why? Because they breathe the healthy aroma of the Pines. Peps contain beneficial Pine essences, together with their medicinal ingredients; and for 50c. you may bring into your home a veritable Pine forest. Peps are tablets made up of Pine extracts and medicinal essences, which when put into the mouth turn into healing vapors. These are breathed down direct to the lungs, throat and bronchial tubes—not swallowed down to the stomach, which is not ailing. Try a 50c. box of Peps for your cold, your cough, bronchitis or asthma. All druggists and stores or Peps Co., Toronto, will supply

BLAMES BOURASSA

Recruiting appears to be on the increase in the Province of Quebec, due, it is said, to the patriotic efforts of such men as the Secretary of State. Mr. Blondin has been urging the French Canadians of Quebec to fight for the allied cause. This has been his occupation while Sir Wilfrid Laurier, he who was to "stump Quebec," has been devoting his waning energies to silly stage plays in connection with the Parliament Buildings, playing party politics as he has always done and will do.

Quoting from an Old Country newspaper a statement that the French-Canadians were not sympathetic with the cause of the Allies, Mr. Blondin said this:—"I do not know how such a false impression could have been gained unless it is through the writings of a certain Bourassa who has taken up an attitude in Canada which is inimical to the interests of France in that he advises no one of his fellow countrymen to give military aid. Rather his articles seem to show sympathy with the cause of the Germans if anything."

◆

The leaders of Railway Labor organizations in the United States say that "Since the abolition of slavery no more effectual means has been devised for insuring the bondage of the working man than the passage of compulsory investigation acts of the character of the Canadian industrial Disputes Act." This is very very hard on Hon. Rodolphe Lemineux, Hon. Mackenzie King and other Liberals who have held the title of champion of the working man in Canada.

Sir Robert Borden's impressive appeal to the management of the C. P. R. and the company's employees who had decided to strike has had the effect intended. Representatives of the two parties to the dispute have been in consultation at Winnipeg and a decision reached. Fortunately for the country, the decision is in favor of peace. There will be no strike, and the chief railway transportation system of the country will not be tied up, as was threatened.

Montreal Gazette: Sir Robert Borden has issued an address to the people of Canada setting forth the needs of the war situation and appealing to men of military age to place themselves freely at the disposition of their country for such service as they are deemed best fitted to perform, and to the people generally to assist and co-operate with the Government and the directors of national service in the duty which the situation has placed upon them. His statements go direct to the point. There is no complaining or criticism or allegation of failure. There has been no future.

Current Comment

We suppose that W. Laurier didn't see the walls of the Parliament Buildings coming down because his gaze was fixed on higher things.

It is announced that Hon. J. A. Calder, who did not succeed Mr. Scott as Premier of Saskatchewan, will enter Dominion politics. It is understood that Mr. Calder has aspirations to succeed Sir Wilfrid Laurier as leader in the House of Commons

You've got to hand it to Laval students when it comes to strategy. They attack a recruiting station where there are no soldiers and they entrench themselves against a church where they thought the police wouldn't dare follow them.

The Government refused to accept any of the tenders for the new terminal station at Halifax because the prices were too high. Doubtless the Opposition will discover in this an opportunity for launching a couple of charges of extravagance and graft. ..

Le Devoir maintains that among the elements of the Canadian population, "recruiting is in inverse ratio to the degree of attachment to the soil." Quite so. The only people who are more attached to the soil than Mr. Bourassa are the occupants of the cemeteries.

THE ANGLER LIES

The angler lies, 'tis sad to say,
Beneath the imputation
Of having often given way
To gross exaggeration.

The angle lies, his wife avers,
Exposed to many dangers,
But heeds that stage advice of hers
No more than any stranger's.

The angler lies in wait, with hook
And line and rod and reel;
And, hap, at night he brings the cook
A bullhead or an eel.

The angler lies forever at
The mercy of mosquitoes,
Of stinging fly, and biting gnat,
And other blood depleters.

The angler lies beneath the spell
Of every specious thiever
Who has a wabbling frog to sell,
Or other brass-deceiver.

The angler lies—but I surmise
That this is idle chat;
We'll merely say, "The angler lies
And let it go at that.

FIRST TRAIN OPERATED TORONTO TO MONTREAL SIXTY YEARS AGO TO-DAY

MONTREAL, Oct. 27.—This is the sixtieth anniversary of the inauguration of railroad communication between the cities of Montreal and Toronto. On October 27th, 1856, the Grand Trunk operated its first through train between these two important Canadian centres.

Toronto and Montreal had been dependent for their communication upon the St. Lawrence waterway and the stage routes, and after the close of navigation each year, intercourse was maintained with great difficulty. The Grand Trunk Railway Company was incorporated in 1852, to build a railroad between the cities, the undertaking being looked upon as one of great national importance. The first section from Montreal to Brockville, 125 miles, was completed in November, 1855, and it was on the 27th of October of the following year, that the second section from Brockville to Toronto, was thrown open, joining up the two principal centres.

The Company had promised the people of Canada that it would provide these new facilities for travel during the winter of 1856, and it accomplished its pledge in spite of many difficulties. The general manager of the road in his report to the directors in the following year said, "Notwithstanding all these obstacles the trains were enabled to run with a regularity which was not surpassed, and in the majority of cases not equalled, by any railroad on the continent."

The first train to operate over the Toronto-Montreal line was the forerunner of The International Limited of to-day. It represented the last word in railroad equipment, although it only consisted of three first class and three second class coaches. The operating schedule was a fast one for those days. The eastbound train left Toronto at 7.00 a.m., and the westbound train left Montreal at 7.30 a.m., and the running time was fourteen hours between the two cities as against the seven and one-half hours of The International Limited of to-day.

The first train from Toronto was greeted on arrival in Montreal by thousands of visitors from all parts of Canada and the United States. There were military parades, trade and society processions, torchlight marches, fireworks and dancing.

The Mayors of Boston, Cleveland and Portland, and representatives of the City of Chicago, congratulated the Mayors of Montreal and Toronto and the proceedings were graced by the Governor General of Canada. The Point St. Charles shops of the Grand Trunk were turned into a great banquet hall with seating accommodation for 4,400 guests, and every table was crowded. Speeches were made by the Governor General, the Governor of the State of Maine, and other notabilities. The Mayor of Montreal alluded with pride to the fact that the Grand Trunk owned 849 miles of railroad; to-day the Grand Trunk System comprises 8,115 miles of road. Montreal newspapers, in describing the banquet hall, said, that the table-cloth was close upon one mile in length.

One of the ceremonies in connection with the opening of the line, was a visit to the Victoria Bridge, then under course of construction with two abutments and nine piers out of twenty-four already built. Barges, steamboats and sleighs in the winter served to move passenger freight traffic across the St. Lawrence to join up with the railroad line to the Atlantic seaboard. The Company's officials were looking forward with confidence to the new traffic which the steamship "Great Eastern," planned in connection with the through booking arrangements of the Grand Trunk, would bring to the line.

Five months after the opening of the road between Toronto and Montreal, night trains were added to the schedule and railway history gives many complimentary accounts of the excellence of the accommodation provided. The first sleeping coach ever made for any railroad in the world was built at Hamilton, Ont.

The Grand Trunk is justly proud to-day of the fact that it was Canada's pioneer railroad and takes especial pride in the fact that it has led the way in a very large number of the most important improvements in connection with railroad transportation, and that it is pursuing the same progressive policy in initiating or adopting all modern devices, making for the safety and comfort of its patrons.

LETTERS FROM OVERSEAS

FROM RAY SERVISS

Sept. 18, 1916.

Dear Mother and Father,—Just a few lines to let you know that I am well. You must excuse me for not writing before, but it seemed just when ever I started to write somebody came along, and that was as far as I got. I saw Harold Knight several times. I wouldn't have seen him only he had some snapshots that were taken at the telephone office, and was showing them to some of the fellows, and they told me about him. I received the strawberries all right; the jar leaked, but they tasted good. I received a parcel from Mrs. Walker of Toronto, last night. I was talking to Captain Hudson yesterday, and he told me that Vandervoort was killed. He was lucky up to this time and at the last he was killed.

Well, I guess I will have to say goodbye for this time. Love to all. Answer soon.

Your loving son,
RAY.

Indigestion Resulted From an Inactive Liver

The Bowels Became Constipated and the Whole Digestive System Upset

With many people constipation becomes a habit. And it is a dangerous habit which is certain sooner or later to cause serious disease.

"Daily movement of the bowels" is the first and most important rule of health. When the liver becomes torpid the flow of bile into the intestines is stopped and the bowels become constipated. But you can readily overcome this condition by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. There is no treatment obtainable which so promptly awakens the activity of the liver and bowels and thereby corrects derangements of the digestive system.

Mrs. Herbert Doherty of Beaver Brook, Albert Co., N. B. writes: "I can truthfully say that Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are a great medicine for constipation. I have suffered from constipation ever since I can remember, but got to using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and was so benefited that I began to study this malady. I found that the indigestion resulted from a bad case of inactive liver, and as soon as I got the liver working right I didn't have any stomach trouble or indigestion. I cannot praise this medicine too highly, and would advise anyone suffering from indigestion or constipation to use Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. My husband also claims that these pills have done him more good than any medicine he ever used. You are at liberty to use this letter."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills positively relieve and cure torpid liver, constipation, biliousness, indigestion, backache and kidney disease. Put it to the test. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto.

AUTOINTOXICATION IS A FORM OF BLOOD POISONING

Autointoxication means that you allow your system to become poisoned from the refuse matter absorbed by the blood.

Nature makes provision to guard against this. An active vigorous outdoor life tends to keep the bowels and kidneys working well, the pores of the skin open and the poison is excreted daily from the body.

In our modern method of living the great majority of adult people take little or no exercise, with the result that the kidneys and bowels become irritated in their effort to free the blood from these poisonous gases. Constipation, indigestion and disturbed stomach with more or less nervousness, is caused by the absorption of this poison into the blood and you have little or no energy to do any work. Autointoxication is the main cause of a great many skin diseases from a few pimples or blackheads to the worst kind of Eczema and it keeps the whole system in an unhealthy condition by the constant absorption of the refuse matter. There is one sure method of treating this serious and dangerous disease which is so prevalent and that is to keep the bowels open with Dr. Norvall's Stomach and Tonic Tablets. They not only act as a mild and gentle laxative but they also prevent the formation of gas, assist digestion and tone up the system in general. Will you prove this statement by going to Lattimer's Drug Store and procuring a bottle of these Tablets and if they fail to do what we claim for them Mr. Lattimer will refund your money. These Tablets are sold at the leading Drug Stores throughout Canada and in Belleville they are sold onlny at Lattimers Drug Store. o27, n3&10

Donald McMaster, M. P. on Conscription

On the eve of the re-opening of the British Parliament, the Weekly Despatch puts to several of the members the questions:—"What ought to be done this session?" Among the answers published is the excellent one given by Mr. Donald MacMaster, the Canadian K. C. who sits for the Chertsey Division of Surrey. It is as follow: —

1. Apply conscription to every part of the United Kingdom.
2. Provide that our sailors, soldiers and munition workers shall have the opportunity to vote at the next election.
3. Provide that the disabled sailors and soldiers shall be shepherded, here and in our great Dominions and given the opportunity to resume civil life within the Empire.
4. Tell the Government that war is war—that the full power of our fleet must be asserted in stopping imports into Germany, directly or indirectly; that Roumania must be backed up, and that there must be no more nonsense with Greece.

Donald is as he generally is—Right.

LIFE AT SEA

While seamen of experience are required in some branches of naval service, recruits with little or no previous sea training can be placed in the larger ships, where, side by side with seasoned comrades, knowledge of life and fighting routine on a battleship can be acquired by the intelligent and keen recruit in less time than a landsman would deem possible. The life of a sailor on a Dreadnought, destroyer or cruiser is not a hard one, and Canadians should welcome the opportunity to identify themselves with this branch of the service of the Empire.

No soldier or shell could have left Canada but for the work of the British Navy; and this fact alone should appeal to Canadians—enjoying, even in these war times, prosperity made possible only by the protection of the British Navy—as good and sufficient reason for identifying themselves with the navy as well as with the army in the present struggle for the life and liberty of the British Empire.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH WEST LAND REGULATIONS.

The sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at any Dominion Lands Agency (but not Sub-Agency) on certain conditions.

Duties—Six months residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required, except where residence is performed in the vicinity.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Six months residence in each of three years after earning homestead patent; also 50 acres extra cultivation. Pre-emption patent may be obtained as soon as homestead patent, on certain conditions.

A settler who has exhausted his homestead right may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.

The area of cultivation is subject to reduction in case of rough, scrubby or stony land. Live stock may be substituted for cultivation under certain conditions.

If Your Hair is Coming Out Read This

Thousands of people suffer from baldness and falling hair who, having tried nearly all advertised hair-tonic and hair-grower without results, have resigned themselves to baldness and its attendant discomfort. Yet their case is not hopeless; the following simple home prescription has made hair grow after years of baldness, and is so unequalled for restoring gray hair to its original color, stopping hair from falling out and destroying the dandruff germ. It will not make the hair greasy, and can be put up by any druggist; Bay Rum 6 ounces; Lavona de Composee, 2 ounces; Menthol Crystals, one-half drachm. If you wish it perfumed, add one drachm of your favorite perfume. This preparation is highly recommended by physicians and specialists, and is absolutely harmless, as it contains none of the poisonous wood alcohol so frequently found in hair tonics. Ladies should be careful not to apply to face or where hair is not desired.

Train[illegible] for Farm Women.

In several counties of England a system of short courses for the training of women in farm work has been adopted. The course takes two weeks, and the training consists of whatever work may be going on at the time, such as weeding corn, hoeing roots, milking, dairying generally, hay-making, etc. Students for dairying instruction are required to be at the dairy farm at 6 a.m., but the schedule for the general day runs like this: Rising, 6 a.m.; breakfast, 7 a.m.; assemble for work, 7.45; start work, 8; dinner, 12 to 1; cease work, 5 p.m.; meat tea, 5.45; bed time, 9; lights out, 9.30. Each student is required to pay five shillings per week toward the cost of board, lodging, and instruction, and is paid three pence per hour for work accomplished. It is stated that the wages generally more than cover the board and lodging fee.

OTTAWA BOY RETURNS.

Robert Dollar Who Started as Dishwasher Now a Millionaire.

On a cool crisp fall day seven and fifty years ago, a young Scotch lad clad in homespuns, walked into the Ottawa office of Hiram Robinson, lumberman, and demanded a job. He got it—washing dishes and cleaning stables up in the shanties at ten dollars a month.

A few days ago the erstwhile shanty boy returned to Ottawa for a brief stay—Robert Dollar, multimillionaire western lumberman and vessel owner, pioneer of trade between North America and the Orient, friend and confidante of Chinese president, and regarded as one of the fifty greatest men in the United States.

"Yes," said Mr. Dollar, "Mr. Robinson gave me my first job, way back in 1859, and I started in at the bottom washing dishes up in the shanties, and I don't regret it: for today, if I go up into one of my Coast camps and see the dish boy making a poor job of things I can set right in and show him just how things should be done."

From chore boy, Mr. Dollar worked his way to the top of the lumber business, leaving Mr. Robinson to go up to Muskoka, and then, at the end of the Civil War, crossing to Marquette, Michigan, and entering business on his own account. An ardent student of Horace Greely, the advice 'Go West, young man' sank deep into the lumberman's mind. As a result he was unsatisfied until the shores of the Pacific came within his ken. And even then a hankering for still further 'westing' remained. His lumber business increased until he was forced to build vessels to carry his wood, and finally he entered the trans-Pacific transport business with such success that to-day the Robert Dollar houseflag is as well known in the Chinese treaty ports and those of the Russian orient as it is in Vancouver and 'Frisco.

To-day eight great Clyde built freighters are running to the Orient, and, thanks to the American Seaman's Act, every one now flies the Union Jack and has its home port in Vancouver instead of San Francisco. Their owner, with whom lies much of the credit for opening Oriental markets for American products, stated to-day that as one result of the transfer of his vessels to a Canadian port, he would devote every effort to building up a new market for Dominion-made goods in the Far East.

Mr. Dollar has just completed the purchase of a quarter of a mile of deep set frontage on the North shore of Burrard's Inlet near Vancouver, where, the moment he returns to the coast, work will be commenced on a vast lumber mill designed to manufacture Canadian timber for the markets of the Orient.

Naturally reminiscences occupied the bulk of the conversation between Mr. Dollar and his old employer, Mr. Robinson recently. The former recollected the day when he brought the first saw logs over the Chaudiere, and then tried to run them through the Kettle, with somewhat disastrous results, for they jammed, and as Mr. Dollar remarked, "We had the very dickens of a time."

After this jam, it was decided to run the logs through the North slide. Mr. Dollar's narrative of the incident follows:

"We let 'em in one by one, and they went through fine; so well that I kept shouting 'Let 'em come' faster and faster. And they came—so fast that we had another jam, and backed the water right up through Eddy's match factory. Then Mr. Eddy came out and he talked to me quite a lot, in fact he called me a 'cussed fool,' among other things. I just told him not to waste my time talking, if he wanted me to break the jam up. He stopped and sat down on the bank watching me. Then I got busy, and, after I had finished the job, he came over to me and said: 'Young man, I gave you an awful talking to just now, but after seeing you move those logs, it's up to me to take my hat off to you, instead of calling you a fool.'"

Ask Prisoners' Help.

While the Canadian Red Cross has been voted $10,000 for the purchase of supplies for prisoners of war in Germany, it is stated by some of the prisoners themselves that they are asked by the Red Cross to contribute 10 shillings per month for two parcels. In explaining the matter, Mr. Beverley MacInnes, recording secretary of the Canadian Red Cross, referred to the statement of Mrs. Evelyn Rivers-Bulkely, who has charge of the Prisoners of War Department of the Red Cross in London. It reads in part: "The suggestion was made to them by the Pay Office, who thought, I consider quite rightly, that many of the men might be glad of an opportunity of helping themselves, instead of being entirely dependent on funds subscribed by the public. It is, however, of course, quite voluntary, and a good many have written to say they are unable to agree to the suggestion."

A report says that the Prisoners of War Department of the society has now a list of 2,200, and that a very large number of men recently captured have sent postcards assigning part of their pay for supplying parcels.

MILITARY CROSS TO CANADIAN CHAPLAINS

One Montreal and Two Ontario Chaplains Mentioned as Being Honored

LONDON, Oct. 28.—Special—One Montreal and two Ontario chaplains have been awarded the Military Cross for bravery in ministering to wounded on the field. They are Captain A. H. McGree, R.O., of Christ Church Cathedral, Montreal; Captain W. B. Kidd, of Kingston, and Captain W. R. Thompson, also of Ontario.

An application to transfer the case against Warrant Officer Archibald Gillies from a court-martial to a civil tribunal has been refused. Gillies is being tried in connection with defalcations in the accounts of the Duchess of Connaught Hospital at Cliveden. Col. Gorrell, who was in charge of the hospital, will remain in England until the court-martial has concluded.

Captains J. E. Paquin and C. W. Shelly have proceeded to the Mediterranean for chaplain duty.

Rev. Major Ogorman of Ottawa, and Capt. C. R. Masters are making good progress in recovering from their wounds.

Rural Post Masters Ask More Money

Association Gives $2,000 to Hon. Mr. Casgrain For Patriotic Funds

OTTAWA, Oct., 27—That the salaries of the rural Postmasters are not commensurate with the duties involved and entirely disproportionate to those paid in the city offices was the contention of a delegation of the Association of Rural Postmasters, which waited upon the Postmaster General today. The delgation consisted of H. E. Proctor, Secretary of the Association; J. V. Borque, Postmaster of Shediac, N. B.; A. B. Foran, Postmaster of Winona, Ont.; A. A. Wright, Postmaster of Renfrew, Ont.. They went carefully into the whole situation and placed their claims for equality before the Minister.

Before doing so, however, the Secretary presented Mr. Casgrain with a cheque for $2,000 to be apportioned as he considered best among the various patriotic funds. This makes a total of $13,000 collected by the Postmasters Association for the Red Cross, Belgian and Patriotic Funds since the war commenced.

Mr. Casgrain expressed his satisfaction at the munificence and patriotism of the association and assured them that the facts set before him would have his most earnest consideration.

WOODSTOCK'S GIVINGS TWO DOLLARS PER HEAD

WOODSTOCK, Oct. 28.—Special.—Woodstock's contributions to the Red Cross Fund will be $20,000, or two dollars per head of the population as computed by the assessment department this year.

Thirteen teams completed a two-day canvass this evening, and at a meeting after the close of the campaign a total collection of $11,514 was announced. In addition to this the City Council has voted one mill on the dollar by assessment, amounting to $5,700. The Water and Light Commission has contributed $1,000, and promised individual contributions aggregating in the neighborhood of $2,000 are still to be received.

ARRANGING TO WINTER 230TH

BROCKVILLE, Oct. 28.—Officers of the 230th Battalion, with a representative of the Headquarters Staff, were here to-day making arrangements for wintering at least 500 members of that unit, which has been recruited at Ottawa. The buildings at the Fair Grounds will be utilized.

Moral, those who herald their wares with proper advertising will wax fat and have the glad feeling.

NORWEGIAN SHIP SUNK

British Steam Trawler Sunk and Crew Imprisoned in Germany

Canadian Press Special.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—The Norwegian steamer Bygdo has been sunk; Norwegian steamer Fritzoo taken int Cuxhaven, and the British steam trawler Fuchsia sunk and her crew imprisoned in Germany.

CROWDING THE BORDER

Germans are Now Within Twenty Miles of Roumanian Frontier, Reaching Campulung

Canadian Press Special.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—A Chronicle despatch from Petrograd, says German troops have reached Campulung, twenty miles within the Roumanian border, and eighty miles northwest of Bucharest.

BERLIN ANNOUNCES GERMAN VICTORY ON BUKOWINA FRONTIER

Canadian Press Special.

BERLIN, Oct. 28.—The Teutonic troops have won a victory in Dorna Watra region, near Juniction, a point on the frontier of Bukowina, Transylvania, and Roumania, according to to-day's war office announcement. The Austrian forces captured several heights from the Russians at the point of bayonet and took more than five hundred prisoners.

On the northern frontier of Roumania, the Austro-German forces captured from the Roumanians a height in the region south of Kronstadt, and their advance into Partzuga Valley..

PRINCE EDWARD COUNTY TEACHERS

Instructive Lectures and One-page Papers Given

PICTON, Oct. 27.—Prince Edward County Teachers' Institute held a very successful convention in Picton yesterday and to-day, with 106 teachers registered. Inspector J. E. Benson presided, and a bright and attractive program was presented. Lively discussions on live educational subjects were features of the convention. Prof. David White, B.A., of Toronto Normal School, gave instructive lectures on "Modern Methods in Geography" Methods," during the day session, Methods," during the day sessions, and an illustrated lecture on the British navy at the evening session, where all enjoyed a pleasant informal evening. Refreshments were served. One page papers by many of the teachers were very instructive and interesting.

ACCEPT JAPANESE OFFER

Next World's Sunday School Association Convention in Tokio

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—An invitation of the Japanese to hold the next convention of the World's Sunday School Association in Tokio, has been accepted, it was announced today by the world's committee, which held a meeting here. The convention will be held after the close of the war. The invitation was brought by B. Okura, in a message from the Japanese committee, of which Marquis Okuma, former Premier of Japan, is chairman.

Thomas Robinson Ferens, a member of the British Parliament, was elected president of the association by the committee, succeeding the late Sir Robert Laidlaw, of London. The association, it is said, represents 304,000 Sunday Schools in all countries and has a membership of 31,000,000. It was announced that the organization is carrying out plans for sending a million new testaments to the soldiers in the trenches, hospitals and prison camps, to be contributed by American Sunday School children.

C. P. R. MEN EAST WANT SAME RATES AS WEST

Say Conductors and Trainmen Will soon Serve Notice on the Company

LONDON, Ont., Oct. 28—Local C. P. R. men say that notice will be served soon by the conductors and trainmen of the east ending the agreement with the company. They will demand equal rates with the western employees on the ground that it costs as much to live in eastern as in western Canada.

Relations of Countries Are Very Strained

German Submarines Sinking Norwegian Shipping as if Nations Were at War—Norway Very Pro-British

LONDON, Oct. 27.—Regarding the situation between Germany and Norway as a result of the numerous sinkings recently the Daily Chronicle in an editorial this morning says:

The relations between Germany and Norway are in a critical state, and the situation deserves attention.

The present phase began with the declaration of the Norwegian Government that the navigation of its territorial waters would be forbidden to all foreign submarines of whatever nationality and whatever character. A similar declaration was made some months earlier by the Swedish Government and was not resented by Germany.

BRIDEGROOM ARRESTED

Charged With Desertion From The 241st Battalion

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Oct. 28.—Special.—The pleasant romance of a man named Hugh O'Neil and his bride came to an abrupt and unhappy conclusion yesterday, when he was arrested by Provincial Officer MacNamara. O'Neil was a member of the 241st Battalion, but, according to the police, deserted from that unit on September 1st. He had received cheques to the amount of $105 and went to London, where he got married and crossed the border.

CHRISTMAS FOR THE BOYS

The Rainbow Club of The Women's Patriotic and Red Cross Asso. Have Another Big Consignment Ready

The first of next week the Women's Patriotic Association of this city, through the industrious knitting department, the Rainbow Club, will ship to Belleville soldier boys overseas, forty boxes of Christmas gifts, each box containing from 12 to 15 smaller packages addressed individually to Belleville soldiers in the trenches. These smaller boxes are novelties in themselves; the receptacies are made of heavy manilla material, inscribed on the cover "Women's Patriotic and Red Cross Association-Rainbow Club" and containing one can of meat or fish; a can of cocoa or coffee, a can of soup; two packages of cigarettes or pipe and tobacco, two packages of chewing gum; two candles; a bag of peanuts, a bag of small candies; a can of pork and beans; and the crevices filled with clove apples and hickory nuts. Accompanying each individual box will be a pair of hand-made socks, a pad of paper and package of envelopes, a cake of soap and washcloth.

Each large box will be consigned to one particular Belleville boy (Ted Yeomans for instance) with instructions to distribute the smaller packages to those in his battalion, and should any be left over, to be given to a Belleville boy elsewhere.

Boxes will also go to Shorncliffe and other hospitals, for Belleville patients, and wherever our boys may be, including Saloniki, these Christmas gifts will seek them out.

This is but one instance of the great work our busy ladies have been doing since the war started; this particular branch of the Patriotic Societies donated many gifts, recently, including 720 pairs of socks to the 155th Battalion, individually, also 100 pairs to the Quartermaster, for distribution on shipboard upon leaving. Also, two weeks before 800 pairs of socks were forwarded to Miss (Captain) Plummer at Shorncliffe. A full list of school and other gifts forwarded will be published later.

As an evidence of the amount of knitting our Rainbow Club ladies have been doing, $3,000 worth of yarn has been turned into socks, all of which has been paid for by their own efforts, in giving teas, entertainments, and other means.

All hail the beautiful spirit that has been shown by the mothers, the sisters, the wives, the friends, of our brave lads who are seeing service at the front.

BRAIN NO LONGER FORBIDDEN GROUND

Advance in Brain Surgery Demonstrated at Clinical Congress in Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 27.—Brain surgery is now about in the same place where abdominal surgery was a generation ago, according to Dr. H. L. Northrup, of this city, who was one of the chief clinicians to-day at the many operations performed in the presence of members of the Clinical Congress of Surgeons of North America, now in session here. "There was a time when surgeons were reluctant to operate for abdominal diseases," he said. "Such operations are now common and similarly the brain is no longer forbidden ground."

Dr. Northrup demonstrated by performing a delicate operation on the brain of a man who was compelled to walk sideways because of a tumor on the brain. He also demonstrated an operation designed to cure epilepsy by the same method of opening the skull and relieving the brain pressure.

How tendons can be made from silk fibre and substituted for tendons crippled by infantile paralysis, was shown at another clinic by Dr. J. K. Young, Philadelphia. The subject was an eight-year-old girl. This substitution, it was claimed, would reduce the convalescent period to a few months.

At the election of officers last night, Dr. John G. Clarke, of Philadelphia, was elected president of the Congress; Dr. Geo. H. Lee, of Galveston, first vice-president, and Dr. Edgar W. Allan, of Edmonton, Alberta, second vice-president.

New York was chosen as the next meeting place.

FEAR 14 CANADIANS LOST WITH CABOTIA

Two Boats With Captain and 30 Men Missing Since The Vessel Was Struck

LONDON, Oct. 28—Special.—Two boats containing the captain and sixteen members of the crew of the Donaldson liner Cabotia and fourteen Canadian horsemen have not been sighted since the Cabotia was sunk last Monday. It is feared that the men perished, unless they were picked up by an outward bound vessel.

It was announced in London last Monday that the Cabotia, a vessel of 4,300 tons, was believed to have been sunk. The announcement gave no details.

ADVERSE NEWS FROM BERLIN

Claim Repulse of Allies at Lesboeufs, and French at Verdun

BERLIN, Oct. 28.—The War Office announces today, British attacks yesterday between Guedrecourt and Lesboeufs. Allied attacks northeast of Morval and French attacks on Verdun front were repulsed. The Russians have renewed their attacks west of Lutsk in Volhyne. An attack yesterday near Seatureze after two days artillery preparation failed completely with heavy loss to Russians.

BAD WEATHER IN MACEDONIA

Violent Cannonading in The Region of Cerna—Little Else to Report

Canadian Press Special.

PARIS, Oct. 28.—Bad weather continues, and there is nothing to report beyond violent cannonading in the region of the Gerna, says to-day's French official statement, regarding operations on the Macedonian front.

Our neighbors over the line have a Thanksgiving Day and an election to get off their minds.

INDICATIONS OF TREMENDOUS RUSSIAN OFFENSIVE IN GALICIA

Canadian Press Special

SECOND SON KILLED

Word has been received at Hamilton, that Lieut. E. P. Daw, son of Major) Rev. Samuel Daw, Chaplain of the 120th Batt., has been killed in action. He is the second son of Major and Mrs. Daw to fall in action. Their son, Lieut. Herbert Daw, was killed several months ago. Two sons are now at the front. The late Lieut. Daw had served at Gallipoli and in Egypt, and was later sent to France. He was attached to a Worcestershire Regiment. The Rev. S. Daw will be remembered by Bellevillians as having been rector of Christ Church, this city, for some time.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Mr. Sandy Grant of Tweed, and M. P. P. for East Hastings, was in the city to-day.

The Right Rev. Dr. Mills, Bishop of Ontario, and Mrs. Mills, will be in town to-morrow, the guests of Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Blagrave.

Mrs. W. H. Poldon of Norwich, has returned home after a two weeks visit to her sister, Mrs. W. Mathison, Pine Street, Belleville.

Mrs. P. J. M. Anderson, having rented her home to the staff of the 235th Battalion, will leave the first of the week for Edmonton, and will be accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. J. D. Ponton.

A Merited Commendation

Mrs. Howard Huff,
Massassaga Red Cross Society,
Hill Hurst Farm.
Rossmore, Ont.

Dear Madam:—I am very pleased to say that your shipment of July 6th, has come to hand, been opened and found to check up correctly with your enclosed lists.

We are very grateful indeed for your valuable assistance, and beg that you will convey our gratitude to those concerned in the excellent consignment we have received. You have done good work, seeing you have only been organized a year.

I can well understand that, considering how generously you have given, your funds must, from time to time, need replenishing. I sincerely hope that your efforts in this respect, will meet with success, and I am with you, for we can give you so much valuable information.. With grateful thanks.

Sincerely yours,
Eleanor McLaren Brown,
Hon. Sec.,
Ladies Committee,
C. W. C. A.

This consignment was shipped by Miss Falkiner.

Large Market Today

Much farm produce was offered for sale today, on the Belleville market. Prices, as usual were high, especial ly for some articles.

Fresh dairy butter was rather scarce and sold readily at 40cts. by the basket lots, and 42cts. by the single pound.

Strictly fresh eggs were sold at 42cts. and 43cts. per dozen. In some cases basket lots were obtained for 40cts.

Dressed chickens were plentiful, and varied in price according to size and quality. They sold at from $1.00 to $1.50 per pair. Ducks sold at $1.50 to $2.00 per pair, and a few geese offered for sale realized $2 each.

Potatoes are a rather scarce vegetable. The ruling price was 40cts. a peck, and $2 a bag was paid.

Garden produce, such as lettuce, celery, beets and parsnips, were easily disposed of at remunerative prices.

OLD HOTEL CLOSES

British-American at Kingston, Has Run For 120 Years

KINGSTON, Oct. 28.—The British American Hotel, the oldest hostelry in this city, will close its doors on Saturday night, and next week the entire furnishings of the hotel will be sold by auction. Frank A. Hanley is the present proprietor. The hotel has been running for upwards of 120 years. Since Ontario went dry, Mr. Hanley has been conducting the hotel under a standard license, but says that with the liquor traffic cut off he cannot make the business pay, and for this reason he is closing up.

CANADIAN CLAIMANTS

For Credit of Inventing War Tanks Used on Somme

LONDON, Oct. 27.—Among the several claimants for credit of the invention of the tanks used in the Somme offensive are two Canadians. One is Private T. Hughes Cuddy, of Winnipeg, who has been in charge of the X-ray installation at the Kenneth Camerons Hospital. Cuddy to-day showed a newspaper correspondent his diagrams and correspondence with the War Office, which show that towards the end of 1915 he submitted designs which were seriously considered, but the idea was apparently later than the invention which was accepted by the War Office.

Captain J. G. Morgan, of Montreal, under whose direction Cuddy works, has shown an active interest in his efforts, and it is likely that the Winnipeg man, who has had both engineering and medical experience, will be given a commission and his services utilized in instructional work in connection with the tanks.

Another claimant, according to reports, is an unnamed Scottish-Canadian, in the R.N.V.R., who submitted designs in January, 1915. This journal suggests that these plans were the real basis of the experiments which were ultimately successful.

CHILDHOOD AILMENTS

Childhood ailments in most cases come through some derangement of the stomach or bowels. Baby's Own Tablets have been proved by thousands of mothers to be the greatest medicine known for the cure of these ailments, simply because they regulate the bowels and sweeten the stomach. Concerning them Mrs. Napoleon Lambert, St. Ignace, Que., writes: Baby's Own Tablets are an excellent medicine for childhood ailments and I am well pleased with their use." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

AWARDED MILITARY CROSS

The Rev. W. E. Kidd, who went overseas as Chaplain of the 21st Batt., has been awarded the Military Cross. He brought in four wounded men under a heavy fire, and with Capt. (Rev.) Thompson dug the graves and buried 150 men. All the help they had were the shells dropping around them, making holes in the earth. Before leaving for the front, Rev. W. E. Kidd was vicar of Napanee, and was succeeded by Rev. J. H. H. Coleman, formerly rector of St. John's church, Stirling.

The bearers were Gordon Robertson, Edwin VanBuskirk, Mac Arthur Hill, Ernest Taylor, Karl Van Allen and Bruce Currie.

TO QUICKLY RELIEVE SORENESS AND INFLAMMATION

Rub in a few drops of Absorbine, Jr. It is surprising how promptly it penetrates and acts—how clean and pleasant it is to use and how economical, because only a few drops are required to do the work.

In addition to being a dependable liniment, Absorbine, Jr., is a safe, powerful, trustworthy antiseptic and germicide which doubles its efficiency and its uses.

When applied to cuts, bruises, and sores, it kills the germs, makes the wound aseptically clean and promotes rapid, healthy healing. It allays pain and inflammation promptly. Swollen glands, painful varicose veins, wens, and bursal enlargements yield readily to the application of Absorbine, Jr.

Absorbine, Jr., is sold by leading druggists at $1.00 and $2.00 a bottle or sent direct postpaid.

Liberal trial bottle postpaid for 10 cents in stamps. W. F. Young, P.D.F., 457 Lymans Bldg., Montreal, Canada.

A Money-Saving Bottle A Bottle of Bovril in the kitchen will cut down butcher's bills. It enormously increases the nourishing value of food—in fact, its body-building powers have been proved ten to twenty times the amount taken. It must be Bovril.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

AN EXCELLENT PRODUCTION AT GRIFFIN'S

"An Enemy to Society" was the feature picture at Griffin's last night. The film presents two stars, Hamilton Revelle and Lois Meredith. The story deals with a kidnapped son of a wealthy merchant, who is brought up to relieve the rich and give to the poor. Hamilton Revelle appears as Steve Adams, Janirass' son, while Lois Meredith interprets the role of Demile Duress, ward of Janirass, the merchant. About these two principals is woven a romance of love, mystery and intrigue, which culminate in the most pleasing manner. The stars are ably supported by an excellent cast, while the settings are admirably suited for the play.

This picture will again be presented this evening.

FANNIE WARD APPEARS AT GRIFFIN'S MONDAY

Fannie, Ward, who created a sensation in the world of motion pictures by her performances in "The Cheat," "Tennessee's Parder," and other Lasky photoplays on the Paramount Program, is the central figure in a new photoplay by Willard Mack, author of "Kick In" and other successful plays, which gives a vivid picture of a phase of city life and is replete with stirring adventure and romance.

In "A Gutter Magdalene" Miss Ward as Maida, finds redemption in her allegiance to the Salvation Army. As a worker for this great cause her path re-crosses those whom she knew in other days. Temptation is thrown in her way again. The manner in which she successfully combats these temptations forms the remainder of the story. In addition to the above five-part offering, the 6th episode of the popular Selig athletic series will be exhibited along with a new and very amusing Bray Komedy Kartoon.

FRANCIS X BUSHMAN AT THE PALACE MONDAY AND TUESDAY

Under the title "Man and his soul" the quality picture corporation has produced for Metro which in addition to telling a good story well, sets forth a moral of no little strength. Conscience is the subject matter of the play. Much like other great gifts to which man falls heir, conscience is at times a burden. One well known writer of modern fiction said, in effect, that if the exact location of one man's conscience could be found, surgery would be as busy removing it as surgery is now with the troublesome appendix.

In "Man and his soul" the moral is drawn with little or no overdoing of certain conditions existing everywhere today. Francis X Bushman is featured with Beverly Bayne, in this five part offering which is announced as the feature offering at the Palace Theatre on Monday and Tuesday, matinee and night. Three other select filmplays will also be exhibited.

SOME BABY DELIGHTS HAMILTON AUDIENCE

The Hamilton Spectator in reviewing the performance of the amusing farce comedy "Some Baby" which appeared there recently, and which comes to Griffin's Opera House, Belleville, Tuesday night, speaks of the performance in the following glowing terms:—

"Some Baby" is good; "Some Show" is better. It is one of the greatest comedies ever offered in this city; even as good as Cohen's "Stop Thief," and that is a pretty high tribute to pay. Zella Covington and Jules Simonson certainly know all there is to be known about writing comedy, and the cast that made the interpretation at the Grand last evening was composed of finished comedians and comedienes, each with the happy faculty of "puttin" it across." And the peculiar part is that it is not an expensive show, just another case of how it is impossible to base judgment on a play by the prices. From the moment the curtain rises, the audience starts smiling, the smile breaks into a laugh, and even in the interval between acts they still smile.

HOBSON'S CHOICE AT GRIFFIN'S NEXT FRIDAY

The interest of the current season will be greatly enhanced when the Messrs. Shubert send to Griffin's Opera House next Friday night "Hobson's Choice," that delightful blend of rich characterization, quaint humor and kindly sentiment by Harold Brighthouse which charmed New York for six months last season at the Comedy Theatre, tickled the risibilities of Boston and Chicago, and now is the reigning laugh-maker of London.

The play takes its name from the seventeenth century custom of the British hostler who required his patrons to take the horse nearest the stable door regardless of the desirability of the beast. Henry Moratio Hobson, prosperous boot-maker of Lancashire has daughters for the matrimonial market instead of horses for hire, but his determination that his wishes shall regulate their fate quite resembles the attitude of the liveryman concerning his nags.

Maggie, the mainstay and head of the Hobson household gets it into her pretty head that her father's tyranny has been endured about long enough. So one fine day she takes unto herself a husband from his shop, lead the protesting lad to the altar, thereafter directs the destinies of her sisters, and eventually saves the pater familias from his bibulous habits and his business from disintegration.

Doctor Tells How To Strengthen Eyesight 50 per cent In One Week's Time In Many Instances

A Free Prescription You Can Have Filled and Use at Home.

Philadelphia, Pa., Do you wear glasses? Are you a victim of eye strain or other eye weaknesses? If so, you will be glad to know that according to Dr. Lewis there is real hope for you. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored through the principle of this wonderful free prescription. One man says, after trying it: "I was almost blind; could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without any glasses and my eyes do not water any more. At night they would pain dreadfully; now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for fifteen days everything seems clear. I can even read fine print without glasses." It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by following the simple rules. Here is the prescription: Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Drop one Bon-Opto tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and allow to dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes two to four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start and inflammation will quickly disappear. If your eyes are bothering you, even a little, take steps to save them now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have been saved if they had cared for their eyes in time.

Note: Another prominent Physician to whom the above article was submitted, said: "Bon-Opto is a very remarkable remedy. Its constituent ingredients are well known to eminent eye specialists and widely prescribed by them. The manufacturers guarantee it to strengthen eyesight 50 per cent. in one week's time in many instances or refund the money. It use in almost every family." It is sold in Belleville by J. S. McKeown, W. H. Lattimer, and druggists generally.

The Niobe is Now Only a Harbor Vessel

The Naval Service Department report for last year shows that the good ship Niobe, after performing useful scouting service on the north Atlantic station was laid up last September as "the general state of her machinery and boilers would not warrant her continuance of this duty." She has been turned into a harbor depot ship.

The Rainbow has proved more durable and has been continuously employed on the Pacific Coast patrol and other important duties, under the orders of the Imperial Senior Naval Officer at Esquimalt. Submarines C. C. I. and C. C II and their parent ship, H.M.C.S. Shearwater (submarine depot) have been continuously employed in connection with the defence scheme of the Pacific Coast, a large number of other vessels have been utilized in connection with the defence of the coasts, on such duties as examination service, mine sweeping, patrol and other necessary work."

The report notes that 250 trained Canadian airmen were sent to England and there have been arrangements for Canadian aid for the British Auxiliary Motor Boat Patrol Service.

Supplying the British naval ships at Halifax and Esquimalt has been another activity of the department.

Tidal and hydrographic surveys were carried on in the Hudson Bay and on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts. A number of wireless stations were taken over from Marconia company and operators were enlisted in the Naval Service to ensure secrecy. The department also equipped many wireless plants, and supplied operators. This work was carried out for the British Government.

HE OPPOSED CONSCRIPTION.

Hon. Bertrand Russell is Having a Hard Time in Britain.

The path of those who oppose conscription in Great Britain just now is not one that is strewn with roses, as the Hon. Bertrand Russell, only brother and heir-presumptive of Earl Russell, has lately been finding out. Some three months ago this aristocratic pacifist was fined $500 and costs, with the alternative of sixty-one days' imprisonment, in respect of a leaflet written by him in defence of those who object to serve in the British army. He is a prominent member of the so-called "No-conscription" Fellowship—a body which includes a number of well-known "cranks." Several members of Parliament belong to it, including Messrs. C. P. Trevelyan, Arthur Ponsonby, Philip Snowden, and Ramsay Macdonald. Naturally its tenets are not looked on with favor by a Government which has its hands full in enforcing conscription.

Mr. Russell has written a book called "Justice in War Time," in which he advocates an early peace without any serious weakening to any of the great powers involved, and the formation for the future of a central world government, "able and willing to secure obedience by force." In the course of this volume he admits that "no doubt atrocities have occurred on both sides," but seeks to discredit the authenticity of some of the cases mentioned in the report of Lord Bryce. Such views are not very acceptable to the Government, nor are they very popular in circles other than Governmental.

In fact, they are almost making a martyr of Mr. Russell. He has been stripped of his Cambridge fellowship—he had a distinguished university career. His London flat was recently, he avers, visited by Scotland Yard officers and searched from top to bottom—an indignity which he bitterly resents. He has been appointed to a professorship at Harvard University, but is not allowed to leave England to enter on his professional duties, the authorities apparently not desiring that his peculiar views both on war and peace should be disseminated in a neutral country by an Englishman.

On the first of this month he was served with the following notice: "I, Lieut.-Colonel the Hon. A. F. V. Russell, being a competent military authority under the Defence of the Realm Regulations, do hereby order that the Hon. Bertrand Russell shall not, except with permission in writing from me, or from some other competent naval or military authority, reside in any area specified as a prohibited area by virtue of any order now or hereafter made under the Aliens' Restriction Act, 1914."

About this notice there is certainly something dramatic. For the orderer and the ordered—Col. A. F. V. Russell and Mr. Bertrand Russell—happen to be cousins. Both are descended from the sixth Duke of Bedford. Mr. B. Russell is the grandson of the great statesman, Earl Russell, better known as Lord John Russell, who was twice Prime Minister.

British Wireless.

From a long-range station on the west coast of England wireless messages are sent out by the Government every day. Sometimes three or four messages are circulated in twenty-four hours. They are sent westward — the control of direction being possible under one of the latest inventions in connection with wireless telegraphy—so that they reach practically all parts of North and South America.

The German Government paid special attention to this business of influencing neutral opinion from the moment that hostilities began. The British Government service is now coping effectively with the German publicity campaign.

The headquarters of the "English Wireless" are at Marconi House, London, and the message is sent out every evening from the long-distance station at Poldhu, Cornwall.

It consists of a summary of the official communiques and of reports received from agencies. There is an arrangement by which the Government adds whatever news it may consider desirable to circulate.

The message is of about 700 words, and is retransmitted from Teneriffe, Las Palmas, Dakar (French Africa), and other places, so that it may reach the far corners of the world.

Ellen Terry Filmed.

Ellen Terry made her debut as a screen actress recently in a pretty little village somewhere within 20 miles of London. She is appearing for the Ideal Film Company in a play in which she takes the role of a retired actress and queen of the village. All sorts of country scenes will figure in the picture, among them being the village crowd, a maypole dance, and a Punch and Judy show.

It looks as if Bernard Shaw will loom up large in one of the scenes. Dressed in knickerbocker suit and cap, he mixed with the village crowd and most likely got himself on to the film. He was delighted with the maypole scene, and afterward declared that he might write a film play himself.

It is said that Ellen Terry has stipulated that the film shall not be publicly exhibited if it does not meet with her approval.

TO REDUCE YOUR WEIGHT EASILY AND QUICKLY.

If you are overstout the cause of your over-stoutness is lack of oxygen-carrying power in the blood and faulty assimilation of food. Too little is being made into the harder tissue of muscle and too much into little globules of fat. Therefore you should correct the mal-assimilation and increase the oxygen-carrying power of the blood. To do this, go to any good druggist and get oil of orilene, only sold in original packages and in capsule form, and take one capsule after each meal and one at bedtime till your weight is reduced to what it should be on all parts of the body. The effect of oil of orilene in capsule form is remarkable as a weight reducer and it is perfectly safe.—E. J. T.

Any druggist can supply you or a large size box will be sent on receipt of $1.00. Postal note or money order. Address D. J. Little Drug Co., Box 1240 Montreal, Can.

As Born.

Wild of eye, a man burst into a barber's shop.

"You remember selling me some patent hair restorer last week, you hoary-headed old swindler?" he roared, angrily. "Swore it would restore my head to its original state, didn't you?"

"And didn't it?" asked the barber, as he went on shaving another customer calmly.

"Didn't it?" snorted the enraged man. "You obtained my money under false pretences. Why, it even removed the little hair I had left, and now I'm as bald as the pavement!"

"Then there's no false pretence about it," said the barber. "I said it would restore your head to its original state, and you know, sir, most of us are born bald!"

OXO Cubes are handy for emergencies. They need no cooking or special preparation. An OXO Cube in a cup of hot water and a few biscuits makes a light meal which sustains for hours, while for enriching and improving stews and other dishes, OXO Cubes are simply wonderful.

In the home OXO Cubes are remarkable economisers, and in many little ways they save dollars a year.

"We have completed a trip in the trenches which has been one of the coldest this winter; in fact, one night we had zero weather. Just before going into the trenches I received a parcel which contained some OXO Cubes, and I can assure you I was very thankful. It was a real treat to get off sentry duty and make a cup of OXO, as it warms one up and helps to keep one fit. It only takes a few minutes to make a hot cup of good OXO."

From one of the 24th Canadians:—

"I was out with a barbed wire party last night, and when I got back a parcel was waiting. Every item was a winner. The OXO was great; just try it about 2.30 some cold nasty morning after being out nearly six hours."

THIS IS THE 821ST DAY THE BRITISH EMPIRE HAS BEEN AT WAR WITH GERMANY.

A PEACE THAT WILL LAST

It is universally admitted that no man had more direct or reliable information concerning responsibility for the beginning of the European war than Sir Edward Grey. No man can speak now with greater authority on that subject than Viscount Grey. It was he that made the overtures for a conference, accepted by Russia, France, and Italy, that were refused by Germany. When he says that he "would like nothing better than to "see those statements that Russia's mobilization was an aggressive one" investigated before an independent and impartial tribunal, he puts forth a challenge that Berlin will never accept. But the pen of history will write the truth, and it will never write anything that will give support to the German contention that the war was forced upon Germany. In his speech at the Foreign Press Association luncheon on Monday Viscount Grey declared that "the war was forced upon Germany. In his speech at the Foreign Press Association luncheon on Monday Viscount Grey declared that "the war was forced by Germany upon Europe"; therefore, "it is the Allies who must have guarantees for future peace."

It is significant that the British Minister of Foreign Affairs should at this time have expressed his views about the duty of neutral countries after the war. "I" believe the best work neutrals can do for the moment," he said, "is to try to prevent a war like this from happening again." "I observe," he continued, "that not only President "Wilson, but Mr. Hughes, is supporting a league started, not with "the object of interfering with the "belligerents in this war, but which "will do its part in making peace "secure in the future." It will be "no affair of passing resolutions "and making protests. The nations who become members of "the league must be prepared to "undertake no more than they are "able to uphold by force, and to "see, when the time comes, that it "is upheld by force."

What the preparation for the establishment of the compact and the work of the League of Peace must be was set forth by Viscount Grey in unmistakable language. The world must be freed "from the oppression of Prussian militarism. "We know that if mankind has any "birthright, it is that of peace and "liberty, and it is for that we are "fighting." The Allies will not make peace until they "have established the supremacy and right "of free development under equal "conditions, each in accord with its "genius, of all States, great and "small, as a family of civilized mankind." Treitschke would have held that to be a monstrous political heresy. From the Prussian point of view it is counsel of feebleness. But it is a declaration of prinicple to which every one of the Allies and all nations neutral in this war will give cordial assent.

HOTEL PROPERTY AND PROHIBITION

That the inforcement of Prohibition in Ontario under the provision of the Hearst prohibition law, materially effects the value of hotel property, has been recognized by the Court of Revision, in the city of Toronto.

Those intesested in Hotel properties in that city, waited upon the Court, seeking a reduction of the assessed value of their property, on the ground that the cancellation of licenses not only reduced their income but rendered their property less valuable. The Court recognized the force of this plea, and acceded to the demand of the Toronto Hotel Company, who operated the King Edward Hotel, and reduced the assessed value of the building by $400,000, on an assessment of $1,000,000, and in addition removed the business assessment of $296,692, making a total reduction on the King Edward Hotel property of $696,692, or about forty per cent. In taxes it means about $15,400.

There are other cases

The report of the proceedings of the Court, which is copied from a Toronto contemporary, says:—

"Mr. Edward Sullivan of the Leader Hotel, King street and Leader lane, appealed aganst the assessment on the hotel alleging depreciation in value due to the license being taken away. The court reduced the land rate from $1.900 to $1.800 a foot.

Cancellation of the business assessment of Hotel Mossop, 58 Yonge street, was also made. The total assessment was was $162,900, and of this amount $29,000 was business assessment. The court also allowed a reduction from $2,000 to $1,900 a foot on the leased property at 60 Yonge street, next to the hotel property.

"The court also struck off the business assessment, and made a reduction of the building assessment of the Prince George Hotel, King and York streets, and adjacent properties. The total assessment is $662,000. The court cut off the business tax from the hotel, amounting to $77,550. James Chewitt, President of the company, said that they received from the hotel and tobacco store property only a revenue of .9 per cent. On other properties the percentage was less than two. The court decided to take into consideration the appeal on the reality.

There can be no doubt but that the rental values of hotel properties, in the past, has been based upon the business done in such premises, and that the depriving of a tenant of one of the of the principal means by which he could pay his rent, reduces to that extent the value of the property.

No doubt the members of the Toronto Court of Revision took an equitable view of the question and acted upon it. Most people who consider the question will approve their action, and others will have to follow suit.

Toronto Mail and Empire: When General Rawlinson says that the Western Allies can break through the German line, he states what the German General Staff knows now. He states in words what the recent Verdun attack proved in action. No doubt the British and French could achieve spectacular successes now outside of the Somme area, as at Verdun, but for the time, the policy is not to force a big retreat by the Germans—thus letting them do what they would like very much, viz., shorten their lines— but to pin them fast, and lengthen these lines. The destruction of German power, in men and munitions, is the big objective. The thinner the eggshell of German military force next Spring, the more easily its apparent solidity and strength can be crushed.

Toronto Globe: The warning from the fire disaster at Farnham, in Quebec should be taken to heart by all who have to do with the assembling of children in school buildings. In this case the dormitory for the resident pupils was on the third story of one of the two buildings included in the instiution. This was in itself a tragic error of judgment, which the public law should not permit. If there are to be residential schools the dormitories should be on gound floors of buildings separate and detached from edifices devoted to other purposes. There is always a danger of panic when an alarm of fire is given, and the only way to safeguard the pupils is to practise fire drill and keep them on the lower floors.

The Poet's Corner

BACK OF THE BRAWN, THE BRAIN

Back of the beating hammer
  By which the steel is wrought,
Back of the workshop's clamor
  The seeker may find the Thought,
The Thought that is ever Master
  Of iron and steam and steel,
That rises above disaster
  And tramples it under heel.

The drudge may fret and tinker,
  Or labor with lusty blows,
But back of him stands the Thinker
  The clear-eyed man who knows;
For into each plough or sabre,
  Each piece and part and whole,
Must go the brains of labor,
  Which gives the work a soul.

Back of the motor's humming,
  Back of the bells that sing,
Back of the hammer's drumming,
  Back of the cranes that swing,
There is the Eye which scans them,
  Watching through stress and strain,
There is the Mind which plans them—
  Back of the Brawn, the Brain.

Might of the roaring boiler,
  Force of the engine's thrust,
Strength of the sweating toiler,
  Greatly in these we trust,
But back of them stands the schemer,
  The Thinker who drives things through,
Back of the job—the Dreamer,
  Who's making the dreams come true.

—Brenton Barley, in American Machinist.

CHURCHILL AND LLOYD GEORGE

They Have a Great Many Characteristics in Common.

Very alike in many respects are Lloyd George, "the man of the moment" in Great Britain, and Winston Churchill, the most notable politician outside the Cabinet in that country.

For one thing, they are both men of the very highest courage, and both rate courage in others as chief among the virtues. Both, again, are philosophers and guide themselves when confronted by the various problems of life by certain definite principles of practical wisdom. Each of them possesses a prodigious memory. Mr. Churchill knows all the works of some poets—Burns and Kipling are his favorites—by heart. Mr. Lloyd George has a marvelous memory for anecdotes and tells a good story well.

Neither is what would usually be called a "well-read" man. Yet each has a wonderful fund of varied information. Both are omniverous readers of newspapers. Both have read a good many books—Mr. Lloyd George's favorite reading matter is a historical novel, and Mr. Churchill's military history.

It is often mistakenly thought that both men are far from robust physically. There could be no greater mistake. Both are exceptionally strong and muscular—Mr. Lloyd George, despite his small stature, weighs 190 pounds, and is of singularly sturdy build. Mr. Churchill, although he stoops, is as active as a cat, and can undergo the most strenuous physical exertion. Both men have a singular strain of youthfulness in their make-up, and, when away from work and responsibility, are fond of all kinds of boyish pranks.

At one time the two men looked to be running a neck-and-neck race for the leadership of the Liberal party. But it looks now as though Mr. Lloyd George has definitely outdistanced the other. He looks safe to be the next Premier, though one expects to see him the head not of a purely Liberal, but of another coalition, Government.

Mr. Lloyd George is by far the more emotional of the two men, Mr. Churchill by far the more logical. Thus, as one might expect, the former is the better platform speaker and the latter the better debater. Mr. Lloyd George is very musical, while the particular form of art favored by Mr. Churchill is that of painting.

Mr. Churchill, when be is in good form, can be very animated, but at times he is preoccupied and gloomy. Mr. Lloyd George, on the other hand, is always animated and animating. Mr. Churchill is apt to miss his sleep too much and too often, while the other has the enviable knack of being able to go off to sleep at any moment and anywhere he wants. Mr. Lloyd George cares nothing whatever for the pleasures of the table. He likes the very simplest kind of food, and cares not at all for wine, drinking very little and that little only for the sake of good fellowship. His one extravagant taste is a liking for a good cigar. Mr. Churchill, on the contrary, is an epicure who appreciates the best of food and cooking, and likes a dinner of many courses. He is also a connoisseur of wines. He is blessed with a remarkably healthy appetite.

British Farm Labor Situation.

The labor situation is quite as acute on farms in the United Kingdom as it is in Canada. Nearly all the sons of British farmers, as well as skilled laborers, have been called to the war and the only sort of labor available requires a lot of supervision. Nearly all the letters from farmers published in The Farmer and Stock Breeder (Eng.) deal with the situation and the general feeling is voiced in this extract from one letter: "Let us hope for an early cessation of hostilities and a quick return to normal conditions."

"I FEEL LIKE A NEW BEING"

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" Brought The Joy Of Health After Two Years' Suffering

MADAM LAPLANTE

85 St. Rose St., Montreal. April 4th.

"For over two years I was sick and miserable. I suffered from constant Headaches, and had Palpitation of the Heart so badly that I feared I would die. There seemed to be a lump in my stomach and the Constipation was dreadful. I suffered from Pain in the Back and Kidney Disease.

I was treated by a physician for a year and a half and he did me no good at all. I tried "Fruit-a-tives" as a last resort. After using three boxes, I was greatly improved and twelve boxes made me well. Now I can work all day and there are no Headaches, no Palpitation, no Heart Trouble, no Constipation, no Pain or Kidney Trouble and I feel like a new being—and it was "Fruit-a-tives" that gave me back my health".

MADAM ARTHUR LAPLANTE.

50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. At all dealers or sent postpaid by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

THE WHIRLPOOL BATH.

It Is Replacing Bandages in English Hospitals.

Of new and improved appliances and methods of treatment many wonderful examples are to be seen at the English military hospitals.

Queen Alexandra's Military Hospital is described as follows by the London Daily Mail: I saw several patients undergoing a new healing treatment. Two of these men were most severely wounded in September of last year, and for ten months had been treated in the customary way without any sign of healing. On August 2 they were brought to Millwall, the bandages were flung away, the wounds were subjected to repeated applications of a stream of ozone, being lightly covered with a loose layer of lint in the intervals, and in four days healing was in rapid progress.

This treatment is simplicity itself. Oxygen passes from a reservoir into an electrical machine which converts it into ozone; the ozone flows out through a fine metal tube. The machine is wheeled close to the patient's bed, the wound uncovered, and a stream of the microbe-killing ozone flows into the deepest recesses. No painful dragging off of bandages, no rebandaging of the limb to hurt and exhaust the patient. I saw here a soldier who had lost his right foot, with a stump covered with skin so healthy and hard that he could walk upon it, a surgical marvel.

What might be called the open-air treatment of wounds has come to stay. At the Herbert Hospital is a soldier with a bad compound fracture of the leg. The limb is not swathed in many yards of bandages as was the custom, but lies between sandbags to secure immobility and is covered only with a single layer of lint.

The lint is kept constantly wet with an antiseptic fluid (peroxide of hydrogen). Surrounding the leg is a large cage covered with a sheet of thin butter muslin, so that the wound is continually refreshed by a free current of air. Extremely rapid healing and freedom from the agony of manipulation are the great gains from this mode of treatment.

The whirlpool bath is entirely a war invention, from which excellent results in cases of stiff joints have been obtained in France. As I saw it at some of the military hospitals visited, it consists of a small oblong bath, filled with water which is kept in continuous movement by a miniature propeller revolved at a very high speed by means of an electric motor. A stiff arm or leg, hand or foot, placed in the bath and kept there for some time is much improved by the stimulus of the running water.

Marvelous examples of bone carpentry are to be seen, such as the transference of a large piece of bone from the leg to fill a gap in the arm bone or jaw.

Trench-foot is being more or less successfully treated by massage, operation, and other methods. I saw a soldier victim of this affection walking with a little difficulty, but very well pleased with himself; it was the first time he had put on boots for nine months.

Has Beaten Gas Poisoners.

I do not believe that war by chemicals or poisons will be very long lived, says Sir Hiram Maxim. It is quite true that chlorine in a gaseous form mixed with air has proved very effective recently, but this was because it was a surprise. It was something new.

Chlorine in gaseous form is two and a half times as heavy as air, but in escaping from the receptacles in which it is contained it mixes with it at least five times its volume of air, and this, of course, reduces its specific gravity correspondingly, then, as it is blown down on the English trenches, it mixes with more air, and by the time it reaches the men there is at least twenty times as much air as chlorine; but this mixture is quite strong enough to produce fatal results.

Of course, when there are twenty or thirty times as much air as chlorine, the mixture is only slightly heavier than the surrounding air, and it does not take much to dissipate it. And that is the last job I have been working on.

I have designed an apparatus that will dissipate these poisonous gases very cheaply and effectively, and it is being made at the present moment; but of course it would not do to divulge the system I employ.

As this apparatus of mine will remove all the terrors of chlorine, it is safe to say that its use will be counteracted.

Steel Rings in Seamen's Caps.

The Mercantile Marine Service Association are in receipt of the following notice from the Board of Trade: "It has come to the notice of the Board of Trade that steel rings are sometimes used inside officers' caps and become magnetized. Owing to their close proximity to the compass needle, when worn by an observer taking compass bearings, such rings are liable to cause considerable deviation and render the observation unreliable. The Board of Trade are of opinion that the use of steel rings for this purpose should be discontinued, and that rings made of a non-magnetic substance should be substituted. Care should also be taken that no articles of steel that may, by becoming magnetized, deflect a compass needle are worn or carried by ships' officers when taking compass bearings.

She Succeeds in England.

Mrs. Kathryn M. Stanton, aglow with the triumph of selling the centrifugal gun for which she stood sponsor, to the British Government, has returned to the United States.

The new weapon which she sold Great Britain is operated without powder and is noiseless as well as smokeless. It hurls missiles with deadly aim, the missiles may be anything from an egg to a lump of dynamite. There is no barrel to the gun, and it may be operated by any untrained man or woman. It is simple of construction, and all of its parts can be made at any machine shop with a cost of less than one-tenth of the price of a weapon using explosives. Mrs. Stanton financed the building of the model and personally superintended the making of the gun. The weapon was tried out at Sandy Hook and the officers present acclaimed it as the weapon of future warfare. The United States did not care to purchase the invention, so Mrs. Stanton sold to Great Britain. This is the second invention in a short time that was turned down by the United States and later accepted by Great Britain.

While Mrs. Stanton was abroad her husband died unknown to her. The glad tidings she expected to convey to him were hushed on her lips when her sister broke the sad news to her.

A Tribute to Women.

The light cruiser Frauenlob (Praise of Woman), some of whose crew have been rescued by a British tugboat, was one of the most oddly-named warships afloat. An early Meistersinger, Henry of Meissen, sang the charms of womanhood so assiduously that he came to be known as Frauenlob, and on his death in 1318 his body was carried in state by women to his grave in Mayence Cathedral. When first it was decided to build a German fleet the women of Germany raised a large contribution towards its cost by special collections among themselves. To commemorate their efforts a cruiser launched in 1853 was called Frauenlob, and the name has since been borne by five other warships.

"A Case for Wincarnis."

Nerves!!
—"On Edge"
—"Jumpy"

Yours is a case for Wincarnis

If your nerve centres have become weakened by overwork, worry or anxiety, they are unable to transmit the necessary nourishment, and the nerves become worn out and "on edge." Then it is that a sudden sound makes you "jump"—you get irritable—you suffer from neuralgia—you are restless and depressed. In this condition there is nothing to equal

WINCARNIS

Because, being a powerful nerve food, Wincarnis gets right to the root of the trouble, and, by creating a supply of new nerve force, stimulates and revitalizes the whole nervous system. Try Wincarnis for "nerves." It is wonderful. Over 10,000 doctors recommend it.

TO ADVERTISE CANADA.

Frank Yeigh is to Lecture Throughout the United States.

An important step in advertising Canada in influential circles in the United States is about to be taken. The Bureau of Commercial Economics of the Department of Public Instruction, in Washington, has secured the temporary services, for a period of six months, of Mr. Frank Yeigh to lecture on the Dominion in the chief centres of the States, and before representative bodies such as universities and colleges, commercial and industrial organizations, Canadian clubs over the border, commercial clubs, rotary clubs, and similar groups.

The bureau is to be congratulated on engaging Mr. Yeigh for this work, for he is peculiarly well qualified to ably represent Canada and to make an effective presentation of our national resources and wealth and our industrial and commercial progress. His personal knowledge of the country and his lectures and books on the subject equip him for this larger field, in which he will be able to do excellent missionary work across the boundary line, covering the country from Chicago to the south.

The Bureau of Commercial Economic is an extensive and important organization, having for its object the making known of various countries and processes of manufacture to interested gatherings, and is responsible for supplying thousands of lectures on a wide variety of themes to many thousands of its citizens. It has the co-operation of the United States Government, through the Department of Education, and is directed by an advisory council of men of international distinction in many lines of life. Universities and colleges as well as commercial and industrial organizations are co-operating agencies, resulting in a dissemination of knowledge of countries and other topics of wide extent and far-reaching influence. It is understood that the Canadian Government is facilitating the work of the bureau in the collection of moving picture films of Canadian life and scenery, which will be at the disposal of Mr. Yeigh in his lectures.

The director of the bureau, Mr. Francis Holley, is a gentleman of distinction who has travelled widely over the world, and who has just completed a 17,000-mile trip over Canada as the guest of the Dominion Government, returning with a deep appreciation of all he saw and a new enthusiasm for our country.

In securing the services of Mr. Yeigh the bureau has, as has been said, gained the services of the man best qualified to represent this country. He will present a series of Canadian travelogues, with both moving and stereoptican pictures, to large and important gatherings in the chief cities of the Middle and Central West and Atlantic seaboard, also visiting the south later on. He opens his tour at the Maryland Agricultural College.

Canada is also to be congratulated on this opening for Canadian publicity on a large and effective scale and before important gatherings of key men. The best of results should, and no doubt will, follow; not only in making Canada known more intelligently to our American friends, but in securing capital, investments, and industries, as well as visitors who may see for themselves the wonders of the Dominion.

A New Industry.

Not the least prominent of Canada's post-war industries is that of the manufacture of steel window casements, which has been taken up with marked success by at least one Canadian firm. This is one instance where Canada has set out to supply markets deprived of their regular source of supply by the war. Steel windows are being exported to the United States in considerable volume for use in the large office and store buildings. This article was formerly bought almost exclusively from British firms, with a small percentage of the trade going to Belgians and Germans. Since August, 1914, however, no steel casements have been sent from Europe, as all shipments of metal are now going eastward across the Atlantic.

It was early in 1914 that one firm started the manufacture of steel window frames, although this branch of their industry had been under consideration for years. Although the industry was on a small scale for a time after war broke out, it has made material growth within the last few months. The manufacture of steel sashes has more than doubled in the last year, and this firm has sold more up till August 1 of this year than during the entire twelve months of 1915.

All modern factory buildings and warehouses are using the steel sash, and an estimate of the rate of increase is about fifteen per cent. a month at present. Something like $50,000 worth of steel window sashes have been exported to the United States this year, and this promises to be increased several times in the near future.

Volunteer Naval Reserve.

An order-in-Council has been passed at Ottawa providing regulations for the enlistment of men "in the Royal Naval Canadian Volunteer Reserve" for overseas service in the Royal Navy. The men enlisting will be enrolled for the period of the war. Ordinary and able seamen will receive $1.10 per day; leading seamen, $1.20; petty officers, $1.40, and chief petty officers, $1.90.

Men subsequently transferred to stoker ratings will be paid 10 cents per diem more than the pay of their equivalent seamen ratings. Wives and approved dependents of men enrolling will be paid from the date of enrollment separation allowance on the following scale: Wives and approved dependents of ordinary seamen, able seamen, leading seamen, and equivalent ratings, $20 a month; petty officers and chief petty officers and equivalent ratings, $25 per month.

OXFORD AND CAMBRIDGE.

Have Imparted Not Merely Knowledge, but Citizenship.

The grass has been worn from the playing fields by battalions at drill. Men have come back to their university from the ends of the earth to find a place in the service of their country. All this simply means that the universities have faithfully in a prosperous and, it was said, an idle past, served their purpose. They have aimed at creating in their men the idea of obligation. They have rested quietly at the heart of English life. Through an age which more and more insisted upon direct value in coin as the reward for its activity they have stood for a learning which has been repeatedly denounced as "barren." They have kept generations of young men in touch with literature and with the finest thought of all ages. They have asked them to learn many a thing for its own sake, and thus taught them a pride of doing well, as a good in itself, in things not immediately profitable. At a time when pride of work was fast ceasing to exist in England (witness the organized tainting and spoiling of labor practiced in all our factories), the mere bright "uselessness" of Greek has been an argument for retaining it.

The best way to judge of an institution is by its fruits. Oxford and Cambridge clearly stand for education to-day as none of our later "democratic" institutions can do. They have imparted not merely knowledge, but citizenship. They have done this, without exhortation or preachment, by sheer force of their traditions and atmosphere. Education is breathed in as naturally and freely as the air. It is not a fragile thing of copybooks and good resolutions. It can stand tests which copybook morality would fail to meet. England, in this time of need, can count very few defaulters among the men who have come down from Oxford and Cambridge. The roll of honor in this war will honor these institutions above all others.

Naga Worship.

The hooded cobra, [illegible] has his devotees in Bombay city, and from Kashmir to Nepal in the Deccan and Southern India, and on the West Coast in particular, this curious veneration of snake gods survives, says The Times of India. An interesting account of the worship is given in an annual report of the Archaeological Department. The usual form of Naga worship is the vow taken by childless wives to instal a snake stone if they are blessed with offspring. Closely allied with this idea is the worship of trees, and pipal and margosa trees planted together—"married," as the saying goes—come in for a share of the devotion paid to the snake stones set up in their shade. It is believed, says this account, that women will bear children if they walk round the married trees one hundred and eight times every day for forty-five days consecutively. Unfortunately no authentic case is cited of the efficacy of this prescription, but the offerings brought in gratitude by women to the shrines may be taken as favorable evidence.

Parliamentary Economies.

War economy has prevailed for some time now in the Houses of Parliament. Quill pens usually provided in the writing rooms have disappeared, and ordinary wooden penholders, with steel nibs, have taken their place. There is also a reduction in the quantity of notepaper and envelopes. Instead of the unlimited supply available in the writing rooms, the quantity is limited, the object being to discourage waste and prevent depreciation by exposure. It is also stated that paper inferior in quality will be provided shortly. Another direction in which the Government is economising is in the smoking-rooms. Instead of the free and ample provision of boxes of matches members must now fall back on the wooden spills that the now thrifty Office of Works has provided.

THE SHOES I CAN'T WEAR

All Because of a "Touchy" CORN

BUT you can wear them, Madam—and now. Simply place on that corn a little Blue-jay plaster, and never again will you feel it. In two days there will be no corn. It will disappear for good. Millions of women know that. They don't pare corns. They don't use old-time methods. And they don't suffer. When a corn appears they end it. We are urging you to join them. Corns are needless since Blue-jay was invented. So they are absurd. You can prove in one minute that Blue-jay stops corn aches. You can prove in two days that it ends them forever.

Reported Cancer Cure.

Dr. Robt. Bell, physician in charge of the research department of the Anti-Vivisection Hospital at Battersea, in a recent report described some remarkable successes in the treatment of apparently hopeless cancer cases. Unfortunately, the war has caused the closing of the wards in the Cancer Department.

"Notwithstanding this, considerable success has crowned our efforts, and where absolute cures have not been recorded it has invariably been our privilege to afford considerable relief," says the report.

Dr. Bell instanced seven patients, all of whom had previously been informed that their disease was cancer, and that their only hope lay in operation. "By assisting Nature's efforts, however," it was added, "it has afforded me the greatest pleasure to have been enabled to give to each and all of them a clean bill of health."

The doctor commented upon the importance of diet, and said that they gave the patients tablets containing the active principle of the thyroid gland, which acted in combination with the active principles of the various glands. The glands were subject to attack in cases of cancer, and the object was to pacify them.

One woman who was regarded as in a perfectly hopeless state was now quite well, but the doctor added that cures were rare.

For New Enlistments.

Further conferences have taken place between Sir Thomas Tait and the Government respecting the methods to be employed by the new director-general of national service, in raising the number of enlistments up to the half-million maximum.

Details as to these methods and as to the personnel of Sir Thomas Tait's associates will be made known probably next week. The enlistment scheme will be put into operation in such a way as not to reduce the supply of labor necessary to the production of war munitions and supplies.

Tough Old Soldier.

While troops were digging practice trenches on the Wiltshire Downs in England, they found the remains of a very tough old fighter of 3,000 years ago. This man, writes Lieut. Lionel F. West, an army physician, in a medical journal, received a blow from a stone battleaxe on the forehad with such force that the axe sunk clean within the skull, leaving a sharp edged hole about three-quarters by a half-inch in size. The horrible injury was not immediately fatal, Lieut. West says, for there are signs of repair all around the wound. The warrior lingered on for months, although he was a slight man of five feet two inches in height.

Canada's Future.

Speaking at the Etonians' luncheon to the Duke of Devonshire, Earl Curzon declared: "If there is any among the Dominions of the Crown that has established for itself the right to rank among the great nations of the earth, it is Canada. If there is any part of the British Empire that is assured of a dazzling and almost illimitable expansion in the future it is Canada. If in this war there are any of our fellow subjects who in superlative degree might be said to have shown loyalty of loyal and bravery of brave, those are our fellow subjects from the Dominion."

The Duke of Devonshire, replying, said that Canada had played her part in the war. He felt proud to think that he would be able to bear a message to the people of Canada of gratitude and heartfelt sympathy for the assistance they had rendered to the Empire in the great struggle.

This Ointment Possesses Power to Heal the Skin

Two Cases Which Prove the Extraordinary Healing Power of Dr. Chase's Ointment

The use of Dr. Chase's Ointment is wonderfully satisfactory because you can actually see the results accomplished. It is surprising what change can be brought about in a single night by this great healing ointment.

Mr. George Beavis, 119 James street, Peterboro', Ont., writes: "As a healing ointment, I consider Dr. Chase's the best obtainable. I had a large running sore on my leg, and although I had tried all the prescriptions of two doctors I was unable to get any relief from the pain or to get the sore healed. One day my druggist handed me a sample box of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and I used it with such good results that I decided to give the ointment a fair trial. Altogether I used four boxes, and I am glad to be able to say that the sore on my leg is entirely healed up. Since this experience with Dr. Chase's Ointment I have recommended it to many people."

Mrs. W. W. Oliver, Port George, Annapolis Co., N.S., writes: "I am going to tell you my experience with Dr. Chase's Ointment. There was a spot came on my face something like a mole, but it kept getting worse, and several doctors whom I consulted said it was skin cancer, and that it would have to be cut or burned out. I intended having this done, but changed my mind when my brother recommended Dr. Chase's Ointment. Before I had finished one box of the ointment this skin trouble had gone, and has not bothered me since. I cannot praise Dr. Chase's Ointment too much, and you are at liberty to publish this letter."

If you have never used Dr. Chase's Ointment send a two-cent stamp for a sample box, and mention this paper. Price sixty cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

PROGRESS IN AUSTRALIA.

Endeavoring to Bridge Gulf Between Producer and Consumer.

Hon. R. H. Rees, M.P., of Melbourne, and practical farmer from the great wheat belt in the Wimmera district, Australia, was a visitor in Toronto recently, and in the course of an interesting interview gave some of his impressions of Canada and incidentally some valuable information regarding the great Commonwealth to which he belongs.

As a member of a Royal Commission of Australia he has been travelling through Canada and the United States observing the methods employed in handling, transporting, and selling of grain. Mr. Rees has had ample opportunity to gather a wealth of first-hand information on such a live question. Shipment of wheat in bulk as employed in Canada does not obtain in Australia, where all cereals are shipped in bags.

While in Winnipeg he visited the Grain Exchange and from his observations there was convinced that the methods used in Canada in getting the grain from the grower to the consumer are too complicated and costly. The same complaint obtains in Australia. At present they are working on a plan in Australia, tending to considerably lessen the intermediary cost. The honorable gentleman was greatly struck with the fact that in a great grain growing country like Canada, a 3-pound loaf of bread should cost sixteen cents in Toronto. In Australia the fixed price for a four-pound loaf is thirteen cents. Shortly after the outbreak of war the Australian Government commandeered the wheat and fixed prices for local consumption and export and at the same time fixed the price of bread, with profit to the farmers, and benefit to the consumer.

Another point brought out by Mr. Rees was that there is a great deal of alfalfa grown. It was found that the middlemen were keeping down prices for loose hay, where the farmers were concerned. But in selling it to the Government for war purposes, $2 a ton in excess of the market price was charged. Here the Government Commission intervened in the interests of producer and consumer with good results to both. Another proposition that the commission is considering is the formation of a beneficial "Hog Trust" for the good of all. Both in Canada and Australia some co-operative means should be secured to bring the producer and consumer more into touch with each other in the interests of public welfare.

A Welshman himself, Mr. Rees is naturally delighted with the proud distinction that has come to Lloyd George and the Hughes.

Leaving here, Mr. Rees goes to France, where he has two sons doing their bit in the world's great struggle. He will remain there indefinitely, but hopes to soon see the Allies invade German territory. Some three years before the war Mr. Rees was in Germany and was struck with the deference paid to the military. He recalled that on one occasion while dining in a restaurant in Berlin, a party of officers came in, and immediately all the diners rose at attention. Thinking that the Kaiser must be in the party, Mr. Rees got to his feet with the rest. He was astonished to learn that they were just mere officers.

A Traitor Duke.

The fact that the Duke of Cumberland, who retains his rank as a British peer, sent an enthusiastic congratulatory telegram to the Kaiser after the Jutland fight, expressing his immense satisfaction over "the great victory of the German fleet," again calls attention to the agitation afoot for depriving the Duke of his British honors.

Since the name of the Duke of Cumberland was struck off the roll of Knights of the Garter in 1915, Mr. Swift MacNeill, M.P., has asked more than once why this traitor, in open warfare against the sovereign and the people of the British Empire, should retain his peerage of Great Britain. Mr. Asquith has pointed out, however, that he does not think the time and energy of the House would be usefully employed by promoting the necessary legislation to deprive traitor dukes of their titles. It certainly seems scarcely worth worrying about when such big events are moving.

The Duke, who is a son of King George V. of Hanover, and brother-in-law to Queen Alexandra, is in his seventy-second year, and has for many years lived in retirement in his Austrian castle of Gmunden. The Cumberland jewels and the family plate, by the way, are famous. The plate is said to weigh over a dozen tons.

Thrifty Swiss.

The Swiss Post Office saves its old stamps, and recently offered 100,000 used copies of the current high value Swiss stamps, 3f., 5f., and 10f., for sale. Last year a similar offer to the philatelic trade was made, and a substantial sum was realized. The three denominations are offered at 10d. per stamp in what is styled "first quality," and 7d. per stamp in the second quality, or 2s. 6d. and 1s. 8d. the set of three. The first quality stamps were only used on dockets, etc., which never left the post-office; while the second kind were used in the mails. The stamps are only supplied to the Swiss dealers, but British dealers can obtain them from the Swiss trade at a small commission over these prices.

Honored by Masons.

The Duke of Devonshire, being Provincial Grand Master of Derbyshire Freemasons, was presented with a testimonial. The Duke said his task as Governor-General of Canada required energy and courage. With the good will of home friends and the hope of a friendly reception in Canada, he trusted to have the strength and good sense to make the most of the opportunities. We were passing through anxious times. He hoped out of it all good would come, and that we would resolve never to allow the outrage which Germany perpetrated to be repeated. That was the message he would take to Canada, of whose generous share Britain was proud.

A PIPER'S HEROISM.

Stripling Led Black Watch in Battle Till Victory Came.

It was in the wards of an Edinburgh hospital that I heard a wonderful story of human bravery. It was told me by a wounded private in the famous Black Watch Regiment—that regiment which for centuries has been one of Britain's bulwarks, writes Ellen Adair.

"It's the tale of a little piper chap," he said, "who did one of the finest deeds I ever witnessed."

From beneath his pillow he drew out a photograph of a football team. "Before the war I was a 'professional' football player," he said, "and so was the piper. Here he is in the corner of the group.

"One day the doctors told him he wasn't strong enough to continue. So he had to give it up. When war broke out he tried to enlist. But they wouldn't pass him. He tried fifteen times. And then they let him in—but only as a piper.

"We met out in Flanders—the little piper chap and I. It was the day before a great charge. We had a game of football—the Black Watch and the Seaforth Highlanders. The Black Watch won.

"Next morning, just at dawn, we were given the order to charge. Before us lay a village, a mere huddle of wreckage, for our artillery had played havoc with the little place. Our orders were to take it at the point of the bayonet.

"We 'dribbled' a football right across No Man's Land up to the danger point. You may think that curious—playing a game right in the face of death—but it's a glorious way to charge!

"A hail of bullets greeted us. Bombs and rifle fire thinned our ranks. But we pressed on. The village was a wreckage, it's true, but wreckage makes as good defence work as houses. Each broken building was a fortress, a machine gun citadel.

"In the midst of all the uproar I suddenly heard the sound of pipes. It was the mad, merry skirl of the Scottish air, 'The Deil Among the Excisemen.' I stared around, and there was the little piper chap, marching [illegible] the wrecked street with his pipes in full blast. How he got there heaven alone knows.

"At times he completely vanished in a swirl of belching smoke. But when it cleared there he was again, playing his pipes as joyously as if for pennies at a fair—a solitary and splendid target for the German guns. Myself I wouldn't have done it for a thousand pounds!

"His gallant Scottish tunes did wonders in cheering us on. When he played 'MacGregor's Gathering' we charged one fortress five times over without pause.

"It was after a sudden cloud of smoke had cleared away that I saw the little piper was staggering as he walked. A bullet had got him in the side. But his music was as clear and loud as before.

"The fighting was so fierce and prolonged that I did not see him for some time. But when I did, a terrible shock was in store for me. For, pipes still in full blast and playing as merrily as before, he was half lying against a broken building, and one of his legs had been shot away.

"It was only when the village was completely cleared of the enemy, and victory was ours, that the music of the pipes changed. The stirring battle-march gave way to an old, heart-searing Highland lament. Through that quiet street rang the strains of 'The Land o' the Leal.' The first verse ended suddenly. And the little piper dropped his pipes, slipped over sideways, and lay very still. His fight was over, and he had joined his friends."

Food Situation of Britain Discussed.

In the House of Commons a few days ago a debate arose over the food situation, a number of the members complaining of the inadequate measures of the Government to control food supplies and prevent an excessive rise in prices.

Walter Runciman, president of the Board of Trade, in reply to the complaints, said he was hungering for a practical proposal, which had not been forthcoming, for preventing evils which were largely due to the increased food-consuming capacity not only of the army, but of munitions and other workers, and the decreasing supply of food. Mr. Runciman said there was no evidence of serious manipulation or exploitation of foodstuffs, and if there had been he would not have hesitated to ask Parliament for power to deal with such a situation.

In relating the measures the Government has taken with regard to meat and wheat, Mr. Runciman said every effort was being made to increase available tonnage for imports, and that the Admiralty had agreed in many instances to do with a smaller number of vessels. In conclusion the President of the Board of Trade said there would be no extention of the principle of rationing, and that the Government had no intention of putting the country in the position of a blockaded city.

THE SHADOW OF BROKEN HEALTH

Can be quickly dispelled through the Use of Dr. Williams Pink Pills

When the shadow of poor health follows your life; when hope begins to fade and friends look serious, then is the time you should remember that thousands just as hopeless have been cured and restored to the sunshine of health by the use of Dr. Williams Pink Pills. These pills actually make new, rich blood which brings a glow of health to anaemic cheeks; cures indigestion, headaches and backaches, drives out the stinging pains of rheumatism and neuralgia, strengthens the nerves and relieves as no other medicine can do the aches and pains from which womanfolk alone suffer. In any emergency of poor health give Dr. Williams Pink Pills a fair trial and they will not disappoint you. Here is a case that will bring hope to many a weary sufferer. Mrs. E. C. Taylor, Ascot Ave., Toronto, says: "A few years ago I was so run down with anaemia that I could scarcely walk about the house, and was not able to leave it. I had no color, my appetite was poor and I was constantly troubled with headaches, dizzy spells and general disinclination to move about or do anything. I tried many medicines, but none of them helped me, and my friends thought I was in a decline. One day a friend who was in to see me asked me if I had tried Dr. Williams Pink Pills. I had heard of this medicine often, but had not used it, so I determined to give it a trial. I certainly got a pleasant surprise for after using two boxes I could feel an improvement in my condition. Continuing the use of these pills I began to regain my health, the headaches and dizzy spells were disappearing, and I began to gain in weight. People began inquiring what I was taking and I was not slow to give Dr. Williams Pink Pills the credit. I took the pills for less than two months, and completely regained my old time health and strength. I hope my experience may convince some doubting person as to the great merit of Dr. Williams Pink Pills, as I certainly have cause to be a firm companion of them."

You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Are Baths Necessary?

This looks like a foolish question in this enlightened age, but there are nearly a million Americans who knew nothing of Internal Bathing a few years ago and are now eager to testify that they are fully as essential to health as External Baths.

By a purely natural process of properly using warm water, the "J. B. L. Cascade" removes ALL poisonous waste from the Lower Intestine, which physicians agree is the cause of 95 per cent. of all human ailments.

It instantly relieves constipation, properly regulates the bowels and prevents all the dragging-down which Biliousness and Liver Troubles always create.

E. W. Southall, M.D., of Genesee, N.Y., writes:—

'I challenged the doctors in this town last week in regard to what I can do with your 'Cascade.' I can say for a truth that I know the reason for my success with many serious illnesses was due to having the bowels washed out once and sometimes twice a day. I only wish I could make the people in general believe in the efficiency of a good bowel washing. Sincerely yours.''

J. S. McKeown, Belleville, will show and explain it to you on request. A free and interesting booklet on Internal Bathing, "Why Man of To-day Is Only 50 Per Cent. Efficient," can also be obtained for the asking. If you prefer, write to Dr. Chas. A. Tyrrell, 163 College street, Toronto, for same.

Sir Joseph Beecham Found Dead in Home

By The Sale of His Pills He Had Become The Third Richest Man in England

A REMARKABLE ADVERTISER

His Features, by That Medium, Familiar to Millions All Over the Inhabited World

LONDON, Oct. 27.—Sir Joseph Beecham, the pill manufacturer, whose face and name are familiar to the readers of more than 3,000 newspapers in all parts of the world, and who was found dead in bed in his home in Hampstead, recently, was in his sixty-ninth year.

By the sale of his pills the manufacturer rose from a farmers' boy to become a knight and a baronet and the third richest man in England with a fortune estimated at more than $140,000,000. He accomplished this by advertising, having been for a generation or more considered the greatest buyer of newspaper, billboard and fencerail space in the world. He advertised on every continent, including Greenland. His own picture, a strong, reliable face with side whiskers, usually accompanied the text recommending the pills.

Beecham's methods of advertising were often original and audacious. He delighted in the commotion when his advertisements shocked communities and were denounced as vulgar. The exploitation of his pills through the medium of a hymn book has become historic. He circulated at low price a number of hymn books just before Christmas, so that when a number of congregations got up to sing on Christmas they found the following words before them:

Hark the herald angels sing,
Beecham's pills are just the thing.
Peace on earth and mercy mild,
Two for man, and one for child.

Beecham was at work in the fields at the age of eight years. He might have been an agriculturist to the end of his days except that, as a small boy, he took a deep interest in the ailments of farm animals and the compounds with which their cure was attempted. He grew to be an amateur veterinarian, and, in treating live stock for a few years, acquired the experience and knowledge of medicine, which he later applied to the human race. He quit the farm at about twenty years, and began to travel, peddling pills of his own manufacture. He soon learned the power of advertising, and after that let paint and printers' ink do his work.

He soon had praise of Beecham's pills in most of the periodical reading matter of the civilized world, and a few years later it became impossible in any part of the British Empire or the United States to travel on country roads or on the railways without seeing Beecham's advertisements on rail fences. A few of the high-priced periodicals did not receive the advertisements because the best customers were drawn, as he explained on a visit to this country in 1912, from the poorer middle classes and the working people, who did not want to pay a doctor for treating slight ailments.

"But," added Mr. Beecham, "my pills are taken by Dukes and Lords, who conceal the fact from their family doctors. I have positive evidence of this. Medical men take them on the quiet, too."

After he had become one of the richest and probably the most widely known Englishman living, the pill manufacturer made liberal use of his money, contributing to large philanthropies, backing popular causes, and buying the Aldwych Theatre and other large amusement properties. He was thrice Mayor of St. Helens between 1899 and 1912. He has been used again and again by novelists, notably by Locke in "Simple Septimus." He was knighted by the King in 1911 and made baronet in 1914.

The White Ensign

A flag strange to many Canadian eyes, has in the last few weeks appeared in several of our cities and towns—the White Ensign of the Royal Navy. The Honorable Rupert Guinness is seeking in Canada recruits for naval service and as the accredited representative of the Admiralty, he is entitled to bear with him this most jealously guarded emblem of that force, which is the epitome of Britain's might. It is without doubt, in itself the most beautiful of flags and about it cluster memories which surely ought to make those of British blood, burn with desire to take service under it. The broad flaming cross of Saint George on the white ground dates back to the time of the Crusades, when an ensign of this pattern was adopted as the distinctive badge of the English troops and was borne in glory in the Eastern campaigns. For very many years its use in this simple form continued, but after the union of the three kingdoms the Union Jack was added in the upper canton and the flag attained its present richer symbolism. Under it Nelson fought, and since his day it has flown on many a sea, if not always victoriously, at least with honor. On land, too, the men of the Naval Brigade have upheld the noble traditions of their ensign and it has been seen on more than one hard fought field beside the battle flags of the proudest of Britain's regiments. It is the flag of Trafalgar, the flag of Sebastopool, of Delhi and of Lucknow, and now, still wet with the blood of the heroes of Jutland, with silent eloquence it calls Canadians to service for King and Country.

GRAND TRUNK PRESS BUREAU

GRAND TRUNK APPRECIATES EMPLOYEES' FAITHFUL SERVICE

Will Issue Annual Passes To Workers Fifteen Years In The Service—Good for Wives Also

MONTREAL, Oct. 27.—The Grand Trunk Railway System is about to adopt a new method of recognizing faithful service rendered by employees. President E. J. Chamberlin, in a circular issued recently, announces that, effective January 1st, 1917, the Grand Trunk will begin the issuance of "meritorious or long service annual passes," this being in accordance with the policy of the company to reward the continuous and efficient service of its workers.

To employees who have been continuously in the service for a period of not less than fifteen years, the company will issue annual passes for themselves, and if married, to include their wives, good over either the Eastern Ontario or Western lines, according to the respective territory on which they may be employed. Employees who have been twenty years in service, will receive annual passes for themselves and wives, good over the entire system.

Head Office employees continuously in the service of the company for fifteen years, will receive these annual passes good over the whole system for themselves, and if married, to include their wives. Employees on the Pension or Superannuation Funds, will be considered, as regards length of service, the same as employees and will be accorded the same pass privileges. Female employees will be treated the same as male employees except that passes will be good for themselves only.

Poorest Are Hit Worst.

How the scarcity of food in Germany and the Government direction of food distribution are working out is described by a prominent man who recently returned from there. He said the burden is falling on about 25,000,000 of the German people. The soldiers at the front, the munition factory workers, people with means and persons on farms are getting enough to eat. About 25,000,000 of the poorer class, without money or influence, are the sufferers. They are getting an average food supply which, measured in calories, is below normal. It is found practically impossible to keep persons who raise food products—that is the agricultural part of the population—down to a prescribed food supply. Much of the unrest in Germany is among the 25,000,000 who are getting scant food supplies.

Leads in Backwardness.

Honduras excels any other republic of the continent in one respect—backwardness. Every little while a revolution tears down any slight prosperity that may have been built. Parents train their sons to become professional revolutionists as we train ours to become lawyers or doctors. A debt of a hundred millions burdens the country. Polygamy is common. Many a man has four wives to support him, he doing nothing, unless a wife, especially needing help, wishes to hire him at a good wage. Perhaps standards would be higher if life were harder. But where breadfruit weighs down the trees and a grain of corn planted on Monday will sprout four inches high by Friday, there is not much incentive to labor.—World's Outlook.

Irish Get New Markets.

A bold bid for the capture of several markets hitherto dominated by "enemy traders" is being made by Irish manufacturers. Toys, carpets, and cigarettes are the most successful examples of new industries thus far developed. The new workshops for the manufacture of dolls and toys have attracted large numbers of girls and women workers who were thrown out of employment by the hard times prevailing in the lace and millinery trade in Belfast and Dublin.

The Pribilof Herd.

The Pribilof South Sea Seal Herd at the end of the breeding season of 1915 contained about a third of a million animals of both sexes and all ages, or about 30,000 more than last year. The pups born this year numbered 103,526. The rapid increase in this herd is due to the international agreement, which has suspended the killing of seals in the Pribilof Islands, except a small number of males killed annually for food by the natives.

To Cure Catarrhal Deafness and Head Noises

Persons suffering from catarrhal deafness and head noises will be glad to know that this distressing affliction can be successfully treated at home by an internal remedy that in many instances has effected a complete cure after all else has failed. Sufferers who could scarcely hear a watch tick have had their hearing restored to such an extent that the tick of a watch was plainly audible seven or eight inches away from either ear.

Therefore, if you know someone who is troubled with head noises of catarrh, or catarrhal deafness, cut out this formula and hand to them, and you will have been the means of saving some poor sufferer perhaps from total deafness. The prescription can be prepared at home, and is made as follows:

Secure from your druggist 1 oz. Parmint (Double Strength), about 75c. worth. Take this home, and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and 4 oz. of granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day.

The first dose should begin to relieve the distressing head noises, headache, dullness, cloudy thinking, etc., while the hearing rapidly returns as the system is invigorated by the tonic action of the treatment. Loss of smell and mucus dropping in the back of the throat, are other symptoms that show the presence of catarrhal poison, and which are often entirely overcome by this efficacious treatment. Nearly ninety per cent. of all ear troubles are said to be directly caused by catarrh, therefore, there must be many people whose hearing can be restored by this simple home treatment.

Every person who is troubled with head noises, catarrhal deafness or catarrh in any form, should give this prescription a trial.

Important Note: In ordering Parmint always specify that you want double strength. Your druggist has it or he can easily get it for you. If not send 75c. to the International Laboratories 74 St. Antoine St., Montreal, Que., Can., and they will supply you. Send Postal Note or Money Order.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH WEST LAND REGULATIONS.

Lesson V.—Fourth Quarter, For Oct. 29, 1916.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Acts xxvii, 13-26 Memory Verses, 22-24—Golden Text, Ps. xxxvii, 5—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

Now Paul is off to Rome and has been delivered from his enemies in Jerusalem who so persistently sought his life. But the devil is sometimes permitted to rage on the sea as well as on the land, and Paul has more troubles ahead, but we shall see God glorified in all. Then there are so many "handfuls of purpose" to cheer us along the way (Ruth ii, 16) and lighten our journey. I hope he enjoyed the sea voyages, for to me they are so restful, and even storms are magnificently grand if one can keep a quiet mind and body. He had at least one good companion with whom he could have good fellowship on the voyage, Aristarchus of Thessalonica, who was afterward a fellow prisoner with him at Rome (verse 2 and Col. iv, 10).

At Sidon, where the ship called, Paul was given liberty to go to his friends and refresh himself (verse 3), and this must have been a good handful and much appreciated. They changed ships at Myra, in Lycia, some distance southeast of Ephesus, where they found a ship from Alexandria bound for Italy. They reached Crete safely, but, not giving heed to Paul's advice to winter there and thinking that they had a favorable wind, they set sail. I shall never forget one of the most enjoyable sea trips of my life from Port Said, in Egypt, to Brindisi, in Italy, in 1897. After some months of tropical heat in China and India and the sail up the Red sea, which the captain thought must have been called Red because it was red hot, I thought I never had anything quite so enjoyable as that sail. My diary for Sept. 15, 1897, says, "Sighted Crete about noon and kept along the southwest coast till night." I was then writing notes on the Sunday school lessons just as I am today and have been doing in the summer months ever since 1887. How great have been my privileges! To Him be all the glory. Pardon this digression and give Paul and Crete the credit of it. The tempestuous wind and the being exceedingly tossed (verses 14, 18, 20) did not come my way on the Mediterranean, but I have known something of it on other seas and been kept in peace.

This was certainly a great storm that this ship fell into, for neither sun nor stars were seen for many days, and all hope of surviving the storm was given up (verse 20). We think of the works of the Lord and His wonders in the deep and of people at their wits' end and how He can make the storm a calm or in some other way deliver (Ps. cvii, 23-30). After many days and nights of this great storm Paul had a visitor from heaven, an angel of God, either the Lord Himself, as in xxiii, 11, or one of His faithful messengers, as in xii, 7-10, with a word of good cheer for him and for all on board. Oh, these wonderful angels who excel in strength, who delight to do His bidding, who can run and return like lightning! (Ps. ciii, 20, 21; Ezek. i, 14.) They have no fear and seem to have all power. Just think of this one finding this ship in the midst of this great storm and the one man on board of all the 276 whom he specially wanted (verse 37).

It should comfort us to know that such friends as these are ever ministering unto us (Heb. i, 14). The next day after this visit of the angel Paul was able to comfort all on board. How much even one person may do to help others if he is in touch with God! Paul was able to assure them that there would be no loss of life, not a hair of their heads harmed, and to encourage them to eat something, for they had eaten little or nothing for fourteen days (verses 22, 33-36). He took bread and gave thanks to God in the presence of them all and began to eat. Then they all did eat and were of good cheer. Note Paul's message concerning the angel visitor, "The angel of God, whose I am and whom I serve" (verse 23), and may the last seven words be ours always from the heart. He certainly believed for himself what he wrote to the Corinthians, "Ye are not your own, for ye are bought with a price" (I Cor. vi, 19, 20).

If ever a man lived it out he did; and, knowing what it meant to serve the Lord with all humility of mind, he could urge others to serve the Living and True God (Acts xx, 19; I Thess. i, 9). Then his words of strength and cheer to all these people were so grand, with every prospect, humanly speaking, of going down with the ship, and no reason for thinking otherwise but the message of the angel, he said so boldly, "Wherefore, sirs, be of good cheer, for I believe God that it shall be even as it was told me" (verse 25). And so it came to pass, and they escaped all safe to land (verse 44). We think of Abraham, who considered not himself nor Sarah, but was fully persuaded that what God had promised He was able to perform (Rom. iv, 19-21). For twenty-one years the motto of my little monthly, Kingdom Tidings, has been "Abraham believed God. * * * I believe God," and, though the contrast between these two men of God and the work represented by this little monthly is very great, yet the principle is the same, and the words have been a great help to me.

GORKY'S SON HAS LOST RIGHT ARM

Lieut. Pechkoff Returns From Champagne Region.

WAS IN FOREIGN LEGION

He Declares That German Atrocities in Present War Are Too Horrible to Tell—Loss of His Own Arm is Proof That Enemy Used Explosive Bullets in Machine Guns.

Wearing the small-patterned tri-color serge, a shade lighter and greener than regulation khaki, of the French Legion Etrangere, Lieut. Zinovi Pechkoff, a Russian and the son of Maxim Gorky the novelist, lectured to the Toronto Canadian Club recently on his experiences at the front. Lieut. Pechkoff, who has lost his right arm in the Champagne battles, lived in Toronto for a year prior to the war. In his address he dealt wholly with the first months of the war, when the trenches were mere scrapings of earth. During the battle of the Marne his regiment was in reserve, but it stood there, 800 metres away from the Germans, for three days and nights with nothing doing. Since then he had lived for weeks in trenches, only eighty-five metres away from the German lines, in a good deal more comfort.

LIEUTENANT ZINOVI PECHKOFF.

Of the German atrocities he spoke plainly, but with undiminished vigor, after two years' interval. "Many people," he said, "who have studied in Germany, and who believed they knew all about her even now on this continent, will say that the German atrocities were exaggerated. But I say they are not. We are living in a time when things which seemed impossible before the war are possible and are common facts. I passed through many villages in France, and I have seen things I cannot even now describe, they were so horrible." Lieut. Pechkoff was in four big attacks before being wounded on May 9, 1915. He was struck by an explosive bullet. "I hear in America that Germany does not use explosive bullets. When we took two machine guns from them one-third of the cartridges were explosive." Had he not been hit with an explosive bullet he would have saved his arm.

Speaking of the difference at the fronts now as compared with the early days, the Lieutenant said that now there were in France "woods of cannon." The artillery was a hundred times better. The aviation department was splendid. All aviators' reports were photographs of the German lines taken from the air, and developed within ten minutes in the General Staff Office, and within twelve minutes orders to correct fire were sent to the gunners by telephone. On a recent visit as a spectator, Lieut. Pechkoff was shown a road ten miles long and wide enough for four motor cars side by side. It led from the base to the third-line trenches, and had been built in one day. Sixteen thousand men had been put on, and each did a metre, or a yard, "and so it was done."

He closed his address by a description of the allied parade in Paris on July 14 last, in which he pictured the armed men marching from the Place de la Republique along the boulevards "to that new Bastille, the Bastille of German despotism," and foretold the coming march of the triumphant army of France back through the Arc de Triomphe with a lasting peace.

"What code is that?"

"The one which makes it all right to take a man's last dollar, but a breach of etiquette to take his last cigarette."

SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Lesson VI.—Fourth Quarter, For Nov. 5, 1916.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Acts xxvii, 38, to xxviii, 10—Memory Verses, 42-44. Golden Text, Ps. xxxiv, 22—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

Part of Paul's message was that the ship would be lost and that they would be cast upon an island (xxvii, 22, 26). And about midnight of the fourteenth night of the storm the shipmen deemed that they were nearing some land and, taking soundings, found it even so; therefore they cast out four anchors and longed for daylight. It was while they were thus anchored that Paul persuaded them to take some food (xxvii, 27-38). When it was day they saw a creek with a shore where they might possibly run the ship aground; so, cutting off the anchors and hoisting the mainsail, they made for the shore; the fore part of the ship stuck fast, but the hinder part was broken with the violence of the waves, yet all got safely ashore, either by swimming or on broken pieces of the ship (xxvii, 39-44), as God had told Paul by the angel.

Notice in verses 30, 31, 42, 43 how some might have hindered the purpose of God to save them all. Concerning the great salvation, God has provided it for all and will have all to be saved and is not willing that any should perish (I Tim. ii, 4; Tit, ii, 11, margin; II Pet. iii, 9), but if any will not accept God's way they must perish, not because He wills it, but because they decide against Him, or, as He said, "Ye will not come unto me." "I would * * * ye would not." "Israel would none of me" (John v, 40; Matt. xxiii, 37; Ps. lxxxi, 11). When they reached the land they found that they were on the island which we now call Malta, and they received much kindness from the people, who because of the rain and cold kindled a fire and welcomed them. They are called barbarous people, but many who are so called have often shown more kindness than those called Christian. It is deeds that tell, not words or names.

A few years ago the world was shocked by the atrocities of the Boxers in China, but now the civilized (?) nations of Europe are far ahead of all barbarians in monstrous and indescribable atrocities, and the end is not yet (June, 1915). The words in xxvii, 30, "When it was day" and the change from being exceedingly tossed on the sea by a great tempest to being again on the land, make us think of one night when, until the morning watch, the disciples toiled in a boat against a contrary wind, and He saw them, yet not till the fourth watch did He come walking on the sea, but when they received Him into their boat they were immediately at the land (John vi, 18-21). We are certainly in the worst storm our poor earth ever saw, and men's hearts are failing them for fear, because of the distress of nations with perplexity, but the day will dawn, a morning without clouds, and we will not be shipwrecked, but caught up to meet Him in the air, whose we are and whom we serve (Luke xxi, 25, 26; Rom. xiii, 12; II Sam. xxiii, 4; I Thess. iv, 16, 17). Our God shall come and shall not keep silence; though He tarry we will wait for Him (Ps. l, 3; Heb. x, 36, 37).

Paul gathered sticks to help make the fire burn, then came the viper, and again he is misjudged and thought to be a murderer, but when he shook off the beast and felt no harm and did not fall down dead they changed their minds and said he was a god (xxviii, 3-6), just like the people at Lystra (Acts xiv), but in the reverse order, for they first worshiped him and then stoned him. Such is poor human nature that judges by appearances. But let us lay to heart some lessons, thinking just for a moment of Peter, who warmed himself where he should not have been and brought upon himself a lot of trouble, for the viper, the old serpent, took hold of him and would scarce let go. Consider your prayer meeting the place where you ought to go to get warmed up. Have you ever thrown on a stick or two to help make the fire burn? A word of praise or prayer to magnify Him. Then did the viper light on you as you overheard some one ridicule your testimony? Well, what did you do—fall down dead and never speak in meeting again, or did you shake off the beast and feel no harm?

God had another handful for Paul and his companions by making them welcome in the home of the chief man of the island, and then He had a reward for Publius by healing his father by the hands of Paul. That led to many coming to be healed, and more handfuls for Paul in the form of many honors, and when they departed they were loaded with all that they needed. During the three months that they remained on the island Paul would not fail to do as he always did and preach Jesus and the resurrection, and though it is not so recorded, we shall surely hear of it and its results in the kingdom. Not all the things that our Lord Himself said and did are recorded (John xx, 30, 31; xxi, 25), and if some of ours are not written on earth all His through us are written in heaven, and not even a cup of cold water given in His name shall lose its reward. Even our thoughts of Him are recorded (Mal. iii, 16). In His service we are assured that such things as are necessary will without fail be given us (Phil. iv, 19), for the promise is "with Him freely all things" (Rom. viii, 32). See also Matt. vi, 32, 33.

Switzerland Is the Goal of Prisoners

Private Thomas Gamey, a prisoner in Germany, in a letter to Mr. George Wright of Toronto told how the prisoners looked forward with hope to being sent to Switzerland, and related very vividly part of the journey to the promised land. Continuing, Mr. Gamey says:

"We entered a trolley and rode toward the station at Constance through empty streets. Arriving at Barnhop we entered a car bound for Frankfort. We had two guards, in one I recognized an old friend. This German, when I first arrived as a prisoner in Germany, and was in the hospital, approached me and said: 'You are a regular soldier?' I answered that I was a volunteer, to which he promptly answered: 'You're a —— fool. You're not a volunteer, but just a fool.'

"He couldn't understand how any one could volunteer, which I think shows what many Germans think of this war. He did many little kind things for me, and even if he is an enemy, I must say that he was a decent fellow. Every time he saw me he would look at me with wonder in his eyes and murmur: 'What a —— fool!' I learned that he lived in America, had been visiting in Germany when war broke out and had been forced to serve, much against his will.

"We arrived at Frankfort at five in the morning, where we met many other men from the prison camps all over Germany to the number of four hundred and eighty. The station at Frankfort was crowded with people, but they paid no attention to us. They looked to me as if they were tired of everything connected with the war that they couldn't even raise the necessary hate to boo at us. At Frankfort we were fed and then placed upon a long train, and after a short wait we started for Constance.

"But I can tell you this, that none of us enjoyed that trip, in spite of the scenery, which was glorious, for we heard that we had to pass another examination before a board of German and Swiss doctors. En route our train stopped once for us to be fed and about eleven that night we pulled into Constance.

"Those of us who were able to walk were marched to various Casernes. I, with the other bad cases, were sent through the town in buses. The streets were packed with people to watch us go by, but they simply stared at us in a listless manner, one or two raised sufficient energy to hiss in a feeble manner. We slept that night in good comfortable beds, the best I had seen since I left Canada, many months ago. The following morning at ten we were all taken to a large building and in turn conducted before the doctors.

"At Frankfort I had such a shock that my heart's action has not been normal since. The first doctor refused me. I couldn't understand his words, but his actions were plain enough. I felt sick, to come this far and then be turned back, it was too much. In a sort of dazed way I wandered over to the table before the second doctor. He didn't look at my legs, he looked at my head, saw a silly old face crowned by a white mop and just waved his hand for me to go on.

"The examination only lasted from ten to twelve, and so only half the boys were examined, the balance were told that their cases would be looked into on Monday. Then we all returned to our quarters with no definite knowledge as to whether we had passed or not.

"All Sunday we wrestled with our fears. I tell you that it was something awful. We thought that we had passed but were not sure. This was by far our worst times, the faces of those who had been definitely refused were certainly a sad sight. In the fighting before Ypres I saw many sad, distressing sights, but nothing that touched my heart as the looks of those poor fellows who had come so far only to have the gates of Switzerland slammed in their faces. I think that the worry about them really helped us a lot, for it made us forget the uncertainty of our own fate.

"On Monday those who had not been examined on Saturday were marched off to where the doctors were waiting. All those who had passed on Saturday were paraded and had a large ticket attached to us like the emigrants have when they arrive in Canada. We also received the money for our stamps. We were then taken and placed on a train, the cars were fine big ones. The station was crowded with people, who were very quiet, and they struck me as being very sad. Nearly everybody wore black.

"You can say what you please, but the Germans have already paid for many of the crimes committed by their rulers. The silence was really oppressive, none spoke above a whisper. As for our fellows, they just sat and held their breath for fear that even now the hand of bad luck would pluck them from their seats and fling them back into the prison camp. I'll never be able to see a prison in Canada without being mighty sorry for the poor devils in it."

"Tin Sickness" in Fatherland.

"According to travellers from Germany," says the Exchange Telegraph's Amsterdam correspondent, "a remarkable disease is spreading in many parts of Germany, especially in Berlin, Hamburg, Munich, and Cologne, caused by 'continual feeding from preserved foods. The sickness is described as 'tin sickness.' It is considered a serious form of blood poison.

"Thousands of cases are reported in every large city, although the authorities exercise strict control over the tin used for preserved foods."

EDUCATING OYSTERS.

How the Japanese Teach Them to Make Pearls.

In Japan there is a great oyster farm where the bivalves are taught to make pearls. It was Dr. Mikimoto, a well-known scientist, who conceived the idea that oysters might be educated and made to work for man. After many years of costly experimentation he discovered the method in use to-day.

The farm has an area of about fifty square miles and the water varies in depth from five to fifteen fathoms. The farmer selects the spots where the larvæ of oysters are most numerous and then he plants small rocks and stones. These are soon covered with oyster-spat. They are then removed and placed in special beds, where they lie undisturbed until the third year.

An oyster will not produce a pearl unless it be irritated by some foreign substance. As soon as it feels this it proceeds to cover it with nacre, layer on layer, until after a few years it has made a pearl. When large enough the oysters are taken from their beds and carefully opened; a tiny speck of some foreign substance is introduced into their bodies, and they are replaced in the sea. By the end of from three to five years the oyster has coated the foreign substance with nacre and this has become a pearl.

All the work on this oyster farm is done by women, who bring the oysters up and down by diving.

Helping the Bomb-Dropper.

In France they are testing a naval bomb-dropping mechanism which makes it virtually impossible for the aviator to miss the object at which he launches a bomb. The invention is intended for use in conjunction with battleplanes, the aerial bombs being droped through a cone of light.

This powerful illuminant is composed of a ring of high candle-power electric lights. Each lamp is supported in a separate reflector under the hood of the bomb-dropper. The light beams from each lamp cross the other beams, and in this manner a concentrated cone of light is produced.

There are several powerful electric lamps available for this purpose, and by means of a switch on the aeroplane the illumination can be cut off as desired.

The bomb-dropper, with its ring of lamps, is susended at the lower end of a flexible steel cable, and the wires controlling the whole outfit follow this cable also. When necessary the suspension cable is wound up by a power-driven winch, and the bomb-dropper can thus be raised right up into the plane.

This scheme has several distinctive features. For one thing the dropping of the bomb through a circle of light is bound to increase the accuracy of the marksman. Once the target lies in the centre of the circle of light, a missed shot becomes a rarity indeed.

Why Pins Vanish.

For many years the world has been baffled by the problem of where the pins go that are turned out in millions of millions by the pin factories.

But the problem seems to have been solved at last. A Paris scientist has been experimenting on pins, hairpins, and needles, by the simple process of watching a few. He states that they practically disappear into thin air, by changing into ferrous oxide, a brownish rust that soon blows away in dust.

An ordinary hairpin took only 154 days to blow away. A steel pen lasted just under fifteen months. A common pin took eighteen months to vanish. A polished steel needle defied the ravages of the atmosphere longest, taking two and a half years to disappear.

So the reason why the world is not a foot deep in the pins it buys is, it seems, exactly the same which makes an iron surface scale off when exposed for a long time to the atmosphere without the protection of paint.

The First Prohibition Act.

The first prohibitive measure was that of the Saxon King Edgar, who nearly a thousand years ago, on the advice of Dunstan, put down many alehouses, only allowing one to exist in any village or small town, and at the same time limited the draughts of the drinkers. The common drinking cup of that day held about two quarts, and Edgar had eight pegs laced at stated distances in each cup, heavy penalties being imposed on those who drank from one peg to another at each time. Neither the working nor the result of the Act encouraged Edgar's successors to further action, and the next prohibitive legislation on the sale of liquor is due to Henry VII., who, by an Act against vagabonds and beggars in the year 1495, gave power to any two justices of the peace to stop the common selling of strong ale in towns and any other places they thought necessary.

Mysterious Confectionery.

The Chinese are very skilful in making confectionery, and possess the reputation of having some secrets the knowledge of which our own confectioners would find very desirable. They are able to empty an orange of its pulp entirely, then fill it up with fruit jelly without one being able to find the smallest cut in the rind or even a tiny hole. Indeed, they even empty an egg in this manner and fill it with a sort of almond nougat, without one being able to find the slightest break or incision in the shell.

A Joke on Himself.

Although usually a very quiet person, Sir James Barrie has at least one good story to tell against himself. He is exceedingly fond of cricket, but his love for it is somewhat greater than his prowess at it. "I always go on smoking till it's my turn to bat," he says. "When I go in I put my pipe down, alight. It's often still alight when I get back to the pavilion."

SOME FAMOUS CRIPPLES

MEN WHOSE NAMES HAVE PASSED AROUND THE WORLD.

Lord Byron, Despite His Club Foot, Was a Fine Boxer, Dancer, and Swimmer—Sir Walter Scott Had a Lame Leg and Alexander Pope Always Wore Corsets to Support His Back—Mrs. Browning More Invalid Than Cripple.

Lord Byron had a club foot and was acutely conscious of the fact to his last day. Yet he was a fine boxer, having taken lessons from one of the famous "bruisers" of his time; he was also a splendid dancer, and, as everybody knows, he swam the Hellespont, the Dardanelles, in emulation of one of his Greek heroes, Leander.

Sir Walter Scott was also a cripple, yet in spite of his disability was a most active man. One night in early boyhood he was chased round the room by his mother, who wished to pack him off to bed. In the morning he was affected with fever, and after three days it was found that he had lost the use of his right leg. He never wholly recovered the use of this limb and always walked lame, with a heavy step. Yet he was very active as he grew up, fighting and climbing with the other boys. It is probable that his early affliction, however, had much to do with the special direction his genius took, for it threw him much in the company of his elders and with old Scottish books. He never mentions his lameness, like Byron, and it does not seem to have worried an essentially healthy-minded man.

Alexander Pope is another notable cripple. His weakness was so great that he had always to wear stays, and in later life he hardly stirred abroad except in a sedan chair with the blinds down. His mind, or rather his morals, were as crooked as his back, and it was said he could not drink a cup of tea without intrigue. His unfortunate deformity seems to have embittered his pen, which was the most sarcastic and biting of his age, and his satire is his best work.

Frank Smedley, the author of those fascinating and once hugely popular novels, "Frank Fairleigh" and "Lewis Arundel," was a lifelong cripple, never putting foot to ground and often in excruciating pain. Yet, although he cannot be compared with a literary giant like Pope, his life was a benediction to all around him. He was the most cheerful of men, and anyone reading his books and knowing nothing of the fact that they were written in "a recumbent position" would conclude that their author rode to hounds at least thrice a week, was perhaps a gentleman jockey, and the first and foremost in all field sports and games.

Samuel Johnson was not a cripple in the strict sense, but his large, unwieldy form, his face seamed with scrofula, his purblind peering eyes, his spasmodic movements like one afflicted with St. Vitus' dance, make him a remarkable physical curiosity in the gallery of literature. Yet there is not a more interesting and truly human portrait in the National Gallery than that of Johnson by his friend, Sir Joshua Reynolds. He has painted all his defects and yet it is a lovable picture, because one seems to see behind the deformities of the body the true nobility and wisdom of the mind.

Mrs. Browning would perhaps better be described as an invalid rather than a cripple, yet her sufferings, which kept her for years reclining on her couch, were due to an accident which happened in her sixteenth year. She was one day trying to saddle her pony in a field when she fell with the saddle upon her and incurred an injury to her spine. She wrote her immortal "Sonnets from the Portuguese," which were not from the Portuguese at all but straight from her own passionate heart, whilst tied to her couch. Yet this crippled invalid found strength to "run away" with the man she loved—Robert Browning. Her marriage did her every sort of good, for, although never robust, she was greatly better and able to get about.

Amongst famous cripples who were not distinctly literary are counted Flaxman, the famous sculptor; Josiah Wedgwood, the celebrated potter; Tallyrand, the clever diplomat, whom the Empress Josephine denounced as "that cursed cripple"; and our own lamented and deeply respected Lord Kelvin, the great scientific inventor.

Parliament and the Law.

Mr. Fisher, the Australian High Commissioner, in a speech the other day, observed that our Cabinets had always been fortunate in the possession of men of the legal profession, but had been too little endowed with the trained expert knowledge of other professions. Both remarks may be true, but in justice to the lawyers it should be noted that our present Cabinet contains only six of them—Messrs. Asquith, McKenna, Lloyd George, Lord Buckmaster, Sir F. E. Smith, and Lord Robert Cecil. Further, it should be noted that until Mr. Asquith became Premier the head of the Cabinet had not been a lawyer since 1835.

Disraeli was designed for the law, but never went to the Bar. The last barrister Premier was Lord Melbourne. He was called to the Bar in 1804, but his connection with the law was brief. He joined the Northern Circuit and attended the Lancashire Sessions, a fact which Lancashire has doubtless forgotten. He had only one brief, a prosecution, and then the death of his brother made him heir to the title, and he quitted the law for ever.

Acidity of the Stomach.

For acidity of the stomach a teaspoonful of glycerine in a wineglassful of water is a useful remedy.

WANTED A WIFE!

How the Germans Advertise for Their Life Partners.

Marriage advertisements are no novelty in Britain. While, however, they are, generally speaking, confined there to a few obscure papers, in Germany they form a special feature of most of the daily newspapers. The frankness of these advertisements shows a curious lack of that "kultur," dignity, and modesty of which the Germans so proudly boast. Here are a few culled by M. Henry de Halsalle from the leading German newspapers and reprinted in his book, "Degenerate Germany" (Warner Laurie):

"Listen, men, listen!

"I am young and very pretty, a well-made blond, with very dark eyes, and I must get married as soon as possible. I have seventy pounds, a loving, affectionate disposition, and I could make any man happy. I belong to the servant class, but to any gentleman who does not object to this fact, I say write me with an offer marked on the envelope "Blond 19," Office of this Paper. I should like a guardsman. Communications can be received till the 14th instant."

A very frequent appeal comes from the student, generally in this wise:

"Hand and heart are at the disposal of a wealthy lady of any age, willing to provide for a handsome student of twenty-three, and enable him to complete his studies at the university."

Matrimonial agencies advertise daily and give the most minute descriptions of their clients after the fashion of furniture described in an auctioneer's catalogue. The following, according to M. Halsalle, is a "broker's" advertisement from The Tageblaat:

"Marriageable Young Women.

"At ———'s a large number of marriageable young women of all ages and classes, with "dots" ranging from 2,000 marks to 500,000 marks. Several wealthy young ladies desirous of making purely love marriage. All letters treated in the strictest confidence.—Freudrichstrasse."

Strange Bridges.

Probably no town in the world has such strange bridges as Srinagar, the capital of Cashmir, in India. The city is built on the banks of the River Jhelum, which is crossed by many wooden bridges lined with old and dilapidated shops and houses with balconies and lattice windows. Some of these are very insecure, and look as if they might at any time fall into the river beneath.

Timber has always been largely used for building bridges, and the earliest one of this kind on record is that which Julius Cæsar made across the Rhine, and which he describes in his "Commentaries."

The roofed Kapellbruche, at Lucerne, is one of the most interesting. It crosses the River Reuss diagonally, and has a hundred and twelve triangular paintings beneath the roof, recording the heroic deeds of the old Switzers and the sufferings of their patron saints. In the midst of the Kapellbruche stands an octagonal tower, which formed part of the fortifications of the town in the thirteenth century. The bridge was built in 1333.

One of the curious and ancient bridges in Europe is that at Croyland, in Lincolnshire, which is supposed to date from the ninth century. No road now passes over and no water under it. It consists of three pointed arches, which meet in the centre, and the ascent is so steep that only foot passengers can go over it. Upon the bridge is a seated figure in stone of a robed Saxon king.

He Surprised Her.

Mr. McKinnon Wood, the new financial secretary to the British Treasury, tells the following story against himself:

During the recent visit to this country of some members of the Russian Duma, at a Parliamentary reception held in their honor, the wife of the Speaker of the House of Commons offered to introduce Mr. Wood to one of the Russian ladies present.

A little later she came up with a lady, and the mutual introduction took place.

Mr. Wood did not cach the name, and as he is ignorant of the Russian language he felt somewhat embarrassed. Then it suddenly occurred to him that the Russians are good linguists, and on the spur of the moment he said:

"Do you speak English?"

"Why certainly!" replied the lady with a surprised air. Then added, observing that Mr. Wood looked somewhat puzzled in his turn—"I am Mrs. Austen Chamberlain."

The Speaker's wife had inadvertently introduced him to the wrong lady.

Submarine for Napoleon.

When Napoleon was banished to St. Helena various schemes were set on foot for his rescue. One of the most remarkable originated in the inventive brain of a smuggler named Johnstone, says London Answers.

"A submarine," says Sir Walter Scott in his "Life of Napoleon," "was to be the means of effecting this enterprise. It was thought that by sinking the vessel during the daytime it might escape the notice of the British cruisers, and being raised at night might approach the guarded rock without discovery.

"The vessel was actually begun in one of the building yards of the Thames, but the peculiarity of its construction having occasioned suspicion, it was seized by the Government."

Substitute for Gold.

A substitute for gold is obtained by combining 94 parts of copper with six parts of antimony and adding a little magnesium carbonate to increase the weight. It is said that this alloy can be drawn, wrought, and soldered very much like gold, and that it also receives and retains a golden polish. It is worth something like 25 cents a pound.

NEW WAR GAMES.

Canadians Have Originated Many and Revolutionized Others.

The Germans call the British mad because of their passion for sports. But it was a Canadian division which chose to have its movable kitchens cooking a real meal as it passed Minister of War Lloyd George in review, that later held the first field and track meet in which only war games were contested. Since then these field days have become popular all through the British forces.

The old-time war game, a sort of chess played by senior commanders, is not of much use in this "war of position." In its stead many other games have been invented. One favorite is a gas helmet race. The spectacle of a line of men wearing their helmets and looking like bipeds with elephants' heads racing over a hundred yard course makes one who sees it for the first time burst into laughter.

"Digging in under fire," another favorite sport, bears a strong resemblance to hard work. Each competitor has an entrenching tool and ten minutes in which to show what a fine cover for himself against a hostile "Jack Johnson" he can make in that time.

Bomb throwing matches are sometimes played from practice trenches, but usually on a smooth surface. The bombs by the rules must be bowled, and not thrown. The target is thirty or forty yards away. It resembles in shape a gigantic "hot cross bun," and the maximum in points is awarded for missiles dropped in a circle at the centre of the cross.

The Canadians were the first to establish barbed wire fence building as a sport. Nine coils of barbed wire and twenty posts are the material. The competitors must build an "apron fence," and the team first completing its work in a satisfactory manner wins.

One curious rule in this game is that no talking may be done. In the field these fences are built at night close to the enemy, who would be much interested in the work if he knew about it.

The old stretcher bearer competition consisted in four men carrying a bandaged "patient" on a stretcher for a hundred yards. Sometimes a glass of water was placed on the stretcher, and the spilling of a drop eliminated the team.

The Canadians have improved this sport by abolishing the stretcher—it must now be improvised out of the nearest available material.

The wearers of the maple leaf have also improved what is called the "Victoria Cross race." The old way mounted men galloped from one end of the arena to the other, snatched up a straw-stuffed figure supposed to be a fallen comrade, threw it across the saddle, and rode back through a storm of blank cartridges. The Canadians laughed at the dummies. They use real men, weighing twenty times as much.

The war has changed bayonet fighting methods. In the old bayonet game the wire-helmeted fencer, swaddled in pads and wielding a knob-headed weapon, parried and thrust at his antagonist.

"The bayonet fighter of the old school," said an instructor in the new practice, "would be killed while he was feinting, dodging, giving ground and looking for an opening."

The new bayonet contest is a kind of obstacle race, in which the competitor stabs, jabs, and bludgeons as he runs, using the point of a naked bayonet and the butt of a service rifle, always going forward, never feinting or giving ground an inch.

Discovering the Telephone.

A dinner of the American Geographic Society held in Washington recently was used as an occasion for celebrating the marvellous developments of the telephone during the last forty years. One of the principal guests was Dr. Alexander Graham Bell, who recalled that "great day"—March 10th, 1876—when he learnt beyond doubt that complete words and sentences could be understood through the instrument he had constructed. This early telephone was connected with the next room, where his assistant, Mr. Watson, was at work. Dr. Bell talked into it, and said: "Mr. Watson, come here; I want to see you." Mr. Watson, come here; I want to see you." Mr. Watson came to him at once, and the inventor then knew that his problem was solved.

Nearly forty years later that original conversation was repeated under conditions that showed how marvellously the range of this invention had been extended in the interval. Dr. Bell was sitting in New York at a telephone fitted with the same old transmitter he had used in 1876. He spoke through it to Mr. Watson, who was then in San Francisco, and said once more: "Mr. Watson, come here; I want to see you." His friend replied: "It would take me a week to get to you now."

Nickel in New Caledonia.

After a four months' stay in New Caledonia, Tasmania, New Zealand, and Australia, gathering information as to the nickel resources of that part of the world, Dr. W. G. Miller, Provincial Geologist, and Thomas Sutherland, Inspector of Mines, have returned to Toronto.

The two officials left Toronto in May and the most important work of their stay abroad was the survey made of the nickel resources of New Caledonia, the only serious rival in the world for the Sudbury nickel deposits. While Dr. Miller will not make his report until next meeting of the Nickel Commission, of which he is a member, it is understood that he found the New Caledonia deposits to be vastly larger than has been generally thought. While considerable development is being carried on there by the French great ore-bearing areas have not been touched. Even there the International Nickel Company is in evidence, some very valuable deposits in New Caledonia being owned by the company and held as a reserve.

MUENSTERBERG HAS GIVEN PLOT AWAY

Letter Reveals Plan to Make a Tool of President Wilson.

HE IS TO BE PEACE MEDIATOR

Professor of Psychology in Harvard University Was in a German Scheme by Which Wilson Was to Be Used by Teutons—British Censor Found Important Letter.

EVIDENCE of the existence of an officially recognized and forwarded German conspiracy to force President Wilson to become a mediator in the war has been disclosed in a letter written by Prof. Hugo Muensterberg, of Harvard, to the German Imperial Chancellor, Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg. This confidential communication was found by the British censor and part of its contents divulged some time ago, but it was not announced who had written it. One might well interject an acknowledgment of the efficiency of the British blockade which can prevent even a letter being shipped into Germany, and a letter, we may well imagine, about which the utmost care would be taken by its writer. As far as Professor Muensterberg is concerned, it will be recalled that in the early days of the war he was the chief spokesman for the German Government in the United States, with the sole exception of Bernstorff himself. Being widely respected by the American people, he commanded some attention in the early days of the war, but when he showed himself a thorough Prussian who approved of such outrages as the sinking of the Lusitania, the Americans turned from him in disgust.

PROF. HUGO MUENSTERBERG.

A few weeks ago he broke a considerable period of welcomed silence by an article in which he asserted that the ideal alliance for the future would be one among Great Britain, the United States, and Germany. This brought down on his head a storm of ridicule, and from the New York Tribune an admirable article upon British hatred, showing that it would take a long period for the British to forgive the baby-killers. Another American paper remarked that it would be well for the United States to refrain from allying herself with Germany until the alliance between Germany and Great Britain was an accomplished fact. In his letter to the Imperial Chancellor, Muensterberg explains why he finds it wise "to encourage the pacifist sentiment now abroad." He tells how busy he is writing articles in favor of peace and of mediation through President Wilson, but adds significantly that these articles do not appear over his own name.

The professor sizes up the pacifist sentiment in the United States in these words:

In the country at large, however, the conciliatory and yet sure German policy toward Washington, above all, worked excellently. How far the ultimate goal of this great movement, European peace, has thereby been immediately affected and brought nearer cannot yet be estimated even in the most intimate circle. On this point I have confidential information from the best informed circles, which is, however, partly contradictory. I have the impression that Wilson's desire to play the part of mediator was at first over-estimated in German official circles here; he saw clearly how much he might harm himself with many of the most influential people by such efforts. He knew that he could only ignore these persons if he could be certain of success in Europe. Yes, quite apart from mediation, his closest advisers were even continuously uncertain whether Wilson's position for the election would be stronger if he appeared before the country as preserver of peace or as indifferent to it; as, however, in the last fortnight, as a result of Mexico, Ireland, and the submarine settlement, the pacifists everywhere have come forward more strongly and even threatened the formation of a third and not altogether impossible new party around Bryan, Ford, and MacClellan, Wilson is certainly for the moment more favorably disposed toward the preservation of peace, and from this position he can be more easily pushed into the pose of mediator. It is a fortunate circumstance that Root in particular does not wish to concede him this fame, such opposition strengthens Wilson as soon as he sets before himself the ambitious goal.

Still it is funny to see in what a gingerly way each side says that they do not really want the vote of the Lusitania murderers—unless they really want to vote for them.

PRINCE OF FINANCE.

Cunliffe Given the First Peerage in the War.

In the City of London he is known as "The Kitchener of Finance." Outside the city, Lord Cunliffe, who has been re-elected Governor of the Bank of England—the Old Lady of Threadneedle Street—for the fourth time, is practically unknown. Yet it was he who, in the first days of the war, was mainly instrumental in saving the country from financial chaos, and was, in consequence, made a peer, being, in fact, the first man to have a peerage conferred upon him for service in the present war.

It will be remembered that in the first days of the war a financial panic threatened. It was essential that every bit of gold should be preserved, and equally essential that the national credit should not suffer, and that all great financial houses and firms should be able to tide over the money crisis, brought about by the entire dislocation of the world's markets.

Then it was that Mr. Walter Cunliffe, as he then was, and two or three great money experts, came to the assistance of the Government. The financial system of the country was reorganized under their direction. The money of the country was preserved, so that we were not only able to carry on our business as usual, but were able to be of financial help to our Allies.

Son of a hard-headed Manchester business man, who left a fortune of over a million, Lord Cunliffe spent the days of his boyhood and youth at Harrow and Cambridge, where he distinguished himself both in work and play alike. He took his M. A. degree and won the Inter-Varsity mile for the Light Blue at the sports at Queen's Club one year.

He has, in fact, always been a very keen athlete and sportsman, his great passion of late years being for fishing and big game shooting. In pursuit of this sport he has traveled in the wilds of both India and China.

"Work is the best of all hobbies," is one of his favorite maxims, however, and he is to be found at his office at the bank nearly every day of the week.

Lord Cunliffe is easily distinguishable by reason of his stature. He is six feet high and very broad, with a fairish moustache and his inevitable frock coat and silk hat. For a man of sixty, he is remarkably active and young.

New X-Ray.

The British Medical Journal announces that a remarkable scientific discovery is now on trial at one of the casualty clearings stations in France. It takes up the task of producing pictures of structures, hidden far below the surface of the body just at the point where X-ray photography ceases to perform it effectively. It is possible in broad daylight to obtain detailed pictures of any organ or body, brain, liver, kidney, and spleen, and to see at a glance by what gross lesions they are affected. In one case a concretion in the appendix was seen clearly.

The miracle is achieved by utilizing the currents of electricity which the body is believed to generate. Two electrodes, each ending in a perforated zinc plate or zinc wire screen, are employed. These are connected with batteries, but are not placed in contact with the patient's body. One screen stands on a pedestal in a vertical position, the other is hung horizontally at right angles to it. The patient is placed with the part to be examined quite close to the first screen and directly under, but at a distance from the second. The current from the patient's own organs is made to operate a sensitive needle, which works upon a revolving cylinder carrying a waxed paper. The so-called hammer needle moves across the cylinder, tapping out little holes in the wax, and when later the wax is held up to the light a diagram is seen which "precisely resembles the outline of the living tissues, lying vertically below the second screen." This diagram can be converted into an ordinary photograph by processes familiar to the applied arts. The inventor is James Shearer, a Scotchman, aged 20, a sergeant in the medical corps.

Tender-hearted K. of K.

The popular conception of the late Lord Kitchener as a "man of iron with a heart of ice" is ridiculously wrong and unjust. As a matter of fact, he was one of the greatest and tenderest-hearted of men. Not many years ago his old nurse said, "People tell me that he has no heart and that everybody is afraid of him; but they are wrong. He is really one of the most tender-hearted men in the world; and whenever he comes to see me, as he often does, he is 'my boy,' just as he was in the old days in Ireland when he used to run to me in all his troubles and fling his arms around me and hug me. Ah, there is nobody left who knows the real 'Master Herbert' as I know him!"

Wants to Be a Soldier.

Samuel Third, a ten-year-old Toronto boy was taken from a Grand Trunk train recently at Windsor by the United States immigration officers because he was not very sure just where he was going. He told Chief Inspector Frick he ran away to be a soldier. He declared his father was a soldier, his grandfather was a soldier, and his father before that was a soldier, so he just simply had to join too. The lad will be given good care here until the Toronto authorities are heard from.

Well Soaped.

Salt boiled beef was the main item on the luncheon menu, and the flavor of this particular joint was so odd that the family laid down their knives and forks in unison.

"General" Mary Jane was sent for.

"There is something wrong with this beef, Mary," said the mistress of the house. "Did you soak it as I told you?"

"Oh, yes, mum," said the maid-of-all-work brightly. "I soaped it well all round."

CANADA'S BIGGEST ROLE

In Play of Nations is in the Future.

Forecast of Lord Shaughnessy before sailing from New York.

NEW YORK.—Lord Shaughnessy, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, who sailed for Europe on Wednesday on the Kroonland, in an interview, made the following statement before his departure:

"Though bleeding with sacrifices and bending with effort in behalf of the great Empire of which she is an integral part, Canada's biggest role in the play of nations is not now, but in the future. Bright though her record may be, it is only a glimpse of what is to come. Her greatest opportunities, although secured through a trying present, will be shown when, with the war settled, she undertakes to assume the place she has fought for. Success will come measured by forethought. By fulfilling duties as presented to-day, Canada will be able to reap abundantly of the prosperity which the years, surely not far distant, will bring.

"Canadian history shows that what mistakes have had to be rectified have been those due to short vision, and that the deeds most criticized have been of over-anticipation. Between the two is the straight course of steady development. Blind faith in the country has been, to a large extent, the guiding star of the men who have built. Speculation has been a ready growth in a ground rich beyond the dreams of the most hopeful. Calm, conservative business sagacity bade the pioneers discard the thought of spanning the prairies with a transcontinental line, while bold daring built not one, but three. The success of the Canadian Pacific, the pioneer, urged others to be reckless, perhaps, but then there were those who said the construction of the Canadian Pacific was folly.

"Canada's course is the centre one, and to choose is no easy task. We do not wish to cramp our future by a narrow, limited imagination, neither do we wish to greatly over-develop and thus render the load we are now carrying too great. It is sometimes hard to realize that on the shoulders of the present the material for the future must be carried.

"Canada is an empire in itself. Its population is not a fraction of what it should be, of what it is capable of becoming, or of what it will be after the war. We are taking steps to prepare for the future, and are anticipating an immigration that should be unprecedented in Canadian history.

"When peace is declared Canada will naturally be looked upon as the promised land by many peoples of Europe. She will be in a position to choose carefully. She need take not but the best, and only by so selecting her citizenship will she build up a nation capable of performing the tasks which undoubtedly will be allotted to her.

"The war has taught Canada self-reliance as probably nothing else would have done. She has been forced to do rapidly and efficiently things which were impossible. She has expanded commercially and industrially faster than ever before, and has confidence in herself to do the things which she formerly expected others to do for her.

"In the same manner that she unhesitatingly mobilized the largest army that ever crossed the Atlantic, she has developed a sea traffic on both the Atlantic and the Pacific that is tremendous. This will be undoubtedly further developed, proving to be a powerful aid in moulding trade connections favorable to Canada after the war.

"Canada cannot go back. She is committed to expansion, but not to over-expansion. Keeping within limits justified by conditions has been hard. It is difficult in being optimistic to be not too optimistic, and here perhaps is the greatest problem.

"In the past Canada has been too eager and is now faced with the problem of over-development in certain lines.

"Politically Canada will undoubtedly take a more prominent part in the destinies of the British Empire than ever before. She will probably be asked to become one of the senior members of a firm in which before the war she was merely regarded as a junior, bright, full of promise, to be sure, but one on whom a full share of the burden should not be placed. The future is undoubtedly bright, but the advancement is fraught with problems which will require good judgment and forethought rather than good judgment in afterthought."

DEVONSHIRE WILL BE WELL LIKED

Our New Governor-General Is a Thorough Democrat.

HE IS EXTREMELY TACTFUL

The Duke is a Man of Many Interests and Great Wealth, and Will Make Big Sacrifice in Coming to Canada—Was Unionist Whip in the British House of Commons

THE sincerity of the last farewells that attended the Duke of Connaught afford eloquent testimony to the warm place he has secured in the hearts of Canadians. It will be a difficult task to replace him. For, beyond most men, he has shown himself endowed with the priceless gift of tact. His successor, the Duke of Devonshire, however, is also singularly tactful. And a superabundance of tact has not always characterized all Canada's former Governors-General. For example, not all of them have been quite as approachable as is desirable in a democratic country. Nor have they all been free from a certain suggestion of official condescension, both in manner and in conversation. The Duke of Devonshire has about him nothing of the pride of rank.

THE DUKE OF DEVONSHIRE.

When he was a member of the House of Commons he discharged the duties of Unionist whip for a time. For a whip to be a success he must, above all things, be tactful. And he was a distinct success. Another way in which he demonstrated his possession of tact was in the relations, always of the warmest friendliness, which he maintained with his late uncle and predecessor in the title, the well known statesman. The late Duke's father strongly resented the notion that his son would, after his death, marry the then Duchess of Manchester, against whom he entertained a prejudice. Consequently he left all that he could of family jewels not to the late Duke—as he did not wish them to pass into the possession of the lady he disliked—but to the present Duke for the use of the latter's wife.

It would not have been altogether surprising had this incident bred some ill-feeling between the present Duke and his uncle. But it did nothing of the kind. He always continued a prime favorite with his uncle, and not only that, but he so won the favor of the latter's wife, the former Duchess of Manchester, that she bequeathed to him the jewels which her husband, the late Duke of Devonshire, had given to her on her marriage, and which were of very great value.

The Duke is a first cousin of Lady Spring-Rice, the wife of the British Ambassador at Washington. Her father, in fact—Sir Frank Lascelles, one-time British Ambassador at Berlin—and the Duke's mother, Lady Edward Cavendish, are brother and sister. The Duke happened to have visited the United States more than once before his accession to the title.

It is difficult to convey an accurate idea of the position that Canada's new Governor-General occupies in the social polity of Great Britain. There is nothing in the way of elevation of rank to which he can aspire—for he is already at the very top of the social tree. He has all the wealth that the imagination could wish—wealth derived from seven great estates as well as from mines and collieries. He owns perhaps the most magnificent country place in England, where fine country houses are by no means rare. In addition, he has manifold interests and activities. The management of his estates is a huge business in itself. He is Lord-Lieutenant of Derbyshire, as have been many of his predecessors in the title. He is chairman of a number of industrial concerns and president of numberless charitable institutions. He has also been a Minister of the Crown until recently. Thus he will have to make no small sacrifice in coming to Canada.

KEEPI[illegible] WAR RECORDS

HOW C[illegible]DA'S CASUALTIES ARE CO[illegible]LED AT OTTAWA.

It Tak[illegible] Six Hundred Clerks and Ste[illegible]graphers to Take Care of Lists of Men in the Service, Equipment, Casualties, and Other Details Regarding the Expeditionary Force—Tab is Kept on Every Soldier Under Arms.

WHILE the Canadian army has been growing to its present great proportions, one of the most remarkable bureaus of military information has grown with it at Ottawa, says a writer in The Toronto Star Weekly.

Under the fostering care of Surgeon-General Fiset, Deputy Minister of Militia, and the direct guidance of Mr. Frank Beard, Chief Record Officer for the Dominion, the unassuming and painstaking charge d'affaires of the casualty division, this bureau has grown until it is claimed that "it outshines even the Teutonic reputation for bureaucratic efficiency." Practically all the hours of the twenty-four 600 clerks and stenographers work carefully compiling the real story of Canada's part in the great war. The Canadian public naturally looks to the department at Ottawa for all information regarding officers and men of the Canadian expeditionary force, whether it relates to casualties or other particulars, and the information is there for present or future use.

Owing to the importance of the information this bureau has at its disposal, the utmost care and accuracy must always be exercised, and the absence of corrections of the casualty reports speaks volumes for the care displayed by these devoted officials. They know that mistakes bring unnecessary grief to the relatives of Canadian soldiers. They have also been trained to the necessity of breaking the news gently to the next of kin. The feelings of the relatives of the dead heroes therefore have the first consideration when casualties are being handled by the staff. In almost every instance the cablegrams reporting casualties reach the Record Office after 6 p.m. Every effort is made to send out all notices the same evening, but all telegraph companies have been instructed that no telegram reporting a casualty is to be delivered to a bereaved home after 9 p.m., and that no charge whatever is to be made for delivery of the message. So far as possible no information relating to a casualty is communicated to the public press until the next of kin has received notification of same, or every source of information regarding the whereabouts of the next of kin has been exhausted.

The Casualty Division deals with the decoding of cablegrams, reporting casualties, and notifying the next of kin. Each cable is received in cipher, and before the information is forwarded to the relatives it is checked over twice. A record is kept of each telegram when it leaves the department, showing the name and address of the person to whom it is sent, and the name of the officer or man who has been killed or wounded, etc.—when the telegraph company reports that the message has been delivered it is entered on other lists which are prepared for the Premier, the Ministers, several members of Parliament, and the press. These lists, before being issued, are also checked over very carefully. All information pertaining to a casualty is placed on a card and filed alphabetically the same night, so that the latest information is ready for the enquirer at any time.

In addition to the casualties reported by cable, daily lists are received by post furnishing information regarding men in hospitals. This is communicated by letter to the next of kin in all cases where the casualty was reported by cable in the first instance. This is done to relieve so far as possible the anxiety of relatives and friends, by keeping them posted as to how each man is progressing and when he is well enough to be discharged from hospital.

[illegible] is only one of the fifteen departments controlled by Mr. Beard in the Record Office. When a man enlists he has to make out an attestation paper, giving complete details of himself. This is forwarded to Ottawa, where the information is transferred to an index card for use when required. About 200 of these are filed each day.

The filing of special index cards and the answering of enquiries also take up a large share of the work and time of the office. At the present time over 200,000 index cards have been written and filed in alphabetical order. The work in this section is largely composed of giving the exact names and addresses of soldiers and next of kin to enquirers, and in checking over the lists of the employes of various public departments and companies throughout the Dominion, who are serving in the Canadian expeditionary force.

Verbal enquiries are also answered. In Mr. Beard's office many a pathetic scene is enacted. Anxious parents travel many miles to see the man in charge of casualty records, to see if he can relieve them of their anxiety. His door is never closed to people who would seek his help, and no trouble is too great if it will facilitate matters and bring an affirmative answer as to whether a much-loved son is still alive and well.

Then he must keep track of all promotions and transfers. This is an almost Herculean task, considering the fact that all battalions are broken up when they get overseas, and the men absorbed in different units, and further, when many men are promoted, and some demoted of their own free will in order to keep with their chums.

That Crown Prince.

The constant reports that the Kaiser is very dissatisfied with the conduct of his eldest son recalls an incident which occurred some fourteen years ago when the Crown Prince was paying a visit to a Scottish Duke. The Crown Prince was having a very good time, and making the most of his temporary escape from parental supervision. However, several days before the time fixed for his departure a telegram was received from the Kaiser ordering the Prince to proceed elsewhere immediately. On his kindly host venturing to protest against this sudden change of plans, the German equerry in attendance on the Prince replied: "His Imperial Majesty commands that the Crown Prince must more earnest be made!"

Germany's Troops.

The German estimate prior to this war was that at the close of the first year 40 per cent. of the infantry, 20 of the cavalry, artillery, and engineers, and 12 of the train troops would be lost. But these figures have proven inadequate for a war on two fronts continuously sustained with many great battles. By the end of the first year of this war the loss was nearer 60 per cent., which means that to keep the army at full strength till last spring the whole fighting forces has had to be replaced.

Danish Germany Suffers More.

A Danish-American who has been visiting the country of his birth this summer and spent several weeks in the districts along the Danish-German border, writes to a friend in London that practically everybody there, on both sides of the frontier, is in mourning, for all these people have relatives or friends fighting in the German front. The Germans have sent the regiments consisting of young men from northern Schleswig to the most exposed positions, and the number of Danish-speaking men who have lost their lives is already larger than the total number of Danes who fell in the war against Prussia and Austria in 1864.

Servants Who Have Risen.

A London writer recalls one who became Lady Parkes, wife of a famous Australian Premier. Emma Lyon, who was a general servant in London, married Sir William Hamilton, one of our Ambassadors; and no fewer than seven of his own servants were successively wives to Sir Gervaise Clifton. Betty Starkey, a maid-of-all-work, married a millionaire London banker and had a marchioness and a countess for daughters; and Catherine Skovronski, a Livonian scullery-maid, became an Empress when Peter the Great led her to the altar.

Not Satisfied.

Artist (to parvenu): "There you are, sir. I've painted you a full line of ancestors, and I'll warrant you that none will know they are not genuine. This is your father, that your grandfather, this your great-grandfather, and ——"

Parvenu: "Hold on! Good heavens, man, you've made my great-grandfather a much younger-looking man than I am!"

TENDERS FOR PULPWOOD AND PINE LIMIT

Tenders will be received by the undersigned up to and including the 1st day of December next for the right to cut pulpwood and pine timber on a certain area situated on the Pic River and other territory adjacent thereto, in the District of Thunder Bay.

Tenderers shall state the amount per cord on pulpwood, and per thousand feet, board measure, on pine, that they are prepared to pay as a bonus in addition to dues of 40 cents per cord for spruce, and 20 cents per cord for other pulpwoods, and $2.00 per thousand feet, board measure for pine, or such other rates as may from time to time be fixed by the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council, for the right to operate a pulp mill and a paper mill on or near the area referred to.

Such tenderers shall be required to erect a mill or mills on or near the territory and to manufacture the wood into pulp and paper in the Province of Ontario—the paper mill to be erected when directed by the Minister of Lands, Forests and Mines.

Parties making tender will be required to deposit with their tender a marked cheque, payable to the Honorable the Treasurer of the Province of Ontario, for twenty-five thousand dollars ($25,000), which amount will be forfeited in the event of their not entering into agreement to carry out conditions, etc. The said $25,000 will be applied on account of bonus dues as they accrue, but the regulation dues, as mentioned above, will require to be paid in the usual manner as returns of cutting of wood and timber are received.

The highest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

For particulars as to description of territory, capital to be invested, etc., apply to the undersigned.

Canada's Disused Railways

While Canada is yet comparatively young there are to be seen here and there evidences that one would consider properly pertained to a land that had been settled for centuries. I refer to disused and abandoned railways. In Eastern Ontario there are a number of such. One is the old Cobourg, Peterboro, and Marmora Railway. A few days ago we had occasion to take a walk over a stretch of the old roadbed near Peterboro, and a survey of the conditions, as they exist now, compared with the roseate hopes of the promoters, induced us to make a little research into the early (and brief) history of a roadbed that is now as defunct as Caesar.

Fifty or sixty years ago the towns and villages along what was known as "the front" (that is the territory contiguous to Lake Ontario) were desirous of establishing communication with what was then considered as the "backwoods." Peterboro, Lindsay, and other now flourishing places, in those days were little more than villages, but as Eastern Ontario was thickly timbered with magnificent pines, numerous sawmills were busily engaged converting the lords of the forest into square timber and merchantable lumber. It was for the purpose of being made the shipping port of the lumber trade of the Midland district that Cobourg in 1852 applied for a charter to build a railway to Peterboro and Bobcaygeon, under the name of the Cobourg, Peterboro, and Marmora Railway. Unable to obtain much assistance from other municipalities, Cobourg took the Herculean task on her own shoulders, and financed the road herself.

In 1854 the road (a broad guage one of 5 ft. 6 in.) was constructed through to Peterboro, a distance of nearly 30 miles. The first 14 miles from Cobourg to Harwood followed along several valleys, and was of easy construction. At Harwood extensive sawmills were in operation, large drives of logs coming down the Otonabee being sawn into timber at that place.

Considerable traffic for the new railway was thus immediately available. From Harwood to Hiawatha (an Indian village) on the opposite shore of Rice Lake, was a distance of several miles, and to bridge this stretch was a problem that taxed the ingenuity of the engineers of those days. At last a composite bridge of fills, trestle-work, and piers, was constructed and the road pushed on to Peterboro, a distance of 12 miles, through a fine, farming country.

For eight or nine years the road did a good business. In fact, in one season 27,000,000 feet of lumber, alone, was carried. On September 7th, 1860, the Prince of Wales (the late King Edward) paid a visit to Peterboro, coming in over this railway, and returning by way of the line to Port Hope.

The bridge across Rice Lake, however, proved to be the weak link. When the ice broke up in the spring it played havoc with the bridge. In the springs of 1855 and 1857 it was badly squeezed and disjointed, and in 1863 the road ceased to be operated as far as Peterboro.

For a number of years the line continued open from Cobourg to Harwood, doing a passenger and freight business. A branch had been constructed from Trent Bridge into the Marmora district, when several iron mines shipped ore to refineries in the States. The carrying of this ore necessitated transhipment of the ore at Trent Bridge to barges which were towed to Harwood and then reloaded on cars. Owing, it is said, to the large quantities of sulphur in the ore, and the difficulties in shipping, the trade proved unprofitable.

After the road ceased to be operated to Peterboro an effort was made by those at the northern terminus to revive the line and extend it northward to Bobcaygeon.

In 1873 the road was constructed to the shores of Lake Chemong, a distance of nine miles, when another bridge problem arose. The road was operated for some time to the water's edge, but at last fell into disuse, until 1891, when the G.T.R. tore up the old rails and ties, changed the gauge to the standard, and endeavored to popularize the route for summer picnics and excursions, but two seasons proved it to be a non-paying proposition.

The latest proposition to revive at least a portion of the old road was knocked on the head when the Kaiser set out to subjugate Europe. The Canadian General Electric Co. proposed to embark in the manufacture of electric locomotives, and for a test line had made arrangements with the G.T.R. for a lease of four or five miles. In the summer of 1914 some four miles of the old line through the township of Smith was cleared of its growth of cedars and underbrush, and preparations made for track-laying, but the war stopped further progress.

A Sam Hughes Story.

There is a typical story of Sir Sam Hughes, the Canadian Minister of War, who has recently visited England and France. He was invited to visit a hospital twenty-five miles out of London to see Canadian wounded. "Right," he replied; "I will come one day, but can't give a date." Two days later he wired that he was coming in two hours' time. Soon there came a 'phone call from the hospital imploring the General's A.D.C. to postpone the visit.

"Nobody's here," wailed the speaker. "The colonel in charge and the matron are both away and we're not prepared!" "Can't be helped," was the reply. "We don't want to see the colonel and we don't want to see the matron—we want to see the wounded. We're coming right now [illegible] general and his party went.

WAR QUICKENS FRANCE.

People Are Alive to Need of Direct Counsel for Government.

The remolding of French political methods after the war, resulting in a concentration of government, is predicted by Premier Briand, according to a conversation the Premier has had with friends, which is recapitulated in The Figaro by Alfred Capus, the dramatist and member of the French Academy. M. Capus quotes the Premier as saying:

"I do not pretend to do more than sketch the main outline. As the result of lessons which it cannot escape I believe our country will resume instinctively the notion of direct counsel and authority. There will be this difference, that, while under past regimes this authority was imposed upon it historically and by custom, to-day it is the country itself which demands it from its elected representatives, as well as a more firm and concentrated direction of its business.

"You understand I am not speaking for myself. I am thinking of the next group of politicians who will be in power. They are bound to come on the scene with a fresh outlook, and, unless bound by opinions and doctrine, will submit themselves more easily to experiment. Our present political methods are not at all damaged by the war. They simply require to be revised, remolded, and readapted. I am convinced, for example, that the spirit born of the war is about to clash with the spirit of parochialism, and that it will break it. There will be substituted the notion of [illegible] has been lost in what one might call the pulverization of efforts. What will be wanted will be the concentration of efforts in the general interest.

"In my opinion the need of tomorrow is to concentrate instead of disperse, and you cannot imagine with what good-will universal suffrage will accept these principles. I believe it is ready to do so now. The war has put it in a state of receptivity, and it remains only to speak to it clearly and frankly and to awaken it to a realization of its own condition."

Speaking of the actual situation Premier Briand said:

"I simply ask you to consider what has already been gained, and what no hazard of war can take from us. Compare what France and Paris were in July, 1914, with what they are in October, 1916. The truth is that we were not decadent, but that a new generation had sprung up, more sensible, perhaps, to reminders of defeat, more nervous, more impatient, than those who had preceded it. German insolence had contributed a great deal of this state of mind. And as one, nevertheless, dared not to think of war, there resulted a continual conflict between exalted imaginations and humdrum routine politics. It was a kind of moral confusion which manifested itself by an acute need for distraction, by a violent desire for the new, the unexpected.

"No, again, it was not decadence, it was rather anger driven inward—the old insult revived bluntly in the mind by incessant provocation. And then we felt that the world did not appreciate us at our just valuation, and that irrtiated and hurt us.

"A nation seen from without has a general aspect to which all its citizens contribute. It is that aspect which a foreigner sees and upon which he forms his opinion. Well, our aspect was not in our favor, and that was because it was not truly ours. It was distorted by an old defeat, and the truth is that the day that defeat was wiped out, when France showed by unheard-of heroism that she meant to throw off the obsession, on that day suddenly all peoples by common agreement recognized their error as regards us, and the prestige of France has become again extraordinary—greater than it has ever been at any epoch."

Paderewski Practicing.

Let anyone be near Paderewski when he is at work at his piano either in his home in Switzerland or in a hotel where he may be living for the time being, expecting to get for nothing practically a recital by this extraordinary artist, he will be sadly disappointed. He never plays a piece through. He may be at the piano steadily for four hours and never play more than detached phrases from this work or that. He is after certain tonal effects and certain phrasing, and with the dogged persistency which is one of the secrets of his success he will keep at a phrase for an hour until he gets just the color, the dynamic quality, that he is after. A friend of his relates that he sat in the next room to Paderewski and heard him play with his left hand a phrase of six notes from a Chopin Polonaise for three-quarters of an hour until he got the effect that he was after. Then he went to another phrase. With Paderewski no detail is too small to be neglected. When he sets about to prepare for a tour it is nothing to him to spend eight and ten hours a day at his piano.

Edison Performs Miracle !

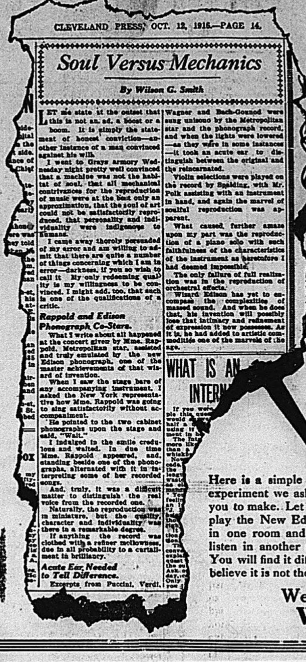
Cleveland Audience of 2500 hears Marie Rappold's Voice Re-created



CLEVELAND PRESS, OCT. 12, 1916.—PAGE 14.

Soul Versus Mechanics

By Wilson G. Smith

Let me state at the outset that this is not an ad, a boost or a boom. It is simply the statement of honest conviction—another instance of a man convinced against his will.

I went to Grays armory Wednesday night pretty well convinced that a machine was not the habitat of soul, that all mechanical contrivances for the reproduction of music were at the best only an approximation, that the soul of art could not be satisfactorily reproduced, that personality and individuality were indigenous to humans.

I came away thoroly persuaded of my error and am willing to admit that there are quite a number of things concerning which I am in error—darkness, if you so wish to call it. My only redeeming quality is my willingness to be convinced. I might add, too, that such is one of the qualifications of a critic.

Rappold and Edison Phonograph Co-Stars.

What I write about all happened at the concert given by Mme. Rappold, Metropolitan star, assisted and truly emulated by the new Edison phonograph, one of the master achievements of that wizard of invention.

When I saw the stage bare of any accompanying instrument, I asked the New York representative how Mme. Rappold was going to sing satisfactorily without accompaniment.

He pointed to the two cabinet phonographs upon the stage and said, "Wait."

I indulged in the smile credulous and waited. In due time Mme. Rappold appeared, and, standing beside one of the phonographs, alternated with it in interpreting some of her recorded songs.

And, truly, it was a difficult matter to distinguish the real voice from the recorded one.

Naturally, the reproduction was in miniature, but the quality, character and individuality was there in a remarkable degree.

If anything the record was clothed with a refiner mellowness, due in all probability to a curtailment in brilliancy.

Acute Ear Needed to Tell Difference.

Excerpts from Puccini, Verdi, Wagner and Bach-Gounod were sung unisono by the Metropolitan star and the phonograph record, and when the lights were lowered—as they were in some instances—it took an acute ear to distinguish between the original and the reincarnated.

Violin selections were played on the record by Spalding, with Mr. Polk assisting with an instrument in hand, and again the marvel of soulful reproduction was apparent.

What caused further amaze upon my part was the reproduction of a piano solo with such faithfulness of the characteristics of the instrument as heretofore I had deemed impossible.

The only failure of full realization was in the reproduction of orchestral effects.

Wizard Edison has yet to encompass the complexities of massed sound. And when he does that, his invention will possibly lose that intimacy and refinement of expression it now possesses. As it is, he had added to artistic commodities one of the marvels of the age.

Here is a simple experiment we ask you to make. Let us play the New Edison in one room and you listen in another room. You will find it difficult to believe it is not the real voice.

Hear This Test

Come to our store to-day and hear Madame Marie Rappold on the NEW EDISON, as she sang at Gray's Armoury in Cleveland. You may hear her in "Ave Marie," in which she made a most wonderful impression, with Albert Spalding, America's greatest Violinist, playing the Obligato. You are cordially invited to come in to hear this world-famous Metropolitan Star and other famous Artists on the New Edison.

CHEESEMEN GUESTS OF RED CROSS LADIES

Provide Many Comforts For the Belleville Soldiers at Front Mrs. Parsons' Address

There are some seventeen Red Cross societies which receive aid from the Belleville Cheese Board, from a fund which is created by the giving of a day's milk by the various patrons of the factories, which amounts to a considerable sum. The ladies connected with these societies are doing a noble work, and have already sent overseas a great amount of comforts for the boys in the trenches and those who have been wounded. At St. Thomas' Church Parish Hall on Saturday, the members of the Cheese Board were invited by the ladies to partake of a luncheon, and also to view the hundreds of articles they had prohibited to be sent to the boys as Christmas cheer. It was certainly an inspiring sight, and showed the handiwork of the ladies.

Previous to luncheon, which was served in the spacious dining apartments in the basement, the assembly in the auditorium was addressed briefly by Mayor Ketcheson, who spoke in glowing terms of the work done by the ladies. After the singing of a patriotic hymn, those present adjourned to the dining hall, where a most tempting repast was partaken of. The menu was all that could have been desired, and it was superbly served by the ladies. The tables were decorated in such a manner as to represent red crosses.

At the conclusion of the luncheon, Mrs. Parson, who has done excellent work in assisting to recruit for the 235th Battalion was called upon, and gave a most practical address. The lady is a versatile speaker, and is apparently well versed in any subject she may be asked to speak upon. The war, its inception and its progress, she is certainly well qualified to speak upon, and in a matter that is interesting and instructive. She spoke principally from the agricultural point of view, and was expected from the agriculturalists of Canada in the present great struggle. In this war all were called upon to serve and to make sacrifices. Cannot the yeoman do more in the future than has been done in the past? What a noble work the Red Cross has done and is doing to help provide needs and comforts for the boys who are at the front fighting for us. The farmers must try and produce more, for more is required from the land than ever before. There must be a united effort to get all that is possible from the acreage sown. Patriotic production is a grand production. God, last year gave to Canada a great harvest, and the question was, have we responded as we should have responded and made any sacrifices. In referring to recruiting, Mrs. Parsons said that up to the present time farmers and their sons had generally been left alone in this matter, having been the last to approach. They have been allowed to stay back. Today, however, it is different. Do we fully realize the power and might of the German nation? For a period of 25 years it had been preparing for this war. Lord Roberts and Lord Kitchener, some time ago sounded a warning note, and although silenced, they were right, and today we are paying the price. Germany was in every way prepared for a lengthy war, and every year with her millions of population, (which has been increased rather than diminished since the war commenced) she is able to place a million new men of military age in the field. She has food and she has an immense amount of gold stored up. The women that are left behind are putting in and taking off the crops. As these women are making sacrifices so must the women of Canada make sacrifices. We cannot at the present time afford to stop. Can we bankrupt Germany? No, and there is no escape from her complete military machinery. It will not do to minimize the power of the enemy. The Government of Canada asked for 500,000 men, and an especial appeal has recently been sent out for more men. Can Canada give more men? We can and must give them up, though the parting may be hard. This is a home question which must be settled there. This is a sacrifice that has to be made, and we must bear it. God, righteousness and freedom is our watchword. The question for us to answer is, what do we owe back for the blessings and prosperity we enjoy? The gift is in our hands to hand out, even at the price of the sacrifice of our sons. The great sacrifice is ours to give. The speaker said she had given her sons to fight for King and country, and she would not keep one back. Give up the boys in your home, and make it the atmosphere of sacrifice. Hastings County had done well, but more sacrifices must be made. Mrs. Parsons then referred to her trek with the 235th Battalion, a battalion which was well officered. In that battalion were returned heroes who were prepared to go back to the front to fight for freedom. All we ask is to give us a welcome and a fair hearing. In conclusion, the speaker asked the mothers and fathers to give up their sons and also give all they could spare in this great cause. (Applause.)

Rev. Archbishop Beamish, in moving a vote of thanks to Mrs. Parsons, complimented her upon the work she was engaged in. It was indeed a great privilege to listen to her. Personally he would do all in his power for recruiting, and if necessary he was prepared to go himself to the front. We can create an atmosphere in our midst that will set all on fire for devotion to an Empire of which we form a part. He had great pleasure in moving a vote of thanks to Mrs. Parsons.

Mr. McMullen, President of the Belleville Cheese Board, seconded the motion, which was unanimously adopted and appropriately acknowledged by Mrs. Parsons.

Mr. John Elliott, Manager of the Standard Bank, Belleville, who is also the treasurer of the Board's Patriotic and Red Cross Fund, presented a financial statement which is indeed most creditable. It showed that in 1914 for Patriotic and Red Cross work from the Board, over $4,000 was collected; in 1915, over $3,000 and thus far in 1916, over $3,000 making in the three years over $10,000. The presenting of these amounts caused favorable comments.

Before adjourning, a vote of thanks was moved by Mr. Elliott, and seconded by Mr. McMullen, President of the Board, to Mrs. S. D. Lazier and all the ladies for providing the lunch and the good work they had accomplished.

IN & ABOUT THE CITY

CALL FOR POLICE

Saturday evening the police answered a call to a residence near the G.T.R. bridge, which spans the Moira River. Trouble among members of a family was the cause of alarm. All was quiet when the officer arrived upon the scene.

ON LAST LEAVE

Lieut. J. G. Caldwell, of the Divisional Signal Corps, Ottawa, is spending a few days in the city on his last leave, before proceeding overseas. Lieut. Caldwell, while here, is the guest of his father, Dr. Jas. Caldwell, Bridge street.

MEMORIAL SERVICE

At Christ Church, Belleville, yesterday morning a memorial service was held for the late Lieut. Horace Carroll, who recently sacrificed his life for the Empire's cause. A large congregation was present at the service, which was conducted by the rector, Rev. Dr. Blagrave, who spoke feelingly of the departed hero.

A FALSE REPORT

At a few minutes after 10 o'clock n Saturday night, it was reported to the police that a man was seen to fall on the approach to Victoria Park, and it was surmised that he had been seized with a fit. Upon investigation the police were unable to verify the report, and a search did not reveal any person in that vicinity.

ACCIDENT TO A CHILD

Sunday afternoon Bernice Blaind, aged 8 years, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Blaind of this city, was the victim of a painful accident. The child was running along the sidewalk when she fell in such a manner as to dislocate the elbow of the left arm, and also fracture a bone near the elbow. The little one withstood well the task of the setting of the arm and the placing of the elbow in proper position.

AN ELOQUENT DIVINE

Right Rev. W. L. Mills, D.D., D.C.L., Bishop of Ontario, last evening preached at Christ Church to a congregation which filled that sacred edifice. His Lordship's discourse was an able one, and inspiring in its theme. The rector, Rev. Dr. Blagrave, and Rev. A. L. Geen, assisted in the service.

ANOTHER BELLEVILLIAN WOUNDED

Pte. William Blaind, son of Mr. Thomas Blaind, well known in Belleville, was wounded on October 10th The young hero enlisted in Toronto last winter with the bugle band of the 74th Battalion. He was a painter by occupation, and well known in this city. His many friends will hope that his wounds are not of a serious nature.

DATE OF TRIAL FIXED

Isaac Sellyeh, Isaac Wright and Thomas Smith, the trio who are under arrest on a charge of burglarizing Mr. Fitzgerald's store at Malone, were to-day brought up before Judge Deroche for election. They elected to be tried before His Honor, and Tuesday, November 7th, was the day set for the trial. In the meantime the accused will be confined to the County Jail.

CALLED BY DEATH.

JAMES McPHERSON

On Thursday last Mr. James McPherson, a well-known and much respected yeoman residing near Aiken's Church, Sidney Township had a paraletic stroke, which proved fatal. He passed away at his home on Saturday afternoon. In the year 1859, deceased was born in Dongal County, Ireland, but for the past 35 years had lived in Hastings County. He was a member of the Methodist Church. A widow, two sons and three daughters survive. The sons are, J. A. and J. W. McPherson, and the daughters are Misses Mabel, Violet and Kathleen, all of Sidney.

JAMES MARSHALL

In the death of Mr. James Marshall, which occurred on Saturday afternoon at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Charles Gibson of Belleville, a well-known and highly esteemed citizen has gone to his reward. Deceased who was 77 years of age, was born at Hazel Bank, Scotland, and when a young man, came to Canada. For many years Mr. Marshall was connected with the Grand Trunk Railway, having been for some time Road Superintendent for this division. He was superannuated recently. Deceased was in every respect a most conscientious man in the discharge of his several duties and was much respected by fellow employees. Deceased in early life, was a crack marksman and participated in rifle shooting with success, competing in international matches. Mr. Marshall was a member of the Masonic fraternity, and Camp Rob Roy, sons of Scotland. In religion he was a Presbyterian. Deceased was a veteran of 1866. Mrs. Marshall preceded him to the tomb a few years ago. Four sons and two daughters survive. The sons are, Guy, of Jersey City; James of Portsworth, Virginia; Thomas, of St. Paul, and Robert of Transcona, Manitoba. The daughters are, Mrs. Chas. Gibson, of Belleville, and Mrs. J. Munnings, of London, Ont., to whom will be extended sympathy in their hour of bereavement.

RECRUITING MEETING AT THE OPERA HOUSE

Patriotic Addresses Given by Officers of 235th—Band Furnishes Selections

Griffin's Opera House last night was filled to the doors with a Belleville audience, who had gathered at a recruiting meeting held under the auspices of the 235th Battalion. From the pit to the dome there was a sea of faces, and much interest was manifested in the addresses given, which were most inspiring. The fine brass band of the battalion, under the capable leadership of Bandmaster Murchison, rendered a number of suitable selections, which were much appreciated, judging by the hearty applause at the conclusion of each number.

The addresses given were most attentively listened to, and were at intervals punctured with applause. Mr. W. B. Northrup, K.C., M.P., was upon the platform, but did not speak.

Capt. McLean, Paymaster of the Battalion, occupied the chair, and filled that position in a most acceptable manner.

Sergt. Mellor in his address said: "What is our part to do at the present time? Is it the giving of money? We need money, but we want men to go out and fight. We want the manly man, and this we know is hard to get. It means something of a mother to give up her sons. It means much to give up men, but we want them. It will mean sorrow at first, but glory afterwards. This is man's opportunity, and we owe a debt to God, and to our King, God bless him. Under his rule and sceptre we have been able to walk the streets free, and have a free home with all its blessed influence. You owe a debt to those who have died for you. Will you help pay that debt? They died for us and for freedom. Meet the issue without being afraid of the result."

Lieut. Reid in his opening remarks said the returned soldiers bring but one message, and that message is, men and more men. This is our message to-night. The Premier of Canada has asked for more men, and the question is, will they be forthcoming? The great question is, are we going to win the war? The answer is we will, but in order to do so, all must assist, women as well as men. There are enough young men in Belleville to fill up the 235th Battalion, and fill up another battalion. He appealed to all citizens in Belleville to assist in recruiting. Do not make it easy for young men and eligible married men up to 45 years, to stay at home, but make it hard for them to stay at home. This is a matter for home consideration. There are not many cowards. A coward is a man who knows his duty and shirks it. Many parents are robbing their sons of their manhood at the present time, by withholding them. Do your duty, make it easy for the boys and men to go. We do not want conscription in Canada. Help the battalion to secure men so that it can be filled up and go overseas to do its duty. This war can only be won by reserves. If we want this war to end as we desire to see it end, we must all come forward and do our duty.

Lieut. Rickart sang in fine voice a patriotic selection entitled, "The King and the Flag."

Sergt. Dingwell, a returned hero, gave some thrilling episodes of the war, as seen and experienced by him. He had been thrice wounded and thrice gassed, and for days in the trenches was without enough to eat owing to their existing conditions. But despite all this, he was anxious to return. (Applause.) His description of the Canadians driving the Germans at the point of the bayonet, was very realistic. He was at St. Julien, and at the memorable drive on Hill 60 with the Canadians, who did their duty. He was going back to help his comrades, and he was proud of the fact that he was going back with a Canadian battalion. (Applause.) He had fought, not only in the present war, but in Africa with Canadians, and he knew their worth. Although he had been recommended for a Distinguished Conduct Medal he wanted no medal until this war was over and a glorious victory won.

Lt.-Col. Scobell in a few well chosen remarks, made an earnest appeal for recruits. Some wives and mothers have given their sons, and even their husbands to fight in this war, while

Within The Military Circle

What is Transpiring Among the Soldier Boys Now in Belleville

All articles and notes under this head are passed by the commanding officer of the 235th Regiment and authentic in every particular.

Mrs. Parsons and Capt. Macdonald of the 235th Battalion, conducted a recruiting meeting at Wellington last evening, after the church services.

Capt. Lane and Capt. Dixon of the 235th Battalion, spoke at Bloomfield last night, the results being very successful. Incidentally this was the first meeting of a recruiting nature ever to be held in Bloomfield, and by the good spirit and patriotism of the large crowd in attendance, the officers feel that there will be no trouble in securing recruits from this district.

This week, recruiting squads of the 235th will be sent out to canvass the County of Prince Edward, making Picton as their headquarters. These squads will be in charge of Lieut. Rickart, Lieut. Mills and Lieut. Clarke. The officers of the 235th Battalion are most enthusiastic over the prospects of recruiting in and about Picton. There are plenty of eligible men to be had and everybody is interested in recruiting.

A memorial service was held at Bayside yesterday, in memory of the late Pte. David Marks, a member of the 80th Battalion, killed in action. Pte. Marks had been 17 days in France, and only 2 days in the trenches when he received his fatal wound. After the service an address in the interests of recruiting was delivered on the roadside by Capt. Maclean of the 235th Battalion.

Three out of five of the recruits secured by the 235th yesterday, were attested and passed as physically fit.

Trenton Couple Seek Divorce

Central Figures in Rochester, N. Y. Court For Separation Papers

ROCHESTER, N.Y., Oct. 28—Claiming the divorce action brought by Mary Maud Van Wicklin against Clarence O. Van Wicklin is "simply a device to get alimony and counsel fees" Louis Fuller yesterday argued against any allowances to the wife.

The couple married on November 28, 1906 in Trenton, Canada and came to this country two years ago. Both worked in a restaurant. The wife claims that a year ago, while she was doing night work, her husband drew all their savings from the bank, sold the household furniture and wedding presents and fled to Canada. He returned last August and the wife had him arrested on a charge of non-support.

When the case came up he agreed to pay his wife $3 a week for six weeks while he was paying up old debts, and after that period a larger allowance. It is claimed that Van Wicklin paid only the first $3 allowance and then began an action for absolute divorce. The wife then started a counter-action for divorce. Men and women in Brighton, Ontario; Hamilton and Toronto, Canada, are involved in the charges of the husband and wife. Both deny allegations made by the other.

Justice Rodenbeck denied any allmony. The case is set down for trial in December.

An Impressive Memorial Service

A very impressive memorial service was held in the town hall at Brighton yesteray afternoon, in memory of the late Lance-Corp. Stanley Hare, a Brighton boy, who gave up his life for King and country. Col. Scobell, O. C. of the 235th Battalion, Capt. Meath, Adjt., and other officers of the 235th, together with a firing party of sixteen men, in charge of Sergt. Major Copeland, and the 235th Band, were present at the services. They were conveyed to Brighton by fourteen automobiles, kindly provided by the citizens of that place.

At the service, addresses were given by the local clergymen and Col. Scobell. The town hall was crowded to the doors, while a large number of people were unable to gain admission, which is evidence of the high esteem in which the fallen soldier was held by his fellow citizens.

Full military honors were accorded the departed hero, a volley was fired by the firing party of the 235th, after which the last post was sounded by Bugle Sergt. James.

MARSHALL—In Belleville, on Saturday, October 28th, 1916, James Marshall, aged 77 years.

The funeral will take place from his late residence, 72 Victoria Avenue, tomorrow, Tuesday, at 3 o'clock. Services at the house at 2.30 P.M. Interment Belleville Cemetery.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

The Misses Mada and Ida Mills have returned home after spending two months with Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Mills, in Berywn, Ill.

"Meat Prices Will Not Come Down" is the cheerful news from the Department of Agriculture. Meat prices will not worry the man or woman who knows that a Shredded Wheat Biscuit will supply more real body-building nutriment than beefsteak or eggs and at much less cost. Shredded Wheat remains the same price, the same high quality, supplying all the nutriment a man needs for a half-day's work. Two shredded wheat biscuits with peaches and cream or other fruits make a complete, nourishing meal at a cost of not over five cents.

Recruiting Meeting at The Opera House

there are families where there are three and four sons and not one in khaki. This is our country, and it is worth while fighting for. Canadians at the front are writing history today by their heroic deeds. The Germans are afraid of the Canadians. The boys at the front are looking for reinforcements. Young men, you are wanted at the front to relieve those who have and are doing their duty. They are crying from the trenches for men to come over and help them. The day is coming when victory will be sounded, when the British will enter Berlin with the Canadian flag flying, bells ringing and joy everywhere. What a glorious day that will be. The young men of Belleville are not cowards, out there is something wrong. The war is not over yet. We want the young men of Belleville to join the 235th Battalion, and they will get a square deal. (Applause.)

At the conclusion of the address, upon invitation for recruits, two young men came forward, and expressed their desire to enlist.

The meeting closed by a selection on the band.

In And About The City

CITY COUNCIL

A regular meeting of the City Council will be held this evening. The business to be transacted is chiefly of a routine nature.

OFF FOR DEER

Messrs. James Collins, Ralph Weese, W. Moore, Daniel Grass, H. Deyman, J. D. Thrasher and E. Shorey left the city at an early hour this morning for the haunts of the deer in the northern part of Hastings County. The deer season opens on Wednesday of this week.

KILLED IN ACTION

Bandsman David Brown, 155th Battalion band, who is now in the Kingston General Hospital recovering from a fracture of the leg, received word on Thursday that his cousin, Lieut. A. R. Henshilwood, King's Liverpool Regiment, had been killed in action.

A FINE BUILDING

Mr. Lucius E. Allen, who has the contract of erecting the manufacturing building for the Wilson Company, situated on the west side of the river, is progressing with the work in a satisfactory manner. The structure will be completed within the time specified in the contract.

WORK PROGRESSING

Hundred of citizens yesterday visited the Maple Leaf Tire premises situated in the north-west part of the city, and viewed the progress now being made in the erection of the factory. This week electric lights will be installed about the grounds and work will go on during the night, as the company desire to have the building enclosed before unfavorable weather sets in.

Parliament and the Law.

Mr. Fisher, the Australian High Commissioner, in a speech the other day, observed that our Cabinets had always been fortunate in the possession of men of the legal profession, but had been too little endowed with the trained expert knowledge of other professions. Both remarks may be true, but in justice to the lawyers it should be noted that our present Cabinet contains only six of them—Messrs. Asquith, McKenna, Lloyd George, Lord Buckmaster, Sir F. E. Smith, and Lord Robert Cecil. Further, it should be noted that until Mr. Asquith became Premier the head of the Cabinet had not been a lawyer since 1835.

Disraeli was designed for the law, but never went to the Bar. The last barrister Premier was Lord Melbourne. He was called to the Bar in 1804, but his connection with the law was brief. He joined the Northern Circuit and attended the Lancashire Sessions, a fact which Lancashire has doubtless forgotten. He had only one brief, a prosecution, and then the death of his brother made him heir to the title, and he quitted the law for ever.

Acidity of the Stomach.

Mysterious Confectionery.

The Chinese are very skilful in making confectionery, and possess the reputation of having some secrets the knowledge of which our own confectioners would find very desirable. They are able to empty an orange of its pulp entirely, then fill it up with fruit jelly without one being able to find the smallest cut in the rind or even a tiny hole. Indeed, they even empty an egg in this manner and fill it with a sort of almond nougat, without one being able to find the slightest break or incision in the shell.

NEW WAR GAMES.

Canadians Have Originated Many and Revolutionized Others.

The Germans call the British mad because of their passion for sports. But it was a Canadian division which chose to have its movable kitchens cooking a real meal as it passed Minister of War Lloyd George in review, that later held the first field and track meet in which only war games were contested. Since then these field days have become popular all through the British forces.

The old-time war game, a sort of chess played by senior commanders, is not of much use in this "war of position." In its stead many other games have been invented. One favorite is a gas helmet race. The spectacle of a line of men wearing their helmets and looking like bipeds with elephants' heads racing over a hundred yard course makes one who sees it for the first time burst into laughter.

"Digging in under fire," another favorite sport, bears a strong resemblance to hard work. Each competitor has an entrenching tool and ten minutes in which to show what a fine cover for himself against a hostile "Jack Johnson" he can make in that time.

Bomb throwing matches are sometimes played from practice trenches, but usually on a smooth surface. The bombs by the rules must be bowled, and not thrown. The target is thirty or forty yards away. It resembles in shape a gigantic "hot cross bun," and the maximum in points is awarded for missiles dropped in a circle at the centre of the cross.

The Canadians were the first to establish barbed wire fence building as a sport. Nine coils of barbed wire and twenty posts are the material. The competitors must build an "apron fence," and the team first completing its work in a satisfactory manner wins.

One curious rule in this game is that no talking may be done. In the field these fences are built at night close to the enemy, who would be much interested in the work if he knew about it.

The old stretcher bearer competition consisted in four men carrying a bandaged "patient" on a stretcher for a hundred yards. Sometimes a glass of water was placed on the stretcher, and the spilling of a drop eliminated the team.

The Canadians have improved this sport by abolishing the stretcher—it must now be improvised out of the nearest available material.

The wearers of the maple leaf have also improved what is called the "Victoria Cross race." The old way mounted men galloped from one end of the arena to the other, snatched up a straw-stuffed figure supposed to be a fallen comrade, threw it across the saddle, and rode back through a storm of blank cartridges. The Canadians laughed at the dummies. They use real men, weighing twenty times as much.

The war has changed bayonet fighting methods. In the old bayonet game the wire-helmeted fencer, swaddled in pads and wielding a knob-headed weapon, parried and thrust at his antagonist.

"The bayonet fighter of the old school," said an instructor in the new practice, "would be killed while he was feinting, dodging, giving ground and looking for an opening."

The new bayonet contest is a kind of obstacle race, in which the competitor stabs, jabs, and bludgeons as he runs, using the point of a naked bayonet and the butt of a service rifle, always going forward, never feinting or giving ground an inch.

Discovering the Telephone.

A dinner of the American Geographic Society held in Washington recently was used as an occasion for celebrating the marvellous developments of the telephone during the last forty years. One of the principal guests was Dr. Alexander Graham Bell, who recalled that "great day"—March 10th, 1876—when he learnt beyond doubt that complete words and sentences could be understood through the instrument he had constructed. This early telephone was connected with the next room, where his assistant, Mr. Watson, was at work. Dr. Bell talked into it, and said: "Mr. Watson, come here; I want to see you." Mr. Watson, come here; I want to see you." Mr. Watson came to him at once, and the inventor then knew that his problem was solved.

Nearly forty years later that original conversation was repeated under conditions that showed how marvellously the range of this invention had been extended in the interval. Dr. Bell was sitting in New York at a telephone fitted with the same old transmitter he had used in 1876. He spoke through it to Mr. Watson, who was then in San Francisco, and said once more: "Mr. Watson, come here; I want to see you." His friend replied: "It would take me a week to get to you now."

Nickel in New Caledonia.

After a four months' stay in New Caledonia, Tasmania, New Zealand, and Australia, gathering information as to the nickel resources of that part of the world, Dr. W. G. Miller, Provincial Geologist, and Thomas Sutherland, Inspector of Mines, have returned to Toronto.

The two officials left Toronto in May and the most important work of their stay abroad was the survey made of the nickel resources of New Caledonia, the only serious rival in the world for the Sudbury nickel deposits. While Dr. Miller will not make his report until next meeting of the Nickel Commission, of which he is a member, it is understood that he found the New Caledonia deposits to be vastly larger than has been generally thought. While considerable development is being carried on there by the French great ore-bearing areas have not been touched. Even there the International Nickel Company is in evidence, some very valuable deposits in New Caledonia being owned by the company and held as a reserve.

FACTORY REORGANIZATION.

Steps Being Taken to Increase Ontario's Output of Munitions.

One of the outstanding problems that the industrial leaders of Canada will have to face in the immediate future is the reorganization of our factories so that the supply of munitions to the men who have gone to the front will be adequate for the need. Great Britain is now reaching the point when they will be able to exert her maximum power against the enemy, and to maintain the pressure necessary to insure for the Allies the successful conclusion of the war the supply of munitions must be increased. Daily the splendid armies that Great Britain and her colonies, France, and the other allies have gathered together are moving forward they continue the great offensive movement which has brought so much encouragement of late, and men are readily stepping out to fill the places of those who have fallen. Ammunition is being used on a colossal scale, and the brave men at the front must be sustained in their work.

The Imperial Munitions Board is engaged to-day in studying the practicability of utilizing women in munition plants. A start has already been made in several plants around Montreal with most gratifying results, and with the view of demonstrating what can be accomplished in this direction a number of munition manufacturers recently went to Montreal as the guests of the Imperial Munitions Board to see for themselves.

At one plant visited some 200 women are engaged in various operations on the heaviest shell now being made in Canada, and after a month's experience have shown that they can readily be adapted to this class of work. Care has been taken in the classification of the women for the different operations with the result that the large plant is running without friction and the output is already going up. Special conditions naturally obtain in a munitions plant under war conditions, and to meet these conditions the female force is in charge of a young lady who has done social service work for many years and is therefore familiar with the problems which daily present themselves. Her testimony was that the women readily lend themselves to the impulse that calls for their services at this time, one part of the factory vies with another to make the best record, discipline is easily maintained, and there is general contentment throughout the plant.

So much for the heavy work. At another plant there are over 600 women and girls engaged upon lighter and more intricate work. Here where the operations are more delicate and intricate the more sensitive touch of the women makes them admittedly superior to men, and their reliability from day to day is leading to good results.

It was declared by several members of the party that women could easily be utilized in munitions work if an adequate supply was forthcoming. Time would have to be spent in organization and in making the factory suitable for them to work in, as well as the training that would make them efficient not only in the handling of any particular machine or operation but in making themselves familiar with shop conditions so that they would know the proper thing to do under all circumstances.

The phase of the whole question that the Munitions Board is seeking to impress upon the people of Ontario is that Canada has undertaken to raise an army of 500,000 men; we have contracted as well to supply a certain quantity of munitions. The Empire needs the soldiers, the soldiers need the munitions, and the economic organization at home must be kept as nearly normal as possible, with every element of self interest subordinated to the object for which the Allies are fighting—the maintenance of civilization throughout the world. These ends can only be secured by co-operation in every section—in every home in the country and that is the task which all will be called upon to take up.

CHURCHILL AND LLOYD GEORGE

They Have a Great Many Characteristics in Common.

Very alike in many respects are Lloyd George, "the man of the moment" in Great Britain, and Winston Churchill, the most notable politician outside the Cabinet in that country.

For one thing, they are both men of the very highest courage, and both rate courage in others as chief among the virtues. Both, again, are philosophers and guide themselves when confronted by the various problems of life by certain definite principles of practical wisdom. Each of them possesses a prodigious memory. Mr. Churchill knows all the works of some poets—Burns and Kipling are his favorites—by heart. Mr. Lloyd George has a marvelous memory for anecdotes and tells a good story well.

Neither is what would usually be called a "well-read" man. Yet each has a wonderful fund of varied information. Both are omniverous readers of newspapers. Both have read a good many books—Mr. Lloyd George's favorite reading matter is a historical novel, and Mr. Churchill's military history.

It is often mistakenly thought that both men are far from robust physically. There could be no greater mistake. Both are exceptionally strong and muscular—Mr. Lloyd George, despite his small stature, weighs 190 pounds, and is of singularly sturdy build. Mr. Churchill, although he stoops, is as active as a cat, and can undergo the most strenuous physical exertion. Both men have a singular strain of youthfulness in their make-up, and, when away from work and responsibility, are fond of all kinds of boyish pranks.

At one time the two men looked to be running a neck-and-neck race for the leadership of the Liberal party. But it looks now as though Mr. Lloyd George has definitely outdistanced the other. He looks safe to be the next Premier, though one expects to see him the head not of a purely Liberal, but of another coalition, Government.

Mr. Lloyd George is by far the more emotional of the two men, Mr. Churchill by far the more logical. Thus, as one might expect, the former is the better platform speaker and the latter the better debater. Mr. Lloyd George is very musical, while the particular form of art favored by Mr. Churchill is that of painting.

For many years the world has been baffled by the problem of where the pins go that are turned out in millions of millions by the pin factories.

But the problem seems to have been solved at last. A Paris scientist has been experimenting on pins, hairpins, and needles, by the simple process of watching a few. He states that they practically disappear into thin air, by changing into ferrous oxide, a brownish rust that soon blows away in dust.

An ordinary hairpin took only 154 days to blow away. A steel pen lasted just under fifteen months. A common pin took eighteen months to vanish. A polished steel needle defied the ravages of the atmosphere longest, taking two and a half years to disappear.

So the reason why the world is not a foot deep in the pins it buys is, it seems, exactly the same which makes an iron surface scale off when exposed for a long time to the atmosphere without the protection of paint.

The First Prohibition Act.

The first prohibitive measure was that of the Saxon King Edgar, who nearly a thousand years ago, on the advice of Dunstan, put down many alehouses, only allowing one to exist in any village or small town, and at the same time limited the draughts of the drinkers. The common drinking cup of that day held about two quarts, and Edgar had eight pegs laced at stated distances in each cup, heavy penalties being imposed on those who drank from one peg to another at each time. Neither the working nor the result of the Act encouraged Edgar's successors to further action, and the next prohibitive legislation on the sale of liquor is due to Henry VII., who, by an Act against vagabonds and beggars in the year 1495, gave power to any two justices of the peace to stop the common selling of strong ale in towns and any other places they thought necessary.

"Tin Sickness" in Fatherland.

"According to travellers from Germany," says the Exchange Telegraph's Amsterdam correspondent, "a remarkable disease is spreading in many parts of Germany, especially in Berlin, Hamburg, Munich, and Cologne, caused by continual feeding from preserved foods. The sickness is described as 'tin sickness.' It is considered a serious form of blood poison.

"Thousands of cases are reported in every large city, although the authorities exercise strict control over the tin used for preserved foods."

CHAPTER I.

The good people of Devonshire were rather given to quarreling—sometimes about the minister's wife, meek, gentle Mrs. Tiverton, whose manner of housekeeping, or style of dress, did not exactly suit them; sometimes about the minister himself, good, patient Mr. Tivertan, who vainly imagined that if he preached three sermons a week, attended the Wednesday evening prayer-meeting, the Thursday evening sewing society, officiated at every funeral, visited all the sick, and gave to every beggar who called at his door, besides superintending the Sunday school, he was earning his salary of six hundred per year.

Sometimes, and that not rarely, the quarrel crept into the choir, and then, for one whole Sunday, it was all in vain that Mr. Tiverton read the psalm and hymn, casting troubled glances toward the vacant seats of his refractory singers. There was no one to respond, unless it were good old Mr. Hodges, who pitched so high that few could follow him; while Mrs. Captain Simpson—whose daughter, the organist, had been snubbed at the last choir meeting by Mr. Hodges' daughter, the alto singer—rolled up her eyes at her next neighbor, or fanned herself furiously in token of her disgust.

Latterly, however, there had come up a new cause of quarrel, before which every other cause sank into insignificance. Now, though the village of Devonshire could boast but one public schoolhouse, said house being divided into two departments, the upper and lower divisions, there were in the town several district schools; and for the last few years a committee of three had been annually appointed to examine and decide upon the merits of the various candidates for teaching, giving to each, if the decision were favorable, a little slip of paper certifying their qualifications to teach a common school. Strange that over such an office so fierce a feud should have arisen; but when Mr. Tiverton, Squire Lamb, and Lawyer Whittemore, in the full conviction that they were doing right, refused a certificate of scholarship to Laura Tisdale, niece of Mrs. Judge Tisdale, and awarded it to one whose earnings in a factory had procured for her a thorough English education, the villagers, to use a vulgar phrase, were at once set by the ears, the aristocracy abusing, and the democracy upholding the dismayed trio, who, as the breeze blew harder, quietly resigned their office, and Devonshire was without a school committee.

In this emergency something must be done, and, as the two belligerent parties could only unite on a stranger, it seemed a matter of special providence that only two months before, young Dr. Holbrook, a native of the modern Athens, had rented the pleasant little office on the village common, formerly occupied by old Dr. Carey, now lying in the graveyard by the side of some whose days he had prolonged, and others whose days he had surely shortened. Besides being handsome, and skillful, and quite as familiar with the poor as the rich, the young doctor was descended from the aristocratic line of Boston Holbrooks, facts which tended to make him a favorite with both classes; and, greatly to his surprise, he found himself unanimously elected to the responsible office of sole Inspector of Common Schools in Devonshire. It was in vain that he remonstrated, saying he knew nothing whatever of the qualifications requisite for a teacher; that he could not talk to girls, young ones especially; that he should make a miserable failure, and so forth. The people would not listen. Somebody must examine the teachers, and that somebody might as well be Dr. Holbrook as anybody.

"Only be strict with 'em, draw the reins tight, find out to your satisfaction whether a gal knows her P's and Q's before you give her a stifficut. We've had enough of your ignoramuses," said Colonel Lewis, the democratic potentate to whom Dr. Holbrook was expressing his fears that he should not give satisfaction. Then, as a bright idea suggested itself to the old gentleman, he added: "I tell you what, just cut one or two at first; that'll give you a name for being particular, which is just the thing."

Accordingly, with no definite idea as to what was expected of him, except that he was to find out "whether a girl knew her P's and Q's," and was also to "cut one or two of the first candidates," Dr. Holbrook accepted the office, and then awaited rather nervously his initiation. He was not easy in the society of ladies, unless, indeed, the lady stood in need of his professional services, when he lost sight of her at once, and thought only of her disease. His patient once well, however, he became nervously shy and embarrassed, retreating as soon as possible from her presence to the covert of his friendly office, where, with his boots upon the table and his head thrown back in a most comfortable position, he sat one April morning, in happy oblivion of the bevy of girls who must, of course, ere long invade his sanctum.

"Something for you, sir. The lady will wait for an answer," said his "chore boy," passing to his master a little three-cornered note, and nodding toward the street.

Following the direction indicated, the doctor saw, drawn up near his door, an old-fashioned one-horse wagon, such as is still occasionally seen in New England. A square-boxed, dark green wagon, drawn by a sorrel horse, sometimes called by the genuine Yankee "yellow," and driven by a white-haired man, whose silvery locks, falling around his wrinkled face, gave to him a pleasing, patriarchal appearance, which interested the doctor far more than did the flutter of the blue ribbon beside him, even though the bonnet that ribbon tied shaded the face of a young girl. The note was from her, and, tearing it open, the doctor read, in the prettiest of all pretty, girlish handwriting:

"Dr. Holbrook—"

Here it was plainly visible that a "D" had been written as if she would have said "Dear." Then, evidently changing her mind, she had with her finger blotted out the "D," and made it into an oddly shaped "S," so that it read simply:

"Dr. Holbrook—Sir: Will you be at leisure to examine me on Monday afternoon, at three o'clock?

"Madeline A. Clyde.

"P.S.—For particular reasons I hope you can attend to me as early as Monday. M.A.C."

Dr. Holbrook knew very little of girls, but he thought this note, with its P.S., decidedly girlish. Still he made no comment, either verbal or mental, so flurried was he with knowing that the evil he so much dreaded had come upon him at last. Had it been left to his choice, he would far rather have extracted every one of that maiden's teeth, than to have set himself up before her like some horrid ogre, asking what she knew. But the choice was not his, and, turning to the boy, he said, laconically, "Tell her to come."

Most men would have sought for a glimpse of the face under the bonnet tied with blue, but Dr. Holbrook did not care a picayune whether it were ugly or fair, though it did strike him that the voice was singularly sweet, which, after the boy had delivered his message, said to the old man, "Now, grandpa, we'll go home. I know you must be tired."

Slowly Sorrel trotted down the street, the blue ribbons fluttering in the wind, while one little ungloved hand was seen carefully adjusting about the old man's shoulders the ancient camlet cloak which had done duty for many a year, and was needed on this chill April day. The doctor saw all this, and the impression left upon his mind was that Candidate No. 1 was probably a niceish kind of a girl, and very good to her grandfather. But what should he ask her, and how demean himself toward her? Monday afternoon was frightfully near, he thought, as this was only Saturday; and then, feeling that he must be ready, he brought out from the trunk, where, since his arrival in Devonshire, they had been quietly lying, books enough to have frightened an older person than poor little Madeline Clyde, riding slowly home with grandpa, and wishing so much that she'd had a glimpse of Dr. Holbrook, so as to know what he was like, and hoping he would give her a chance to repeat some of the many pages of geography and "Parley's History," which she knew by heart. How she would have trembled could she have seen the formidable volumes heaped upon his table and waiting for her. There were French and Latin grammars, "Hamilton's Metaphysics," "Olmstead's Philosophy," "Day's Algebra," "Butler's Analogy," and many others, into which poor Madeline had never so much as looked. Arranging them in a row, and half wishing himself back again to the days when he had studied them, the doctor went out to visit his patients, of which there were so many that Madeline Clyde entirely escaped his mind, nor did she trouble him again until the dreaded Monday came, and the hands of his watch pointed to two.

"One hour more," he said to himself, just as the roll of wheels and a cloud of dust announced the approach of something.

Could it be Sorrel and the square-boxed wagon? Oh, no; far different from Grandfather Clyde's turnout were the stylish carriage and the spirited bays dashing down the street, the colored driver reining them suddenly, not before the office door, but just in front of the white cottage in the same yard, the house where Dr. Holbrook boarded, and where, if he ever married in Devonshire, he would most likely bring his wife.

"Guy Remington, the very chap of all others whom I'd rather see, and, as I live, there's Agnes, with Jessie. Who knew she was in these parts?" was the doctor's mental exclamation, as, running his fingers through his hair and making a feint of pulling up the corners of his rather limp collar, he hurried out to the carriage, from which a dashing-looking lady of thirty, or thereabouts, was alighting.

"Why, Agnes, I beg your pardon, Mrs. Remington, when did you come?" he asked, offering his hand to the lady, who, coquettishly shaking back from her pretty, dollish face a profusion of light brown curls, gave him the tips of her lavender kids, while she told him she had come to Aikenside the Saturday before; and hearing from Guy that the lady with whom he boarded was an old friend of hers, she had driven over to call, and brought Jessie with her. "Here, Jessie, speak to the doctor. He was poor dear papa's friend," and a very proper sigh escaped Agnes Remington's lips as she pushed a little curly-haired girl toward Dr. Holbrook.

The lady of the house had spied them by this time, and came running down the walk to meet her rather distinguished visitor, wondering, it may be, to what she was indebted for this call from one who, since her marriage with the supposedly wealthy Dr. Remington, had rather cut her former acquaintances. Agnes was delighted to see her, and, as Guy declined entering the cottage just then, the two friends disappeared within the door, while the doctor and Guy repaired to the office, the latter sitting down in the very chair intended for Madeline Clyde. This reminded the doctor of his perplexity, and also brought the comforting thought that Guy, who had never failed him, could surely offer some suggestions. But he would not speak of her just now; he had other matters to talk about, and so, jamming his penknife into a pine table covered with similar jams, he said: "Agnes, is seems, has come to Aikenside, notwithstanding she declared she never would, when she found that the whole of the Remington property belonged to your mother, and not your father."

"Oh, yes; She got over her pique as soon as I settled a handsome little income on Jessie, and, in fact, on her too, until she is foolish enough to marry again, when it will cease, of course, as I do not feel it my duty to support any man's wife, unless it be my own, or my father's," was Guy Remington's reply; whereupon the penknife went again into the table, and this time with so much force that the point was broken off; but the doctor did not mind it, and with the jagged end continued to make jagged marks, while he continued. "She'll hardly marry again, though she may. She's young—not over twenty-six——"

"Twenty-eight, if the family Bible does not lie; but she'd never forgive me if she knew I told you that. So let it pass that she's twenty-six. She certainly is not more than three years your senior, a mere nothing, if you wish to make her Mrs. Holbrook," and Guy's dark eyes scanned curiously the doctor's face, as if seeking there for the secret of his proud young stepmother's anxiety to visit plain Mrs. Conner that afternoon. But the doctor only laughed merrily at the idea of his being father to Guy, his college chum and long-tried friend.

Agnes Remington — reclining languidly in Mrs. Conner's easy-chair, and overwhelming her former friend with descriptions of the gay parties she had attended in Boston, and the fine sights she saw in Europe, whither her gray-haired husband had taken her for a wedding tour—would not have felt particularly flattered could she have seen that smile, or heard how easily, from talking of her, Dr. Holbrook turned to another theme, to Madeline Clyde, expected now almost every moment. There was a merry laugh on Guy's part, as he listened to the doctor's story, and, when it was finished, he said: "Why, I see nothing so very distasteful in examining a pretty girl, and puzzling her, to see her blush. I half wish I were in your place. I should enjoy the novelty of the thing."

"Oh, take it, then; take my place, Guy," the doctor exclaimed, eagerly. "She does not know me from Adam. Here are books, all you will need. You went to a district school once a week when you were staying in the country. You surely have some idea, while I have not the slightest. Will you, Guy?" he persisted more earnestly, as he heard wheels in the street, and was sure old Sorrel had come again.

Guy Remington liked anything savoring of a frolic, but in his mind there were certain conscientious scruples touching the justice of the thing, and so at first he demurred, while the doctor still insisted, until at last he laughingly consented to commence the examination, provided the doctor would sit by and occasionally come to his aid.

"You must write the certificate, of course," he said, "testifying that she is qualified to teach."

"Yes, certainly, Guy, if she is; but maybe she won't be, and my orders are to be strict."

"How did she look?" Guy asked, and the doctor replied: "Saw nothing but her bonnet. Came in a queer old go-giggle of a wagon, such as your country farmers drive. Guess she won't be likely to stir up the bile of either of us, particularly as I am bullet-proof, and you have been engaged for years. By the way, when do you cross the sea again for the fair Lucy? Rumor says this summer."

"Rumor is wrong, as usual, then," was Guy's reply, a soft light stealing into his handsome eyes. Then, after a moment, he added: "Miss Atherstone's health is far too delicate for her to incur the risks of a climate like ours. If she were well acclimated, I should be glad, for it is terribly lonely up at Aikenside."

"And do you really think a wife would make it pleasanter?" Dr. Holbrook asked, the tone of his voice indicating a little doubt as to a man's being happier for having a helpmate to share his joys and sorrows.

But no such doubts dwelt in the mind of Guy Remington. Eminently fitted for domestic happiness, he looked forward anxiously to the time when sweet Lucy Atherstone, the fair English girl to whom he had become engaged when, four years before, he visited Europe, should be strong enough to bear transplanting to American soil. Twice since his engagement he had visited her, finding her always lovely, gentle, and yielding. Too yielding, it sometimes seemed to him, while occasionally the thought had flashed upon him that she did not possess a very remarkable depth of intellect. But he said to himself, he did not care; he hated strong-minded women, and would far rather his wife should be a little weak than masculine, like his Aunt Margaret, who sometimes wore bloomers, and advocated women's rights. Yes, he greatly preferred Lucy Atherstone, as she was, to a wife like the stately Margaret, or like Agnes, his pretty stepmother, who only thought how she could best attract attention; and as it had never occurred to him that there might be a happy medium, that a woman need not be brainless to be feminine and gentle, he was satisfied with his choice, as well he might be, for a fairer, sweeter flower never bloomed than Lucy Atherstone, his affianced bride. Guy loved to think of Lucy, and as the doctor's remarks brought her to his mind, he went off into a reverie concerning her, becoming so lost in thought that until the doctor's hand was laid upon his shoulder by way of rousing him, he did not see that what his friend had designated as a go-giggle was stopping in front of the office, and that from it a young girl was alighting.

Naturally very polite to females, Guy's first impulse was to go to her assistance, but she did not need it, as was proven by the light spring with which she reached the ground. The white-haired man was with her again, but he evidently did not intend to stop, and a close observer might have detected a shade of sadness and anxiety upon his face as Madeline called cheerily out to him: "Good-by, grandpa. Don't fear for me; I hope you will have good luck." Then, as he drove away, she ran a step after him and said: "Don't look so sorry, for if Mr. Remington won't let you have the money, there's my pony, Beauty. I am willing to give him up."

"Never, Maddy. It's all the little fortin' you've got. I'll let the old place go first"; and, chirruping to Sorrel, the old man drove on, while Madeline walked, with a beating heart, to the office door, knocking timidly.

Glancing involuntarily at each other, the young men exchanged smiles, while the doctor whispered softly: "Verdant—that's sure. Wonder if she'd knock at a church."

As Guy sat nearest the door, it was he who held it ajar while Madeline came in, her soft brown eyes glistening with something like a tear, and her cheeks burning with excitement as she took the chair indicated by Guy Remington, who found himself master of ceremonies.

Poor little Madeline!

CHAPTER II.

Madge her schoolmates called her, because the name suited her, they said; but Maddy they called her at home, and there was a world of unutterable tenderness in the voices of the old couple, her grandparents, when they said that name, while their dim eyes lighted up with pride and joy when they rested upon the young girl who answered to the name of Maddy. Their only daughter's only child, she had lived with them since her mother's death, for her father was a sea captain, who never returned from his last voyage to China, made two months before she was born. Very lonely and desolate would the home of Grandfather Markham have been without the presence of Madeline, but with her there, the old red farmhouse seemed to the aged couple like a paradise.

Forty years they had lived there, tilling the rather barren soil of the rocky homestead, and, saving the sad night when they heard that Richard Clyde was lost at sea, and the far sadder morning when their daughter died, bitter sorrow had not come to them; and, truly thankful for the blessings so long vouchsafed them, they had retired each night in peace with God and man, and risen each morning to pray. But a change was coming over them. In an evil hour Grandpa Markham had signed a note for a neighbor and friend, who failed to pay, and so it all fell on Mr. Markham, who, to meet the demand, mortgaged his homestead; the recreant neighbor still insisting that long before the mortgage should be due, he certainly would be able himself to meet it. This, however, he had not done, and, after twice begging off a foreclosure, poor old Grandfather Markham found himself at the mercy of a grasping, remorseless man, into whose hands the mortgage had passed. It was vain to hope that Silas Slocum would wait. The money must either be forthcoming, or the red farmhouse be sold, with its few acres of land. Among his neighbors there was not one who had the money to spare, even if he had been willing to do so. And so he must look among strangers.

"If I could only help," Madeline had said one evening when they sat talking over their troubles; "but there's nothing I can do, unless I apply for our school this summer. Mr. Green is committeeman; he likes us, and I don't believe but what he'll let me have it. I mean to go and see;" and, ere the old people had recovered from their astonishment, Madeline had caught her bonnet and shawl, and was flying down the road.

Madeline was a favorite with all, especially with Mr. Green, and as the school would be small that summer, the plan struck him favorably. Her age, however, was an objection, and he must take time to see what others thought of a child like her becoming a schoolmistress. Others thought well of it, and so before the close of the next day it was generally known through Honedale, as the southern part of Devonshire was called, that pretty little Madge Clyde had been engaged as teacher, she receiving three dollars a week, with the understanding that she must board herself. It did not take Madeline long to calculate that twelve times three were thirty-six, more than a tenth of what her grandfather must borrow. It seemed like a little fortune, and blithe as a singing bird she flitted about the house, now stopping a moment to fondle her pet kitten, while she whispered the good news in its very appreciative ear, and then stroking her grandfather's silvery hair, as she said:

"You can tell them that you are sure of paying thirty-six dollars in the fall, and if I do well, maybe they'll hire me longer. I mean to try my very best. I wonder if ever anybody before me taught a school when they were only fourteen and a half. Do I look as young as that?" and for an instant the bright, childish face scanned itself eagerly in the old-fashioned mirror, with the figure of an eagle on the top.

She did look very young, and yet there was something womanly, too, in the expression of the face, something which said that life's realities were already beginning to be understood by her.

"If my hair were not short I should do better. What a pity I cut it the last time; it would have been so long and splendid now," she continued, giving a kind of contemptuous pull at the thick, beautiful brown hair on whose glossy surface there was in certain lights a reddish tinge which added to its beauty.

"Never mind the hair, Maddy," the old man said, gazing fondly at her with a half sigh as he remembered another brown head, pillowed now beneath the graveyard turf. "Maybe you won't pass muster, and then the hair will make no difference. There's a new committeeman, that Dr. Holbrook from Boston, and new ones are apt to be mighty strict."

Instantly Maddy's face flushed all over with nervous dread, as she thought: "What if I should fail?"

To be Continued.

THIS IS THE 823RD DAY THE BRITISH EMPIRE HAS BEEN AT WAR WITH GERMANY.

THE 235TH REGIMENT TO STAY

A good deal of excitement existed in the city during the past week, owing to marching orders which had been issued by Militia authorities, in connection with the winter quartering of the 235th Regiment.

That regiment was sent to Belleville presumable, for the reason that no city in Ontario has better or more commodious quarters for one or two Regiments, and for the reason that the city through its energetic Mayor who always has its interests in view, pledged it to pay certain rentals for building if required for the accommodation of the officers and men, and that if the city declined to pay the rent he would pay it himself, but he had no doubt but that such expense would be willingly met.

On the arrival of the Regiment, every attention and courtesy was paid to officers and men, to make their stay among us as comfortable and pleasant as possible. The officers never for a moment, contemplated that in a few days marching orders would be issued to proceed elsewhere for winter quarters, leased furnished houses, for the rent of which they became personally responsible..

It is not surprising under such circumstances, that consternation prevailed in both city and camp, but, like true soldiers, they were ready to obey orders ,and entrain and take up their new quarters wherever it might be.

These facts were without delay, brought under the notice of the Minister of Militia, who, upon being put in possession of them, recognized the impropriety from an economical and equitable standpoint, ordered marching instructions which had been given, cancelled without a moments hesitation. His practical knowledge and experience led him to act promptly in the interest of the force and the country, seeing no reason to incur the additional expense of moving, unnecessarily, the Regiment from one place to another.

Belleville, let it be understood, has no rivalry with Cobourg or any other place which desired the wintering of the Regiment, that desire was commendable on their part. Had not the Regiment been ordered to take up its quarters in Belleville for the next few months, by the officials of the Militia Department without any canvasing on the part of the Belleville people, no cause of complaint would have existed, even had circumstances warranted a removal. It is well the Dominion has a practical man at the present important period of its history, at the head of Militia affairs, who, not only knows his duty but has the courage to perform it.

* * *

Montreal Gazette: Opposition papers print long articles to explain Sir Wilfrid Laurier's refusal to unite with Sir Robert Borden in an appeal for greater efforts to make the Canadian army more effective for the work that is to be done to end the war. Long articles are necessary in such a case. In spite of them, moreover, people will wonder why the leader of the opposition could not have put his name, along with that of the Prime Minister, to the serious and forceful appeal to the manhood and patriotism of Canada which was given to the public on Tuesday morning.

Mr. Henry Ford has now placed the women workers in his establishments on the same basis as men, and they are to be treated on their merits. The new move should please women generally. It is not likely to cause any great surprise, for quite a few employers nowadays pay workers what they are considered worth ,irrespective of their sex. Mr. Ford is frequently critized for putting his ideas into practice, but does not seem to mind it very much. He is an advanced and benevolent man who knows how to make things pay.

Horse racing, which enjoys wider popularity in the United Kingdom than anywhere else, has risen superior to the handicaps of war, and an extensive programme has been prepared for the winter in England, the season to run from December 1st to April. In France there has been some. As for Canada, never has there been such a number of busy tracks. The sport of kings surely is flourishing.

ONLY A BELLEVILLE BOY

Just as the sun was sinking to rest,
And the twilight coming fast,
They brought him in from a blood-dyed field,
He had fought his first and last.
They carried him back from the firing line,
From a hell of shrapnel fires ,
He had volunteered a forlorn hope,
And had tried to do his best.
His face was fair the smile on his lips,
Glowed with the courage within,
If Britain lived. and he lived or died,
It was all the same to him.
Comrades said the lad. I got it at last,
But tell them "I'm glad I came,
Tell them I swore with my dying breath,
I'd do what I did again.
Please raise my head like mother would do,
Tell them you took their place.
Tell mother and wife you did what you could,
Oh for one look on their face,
Tell them for me their boy loved them well
God and myself understand.
Give mother and wife my love and tell them I died
For them and my native land,
Tell the Belleville Boys from me I am glad I am here and I done the best I could,
Ask some lad to come and take my place,
Dared as I was I'd be dared again,
If some one don't—well——he should,
Give them this message from me dear boys.
All from the firing line,
Britain has need of her loyal sons.
Needs every one who is game,
Think of the children I left at home
All for the bloody Huns.
To some one near, is some one dear,
A Hero esteemed by all.
In as much as he with option free,
Came forth at his country's call ,
God bless that Boy, in khaki clad
Who nobly took his stand,
And faces death to keep Great Britain free,
On the field of a foreign land.
Mother dear, you're always sighing.
Since upon last the papers read ,
Yes my boy, your noble Father,
Is one numbered with the slain,
He has died for Britain's glory,
To have the British gain the day .
They laid him away in a khaki-shroud
Under 'neath the sun-kissed sod,
For just as the vesper bell rang out,
His soul was wafted to God.

PRINCE OF FINANCE.

Cunliffe Given the First Peerage in the War.

In the City of London he is known as "The Kitchener of Finance." Outside the city, Lord Cunliffe, who has been re-elected Governor of the Bank of England—the Old Lady of Threadneedle Street—for the fourth time, is practically unknown. Yet it was he who, in the first days of the war, was mainly instrumental in saving the country from financial chaos, and was, in consequence, made a peer, being, in fact, the first man to have a peerage conferred upon him for service in the present war.

It will be remembered that in the first days of the war a financial panic threatened. It was essential that every bit of gold should be preserved, and equally essential that the national credit should not suffer, and that all great financial houses and firms should be able to tide over the money crisis, brought about by the entire dislocation of the world's markets.

Then it was that Mr. Walter Cunliffe, as he then was, and two or three great money experts, came to the assistance of the Government. The financial system of the country was reorganized under their direction. The money of the country was preserved, so that we were not only able to carry on our business as usual, but were able to be of financial help to our Allies.

Son of a hard-headed Manchester business man, who left a fortune of over a million, Lord Cunliffe spent the days of his boyhood and youth at Harrow and Cambridge, where he distinguished himself both in work and play alike. He took his M. A. degree and won the inter-Varsity mile for the Light Blue at the sports at Queen's Club one year.

He has, in fact, always been a very keen athlete and sportsman, his great passion of late years being for fishing and big game shooting. In pursuit of this sport he has traveled in the wilds of both India and China.

"Work is the best of all hobbies," is one of his favorite maxims, however, and he is to be found at his office at the bank nearly every day of the week.

Lord Cunliffe is easily distinguishable by reason of his stature. He is six feet high and very broad, with a fairish moustache and his inevitable frock coat and silk hat. For a man of sixty, he is remarkably active and young.

New X-Ray.

The British Medical Journal announces that a remarkable scientific discovery is now on trial at one of the casualty clearings stations in France. It takes up the task of producing pictures of structures, hidden far below the surface of the body just at the point where X-ray photography ceases to perform it effectively. It is possible in broad daylight to obtain detailed pictures of any organ or body, brain, liver, kidney, and spleen, and to see at a glance by what gross lesions they are affected. In one case a concretion in the appendix was seen clearly.

The miracle is achieved by utilizing the currents of electricity which the body is believed to generate. Two electrodes, each ending in a perforated zinc plate or zinc wire screen, are employed. These are connected with batteries, but are not placed in contact with the patient's body. One screen stands on a pedestal in a vertical position, the other is hung horizontally at right angles to it. The patient is placed with the part to be examined quite close to the first screen and directly under, but at a distance from the second. The current from the patient's own organs is made to operate a sensitive needle, which works upon a revolving cylinder carrying a waxed paper. The so-called hammer needle moves across the cylinder, tapping out little holes in the wax, and when later the wax is held up to the light a diagram is seen which "precisely resembles the outline of the living tissues, lying vertically below the second screen." This diagram can be converted into an ordinary photograph by, processes familiar to the applied arts. The inventor is James Shearer, a Scotchman, aged 20, a sergeant in the medical corps.

Tender-hearted K. of K.

The popular conception of the late Lord Kitchener as a "man of iron or a heart of ice" is ridiculously wrong and unjust. As a matter of fact, he was one of the greatest and tenderest-hearted of men. Not many years ago his old nurse said, "People tell me that he has no heart and that everybody is afraid of him; but they are wrong. He is really one of the most tender-hearted men in the world; and whenever he comes to see me, as he often does, he is 'my boy,' just as he was in the old days in Ireland when he used to run to me in all his troubles and fling his arms around me and hug me. Ah, there is nobody left who knows the real 'Master Herbert' as I know him!"

THE WHIRLPOOL BATH.

It Is Replacing Bandages in English Hospitals.

Of new and improved appliances and methods of treatment many wonderful examples are to be seen at the English military hospitals.

Queen Alexandra's Military Hospital is described as follows by the London Daily Mail: I saw several patients undergoing a new healing treatment. Two of these men were most severely wounded in September of last year, and for ten months had been treated in the customary way without any sign of healing. On August 2 they were brought to Millwall, the bandages were flung away, the wounds were subjected to repeated applications of a stream of ozone, being lightly covered with a loose layer of lint in the intervals, and in four days healing was in rapid progress.

This treatment is simplicity itself. Oxygen passes from a reservoir into an electrical machine which converts it into ozone; the ozone flows out through a fine metal tube. The machine is wheeled close to the patient's bed, the wound uncovered, and a stream of the microbe-killing oozne flows into the deepest recesses. No painful dragging off-of bandages, no rebandaging of the limb to hurt and exhaust the patient. I saw here a soldier who had lost his right foot, with a stump covered with skin so healthy and hard that he could walk upon it, a surgical marvel.

What might be called the open-air treatment of wounds has come to stay. At the Herbert Hospital is a soldier with a bad compound fracture of the leg. The limb is not swathed in many yards of bandages as was the custom, but lies between sandbags to secure immobility and is covered only with a single layer of lint.

The lint is kept constantly wet with an antiseptic fluid (peroxide of hydrogen). Surrounding the leg is a large cage covered with a sheet of thin butter muslin, so that the wound is continually refreshed by a free current of air. Extremely rapid healing and freedom from the agony of manipulation are the great gains from this mode of treatment.

The whirlpool bath is entirely a war invention, from which excellent results in cases of stiff joints have been obtained in France. As I saw it at some of the military hospitals visited, it consists of a small oblong bath, filled with water which is kept in continuous movement by a miniature propeller revolved at a very high speed by means of an electric motor. A stiff arm or leg, hand or foot, placed in the bath and kept there for some time is much improved by the stimulus of the running water.

Marvelous examples of bone carpentry are to be seen, such as the transference of a large piece of bone from the leg to fill a gap in the arm bone or jaw.

Wants to Be a Soldier.

Samuel Third, a ten-year-old Toronto boy was taken from a Grand Trunk train recently at Windsor by the United States immigration officers because he was not very sure just where he was going. He told Chief Inspector Frick he ran away to be a soldier. He declared his father was a soldier, his grandfather was a soldier, and his father before that was a soldier, so he just simply had to join too. The lad will be given good care here until the Toronto authorities are heard from.

He Surprised Her.

Mr. McKinnon Wood, the new financial secretary to the British Treasury, tells the following story against himself:

During the recent visit to this country of some members of the Russian Duma, at a Parliamentary reception held in their honor, the wife of the Speaker of the House of Commons offered to introduce Mr. Wood to one of the Russian ladies present.

A little later she came up with a lady, and the mutual introduction took place.

Mr. Wood did not cach the name, and as he is ignorant of the Russian language he felt somewhat embarrassed. Then it suddenly occurred to him that the Russians are good linguists, and on the spur of the moment he said:

"Do you speak English?"

"Why certainly!" replied the lady with a surprised air. Then added, observing that Mr. Wood looked somewhat puzzled in his turn—"I am Mrs. Austen Chamberlain."

The Speaker's wife had inadvertently introduced him to the wrong lady.

DOCTOR PRESCRIBED VINOL

TO RESTORE STRENGTH TO THIS WEAK, NERVOUS WOMAN

Many fair-minded doctors prescribe Vinol because they know of what it is made, viz.—beef and cod liver peptones, iron and manganese peptonates, and glycerophosphates, with a mild tonic wine. They know these are the oldest and most famous tonics. Read the result in Mrs. Mason's case.

"I keep house for my little family of two, and got into a weak, nervous, run-down condition. I was tired and weak and did not know what ailed me. My doctor prescribed Vinol. I noticed an improvement before I had finished the first bottle, and I am now feeling fine and doing all my housework." Mrs. M. S. Mason, 203 Passaic St., Trenton, N.J.

Every weak, nervous, run-down person, feeble old people and delicate child in Belleville, should try Vinol on our offer to return their money if it fails to benefit. J. S. McKeown, Druggist, Belleville. Also the best Druggist in all Ontario towns.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

"SOME BABY" AT GRIFFIN'S TOMORROW

"Some Baby" is the title of a farcial comedy that will be seen at Griffin's Opera House, tomorrow night. It is a three act play that deals with the supposed discovery of the real Elixer of youth by an eccentric old scientist, who with the determination of a ponce De Leon has set out to give mankind this universal restorer. The applicasio of the Elixer to an old General and the scientists's young and pretty daughter, is followed so quickly by such a maze of wonderful happenings that the amazed professor seems warranted in the belief that his compound is indeed working wonders. In fact some of the unthought of accomplishments of the new discovery bid fair to land the discoverer and his young assitant in deep trouble. The love affairs of the Professor's family and friends are involved, and seem to be going awry up to the very end, when all this has been threatened is cleared up, and the learned professor finds that, while he may not have happened on the real elixer of youth, he has hit upon the means to lead him to fame and fortune. It is a merry play, and we are promised an excellent cast in the several amusing characters. Grace Merritt, a dainty and clever actress, heads the list of those who will be seen.

"HOBSON'S CHOICE" AT GRIFFIN'S NEXT FRIDAY NIGHT

"Hobson's Choice," that cyclone of romance and fun which delighted the Comedy Theatre audiences in New York for six months last winter, repeated its success in Boston and Chicago, and is now the reigning laughmaker of London, will be offered here at Griffin's Opera House next Friday night, November 3rd, with a notable English cast of players.

The comedy is from the pen of Harold Brighouse, the distinguished North of England playwright, and is under the direction of B. Iden Payne, both of whom hail from Manchester the locale of the story, which is told with so much of clean delightful humor and tenderness of sentiment.

"Hobson's Choice" chronicles the joys and sorrosw of a Lancashire family of simple folk, dominated by Henry Horatio Hobson, bootmaker, until his daughter Maggie gets her fill of his tyranny, and takes the destinies of herself and two sisters into her own hands. Willy-nilly she marries her father's bonehead apprentice; defies the plan of the pater families to choose husbands for his daughters, by assisting her sisters in the happy culmination of their respective romances and eventually saves he bumptious parent from himself ahd the grog shop, restoring his home and business to order, and bringing sunshine wherever she goes.

FRANCIS X. BUSHMAN AT PALACE TONIGHT ONLY

The exalted soulful screen star, Francis X. Bushman, and beautiful Beverly Bayne, appear at the Palace Theatre to-night only, in a vital and stirring human interest story, which has been produced in true Metro style by Director Jack Noble, entitled "A Man and His Soul." On the same programme with the above five part offering, the following excellent photoplays will be exhibited: Ham and Bud," a very amusing comedy; "Selig Tribune, with its budget of interesting news and events, and Helen Gibson, in the thrilling railroad story entitled, "The Haunted Station."

FANNIE WARD FILM REQUESTED FOR 2 DAYS

Fannie Ward, who will be remembered by local photoplay lovers through her splendid performance recently, in "For the Defense," appears at Griffin's Opera House To-night, and at the Palace Theatre Tuesday, matinee and night, in "The Gutter Magdalene." The story, which gives a vivid picture of a phase of city life, is replete with stirring adventure and romance. Owing to Miss Ward's local popularity, and the many requests the management have received for her appearance here, they announce that she will appear at the Palace Theatre to-morrow, matinee and night, instead of "A Man and His Soul," originally booked. On the same programme with the above offering, a new and amusing Bray Komedy Kartoon will be exhibited, along with the 5th chapter of the Athletic Series.

Well Soaped.

Salt boiled beef was the main item on the luncheon menu, and the flavor of this particular joint was so odd that the family laid down their knives and forks in unison.

"General" Mary Jane was sent for.

"There is something wrong with this beef, Mary," said the mistress of the house. "Did you soak it as I told you?"

"Oh, yes, mum," said the maid-of-all-work brightly. "I soaped it well all round."

Prunes.

Not many years ago every prune consumed in North America came from France or elsewhere beyond the sea. Now, we export prunes from California and elsewhere.

WANTED A WIFE!

How the Germans Advertise for Their Life Partners.

Marriage advertisements are no novelty in Britain. While, however, they are, generally speaking, confined there to a few obscure papers, in Germany they form a special feature of most of the daily newspapers. The frankness of these advertisements shows a curious lack of that "kultur," dignity, and modesty of which the Germans so proudly boast. Here are a few culled by M. Henry de Halsalle from the leading German newspapers and reprinted in his book, "Degenerate Germany" (Warner Laurie):

"Listen, men, listen!

"I am young and very pretty, a well-made blond, with very dark eyes, and I must get married as soon as possible. I have seventy pounds, a loving, affectionate disposition, and I could make any man happy. I belong to the servant class, but to any gentleman who does not object to this fact, I say write me with an offer marked on the envelope "Blond 19," Office of this Paper. I should like a guardsman. Communications can be received till the 14th instant."

A very frequent appeal comes from the student, generally in this wise:

"Hand and heart are at the disposal of a wealthy lady of any age, willing to provide for a handsome student of twenty-three, and enable him to complete his studies at the university."

Matrimonial agencies advertise daily and give the most minute descriptions of their clients after the fashion of furniture described in an auctioneer's catalogue. The following, according to M. Halsalle, is a "broker's" advertisement from The Tageblaat:

"Marriageable Young Women.

"At ———'s a large number of marriageable young women of all ages and classes, with "dots" ranging from 2,000 marks to 500,000 marks. Several wealthy young ladies desirous of making purely love marriage. All letters treated in the strictest confidence.—Freudrichstrasse."

Strange Bridges.

Probably no town in the world has such strange bridges as Srinagar, the capital of Cashmir, in India. The city is built on the banks of the River Jhelum, which is crossed by many wooden bridges lined with old and dilapidated shops and houses with balconies and lattice windows. Some of these are very insecure, and look as if they might at any time fall into the river beneath.

Timber has always been largely used for building bridges, and the earliest one of this kind on record is across the Rhine, and which he describes in his "Commentaries."

The roofed Kapellbruche, at Lucerne, is one of the most interesting. It crosses the River Reuss diagonally, and has a hundred and twelve triangular paintings beneath the roof, recording the heroic deeds of the old Switzers and the sufferings of their patron saints. In the midst of the Kapellbruche stands an octagonal tower, which formed part of the fortifications of the town in the thirteenth century. The bridge was built in 1333.

One of the curious and ancient bridges in Europe is that at Croyland, in Lincolnshire, which is supposed to date from the ninth century. No road now passes over and no water under it. It consists of three pointed arches, which meet in the centre, and the ascent is so steep that only foot passengers can go over it. Upon the bridge is a seated figure in stono of a robed Saxon king.

Although usually a very quiet person, Sir James Barrie has at least one good story to tell against himself. He is exceedingly fond of cricket, but his love for it is somewhat greater than his prowess at it. "I always go on smoking till it's my turn to bat," he says. "When I go in I put my pipe down, alight. It's often still alight when I get back to the pavilion."

In Japan there is a great oyster farm where the bivalves are taught to make pearls. It was Dr. Mikimoto, a well-known scientist, who conceived the idea that oysters might be educated and made to work for man. After many years of costly experimentation he discovered the method in use to-day.

The farm has an area of about fifty square miles and the water varies in depth from five to fifteen fathoms. The farmer selects the spots where the larvae of oysters are most numerous and then he plants small rocks and stones. These are soon covered with oyster-spat. They are then removed and placed in special beds, where they lie undisturbed until the third year.

An oyster will not produce a pearl unless it be irritated by some foreign substance. As soon as it feels this it proceeds to cover it with nacre, layer on layer, until after a few years it has made a pearl. When large enough the oysters are taken from their beds and carefully opened; a tiny speck of some foreign substance is introduced into their bodies, and they are replaced in the sea. By the end of from three to five years the oyster has coated the foreign substance with nacre and this has become a pearl.

All the work on this oyster farm is done by women, who bring the oysters up and down by diving.

SUMMER "IFS."

Interesting Ways to Beat Nuisances of the Season.

If there is a hole in a rubber hot water bag, a hole which cannot be mended, fill the bag with salt or sand heated in the oven. The result will be as satisfactory as if the bag were filled with water.

If you would have your summer supply of white silk stockings remain white, always see to it that they are dried in the shade and washed in lukewarm water, as heat turns them yellow.

If small ants, which sometimes get into houses, prove a pest with you, place a sponge soaked in water in which sugar is dissolved in the path of the ants. They will swarm into the sponge, which can then be plunged into hot water.

If you are leaving the house closed for a short time, rub the smoothing irons with lard to keep them from rusting. On your return dip them in hot water, dry them thoroughly and then heat them.

If you wish to make a satisfactory polish for hardwood floors, shave an ounce of beeswax into a quart of turpentine. Rub this well on the floor with a flannel cloth and then rub to a polish with a dry cloth.

If a white straw hat is streaked and soiled, try cleaning it with lemon juice and salt or salts of lemon and water. If it remains streaked, color it with one of the liquid hat colorings to be found in the shops.

If a casserole or other cooking dish becomes brown and discolored on the inside, let it stand for three days filled with buttermilk, which will, by its acid, remove all the stain.

If a rubber glove becomes torn or cut, place a strip of sticking plaster, sticky side next the rubber, on the inside of the glove.

If the brass polish gives out, do not worry, but instead go to work at the brass with lemon juice.

If anybody's finger is burned, dust the burn with powdered charcoal to keep it from smarting.

To Keep Goldfish Healthy.

Goldfish may be kept healthy by giving them a salt bath about every two weeks. Do it in this way: Put a teaspoonful of salt in a quart of clear water and place the fish in it for fifteen minutes—no longer. When changing the water in the aquarium, a small wire strainer will be found a great convenience. Pour all the water from the goldfish bowl, with the fish, into a basin. Rinse the bowl, dry it, fill with fresh water and with the wire strainer pick up the goldfish and drop them back into the bowl. Aquariums should be kept in a cool place and not exposed to the direct rays of the sun. Feed the fish every other morning, allowing six or eight fish one-fourth of a sheet of food cut in small pieces. Sick fish have often become strong and healthy after a few salt baths.

Egg Sauce.

Make a white sauce from a cupful of rich milk thickened smoothly with a tablespoonful of butter and flour. Season with paprika and salt and add a hard boiled egg chopped fine. This is especially good with boiled codfish.

HER FALL TAILLEUR.

What Autumn Is Already Promising For Style.

A PROUD MOMENT.

Autumn suits are clinging to fullness indeed. This one takes such a skirt and emphasizes it in the coat skirt as well. The fabric is a dark brick gabardine, the underarm fullness being strapped down in a belt effect. Self buttons close it, and a seal cape collar matches the black velvet brim of the smart sailor.

FOR HOUSEHOLD PACKING.

Autumn Brings Its Bugbear of Pulling Up Stakes.

When one must move, begin with the small, out of sight tasks that will not render the house untidy and uncomfortable long before leaving it. A little thought and a look around the house will disclose many of the belongings that are not in general use—for instance, stuff in the pantry, in the storeroom, superabundant grocery supplies, temporarily discarded clothing, superfluous ornaments, company porcelain and glassware, books, music and a thousand other things, all of which can be dislodged without destroying the appearance of the house while those abiding in the same will not be the wiser for it.

Dispose of unnecessary possessions that some one else may be glad to make use of; then pack clothing not in use into boxes and mark the contents on each box. Books, pictures and ornaments are best packed in rather small boxes that are easy to handle. Have carpets, rugs and matting cleaned, rolled and tied.

For packing kitchen utensils, jars of fruit, etc., tubs are best, for they have handles. A pot or kettle in the bottom might have several jars placed in it with bits of paper, hay or smaller articles, like knives and forks, to hold them steady, but be careful not to have anything to extend higher than the sides of the tub.

Barrels are best for the fine china and glass ware. When packing breakables, remember that every article must be prepared so that none of its surface is left exposed to pressure without support. Stuff all hollow articles as full as possible, surround all handles, stems, etc., by padding so thick that the article becomes, as nearly as possible, a solid ball. Cups and glasses should not be slipped inside each other unless well covered with padding. Plates and saucers may be made in a pile with stuffing between and the whole made solid by bands of muslin wound round them. Excelsior, hay and newspapers are all good packing material, but often kitchen towels, holders, underwear, etc., may be used to steady things and get themselves transported at the same time.

The Farsighted Woman.

You are, let us say, a capable stenographer or a teacher. If through any untoward circumstances you should be bereft of one of the faculties necessary to your vocation, what would you do? Such things do happen, you know, and wise is the woman who cultivates a hobby or a vocation that employs other faculties than the ones she uses daily. If you know nothing else but teaching and should suddenly lose your hearing you would be stranded on the island of the helpless. If your daily work is of the manual sort, cultivate a hobby for something that requires mental effort. If your mental faculties are in use daily, give them a rest by doing some sort of manual work. Not only will you feel fresher in doing your own work, but you will have taken the first step in preparing yourself for any contingency that the future may hold.

TO ADVERTISE CANADA.

Frank Yeigh is to Lecture Throughout the United States.

An important step in advertising Canada in influential circles in the United States is about to be taken. The Bureau of Commercial Economics of the Department of Public Instruction, in Washington, has secured the temporary services, for a period of six months, of Mr. Frank Yeigh to lecture on the Dominion in the chief centres of the States, and before representative bodies such as universities and colleges, commercial and industrial organizations, Canadian clubs over the border, commercial clubs, rotary clubs, and similar groups.

The bureau is to be congratulated on engaging Mr. Yeigh for this work, for he is peculiarly well qualified to ably represent Canada and to make an effective presentation of our national resources and wealth and our industrial and commercial progress. His personal knowledge of the country and his lectures and books on the subject equip him for this larger field, in which he will be able to do excellent missionary work across the boundary line, covering the country from Chicago to the south.

The Bureau of Commercial Economic is an extensive and important organization, having for its object the making known of various countries and processes of manufacture to interested gatherings, and is responsible for supplying thousands of lectures on a wide variety of themes to many thousands of its citizens. It has the co-operation of the United States Government, through the Department of Education, and is directed by an advisory council of men of international distinction in many lines of life. Universities and colleges as well as commercial and industrial organizations are co-operating agencies, resulting in a dissemination of knowledge of countries and other topics of wide extent and far-reaching influence. It is understood that the Canadian Government is facilitating the work of the bureau in the collection of moving picture films of Canadian life and scenery, which will be at the disposal of Mr. Yeigh in his lectures.

The director of the bureau, Mr. Francis Holley, is a gentleman of distinction who has travelled widely over the world, and who has just completed a 17,000-mile trip over Canada as the guest of the Dominion Government, returning with a deep appreciation of all he saw and a new enthusiasm for our country.

In securing the services of Mr. Yeigh the bureau has, as has been said, gained the services of the man best qualified to represent this country. He will present a series of Canadian travelogues, with both moving and stereoptican pictures, to large and important gatherings in the chief cities of the Middle and Central West and Atlantic seaboard, also visiting the south later on. He opens his tour at the Maryland Agricultural College.

Canada is also to be congratulated on this opening for Canadian publicity on a large and effective scale and before important gatherings of key men. The best of results should, and no doubt will, follow; not only in making Canada known more intelligently to our American friends, but in securing capital, investments, and industries, as well as visitors who may see for themselves the wonders of the Dominion.

A New Industry.

Not the least prominent of Canada's post-war industries is that of the manufacture of steel window casements, which has been taken up with marked success by at least one Canadian firm. This is one instance where Canada has set out to supply markets deprived of their regular source of supply by the war. Steel windows are being exported to the United States in considerable volume for use in the large office and store buildings. This article was formerly bought almost exclusively from British firms, with a small percentage of the trade going to Belgians and Germans. Since August, 1914, however, no steel casements have been sent from Europe, as all shipments of metal are now going eastward across the Atlantic.

It was early in 1914 that one firm started the manufacture of steel window frames, although this branch of their industry had been under con[illegible] industry was on a small scale for a time after war broke out, it has made material growth within the last few months. The manufacture of steel sashes has more than doubled in the last year, and this firm has sold more up till August 1 of this year than during the entire twelve months of 1915.

All modern factory buildings and warehouses are using the steel sash, and an estimate of the rate of increase is about fifteen per cent. a month at present. Something like $50,000 worth of steel window sashes have been exported to the United States this year, and this promises to be increased several times in the near future.

Volunteer Naval Reserve.

An order-in-Council has been passed at Ottawa providing regulations for the enlistment of men "in the Royal Naval Canadian Volunteer Reserve" for overseas service in the Royal Navy. The men enlisting will be enrolled for the period of the war. Ordinary and able seamen will receive $1.10 per day; leading seamen, $1.20; petty officers, $1.40, and chief petty officers, $1.90.

Men subsequently transferred to stoker ratings will be paid 10 cents per diem more than the pay of their equivalent seamen ratings. Wives and approved dependents of men enrolling will be paid from the date of enrollment separation allowance on the following scale: Wives and approved dependents of ordinary seamen, able seamen, leading seamen, and equivalent ratings, $20 a month; petty officers and chief petty officers and equivalent ratings, $25 per month.

Tough Old Soldier.

While troops were digging practice trenches on the Wiltshire Downs in England, they found the remains of a very tough old fighter of 3,000 years ago. This man, writes Lieut. Lionel F. West, an army physician, in a medical journal, received a blow from a stone battleaxe on the forehad with such force that the axe sunk clean within the skull, leaving a sharp edged hole about three-quarters by a half-inch in size. The horrible injury was not immediately fatal, Lieut West says, for there are signs of repair all around the wound. The warrior lingered on for months, although he was a slight man of five feet two inches in height.

Child Was Nervous, Irritable, Tired Out

She Had No Appetite, and Her Complection Was Pale and Sallow

How many parents realize the strain which going to school means to the child who is naturally nervous and of delicate health?

You see them come from the schools daily with pale faces, many wearing glasses, and looking tired and worn. At home they are irritable, do not sleep well at nights and are upset by a little extra excitement.

If they are to grow to healthy manhood and womanhood their systems must have attention now. Such treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food does wonders for children in this condition. We are constantly receiving letters from grateful parents telling what the Nerve Food has done for their children. This one is a fair sample:

Mrs. Stephen Hartman, Italy Cross, Lunenburg Co., N.S., writes: "My little sister at eleven years of age became nervous, irritable and seemed all tired out. She had no appetite, was lifeless and drowsy, and her complexion grew pale and sallow. Finally she had to keep her bed and have somebody with her all the time. She was afraid of everything, would get excited and tremble till the bed would shake. As she seemed to be getting worse under the doctor's treatment, mother decided to try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food After she had used about four boxes, improvement was noticeable, and it was wonderful to see how much brighter and stronger she grew week by week. She used ten boxes altogther and they cured her. She got fat and rosy and went to school every day with ambition that she never seemed to have before. I do not hesitate to recommend Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to anyone, for it was indeed wonderful what it did for her."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto.

CITY GOVERNMENT HOLD SEMI-MONTHLY SESSION

Business Transacted Chiefly of a Routine Nature—Many Enquiries Made and Answered—Garbage Collector Wants More Remuneration

At the City Council meeting held last evening, the business transacted was chiefly of a routine nature. It was decided to set apart Monday next November 6th, as the day for a canvas of the city for the British Red Cross Fund. The Council will make a substantial grant to the worthy object in addition to what the citizens generally subscribe. The collection of taxes this year is a matter of congratulation to all concerned; as it is the best collection possibly ever made in the city. A request made by Mr. D. Stapley, garbage collector, for an increase in pay, was referred to the Market and City Property Committee for consideration. Some other matters of more or less importance were attended to.

Minutes of the last meeting read and confirmed.

On motion the reports of committees, communications, petitions, etc., were laid upon the table, and a motion prevailed that the Council go into committee of the whole on reports, etc. Ald. Woodley in the chair.

The accounts recommended to be paid by the various committees were paid without discussion.

A communication was read in reference to the Council, if it thought advisable to send a delegation to appear before the Insurance commission which would meet in Toronto in the near future.

It was thought unnecessary to send a delegation, and the communication was filed.

The committee rose and reported. Reports received and adopted.

ENQUIRIES

Ald. Woodley—Will the water on the road or at the side of the road in front of Mr. Clarke's blacksmith shop, Front street, be taken care of.

City Foreman—It will be attended to.

Ald. St. Charles—Will any more granolithic walk be built this year.

City Foreman—I will attend to it.

Ald. St. Charles—What about flushing Front street pavement? It is very dirty.

Mr. Henderson, city foreman—Mr. Cook will not flush it any more this year. It should be flushed.

Mayor Ketcheson—Could not the firemen do it in the evenings now and then.

Ald. St. Charles—I will speak to the Chief about the matter.

Ald. Smith—Has it been decided to set a day apart to canvas the city for the British Red Cross Fund?

Mayor Ketcheson—This will be attended to.

Ald. Platt.—Who is responsible for the building of that portion of the granolithic walk on Pinnacle street at the C.N.R. and C.P.R. railways crossing? The work is surely unfinished as it is too low and allows water to remain on it after a rain.

Mayor Ketcheson—The railway companies built it, and are paying for it. The walk is too low, and he had been informed a drain would be built.

Ald. Smith—Two years ago a petition was presented for the building of a granolithic walk on south side of Brassey street, and a By-Law was passed. It has not been built, and the present wooden walk is in a deplorable and dangerous condition.

Mayor Ketcheson—The board walk could be repaired for this year.

City Foreman—I will have the walk repaired.

Ald. St. Charles—What about the granolithic walk promised on Earle street? If a walk is not built this year, the residents are willing to build a board walk themselves if the material is furnished.

City Foreman—I will built a walk this fall that will suffice for the time being.

MORE PAY WANTED

Mr. D. Stapley, garbage collector, asked for more pay, as he was unable to keep his men as they were offered more pay.

The matter was referred to the Market and City Property Committee.

MOTIONS

Ald. Smith moved, seconded by Platt, that the City Auditor be requested to prepare a statement itemizing in a general way the uncontrollable expenditure of the city during the present year, and a similar statement showing the expenditure of each department other than uncontrollable —Carried.

Moved by Ald. St. Charles, seconded by Ald. Deacon, that the thanks of the Council be tendered to Mr. J. W. Johnson, M.P.P., for the valuable assistance rendered by him to the city and surrounding municipalities re payment of taxes by the Hydro Commission of Ontario for 1916.—Carried.

ASKED FOR SURPLUS EARTH

Mr. George Kelley addressed the Council in reference to procuring the surplus earth of a street which was opened up east of the new Children's Shelter building, for the purpose of making a lawn in front of the Shelter.

The general impression amongst the members of the Council was that the proposed road would not be opened for the present, hence no action was taken in the request made.

CITY HALL DUES

Mayor Ketcheson presented to the Council a schedule of the proposed dues to be collected in the future for the rent for evenings of the City Hall. The rent would be regulated as follows.

| | |
|---|---|
| Outside organizations | $20 |
| Local organizations | 12 |
| Part charitable | 6 |
| All proceeds for patriotic purposes free | |
| Part proceeds for Patroitic purposes | 6 |
| For meetings outside of city purposes | 12 |

The schedule was unanimously adopted.

On motion it was decided to grant the request to allow Mr. Thomas Manley to borrow 200 feet of old fire hose for the purposes of his work on the end of the sewer on Coleman street.

RIGHT OF WAY

Mayor Ketcheson said the matter of a right-of-way through by the Tabernacle Church had been satisfactorily arranged. The deed has been secured and the work of opening up would be proceeded with.

OVERDRAFTS

Ald. Deacon referred to the fact that everything should be done to prevent overdrafts this year, by committees. Some committees now had, or nearly so, spent their appropriations.

Ald. Woodley—At next meeting I will present a statement of the expenditures of committees up to that date.

WORK DISCONTINUED

In anwser to a question, Mayor Ketcheson said the C.N.R. had discontinued the building of a track across Wharf street. Council adjourned.

RED CROSS CAMPAIGN

It has been decided by the City Council that a day will be set apart in Belleville for the collecting of funds for the British Red Cross Society, and Monday next, November the 6th, is the day named. The Boy Scouts of the city will be asked to distribute envelopes on Friday of this week, and will also collect them on Monday. The principals and teachers of the schools of the city, will be asked to assist in the matter of collecting and arranging of details. The concensus of opinion amongst the members of the City Council, was that a liberal grant would be made by the Council. The matter of making the necessary arrangement of the canvass was left in the hands of Mayor Ketcheson and Ald. Woodley, on behalf of the Council.

An Interesting Scriptural Theme

Evangelist F. W. Johnston Discourses on "The Beast" Referred to in Revelations

With a large audience present Sunday night in the hall two doors west of the Y.M.C.A., Evangelist F. W. Johnston presented another interesting [illegible] the theme of "The Seat or Throne of Satan," Rev. 2:13. "Where is this place?" the Evangelist inquired. Has the Bible supplied evidence sufficient to enable us to locate this place, or are we in our interpretation simply left to human conjecture and uncertainty? Nay verily," he declared, "by that the dragon which is said to be Satan; in Rev. 12:9, that he gives to a certain power designated by the term Beast—he gives to this Beast his seat, power and authority. Therefore what is this Beast? for a beast in prophecy is a symbol of a kingdom, Dan. 7:24; and it says Satan gave to this kingdom his seat. What kingdom therefore is symbolized by the Beast? The means of identification are given in verses 5-8 of Rev. 13. In these we find that some ecclesiastical kingdom would for 42 months (30 days to a month, Bible reckoning 1,260 days) a day in prophecy symbolizes a year, Ezek. 4:6. Therefore this spiritual kingdom would for 1,260 make war with the saints and overcome them. What power was it that did continue for that period and perform this wicked work of persecuting the saints. There is only one answer: Rome. This is the only ecclesiastical power that did during the 1,260 years of the dark ages, put upward of 10,000,000 martyrs to death. The seat of this power is in Rome, and as it says that Satan gave this seat, therefore the seat or throne of Satan is there. Against this wicked power and its teachings we are warned time and again, and even in Paul's day the church saw the mystery of iniquity already beginning to work, 2 Thess. 2:8. But though the church at this period was stemming against the tide of iniquity, God was on the side of his people, and to these who overcome He has given many promises. One especially was considered in the discourse Sunday evening, where the Lord has promised in Rev. 2:17 to those who overcome to eat of the hidden manna (the spiritual bread of His word), and also a white stone (symbolic of his character) with a new name written which no man knoweth, saving him that receiveth it.

Taxes Being Readily Collected

At the City Council meeting last night, Mayor Ketcheson presented a verbal statement in regard to the collection of taxes, which was most gratifying. His Worship stated that the payment of taxes by the taxpayers was excellent. On the 1914 roll all but $3,000 had been collected, and this was available. There was about $40,000 of the 1915 roll yet uncollected but will be collected by December 31st next. The taxes for 1916 were also being readily paid, in fact the collector was so busy collecting taxes that he was unable to make out all the receipts. This will mean a great saving to the city on the interest account. There had been collected on the 1916 roll some $25,000 more this year than at the same period last year.

Ald. Woodley stated that at the next meeting of the Council, he would be prepared to present a detailed statement of the receipts of taxes.

FALSE TEETH LANDS A MAN IN POLICE COURT

False teeth have caused many troubles, but this morning a new set landed a man in the Police Court, by causing him to vomit on the street last Tuesday evening. Officer Naphin mistook this for drunkenness, and had him summoned. The accused and three companions convinced the Magistrate that the accused was sober, and he discharged him. W. C. Mikel, K. C., appeared for the accused.

Citizen and Community Life

The following interesting paper was presented by the principal of the Canifton Public School, Mr. J. G. Wilson, B.A., before the Epworth League or the Canifton Methodist church, on Friday evening last:

Citizen is the unit of society. What he is determines the condition of society. Society cannot sin; therefore she cannot repent and believe the gospel. But the citizen can do both; thus society is dependent upon the individual, i.e. the citizen. In fact the development of a good citizen has often meant the salvation of the community or the nation, e.g. Abraham Lincoln, he showed his young nation the vastness of the heritage they had entered upon. His common sense and cultured wisdom and his imitation of the spirit of Christ enabled Bishop Gruntvig to make Denmark the foremost agricultural country in the world. Let me say right here, that no citizen can become great who does not relate himself closely to the community.

Topic I.—Home

The most sacred institution that time has ever known, is that of the home. Not only keep the home fires burning, my friends, but to start one, should be the ambition of every young man and woman present here tonight; and mark you, procrastination is the thief of time. Get the community spirit and that broader view of life early. Make the home a centre for all that is good and tender, and you will do much to build up a nation firm and strong enough to battle any Kaiserism.

Topic II.—Business

Conduct your business with that community spirit in your heart. Have some definite work in life, and do it with a will. In other words, do your bit. It is my firm belief that every person owes more to his community than his community owes to him. This may smack of the middle ages, yet, it lives in the present every day life. In all your dealings be above board, and don't expect too much, for the school mistress (experience) teaches us that we don't get oftentimes our deserts on earth. In other words, heaven's justice doesn't always mean terra firma.

Topic III.—Church

The church lives and has always been the bulwark of the Saxon race. It is the centre from which all our most valuable ideas, respecting the community and its free, joyous relations, radiate. The big jobs of the world have always been put through by men and women imbued with the Christian; that is the community spirit. She is a common ground or rendezvous for those, who desire to help the masses.

Topic IV.—The School.

Can we forget the school and its little conscripts of toil? May it be a healthful place, both in the physical and intellectual sense of the term. Efficiency should be its watchword. What made Germany what she is today?—The Public School. To what does England owe her great debt of honor? Again I say the Public School. Matchless bravery, unequalled bearing on the battle fields of the world, found its common root in the Public School. Then what is the duty of the rate payer, of the citizen? To look to it that a qualified expert prevent all contagion from infection, diseases, etc. In the next place, elect men of calibre—live wires on the School Board, who will make it their business to see that the school plant is all it should be.

Government

The good citizen always takes a profound interest in matters pertaining to Government. He is not necessarily a party man, but waiving all partyism, casts his vote for the man not the thing. Neither does he seek office, nor does he shirk it when the office calls to him. He is ever careful to inform himself on matters of public interest, and is ever ready to serve the best interest of his neighbor, his country, his king, and his God.

COBOURG ARTILLERY BELLEVILLE INFANTRY

Battery Sergeant H. W. Ponton of the Heavy Seige Battery, Cobourg, was in the city yesterday, and received some likely recruits for the draft to leave Cobourg about Christmas. The Battery has been doing great work at the Somme, making the splendid work of the infantry possible, and we are proud of our Ontario "Big Guns", whose headquarters for so many years have been our neighboring town of Cobourg.

Belgian Days Are New Scheme

Another Means of Raising Money to Send to Relief Committee to Assist in Work in Belgium

Various communities all over the world are setting aside days once in a while to be known as Belgian days. On these occasions every activity is devoted entirely or in part to the Belgian Relief cause. The civilized world, and particularly British countries, are aware that the British Empire has an obligation to meet as far as Belgium is concerned, and that the need of meeting that obligation is greater just now than it has been or will be after the war is over.

Belgium's heroic little band of soldiers stood between the German forces and the British Empire when Britain was unprepared, and to-day there are seven million defenseless men, women and little children in Belgium suffering the pangs of hunger as a result. No wonder British towns and cities are setting aside "Belgian Days."

The City of Cardiff, Wales, recently observed its Belgian Day—its day devoted to these weeping mothers and emaciated children of Belgium—and by means of it raised $3,500 to go toward the purchasing of food for these destitute people. This money was turned over to the Belgian Relief Commission.

It is hoped that many Canadian cities and towns will undertake these days, when business men will devote a part of their day's proceeds to the cause, and others will give as they may. The Belgian Relief Committee, 59 St. Peter street, Montreal, is ready to receive your donation—or send it to the committee in your town.

BELLEVILLIAN WOUNDED

Mr. Edward Lancaster, residing at 95 Station Road, Belleville, to-day received the following message:

Sincerely regret to inform you, 40443, Gunner Wm. Lancaster, artillery, officially reported admitted to No. 13, General Hospital, Boulogne, October 23, wounded in right arm. Will send further particulars when received.

Officer in charge of Record Office.

Gunner Lancaster left Belleville with the 34th Battery, and has been in the trenches since February 1915, and had been engaged in several big battles. It is to be hoped that his wounds are not of a serious nature.

DEATH OF FORMER RESIDENT

Word was received in the city last evening announcing the death in Nevada, of Mr. John Slavin, a former well known Bellevillian. Mr. Slavin was born in this city about 50 years ago, and for the past 30 years had been engaged in mining in Nevada. Deceased was unmarried. Surviving is his mother, Mrs. John Slavin, one brother, John, and a sister, Mrs. Henry Johnson, all of Belleville.

DEUTSCHLAND AND BREMEN ARE EITHER SUNK OR CAPTURED

The Former Was Making Her Second Trip Under The Name of "Weser" When it Suddenly Disappeared

GENEVA, Switzerland, Oct. 31. — Special.—The National Zeitung, of Basel, prints the following concerning the German submarines Bremen and Deutschland.

"Both the Bremen and the Deutschland have been lost—either captured or sunk. The Bremen never reached the United States nor returned. The Deutschland during her second trip across the Atlantic in September under the name 'Weser' also disappeared. Submarine U52 was sent in search of the vessels, but found no traces of them. The loss of the two commercial submarines has not yet been officially admitted."

Memorial Service

A memorial service was held Sunday in St. Andrew's church at Gilead, Thurlow, in memory of Earl Wallace, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Wallace, of the 5th Concession of Thurlow, who fell at the Somme in France, on October the 2nd. This service was of such an impressive and representative character that its influence and memory will not soon pass from the community. The young hero whose name by his sacrifice is thus called into prominence, was amongst the many young men of Thurlow to respond to the call to arms, and the first of the community where he lived, to give his life for the cause of his King and country.

When the news from the battlefield reached the sorrow-stricken home, it was only a matter of a few hours until the interest and sorrow of the whole community was aroused. Steps were immediately taken that expression to these sentiments should be given, and that the bereaved family might be made to realize, that when a Thurlow son falls, the community is not indifferent or forgetful of the fact. Arrangements which would be in no sense sectarian or sectional, but expressive of the whole community feeling and interest, were at once put under way. St. Andrew's church being the largest building in the vicinity, was chosen as the most suitable place of accommodation. The services were held in the forenoon. The Rev. Mr. Mitchell preached a very suitable and helpful sermon from the text: "God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble." In the pulpit were also the Rev. Mr. Huffman of Plainfield, Rev. Mr. Sharp of Sidney, and the Rev. Mr. Wilson of Canifton, all of whom took part in the service. Rev. Mr. Huffman conveyed the condolence of the Orange brotherhood, largely represented in the audience. His words were very timely and appropriate. Rev. Mr. Wilson followed, bearing to the sorrowing family the condolence of the congregation of Gilead Methodist church, where Earl Wallace was accustomed to worship; also, of the Young Peoples' Society, of which he was a member, and of the community where he was known and lived. The united choirs of the Methodist and Presbyterian churches in the community, conducted the musical part of the exercises. While representatives from every congregation for many miles around, from Canifton, Sidney, Foxboro, Plainfield, Roslin, Thomasburg, bore in silent sympathy their condolence, placing their contribution tenderly and lovingly upon the hearts of sorrow-stricken friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Wallace have given three sons to the cause of the Empire. One has made the supreme sacrifice; another is face to face with the enemy, and a third is upon the way. This, as Mr. Wilson pointed out in his remarks, is a sacrifice not alone for the Empire, but for every individual citizen, whose most valued interests are at this moment menaced by a brutal enemy. The impressive occasion of Sunday last, will reveal beyond question, that the people of Thurlow will see that the name of her heroes will not be easily forgotten; and that sorrowing friends, who have given their dearest and best, will not lack the interest and unstinted sympathy of their fellow-citizens. When also the blood of one of their number flows for King and country, the young manhood of the County of Hastings and the Municipality of Thurlow will take note of it.

GRACE MERRITT TO HELP .. RECRUIT FOR 235TH

Miss Grace Merritt, leading lady of "Some Baby", will speak at a recruiting meeting at the corner of Bridge and Front street this evening, at 7 o'clock. Miss Merritt is a Canadian girl, born and raised in the city of Toronto; Mrs. Charles Nealey, one of the heads of the Toronto Red Cross Society, is a sister of the young lady, who although her tour in Canada embraces but few of the leading Canadian cities, is endeavoring to "Do her bit" by assisting the different battalions in their recruiting campaigns.

Sergt. Major Dodds arrived in the city this morning from England for the purpose of taking out a commission in the 235th Battalion.

Orders were received by the 235th Battalion this morning, to discontinue recruiting in the Counties of Hastings and Prince Edward. In consequence of this, Lt.-Col. Scobell has asked to have the battalion removed at once to Cobourg, as it will be impossible for the two companies that were to have wintered here, to carry out recruiting successfully. This is to be much regretted, as both officers and men of the 235th Battalion have proven themselves gentlemen in every respect, during their stay in the city.

Th members of the 235th brass band have received two days' leave of absence.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

HOBSON'S CHOICE AT GRIFFIN'S, FRIDAY

"Hobson's Choice" the comedy hit of New York, Boston and Chicago last season and now the reigning laughmaker of London, will be presented here by the Messrs' Shubert at Griffin's Opera House next Friday evening, Nov. 3rd, for one night.

Saturated with clean humor; tender sentiment and splendid characterization this tale of the ups and downs of a family of simple folk of provincial England more than proved a splendid successor to the never-to-be-forgotten "When Bunty Pulls the Strings." Possessing all the charm and quaintness of that delightful comedy "Hobson's Choice" adds a cyclone of fun in the succession of amusing situations created by its irrepressible heroine, Maggie, backed up by a magnificent cast.

"A GUTTER MAGDALENE" AT GRIFFIN'S

The feature film at Griffin's Opera House last evening, was the photoplay, "A Gutter Magdalene" presenting Miss Fannie Ward, the well-known star. The story deals with a young girl, who succeeds in her fight against evil, and uplifts herself from the gutter. She takes up the work of the Salvation Army, and though thrown in the path—of her old time friends, is able, in spite of the temptations, to keep her allegiance to the Great Cause. Miss Ward is supported by an excellent cast, and the scenes are very realistic. The morale of this play is wonderful, and appeals strongly to every one who witnesses it.

The programme consists of the above play, an episode of the Selig Athletic series, and a cartoon comedy. The same attractions will be shown at the Palace this evening.

..CAROLYN FRIEND. WITH—.. "SOME BABY" AT GRIFFIN'S TO-NIGHT

Carolyn Friend, who will be seen in the cast of "Some Baby" at Griffin's Opera House to-night, has been identified with many of our latter day stage successes. She played the leading part in "The City," and is credited with much success as 'Lady Atwell' in "The Butterfly On The Wheel." It is not necessary to go into details of the many parts she has successfully played with standard attractions, her work in "Some Baby" will fully demonstrate that she is one of the well chosen and clever people who have been selected to bring out all the latent mirth of the Corington farce, for the management wishes to impress upon theatre-goers that this is an exceptional company and that Carolyn Friend is but a part of its excellence.

THE HEART OF A PAINTED WOMAN, AT PALACE TO-MORROW

"The Heart of a Painted Woman," a vividly gripping motion picture romance from the Metro studios comes to the Palace Theatre, to-morrow and Thursday, matinee and night, with Mm. In New York it won tremendous commendation from press, pulpit and public. The Heart of a Painted Woman" was written especially for Mme Petrova and gives her remarkable dramatic powers full opportunity. It is a five part picture and is especially adapted to displaying the versitality and beauty of this remarkable Star. 3 other quality pictures are also announced for exhibition.

EDNA GOODRICH APPEARS AT GRIFFIN'S TO-MORROW

The Internationally Famous and beautiful Edna Goodrich appears at Griffin's Opera House, to-morrow night and Thursday night in an elaborate five-part photoplay version of the famous novel "The Making of Madalena," Miss Goodrich is supported by an unusually brilliant cast of prominent photoplayers. On the same program with the above offering, Frank Daniels appears in another amusing comedy entitled, "Kernell Nutt's Musical Shirt." Pathe News will also be exhibited.

CONSCRIPTION IN ENGLAND.

British Government Strict With Men Trying to Evade Service.

The Daily Mail of London conducts a column under the title "Far and Near," devoted to minor happenings and to news briefly told. The following extracts from this column in recent issues will show how strictly the English Government is looking after the "conscientious objectors" and other men who are trying to evade service in the field:

Two London objectors who had gone north to evade service were at Glasgow fined £2 each and handed over to the military authorities.

"I have no patriotism. I would rather be a slave than fight for freedom," said Robert Taylor, aged 23, who at Nottingham was fined £2 and handed over to the military authorities.

John Donaldson, the professional short-distance running champion, was handed over to the military authorities at Manchester, the magistrates deciding that though an Australian he had become an ordinary resident in England.

For attempting to evade military service by altering his birth certificate so as to make his age appear to be forty-one instead of forty. George Kirby, horseman, was at Epping, Essex, fined 40 shillings.

For refusing to join up when called, Rees Jones, of Llansaint, was at Carmarthen fined £10 and handed over to the military authorities. His father and a neighbor named Powell were each sent to prison for three months for assaulting the police who went to arrest him.

GUNS SHORT-LIVED.

Progress of Erosion Impairs Accuracy of Fire.

The life of a gun depends upon the progress of erosion, which sooner or later is certain to impair the accuracy of fire. Erosion is caused by the action of the explosive gases at high temperature and pressure. According to the Iron Age, the hot gases cause a thin film of steel to absorb heat. The film expands and becomes set. Upon the release of the pressure it contracts, which causes minute cracks that grow larger with every discharge. As they increase in size they form passageways for more hot gas, and that tends to enlarge them still further. The inner surface thus becomes roughened and the bands begin to corrode. Finally, the bore becomes so enlarged that it allows the gases to escape. The shell does not then acquire its proper rotation and its flight becomes erratic. All guns except small ones are now constructed with linings in the tube, which, when the bore is worn out, are removed and replaced by new ones. The cost of relining a gun is approxi[illegible] per cent of the cost of the gun.

There appears to be no limit to the number of times that a gun can be relined. The small arms used in the United States are considered to be worn out after 5,000 to 7,500 rounds have been fired. Small naval guns can be fired about 1,000 times before they are regarded as worn out. Large 12-inch and 14-inch naval guns are considered to have a life, on one lining, of from 150 to 200 rounds. Low-velocity guns, such as howitzers and mortars, have correspondingly longer lives than high velocity guns of the same calibre, because the pressures they develop, and hence the temperatures, are lower.

France's First Grenadier.

The announcement that the 12th British Lancers have just expiated their penance of 104 years for looting 104 bottles of wine when encamped in Spain serves to recall a curious fact concerning a French regiment, the forty-sixth of the line. In this regiment the name of a soldier who died in 1800 is still called on parade. At Tour d'Auvergne during the days of the Revolution a captain persistently refused promotion. At the age of fifty he retired to civil life, but later he volunteered to act as substitute for a conscript who was the only son of a friend, and he served as a simple grenadier in the Black Forest campaign which culminated in the Battle of Hohenlinden. Again he refused promotion, and the War Secretary of the day, Carnot, wishing to make known his action, promoted him First Grenadier of France. He fell at Hohenlinden, and Bonaparate, as First Consul, decreed that henceforth at each regimental call the oldest sergeant of the first company should answer at his name "Died on the field of glory." The practice has been observed ever since.

Diminutive Republics.

Many persons are of the impression that Monaco is the smallest independent state in Europe, but, as a matter of fact, there are three states that are still smaller. It is also a matter of common belief that France, Switzerland, and Portugal are the only republics in Europe, whereas there are two others—the republics of Andorra and San Marino. These republics and the principality of Lichenstein are all smaller in area than Monaco, and all claim to be autonomous and independent.

Lichenstein is crowded in between Austria and Switzerland. Formerly it had a tiny army of its own, but this force was abolished for fear "someone might desire to fight with it." Austria keeps a protecting eye on Lichenstein, while France performs a like office for Andorra, situated in the Eastern Pyrenees. San Marino, however, looks after her own territory, 33 square miles, without foreign aid. The people of this little state are as proud of its history and enlightened institutions as republicans anywhere. San Marino has an army of 1,100 men, and these have been found amply sufficient to insure its independence.

Six Murdered by Criminals.

A steamer arriving at Sydney, Australia, from the New Hebrides Group, about 900 miles off the north-eastern coast of Australia, has brought news of the murder of six persons by cannibals. The victims were a British trader named R. J. Bridges, and at least five children, whose bodies were found fearfully mutilated with axes and knives, and another child, who is missing, is believed to have been carried off by the cannibals and feasted upon. The murderers were thought to have come from a village on Malekula Island.

Immune.

Asker—Who is that chap who is asserting that the tariff on woolens should be further reduced?

Telitt—Oh, that's a woolen manufacturer who is making shells in his woolen mills.

Foolish Question.

"Is your mother in, Willie?" asked a lady visiting in the suburbs.

"Sure she's in," was the grumpy rely. "D'you 'spose I'd be workin' in the garden if she was away anywhere?"

Hard to Decide.

"Of course, you are eager for the triumph of right."

"Yes," replied Mr. Dustin Stax: "but it's hard sometimes to tell which the right side of the market really is."

Veteran's Centenary.

Mr. William Burt, of Brampton, has just celebrated his one hundredth birthday. Mr. Burt was born in England, but has resided for many years in Brampton. He is an old Imperial Army veteran.

CHAPTER I.

The good people of Devonshire were rather given to quarreling—sometimes about the minister's wife, meek, gentle Mrs. Tiverton, whose manner of housekeeping, or style of dress, did not exactly suit them; sometimes about the minister himself, good, patient Mr. Tivertan, who vainly imagined that if he preached three sermons a week, attended the Wednesday evening prayer-meeting, the Thursday evening sewing society, officiated at every funeral, visited all the sick, and gave to every beggar who called at his door, besides superintending the Sunday school, he was earning his salary of six hundred per year.

Sometimes, and that not rarely, the quarrel crept into the choir, and then, for one whole Sunday, it was all in vain that Mr. Tiverton read the psalm and hymn, casting troubled glances toward the vacant seats of his refractory singers. There was no one to respond, unless it were good old Mr. Hodges, who pitched so high that few could follow him; while Mrs. Captain Simpson—whose daughter, the organist, had been snubbed at the last choir meeting by Mr. Hodges' daughter, the alto singer—rolled up her eyes at her next neighbor, or fanned herself furiously in token of her disgust.

Latterly, however, there had come up a new cause of quarrel, before which every other cause sank into insignificance. Now, though the village of Devonshire could boast but one public schoolhouse, said house being divided into two departments, the upper and lower divisions, there were in the town several district schools; and for the last few years a committee of three had been annually appointed to examine and decide upon the merits of the various candidates for teaching, giving to each, if the decision were favorable, a little slip of paper certifying their qualifications to teach a common school. Strange that over such an office so fierce a feud should have arisen; but when Mr. Tiverton, Squire Lamb, and Lawyer Whittemore, in the full conviction that they were doing right, refused a certificate of scholarship to Laura Tisdale, niece of Mrs. Judge Tisdale, and awarded it to one whose earnings in a factory had procured for her a thorough English education, the villagers, to use a vulgar phrase, were at once set by the ears, the aristocracy abusing, and the democracy upholding the dismayed trio, who, as the breeze blew harder, quietly resigned their office, and Devonshire was without a school committee.

In this emergency something must be done, and, as the two belligerent parties could only unite on a stranger, it seemed a matter of special providence that only two months before, young Dr. Holbrook, a native of the modern Athens, had rented the pleasant little office on the village common, formerly occupied by old Dr. Carey, now lying in the graveyard by the side of some whose days he had prolonged, and others whose days he had surely shortened. Besides being handsome, and skillful, and quite as familiar with the poor as the rich, the young doctor was descended from the aristocratic line of Boston Holbrooks, facts which tended to make him a favorite with both classes; and, greatly to his surprise, he found himself unanimously elected to the responsible office of sole Inspector of Common Schools in Devonshire. It was in vain that he remonstrated, saying he knew nothing whatever of the qualifications requisite for a teacher; that he could not talk to girls, young ones especially; that he should make a miserable failure, and so forth. The people would not listen. Somebody must examine the teachers, and that somebody might as well be Dr. Holbrook as anybody.

"Only be strict with 'em, draw the reins tight, find out to your satisfaction whether a gal knows her P's and Q's before you give her a stifficut. We've had enough of your ignoramuses," said Colonel Lewis, the democratic potentate to whom Dr. Holbrook was expressing his fears that he should not give satisfaction. Then, as a bright idea suggested itself to the old gentleman, he added: "I tell you what, just cut one or two at first; that'll give you a name for being particular, which is just the thing."

Accordingly, with no definite idea as to what was expected of him, except that he was to find out "whether a girl knew her P's and Q's," and was also to "cut one or two of the first candidates," Dr. Holbrook accepted the office, and then awaited rather nervously his initiation. He was not easy in the society of ladies, unless, indeed, the lady stood in need of his professional services, when he lost sight of her at once, and thought only of her disease. His patient once well, however, he became nervously shy and embarrassed, retreating as soon as possible from her presence to the covert of his friendly office, where, with his boots upon the table and his head thrown back in a most comfortable position, he sat one April morning, in happy oblivion of the bevy of girls who must, of course, ere long invade his sanctum.

"Something for you, sir. The lady will wait for an answer," said his "chore boy," passing to his master a little three-cornered note, and nodding toward the street.

Following the direction indicated, the doctor saw, drawn up near his door, an old-fashioned one-horse wagon, such as is still occasionally seen in New England. A square-boxed, dark green wagon, drawn by a sorrel horse, sometimes called by the genuine Yankee "yellow," and driven by a white-haired man, whose silvery locks, falling around his wrinkled face, gave to him a pleasing, patriarchal appearance, which interested the doctor far more than did the flutter of the blue ribbon beside him, even though the bonnet that ribbon tied shaded the face of a young girl. The note was from her, and, tearing it open, the doctor read, in the prettiest of all pretty, girlish handwriting:

"Dr. Holbrook—"

Here it was plainly visible that a "D" had been written as if she would have said "Dear." Then, evidently changing her mind, she had with her finger blotted out the "D," and made it into an oddly shaped "S," so that it read simply:

"Dr. Holbrook—Sir: Will you be at leisure to examine me on Monday afternoon, at three o'clock?

"Madeline A. Clyde.

"P.S.—For particular reasons I hope you can attend to me as early as Monday. M.A.C."

Dr. Holbrook knew very little of girls, but he thought this note, with its P.S., decidedly girlish. Still he made no comment, either verbal or mental, so flurried was he with knowing that the evil he so much dreaded had come upon him at last. Had it been left to his choice, he would far rather have extracted every one of that maiden's teeth, than to have set himself up before her like some horrid ogre, asking what she knew. But the choice was not his, and, turning to the boy, he said, laconically, "Tell her to come."

Most men would have sought for a glimpse of the face under the bonnet tied with blue, but Dr. Holbrook did not care a picayune whether it were ugly or fair, though it did strike him that the voice was singularly sweet, which, after the boy had delivered his message, said to the old man, "Now, grandpa, we'll go home. I know you must be tired."

Slowly Sorrel trotted down the street, the blue ribbons fluttering in the wind, while one little ungloved hand was seen carefully adjusting about the old man's shoulders the ancient camlet cloak which had done duty for many a year, and was needed on this chill April day. The doctor saw all this, and the impression left upon his mind was that Candidate No. 1 was probably a niceish kind of a girl, and very good to her grandfather. But what should he ask her, and how demean himself toward her? Monday afternoon was frightfully near, he thought, as this was only Saturday; and then, feeling that he must be ready, he brought out from the trunk, where, since his arrival in Devonshire, they had been quietly lying, books enough to have frightened an older person than poor little Madeline Clyde, riding slowly home with grandpa, and wishing so much that she'd had a glimpse of Dr. Holbrook, so as to know what he was like, and hoping he would give her a chance to repeat some of the many pages of geography and "Parley's History," which she knew by heart. How she would have trembled could she have seen the formidable volumes heaped upon his table and waiting for her. There were French and Latin grammars, "Hamilton's Metaphysics," "Olmstead's Philosophy," "Day's Algebra," "Butler's Analogy," and many others, into which poor Madeline had never so much as looked. Arranging them in a row, and half wishing himself back again to the days when he had studied them, the doctor went out to visit his patients, of which there were so many that Madeline Clyde entirely escaped his mind, nor did she trouble him again until the dreaded Monday came, and the hands of his watch pointed to two.

"One hour more," he said to himself, just as the roll of wheels and a cloud of dust announced the approach of something.

Could it be Sorrel and the square-boxed wagon? Oh, no; far different from Grandfather Clyde's turnout were the stylish carriage and the spirited bays dashing down the street, the colored driver reining them suddenly, not before the office door, but just in front of the white cottage in the same yard, the house where Dr. Holbrook boarded, and where, if he ever married in Devonshire, he would most likely bring his wife.

"Guy Remington, the very chap of all others whom I'd rather see, and, as I live, there's Agnes, with Jessie. Who knew she was in these parts?" was the doctor's mental exclamation, as, running his fingers through his hair and making a feint of pulling up the corners of his rather limp collar, he hurried out to the carriage, from which a dashing-looking lady of thirty, or thereabouts, was alighting.

"Why, Agnes, I beg your pardon, Mrs. Remington, when did you come?" he asked, offering his hand to the lady, who, coquettishly shaking back from her pretty, dollish face a profusion of light brown curls, gave him the tips of her lavender kids, while she told him she had come to Aikenside the Saturday before; and hearing from Guy that the lady with whom he boarded was an old friend of hers, she had driven over to call, and brought Jessie with her. "Here, Jessie, speak to the doctor. He was poor dear papa's friend," and a very proper sigh escaped Agnes Remington's lips as she pushed a little curly-haired girl toward Dr. Holbrook.

The lady of the house had spied them by this time, and came running down the walk to meet her rather distinguished visitor, wondering, it may be, to what she was indebted for this call from one who, since her marriage with the supposedly wealthy Dr. Remington, had rather cut her former acquaintances. Agnes was delighted to see her, and, as Guy declined entering the cottage just then, the two friends disappeared within the door, while the doctor and Guy repaired to the office, the latter sitting down in the very chair intended for Madeline Clyde. This reminded the doctor of his perplexity, and also brought the comforting thought that Guy, who had never failed him would surely offer some suggestion. But he would not speak of her just now; he had other matters to talk about, and so, jamming his penknife into a pine table covered with similar jams, he said: "Agnes, is seems, has come to Aikenside, notwithstanding she declared she never would, when she found that the whole of the Remington property belonged to your mother, and not your father."

"Oh, yes; She got over her pique as soon as I settled a handsome little income on Jessie, and, in fact, on her too, until she is foolish enough to marry again, when it will cease, of course, as I do not feel it my duty to support any man's wife, unless it be my own, or my father's," was Guy Remington's reply; whereupon the penknife went again into the table and this time with so much force that the point was broken off; but the doctor did not mind it, and with the jagged end continued to make jagged marks, while he continued. "She'll hardly marry again, though she may. She's young—not over twenty-six——"

"Twenty-eight, if the family Bible does not lie; but she'd never forgive me if she knew I told you that. So let it pass that she's twenty-six. She certainly is not more than three years your senior, a mere nothing, if you wish to make her Mrs. Holbrook," and Guy's dark eyes scanned curiously the doctor's face, as if seeking there for the secret of his proud young stepmother's anxiety to visit plain Mrs. Conner that afternoon. But the doctor only laughed merrily at the idea of his being father to Guy, his college chum and long-tried friend.

Agnes Remington — reclining languidly in Mrs. Conner's easy-chair, and overwhelming her former friend with descriptions of the gay parties she had attended in Boston, and the fine sights she saw in Europe, whither her gray-haired husband had taken her for a wedding tour—would not have felt particularly flattered could she have seen that smile, or heard how easily, from talking of her, Dr. Holbrook turned to another theme, to Madeline Clyde, expected now almost every moment. There was a merry laugh on Guy's part, as he listened to the doctor's story, and, when it was finished, he said: "Why, I see nothing so very distasteful in examining a pretty girl, and puzzling her, to see her blush. I half wish I were in your place. I should enjoy the novelty of the thing."

"Oh, take it, then; take my place, Guy," the doctor exclaimed, eagerly. "She does not know me from Adam. Here are books, all you will need. You went to a district school once a week when you were staying in the country. You surely have some idea, while I have not the slightest. Will you, Guy?" he persisted more earnestly, as he heard wheels in the street, and was sure old Sorrel had come again.

Guy Remington liked anything savoring of a frolic, but in his mind there were certain conscientious scruples touching the justice of the thing, and so at first he demurred, while the doctor still insisted, until at last he laughingly consented to commence the examination, provided the doctor would sit by and occasionally come to his aid.

"You must write the certificate, of course," he said, "testifying that she is qualified to teach."

"Yes, certainly, Guy, if she is; but maybe she won't be, and my orders are to be strict."

"How did she look?" Guy asked, and the doctor replied: "Saw nothing but her bonnet. Came in a queer old go-giggle of a wagon, such as your country farmers drive. Guess she won't be likely to stir up the bile of either of us, particularly as I am bullet-proof, and you have been engaged for years. By the way, when do you cross the sea again for the fair Lucy? Rumor says this summer."

"Rumor is wrong, as usual, then," was Guy's reply, a soft light stealing into his handsome eyes. Then, after a moment, he added: "Miss Atherstone's health is far too delicate for her to incur the risks of a climate like ours. If she were well acclimated, I should be glad, for it is terribly lonely up at Aikenside."

"And do you really think a wife would make it pleasanter?" Dr. Holbrook asked, the tone of his voice indicating a little doubt as to a man's being happier for having a helpmate to share his joys and sorrows.

But no such doubts dwelt in the mind of Guy Remington. Eminently fitted for domestic happiness, he looked forward anxiously to the time when sweet Lucy Atherstone, the fair English girl to whom he had become engaged when, four years before, he visited Europe, should be strong enough to bear transplanting to American soil. Twice since his engagement he had visited her, finding her always lovely, gentle, and yielding. Too yielding, it sometimes seemed to him, while occasionally the thought had flashed upon him that she did not possess a very remarkable depth of intellect. But he said to himself, he did not care; he hated strong-minded women, and would far rather his wife should be a little weak than masculine, like his Aunt Margaret, who sometimes wore bloomers, and advocated women's rights. Yes, he greatly preferred Lucy Atherstone, as she was, to a wife like the stately Margaret, or like Agnes, his pretty stepmother, who only thought how she could best attract attention; and as it had never occurred to him that there might be a happy medium, that a woman need not be brainless to be feminine and gentle, he was satisfied with his choice, as well he might be, for a fairer, sweeter flower never bloomed than Lucy Atherstone, his affianced bride. Guy loved to think of Lucy, and as the doctor's remarks brought her to his mind, he went off into a reverie concerning her, becoming so lost in thought that until the doctor's hand was laid upon his shoulder by way of rousing him, he did not see that what his friend had designated as a go-giggle was stopping in front of the office, and that from it a young girl was alighting.

Naturally very polite to females, Guy's first impulse was to go to her assistance, but she did not need it, as was proven by the light spring with which she reached the ground. The white-haired man was with her again, but he evidently did not intend to stop, and a close observer might have detected a shade of sadness and anxiety upon his face as Madeline called cheerily out to him: "Good-by, grandpa. Don't fear for me; I hope you will have good luck." Then, as he drove away, she ran a step after him and said: "Don't look so sorry, for if Mr. Remington won't let you have the money, there's my pony, Beauty. I am willing to give him up."

"Never, Maddy. It's all the little fortin' you've got. I'll let the old place go first"; and, chirruping to Sorrel, the old man drove on, while Madeline walked, with a beating heart, to the office door, knocking timidly.

Glancing involuntarily at each other, the young men exchanged smiles, while the doctor whispered softly: "Verdant—that's sure. Wonder if she'd knock at a church."

As Guy sat nearest the door, it was he who held it ajar while Madeline came in, her soft brown eyes glistening with something like a tear, and her cheeks burning with excitement as she took the chair indicated by Guy Remington, who found himself master of ceremonies.

Poor little Madeline!

CHAPTER II.

Madge her schoolmates called her, because the name suited her, they said; but Maddy they called her at home, and there was a world of unutterable tenderness in the voices of the old couple, her grandparents, when they said that name, while their dim eyes lighted up with pride and joy when they rested upon the young girl who answered to the name of Maddy. Their only daughter's only child, she had lived with them since her mother's death, for her father was a sea captain, who never returned from his last voyage to China, made two months before she was born. Very lonely and desolate would the home of Grandfather Markham have been without the presence of Madeline, but with her there, the old red farmhouse seemed to the aged couple like a paradise.

Forty years they had lived there, tilling the rather barren soil of the rocky homestead, and, saving the sad night when they heard that Richard Clyde was lost at sea, and the far sadder morning when their daughter died, bitter sorrow had not come to them; and, truly thankful for the blessings so long vouchsafed them, they had retired each night in peace with God and man, and risen each morning to pray. But a change was coming over them. In an evil hour Grandpa Markham had signed a note for a neighbor and friend, who failed to pay, and so it all fell on Mr. Markham, who, to meet the demand, mortgaged his homestead; the recreant neighbor still insisting that long before the mortgage should be due, he certainly would be able himself to meet it. This, however, he had not done, and, after twice begging off a foreclosure, poor old Grandfather Markham found himself at the mercy of a grasping, remorseless man, into whose hands the mortgage had passed. It was vain to hope that Silas Slocum would wait. The money must either be forthcoming, or the red farmhouse be sold with its few acres of land. Among his neighbors there was not one who had the money to spare, even if he had been willing to do so. And so he must look among strangers.

"If I could only help," Madeline had said, one evening when they sat talking over their troubles; "but there's nothing I can do, unless I apply for our school this summer. Mr. Green is committeeman; he likes us, and I don't believe but what he'll let me have it. I mean to go and see;" and, ere the old people had recovered from their astonishment, Madeline had caught her bonnet and shawl, and was flying down the road.

Madeline was a favorite with all, especially with Mr. Green, and as the school would be small that summer, the plan struck him favorably. Her [illegible] he must take time to see what others thought of a child like her becoming a schoolmistress. Others thought well of it, and before the close of the next day it was generally known through Honedale, as the southern part of Devonshire was called, that pretty little Madge Clyde had been engaged as teacher, she receiving three dollars a week, with the understanding that she must board herself. It did not take Madeline long to calculate that twelve times three were thirty-six, more than a tenth of what her grandfather must borrow. It seemed like a little fortune, and blithe as a singing bird she flitted about the house, now stopping a moment to fondle her pet kitten, while she whispered the good news in its very appreciative ear, and then stroking her grandfather's silvery hair, as she said:

"You can tell them that you are sure of paying thirty-six dollars in the fall, and if I do well, maybe they'll hire me longer. I mean to try my very best. I wonder if ever anybody before me taught a school when they were only fourteen and a half. Do I look as young as that?" and for an instant the bright, childish face scanned itself eagerly in the old-fashioned mirror, with the figure of an eagle on the top.

She did look very young, and yet there was something womanly, too, in the expression of the face, something which said that life's realities were already beginning to be understood by her.

"If my hair were not short I should do better. What a pity I cut it the last time; it would have been so long and splendid now," she continued, giving a kind of contemptuous pull at the thick, beautiful brown hair on whose glossy surface there was in certain lights a reddish tinge which added to its beauty.

"Never mind the hair, Maddy," the old man said, gazing fondly at her with a half sigh as he remembered another brown head, pillowed now beneath the graveyard turf. "Maybe you won't pass muster, and then the hair will make no difference. There's a new committeeman, that Dr. Holbrook from Boston, and new ones are apt to be mighty strict."

Instantly Maddy's face flushed all over with nervous dread, as she thought: "What if I should fail?" fancying that to do so would be an eternal disgrace. But she should not. She was called by everybody the very best scholar in school, the one whom the teachers always put forward when desirous of showing off, the one whom Mr. Tiverton, and Squire Lamb, and Lawyer Whittemore always noticed so much. Of course she should not fail, though she did dread Dr. Holbrook, wondering much what he would ask her first, and hoping it would be something in arithmetic, provided he did not stumble upon decimals, where she was apt to get bewildered. She had no fears of grammar. She could pick out the most obscure sentence and dissect a double relative with perfect ease; then, as to geography, she could repeat whole pages of that, while in the spelling-book, the foundation of a thorough education, as she had been taught, she had no superiors and but a very few equals. Still she would be very glad when it was over, and she appointed Monday, both because it was close at hand, and because that was the day her grandfather had set in which to ride to Aikenside, in an adjoining town, and ask its young master for the loan of three hundred dollars.

He could hardly tell why he had thought of applying to Guy Remington for help, unless it were that he once had saved the life of Guy's father, who, as long as he lived, had evinced a great regard for his benefactor, frequently asserting that he meant to do something for him. But the something was never done, the father was dead, and in his strait the old man turned to the son, whom he knew to be very rich, and who he had been told was exceedingly generous.

"How I wish I could go with you clear up to Aikenside! They say it's so beautiful," Madeline had said, as on Saturday evening they sat discussing the expected events of the following Monday. "Mrs. Noah, the housekeeper, had Sarah Jones there once, to sew, and she told me all about it. There are graveled walks, and nice green lawns, and big, tall trees, and flowers—oh! so many!—and marble fountains, with gold fishes in the basin; and statues, big as folks, all over the yard, with two brass lions on the gateposts. But the house is finest of all. There's a drawing room bigger than a ballroom, with carpets that let your feet sink in so far; pictures and mirrors clear to the floor—think of that, grandpa! a looking-glass so tall that one can see the very bottom of their dress and know just how it hangs. Oh, I do so wish I [illegible] two in one room, and the windows are like doors, with lace curtains; but what is queerest of all, the chairs and sofas are covered with real silk, just like that funny, good gown of grandma's up in the oak chest. Dear me! I wonder if I'll ever live in such a place as Aikenside?"

"No, no, Maddy, no. Be satisfied with the lot where God has put you, and don't be longing after something higher. Our Father in heaven knows just what is best for us; as He didn't see fit to put you up at Aikenside, 'tain't noways likely you'll ever live in the like of it."

"Not unless I should happen to marry a rich man. Poor girls like me have sometimes done that, haven't they?" was Maddy's demure reply.

Grandpa Markham shook his head. "They have, but it's mostly their ruination; so don't build castles in the air about this Guy Remington."

"Me! Oh, grandpa, I never dreamed of Mr. Guy!" and Madeline blushed half indignantly. "He's too rich, too aristocratic, though Sarah said he didn't act one bit proud, and was so pleasant, the servants all worship him, and Mrs. Noah thinks him good enough for the Queen of England. I shall think so, too, if he lets you have the money. How I wish it was Monday night, so we could know sure!"

"Perhaps we both shall be terribly disappointed," suggested grandpa, but Maddy was more hopeful.

She, at least, would not fail, while what she had heard of Guy Remington, the heir of Aikenside, made her believe that he would accede at once

When Napoleon was banished to St. Helena various schemes were set on foot for his rescue. One of the most remarkable originated in the inventive brain of a smuggler named Johnstone, says London Answers.

"A submarine," says Sir Walter Scott in his "Life of Napoleon," "was to be the means of effecting this enterprise. It was thought that by sinking the vessel during the daytime it might escape the notice of the British cruisers, and being raised at night might approach the guarded rock without discovery.

"The vessel was actually begun in one of the building yards of the Thames, but the peculiarity of its construction having occasioned suspicion, it was seized by the Government."

Dyspeptics Should Avoid Drugs And Medicines

TRY A LITTLE MAGNESIA INSTEAD

Some people instinctively shut their eyes to danger, and it may be that instinct, or custom or habit causes dyspeptics to take drugs, patent foods and medicines, artificial digestents, etc.

But closing the eyes does not banish the danger, and it is certain that neither drugs nor medicines possess the power to destroy the harmful excessive acid in the stomach, which is the underlying cause of most forms of indigestion and dyspepsia. They may give temporary relief, but ever increasing quantities must be taken, and all the time the acid remains in the stomach as dangerous as ever.

Physicians know this and that is why their advice so often to sufferers from digestive and stomach trouble is "just get about an ounce of pure bisurated magnesia from your druggist and take a teaspoonful in a little water immediately after every meal. This will instantly neutralize all the harmful acid in the stomach and stop all food fermentation, thus enabling you to enjoy hearty meals without experiencing the least pain or unpleasantness afterward.

Had Chronic Indigestion Thought She Would Die

After Years of Suffering Attributes Cure to Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills

Eating too much or using foods that do not agree are the usual causes of indigestion.

The trouble usually begins not in the stomach, but in the liver, since it devolves on this organ to filter the excess waste matter from the system.

Now, since Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are the greatest of liver regulators, it naturally follows that they are unexcelled as a cure for chronic indigestion.

With the liver, kidneys and bowels active, the poisonous waste matter is quickly removed from the system and there is nothing to interfere with the natural and healthful working of the organs of digestion. In this way only can lasting cure be effected.

Mrs. Rebecca Elliott, Magnetawan, Ont., writes:—"I feel it my duty to write you in regard to Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. I had gastritis of the stomach for three years, and could get nothing to stop it until I tried Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. I would have an attack of this trouble with my stomach every three or four weeks, and was so bad at times that my friends thought I would surely die. Thanks to these pills, I have not had an attack for six months, and believe that the cure is thorough. My husband has had very satisfactory experience with Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. He was much run down, and very pale and weak. I persuaded him to use the Nerve Food, and after having taken five boxes he looks and feels real well."

It is such experience as these that have made a place for Dr. Chase's medicines in the great majority of homes. They do not fail, even in the most complicated cases. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25 cents a box. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, 6 for $2.50. All dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

WHY?

Col. Scobell, of the 235th Battalion, now stationed in Belleville, has received orders from Kingston to cease recruiting "forthwith" in this county. Why? May fairly be asked. It is men who are wanted never more so than at present. It is said that recruiting by the 235th Battalion will interfere with the organization of the proposed new battalion. This is not a good reason. There are plenty of men in and about the County of Hastings, able and willing to do their part in securing victory for the Allies; and from what we learn, the officers who are to be attached to the new corps. Success would soon follow.

No jealousy existed about recruiting when the 80th and 155th were organizing in this city and county.

One object and one desire, only should exist, and that is, the securing of volunteers to fill every Battalion. There never was a time during the present war, when they were wanted more. Victory should be the war cry, and nothing should be allowed to interfere to secure it.

There is another view to take of this, which should be considered, particularly by the Belleville people. Will not this action on the part of the Military authorities cause the removal of the 235th Battalion from Belleville to other quarters? Why should it be kept here for months doing nothing but playing soldier when the fullest energy on the part of everyone should be exercised in filling the ranks. It is absurd to suppose that the 235th can secure men from their old recruiting ground if the Battalion headquarters are retained in Belleville. Let the recruiting area be extended, and men secured wherever they can be obtained, is the motto that should rule.

Who is responsible for this stupid movement?

We have no desire, nor is it advisable to criticize, knowing as we do the difficulties surrounding the management and organizing of a volunteer force, but the present action of the authorities is, to our mind, in the wrong direction.

You have a bad cold!

Then listen! Cold attacks the lungs and the breathing passages. To cure it you need to get at these organs direct. Ordinary cough mixtures and syrups do not touch the lungs, but go direct to your stomach, which is not ailing. Peps, on the contrary, go direct to the very seat of the trouble.

Peps are tablets containing essences and medicinal ingredients so prepared that when placed upon the tongue they immediately turn into vapor, and are breathed down the inflamed air passages to the lungs, direct.

Peps medicine takes the form of healing vapor, and cures colds, coughs, bronchitis and lung troubles, just as living in Pine woods and breathing Pine-laden air prevents consumption and cures chest weakness. Tightness across the chest, pain between the shoulders, hacking cough, sore throat, asthma and bronchitis are the ailments which, in particular, Peps have been designed to cure. Peps will soon end your bad cold.

Testimonials for Peps have been given by members of the Canadian Parliament, doctors, lawyers, eminent Canadian musicians; all going to prove that Peps have been found a cure for throat and chest trouble, often when other remedies had entirely failed.

FREE TRIAL—Cut out this article, and mail it, with 1c stamp (for return postage) to Peps Co., Dupont St., Toronto, and we will send you a free trial package of Peps. All druggists and stores sell Peps, 50c box or 3 for $1.25. See the name Peps (four letters only) before buying.

THE PROHIBITION LAW

At a Ward meeting of Conservatives held in Toronto, a short time ago, various questions of public interest were discussed among them. Not of the least importance was that of the Prohibition Law now upon the Statute book. To the general reader it is known that the Globe and other leaders in the Liberal party have been constantly charging, directly and by insinuation the Ontario Government with insincerity in the enforcement of the provisions of the law, and that amendments were in contemplation liberalizing such provising so as to permit the use of beer, etc. This question has been set at rest by a positive declaration by the Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, one of the members of the Ontario Cabinet, who at said meeting stated "that the Temperance Act is here "to stay without variation, without "one jot or one title till the war "ends." We quote from the Globe's report of the proceedings of that meeting. Will this end Liberal insinuations that the Hon. Mr. Hearst, Premier of the Province, and his colleagues are not honest in their legislations upon this question, and in the inforcement of the provisions of such enactment? Judging from the past, doubtful.

NATIONAL THRIFT

The announcement from Ottawa with regard to the plan of the Minister of Finance to promote national saving, is of interest to all Canadians, particularly so, perhaps, to people of slender means. It is, primarily, to enable the latter to place small sums of money at the service of the state, while at the same time providing a fair return for the use of such money, that Sir Thomas White has worked out his scheme of war saving certificates. There are in Canada many thousands of men and women whose financial circumstances have not permitted them to subscribe to either of the two domestic war loans, yet these people are just as earnestly desirous of helping in the war as are those whose subscriptions made of these two loans such magnificent successes. It is for these men and women that Sir Thomas White, with the co-operation of the chartered banks, is providing an opportunity. The scheme provides for the opening of war savings accounts, pretty much in the ordinary way, at the Banks, and at the Post Office savings branches. When the depositor has to his or her credit a certain specified sum of money, a war savings certificate may be purchased. These certificates will be issued at an attractive rate of discount, and will provide a safe and profitable investment. The certificate will be, of course, a state security, and the proceeds will be used to meet the war expenditures of Canada and to help in financing the purchase in Canada of war munitions and supplies required by the Imperial Government.

Details of the plan have not been announced, but the general outline shows it to be a sound and attractive one. It gives the small depositor a chance to help his country and himself, and it promises to provide what will be, in the aggregate, a very large addition to the war chest of the Dominion.

Current Comment

Saskatchewan's new premier approves of "honest administration of public affairs." Of course. But isn't that statement from Liberal lips a little platitudinous?—Hamilton Spectator. "Platitudinous" is good.

Canadians who have their own ideas as to the "root of all evil" might change their views if they were to read what the Republican newspapers are saying about the Wilson Administration. Canadian politicians are not in the same class with American Mudslingers during a campaign.

What the good Conservatives at the City Hall think of the business capacity of the Dominion Government is shown by a proposal to sell the City Hall to the Government for a post office purposes. The City Hall, it is naively announced, "is a model of inconveniences."—Toronto Globe. The Globe is apparently suffering from an attack of nightmare.

Colonel Roosevelt's speeches have not aided the Republican candidate, and there is reason to believe that the colonel would not mourn, as do those who cannot be comforted, should Mr. Hughes and his whiskers go down to defeat. —Toronto World. Another of poor Billy Maclean's ravings. Better advocate a third party in the United States.

The Ottawa ladies who would make the supply of milk for public use more plentiful by urging the non-use of ice-cream are advocating an effective remedy. Most people would be astonished if they understood how large a part of the milk supply is used as a luxury in the form of ice-cream.—Toronto Mail and Empire. But what would the poor farmer do if the supply was cut off?

Toronto and other municipalities asked the Dominion Government to do something about the high cost of living. After carefully considering the matter the Government's reply to the municipalities is. "You go and do something about it yourselves."—Toronto Star. The Government was right. Too many Canadian people are living too near the top shelf of luxuries. A return to old-time living will bring better health and more pocket money.

GENERAL ELECTION IN HELL

(From An English Exchange.)

There's just been a meeting, so I've heard tell,
Of all the inhabitants dwelling in hell,
and authority. Therefore what is this fire.
Jack the Ripper and Crippen each was a trier,
Peter the Painter was backed for a place;
He'd no chance with Seddon, of the Poisoning case,
Charlie Peace was fancied but failed in a trial
With Mary Ann Cotton, the murd'ess vile.
Rudge, Martin and Baker got no votes at all,
Nor did the Liverpool murderer, Ball
Leffroy and Deeming. Wainwright as well,
Were all busy canvassing all around hell
Smith, famous for "Baths," was likely to win,
When the front door bust open and the Kaiser came in.
There was terrible shouting and a cheering lot;
He was elected chief stoker at once on the spot.
Said Whittaker Wright, as he patted his back,
"I move that we give the Devil the sack."
"Don't bother," said Nick, who was listening near.
"I'm chucking the job if all's true that I hear;
He'll introduce gas and make it that hot
Only him and his son can stay on the spot;
Give me two tons of brimstone and leave me alone,
I'll go to Berlin and start a hell of my own!"

Canning Without Sugar.

Housewives who intended to reduce the amount of canning done this season by reason of the high cost of sugar may abandon that project and put up as much as they wish, is the statement issued by the canning specialists at the Department of Agriculture.

This can be made possible by the use of boiling water when sugar syrup is beyond one's means. Any fruit, they say, may be successfully sterilized and retained in the pack by simply adding boiling water instead of the hot syrup. Most fruits canned alone in water do not retain their flavor, texture, and color as do those canned in sugar, and must be sweetened when used for sauces or desserts.

In order to can without sugar the product must be canned on the same day that it is picked. It should be prepared for canning in the ordinary way. Then the containers should be placed in a sterilising vat such as a wash boiler with a false bottom, and completely covered with boiling water. The sterilization process may extend from 10 to 30 minutes, according to the process used. After sterilization the packs should be removed, the glass jars sealed and wrapped in paper to prevent bleaching and stored in a dry, cool place.—Hartford Times.

Queens Sold Almanacs.

The sale of almanacs was once a lucrative monopoly. Queen Elizabeth granted the sole right to publish "almanacs and prognostications" to the Stationers' Company, and James I. extended the privilege to the Univerities of Oxford and Cambridge, but for centuries only these three bodies were permitted to issue printed calendars. The monopoly ended when the claim of the king to the privilege of granting or withholding permission to issue calenders—a survival, perhaps, from days when kings asserted their right to regulate all things, including even the times and seasons—was definitely disproved and proclaimed non-existent. Now anybody can say who's who anywhere.—London Chronicle.

TWO LONG YEARS HE SUFFERED

"Fruit-a-tives" Made Him Feel As If Walking On Air

ORILLIA, ONT., Nov. 28th. 1914.

"For over two years, I was troubled with Constipation, Drowsiness, Lack of Appetite and Headaches. One day I saw your sign which read "Fruit-a-tives make you feel like walking on air." This appealed to me, so I decided to try a box. In a very short time, I began to feel better, and now I feel fine. I have a good appetite, relish everything I eat, and the Headaches are gone entirely. I recommend this pleasant fruit medicine to all my friends".

Humbug First "Uimbog."

The word "humbug" had its origin as follows: Among the many issues of base coin made from time to time in Ireland there was none so worthless as that made by James II. at the Dublin mint. It was made of whatever metal was the easiest to get, lead, copper, pewter, or brass, and so low was its intrinsic value that twenty shillings of it were worth only twopence sterling. The soft mixed metal of which the worthless coin was composed was known to the Irish as "uimbog," pronounced oombog, meaning soft copper, or worthless money. Thus the phrase "humbug" originated by a person saying. "That is a piece of uimbog." "Don't try to pass off your uim-bog on me."

Polish Legion Collapsed.

A despatch from Berne, Switzerland, to the Wireless Press says: "Germany's Polish legion has collapsed. After long efforts and coercive pressure Germany and Austria-Hungary succeeded in enrolling 18,000 Poles. They were divided into six brigades. Four brigades mutinied at the beginning of October and they were disarmed and imprisoned in the Brest-Litovskn barracks. The remants of the legion were sent to the interior of Austria, the troops being considered unreliable."

In Memoriam

Written in memory of the death of Mabel Keitha Caverly, beloved daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Caverly:

Well we know the deep affliction,
Twining around a mother's heart.
Well we know the bitter anguish,
When with loved ones we must part.

When we learned your sad bereavement,
How our hearts were filled with grief.
Knowing words of ours can never,
Give the breaking heart relief.

Now the tired hands are folded,
Sweetly o'er the silent breast.
The merry voice is hushed forever.
Darling Mabel is at rest.

You have lost a precious treasure,
The loved one of the fold.
Gone to meet a smiling Saviour,
Father, mother be consoled.

Now within the little casket,
Underneath the clay-cold sod,
Lies the form of little Mabel,
But her spirit dwells with God.

How we prayed to God to spare her.
May His holy will be done.
But the angels came to bear her,
To that bright and happy home.

In the bloom of youth and beauty,
With bright hopes the way was spread.
To a happy life in future,
Those bright hopes have quickly fled.

She has passed beyond the river,
To that bright and shining shore,
Free from care and toil for ever more.

She is not lost, but gone before you,
For your coming she will wait.
With bright crowns upon her forehead.
Meet you at the golden gate.

Composed by her two loving school friends, Miss Gertrude Kyle, and Miss Mabel Handley.

HELP A GOOD CAUSE

Charles Boardman Brown of New York City, Field Secretary of the Young Men's Christian Association and conductor of Financial Campaigns, arrived in Belleville on Saturday last, to take charge of a special campaign in behalf of the local Y. M. C. A., the object being to raise $15,000.00, which amount will free the Association from all debt, liquidate the present mortgage, and take care of all the current expenses up to the close of the fiscal year ending May 1, 1918.

The Belleville Y. M. C. A. has come to a crisis from a financial point of view, and the directors feel that the very existence of the Association is at stake.

In view of the seriousness of the situation, it has been deemed wise and necessary to inaugurate at once a campaign to raise the above amount. It is felt to be a matter of civic pride, that this, one of the most deserving of all Belleville's Institutions, be preserved. Indeed the character and reputation of our city requires the rallying to the support of the Y.M.C.A. of every citizen, without regard to creed or nationality.

The local Association has had a most honorable record, standing well with the Y.M.C.A.'s of the Province. Not in its whole history has the Associations, the world over, been more favorably regarded by business and professional men, as well as those high in governmental affairs. The Y. M. C. A. has endeavored to measure up to the many opportunities presented, some of which are national in character and scope. The work however, the Y.M.C.A. is doing for the soldiers in the concentration camps and trenches of war stricken Europe, has won the approval and praise of the entire world.

A meeting was held on Saturday evening last at the Y.M.C.A., presided over by the President, P. C. MacLaurin. A list of twenty-five prominent business men was selected as a Campaign Committee, and arrangements will immediately be made to perfect an organization to conduct the proposed canvass of the city. The Campaign Committee will meet tonight, and every member is urged to be present.

The ministers of the Belleville churches held a special meeting yesterday morning, and agreed to co-operate in every possible way with the Y.M.C.A. in the campaign for funds. Next Sunday addresses in the interests of the Y.M.C.A. will be given in all the churches.

WHO IS BRUSSILOFF?

Cousin Declares That He Is Really Sir Hector Macdonald.

"When a man is dead, then he's done for," runs the old ballad, but there are a few who do not come under this generalization. We have had the famous Dauphin of France, titular King Louis XVII., who is said to have escaped from the deadly Temple, and to have lived in America or elsewhere as various people. And two novelists took the idea as bases for interesting novels. We recall news items how Oscar Wilde did not die in France, but was buried in effigy, and lived to find life anew, hidden away. The mystery of Marshal Ney is an old story. And there was Hector Macdonald, who has reappeared in the person of more than one noted military leader; especially lately, he has been identified with General Brussiloff.

There are, then, men who simply will not stay dead. The story of Brussiloff, while the reverse of probable, is still interesting enough to be reproduced. A writer recently gave out an interview with a resident of Gotham who said she was a cousin of the supposedly dead Macdonald. In this the identity with Brussiloff was put forth. We learn:

The legend of Sir Hector Macdonald is one of the strangest and most romantic in modern history. Charged with immoral conduct in Ceylon in 1903, Sir Hector, then a brigadier-general of the British army, a Knight Commander of the Bath, and a member of the Distinguished Service Order, was reported to have committed suicide in a Paris hotel after visiting [illegible] and failing to have the charges dismissed.

Officially, General Sir Hector Macdonald is dead and buried in a little cemetery outside of Edinburgh. His wife remarried many years ago.

Tradition has it, however, that the suicide in the Paris hotel was not Sir Hector, but a traveler in an adjoining room. Seeing at once the opportunity, Sir Hector, according to the story, changed clothes with the corpse, and, in his new identity, departed unsuspected. Like the man in Arnold Bennett's story, Sir Hector went forth into the world with his life to use as he liked.

The legend, which was previously hazy and unconfirmed, takes on new life in the words of this Mrs. Taylor, Macdonald's cousin. The reporter asked a number of questions, trying to shake her belief in the identity of the hero of the eastern front but without any success. The account states:

"I am absolutely certain," she said, "that General Brussiloff is really Sir Hector. While I am only a distant relative, cousins of Sir Hector live in London and Canada, and Australia, and I know that they have been in communication with him.

"Sir Hector was a small man, stockily built. Gen. Brussiloff is of the same figure. In his character of Russian general, Sir Hector has grown a moustache, but it does not make his features unrecognizable.

"Many people who did not know of Sir Hector have commented on the queer and extraordinary circumstances connected with the rise of the Russian commander. It is odd, to say the least, they point out, that a man in supreme command of one of the greatest offensives of the war should be of a previous history totally unknown. 'Brussiloff' is not a real Russian name, anyway. And the photographs of the general show he does not look like a Russian."

Luncheon Dish.

Mix a large cupful of well shredded cooked, cold fish with a half cupful of milk, a tablespoonful of flour and a well beaten egg. Place in a saucepan and cook until it thickens. Let the mixture cool. Roll it in bread or cracker crumbs and fry in deep fat like doughnuts.

Please answer this, wise men, I beg,
The problem makes me sad!
Why do we never beat an egg
When we know it is bad?

CARLYLE AND HIS WIFE.

The Lady Was Jealous of His Social and Literary Success.

It is certain that the Carlyles were an ill-assorted couple. She considered from the beginning that to marry him was an act of condescension on her part. The daughter of a country doctor of Haddington had descended from the skies, like Diana to Endymion, to marry the son of a stonemason. But he loved her and was happy in his love.

Not so she. Jealous of him as she was—furiously jealous—not as a lover, for there she knew she was safe. But she could not bear to think that if she were famous it was as his wife, whereas she, knowing herself to be brilliant, would fain have had him to be known as the husband of that wouderful Mrs. Carlyle. It was his success, social and literary, that she resented. It irked her to be in the second place, and she could not forgive it.

There was something else of which the lady was jealous, and that was the agony of concentration which her husband's work meant for him. At moments here "saeva indignatio" against "that Carlyle," as she would contemptuously call him, passed all bounds.

One day my aunt went to call upon her and found her in one of her tantrums.

"What was the matter?" she asked.

"Oh, my dear, it's just that Carlyle! Would you believe it, I have had a headache for three days and he's only just found it out. 'I'm afraid you're not quite well, my dear,' he said, and all the time he has been working, working! I just threw a teacup at his head."—Lord Redesdale's Recollections.

Settlers' Loans Prove Popular.

Applications for loans under the settlers' loan legislation of last session, already amount to $92,790 for the District of Timiskaming alone, and others are still coming in.

"A substantial amount has already been paid over to the settlers and the bulk of the amount applied for is in process of going to them," stated the Government Loan Commissioner, Mr. Fred Dane.

"We have given precedence to applications from Timiskaming, because we thought the need there more urgent than in other districts on account of the fires," said Commissioner Dane. "One effect of the burning of so much standing timber has been to give an impetus to clearing. With the bush burned off settlers are looking for loans to help them get more land cleaned up and in cultivation, and to get cattle to pasture in the burned areas."

The New Liskeard, Englehart, Matheson, and Cochrane agencies contribute the bulk of the applications. Cochrane has 82 settlers applying for a total of $25,300; Matheson, 62 for $26,100; Englehart, 48 for $16,550, and New Liskeard, 49 for $18,800. In the farthest agency away out on the Transcontinental, nine settlers want $2,940; in the North Bay district, five settlers ask for $2,100, and at Haileybury, three want to divide up $1,000. While the legislation under which loans are made permits the Commissioner making a loan up to $500, secured by the settler's property, comparatively few men have asked for so much, the average running around $350.

Trade Opportunities in West Indies.

Mr. James E. Dobbs, who as a representative of the Canada India League, spent ten weeks in the British West Indies and in Trinidad in particular, has returned to Toronto firmly convinced that there are vast opportunities for the development of Canadian trade in the West Indies. There is there, Mr. Dobbs declares, a prevailing opinion that almost all sorts of Canadian products can find a ready market if advertised and sold by competent representatives who would see that the goods were prepared and packed to suit tropical conditions. The Canada India League is interested in bringing about a closer bond of sympathy among the colonies of the Empire and eliminating any social, religious, or racial prejudices which might exist, and Mr. Dobbs spent considerable time in Trinidad, where men from the East Indies form one-third of the population, in studying the social, commercial, and domestic life of the men from the East Indies. Mr. Dobbs formed the opinion that those men after perhaps three years at the outset came to understand that "While in Rome they must do as the Romans do," and adapted themselves to conditions.

How They Raised the Money.

Many Australian business firms and manufacturers rendered very material assistance in the flotation of the last war loan by taking up bonds on behalf of their employees in return for small weekly payments. While each firm made its own arrangement, yet the general procedure was to assist any employee in receipt of less than £200 a year in taking up bonds from £10 to £50, the amount to be repaid at the rate of 2s. 6d. a week for each £10 bond.

The employers undertook to pay over the amount subscribed by the employee without interest being charged for the advance. Further, any employee subscribing to the loan and leaving the firm's service before the expiration of the eighteen months (the period of reimbursement of advances) may obtain his or her bond on (a) by payment of the amount outstanding, or (b) transferring the subscription to another employee, or (c) arranging with the firm to take up the subscription—in which case the firm will repay the amount paid, together with the interest due thereon to date of transfer.

FARM HANDS SCARCE.

And They Will Be Scarcer in England When War is Over.

The Journal of Agriculture (Eng.) in a discussion on the English agricultural labor problem says it is estimated that 320,000 men have left the land in the United Kingdom since the beginning of the war, and to this figure will have to be added the number leaving between now and the end of the war; the number who will not go back to the land is estimated at twenty-five per cent. of the enlistments, or at least 80,000.

From examination of the means to be adopted, to meet this serious shortage the committee which has inquired into the matter are forced to the conclusion that unless the agricultural production and population are to be further reduced, a considerable number of ex-service men who were not employed in farm work on the outbreak of the war will have to be brought into English agriculture.

Referring to the possibility of the ex-service man settling in the Dominions, or in foreign countries, the committee think a great deal might be done, not only to bring home to him the comparative advantages of life in a more settled country, but to improve the conditions that have hitherto prevailed.

As a means of improving conditions it is suggested that small allotments of land be made near towns so that artisans engaged in industrial employment in those towns may provide at least a portion of their food supply in their spare time. It is further suggested, with a view of giving an added stimulus to general farming, that duties be placed on agricultural produce imported, which will be sufficient "to give the protection that is necessary to the farmer."

It is evidently the intention of those behind what is proposed to keep at home the prospective farm laborers it was hoped might be attracted to this country. It also appears probable, in addition to this, Canadian farmers may find, after the war, that the United Kingdom will no longer offer a free market for their produce.

Canadians Get V. C.

The Victoria Cross has been awarded to Lieut. Thomas Orde Lawler Wilkinson, North Lancashire Rifles, killed July 25, aged twenty-two. He was the second son of C. E. Wilkinson of Comox, B.C., and was a surveyor in Victoria when he enlisted originally, early in the war, in the Canadian Gordons.

Lieut. Wilkinson was decorated "for most conspicuous bravery. During an attack when a party of another unit were retiring without their machine gun, Lieut. Wilkinson rushed forward, and with two of his men, got the gun into action and held up the enemy till they were relieved. Later, when the advance was checked, during a bombing attack he forced his way forward and found four or five men of different units stopped by a solid block of earth, over which the enemy was throwing bombs. With great pluck and promptness, he mounted a machine gun on top of the parapet and dispersed the enemy bombers. Subsequently he made two most gallant attempts to bring in wounded men, but in his second attempt was shot through the heart, just before reaching his man. Throughout the day he set a magnificent example of courage and self-sacrifice."

The Victoria Cross also is awarded to the Rev. William Robert Addison, chaplain, who early lived in a Canadian lumber camp. He carried a wounded man and assisted several others to cover. By his splendid example of utter disregard of danger he encouraged the stretcher-bearers to go forward under a heavy fire.

To Popularize Sheep Raising.

A scheme for popularizing sheep breeding in counties of the Province of Ontario is being promoted by the Agricultural Department. The plan is to take five counties, the names of which have not been selected yet, and applications will be received from each of these counties from farmers' sons and others who have taken one of the short courses under district representatives. In each county a competition will be held in sheep judging, and the boy who makes the best record and whose father is not now raising sheep, and who conforms to the conditions, will be given a flock of six ewes. He has to agree to keep records of the cost and other things. The ewes become the property of the lads for two years. At the end of two years from the time that they took them over they turn back to the Live Stock Branch two shearling ewes, at the end of the third year two more, and at the end of the fourth year other two. By this period the boys will have given back six shearling ewes. In addition to this the Live Stock Branch is supplying pure-bred rams, and it is estimated that at the end of a year these young farmers should get six lambs. It is probable that in time the scheme may be extended to more than five counties.

Guelph's Loss by War.

The extent to which recruiting has been carried on in Guelph is well reflected in the returns from the Assessment Department, which were handed out recently. Assessor Hastings places the population of the city at 16,022, a decrease from the previous year of 713. A large number of soldiers' wives and families have returned to the old country until after the war. The total assessment is $11,419,930, an increase of more than $200,000. The city loses the business tax from the hotels of the city, which was included in the estimates at the first of the year. This amounts to $1,800. Only one ward in the city shows an increase in population.

The Lost Art.

The four-year-old had just been reproved at the table. He continued to talk cheerfully, though unanswered, to father. After some minutes of soliloquy he turned to mother and remarked:

"Your husband doesn't talk very much this noon, does he, mother?"

Time For Bed.

Mr. Dumley was making an evening call, and Bobby, who was allowed to sit up a little later than usual, put to him the following question:

"Mr. Dumley, do you want to make 5 shillings in ten minutes?"

"Do I want to make 5 shillings in ten minutes?" laughed the young man. "Certainly I do. But how can I make 5 shillings in ten minutes, Bobby?"

"Mamma will give it to you. She told papa that she would give 5 shillings to see you hold your tongue for ten minutes."—London Telegraph.

GRATITUDE.

Gratitude is the fairest blossom that springs from the soul, and the heart of man knoweth none so fragrant, while its opponent, ingratitude, is a deadly weed, poisoning the very atmosphere in which it grows.
